SIGILL. SCHOLÆ RELIGIONIS PACIFICÆ
COND. A.D. 1866
PRO
VERITATE
ET REGNO
DEI
CHARLES HOLBROOK LIBRARY
Pacific School of Religion

THE HOLY BIBLE,

ACCORDING TO

THE AUTHORIZED VERSION;

WITH

NOTES, EXPLANATORY AND PRACTICAL;

TAKEN PRINCIPALLY FROM THE

MOST EMINENT WRITERS OF THE UNITED CHURCH OF ENGLAND AND IRELAND:

TOGETHER WITH APPROPRIATE

INTRODUCTIONS, TABLES, INDEXES, MAPS, AND PLANS:

PREPARED AND ARRANGED BY

THE REV. GEORGE D'OYLY, D.D.

AND

THE REV. RICHARD MANT, D.D. (NOW LORD BISHOP OF KILLALOE,)

LATE DOMESTICK CHAPLAINS TO HIS GRACE THE LORD ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY.

UNDER THE DIRECTION OF

THE SOCIETY FOR PROMOTING CHRISTIAN KNOWLEDGE.

For the Use of Families.

VOL. II. PART II.

CAMBRIDGE:

PRINTED FOR THE SOCIETY AT THE UNIVERSITY PRESS,

BY J. SMITH, PRINTER TO THE UNIVERSITY;

SOLD BY MESSRS. RIVINGTON, BOOKSELLERS TO THE SOCIETY, ST. PAUL'S CHURCH-YARD, AND WATERLOO PLACE, PALL MALL;

BY J. MAWMAN, LUDGATE STREET; AND BY BALDWIN, CRADOCK, & JOY; AND LONGMAN & CO. PATERNOSTER-ROW, LONDON; AND BY DEIGHTON & SONS, CAMBRIDGE; AND BY ALL OTHER BOOKSELLERS IN THE UNITED KINGDOM.

1823.

Cum Privilegio.

Size 2
CH5
D778
v.3

INTRODUCTION

TO THE

NEW TESTAMENT.

THE canon of the New Testament consists of twenty-seven books, which were written by eight different authors, all of whom were contemporary with our Saviour. These books were written at different times, and at places remote from each other; and when the latest of them was published, the Gospel had been preached, and churches founded, in many parts of Asia, Europe, and Africa. Different churches at first received different books, according to their situation and circumstances; their canons were gradually enlarged, and it was not long, though the precise time is not known, before the same, or very nearly the same, books were acknowledged by the Christians of all countries. These books may be divided into four parts; namely, the Gospels, the Acts of the Apostles, the Epistles, and the Revelation.

The word Evangelium, rendered Gospel, signifies in Greek authors any joyful tidings, and is exactly answerable to our English word Gospel, which is derived from the Saxon words, God (good) and spel, (speech or tidings.) The doctrine of salvation taught by Jesus Christ is called Gospel, or good tidings, in several passages of the New Testament, Matt. iv. 23; Mark xiii. 10; Ephes. i. 13. Hence, in time, the name came to signify the history of Christ's preaching and miracles.

The four Gospels contain each of them the history of our Saviour's life and ministry; but we must remember, that no one of the Evangelists undertook to give an account of all the miracles which Christ performed, or of all the instructions which He delivered. They are written with different degrees of conciseness; but every one of them is sufficiently full to prove that Jesus was the promised Messiah, the Saviour of the world, who had been predicted by a long succession of Prophets, and whose advent was expected at the time of His appearance, both by Jews and Gentiles. Bps. Percy and Tomline.

That all the books, which convey to us the history of events under the New Testament, were written and immediately published by persons contemporary with the events, is most fully proved by the testimony of an unbroken series of authors, reaching from the days of the Evangelists to the present times; by the concurrent belief of Christians of all denominations; and by the unreserved confession of avowed enemies to the Gospel. In this point of view the writings of the ancient Fathers of the Christian Church are invaluable. They contain not only frequent references and allusions to the books of the New Testament, but also such numerous professed quotations from them, that it is demonstratively certain, that these books existed in their present state a few years after the conclusion of Christ's ministry upon earth. No unbeliever in the Apostolick age, in the age immediately subsequent to it, or indeed in any age whatever, was ever able to disprove the facts recorded in these books; and it does not appear, that in the early times any such attempt was made. The facts therefore related in the New Testament must be admitted to have really happened. But if all the circumstances of the history of Jesus, that is, His miraculous conception in the womb of the Virgin, the time at which He was born, the place where He was born, the family from which He was descended; the nature of the doctrines which He preached, the meanness of His condition, His rejection, death, burial, resurrection, and ascension, with many other minute particulars; if, I say, all these various circumstances in the history of Jesus exactly accord with the predictions of the Old Testament relative to the promised Messiah, in whom all the nations of the earth were to be blessed, it follows that Jesus was that Messiah. And again, if Jesus really performed the miracles as related in the Gospels, and was perfectly acquainted with the thoughts and designs of men, His Divine mission cannot be doubted. Lastly, if He really foretold His own death and resurrection, the descent of the Holy Ghost, its miraculous effects, the sufferings of the Apostles, the call of the Gentiles, and the destruction of Jerusalem, it necessarily follows that He spake by the authority of God Himself. These and many other arguments, founded in the more than human character of Jesus, in the rapid propagation of the Gospel, in the excellence of its precepts and doctrines, and in the constancy, intrepidity, and fortitude of its early professors, incontrovertibly establish the truth and Divine origin of the Christian religion, and afford to us, who live in these latter times, the most positive confirmation of the promise of our Lord, "that the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." Bp. Tomline.

The Gospels recount those wonderful and important events, with which the Christian religion and the Divine Author of it were introduced into the world, and which have produced so great a change in the principles, the manners, the morals, and the temporal as well as spiritual condition of mankind. They relate the first appearance of Christ upon earth, His extraordinary and miraculous birth, the testimony borne to Him by His forerunner, John the Baptist, the temptation in the wilderness, the opening of His Divine commission, the pure, the perfect, and sublime morality which He taught, especially in His inimitable sermon on the mount; the infinite superiority which He shewed to every other moral teacher, both in the matter and manner of His discourses, more particularly by crushing vice in its very cradle, in the first risings of wicked desires and propensities in the heart, by giving a decided preference of the mild, gentle, passive, conciliating virtues, to that violent, vindictive, high-spirited, unforgiving temper, which has been always too much the favourite character of the world; by requiring us to forgive our very enemies, and to do good to them that hate us; by excluding from our devotions, our alms, and all our virtues, all regard to fame, reputation, and applause; by laying down two great general principles of morality, love to God, and love to mankind, and deducing from thence every other human duty; by conveying His instructions under the easy, familiar, and impressive form of parables; by expressing Himself in a tone of dignity and authority unknown before; by exemplifying every virtue that He taught in His own unblemished and perfect life and conversation; and, above all, by adding those awful sanctions, which He alone, of all moral instructors, had the power to hold out, eternal rewards to the virtuous, and eternal punishments to the wicked. The sacred narratives then represent to us the high character that He assumed, the claim He made to a Divine original; the wonderful miracles He wrought in proof of His divinity; the various prophecies which plainly marked Him out as the Messiah, the Great Deliverer of the Jews; the declarations He made that He came to offer Himself a sacrifice for the sins of all mankind; the cruel indignities, sufferings and persecutions, to which, in consequence of this great design, He was exposed; the accomplishment of it by the painful and ignominious death to which He submitted, by His resurrection after three days from the grave, by His ascension into heaven, by His sitting there at the right hand of God, and performing the office of a Mediator and Intercessor for the sinful sons of men, till He shall come a second time in His glory to sit in judgment on all mankind, and decide their final doom of happiness or misery for ever. These are the momentous, the interesting truths, on which the Gospels principally dwell. Bp. Porteus.

THE GOSPEL

ACCORDING TO

ST. MATTHEW.

INTRODUCTION.

IT appears from the concurrent testimony of all antiquity, that this Gospel was really written by St. Matthew, whose name it bears, and that it was from the earliest times universally received as such by the Christian Church.

Matthew, called also Levi, was the son of Alpheus, but probably not of that Alpheus who was the father of the Apostle James the Less. He was a native of Galilee; but it is not known in what city of that country he was born, or to what tribe of the people of Israel he belonged. Although a Jew, he was a publican or taxgatherer under the Romans; and his office seems to have consisted in collecting the customs due upon commodities which were carried, and from persons who passed, over the lake of Gennesareth. Our Saviour commanded him, as he was sitting at a place where he received these customs, to follow Him, Matt. ix. 9. He immediately obeyed, and from that time became a constant attendant on our Saviour, and was appointed one of the twelve Apostles. Matthew, probably soon after his call, made an entertainment at his house, at which were present Christ and some of His disciples, and also several publicans, Matt. ix. 10; Luke v. 29. After the ascension of our Saviour, he continued, with the other Apostles, to preach the Gospel for some time in Judea: but, as there is no farther account of him in any writer of the first four centuries, we must consider it as uncertain into what country he afterwards went, and likewise in what manner, and at what time, he died.

It is generally agreed, on the most satisfactory evidence, that St. Matthew's Gospel was the first that was written; but, respecting its precise date, we have no certain information, and a great variety of opinions has prevailed. Of the several dates assigned to it, which deserve any attention, the earliest is the year 38 of the Christian era, and the latest the year 64. On considering the respective arguments in favour of these, it appears very improbable that the Christians should be left any considerable number of years without a written history of our Saviour's ministry. It is certain that the Apostles, immediately after the descent of the Holy Ghost, which took place only ten days after the ascension of our Saviour into heaven, preached the Gospel to the Jews with great success: and surely it is reasonable to suppose, that an authentick account of His doctrines and miracles would very soon be committed to writing, for the confirmation of those who believed in His Divine mission, and for the conversion of others; and more particularly to enable the Jews to compare the circumstances of the birth, death, and resurrection of Jesus, with their ancient prophecies relative to the Messiah: and we may conceive that the Apostles would be desirous of losing no time in writing an account of the miracles which Jesus performed, and of the discourses which He delivered, because the sooner such an account was published, the easier it would be to inquire into its truth and accuracy; and consequently, when these points were satisfactorily ascertained, the greater would be its weight and authority.

There has also been of late years great difference of opinion respecting the language in which this Gospel was originally written. However, many ancient Fathers positively assert, that it was written by St. Matthew in Hebrew, that is, in the language then spoken in Palestine: and in a question of this sort, which is a question of fact, the concurrent voice of antiquity perhaps ought to be decisive with us. It may be observed too, that the opinion that the first published Gospel was written in the language of the Jews, and for their peculiar use, is perfectly conformable to the distinction with which we know they were favoured, of having the Gospel preached to them exclusively by our Saviour, and before all other nations by His Apostles.

Though the Fathers are unanimous in declaring that St. Matthew wrote his Gospel in Hebrew, yet they have not informed us by whom it was translated into Greek. It is however universally allowed that the Greek translation was made very early, and that it was more in use than the original. This last circumstance is easily accounted for. After the destruction of Jerusalem, the language of the Jews, and every thing which belonged to them, fell into great contempt, and the early Fathers, writing in Greek, would naturally quote and refer to the Greek copy of St. Matthew's Gospel, in the same manner as they constantly used the Septuagint version of the Old Testament. There being no longer any country in which the language of St. Matthew's original Gospel was commonly spoken, that original would soon be forgotten; and the translation into Greek, the language then generally understood, would be substituted in its room. This early and exclusive use of the Greek translation, is a strong proof of its correctness, and leaves us but little reason to lament the loss of the original.

St. Matthew, being from the time of his call a constant attendant upon our Saviour, was well qualified to write the history of His life. He relates what he saw and heard in a natural and unaffected style; and he is more circumstantial in his accounts than any other of the Evangelists. That he published his Gospel in Palestine for the immediate use of the Jews, was the opinion of all ancient ecclesiastical writers; and it is confirmed by the contents of the book itself. There are more references in this than in any other Gospel to Jewish customs; and cities and places in Palestine are always mentioned in it as being well known by those to whom it is addressed. St. Matthew seems studiously to have selected such circumstances, as were calculated to conciliate or strengthen the faith of the Jews; for example, no sentiment relative to the Messiah was more prevalent among them than that He should be of the race of Abraham, and family of David; and accordingly St. Matthew begins his narrative by shewing the descent of Jesus from those two illustrious persons. He then relates the birth of Jesus in Bethlehem, the city in which the Messiah was expected to be born; and throughout his Gospel he omits no opportunity of explaining the Scriptures, and of pointing out the fulfilment of prophecy, which was known to have greater weight with the Jews than any other species of evidence: moreover, he records many of our Saviour's reproofs to the Jews for their errours and superstitions, and thus endeavours to eradicate from their minds those prejudices which impeded the progress, or sullied the purity, of the Christian faith. Though this Gospel was particularly adapted to the Jews, it must also have been very useful in confirming and in converting other persons, especially those who were acquainted with the types and predictions of the Old Testament. As the sacred writers, especially the Evangelists, have many qualities in common, so there is something in every one of them, which, if attended to, will be found to distinguish him from the rest. That which principally distinguishes St. Matthew, is the distinctness and particularity with which he has related many of our Lord's discourses and moral instructions. Of these, His sermon on the mount, His charge to the Apostles, His illustrations of the nature of His kingdom, and His prophecy on mount Olivet, are examples. He has also wonderfully united simplicity and energy in relating the replies of his Master to the cavils of His adversaries. Being early called to the Apostleship, he was an eyewitness and earwitness of most of the things which he relates: and though I do not think it was the scope of any of these historians to adjust their narratives to the precise order of time wherein the events happened, there are some circumstances which incline me to think, that St. Matthew has approached at least as near to that order as any of them. And this, we may observe, would naturally be the distinguishing characteristick of a narrative, written very soon after the events had taken place. The most remarkable things recorded in St. Matthew's Gospel, and not found in any other, are the following: The visit of the eastern magi; our Saviour's flight into Egypt; the slaughter of the infants at Bethlehem; the parable of the ten virgins; the dream of Pilate's wife; the resurrection of many saints at our Saviour's crucifixion; and the bribing of the Roman guard, appointed to watch at the holy sepulchre, by the chief priests and elders. Bp. Tomline.

CHAP. I.

1 The genealogy of Christ from Abraham to Joseph.
18 He was conceived by the Holy Ghost, and born of the Virgin Mary when she was espoused to Joseph.
19 The angel satisfieth the misdeeming thoughts of Joseph, and interpreteth the names of Christ.

[a] Luke 3. 23. THE book of the [a] generation of Jesus Christ, the son of David, the son of Abraham.

[b] Gen. 21. 3. [c] Gen. 25. 26. [d] Gen. 29. 35. [e] Gen. 38. 27. 2 [b] Abraham begat Isaac; and [c] Isaac begat Jacob; and [d] Jacob begat Judas and his brethren;

3 And [e] Judas begat Phares and Zara of Thamar; and [f] Phares begat Esrom; and Esrom begat Aram;

[f] 1 Chron. 2. 5. Ruth 4. 18.

4 And Aram begat Aminadab; and Aminadab begat Naasson; and Naasson begat Salmon;

5 And Salmon begat Booz of Rachab; and Booz begat Obed of Ruth; and Obed begat Jesse;

[g] 1 Sam. 16. 1. & 17. 12. [h] 2 Sam. 12. 24. 6 And [g] Jesse begat David the king; and [h] David the king begat Solomon of her that had been the wife of Urias;

[i] 1 Chron. 3. 10. 7 And [i] Solomon begat Roboam; and Roboam begat Abia; and Abia begat Asa;

Chap. I. ver. 1. The book of the generation] It has been the subject of much discussion among interpreters, whether these words form the title of the whole Gospel, and are to be understood to mean "a history of all that relates to Jesus Christ, His pedigree, birth, actions, death," &c. or whether they merely form the title of the genealogy with which the Gospel begins. Our translators, by rendering the words "the book of the generation," seem to apply the title to the whole of St Matthew's Gospel. Edit.

—— of Jesus Christ,] Jesus signifies "Saviour;" and Christ, having the same sense as Messiah, signifies "anointed." See notes at chap. i. 21; John i. 41.

—— son of David, the son of Abraham.] These two ancestors of Jesus Christ are particularly mentioned, because to them the promises of the Messiah had been especially made; to Abraham, that of a son "in whom all the nations of the earth should be blessed," Gen. xxii. 18; and to David, of a son whose reign should be eternal, 2 Sam. vii. 12, 13. The Jews expected the accomplishment of these promises in the person of the Messiah, Luke i. 32, 69. It was particularly matter of expectation that the Messiah was to be of the race of David; whence those who believed Jesus to be the Messiah called Him "the son of David," Matt. xii. 23; xv. 22; xxi. 9. Beausobre. There is a modesty and simplicity in the manner in which the Evangelist introduces this subject. He says no more than is necessary to make his readers distinguish the Person of whom he speaks, leaving them to form their judgment of His mission and character from an unadorned narration of facts. Dr. Campbell. St. Matthew, being the first Evangelist, proceeds as a regular historian, and being solicitous to convince the Jews, for whose instruction he penned his Gospel, begins with the genealogy of our Saviour, and proves from their own registers that He was, according to the promises, the legal descendant of Abraham and David. Dr. H. Owen.

2. Abraham begat Isaac; &c.] By opening his Gospel with this genealogy, the Evangelist, besides proving to the Jews that Christ, according to the prophecies and promises made concerning Him, was legally descended from Abraham and David, also prepared his readers to understand the words of the angel to Joseph at ver. 20, "Joseph, thou son of David," and the title given to our Saviour by the wise men, of "King of the Jews," chap. ii. 2. As it was probable that the Jews, among the first points of inquiry concerning Christ, would demand whether He was of the house of David, and whether He was born at Bethlehem; therefore St. Matthew, being a Jew himself, and writing his Gospel for the use of Jews, satisfies them at the very beginning, as to these two particulars, shewing, in this chapter, His legal descent from David, and, in the next, His birth at Bethlehem. Dr. Lightfoot.

—— Judas and his brethren;] The brethren of Judas seem here to be mentioned, as being heirs of the promise, and heads of that people whence the Messiah was to spring; also to shew that all the tribes, though not returned from the captivity, had an equal interest in the blessing promised to the seed of Abraham. Dr. Whitby.

8 And Asa begat Josaphat; and Josaphat begat Joram; and Joram begat Ozias;

9 And Ozias begat Joatham; and Joatham begat Achaz; and Achaz begat Ezekias;

10 [k] And Ezekias begat Manasses; and Manasses begat Amon; and Amon begat Josias;

11 And ‖ Josias begat Jechonias and his brethren, about the time they were carried away to Babylon:

12 And after they were brought to Babylon, [l] Jechonias begat Salathiel; and Salathiel begat Zorobabel;

13 And Zorobabel begat Abiud; and Abiud begat Eliakim; and Eliakim begat Azor;

14 And Azor begat Sadoc; and Sadoc begat Achim; and Achim begat Eliud;

15 And Eliud begat Eleazar; and Eleazar begat Matthan; and Matthan begat Jacob;

16 And Jacob begat Joseph the husband of Mary, of whom was born Jesus, who is called Christ.

17 So all the generations from Abraham to David are fourteen generations; and from David until the carrying away into Babylon are fourteen generations; and from the carrying away into Babylon unto Christ are fourteen generations.

18 ¶ Now the [m] birth of Jesus Christ was on this wise: When as his mother Mary was espoused to Joseph, before they came together, she was found with child of the Holy Ghost.

[k] 2 Kings 20. 21. 1 Chron. 3. 13.

‖ Some read, Josias begat Jakim, and Jakim begat Jechonias.

[l] 1 Chron. 3. 16, 17.

The Fifth Year before the Common Account called Anno Domini.

[m] Luke 1. 27.

---

8. — and Joram begat Ozias ;] Ozias, or Uzziah, 2 Kings xv. 32. Here three kings are omitted between Joram and Ozias, namely, Ahaziah, Joash, and Amaziah, which last was the father of Ozias or Uzziah. The probable reason for this omission is the curse which was twice denounced against the house of Ahab, (1 Kings xxi. 21 ; 2 Kings ix. 8,) to which these princes belonged, since this curse was to take place until the third generation. It is certain that the Jews frequently omitted names in their genealogies and records, especially on account of wickedness or idolatry. Thus five descents from Meraioth are omitted, Ezra vii. compared with 1 Chron. vi. : and the whole tribe of Dan is passed over, Rev. vii. Dr. Wall, Dr. Whitby.

11. — Josias begat Jechonias and his brethren,] Josias had three sons who sat on the throne of Judah : 1st, Jehoahaz, a younger son, whom the people elected after the father's death. 2nd, Jehoiakim, (here called Jechonias,) called also Eliakim, placed on the throne on the removal of his younger brother, 2 Kings xxiii. 31—36. 3rd, Zedekiah, who succeeded to the throne after some interval, 2 Kings xxiv. 15, 17. The Jechonias mentioned in the next verse is a different person, being Jehoiachin, the son of the former Jehoiakim. He succeeded his father, and was soon removed to Babylon. The two names in Hebrew are extremely similar in sound and import. Dr. Whitby, Dr. Wells.

16. — Joseph the husband of Mary,] The betrothed husband of Mary : see ver. 18. The titles of husband and wife are given in Scripture to persons who are only betrothed. Thus Rachel is called the wife of Jacob, Gen. xxix. 21. See also Deut. xxii. 24. Beausobre. Thus it appears that St. Matthew traces the genealogy through Joseph, the supposed father of Jesus, and the husband of Mary. The reason is, that he was writing for the Jews, and tracing His legal descent from David ; which legal descent was always reckoned in the male line, and was therefore properly traced through the husband of His mother. See note at Luke iii. 23. Publick registers of the tribe of Judah, and of the other tribes that adhered to it, were reserved even during the captivity and subsequent to it, as may be collected from the books of Ezra and Nehemiah : also from St. Luke's informing his readers that Anna was "of the tribe of Aser," and St. Paul's, that he himself was "of the tribe of Benjamin." From one of these, no doubt, St. Matthew copied the latter part of his genealogy, as St. Luke did from another the beginning of his, each having then the civil records of the Jews to vouch for them. Dr. Lightfoot.

If it be objected, that we lay too much stress on a supposed accommodation to the Jews in commending the Messiah to them by this genealogy, when the Evangelist knew that Joseph was only the reputed father of our Lord, the answer is, 1st, that, as foster-father, it was something to prove Joseph to be of the lineage of David, and therefore not exceptionable to the Jews ; and 2dly, that, by knowing this, it necessarily followed, as the Jews well understood, that Mary also, of whom Christ came according to the flesh, was of the same lineage, for the daughters of Israel were not permitted to marry out of their own tribe ; at least, if this practice were not universal, as it is denied by some learned men to have been, yet it was so far usual as to form a presumptive evidence, which could only be set aside by proof to the contrary ; and in the case of Mary, this was particularly enjoined according to the law laid down concerning the daughters of Zelophehad, which obtained in all such cases afterwards. The case of Mary and her sister, who had no brother, was exactly similar to this. See Numb. xxxvi. 6—9. Archdeacon Pott.

17. So all the generations — are fourteen generations ;] It was customary with the Jews, for the convenience of memory, to reduce numbers in genealogies, &c. to the same quantities. Accordingly St. Matthew here, or the genealogist whom he copied, has brought the pedigree of our Saviour into three regular classes by omissions of little consequence. These classes have a marked distinction : the first fourteen, under the prophets and judges from Abraham to David : the second, under the kings from their state of splendour, and the building of the temple to its destruction : the third, under the Asmonean priests, from the misery of the captivity to real glory again in Christ. Dr. Lightfoot.

18. Now the birth of Jesus &c.] It will be observed, that, according to the chronological notice given in the margin, the birth of our Saviour is stated to have taken place "in the fifth year" before the era which is vulgarly assigned for that event, and from which the dates of our years are usually reckoned. The fact is, that the practice of dating from the birth of Christ did not begin in the early times of Christianity, and was not generally adopted among Christians, till about A. D. 730 ; and it is now the universal opinion of learned men, that, at its first adoption, an errour of about four years was made in fixing the era from which the dates are computed. Edit.

—— was espoused to Joseph,] It was usual for some space to intervene, generally a year or six months, between the espousals and the nuptials, Deut. xx. 7. Beausobre. No woman in Israel was married, unless she had been first espoused. Dr. Lightfoot.

—— she was found with child of the Holy Ghost.] The miraculous conception of our Lord, here announced, is the foundation of the whole distinction between the character of Christ in the condition of a man, and that of any other Prophet. Had the conception of Jesus been in the natural way, had He been the fruit of Mary's marriage with her husband, His intercourse with the Deity would have been of no other kind than the nature of any other man might equally have admitted ; an intercourse of no higher kind than the Prophets enjoyed, when their minds were enlightened by the extraordinary influence of the Holy Spirit. The Holy Scriptures however speak a truth very different from

The Fifth Year before the Common Account, called Anno Domini.

19 Then Joseph her husband, being a just man, and not willing to make her a publick example, was minded to put her away privily.

20 But while he thought on these things, behold, the angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a dream, saying, Joseph, thou son of David, fear not to take unto thee Mary thy wife: for that which is conceived in her is of the Holy Ghost.

[n] Luke 1. 31.

21 [n] And she shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name JESUS: for he shall save his people from their sins.

22 Now all this was done, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken of the Lord by the prophet, saying,

[o] Isai. 7. 14.

23 [o] Behold, a virgin shall be with child, and shall bring forth a son, and ‖ they shall call his name Emmanuel, which being interpreted is, God with us.

The Fifth Year before the Common Account called Anno Domini.

24 Then Joseph being raised from sleep did as the angel of the Lord had bidden him, and took unto him his wife:

25 And knew her not till she had brought forth her firstborn son: and he called his name JESUS.

‖ Or, his name shall be called.

CHAP. II.

1 The wise men out of the east are directed to Christ by a star. 11 They worship him, and offer their presents. 14 Joseph fleeth into Egypt, with Jesus and his mother. 16 Herod slayeth the children: 20 himself dieth. 23 Christ is brought back again into Galilee to Nazareth.

---

this. They tell us, that the same God who "spake in time past unto the fathers by the Prophets, hath in these last days spoken unto us by His Son," (Heb. i. 1;) evidently establishing a distinction between the two characters of a Prophet of God, and of the Son of God; and lest the superiority of the Son should be deemed a mere superiority of the office to which He was appointed, we are told that the Son is higher than the angels, being the effulgence of God's glory, "the express image of His person," "the God whose throne is for ever and ever," (Heb. i. 3, &c.) and this high dignity of the Son is alleged as a motive for religious obedience to His commands and for reliance on His promises. It is this indeed which gives such authority to His precepts, and such certainty to His whole doctrine, as render faith in Him the first duty of religion. Had Christ been a mere Prophet, to believe in Christ had been the same thing as to believe in John the Baptist. The messages indeed announced on the part of God by Christ and by John the Baptist might have been different, as also their relative importance; but the principles of belief in either must have been the same. Bp. Horsley.

—— of the Holy Ghost.] The Third Person in the blessed Trinity. See notes at John xiv. 16; xv. 26.

19. — being a just man,] Being a merciful pious man. Dr. Hammond. The word, translated "just," admits two senses: the first is, "just" in the strictest acceptation, attentive to the rules of equity in our dealings; the second is, "righteous" in the most extensive sense, including every essential part of a good character. Dr. Campbell.

—— to put her away privily.] The publick punishment for adultery was stoning, Deut. xxii. 23, 24. Joseph being a just man, that is, according to the style of Scripture, a good, a charitable man, found it was more agreeable to justice to treat an offending person with the easiest sentence, (see Deut. xxiv. 1,) than to put things to extremity. Accordingly he purposed to put his spouse away privily, that he might preserve her reputation. In so doing he was a pattern of charity, and reads to us a rule for our deportment towards erring and lapsed persons, that we should treat them with meekness, and pity, and fear; not hastening their shame, nor provoking their spirit, nor making their reformation desperate by harsh treatment. Bp. J. Taylor.

20. — to take unto thee Mary thy wife:] That is, to be married to her according to the Jewish manner of celebrating marriage then in use. She is here called his wife, as he was called her husband, ver. 19. See Deut. xxii, xxiii, xxiv. Bp. Pearce.

21. — his name JESUS:] This name, of Hebrew derivation, signifies "The Saviour," and eminently belongs to Him who is "the Saviour of the world," by delivering us both from the power and from the punishment of sin, and putting us in the way of attaining everlasting salvation. Abp. Wake.

22. — that it might be fulfilled &c.] The meaning is, not that the prophecy was the cause or reason why the thing was done, but that the thing done was the means or way, whereby the prophecy was fulfilled and shewn to be true. The phrase is sometimes to be understood, as expressing not the design, but the event only. Bp. Mann.

—— which was spoken — by the prophet,] See note at Isai. vii. 14. Of this complex prophecy, Isai. vii. 10—16, the Evangelist cites only that part which relates to the miraculous conception and birth of Christ, and is addressed in the plural to the house of David, to assure them of their preservation, inasmuch as the promise made to their fathers would be faithfully fulfilled. The remainder belongs to Isaiah's son, Shear-Jashub, and was delivered to Ahaz in the singular, to animate and support him in his then present distress. Dr. H. Owen.

25. — her firstborn son:] This expression does not imply that she had afterwards other sons. Since by the Jewish constitution certain privileges belonged to the firstborn, those who were entitled to these prerogatives were invariably denominated "the firstborn," whether their parents had issue afterwards or not. Dr. Campbell.

The mode of our Saviour's birth was undoubtedly most wonderful and unexampled. But it was natural to imagine that, when the Son of God was to appear upon the scene, He would enter upon it in a way different from the sons of men. And, in fact, we find Him appearing upon earth in a manner perfectly new and peculiar to Himself; in a manner which united in itself at once the evidence of prophecy and of miracle. He was born of a virgin, and, what is no less wonderful, it was predicted of Him 700 years before, that He should be so born, Isai. vii. 14. What man, but a Prophet inspired of God, could have foreseen an event so completely improbable and apparently impossible? What less than the power of God could have enabled Jesus to fulfil such a prophecy? By that power He did fulfil it. He only, of the whole human race, did fulfil it, and thus proved Himself to be, at the very moment of His birth, what the whole course of His future life, His death, His resurrection, and His ascension into heaven further declared Him to be, the Son of God. Bp. Porteus.

The miraculous conception of our Lord evidently implies some higher purpose of His coming than the mere business of a teacher. The business of a teacher might have been performed by a mere man, enlightened by the prophetick spirit. For, whatever instruction men have the capacity to receive, a man might have been made the instrument to convey. Had teaching therefore been the sole purpose of our Saviour's coming, a mere man might have effected the whole business; and the supernatural conception had been an unnecessary miracle. He therefore, who came in this miraculous way, came upon some higher business, to which a mere man was unequal. He came to be made a sin offering for us, "that we might be made the righteousness of God in Him," 2 Cor. v. 21. Bp. Horsley.

The Fourth Year before the Common Account called Anno Domini.

NOW when [a] Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea in the days of Herod the king, behold, there came wise men from the east to Jerusalem,

2 Saying, Where is he that is born King of the Jews? for we have seen his star in the east, and are come to worship him.

3 When Herod the king had heard these things, he was troubled, and all Jerusalem with him.

4 And when he had gathered all the chief priests and scribes of the people together, he demanded of them where Christ should be born.

5 And they said unto him, In Bethlehem of Judea: for thus it is written by the prophet,

6 [b] And thou Bethlehem, in the land of Juda, art not the least among the princes of Juda: for out of thee shall come a

[a] Luke 2. 6.

[b] Mic. 5. 2. John 7. 42.

Chap. II. ver. 1. Now when Jesus was born] That which here follows was not immediately after the birth of Jesus, but some time afterwards. The several particulars of our Lord's birth are given by St. Luke, chap. ii.

—— in Bethlehem of Judea] This town lay to the south of Jerusalem: Eusebius and St. Jerome say, at the distance of six miles; Josephus makes the distance less. Bp. Pearce. As Bethlehem has been all along honoured by Christians of all nations on account of its being our Saviour's birthplace, so at this very day it is generally visited by pilgrims; to whom they pretend to shew the very spot where He was born, and the manger in which He was laid. Dr. Wells.

—— Herod the king,] This was Herod the Great, the first Jewish king of that name. He had many descendants, who are also called Herods, although they had other names. As the mention of these will frequently occur in different parts of the New Testament, it may be proper here to give a list of them. 1. Archelaus, (ver. 22,) ethnarch or governour of Judea and Samaria. 2. Herod Antipas, tetrarch of Galilee, (Matt. xiv. 1,) Luke iii. 1,) who caused John the Baptist to be beheaded, (chap. xiv. 10,) and to whom Pilate sent Jesus, (Luke xxiii. 7.) 3. Philip, the tetrarch of Iturea and Trachonitis, (Luke iii. 1.) 4. Herod Philip, (chap. xiv. 3,) his son by Mariamne the daughter of the high priest Simon. All these four were the sons of the first Herod. 5. Herod Agrippa the elder, the grandson of the first Herod by Aristobulus: he caused James the Apostle to be beheaded, (Acts xii. 1, 2.) 6. Herod, king of Chalcis, who was the brother of the above-mentioned Herod Agrippa. 7. Herod Agrippa the younger, son of the former Agrippa, and king of Chalcis after the death of his uncle; he is the king mentioned in Acts xxv. 13. Bp. Pearce.

—— wise men] The name of these "wise men" is, in the Latin language, magi, from whence is derived our English word magicians; a word now used in a bad sense. The magi were a sect of ancient philosophers, living in the Eastern part of the world, collected together in colleges, addicted to the study of astronomy and other parts of natural philosophy, and highly esteemed throughout the East, having juster sentiments of God and His worship than any of the ancient heathens, for they abhorred the adoration of images, and worshipped one only God: they were therefore evidently the fittest of all the ancient heathens to have the first knowledge of the Son of God, and of salvation by Him imparted to them. Bp. Porteus.

—— from the east] This country might either be Persia, where the principal residence of the magi was, or else Arabia, to which ancient authors say they did, and undoubtedly they easily might, extend themselves; which, it is well known, abounded in the valuable things of which their presents consisted, and concerning which the 72d Psalm (plainly speaking of the Messiah) says, "the kings of Arabia and Saba (or Sabea, an adjoining region) shall bring gifts:" and again, "unto Him shall be given of the gold of Arabia." Bp. Porteus.

2. —for we have seen his star in the east,] It is here natural to inquire how these wise men could know this to be His star, or that it signified the birth of a king. It has been supposed by many that they learnt this from the prophecy of Balaam, Numb. xxiv. 17. It is certain, as Suetonius and Tacitus inform us, that an expectation prevailed through the whole East that, about that time, a King should arise out of Judea that should rule over all the world. Dr. Whitby. That the extraordinary Person then generally expected was to have dominion over the whole earth, was part of the prevailing persuasion, founded on predictions of the clearest import, and among others on the text of Ps. lxxii. plainly relating to Christ, "All kings shall fall down before Him, all nations shall do Him service." There were Jews enough even in Persia, and much more in Arabia, to propagate this doctrine, and shew it to be contained in their sacred books, from whence therefore the wise men may well be supposed to have received it. Bp. Porteus.

—— his star] Probably this star or light was of the nature of what the Jews called the Shechinah or Divine glory, (see note at Exod. xiii. 21,) the appearance of which is mentioned in chap. xvii. 5, and at 2 Pet. i. 17. Bp. Pearce. Perhaps it was the same "glory of the Lord," or miraculous light which "shone round about the shepherds," which may have appeared to the magi, on the same night, at a great distance, diminished to the size of a star. Dr. Hales. It was plainly some new appearance, which they, whose profession led them peculiarly to the study of astronomy, had observed in the heavens. Bp. Porteus.

—— in the east,] It is not meant that they saw the star to the east of themselves, but that they, being eastward of Judea, saw the star, probably seeming to hang over that country. Bp. Porteus.

3. — he was troubled, and all Jerusalem] That is, Herod with fear, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem for joy; Herod and his family being much hated by the Jews. Bp. Pearce. Or perhaps it is meant, that the people were alarmed, not knowing what the consequence of so extraordinary a birth might be. Bp. Porteus.

4. — all the chief priests and scribes] It is probably meant, that he assembled the Sanhedrim or chief council of the Jews, consisting of the persons here mentioned. Dr. Lightfoot.

—— the chief priests] This title comprehends not only the high priest or high priests then in possession of the office, with all those who had held the office and their deputies, but also all the heads of the twenty-four courses or families of the priests, spoken of at 1 Chron. xxiv. 6. Bp. Pearce.

—— scribes of the people] The word "scribes" is not the title of any particular sect, distinguished from all others as to any peculiar modes of practice and belief, but it is a general term, applicable to all those of any sect who made the law of Moses and the prophetical and sacred books their peculiar study, so as to become capable of commenting upon them, and thence of publickly instructing the people. It appears from the frequent mention of the scribes and Pharisees in conjunction, throughout the Gospels, that the greatest number of Jewish teachers, or doctors of the law, (which mean the same as scribes,) were of the sect of the Pharisees. Bp. Percy. Being persons employed to write out the Scriptures of the Old Testament, and thus being well versed in them, they were consulted in cases of moment or difficulty, and were the authorized expounders of the law. They insisted much on the necessity of observing traditions, many of which, however, were such as destroyed the force and intent of God's commands. See chap. xv. 2. Bp. Mann.

—— where Christ should be born.] Where their expected Messiah and King should be born. Dr. Whitby.

6. — thou Bethlehem, — art not the least] Thou Bethlehem, though small in size, art excelled in dignity by none of the principal cities. Bp. Mann. See notes at Micah v. 2.

The Fourth Year before the Common Account called Anno Domini.

Governor, that shall ‖ rule my people Israel.

‖ Or, feed.

7 Then Herod, when he had privily called the wise men, enquired of them diligently what time the star appeared.

8 And he sent them to Bethlehem, and said, Go and search diligently for the young child; and when ye have found him, bring me word again, that I may come and worship him also.

9 When they had heard the king, they departed; and, lo, the star, which they saw in the east, went before them, till it came and stood over where the young child was.

10 When they saw the star, they rejoiced with exceeding great joy.

11 ¶ And when they were come into the house, they saw the young child with Mary his mother, and fell down, and worshipped him: and when they had opened their treasures, they ‖ presented unto him gifts; gold, and frankincense, and myrrh.

‖ Or, offered.

12 And being warned of God in a dream that they should not return to Herod, they departed into their own country another way.

13 And when they were departed, behold, the angel of the Lord appeareth to Joseph in a dream, saying, Arise, and take the young child and his mother, and flee into Egypt, and be thou there until I bring thee word: for Herod will seek the young child to destroy him.

The Fourth Year before the Common Account called Anno Domini.

14 When he arose, he took the young child and his mother by night, and departed into Egypt:

15 And was there until the death of Herod: that it might be fulfilled which was spoken of the Lord by the prophet, saying, [c] Out of Egypt have I called my son.

[c] Hosea 11. 1.

16 ¶ Then Herod, when he saw that he was mocked of the wise men, was exceeding wroth, and sent forth, and slew all the children that were in Bethlehem, and in all the coasts thereof, from two years old and under, according to the time which he had diligently enquired of the wise men.

17 Then was fulfilled that which was spoken by [d] Jeremy the prophet, saying,

[d] Jer. 31. 15.

18 In Rama was there a voice heard, lamentation, and weeping, and great mourning, Rachel weeping for her children, and would not be comforted, because they are not.

---

7. — enquired of them diligently] Procured from them exact information. Dr. Campbell.

—— what time the star &c.] It was probably from their answers that Herod fixed the age of the children, whom he caused to be slain, at "two years old and under," ver. 16. Bp. Pearce.

8. — that I may come and worship him] His intention, however, was not to worship, but to destroy Him. Dr. Whitby.

11. — their treasures,] That is, their bags or sacks, in which they brought what they presented. Bp. Pearce.

—— gold, and frankincense, and myrrh.] These were the natural productions of that country from which the wise men are supposed to have come, Arabia, or Sabea. It is observable, that the manner in which these wise men approached our Lord is precisely that, in which the people in those countries always addressed themselves to persons of rank and dignity. They worshipped Him, that is, prostrated themselves before Him, which was and still is the custom in the East; they also offered presents to Him, and it is well known that without a present no great man was at that time or is now approached. Bp. Porteus.

Thus was the knowledge of our Saviour's birth communicated to a few chosen witnesses, both Jews (see Luke ii. 8.) and Gentiles; it was revealed to "babes" in simplicity, innocence, and docility, while it was hidden from the great and mighty, "the wise and prudent" of His own nation, Herod and the chief priests, who "sought the young child to destroy Him." Dr. Hales.

13. — the angel] Rather, an angel. Bp. Pearce.

15. — That it might be fulfilled] "Thus was fulfilled" that prophecy of Hosea, chap. xi. 1. Bp. Mann.

16. — and in all the coasts thereof,] In all the borders or boundaries thereof.

—— according to the time] According to the time of the star's first appearing to the wise men, of which he had got from them an exact account. Bp. Pearce.

This dreadful transaction, the murder of the innocents, exactly corresponds with the character of Herod, who was one of the most cruel and ferocious tyrants that ever disgraced a throne, and amongst other enormities had put to death one of his own sons. No wonder then that his jealousy should prompt him to murder a number of infants not at all related to him. Bp. Porteus.

——from two years old and under,] The extending of the massacre to children of two years old seems to have arisen from an excess of precaution, in order to compass with the greater certainty the death of Christ within this wider limit, by including all that were under it. Dr. Hales.

The behaviour of Herod on this dreadful occasion should caution us, to what amazing lengths of sin human beings are capable of advancing, unless they check themselves in time, especially when the love of power and dominion hurries them on. We should also observe how the providence of God overrules the designs of the wicked. Herod destroyed indeed those infants whom he would have wished to spare, but that Infant, whom alone he wished to destroy, escaped him. Thus he plunged himself into the deepest guilt, and gave himself up to endless infamy and misery, yet gained not that point at which he aimed. Abp. Secker.

17. Then was fulfilled &c.] It should be observed, that it is not here said, as at ver. 15, This was done "that it might be fulfilled," but then that happened which gave a more full completion to the words of Jeremiah. Dr. Whitby. Then was fulfilled again and more literally the prophecy of Jeremiah. Dr. H. Owen.

18. In Rama — Rachel weeping for her children,] These words at Jer. xxxi. 15, were, in a primary sense, spoken figuratively of the captivity in Babylon, and the slaughter at Jerusalem, which city was in the tribe of Benjamin, the son of Rachel: and as these events occurred long after the death of Rachel, it is not meant that she really wept; but the expression is used to set forth the lamentable nature of the slaughter, and so it receives a secondary completion in this slaughter of the infants at Bethlehem. The Bethlehemites might well be called the children of Rachel, being descended from her husband and her own sister, and she being buried among them, Gen xxxv. 19; and, as Rama was in the tribe of Benjamin which sprang from Rachel, and not far from Beth-

The Third Year before the Common Account called Anno Domini.

19 ¶ But when Herod was dead, behold, an angel of the Lord appeareth in a dream to Joseph in Egypt, 20 Saying, Arise, and take the young child and his mother, and go into the land of Israel: for they are dead which sought the young child's life.

21 And he arose, and took the young child and his mother, and came into the land of Israel.

22 But when he heard that Archelaus did reign in Judea in the room of his father Herod, he was afraid to go thither: notwithstanding, being warned of God in a dream, he turned aside into the parts of Galilee:

23 And he came and dwelt in a city called Nazareth: that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophets, He shall be called a Nazarene.

The Third Year before the Common Account called Anno Domini.

CHAP. III.

1 John preacheth: his office: life, and baptism. 7 He reprehendeth the Pharisees, 13 and baptizeth Christ in Jordan.

A. D. 26.

IN those days came [a] John the Baptist, preaching in the wilderness of Judea,

[a] Mark 1. 4. Luke 3. 2.

2 And saying, Repent ye: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.

3 For this is he that was spoken of by the prophet Esaias, saying, [b] The voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight.

[b] Isai. 40. 3. Mark 1. 3.

---

lehem, the voice of her weeping might well be said to be heard in Rama. Drs. Hammond and Whitby. On Rachel's tomb see note at Gen. xxxv. 20.

The lamentation at Ramah was made, at first, only for the captivity of an impious people, but was now most grievously repeated for the actual death of harmless children. Dr. H. Owen.

20. —they are dead] Meaning, he, that is, Herod, is dead; a mode of expression not unusual in classical authors. Le Clerc.

22. —that Archelaus did reign] Archelaus then governed in Judea, but not as king. His father Herod had by will declared him king of the greatest part of his dominions; but the emperour Augustus, not approving of this, appointed him governour of Judea, Idumea, and Samaria, promising at the same time, that if he conducted himself properly, he should have the title of king over those dominions; but, in a few years after, he lost that emperour's favour by his bad conduct, was deprived of his government, and banished to a city in Gaul, where he ended his days. Bp. Pearce.

—— of Galilee:] This province of the Holy Land was not within the government of Archelaus, but in that of his brother Herod Antipas; see chap. xiv. 1. Bp. Mann. Galilee, the country honoured above every other with our Lord's presence, was bounded on the south by Samaria, on the west and north by "the coasts of Tyre and Sidon," and on the east by the countries of Abilene and Iturea. See the map. It was the country formerly occupied by the tribes of Issachar, Zebulun, and Naphtali, and part of Asher. Dr. Wells.

23. —called Nazareth: that it &c.] It appears from Luke i. 26; ii. 39, that Joseph and Mary dwelt at Nazareth before they went to Bethlehem. Nazareth was so called because of its remote and separate situation; and to be a Nazarite, or Nazarene, signifies to be separated from the common employments of life, and dedicated wholly to the service of God. Bp. Mann. See note at Judg. xiii. 4. Nazareth was situated in the southwest part of Galilee, not far from the confines of Samaria to the south. Mr. Maundrell informs us, that it is at present an inconsiderable village, situate in a kind of round concave valley on the top of a high hill. Here is a convent built over what is said to be the place of the Annunciation, or the place where the Blessed Virgin received the joyful message brought to her by the angel, Luke i. 26: they also pretend to shew here the house of Joseph, where our Lord lived thirty years in subjection to His parents, Luke ii. 51. Dr. Wells.

—— He shall be called a Nazarene.] These words do not occur in any of the Prophets; but at Judg. xiii. 5, occur the words, "the child shall be a Nazarite," alluding to Samson; and the book of Judges is placed by St. Jerome among the Prophets. It seems therefore that St. Matthew, applying these words to Jesus, which were originally spoken concerning Samson, who was a type of Christ, says, "He shall be called a Nazarene," or Nazarean. The expression "He shall be called," frequently bears the sense of "He shall be," in the Sacred and other writers. See the third note on Isai. ix. 6. Bp. Pearce, Grotius.

It may be observed in general, with respect to this and some other expressions of the Old Testament, which the Evangelists have applied to Christ, that those applications must necessarily be just, because the Evangelists have made them. For, if the same Spirit that dictated the prophecies of the Old Testament, dictated also the interpretations of them in the New, He surely best knew His own design, and could best ascertain to whom and to what they were meant to be ultimately referred. Dr. H. Owen.

A sect of ancient Christians, called Ebionites, who denied the Divinity of our Lord and His miraculous conception, denied the authenticity of the Gospels of St. Mark, St. Luke, and St. John, and received only a spurious copy of St. Matthew's Gospel, curtailed of its two first chapters. It must be thought a very strong confirmation of these important doctrines of Christianity, that the sect who denied them found it necessary, in order that they might palliate their infidelity, to reject three of the Gospels, and to mutilate the fourth. Bp. Horsley.

Chap. III. ver. 1. In those days] In the days when John the Baptist and Jesus were about to enter on their respective offices. That which is here to be related occurred nearly thirty years after what was mentioned in the former chapter. The time is particularly ascertained at Luke iii. 1. Bp. Pearce.

—— the wilderness of Judea,] By a wilderness is meant, not a place wholly void of inhabitants, but a place in which the inhabitants were few, and the habitations more dispersed than in villages. Dr. Whitby. See the note on Jer. ix. 10. This wilderness lay along the river Jordan, and on each side of it; whence St. Mark relates, that John baptized as well as preached in this wilderness, Mark i. 4; and St. Luke expresses it, that "he came into all the country about Jordan, preaching the baptism of repentance," Luke iii. 3. Dr. Wells. It appears from Luke i. 80, that John had lived constantly in this wilderness from his birth till the time of his preaching. Bp. Porteus.

2. —Repent ye: for &c.] That is, Renounce those vices and abominations which at present blind your eyes and cloud your understandings, and then you will be able to see the truth and bear the light. Bp. Porteus.

—— for the kingdom of heaven] Meaning the Christian religion, which is Christ's spiritual kingdom in the hearts of men, and into which none are worthy to be admitted without sincere repentance and reformation. Bp. Mann.

3. —the prophet Esaias, —Prepare ye the way &c.] See notes at Isai. xl. 3. Here is a plain allusion to the custom that prevailed in Eastern countries of sending messengers and others to make the ways level and straight before kings and princes when they passed through any country with large retinues. In the same manner was John the Baptist, in a spiritual sense, "to go before

Anno DOMINI 26.

4 And the same John had his raiment of camel's hair, and a leathern girdle about his loins; and his meat was locusts and wild honey.

5 Then went out to him Jerusalem, and all Judea, and all the region round about Jordan,

6 And were baptized of him in Jordan, confessing their sins.

7 ¶ But when he saw many of the Pharisees and Sadducees come to his baptism, [c] he said unto them, [c] O generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come?

Anno DOMINI 26.

8 Bring forth therefore fruits ‖ meet for repentance:

‖ Or, answerable to amendment of life.

9 And think not to say within yourselves, [d] We have Abraham to our father: for I say unto you, that God is able of these stones to raise up children unto Abraham.

[d] John 8. 39.

10 And now also the ax is laid unto the root of the trees: [e] therefore every tree which bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down, and cast into the fire.

[c] Chap. 12. 34.

[e] Chap. 7. 19.

---

the Lord," the Saviour of the world, to prepare His way, to make His paths straight, to remove from the minds of men every thing that opposed the admission of Divine truth, and, above all, to regulate and subdue those depraved affections and habits which are the grand obstacles to conversion and the reception of the word of God. Bp. Porteus.

The Baptist was sent by God to prepare and smooth the way before the Messiah, by clearing and removing the various impediments and obstructions, which impeded the march of the Gospel, arising from the prejudices, passions, and vices of mankind. Dr. Hales.

4. —his raiment of camel's hair, &c.] This raiment of camel's hair was nothing else than that sackcloth of which we read so much in Scripture. Bp. Porteus. The modern dervises in the East wear garments made of the hair of camels; they wear also great leathern girdles, and sometimes feed on locusts. Sir J. Chardin. In the East an elegant kind of cloth is made of the fine hair of the camel, which is thence called camlet: this is not meant here, but a coarse stuff which is manufactured from the long and shaggy hair of those animals, which was anciently worn by monks and anchorites. It is only when thus understood that the words suit the description here given of John's manner of life. Dr. Campbell. He fed on such simple food as the desert afforded to the lowest of its inhabitants. The abstemiousness and rigour of the Baptist's life was calculated to produce very important effects. It was fitted to excite great attention and reverence in the minds of his hearers. It was well suited to the doctrine he was to preach, that of repentance and contrition, to the seriousness he wished to inspire, and to the terrour he was appointed to impress on impenitent offenders. Bp. Porteus.

——locusts] Locusts and grashoppers are among the things allowed by the law to be eaten, Lev. xi. 22, and are at this day eaten in Asia by the poorer sort of people. Dr. Campbell.

5. —Jerusalem, —and all the region &c.] The inhabitants of Jerusalem, and of the towns and villages on both sides of the river Jordan. Bp. Pearce.

6. And were baptized of him in Jordan,] Baptism was a symbol of purification among the Jews and other ancient nations. It was especially required of heathen proselytes to the Jewish religion. This ancient rite therefore was with great propriety renewed to the Jews themselves, preparatory to the new covenant of the Gospel, analogous to the former of the law. Dr. Hales.

7. —the Pharisees] The Pharisees were a sect among the Jews that had subsisted at least above a century and a half before the appearance of our Saviour. They affected the most profound regard for the law of God and the sacred books; but for the interpretation of them, and the manner in which they were to be obeyed, they depended chiefly upon traditional accounts. These traditions encumbered religion with many frivolous observances, which drew off the mind from the more important matters of the law; and made men look upon themselves as holy and acceptable to God, not so much from their moral conduct and observance of Divine institutions, as from their conformity to certain modes of mere human invention, introduced among them under pretence of being the traditions of the elders. Hence their peculiar zeal and pretence to purity, in the demureness with which they fasted, the exactness with which they paid their tithes, the ostentation with which they prayed, their frequent washings, &c. They seem to have owed the name of their sect to their separating themselves from all other Jews who did not comply with their peculiarities; the word Pharisee being derived from a Hebrew word signifying "to divide or separate." Bp. Percy.

——and Sadducees] The Sadducees were the most ancient sect among the Jews, the name being derived either from the Hebrew word Sedec, signifying "justice," or from a certain teacher among the Jews called Sadoc. They seem to have been originally strict adherents to the Mosaick institution and to the canonical books, only interpreting them in the most literal sense, and rejecting all other explications. The superiour estimation in which they held the Pentateuch, or writings of Moses, gave rise in all probability to the report of their adversaries, that they entirely rejected the authority of the rest. It is certain that, at the time of our Saviour, this sect held doctrines that were thoroughly impious. For they denied the resurrection of the dead, the being of angels, and all existence of the souls of men departed. They held that there is no spiritual being but God, that the body and soul of man, at his death, die together never to live more, and that therefore there is no future reward or punishment. At the same time that they held these and other loose opinions, they are said to have had a bigoted attachment to the law of Moses. Bp. Percy.

——O generation of vipers,] O ye who are not so much the seed of Abraham, of which ye boast, as the seed of the serpent; a nation diametrically opposite and inimical to that Seed of the woman which was to bruise the head of the serpent, Gen. iii. 15. Dr. Lightfoot.

——who hath warned you &c.] This seems to be an expression of admiration, as if he had said, How wonderful is it that such men should do things so unsuitable to their tempers and inclinations! Dr. Whitby.

We should observe that St. John, instead of paying any court to the great men of his nation on the one hand, or to the multitude on the other, reproves the former for their hypocrisy in the strongest terms, and requires the latter to renounce every one of those favourite sins, in which they had long indulged. Bp. Porteus.

8. Bring forth therefore fruits &c.] That is, works answerable to amendment of life, or such works as become a sincere repentance. Bp. Pearce.

9. —think not to say &c.] Do not imagine that you shall escape the wrath of God by being the children of Abraham; for, if you imitate not his faith and piety, God will cast you off, and adopt men from among the Gentiles, or even raise men from the stones of the earth, (rather than save you in your wickedness,) who shall succeed to the faith, the obedience, and the blessing of Abraham. Dr. S. Clarke.

10. And now also the ax is laid &c.] "The ax is laid to the root of the trees," to cut them down, if they do not bear fruit; the meaning is, This is the last trial of the Jews, the day of final judgment is at hand, when their state will be destroyed, like a tree cut up by the roots.

Anno DOMINI 26.

11 [f] I indeed baptize you with water unto repentance: but he that cometh after me is mightier than I, whose shoes I am not worthy to bear: he shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost, and with fire:

[f] Mark 1. 8. Luke 3. 16. John 1. 26.

12 Whose fan is in his hand, and he will throughly purge his floor, and gather his wheat into the garner; but he will burn up the chaff with unquenchable fire.

A. D. 27.

13 ¶ [g] Then cometh Jesus from Galilee to Jordan unto John, to be baptized of him.

[g] Mark 1. 9. Luke 3. 21.

14 But John forbad him, saying, I have need to be baptized of thee, and comest thou to me?

15 And Jesus answering said unto him, Suffer it to be so now: for thus it becometh us to fulfil all righteousness. Then he suffered him.

Anno DOMINI 27.

16 And Jesus, when he was baptized, went up straightway out of the water: and, lo, the heavens were opened unto him, and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove, and lighting upon him:

17 And lo a voice from heaven, saying, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.

CHAP. IV.

1 Christ fasteth, and is tempted. 11 The angels minister unto him. 13 He dwelleth in Capernaum, 17 beginneth to preach, 18 calleth Peter, and Andrew, 21 James, and John, 23 and healeth all the diseased.

THEN was [a] Jesus led up of the spirit into the wilderness to be tempted of the devil.

[a] Mark 1. 12. Luke 4. 1.

---

11. — whose shoes I am not worthy to bear:] Who is so far superiour to me, that I account not myself worthy to do the meanest office for Him. Dr. S. Clarke. In Eastern countries, on occasions of visits to great men, the sandals or slippers are usually pulled off at the door, and either left there, or given to a servant to bear: thus, to bear the shoes of another was to be an inferiour domestick or attendant upon him. Asiatick Researches.

These words of St. John deserve to be seriously considered, because they contain a clear intimation of our blessed Lord's Divine nature and excellencies. For what excellencies less than Divine could justify that amazing distance which they express, between so eminent a person as John, and the Holy Jesus. John was "more than a Prophet," Matt. xi. 9, 11, and none greater than he had been born of woman; he could therefore only be so many degrees inferiour to Him, whose way he came to prepare, because He was the Son of God, and Himself God. Dean Stanhope.

—— with the Holy Ghost, and with fire:] With the powerful influence of the Holy Spirit, whose appearance shall be as fire. Dr. S. Clarke. For the fulfilment of this prediction, see Acts ii. 2—4.

12. Whose fan is in his hand,] Rather, "whose van (winnowing shovel, Dr. Campbell) is in his hand;" a van being an instrument used for winnowing corn, named from the Latin. Bp. Pearce. The word, translated "chaff," seems properly to mean "straw," which the Jews were accustomed to burn as fuel, for dressing their food, heating their ovens, &c. Schleusner.

The destruction of the Jewish state is here intimated; by the gathering of the wheat into the garner, it seems to be implied, that the believers in Jesus should not be involved in that calamity. Pp. Pearce.

15. — for thus it becometh us &c.] For thus God hath appointed that I should be initiated into My ministry, and thus it becomes us to give an example of doing all things decently and with order. Dr. S. Clarke.

It was proper that our great High Priest, when admitted into His ministerial office, should answer the type of the admission of the Levitical priests, who were initiated by anointing and by baptism. Also, since by the institution of Christ, those that entered into the profession of the Gospel were to be introduced by baptism, it was proper that Christ, being to enter on the same profession, and to preach it, should be admitted by the same rite. Dr. Lightfoot.

16. — descending like a dove,] It is not necessary to suppose that the Spirit of God descended in the shape of a dove, but that the motion with which it came down was like that of a dove. Bp. Mann.

What an exalted idea does it give us of the dignity and importance of the great Founder of our religion, that He should have such a forerunner and harbinger as John to proclaim His approach to the world, and call upon all mankind to attend to Him. It was a distinction peculiar and appropriate to Him. Neither Moses nor any of the Prophets can boast this mark of honour. It was reserved for the Son of God, the Messiah, the Redeemer of mankind, and was well suited to the transcendent dignity of His Person and the grandeur of His design. Bp. Porteus.

17. — This is my beloved Son,] The Jews allowed that the Messiah was to be the Son of God, and applied to Him the words of the Psalmist, Ps. ii. 7, "Thou art My Son;" see also 2 Sam. vii. 14. It appears, from comparing several passages of the New Testament, that the titles Messiah and Son of God were with them the same. Compare Matt. xxvi. 63; Luke xxii. 67, 70; John i. 41, 49; and Matt. xvi. 16, 20; with Mark viii. 29; Luke ix. 20. Beausobre. The miraculous circumstances of our Lord's baptism were not only most distinguished marks of Divine favour to the great Author and Finisher of our faith, but they were also signal fulfilments of ancient prophecies concerning Him, in which He was declared to be the peculiar Son of God, and in which this spiritual unction of Him was foretold. See Ps. ii. 7; lxxxix. 19, 20; Isai. xi. 1, 2; xlii. 1. Dr. Hales.

When our Saviour was baptized by John in Jordan, there was a plain manifestation of the Three Persons of the Holy Trinity. The heavens were opened, and the Holy Ghost descended in a bodily shape like a dove upon Him; and a voice from heaven was heard, which said, "This is My beloved Son." Here we have three Persons most clearly distinguished: God the Holy Ghost visibly descended; Christ, on whom He descended, was praying among the people; and, as these two in their bodily shapes could not but be seen, so the third Person, who was not seen, was yet distinctly heard, saying, "This is My beloved Son," &c. Howell.

Chap. IV. ver. 1. Then was Jesus &c.] Then, that is, immediately after His baptism, in that moment of exaltation when He was acknowledged by a voice from heaven to be the Son of God, and when the Spirit of God had taken full possession of His soul, Jesus went forth under the guidance of that Spirit, in full confidence of this Divine power, into the wilderness, to encounter the prince of this world. A plain proof that this contest which follows was a preconcerted design, a measure approved by Heaven, and subservient to the grand purpose in which our Saviour was engaged, of rescuing mankind from the dominion of Satan. Bp. Porteus.

—— into the wilderness] Probably the great wilderness near Jordan, where Jesus was baptized. Bp. Porteus. "The mountainous desert into which our Saviour was led by the Spirit to be tempted by the devil, is a miserable dry barren place, consisting of high rocky mountains so torn and disordered, as if the earth had suffered some great convulsion, in which its very bowels had been turned outward. On the left hand, looking

Anno DOMINI 27.

2 And when he had fasted forty days and forty nights, he was afterward an hungred.

3 And when the tempter came to him, he said, If thou be the Son of God, command that these stones be made bread.

4 But he answered and said, It is written, [b] Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God.

[b] Deut. 8. 3.

5 Then the devil taketh him up into the holy city, and setteth him on a pinnacle of the temple,

6 And saith unto him, If thou be the Son of God, cast thyself down: for it is written, [c] He shall give his angels charge concerning thee: and in their hands they shall bear thee up, lest at any time thou dash thy foot against a stone.

Anno DOMINI 27.

[c] Ps. 91. 11.

7 Jesus said unto him, It is written again, [d] Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God.

[d] Deut. 6. 16.

8 Again, the devil taketh him up into an exceeding high mountain, and sheweth him all the kingdoms of the world, and the glory of them;

9 And saith unto him, All these things will I give thee, if thou wilt fall down and worship me.

---

down into a steep valley as we passed along, we saw some ruins of small cells and cottages, which, we were told, were formerly the habitations of hermits retiring hither for penance and mortification; and certainly there could not be found in the whole earth a more comfortless and abandoned place for that purpose. On descending from these hills of desolation into the plain, we soon came to the foot of mount Quarantania, which they say is the mountain from which the devil tempted our Saviour with that visionary scene of all the kingdoms and glories of the world. It is, as St. Matthew calls it, an exceeding high mountain, and in its ascent difficult and dangerous. It has a small chapel at the top, and another about half way up, on a prominent part of a rock. Near this latter are several caves and holes in the sides of the mountain, anciently used by hermits, and by some at this day, for places to keep their Lent in, in imitation of that of our blessed Saviour." Maundrell.

2. — had fasted forty days] As Moses and Elijah, the two great Prophets under the law had done. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— he was afterward an hungred.] Taking advantage of this symptom of human infirmity, the devil, who probably assailed Him under the disguise of "an angel of light," 2 Cor. xi. 14, and in a human form, as appears from his conversation, hoped to overcome "the second Adam" as he had done "the first," by similar temptations, the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eye, and the pride of life; not knowing that Christ was to be tempted in all points like as we are, yet without sin, that He might be able to bear our infirmities, Heb. iv. 15, and point out by His own example the dangers to which we are exposed from our spiritual adversary, and also the most effectual mode of resisting him by vigilance, prayer, and the word of God rightly understood. Dr. Hales.

3. — command that these stones be made bread.] Satan here makes a proposal of refined artifice to our Lord, that He would instantly make an experiment, and give a proof of the truth of the late declaration from heaven in His favour, "This is My beloved Son," by ordering a supernatural supply for the want which pressed Him. It seems that Satan had no prospect of being able to lead Him at once into a gross transgression; and any real deviation, however small, from piety and virtue, would have answered his end. Now compliance with this counsel would have been a deviation. The voice from heaven alone carried evidence sufficient of God's special regard to Him, and the desire of a fuller demonstration of it would have shewn a blameable distrust. He had been supported by the sole word and will of His heavenly Father for forty days; and why should He now, without any sufficient notice of the change of that will, attempt by a new miracle to supply Himself with food? Abp. Secker.

4. — It is written, Man shall not &c.] See Deut. viii. 3. His meaning is, He that brought Me into this wilderness, and subjected Me to these trials, can support Me under the pressure of hunger by a variety of means, besides the common one of bread, just as He fed the Israelites in the wilderness with manna, the food from heaven: I will therefore rather choose to rely on His gracious providence for My support in this exigency, than work a miracle Myself for the supply of My wants. Bp. Porteus.

5. — the holy city,] St. Matthew here, and at chap. xxvii. 53, calls Jerusalem "the holy city." It is mentioned by Volney, that the Orientals still call Jerusalem by a name which signifies "the holy." Fragments to Calmet.

—— a pinnacle] Or wing of the temple; that is, part of the roof of one of its courts. Bp. Pearce.

6. — If thou be—cast thyself down:] He exhorts Him to cast Himself down in the sight of all the worshippers there assembled, and procure that glory to the Deity, and that honour to Himself which must be the consequence of their seeing literally fulfilled in Him that prediction of the Psalmist concerning the pious man, "He shall give His angels charge," &c. Abp. Secker.

——for it is written, &c.] The tempter, perceiving that Christ relied on the authority of Scripture, now enforces his temptation with Scripture, misapplied and misunderstood. In answer to this, our Saviour exposes his misapplication of Scripture, by another text which forbids a presumptuous trial of God's protection. Bp. Sherlock.

7. — Thou shalt not tempt the Lord] Thou shalt not rush into unnecessary danger in order to tempt God, in order to try whether He will interpose to save thee in a miraculous manner; much less ought this to be done as now proposed, for purposes of vanity and ostentation. Bp. Porteus.

The Redeemer of the world, far from being disconcerted at the sudden change of the subject, or dazzled by so specious a plea, calmly answers by another text of Scripture, explaining and limiting that which the seducer had imperfectly quoted and wrongly applied. His answer instructs us, that we ought not from distrust to ask new proofs of His power, where we have had sufficient ones already; so neither must we from presumption urge Him to do for us what we have no need of, and what therefore He has given us no right to expect. For they who throw away the natural means which He has bestowed upon them for preserving themselves, forfeit all title to a providential protection. Abp. Secker.

8. — and sheweth him all the kingdoms of the world,] It has been thought by some a considerable difficulty to conceive how Satan could from any mountain, however elevated, "shew to our Saviour all the kingdoms of the earth, and the glory of them." It should be considered however, that the mountain where this occurred, is described as exceeding high; and the Abbé Mariti, speaking of this mountain, says, Here we enjoyed the most beautiful prospect imaginable. This part of the mountain overlooks the mountains of Arabia, the country of Gilead, the country of the Ammonites, the plains of Moab, the plain of Jericho, the river Jordan, and the whole extent of the Dead sea. These various domains the tempter might shew to our Lord distinctly, and might also at the same time point out, (for so the original word sometimes signifies,) and direct our Lord's eye towards several other regions that lay beyond them, which might comprehend all the principal kingdoms of the Eastern world. Bp. Porteus.

9. — If thou wilt fall down and worship me.] This audacious and impious proposal of Divine worship, which no true angel of

Anno DOMINI 27.

10 Then saith Jesus unto him, Get thee hence, Satan: for it is written, [e] Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve.

[e] Deut. 6. 13. & 10. 20.

11 Then the devil leaveth him, and, behold, angels came and ministered unto him.

A. D. 30.

12 ¶ [f] Now when Jesus had heard that John was ‖ cast into prison, he departed into Galilee;

[f] Mark 1. 14. Luke 4. 14. John 4. 43.

‖ Or, delivered up.

13 And leaving Nazareth, he came and dwelt in Capernaum, which is upon the sea coast, in the borders of Zabulon and Nephthalim:

A. D. 31.

14 That it might be fulfilled which was spoken by Esaias the prophet, saying,

Anno DOMINI 31.

15 [g] The land of Zabulon, and the land of Nephthalim, by the way of the sea, beyond Jordan, Galilee of the Gentiles;

[g] Isai. 9. 1.

16 The people which sat in darkness saw great light; and to them which sat in the region and shadow of death light is sprung up.

17 ¶ [h] From that time Jesus began to preach, and to say, Repent: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.

[h] Mark 1. 14.

18 ¶ [i] And Jesus, walking by the sea of Galilee, saw two brethren, Simon called light ever received or even tolerated, Rev. xix. 10; xxii. 9, detected the false fiend to be the power of darkness; and, in consequence, Jesus calls him by his proper name, and banishes him from His presence, as His Divine superior. Dr. Hales.

[i] Mark 1. 16.

---

10. — Get thee hence, Satan: for it is written, &c.] As if He had said, I defy thee and all thy proffers, being contrary to the revealed will of God, in whose holy word it is written, "Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God," &c. Bp. Beveridge. To each of the former suggestions the holy Jesus replied without emotion; but now, when the majesty of His heavenly Father was injured, and the faith of His own allegiance to Him assailed by so vile a falsehood, He bears no longer; tells the hypocrite that He knew him well to be the adversary of God, who had granted to no created being, much less to him, the honours and the authority which he claimed, and commands him that moment to quit His presence. Abp. Secker. Respecting the meaning of the word Satan, see note at Job i. 6.

—— Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only] These words express that there is one only God who is the object of worship, a Being eternal and infinite, supreme and independent, all-powerful and all-wise, perfectly just and merciful and good; and the worship here enjoined includes every religious, every virtuous act and habit, by which regard is shewn to God, either in the affections of the mind, or in the expressions of the lips, or in the actions of the life. These words of our Lord also teach us, that we should prefer before all things the service of God, and the practice of true religion; being always ready to reject whatever shall come in competition with our duty, even the whole world if offered to us at the purchase of sin. If we be found of this disposition, lovers of truth, and doers of righteousness, the tempter will depart from us as he did from our Lord; angels will come and minister unto us, and the Spirit of God will preserve and guide us unto eternal life. Dr. S. Clarke.

11. Then the devil leaveth him,] We have here a proof that the word of God, justly applied, affords a sure defence against the assaults of the devil; and that, if we resist him, he will flee from us. Bp. Mann.

—— angels came] And ministered unto Him, comforting Him at His trial, rejoicing at His victory, and refreshing Him after His long fast. Dr. S. Clarke.

This history of our blessed Lord's temptation teaches us, that even the best of men may sometimes be permitted to fall into great temptations; for we see that even He was exposed to the severest. It encourages us to hope, that, when temptations assail us, we may be blessed with Divine assistance to save us from the danger; for the great Captain of our salvation, when assaulted by all the art and all the power of Satan, rose superiour to all his efforts. We learn further from our Saviour's conduct under this great trial, that when temptations assail us, we are not to hesitate and deliberate whether we shall give way to them or not, but must at once repel them with firmness and vigour: we must instantly say to the tempter, "Get thee hence, Satan;" and he will instantly flee from us, as he did from Christ. Bp. Porteus.

12. Now when Jesus had heard &c.] This was some time subsequent to Jesus's baptism, and withdrawing into the wilderness. The cause of John's imprisonment is mentioned at chap. xiv. 3. Bp. Pearce.

—— he departed into Galilee;] He had probably been, during the interval, in some part of the wilderness, not far from Jordan. Bp. Pearce.

13. — Capernaum, which is upon the sea coast, &c.] As Capernaum is not once mentioned in the Old Testament, it is probable that it is one of the towns built by the Jews at their return from the Babylonish captivity, "upon the sea coast;" that is, on the coast of the sea of Galilee, "in the borders of Zabulon and Nephthalim," and consequently towards the upper part of this sea coast. It probably took its name from an adjoining spring of great repute, which, as Josephus informs us, bore the name of Capernaum. It is now so decayed as to consist of only a very few fishermen's cottages. Dr. Wells. Capernaum and the adjoining villages were peculiarly fitted for the chief residence of our Lord, as His disciples chiefly resided there, and as the adjacent sea of Galilee afforded Him peculiar facilities for moving from place to place, and thus avoiding the importunities of the multitude. Dr. Hales.

14. That it might be fulfilled &c.] Thus was remarkably fulfilled the prophecy of Isaiah, chap. ix. 1. Dr. S. Clarke.

15. — beyond Jordan,] Rather, "by the side of Jordan," as the Greek words may be translated; for Zabulon and Nephthalim were on the western side of Jordan, which was nearest to Judea and Galilee. Bp. Pearce.

—— Galilee of the Gentiles;] This northern part of Galilee was so called, either from its being extremely populous, or rather from its being inhabited by many Gentiles as well as Jews. Dr. Wells.

17. — and to say, Repent: &c.] Our Saviour's first address to the people is similar to that of the Baptist. The very first qualification He required of those who aspired to be His disciples, was repentance, a sincere contrition for all past offences, and a resolution to renounce in future every species of sin. Bp. Porteus.

18. — by the sea of Galilee,] This sea or lake is very frequently mentioned in the Gospels, under the names of "the sea of Galilee," from the province of Galilee in general; "the sea of Tiberias," from the town of that name on its western shore; and "the lake of Gennesareth," from that tract of Galilee called Gennesareth, which bounded it all along on its western side. This fresh-water sea or lake is mentioned in the Old Testament by the name of "the sea of Chinnereth," or Cinnereth, Numb. xxxiv. 11; Josh. xiii. 27. Tiberias was built by Herod the tetrarch of Galilee, and named in honour of Tiberius Cesar: it soon became one of the principal cities of those parts, from the great privileges granted by Herod to its inhabitants: it is said to have contained thirteen synagogues. Dr. Wells.

The town of Tiberias, now called Tabarie by the Arabs, is situated close to the banks of the lake that bears its name; and on the land side it is encircled by a strong wall of hewn stones of basalt, notwithstanding which it hardly merits the name of a town. There are no traces left of its ancient splendour, though

Anno DOMINI 31.

Peter, and Andrew his brother, casting a net into the sea: for they were fishers.

19 And he saith unto them, Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men.

20 And they straightway left their nets, and followed him.

21 And going on from thence, he saw other two brethren, James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother, in a ship with Zebedee their father, mending their nets; and he called them.

22 And they immediately left the ship and their father, and followed him.

23 ¶ And Jesus went about all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing all manner of sickness and all manner of disease among the people.

Anno DOMINI 31.

24 And his fame went throughout all Syria: and they brought unto him all sick people that were taken with divers diseases and torments, and those which were possessed with devils, and those which were lunatick, and those that had the palsy; and he healed them.

25 And there followed him great multi-

---

the ruins of the old town are discoverable, which extended as far as the hot baths, situated about a league to the east. The adjoining lake abounds in fish, but we discovered only one fisherman's boat, and that nearly in ruins, at Tiberias. The person who farms the fishery only employs his nets along its banks. Seetzen.

—— saw two brethren, Simon &c.] Had it been the object of our Saviour to establish His religion by mere human means, by influence or force, by the charms of eloquence or the powers of reason, by the example or the authority of the great, He would undoubtedly have selected His disciples from the opulent, the eloquent, or the learned. But these were not the instruments which He intended to use. He meant to shew, that He was above them all; that He had far other resources, far different auxiliaries to call in to His support, in comparison with which all the wealth, and magnificence, and power, and wisdom of the world were trivial and contemptible things. Accordingly we find that not the wise, not the mighty, not the noble, were called to co-operate with Him, but men of the meanest birth, of the lowest occupations, of the humblest talents, and most uncultivated minds. These fishermen of Galilee were to be, under Him, the instruments of overthrowing the stupendous and magnificent system of paganism and idolatry throughout the world, and producing the greatest change, the most general and important revolution, in principles, in morals, in religion, that ever took place on this globe. Bp. Porteus.

19. — and I will make you fishers of men.] That is, You shall have a far better employment, in recovering men from ignorance and sin, and bringing them into the way of truth and salvation. Bp. Mann.

22. — they immediately left the ship — and followed him.] After the example of these Apostles, every Christian should be ready in heart and in mind to quit all that comes in competition with his duty, and to follow the Saviour in the path of holy living. All Christians must obey Him, by leaving those companies and engagements, and ways of living, which ensnare their souls and entangle their affections in the toils of sin. All, when their duty to God requires it, must forsake their friends and relations, rather than reject the salvation of Christ. Bp. Horne.

23. — teaching in their synagogues,] It was the ordinary custom for the scribes to teach in the synagogues. It appears however, that the Jews, though they did not allow this liberty to illiterate persons or mechanicks, yet granted it to Prophets and such as set up for heads or leaders of new sects, in order that they might inform themselves of their doctrines, and not condemn them unheard and unknown. Under these characters, probably, Christ and His Apostles were admitted to this privilege. Dr. Lightfoot.

—— synagogues,] The Greek word for synagogue, as well as the Hebrew, signifies in general any assembly, whether sacred or profane; but it was commonly used to denote a place of assembly for religious worship. Authors are not agreed respecting the time when the institution of synagogues among the Jews began; but it is probable that they did not exist before the Babylonish captivity, as there is not only no mention of them in the Old Testament, but passages occur in some parts of it, which seem to disprove their existence. The Jews erected synagogues not only in towns and villages, but also in the country where there was a sufficient congregation, especially near rivers, for the purposes of purification. Service was daily performed in them, consisting of prayers, reading the Scriptures, and preaching or expounding them. A council, or assembly of grave and wise persons well versed in the law, was appointed to superintend and regulate all matters belonging to the synagogue and its service. Dean Prideaux, Beausobre.

24. — those which were possessed with devils,] There has been great variety of opinion respecting the demoniacal possessions, frequently mentioned in the New Testament. Some have thought that persons "possessed with devils" were merely madmen, and justify their opinion by what is said at John x. 20, "He hath a devil, and is mad;" but, in this present text, a decisive proof seems to be afforded that the phrase "possessed with devils," signifies something distinct from common madness, because here the possessed with devils are expressly mentioned as distinct from "lunaticks." And it is most clearly proved at chap. viii. 32, that the persons there mentioned were really possessed with devils, because the cure of mere madmen could not have affected the swine, into whom the devils entered, to their destruction. Bp. Pearce.

The notion that the demoniacks, mentioned in the New Testament, were merely persons afflicted with strange diseases, may be clearly confuted by several considerations. First, The Scriptures themselves make a constant and plain distinction between the curing of diseases, and the casting out devils, Matt. x. 1; Luke iv. 40, 41. Secondly, Circumstances are related which shew the persons to have been really possessed with devils; "Christ suffered not the devils to speak, because they knew Him" (Mark i. 34) "to be Christ," Luke iv. 41. The devils expostulate with Christ, are sent into the herd of swine, acknowledge their name to be Legion, Mark v. 1—14; Luke viii. 27—33. Thirdly, Our Lord puts questions to the devils, enjoins them to be silent, to come out of a man, &c. Mark i. 25; ix. 25; Luke iv. 41. Fourthly, Many symptoms shew the reality of the possession; as the great strength of the persons possessed, the fear expressed by the devils of being destroyed, being cast into the abyss, &c. It cannot be objected that demoniacks were not known before the coming of Christ; for Josephus and other writers attest the contrary. Annotations on the Gospels.

It is obvious and easy to find a reason why, in the days of Christ and His Apostles, evil spirits had more influence and power over the bodies of men, than before or since. When God sent His Son into the world, it was to destroy the empire of sin and Satan. Evil spirits therefore were permitted to range at large, that the glory of the Son of God might be made manifest, in expelling them, in rebuking them, in putting them to open shame, and compelling them to proclaim the dignity of Christ, and to be a sort of unwilling preachers and witnesses of the Gospel. Thus men beheld at the same time the vile nature and the terrible force of those apostate spirits, and the superiour power and the great goodness of the Saviour of the world, who delivered miserable men from such dreadful enemies. Dr. Jortin.

Anno DOMINI 31. tudes of people from Galilee, and from Decapolis, and from Jerusalem, and from Judea, and from beyond Jordan.

CHAP. V.

1 Christ beginneth his sermon in the mount: 3 declaring who are blessed, 13 who are the salt of the earth, 14 the light of the world, the city on an hill, 15 the candle: 17 that he came to fulfil the law. 21 What it is to kill, 27 to commit adultery, 33 to swear: 38 exhorteth to suffer wrong, 44 to love even our enemies, 48 and to labour after perfectness.

Anno DOMINI 31.

AND seeing the multitudes, he went up into a mountain: and when he was set, his disciples came unto him:

2 And he opened his mouth, and taught them, saying,

3 [a] Blessed are the poor in spirit: for their's is the kingdom of heaven. [a] Luke 6. 20.

4 Blessed are they that mourn: for they shall be comforted.

---

25. — and from Decapolis,] Decapolis was a part of Syria, lying on the east of the lake of Gennesareth; so called because it contained ten cities. Abp. Newcome.

Chap. V. ver. 1. — into a mountain:] A few points towards the north of mount Tabor stands that which they call the mount of Beatitudes; a small rising, from which our Saviour is said to have delivered His sermon "on the mount." Maundrell. It is not far from Capernaum, northward of the sea of Galilee. Probably it is the same to which our Lord retired, and where He spent the night in prayer before the election and ordination of the twelve Apostles. Dr. Wells.

—— when he was set,] It was the manner of the Jewish doctors to sit down when they taught, Luke iv. 16—20. Dr. Whitby.

2. — and taught them, saying,] Our blessed Lord, having by His miracles established His divine authority, and acquired a powerful influence over the minds of His hearers, now proceeds to explain to them in some degree the nature of His religion, the duties it enjoins, and the dispositions it requires. This He does in the ensuing discourse, which is of considerable length, called His sermon on the mount; which contains a greater variety of new, important, and excellent moral precepts, than is any where to be found in the same compass. At the same time, it does not pretend to give a regular, complete, and perfect system of ethicks, or to lay down rules for the regulation of our conduct in every possible instance that can arise. This would have been an endless task, and would have multiplied precepts to a degree that would in great measure have defeated their utility and destroyed their effect. Our Lord took the wiser and more impressive method of tracing out to us the great outlines only of our duty, of giving us general principles and comprehensive rules, which we may ourselves apply to particular cases, and the various situations in which we may be placed. Bp. Porteus.

The manner of our Saviour's teaching was extremely peculiar; yet precisely adapted to the peculiarity of His character and situation. His lessons did not consist of disquisitions, of any thing like moral essays, or set treatises upon the several points which He mentioned. When He delivered a precept, it was seldom that He added any proof or argument: still more seldom, that He accompanied it with, what all precepts require, limitations and distinctions. His instructions were conceived in short, emphatick, sententious rules, in occasional reflections, or in sound maxims. This perhaps was not a very natural or proper method for a philosopher or moralist, nor a method which can very successfully be imitated by us. But it was admirably suited to the character which our Saviour assumed, and to the situation in which He, as a teacher, was placed. He produced Himself as a messenger from God. He put the truth of what He taught on authority, (Matt. v. 34, 39, 44.) In the choice, therefore, of His mode of teaching, the purpose by Him to be consulted was impression; because conviction, which forms the principal end of our discourses, was to arise in the minds of His followers from a different source, from their respect to His person and authority. Now, for the purpose of impression singly and exclusively, nothing could have so great force as strong ponderous maxims, frequently urged, and frequently brought back to the thoughts of the hearers. It must also be remembered, that our Lord's ministry was, compared with His work, of short duration; that within this time He had many places to visit, various audiences to address; that His person was generally besieged by crowds of followers; that He was sometimes driven away from the place where He was teaching by persecution, and that, at other times, He thought fit to withdraw Himself from the commotions of the populace. Under these circumstances, nothing appears to have been so practicable, or likely to be efficacious, as leaving, wherever He came, concise lessons of duty. These circumstances, at least, shew the necessity He was under of comprising what He delivered within a small compass. In particular, His sermon on the mount should always be considered with a view to these observations. The question is not, whether a fuller, a more accurate, a more systematick, or a more argumentative discourse upon morals might not have been pronounced; but whether more could have been said in the same room, better adapted to the exigencies of the hearers, or better calculated for the purpose of impression. Considered in this light, this discourse is indeed admirable. It has been thought by some that it was made up of what Christ had said at different times, and on different occasions. But there is no sufficient reason for this opinion. It is probable that our Lord delivered this discourse at one time and place, in the manner related by St. Matthew; and that He repeated the same rules and maxims at different times, as opportunity or occasion suggested; that they were often in His mouth, and were delivered to different hearers and in various conversations. Archdeacon Paley.

3. Blessed are the poor in spirit: &c.] That is, the humble and lowly minded—"for their's is the kingdom of heaven"—for they are fitted to enter into that kingdom here, and to enjoy it hereafter. Dr. Whitby. Our Lord, in the very outset of His publick instructions, marks at once, in the strongest and most decided terms, the peculiar temper, spirit, and character of His religion, and shews His disciples how completely opposite they were to all those splendid and popular qualities, which were the great objects of applause and admiration in the heathen world. Bp. Porteus.

—— the kingdom of heaven.] The expressions, "kingdom of heaven," and "kingdom of God," in the New Testament, refer to the prophecies of Daniel, (Dan. ii. 44; vii. 13, 14,) and denote that everlasting kingdom of the God of heaven, which He would set up and give to the Son of man; or, in other words, the spiritual and eternal kingdom of Christ, both God and Man, which was to subsist first in more imperfect circumstances on earth, and afterwards was to appear complete in the world of glory. In some places of Scripture, "the kingdom of heaven" more particularly signifies the former of these, and denotes the state of it on earth: see Matt. xiii. 41, 47; xx. 1. And sometimes "the kingdom of God" signifies only the state of glory, 1 Cor. vi. 9, 10; xv. 50; Gal. v. 21. But, generally, both the one and the other expression includes both. Parkhurst.

4. Blessed are they that mourn:] They that mourn for their sins with a godly sorrow, "for they shall be comforted" with the assurance of the pardon of their sins, and the hope of future happiness. Dr. Whitby. Or, as the words are general, a wider sense also may be given to them: Blessed are they who endure afflictions of any kind with a humble submission to Divine providence; but still more blessed, if the sorrows and hardships, which they undergo, are for the sake of duty and religion. God will certainly support them under their distress, and hereafter

Anno DOMINI 31.

5 [b] Blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth.

6 Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness: [c] for they shall be filled.

7 Blessed are the merciful: for they shall obtain mercy.

8 [d] Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God.

9 Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the children of God.

10 [e] Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness' sake: for their's is the kingdom of heaven.

11 Blessed are ye, when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of [f] evil against you †falsely, for my sake.

12 Rejoice, and be exceeding glad: for great is your reward in heaven: for so persecuted they the prophets which were before you.

13 ¶ Ye are the salt of the earth: [g] but if the salt have lost his savour, wherewith shall it be salted? it is thenceforth good for nothing, but to be cast out, and to be trodden under foot of men.

14 Ye are the light of the world. A city that is set on an hill cannot be hid.

15 Neither do men [h] light a candle, and put it under ‖ a bushel, but on a candle-

[b] Ps. 37. 11.
[c] Isai. 65. 13.
[d] Ps. 24. 4.
[e] 1 Pet. 3. 14.
[f] 1 Pet. 4. 14.
† Gr. lying.
[g] Mark 9. 50. Luke 14. 34.
[h] Mark 4. 21. Luke 8. 16. & 11. 33.
‖ The word in the original signifieth a measure containing about a pint less than a peck.

---

they shall rest for ever in those mansions were no sorrow enters. Dr. Jortin.

5. —they shall inherit the earth.] Shall inherit the greatest blessings upon earth, calmness and composure of spirit, peace and comfort of mind. Bp. Porteus.

6. — which do hunger and thirst &c.] Who earnestly desire to become truly virtuous and religious. Dr. S. Clarke. Who, having a true sense of their own defects and spiritual wants, and of the excellence of religion, desire above all things to be assisted and instructed in the performance of their duty, and to become eminent in piety; and who are as industrious and active in this wise pursuit, as men oppressed with hunger and thirst are glad to satisfy those natural appetites. So rational and so earnest a desire shall never be disappointed; they shall become righteous, and enjoy the present and future rewards of righteousness. Dr. Jortin.

——for they shall be filled.] Shall be satisfied with the enjoyment of their righteousness here, and the completion and reward of it hereafter. Dr. Whitby.

7. —they shall obtain mercy.] They may expect to find that favour and mercy from God which they shew to men, and also to experience mercy, forbearance, and kindness from their fellow creatures. Dr. Jortin.

8. —the pure in heart:] That heart is pure which is sound in the faith, submissive to the will, obedient to the law, constant in the service, and zealous for the glory of God, which is meek, humble, just, and charitable towards others; in short, that exercises itself to have "always a conscience void of offence toward God, and toward men." Bp. Beveridge.

——shall see God.] Shall peculiarly enjoy His favour and protection here, and hereafter shall have a nearer access to His glorious presence and that fulness of joy which shall attend it. Dr. Jortin.

9. —the peacemakers:] Those who are of a peaceable temper themselves, and endeavour to promote peace among others. Dr. Whitby. "For they shall be called" &c.; that is, they shall be owned and received by God as His peculiar children. Dr. S. Clarke. Shall be happy in being like unto God, who is called the God of peace, and happy in that inward peace and serenity of conscience which their heavenly Father will confer upon them. Dr. Jortin.

10. Blessed are they which are persecuted &c.] The blessedness here promised is not merely to such as are persecuted for Christ's or for righteousness' sake, but to such only as bear these sufferings with courage and patience, and who, notwithstanding the persecutions they sustain, continue firm and constant in the belief and profession of their Christian faith, and in the exercise of a spirit of piety and virtue. Bp. Blackall.

——for their's is the kingdom of heaven.] For they, having given the greatest possible proof of their sincerity and constancy, will receive an extraordinary crown and a peculiar reward in heaven. Dr. S. Clarke.

It should be well observed, that although our Saviour, here and in other passages, annexes blessedness and eternal life to the practice of single virtues, yet we are to understand His promises as founded on a supposition that such persons take care not to be deficient in the rest of their duty. To think otherwise would be to fall into a gross mistake; a mistake, however, into which some Christians have fallen, when, magnifying single Christian virtues, they have thought by the practice of them to compound for the neglect or habitual violation of other duties. Dr. Jortin.

11. Blessed are ye, when men shall revile you, &c.] See the note on ver. 10 from Bp. Blackall. It is a complete perversion of our Saviour's meaning here, to suppose, as some fanatical Christians have done, that there is any merit in the mere fact of being persecuted for the sake of religion, and that therefore, voluntarily to court the persecutions and revilings of men, can ever be the means of securing the Divine favour.

12. —the prophets] As Joseph, Moses, Samuel, David, Isaiah, Jeremiah, &c. Grotius.

13. Ye are the salt of the earth:] Salt is used to make things savoury, and to preserve from putrefaction. Thus the meaning of this expression is, Ye are appointed, by that pure and holy doctrine which you are to preach, and by the savour of your good conversation, to purge the world from the corruption in which it lies; but, if you yourselves should lose your savour and become putrefied members in My body, you would become wholly useless to these good ends, must be rejected by Me, and cast off, as unsavoury salt is cast into the dunghill. Dr. Whitby. Salt in the hot climate of Judea was so necessary a thing, that without it meat could not be preserved sweet, even for a short time; hence the frequent allusion made to salt and its uses. See Mark ix. 50; Luke xiv. 34, &c. Bp. Pearce.

——if the salt have lost his savour,] Our Lord's supposition of the salt losing its savour is illustrated by Mr. Maundrell, who tells us, that, in the valley of Salt, near Gebul, when he broke a piece which had been exposed to the sun, rain, and air, though it had the sparkling of salt, yet it had perfectly lost its savour; but that the inner part, which had not been exposed, still retained its savour. Burder.

14. Ye are the light of the world.] You are placed as a light which gives light to others, and is itself seen by all, as a city on an eminence which cannot escape observation. You are neither to conceal your light, which would be contrary to the purposes of God, who gave you that distinction, nor to forget that your conduct, in the distinguished situation which you hold, will attract the attention of the whole world.

——A city that is set on an hill] Not far from the hill, now called the mount of Beatitudes, is the city Saphet. It stands upon a very eminent and conspicuous mountain, and is seen far and near. May we not suppose that Christ alludes to this city in the words, "A city that is set on an hill cannot be hid?" Maundrell.

Anno DOMINI 31.

stick; and it giveth light unto all that are in the house.

16 Let your light so shine before men, [i] that they may see your good works, and glorify your father which is in heaven.

[i] 1 Pet. 2. 12.

17 ¶ Think not that I am come to destroy the law, or the prophets: I am not come to destroy, but to fulfil.

18 For verily I say unto you, [k] Till heaven and earth pass, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law, till all be fulfilled.

[k] Luke 16. 17.

19 [l] Whosoever therefore shall break one of these least commandments, and shall teach men so, he shall be called the least in the kingdom of heaven: but whosoever shall do and teach them, the same shall be called great in the kingdom of heaven.

[l] James 2. 10.

20 For I say unto you, That except your righteousness shall exceed the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees, ye shall in no case enter into the kingdom of heaven.

Anno DOMINI 31.

21 ¶ Ye have heard that it was said || by them of old time, [m] Thou shalt not kill; and whosoever shall kill shall be in danger of the judgment:

|| Or, to them.

[m] Exodus 20. 13. Deut. 5. 17.

22 But I say unto you, That whosoever is angry with his brother without a cause shall be in danger of the judgment: and whosoever shall say to his brother, Raca, shall be in danger of the council: but whosoever shall say, Thou fool, shall be in danger of hell fire.

23 Therefore if thou bring thy gift to the altar, and there rememberest that thy brother hath ought against thee;

---

16. Let your light so shine &c.] Let the truth of that grace and faith which you have now received, and with which you are enlightened, not be obscured by the works of darkness, or by the interference of earthly affections; but let it be so clear, so manifest, so perspicuous and apparent in your lives and conversation unto all men, "that they may see your good works;" that is, that all may see clearly how far you excel others in the performance of all your duties both to God and men. Bp. Beveridge.

Although Christ's first Apostles and disciples seem principally concerned in some of these precepts, yet are they also intended for all Christians; for it is the duty of all Christians "to shine as lights in the world," Philip. ii. 15. Dr. Whitby.

17. Think not that I am come &c.] Do not think that I am come to destroy or abrogate the Law and the Prophets: no, I am not come to dissolve any one natural or moral obligation; but, on the contrary, to fulfil what was typified, to explain what was obscure, and to complete what was imperfect. Dr. S. Clarke. "I am not come to destroy, but to fulfil;" to carry on the same design which was intended by the Jewish religion, and to perfect and accomplish it; to supply all the weakness and defects of that less perfect dispensation. Abp. Tillotson.

18. —one jot or one tittle] Alluding probably to the little strokes or dashes, by which the difference was made, in Hebrew and Syriack writing, between letters almost alike. Dr. Lightfoot.

19. —one of these least commandments,] One of the precepts of the moral law. In the following words, "shall teach men so," He seems to reflect on those Scribes and Pharisees, who by their traditions exempted themselves and others from observing the moral precepts. Dr. Whitby.

—— shall be called the least &c.] The object of the disciples was a high place in the kingdom of heaven. The expression, "shall be called the least," seems to refer to this hope.

20. —except your righteousness shall &c.] He addresses His disciples principally as instructors of others. Ye are to be teachers of a higher and purer morality than the Scribes and Pharisees. The "righteousness of the Scribes and Pharisees" is described in the verses which follow.

The righteousness of all Christians must exceed the righteousness of the Scribes and Pharisees, by their performing internally as well as externally the whole of their duty both to God and man; by obeying every command, to the exclusion and neglect of none; and, above all, by obeying with real integrity and sincerity of heart, not to advance their temporal interest or to gain the applause of men, but to the end that their righteousness may be accepted with God, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Bp. Beveridge.

21. Ye have heard, &c.] Our Saviour here proceeds to set down some of the many instances in which the Christian religion has exalted our duty above what the Jewish doctors held men to be accountable for. They condemned gross crimes, but palliated less, and were content with such an obedience as the letter of the law directed. He, on the contrary, requires all those qualifications and dispositions, which secure and promote the true intent of the law: He cuts down wickedness at the very root, and prevents the act by suppressing the first irregular motions, and every tendency to it. Dean Stanhope.

—— by them of old time,] Some prefer to translate as the Greek admits, "to them of old time," namely, by Moses. Drs. Whitby and Campbell.

22. But I say unto you, &c.] Our Saviour in this verse pursues an analogy between the punishments inflicted by the Jewish courts, and the punishments of a future life. Whosoever shews causeless anger, shall be in danger of "the judgment," or of a punishment corresponding to the capital punishment imposed by the lesser council of twenty-three members. Whoever calls his brother vain or worthless, shall incur a punishment, answering to that of stoning, inflicted by the Sanhedrim, or great council of seventy-two. But whosoever violently rails at his neighbour, shall be subject to a most grievous punishment, compared to that of burning the children alive in the valley of Hinnom. Dr. Hammond, Grotius. Your teachers tell you that the commandment of God is, Thou shalt not kill. But I, says our Lord, go much further; I say, thou shalt not indulge any resentment against thy brother; thou shalt not use any reproachful or contemptuous language towards him; for these are the things that lead and provoke to the most atrocious deeds. Bp. Porteus.

—— without a cause] For a light cause, or immoderately for any cause. Dr. Hammond.

—— Raca,] This is a Syriack word, meaning light or vain: it is thought by some to mean the same as what is translated "vain man" at James ii. 20. Bp. Pearce.

—— Thou fool,] A stronger expression than Raca; the original importing wicked or reprobate. Dr. Lightfoot. The Hebrew word should rather be left untranslated, as was Raca; "Moreh," thou rebel, apostate. Bp. Pearce.

—— hell fire.] In Greek the expression is, The Gehenna of fire. Gehenna is a Hebrew word, signifying "the valley of Hinnom," and by this name the Jews were wont to express the place of torment for the wicked; as the valley of Hinnom near Jerusalem was a place infamous for the foul idolatries committed there, for the cries of infants offered by fire to Moloch, the filth carried out thither from the city, and a fire that was always burning; on which account it was deemed a fit representation of hell. Dr. Lightfoot. See notes at 2 Kings xxiii. 10.

23. —thy gift to the altar,] The Scribes and Pharisees taught that the gifts and sacrifices brought to the temple were sufficient to expiate all offences, which were not to be punished by the judge, and that without amendment of life; and therefore Christ teaches,

Anno DOMINI 31.

24 Leave there thy gift before the altar, and go thy way; first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift.

[n] Luke 12. 58.

25 [n] Agree with thine adversary quickly, whiles thou art in the way with him; lest at any time the adversary deliver thee to the judge, and the judge deliver thee to the officer, and thou be cast into prison.

26 Verily I say unto thee, Thou shalt by no means come out thence, till thou hast paid the uttermost farthing.

27 ¶ Ye have heard that it was said by them of old time, [o] Thou shalt not commit adultery:

[o] Exod. 20. 14.

28 But I say unto you, That whosoever looketh on a woman to lust after her hath committed adultery with her already in his heart.

[p] Chap. 18. 8. Mark 9. 47.

29 [p] And if thy right eye ‖ offend thee, pluck it out, and cast it from thee: for it is profitable for thee that one of thy members should perish, and not that thy whole body should be cast into hell.

‖ Or, do cause thee to offend.

Anno DOMINI 31.

30 And if thy right hand offend thee, cut it off, and cast it from thee: for it is profitable for thee that one of thy members should perish, and not that thy whole body should be cast into hell.

31 It hath been said, [q] Whosoever shall put away his wife, let him give her a writing of divorcement:

[q] Deut. 24. 1.

32 But I say unto you, That [r] whosoever shall put away his wife, saving for the cause of fornication, causeth her to commit adultery: and whosoever shall marry her that is divorced committeth adultery.

[r] Luke 16. 18. 1 Cor. 7. 10.

33 ¶ Again, ye have heard that it hath been said by them of old time, [s] Thou shalt not forswear thyself, but shalt perform unto the Lord thine oaths:

[s] Exod. 20. 7. Lev. 19. 12. Deut. 5. 11.

34 But I say unto you, Swear not at

---

in opposition to them, that no sacrifice or other worship can be acceptable to Him, without justice and charity. Dr. Whitby.

In the doctrine of the Scribes and Pharisees, provision had been made for pecuniary damages only, and bare restitution, which might be done without a charitable mind, or a brotherly heart. But Christ urges reconciliation of mind, and a sincere desire of being reunited to our offended brother; and that, not only where property is concerned, but in every case in which our neighbour complains that he is aggrieved. Dr. Lightfoot.

24. — first be reconciled to thy brother,] Till the duty of forgiveness be discharged by ourselves, God will accept of no service or sacrifice at our hands. And therefore our Liturgy does with great reason declare it to be a necessary qualification for our worthy receiving the sacrament, that we be in love and charity with our neighbours, because in the blessed Sacrament of Christ's body and blood, we hope to have the forgiveness of our sins ratified and confirmed to us; and how can we hope for this from God, if we ourselves be not ready to forgive one another? Abp. Tillotson.

26. — Thou shalt by no means come out &c.] It is to be inferred from these expressions, how much more it concerns us to repent in time of our offences towards God, and to endeavour to be reconciled to Him, lest we be cast into the infernal prison. Dr. Whitby.

28. — whosoever looketh on a woman &c.] But I say, Let not thine heart or thine eye commit adultery; for here it is that sin begins, and here it must be crushed. This is wisdom, this is morality, in its most perfect form, in its essence, and in its first principles: bad thoughts quickly ripen into bad actions; and if the latter only are forbidden while the former are left free, all morality will soon be at an end. Our Lord therefore, like a wise physician, goes at once to the bottom of the evil; he extirpates the first germ and root of the disease, and leaves not a single fibre of it remaining to shoot up again in the heart. Bp. Porteus. A most striking proof of the superiority of that morality which is taught in the New Testament, is the great stress which is laid by our Saviour on the regulation of the thoughts: see chap. xv. 19; xxiii. 25, 27. There can be no doubt with any reflecting mind, that, in order to regulate effectually the propensities of our nature, the check is to be laid, not upon the action, but upon the thought. And, as to this matter, the judgment of our Saviour is decisive. He makes the controul of the thought essential; with Him, internal purity is every thing. In speaking of this very declaration of our Saviour, "Whosoever looketh on a woman," &c. Boerhaave was wont to say, "Our Saviour knew mankind far better than Socrates." Archdeacon Paley.

29. — if thy right eye offend thee,] If thy right eye ensnare thee; cause thee to offend. Dr. Campbell. As every wise man would consent to suffer the most painful operation, or even to lose a limb, if necessary, to save his life; so every good Christian will subdue his lusts and passions, and part with whatever is dearest to him, rather than forfeit his hopes of everlasting happiness. Bp. Mann. Our Saviour's expressions here are highly figurative and alarming, but not more than the occasion demanded. Every one must understand that the eye to be plucked out is the eye of concupiscence; that the hand to be cut off is the hand of violence and vengeance; that is, these passions are to be checked and subdued, let the conflict cost what it may. Bp. Porteus.

31. It hath been said, &c.] See Deut. xxiv. 1. Here His words are, not as before, "it hath been said to them of old," but only "it hath been said;" to note that this was not a precept given by Moses to divorce their wives, but only a permission in some cases. See Matt. xix. 8. Dr. Whitby. Among the Jews and heathens, but more particularly among the latter, the power of divorce was carried to a great extent, and exercised with the most capricious and wanton cruelty. It was full time for a stop to be put to these increasing barbarities; and it was a task worthy of the Son of God Himself, to stand up as the Defender and Protector of the most weak and helpless part of our species. Accordingly He here declares, in the most positive terms, that the only legitimate cause of divorce is adultery; and this has, by the experience of ages, been found to be a most wise and salutary provision, no less conducive to the happiness than to the virtue of the species. Bp. Porteus.

34. — Swear not at all;] That is, Swear not at all in common conversation; invoke not the name of God upon light occasions; but let your conversation be always so sincere and true, that your affirmation may be received as an oath. Dr. S. Clarke. Although this expression seems general and absolute, we must nevertheless understand it with some restriction. Our Saviour forbids, first, the swearing by created things; secondly, the profane and rash use of oaths, such as the Jews were accustomed to employ, without necessity, from mere habit, or, what was worse, from a design to deceive. It appears from other passages of Scripture, that, on some occasions, oaths were not only lawful but necessary. See Exod. xxii. 11; Ps. cx. 4; Rom. ix. 1; 2 Cor. i. 23; xi. 31; Gal. i. 20; Heb. vi. 16; Rev. x. 6. Beausobre. It is plain, that if the prohibition, "Swear not at all," were understood absolutely, the good of society would be much affected; as, in important matters, there would be wanting the strongest human assurance and the best human testimony, which derive their greatest force from a solemn appeal to God; and, therefore, our Lord restrains His command all; neither by heaven; for it is God's throne:

Anno DOMINI 31.

35 Nor by the earth; for it is his footstool: neither by Jerusalem; for it is the city of the great King.

36 Neither shalt thou swear by thy head, because thou canst not make one hair white or black.

[t] James 5. 12.

37 [t] But let your communication be, Yea, yea; Nay, nay: for whatsoever is more than these cometh of evil.

Anno DOMINI 31.

38 ¶ Ye have heard that it hath been said, [u] An eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth:

[u] Exod. 21. 24. Lev. 24. 20. Deut. 19. 21.

39 But I say unto you, [x] That ye resist not evil: but whosoever shall smite thee on thy right cheek, turn to him the other also.

[x] Luke 6. 29. Rom. 12. 17. 1 Cor. 6. 7.

to ordinary discourse, (ver. 37,) and opposes it to the unnecessary and ensnaring oaths and vows, then so frequent amongst the Jews. Abp. Newcome.

——neither by heaven; &c.] Our Saviour's design in these words cannot be better understood than by considering what those corrupt principles were concerning swearing, which had crept in among the Jews. And, first, as their own authors tell us, it was generally held among them that they ought not to swear by the name of God in light and trivial cases, but they believed it was no sin to swear upon any occasion by a creature that was a remarkable object of God's favour and providence, as by heaven, or by the earth, or by Jerusalem, or by their head, which are the instances here noted by our Saviour. Secondly, some of them, and the Pharisees especially, taught that the guilt of perjury was not incurred when a falsehood was attested by an oath of this kind. Hence, our Saviour's words being spoken to persons who well understood the doctrines and practices of their countrymen in this matter, enjoined that they should not swear by the creatures of God in any of those cases in which it was unlawful to swear by the Almighty Himself, that is, in their usual communications with each other. For, it seems, the Jews themselves were not, in those days, arrived at that insolence, which, it is dreadful to think, is too frequent with Christians, of profaning the name of the most high God, by calling upon Him, on every trivial occasion, to bear witness to what they say. Dr. Clagett.

37. ——let your communication be, &c.] Your common discourse must be free from oaths of any kind; for oaths are only to be used when they are required by lawful authority. Bp. Mann.

"Let your communication be, Yea, yea," &c. As if He had said, This is the rule I would have you constantly to observe in your commerce and dealing with men, and in your whole conversation: When you have occasion to affirm a thing affirm it steadily without an oath: when you have occasion to deny a thing, say, It is not so, without an oath: when you have occasion to promise that you will do a thing, or will not do it, promise, but do not swear; and when you have promised, be sure you be as good as your word. "Let always your yea be yea, and your nay nay," as St. James expresseth it, Jam. v. 12; that is, let your words and your deeds agree together. Abp. Sharp.

——cometh of evil.] It proceeds from an evil mind, produces an evil custom, is of an evil example, and tends to an evil end. Bp. Beveridge.

Truth and fidelity are the great bases on which all society is founded; and without which there could be no peace, no security, no right or property in the world. Whatsoever therefore is apt to undermine these, as perjury directly does, and as common swearing naturally tends to do, ought to be avoided and discouraged by all who either love their own welfare, or have any regard to the publick good. Abp. Wake.

38. Ye have heard that it hath been said, &c.] There are two opposite descriptions of character, under which mankind may generally be classed. The one possesses vigour, firmness, resolution, is daring and active, quick in its sensibilities, jealous of its fame, inflexible in its purpose, violent in its resentments: the other, meek, yielding, complying, forgiving; not prompt to act, but willing to suffer; silent and gentle under rudeness and insult; suing for reconciliation where others would demand satisfaction. The former of these characters is, and ever has been, the favourite of the world. It is the character of great men. There is a dignity in it, which universally commands respect. The latter is apt to be deemed poor-spirited, tame, and abject. Yet so it has happened, that with the Founder of Christianity this latter is the subject of His commendation, His precepts, His example; and that the former is so in no part of its composition. This is the character designed in the following passage, ver. 38—44. The morality contained in this is no commonplace, but is truly original. Now it is certainly true, however contrary it may be to popular opinion, that the meek and yielding character possesses most of true worth, both as being most difficult to be acquired and sustained, and as contributing most to the happiness of social life; for, if this disposition were universal, the world would be a society of friends; and, if the disposition be only partial, as is the case in the world; if a few be actuated by it, amongst a multitude who are not, in whatever degree it does prevail, in the same proportion it prevents and terminates quarrels, the great disturbers of human happiness, and the great sources of human misery, as far as happiness and misery depend upon man. Archdeacon Paley.

——An eye for an eye, &c.] See note at Lev. xxiv. 19. By a perversion of their law the Jews had conceived that private revenge was permitted. Among the ancient heathens, private revenge was indulged without scruple and without mercy. It was to check this furious ungovernable passion, so universally prevalent, that our Saviour delivers the precepts which follow. Bp. Porteus.

39. But I say unto you, That ye resist not evil:] No one can imagine that this injunction, and those of the same kind which follow, are to be understood strictly and literally; that we are to submit, without the least opposition, to every injury and insult that is offered us, and are absolutely precluded from every degree of self-preservation and self-defence. Common sense, as well as common utility, require that we should consider the particular instances of behaviour under the instances here specified, as proverbial and figurative expressions, intended to convey a general precept, and to describe that peculiar temper and disposition which the Gospel requires; that patience, gentleness, mildness, moderation, and forbearance under injuries and affronts, which is best calculated to preserve the peace of our own minds, as well as that of the world at large; which tends to soften resentment and turn away wrath; and without which, on one side or the other, provocations must be endless, and enmities eternal. Bp. Porteus. It is incidental to our Saviour's mode of instruction, which proceeds not by proof, but upon authority, not by disquisition, but by precept, that the rules will be conceived in absolute terms, leaving the application, and the distinctions that attend it, to the reason of the hearer. It is likewise to be expected that they will be delivered in terms by so much the more forcible and energetick, as they have to encounter natural or general propensities. It is further to be remarked, that many of the strong instances which appear in our Lord's sermon, (as here at ver. 39—41,) though they appear in the form of specifick precepts, are intended to be descriptive of disposition and character. A specifick compliance with the precepts would be of little value; but the disposition which they inculcate is of the highest. He, who should content himself with waiting for the occasion, and with literally observing the rule when the occasion offered, would do nothing, or worse than nothing: but he who considers the character and disposition which is hereby inculcated, and places that disposition before him as the model to which he should bring his own,

Anno DOMINI 31.

40 And if any man will sue thee at the law, and take away thy coat, let him have thy cloke also.

41 And whosoever shall compel thee to go a mile, go with him twain.

42 Give to him that asketh thee, and [y] from him that would borrow of thee turn not thou away.

43 ¶ Ye have heard that it hath been said, [z] Thou shalt love thy neighbour, and hate thine enemy.

44 But I say unto you, [a] Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and [b] pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you;

45 That ye may be the children of your Father which is in heaven: for he maketh his sun to rise on the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust.

46 [c] For if ye love them which love you, what reward have ye? do not even the publicans the same?

47 And if ye salute your brethren only,

[y] Deut. 15. 8.

[z] Lev. 19. 18.

[a] Luke 6. 27.

[b] Luke 23. 34. Acts 7. 60.

[c] Luke 6. 32.

takes perhaps the best possible method of improving the benevolence, and of calming and rectifying the vices, of his temper. Archdeacon Paley.

40. — coat, — cloke] The word, rendered coat, means the inner garment or tunick, over which the Jews and other nations threw an outer garment or cloak, when they went abroad, or were not at work. Bp. Pearce. See the second note at Job xxii. 6.

41. — compel thee to go a mile,] This sort of compulsion was used by the officers of the publick magistrates, especially by such as were couriers, who for expedition seized and made use of the horses, carriages, and sometimes the persons, of those with whom they met, as they had occasion. Bp. Pearce.

43. — and hate thine enemy.] These words are not in the law of Moses; indeed that law expressly commands the love of strangers and of our enemies, in the highest degree, Lev. xix. 18, 34. Our Saviour therefore is, in this passage, not correcting or altering the moral precepts of the law, but opposing the corrupt interpretations of the scribes and Pharisees. Dr. Whitby.

44. But I say unto you, Love your enemies,] By the command "to love our enemies," we are required to have always a favourable disposition of mind towards them, which will incline us to be just and charitable in our dealings with them; to abstain from all revenge, to exert a ready forgiveness, to pray for them, to do them good offices when it lies in our power. Dr. Jortin. It has been objected to this command, that it is extravagant and impracticable, and that it is impossible for any man to bring himself to entertain any real love for his enemies. But this objection supposes that we are to love our enemies in the same manner and degree, and with the same cordiality and ardour of affection, as we do our relations and friends. Our Lord however is not so severe a taskmaster as to require this at our hands. There are different degrees of love, as of every other human affection, and these degrees are to be duly proportioned to the different objects of our regard. There is one degree due to our relations, another to our friends and benefactors, another to strangers, another to our enemies. Bp. Porteus.

—— bless them that curse you, &c.] That is, do not retaliate on your enemy; do not return his execrations, his injuries and persecutions with similar treatment; do not turn upon him his own weapons, but endeavour to subdue him with weapons of a celestial temper, with kindness and compassion. Bp. Porteus. The Jewish law had commanded them to love their neighbours, meaning their brethren, and those of their own nation; but our Saviour, by commanding us to love our enemies, has, in the most emphatical manner possible, commanded us to love all men. And to secure the sincerity of our charity towards our enemies, we are required to express it by our hearty prayers to God in their behalf; to God, before whom it is impious and dangerous to dissemble, and from whom we can expect no mercy for ourselves, if with feigned lips we beg it of Him for others. Abp. Tillotson.

Many wise moralists have represented the desire of revenge as a mark of a noble mind, and the accomplishment of it as one of the chief felicities of life. But how much more magnanimous, how much more beneficial to mankind, is forgiveness! It is more magnanimous, because all the generous and exalted feelings of the human mind is requisite to the practice of it; for these alone can enable us to bear the wrongs and insults of wickedness and folly with patience, and to look down on the perpetrators of them with pity rather than indignation; these alone can teach us, that such are but a part of those sufferings allotted to us in this state of probation, and to know that to overcome evil with good is the most glorious of all victories: it is the most beneficial, because this amiable conduct alone can put an end to an eternal succession of injuries and retaliations; for every retaliation becomes a new injury, and requires another act of revenge for satisfaction. S. Jenyns.

45. That ye may be the children &c.] Raise your virtue and goodness above the common rate of men; let it be so universal as to approach to an imitation of God, who bestows the benefit of His sun and rain on the unjust and wicked, as well as on the just and good. Dr. S. Clarke. God bestows the blessings of His common providence even upon those who are guilty of the greatest provocations against Him. This quality of goodness is a prime excellency and perfection of the Divine nature; and who would not be ambitious to be like the best and most perfect of beings? But with what peculiar force should the example of God operate upon us! Our offences against Him are more and greater than any man ever was or could be guilty of towards us; besides, there are many considerations which ought to restrain us from severity towards our fellow creatures, which can have no place with God. We may justly fear that the consequences of our revenge may return upon ourselves, and that it may come to our own case to stand in need of mercy and forgiveness from others, and therefore, out of necessary caution and prudence, we should take heed not to set any bad example in this kind, lest it should recoil upon ourselves. We, who stand in need so much of forgiveness ourselves, ought in all reason to be easy to forgive others. But the Divine nature is infinitely above any real injury or suffering: God can never stand in need of pity or forgiveness; and yet, of His own mere goodness, without any interest or design, how slow is He to anger, how ready to forgive! Abp. Tillotson.

46. — the publicans] These were the collectors, and some of them perhaps farmers of the customs and other taxes, which the Roman emperours exacted from the Jewish nation. They were all, or some of them at least, Jews; for Matthew was a publican, chap. ix. 9, and, in the next verse here, the Jews seem to be spoken of as their brethren. But, because the Jews in general considered the exaction of these customs and taxes as an oppression of their nation, they conceived a very bad opinion of these publicans, as instrumental in that oppression, and perhaps as adding to it by their behaviour, Luke iii. 13; and on this account they always spake of them as sinners. See chap. ix. 11, &c. Bp. Pearce. They were held infamous among the Jews, because they dealt and conversed much with the Gentiles by the necessity of their trade, and also because, hiring the tributes at a price, they were in habits of raising gain to themselves by severe exactions on the people. Dr. Hammond.

47. — if ye salute your brethren] The Jews were so haughty and uncharitable, that they would not even bestow a salutation on a Gentile or a Samaritan, but only on their brethren. Grotius.

Anno DOMINI 31.

what do ye more than others? do not even the publicans so?

48 Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect.

CHAP. VI.

1 Christ continueth his sermon in the mount, speaking of alms, 5 prayer, 14 forgiving our brethren, 16 fasting, 19 where our treasure is to be laid up, 24 of serving God, and mammon: 25 exhorteth not to be careful for worldly things: 33 but to seek God's kingdom.

TAKE heed that ye do not your alms before men, to be seen of them: otherwise ye have no reward ‖ of your Father which is in heaven.

‖ Or, with.

2 Therefore [a] when thou doest thine alms, ‖ do not sound a trumpet before thee, as the hypocrites do in the synagogues and in the streets, that they may have glory of men. Verily I say unto you, They have their reward.

[a] Rom. 12. 8.

‖ Or, cause not a trumpet to be sounded.

3 But when thou doest alms, let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth:

4 That thine alms may be in secret: and thy Father which seeth in secret himself shall reward thee openly.

5 ¶ And when thou prayest, thou shalt not be as the hypocrites are: for they love to pray standing in the synagogues and in the corners of the streets, that they may be seen of men. Verily I say unto you, They have their reward.

6 But thou, when thou prayest, enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father which is in secret; and thy Father which seeth in secret shall reward thee openly.

7 But when ye pray, use not vain [b] repetitions, as the heathen do: for they think

[b] Eccl[us] 7. 14.

48. Be ye therefore perfect, &c.] Remember that it is your highest perfection and glory to resemble your heavenly Father, as much as you possibly can, in acts of goodness and mercy. Bp. Mann. In your conduct towards your enemies, approach as near as you can to that perfection of mercy which your heavenly Father manifests towards His enemies, towards the evil and the unjust, on whom He makes His sun to rise, as well as on the righteous and the just. Bp. Porteus.

It is the extent principally of the Divine mercy and compassion, discernible in His works, which our Lord here presses. Your Father, He says, is bountiful to the evil as well as the good: go ye therefore and do likewise, and learn from hence to love your enemies as well as your friends, to do good to those who hate you as well as to those who love you. He here recommends not only the temper of mercy which is natural to the Deity, but also that extensive exercise of it, that perfection of goodness, which shone forth in all His works. Bp. Sherlock.

Chap. VI. ver. 1. Take heed that ye do not your alms before men, &c.] In the passages which follow, we have strong and repeated cautions to avoid all shew and ostentation in the performance of our religious duties, instanced in the acts of giving alms, of praying, and of fasting. Here is a marked disapprobation of every thing that looks like parade, vain-glory, insincerity, or hypocrisy in the discharge of our Christian duties. We here see in the clearest light the spirit and temper of the Christian religion, which is modest, silent, retired, quiet, unobtrusive, shunning the observation and the applause of men, and looking only to the approbation of Him who sees every thought of our hearts, and every secret motive of our actions. We have here established, as the grand principle for every disciple of Christ, that, in every part of his moral and religious conduct, he is to have no other object in view than the favour of God. Bp. Porteus.

We are not to suppose that, in this or any other passage, the pursuit of fame is stated as a vice; it is only said, that an action to be virtuous must be independent of any such motive. We should observe also, that it is not publicity, but ostentation, that is prohibited; not the mode, but the motive of the action which is regulated. A good man will prefer that mode, as well as those objects of his beneficence, by which he can produce the greatest effect; and the view of this purpose may dictate sometimes the publication, sometimes the concealment, of his action. Either the one or the other may be the mode of the action, according as the end to be promoted by it seems to require. But from the motive of the action, the reputation which is to arise from it, and the fruits and advantage of that reputation to ourselves, must be shut out; or, in whatever proportion they are not so, in that proportion the action fails of being virtuous. Archdeacon Paley.

2. — do not sound a trumpet] This is a figurative way of speaking, to express ostentation and a desire of having their alms seen and commended. Bp. Pearce.

—— They have their reward.] The applause of men shall be their only reward, and they must expect no other from God. Dr. S. Clarke.

3. — let not thy left hand know &c.] A proverbial expression, implying that in almsgiving all unnecessary disclosure should be avoided.

We are by no means to infer from hence, that we are on no occasion to give our alms in publick. In some cases, publicity is so far from being culpable, that it is necessary, useful, and laudable. Bp. Porteus. See Archdeacon Paley's note on ver. 1.

5. — pray standing] It was customary for the Jews to pray standing. See Mark xi. 25; Luke xviii. 11, 13. Yet on their more solemn days of fasting, they were wont to kneel, and even prostrate themselves before the Lord. Dr. Whitby.

6. But thou, when thou prayest, &c.] It should be well observed, that it is of private prayer only that our Lord is here speaking; and the hypocrites whom He condemns were those ostentatious Jews, who performed those devotions, which ought to have been confined to the closet, in the synagogues, and even the publick streets, that they might be noticed and applauded for their extraordinary piety and sanctity. His expressions cannot possibly be considered as implying a disapprobation of publick devotion in places of publick worship; for we find, in various parts of Scripture, publick worship enjoined as a duty of the highest importance. Bp. Porteus.

7. — use not vain repetitions,] The sense here is variously rendered; Use not much speaking, vain and unseasonable speaking. The words seem to condemn prayers lengthened out upon the supposition that we shall be heard for much speaking; they shew that long and earnest entreaties to God are unavailing while we continue in sin, and they recommend that, in our customary addresses to God, we should use words as comprehensive, general, and free from needless repetitions as we can. Dr. Whitby. He tells His disciples that they ought not to lay their wants before God in a superfluous abundance of words, nor hope to extort His favour by such absurd methods. Dr. Jortin.

—— as the heathen do:] Thus, in one place of the Greek poet Æschylus, near a hundred verses are filled with a repetition of the same invocations of the gods. So, 1 Kings xviii. 26, the priests of Baal called from morning till noon. The Ephesians, Acts xix. 34, repeated, "Great is Diana," for the space of two hours. Dr. Hammond.

Anno DOMINI 31. that they shall be heard for their much speaking.

8 Be not ye therefore like unto them: for your Father knoweth what things ye have need of, before ye ask him.

9 After this manner therefore pray ye: Anno DOMINI 31. [c] Our Father which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy name. [c] Luke 11. 2.

10 Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven.

11 Give us this day our daily bread.

---

8. —for your Father knoweth &c.] Since this is given as the reason why we should not imitate the heathen in using vain repetitions, it implies on what accounts the heathens used to do so; that is, as questioning His omniscience, and therefore speaking thus for the purpose of imparting to Him what He did not know, or inculcating what He was unwilling immediately to attend to, or of suggesting again what He had forgotten. Dr. Whitby.

9. After this manner therefore pray ye:] The Lord's Prayer stands unrivalled in every circumstance that constitutes the perfection of prayer, and the excellence of that species of composition. It is concise, it is perspicuous, it is solemn, it is comprehensive; it is adapted to all ranks, conditions, and classes of men; it fixes our thoughts on a few great important points, and impresses on our minds a deep sense of the goodness and the greatness of that Almighty Being to whom it is addressed. It begins with acknowledging Him to be our most gracious and merciful Father; it begs that His name may be every where reverenced, that His religion may spread over the earth, and that His will may be obeyed by men with the same ardour, and alacrity, and constancy, that it is by the angels in heaven. It next entreats the supply of all our essential wants, both temporal and spiritual; a sufficiency of those things that are absolutely necessary for our subsistence; the forgiveness of our transgressions, on condition that we forgive our brethren; and, finally, support under the temptations that assault our virtue, and deliverance from the various evils and calamities that every where surround us; expressing at the same time the utmost trust and confidence in the power of God, to grant whatever He sees it expedient and proper for His creatures to receive. Bp. Porteus.

The Lord's Prayer, for a succession of solemn thoughts, for fixing the attention on a few great points, for suitableness to every condition, for sufficiency, for conciseness without obscurity, for the weight and real importance of its petitions, is without an equal or a rival. Archdeacon Paley.

Of all the applications to the Supreme Being which are extant, and are of a general nature, not receiving an additional force from the uncommon or moving circumstances of those who made them, this now before us, the prayer of our Lord, is undoubtedly the best; being at once the most rational and the most devout. It would have been so esteemed by all judges, if the name of its author had never been known to us; so that, whether we consider the preaching or the prayer of our Redeemer, the observation is equally just, that "never man spake like this man," John vii. 46. Dr. Ogden.

This prayer is called the Lord's Prayer, because it was taught us by our Lord Jesus Christ, in whose name we pray unto God the Father. It consists of three general parts: the introduction, "Our Father which art in heaven;" the petitions; and the doxology or conclusion with praises to God. Abp. Wake, Oxford Catechism.

—— Our Father] God is the Father of the universe; all nature owes its being and support to Him. He bears a nearer degree of the same relation to all spiritual beings, endowed with intelligence and capable of virtue; who have received a greater portion of His kindness and care, and shew or may shew a stronger resemblance of their Divine Parent. Of man, in particular, it is said, that he was created in the image of God; and he is styled His son. A good man may with still better hopes make use of this endearing appellation, and a good Christian above all. He is born again, from above, by the operation of the same Divine Spirit, by which the eternal Word was incarnate, and became the Redeemer of men: and he is made an heir of God and joint-heir with Christ. By Him he is taught and authorized, as he is prompted by that Spirit, to lay claim to the relation, and by it to address his applications to the Maker of all things. Dr. Ogden.

—— Our Father which art in heaven,] By the words "our Father" we express not only the absolute authority, but the unspeakable goodness of God; and by the words, "which art in heaven," we acknowledge His glory and power. God is our Father, as having created us in common with all other beings: in a stricter sense, the Father of us rational creatures, as having created us in His own image and likeness, also as exercising a fatherly care and providence over us; and in a more peculiar sense the Father of Christians, as having united them by faith unto His Son our "head," 1 Cor. xi. 3, and made us His children by adoption, "heirs of Himself, and joint-heirs with Christ," Rom. viii. 17. We address Him as being "in heaven," not as if His spiritual essence could cease to be every where present, but because the Scriptures represent Him as manifesting the more visible tokens of His inexpressible Majesty in heaven, which is His "throne" and "tabernacle," Ps. xi. 4; Heb. viii. 1, 2; where He receives the homage of His holy angels, and issues forth His commands for the government of the world. Abp. Secker. By saying "our Father," and not "my Father," we are taught to pray in brotherly charity for others, as well as for ourselves. Oxford Catechism.

—— Hallowed be thy name.] The "name" of God means here God Himself, His person and attributes; and to hallow His name signifies to think of Him as a holy being, and to behave towards Him accordingly. By this petition therefore we beg of God that His glorious name and our holy profession be not blasphemed, but glorified by ourselves and others, in thought, word, and deed. Abp. Secker, Oxford Catechism.

10. Thy kingdom come.] By the coming of God's kingdom is meant the establishment of His spiritual kingdom where it is not received, and the enlargement of it where it is received. Oxford Catechism. In this petition therefore we especially pray that all men may more clearly know, and more worthily obey, the true and only God; that to this end the borders of His church may be enlarged, and the dominion of sin and Satan destroyed; and also that His eternal kingdom may be enlarged, the fulness of His saints be accomplished, and the blessed time come when all shall be translated into His heavenly kingdom. Abp. Wake.

—— Thy will be done &c.] As God declares His will to us by the dispensations of His providence, and by His revealed word, so with respect to both these we are here taught to pray, that we may all continue His obedient and constant servants, seriously considering His commandments and the ways of His providence, discerning what it is that He would have us do or suffer, improving His blessings to the glory of His name, and patiently enduring whatever He may call upon us to suffer for His sake. And that we may thus do the will of God, as the angels in heaven do, with all readiness, cheerfulness, constancy, and delight. Abp. Wake.

11. —this day] In St. Luke xi. 3, "day by day."

—— our daily bread.] The word here translated "daily" occurs not in any Greek author. It seems, from its derivation, either to mean "of the day approaching," whether the present day, or the morrow; "for the future," the remainder of our lives, whether long or short; or else "that which is sufficient, suited for our subsistence." Under the name of "bread" is undoubtedly comprehended all that is necessary for sustaining human nature; meat, drink, and clothing. Drs. Hammond and Whitby. See the note from Jos. Mede on Prov. xxx. 8.

We present this petition to God, not to exclude our own reasonable care in providing for our support, much less to exclude our labouring for it: but to shew that we depend altogether on the providence of God, and owe our lives, and all the support of them, not to our own cunning or industry, but to His blessing; and thereby to engage us both to rely on Him with the greater confidence, and to make those suitable returns of love, praise, and gratitude which we ought. Abp. Wake.

Anno DOMINI 31.

12 And forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors.

13 And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil: For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, for ever. Amen.

[d] Mark 11. 25.

14 [d] For if ye forgive men their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you:

15 But if ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses.

16 ¶ Moreover when ye fast, be not, as the hypocrites, of a sad countenance: for they disfigure their faces, that they may appear unto men to fast. Verily I say unto you, They have their reward.

Anno DOMINI 31.

17 But thou, when thou fastest, anoint thine head, and wash thy face;

18 That thou appear not unto men to fast, but unto thy Father which is in secret: and thy Father which seeth in secret shall reward thee openly.

19 ¶ Lay not up for yourselves treasures

---

12. And forgive us &c.] By trespasses, which are sometimes compared with debts, Matt. xviii. 32, 35, are meant sins, by which we become indebted to the justice of God. And here we pray that God would not exact of us the penalty of sin, that He would accept of Christ's satisfaction for us, and that He would for Christ's sake discharge us from the debt. Oxford Catechism.

—— as we forgive &c.] Let us ever remember, that, since we pray to be forgiven only as we forgive; as often as we use these words, we pray in effect for God's vengeance upon ourselves, not for His mercy, if we forgive not. It becomes us therefore continually to apply to Him for grace to do in earnest what we profess to do in this petition; carefully to examine our hearts and conduct, that we may not cheat ourselves, for God we cannot cheat, with false pretences of observing this duty, while indeed we transgress it. Abp. Secker.

13. And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil:] Herein we pray that God would neither try us Himself beyond our strength, nor suffer the devil, the world, or our own flesh to do it; that, if it be His will, we may not be exposed to any great temptations at all; but if, for any ends of His wise providence, He shall think fit to suffer us to be tempted, that then He would be graciously pleased to strengthen and support us, to carry us through them with innocence and integrity, and not to suffer us to be led by them into sin. By the expression "from evil" may be meant either an evil person or an evil thing. In the first sense, it may respect all wicked men, but especially the wicked one, the tempter: in the last sense, not so much the evil of sin, as the evil of temptation, to which it seems properly to refer. Abp. Wake.

—— For thine is the kingdom, &c.] This is the third part of the Lord's Prayer, called the doxology, a word which means a form of giving glory and praise and honour to God, 1 Tim. i. 17; Rev. v. 12; vii. 12. Abp. Wake.

We here affirm expressly, what indeed has been implied throughout the prayer, that His is the kingdom, or the rightful authority and supreme dominion over all; His the power by which all that is just and good is brought to pass; His the glory of whatever we His creatures do or enjoy or hope for; of whatever this universe and the whole scheme of things which it comprehends, hath had, or now hath, or ever shall have in it, awful or gracious, and worthy of the admiration of men and angels. And, as all dignity, and might, and honour are His, so they are His "for ever and ever;" originally, independently, and unchangeably. "From everlasting to everlasting He is God, the same yesterday, and to day, and for ever," Ps. xc. 2; Heb. xiii. 8. Abp. Secker.

—— Amen.] This is a word of wish or approbation, denoting our assent to that to which it is subjoined, with an earnest desire of its accomplishment: it means, May God of His goodness grant what I have here prayed for, and so I trust He will do, of His mercy towards me, through Jesus Christ our Saviour. Abp. Wake. See note at Deut. xxvii. 15.

The following is a paraphrase of this admirable form of prayer: O gracious Father, who dwellest in the light which no man can approach unto, and yet condescendest to hearken to the prayers of all the children of men; let the adorable perfections of Thy nature be every where devoutly reverenced and glorified. Let Thy kingdom of truth and righteousness prevail to the full establishment of the Gospel of Christ. Let Thy holy will be obeyed with sincerity and constancy by men on earth, as it is by the blessed angels in heaven. Give us, we beseech thee, day by day, those things that are needful for our daily support, in that state of life to which it hath pleased Thee to call us. And of Thy mercy forgive us our manifold transgressions and offences, in like manner as we are ready from our hearts to forgive every one who has offended us. Suffer us not to be overcome by temptations; but deliver us from the power of Satan, and the deceitfulness and corruption of sin. For Thy kingdom ruleth over all things visible and invisible. Thou art the sovereign Disposer of all events, and to Thee alone are due all glory, worship, and praise, throughout all ages for ever. So be it. Bp. Mann.

14. — your heavenly Father will also forgive you:] It should be observed, that the condition of our forgiveness, here proposed singly, is not to be understood absolutely and exclusively of all others. For the two great Gospel conditions of faith and repentance are always presupposed as necessary to qualify us for any of the privileges tendered in the Gospel. Dr. Moss.

15. But if ye forgive not &c.] It is not meet that we should crave forgiveness of our great offences from God, and yet be unwilling to forgive the small trespasses of our neighbours against us. We call in vain for mercy, if we will not shew mercy to our neighbours: if we will not put wrath and displeasure forth from our hearts to our Christian brother, no more will God forgive the wrath and displeasure that our sins have deserved from Him. Church Homilies.

16. — when ye fast,] Observe that our Lord here, and at chap. ix. 14, &c. does not condemn the practice of fasting, but only regulates the manner of it, leaving the frequency of fasting to publick and private discretion. Abp. Secker.

—— they disfigure their faces,] That is, suffer their faces to remain unwashed, and their heads unanointed. Bp. Pearce.

17. — anoint thine head, &c.] The general meaning is, Dress thyself, as on other days, according to the custom of the country. Oil was much used among the Jews, as water is with us, for washing the face. Bp. Pearce.

19. Lay not up &c.] The connexion of ideas in the following part of the chapter seems to be this: our Lord says, Seek not after earthly treasures, (ver. 19, 20,) for your affections will be where your treasure is, ver. 21. If your understanding be so darkened as to mistake the principal object of human pursuit, and the nature of true happiness, by looking on wealth as the most desirable of all things, your errour is desperate, (ver. 22, 23,) and in vain would you hope to unite the pursuit of wealth with the love of heavenly things, for no man can serve two masters, ver. 24: on these accounts, I exhort you not to be over-anxious in worldly matters, lest avarice get the dominion over you, ver. 25—34.

— Lay not up for yourselves &c.] That is, Be not so solicitous for the good things of this world, as for the glory and happiness of the next. It is a Hebrew manner of speaking, which frequently occurs, (Luke xii. 4; xiv. 26,) to forbid things absolutely, when the sense is to be understood only comparatively. Abp. Tillotson. See note on Hos. vi. 6.

Anno DOMINI 31.

upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal:

[e] Luke 12. 33. 1 Tim. 6. 19.

20 [e] But lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal:

21 For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also.

[f] Luke 11. 34.

22 [f] The light of the body is the eye: if therefore thine eye be single, thy whole body shall be full of light.

23 But if thine eye be evil, thy whole body shall be full of darkness. If therefore the light that is in thee be darkness, how great is that darkness!

[g] Luke 16. 13.

24 ¶ [g] No man can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon.

Anno DOMINI 31.

25 Therefore I say unto you, [h] Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink; nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on. Is not the life more than meat, and the body than raiment?

[h] Luke 12. 22. Ps. 55. 22. 1 Pet. 5. 7.

26 Behold the fowls of the air: for they sow not, neither do they reap, nor gather into barns; yet your heavenly Father feedeth them. Are ye not much better than they?

27 Which of you by taking thought can add one cubit unto his stature?

28 And why take ye thought for raiment? Consider the lilies of the field, how

---

—— where moth and rust doth corrupt,] Allusion is here made to the three sorts of treasures which human foresight was wont to store up; garments, corn and fruits of the earth, and gold, silver, and jewels; all of which are perishable and liable to be destroyed by the moth and caterpillar, or else by rust. Dr. Hammond.

Under the term "treasures," garments seem to be particularly included. It was customary for the opulent in Asiatick countries, where fashions in dress were not fluctuating as they are with us, to have large repositories of rich and splendid apparel. The term, translated "rust," denotes any thing which corrodes, consumes, or spoils goods of any kind. Dr. Campbell. "Lay not up for yourselves" &c.; that is, Be not so intent on these perishing things as to neglect and forget those of infinitely greater moment; but let your principal care, and your most hearty endeavours, attend to, and provide for, eternity. Abp. Herring.

22. The light of the body is the eye:] Rather, the eye is the lamp of the body. This whole passage is metaphorical; by the body is here meant the mind, and by the eye the turn and disposition of the mind in matters of religion. As when the eye, which is the light of the body, is so vitiated as to give no light, the whole body is full of darkness; so, when the reason or understanding, which is the inward light, is vitiated, the whole soul is darkened; and, the darkness being total, it is therefore very great. Bp. Pearce.

—— thine eye be single,] Entire, sound, free from disorder. If the understanding and will be distempered, we can no more perceive and relish our true happiness than we can see clearly when our sight is defective. Bp. Mann.

24. — Ye cannot serve God and mammon.] Mammon is a Syriack word; it is generally interpreted to mean "riches" only; but the original rather directs us to use it in a more general sense, as comprehending every thing which is capable of being an object of trust, or a ground of confidence to men of worldly minds; such as wealth, power, honour, business, sensual pleasures, gay amusements, and all the various pursuits of the present scene. Bp. Porteus. By the expression "mammon," wealth is personified, and represented as a master who rivals God in the hearts of men. Dr. Campbell.

A great part of mankind most absurdly attempt to divide themselves between God and mammon, to compromise the matter as well as they can between the commands of the One and the seductions of the other; to render a worldly life and a religious life consistent with each other; to take as much as they can of the enjoyments and advantages of the present world, without losing their hold on the rewards of the next. Yet, in direct contradiction to so extravagant and preposterous a system, Christ Himself assures us, that we cannot serve these two masters. Our Maker expects to reign absolute in our hearts. He will not be served by halves; He will not accept of a divided empire; He will not suffer us to halt between two opinions. We must make our choice, and adhere to one side or the other. "If the Lord be God, follow Him: but if Baal, then follow him," 1 Kings xviii. 21. Bp. Porteus.

No man can serve two masters so different as God and the world are; because they will give cross commands, and enjoin contrary things. God calls upon us to mind the duties of His worship and service, to have a serious regard to religion and a diligent care of our souls; but the cares of the world and the importunity of business, and an eager appetite of being rich, call us off from these divine and spiritual employments, or disturb us in them. God calls upon us to be charitable to those that are in want, to be willing to distribute, and ready to communicate to the necessities of our brethren; but our covetousness pulls us back, draws us another way, and checks all merciful and charitable dispositions in us. God calls us to self-denial, and suffering for the sake of Him and His truth; and commands us to prefer the keeping of faith and a good conscience to all worldly considerations whatever; but the world inspires us with other thoughts, and whispers to us rather to put our immortal souls to hazard, than our bodies and estates. Abp. Tillotson.

Neither God nor mammon will bear a rival. Mammon is imperious and crafty, and will have all or none: if we give him one half, he will soon seize the rest. God also requires the whole heart; and, when He takes possession of it, worldly affections are extinguished, as earthly fires die away when the sun shines upon them in his full strength. Dr. Jortin.

25. — Take no thought] That is, be not anxious. Bp. Pearce. Be not anxiously careful or solicitous. The word in the original Greek bears a much stronger sense than is conveyed by our expression, "Take no thought." At the time when our English translation was made, the phrase "to take thought" appears to have implied anxious thought and carefulness. As a proof of this, it may be mentioned, that a Hebrew word, which undoubtedly denotes solicitude and anxiety, is rendered at 1 Sam. ix. 5, by the verb "to take thought for," and the same is rendered at 1 Sam. x. 2, by "to sorrow for." Parkhurst.

—— Is not the life more than meat, &c.] He that first gave you life and being, without your caring or giving any assistance towards it, will much more bestow upon you things necessary for the support and preservation of that life. Dr. S. Clarke.

26. Behold the fowls &c.] There is no where to be found so just and so elegant a reproof of eagerness and anxiety in worldly pursuits, clothed with so forcible an exhortation to confidence in the goodness of the Creator, as in this passage, ver. 26—30. S. Jenyns.

27. Which of you by taking thought &c.] And, after all, He adds, This immoderate carefulness is useless as well as unnecessary; "for which of you," &c. Dr. Doddridge.

28. — Consider the lilies of the field,] There is reason to suppose that the "lily of the fields" mentioned by our Saviour is the Amaryllis lutea, or autumnal Narcissus. This flower is described they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin:

Anno DOMINI 31.

29 And yet I say unto you, That even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these.

30 Wherefore, if God so clothe the grass of the field, which to day is, and to morrow is cast into the oven, shall he not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith?

31 Therefore take no thought, saying, What shall we eat? or, What shall we drink? or, Wherewithal shall we be clothed?

32 (For after all these things do the Gentiles seek:) for your heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things.

33 But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you.

34 Take therefore no thought for the morrow: for the morrow shall take thought for the things of itself. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof.

Anno DOMINI 31.

CHAP. VII.

1 Christ ending his sermon in the mount, reproveth rash judgment, 6 forbiddeth to cast holy things to dogs, 7 exhorteth to prayer, 13 to enter in at the strait gate, 15 to beware of false prophets, 21 not to be hearers, but doers of the word: 24 like houses builded on a rock, 26 and not on the sand.

JUDGE [a] not, that ye be not judged. [a] Luke 6. 37. Rom. 2. 1.

2 For with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged: [b] and with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again. [b] Mark 4. 24. Luke 6. 38.

3 [c] And why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye? [c] Luke 6. 41.

4 Or how wilt thou say to thy brother, by travellers, as appearing in profusion in the fields of the countries in the Levant, and covering them in autumn with a vivid golden brilliancy; so as to admit of a peculiarly apt comparison with Solomon in all his glory. Sir J. E. Smith.

---

30. — grass] The original word comprehends flowers, all that grows in the field or garden. Dr. Hammond.

—— is cast into the oven,] It is usual in Barbary to employ the stalks of flowers, myrtle, rosemary, &c. to heat their ovens. This circumstance affords a clear comment on the words of our Saviour. Dr. Shaw.

—— O ye of little faith?] Ye that are of little faith, if ye distrust His care in thus making provision for you. Dr. Whitby.

33. — seek ye first &c.] We here find clearly explained the whole meaning of this part of the chapter. It is not meant by any of these expressions that we should, in a literal sense, take no thought for our life or the means of supporting it, but that our thoughts are not to be wholly or principally occupied about these things. Christianity forbids no necessary occupations, no reasonable indulgences, no innocent relaxations. It allows us to use the world, provided we abuse it not. All that it requires is, that our liberty degenerate not into licentiousness, our amusements into dissipation, our industry into incessant toil, our carefulness into extreme anxiety and endless solicitude. Bp. Porteus.

—— and his righteousness;] That righteousness which will render you acceptable in His sight. Dr. Whitby. This expression, "the kingdom of God, and His righteousness," comprehends the whole business of religion; our last end, which is eternal life and happiness in another world, and the ways and means to this end, which is righteousness, that universal practice of virtue which God requires of us, and of which He Himself is to us a pattern and an example. When we are required to seek these, we are required to maintain a fixed design and resolution as to the end, incessant care and diligence as to the means, and to display an earnest zeal and persevering patience in the pursuit. But we are also required to seek these first, that is, to make them the main and principal design of our lives, so as to take place of every thing else in our esteem and affection, in our aim and endeavour; in comparison of these, we are to mind nothing else, neither the comforts and conveniencies, nor even the necessaries of life. Abp. Tillotson.

—— and all these things shall be added unto you.] From this promise we reasonably infer, that, generally speaking, God will bless the endeavours of the righteous, and of those that trust in Him; that when this happens otherwise, as sometimes must be the case, we may conclude, that what a righteous man loses on account of his religion, will, by the care of Providence, be made good to him in some other way; and that, at all events, his reward hereafter will be so much greater for any losses he may sustain here. Dr. S. Clarke.

34. Take therefore no thought for the morrow:] See note at ver. 25. By "the morrow" is not meant the very next day only, but, according to the import of the Eastern phrase, any future time, at what distance soever. Bp. Atterbury.

—— Sufficient unto the day &c.] Sufficient to the present time are the present troubles of life, and God would not have us add to them by an unreasonable solicitousness for the future. Dr. S. Clarke.

Chap. VII. ver. 1. Judge not,] Severely; and without charity or mercy, "that ye be not judged" accordingly, James ii. 13. Dr. Whitby. That ye be not judged by other men, and by God when He comes to judgment. Dr. Hammond.

This precept is directed against the practice of private persons judging one another in thought or in word, without reason, without grounds, without evidence, and perhaps against it, unadvisedly, unjustly, and uncharitably; charging men with faults which they have never really committed, and magnifying what they have; aggravating every inconsiderable blemish, and spreading a little blot over a whole character. Dr. J. Balguy.

2. For with what judgment &c.] For, in this respect, He adds, ye will find, that, according to the judgment with which ye judge others, ye shall be judged; and, by that very measure which ye mete to them, it shall be measured back to you. God and man will make great allowances to the character of the candid and benevolent; but those, who have showed no mercy, must expect judgment without mercy; nor can they deny the equity of such treatment, Jam. ii. 13. Dr. Doddridge.

3. — why beholdest thou the mote &c.] This expression is taken from a proverb common among the Jews at that time. Dr. Hammond. By "mote" is represented a small fault; by "beam," a great one. Bp. Pearce.

4. — how wilt thou say] How, without shame and self-condemnation, wilt thou say, &c. Dr. Whitby. By these expressions of our Lord, it is most plainly intimated that men, who themselves are grievous sinners, are by no means proper persons to be hasty and severe in reproving those who at the worst are but their own resemblance; and that the true way to reform mankind, is for each man to look at home, and begin with reforming himself. How much better were it to employ ourselves in publishing the praises of God, and vindicating the innocence of our abused brethren; in setting every action in its most advantageous light, and pouring balm into the many bleeding reputations, which have been wounded deep by artificial malice, and words which

Anno DOMINI 31.

Let me pull out the mote out of thine eye; and, behold, a beam is in thine own eye?

5 Thou hypocrite, first cast out the beam out of thine own eye; and then shalt thou see clearly to cast out the mote out of thy brother's eye.

6 ¶ Give not that which is holy unto the dogs, neither cast ye your pearls before swine, lest they trample them under their feet, and turn again and rend you.

[d] Chap. 21. 22. Mark 11. 24. Luke 11. 9. John 16. 24. James 1. 5, 6.

7 ¶ [d] Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you:

8 For every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened.

9 Or what man is there of you, whom if his son ask bread, will he give him a stone?

Anno DOMINI 31.

10 Or if he ask a fish, will he give him a serpent?

11 If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your Father which is in heaven give good things to them that ask him?

12 Therefore all things [e] whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them: for this is the law and the prophets.

[e] Luke 6. 31.

13 ¶ [f] Enter ye in at the strait gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat:

[f] Luke 13. 24.

14 ‖ Because strait is the gate, and nar-

‖ Or, How.

---

are "very swords!" Thus should we best promote peace, goodness, and charity in this world, and secure to ourselves favour at that great and terrible day, when by our words, as well as actions, we shall be justified or condemned, and when every hard uncharitable thought even shall be placed to our account. Dean Stanhope.

6. Give not that which is holy &c.] That is, continue not to preach the Gospel to those whom you find refractory, and pertinaciously confirmed in their infidelity, and so addicted to their evil habits, that they will rather revile and persecute you on that account, than hearken unto you. Dr. Whitby.

7. Ask, and it shall be given you; &c.] Apply yourselves to God in hearty prayer for His assistance; which, if ye do with faith, constancy, and importunity, ye shall certainly obtain what you desire; at least so far, and in such manner and degree as is needful for you. Dr. S. Clarke.

What a fund of encouragement is here for all manner of virtue, and particularly for devotion, that we may be fit objects of God's gracious care and providence; when we reflect that every petition of a good man is heard and regarded by Him, who holds the reins of nature in His hand. When God, from His throne of celestial glory, issues out that uncontrollable command, to which all events are subject, the desires of humble pious Christians are not overlooked by Him. The good man's prayer is among the reasons by which the Omnipotent is moved in the administration of the universe. How little is all earthly greatness! How low and impotent the proudest monarchs, if compared with the poorest person in the world, who leads but a good life! For their influence, even in their highest prosperity, is only among weak men like themselves; but the poor man's prayer pierceth the clouds; and, weak and contemptible as he seems, he can draw down the host of heaven, and arm the Almighty in his defence, so long as he can but utter his wants, or turn the thoughts of his heart to God. Dr. Ogden.

9. — what man is there of you,] There is an emphasis here in the word "man," illustrating with greater energy the goodness of the heavenly Father from the conduct of even human fathers with all their imperfections. Dr. Campbell.

12. Therefore] The word translated "therefore" does not necessarily connect these words with the former: it is often merely an expletive, and marks the passing from one subject to another. Dr. Whitby.

—— all things whatsoever &c.] This is that great rule wherein is contained our whole duty towards our neighbour. Dr. S. Clarke.

This precept contains the concentrated essence of all ethicks; it is the vigorous root from which every branch of moral duty towards each other may be derived. Bp. Watson.

To the end that all Christians may steer with innocence through all the dangers of social life, it is greatly incumbent on them to regulate their conduct by this precept in their continual intercourse with each other, to apply it in their daily self-examinations, in the solemn preparations of their hearts for the Lord's supper, begging of God, as our Redeemer has commanded, that pardon for their many transgressions of this, and all His holy laws, and that grace to observe it better for the future, which their failures and weakness render so needful; giving glory to Him, and humbly taking comfort to themselves, when their endeavours have proved successful. We must all resolve to obey this precept conscientiously, if we regard our present and future happiness, if we desire to avoid the bad opinion of those around us, who will unanimously censure our transgression of so plain a rule, the reproaches of our own hearts, of which it is an obvious dictate, or the final condemnation of Him, who "is greater than our heart, and knoweth all things," 1 John iii. 20. Abp. Secker.

This rule, which makes what we desire of other men the measure of our dealing towards them, is to be understood not of vicious and excessive desires, but of such only as are fit and reasonable: such requests as we can, in our calmest thoughts, justify to ourselves; such as, we are sure, may be made without indecency, and cannot be refused without inhumanity. Under this necessary limitation, the precept of the text may thus be understood, Put thyself into such a man's condition, and consider what treatment, what favours, in that case, thou mightest fairly and justly expect from him; and be thou fair to deal with him according to those thy just and regular expectations. Bp. Atterbury.

—— for this is the law and the prophets.] That is, the whole object of the Law and the Prophets, as far as they concern our conduct towards others, was to inculcate that same equitable behaviour towards our brethren, which our Saviour here recommended. We must not interpret this expression as if it implied, that religion consists wholly in behaving justly and kindly to our fellow creatures, and that, beyond this, no other duty was required at our hands. We have, besides this, duties owing to our Creator and Redeemer, of love, reverence, and obedience, of affection, faith, and gratitude; duties to ourselves, of discipline and self-government over our corrupt propensities and irregular desires. Bp. Porteus.

13. — strait gate:] This metaphor seems taken from the custom which prevailed at marriage feasts, of having a gate designedly made narrow, through which those who were bidden might enter, but which might exclude those who were not bidden. Dr. Whitby.

Our Lord here represents, by figurative expressions, how much the generality of men are disposed to follow errour, and how small a portion pursue truth, and attach themselves to it in spite of the difficulties which it is necessary to surmount. Beausobre.

Anno DOMINI 31.

row is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it.

15 ¶ Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves.

16 Ye shall know them by their fruits. [g] Do men gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles?

[g] Luke 6. 43.

17 Even so every good tree bringeth forth good fruit; but a corrupt tree bringeth forth evil fruit.

18 A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit, neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit.

[h] Chap. 3. 10.

19 [h] Every tree that bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down, and cast into the fire.

20 Wherefore by their fruits ye shall know them.

21 ¶ Not every one that saith unto me, [i] Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven.

[i] Rom. 2. 13. James 1. 22.

22 Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name? and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works?

Anno DOMINI 31.

23 And then will I profess unto them, [k] I never knew you: [l] depart from me, ye that work iniquity.

[k] Luke 13. 27.
[l] Ps. 6. 8.

24 ¶ Therefore [m] whosoever heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them, I will liken him unto a wise man, which built his house upon a rock:

[m] Luke 6. 47.

25 And the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell not: for it was founded upon a rock.

26 And every one that heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them not, shall be likened unto a foolish man, which built his house upon the sand:

27 And the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell: and great was the fall of it.

28 And it came to pass, when Jesus had ended these sayings, [n] the people were astonished at his doctrine:

[n] Mark 1. 22. Luke 4. 32.

29 For he taught them as one having authority, and not as the scribes.

---

15. Beware of false prophets,] You will be in danger, He says, of being seduced from the way to life, by the designing craftiness of some bad men, who, personating teachers and promoters of truth and virtue, do in reality design the overthrow of both. Dean Stanhope.

16. Ye shall know them by their fruits.] But in time their own wicked practices, and the pernicious consequences of their principles, will discover what they are. Dean Stanhope.

18. A good tree cannot &c.] That is, while it continues such; but both the bad and the good admit of future change. From this verse some persons have made two false inferences, both equally false, and remote from our Saviour's true meaning: the one, that a person who is once (in a peculiar sense) regenerate can never cease to be so; the other, that a person who is not regenerate can do nothing that is good. Dr. Whitby.

21. Not every one &c.] It is not the bare profession or the teaching of My Gospel that shall carry any man to heaven, but the conscientious and diligent observance of the rules of life laid down here. Dean Stanhope. No hopes are to be built on profession alone; good practice is the only foundation that can support us, chap. viii. 12. Bp. Mann.

Our Lord promises blessedness to none but those who actually live in the practice of those Christian graces and virtues, which are particularly mentioned by Him in the beginning of His excellent sermon on the mount; of humility and repentance, of meekness and righteousness, mercifulness, purity, and peaceableness, patience under persecution, and sufferings for righteousness sake. Abp. Tillotson. Nothing can more clearly follow from this and other declarations of our Lord, than that there is in the Christian scheme an inseparable connexion between faith and good works. Nothing is more undeniable, than that no degree of persuasion, desire, expectation or dependence, will be accepted by God, without a fixed and prevailing resolution of sincere and holy obedience. Dr. Graves. It is very usual with the human mind to substitute forwardness and fervency in a particular cause, for the merit of general and regular morality: and it is natural and politick also, in the leader of a sect or party, to encourage such a disposition in his followers. Christ did not overlook this turn of thought; yet, though avowedly placing Himself at the head of a new institution, He notices it only to condemn it, ver. 21—23. So far was the Author of Christianity from courting the attachment of His followers by any sacrifice of principle, or by a condescension to the errours which even zeal in His service might have inspired. This was a proof both of sincerity and judgment. Archdeacon Paley.

22, 23. Many will say to me in that day, &c.] Many will say to Me in the day of judgment, Lord, have we not embraced Thy true religion, and taught and preached it to others? And have we not had so great faith, as even to cast out devils and work miracles in Thy name? Wilt Thou not therefore now receive us, and acknowledge us for Thy true disciples? But I will reject them, saying, Notwithstanding ye have done all these things, yet, since in your lives and conversations ye did not obey My commandments, I never looked upon you as My true disciples, and do not now acknowledge or approve you; "depart from Me," &c. Dr. S. Clarke.

27. —the floods came,] In the hilly country of Judea the floods were extremely violent.

—— and great was the fall of it.] A lively emblem of the ruin which will one day overwhelm the unhappy man, who trusts to an outward profession and form of godliness, when he does not sincerely and practically regard it. Dr. Doddridge.

28. —the people were astonished &c.] Both the matter and the manner of our Saviour's teaching were infinitely beyond every thing they had ever heard before. He did not, like the heathen philosophers, entertain His hearers with dry metaphysical discourses, nor did He, like the Jewish rabbies, content Himself with dealing out ceremonies and traditions. He drew off their attention from these trivial things to the greatest and noblest objects. The morality He taught was the purest, the soundest, the sublimest, the most perfect, that had ever before entered into the imagination, or proceeded from the lips, of man. And this He delivered in a manner the most striking and impressive; in short, sententious, solemn, weighty rules and maxims, or in familiar, natural, affecting, similitudes and parables. With a consummate knowledge too of the human heart, He detected every irregular desire before it ripened into action. Bp. Porteus.

29. —as one having authority,] Other teachers of morality had

Anno DOMINI 31.

CHAP. VIII.

2 Christ cleanseth the leper, 5 healeth the centurion's servant, 14 Peter's mother in law, 16 and many other diseased: 18 sheweth how he is to be followed: 23 stilleth the tempest on the sea, 28 driveth the devils out of two men possessed, 31 and suffereth them to go into the swine.

WHEN he was come down from the mountain, great multitudes followed him.

[a] Mark 1. 40. Luke 5. 12. 2 [a]And, behold, there came a leper and worshipped him, saying, Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean.

3 And Jesus put forth his hand, and touched him, saying, I will; be thou clean. And immediately his leprosy was cleansed.

4 And Jesus saith unto him, See thou tell no man; but go thy way, shew thyself [b] Lev. 14. 4. to the priest, and offer the gift that [b]Moses commanded, for a testimony unto them.

[c] Luke 7. 1. 5 ¶ [c]And when Jesus was entered into Capernaum, there came unto him a centurion, beseeching him,

Anno DOMINI 31.

6 And saying, Lord, my servant lieth at home sick of the palsy, grievously tormented.

7 And Jesus saith unto him, I will come and heal him.

8 The centurion answered and said, Lord, I am not worthy that thou shouldest come under my roof: but speak the word only, and my servant shall be healed.

9 For I am a man under authority, having soldiers under me: and I say to this man, Go, and he goeth; and to another, Come, and he cometh; and to my servant, Do this, and he doeth it.

10 When Jesus heard it, he marvelled, and said to them that followed, Verily I say unto you, I have not found so great faith, no, not in Israel.

---

no means of enforcing their advice; but our great Lawgiver's precepts are all Divine commands. He spoke in the name of God; He called Himself the Son of God. He spoke in a tone of superiority and authority, which no one before had the courage or the right to assume; and, finally, He enforced all that He taught by the most solemn and awful sanctions, by a promise of eternal happiness to those who obeyed Him, and a denunciation of the most tremendous punishment to those who rejected Him. Bp. Porteus.

——and not as the scribes.] When the scribes delivered their doctrines to the people, they delivered them expressly as the doctrines of men, grounding them on the authority of their distinguished doctors; Christ, on the contrary, spake boldly from Himself, delivering His commands as the commands of God. Grotius.

Chap. VIII. ver. 2. —there came a leper] See notes at Levit. xiii. 2.

——and worshipped him,] Kneeling, Mark i. 40; and falling down before Him, Luke v. 12. Dr. Whitby.

3. —I will; be thou clean.] In addition to the cure itself, the manner in which our Saviour performed it proved that all the fulness of the Godhead dwelt in Him: it was instantaneous, with a touch and a few words, and those the most dignified and sublime that can be imagined, "I will; be thou clean." This was plainly the language, as well as the act of God. Bp. Porteus.

4. —See thou tell no man;] Jesus seems to have commanded secrecy on this and other similar occasions, (chap. ix. 30; xii. 16,) because His time of suffering was not yet come, chap. xxvi. 18; lest the rulers among the Jews, &c. should conspire and put Him to death, before He had given sufficient proofs of His Divine mission, and had sufficiently instructed His disciples in His doctrine. Bp. Pearce. Our Lord's injunction of secrecy to this leper and to others, was founded in consummate prudence. For the purposes of His Divine mission, it was necessary that He should perform many miracles to command attention, and hold many discourses to instruct the multitude, and discipline or train His disciples for their future functions. Hence, in the beginning of His ministry especially, He was obliged to keep Himself as private as its nature would admit, in order to avoid giving umbrage to the ruling powers by a premature celebrity. In this particular instance of the leper, had the priests at Jerusalem known that the cure was miraculous, they might through envy have refused to give him the certificate of his cure, which was necessary as a testimony to his family and friends, to re-admit him into society. Dr. Hales.

It should be observed, that when our Saviour performs the miracle among the heathens, or upon those who dwelt among them, He does not impose silence on the person healed, but, on the contrary, sometimes bids them declare what God had done for them; see Mark v. 19. We may therefore conclude, that His reasons for giving this injunction were peculiar to the Jewish nation: and they appear to have been principally two; the one, that He might avoid the malice of the scribes, Pharisees, and Herodians against Him, who, far from being convinced by His miracles, often consulted how they might entrap Him by His words, and who might have cut Him off before the purpose of His mission was fulfilled, if He had not acted with caution; the other, that he might not indulge the conceit which had obtained among many of the Jews, that their Messiah was to be a temporal king; as the consequence might have been, that they would attempt by tumults and seditions to raise Him to the kingdom. See John vi. 15. Dr. Whitby. See also notes at Mark i. 44.

——offer the gift &c.] As is prescribed at Levit. xiv. 4.

——for a testimony unto them.] The meaning either is, for a proof that thou art cleansed of the leprosy, or else that, by pronouncing thee clean, they and all may have testimony that I am Christ. Dr. Whitby.

We have here a striking proof of our Lord's humility and of His obedience. At the same time that He enjoined the man to keep secret the astonishing miracle He had wrought, He commanded him to comply with the injunctions prescribed by the law; which, while it shewed His disposition to fulfil all righteousness, established the truth of the miracle beyond all controversy, by making the priest himself the judge of the reality of the cure. Bp. Porteus.

5. —a centurion,] A captain or commander of a hundred soldiers. Dr. Hammond.

8. —Lord, I am not worthy &c.] What a remarkable feature in the character of this centurion is his humility! How completely this most amiable of human virtues had taken possession of his soul, is evident from the manner in which he now solicits our Saviour for the cure; how cautious is he, how modest, how diffident, how fearful of offending, even whilst he was only begging an act of kindness for another! Bp. Porteus.

9. —I am a man &c.] His meaning is, If I, who am but an inferior officer in an army, can give the word of command, and be immediately obeyed by my servants, how much more mayest Thou, to whom God hath committed such power and authority, say but a word, and what Thou sayest shall be effected! Dr. S. Clarke. The orders that I give are executed at a distance: how much more certainly and perfectly will Thine be obeyed, who canst command all the powers of nature! Bp. Mann.

10. —I have not found so great faith, no, not in Israel.] Not even among the Jews. The centurion was a Roman, and not a

Anno DOMINI 31.

11 And I say unto you, That many shall come from the east and west, and shall sit down with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, in the kingdom of heaven.

12 But the children of the kingdom shall be cast out into outer darkness: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

13 And Jesus said unto the centurion, Go thy way; and as thou hast believed, so be it done unto thee. And his servant was healed in the selfsame hour.

[d] Mark 1. 29. Luke 4. 38.

14 ¶ [d] And when Jesus was come into Peter's house, he saw his wife's mother laid, and sick of a fever.

15 And he touched her hand, and the fever left her: and she arose, and ministered unto them.

[e] Mark 1. 32. Luke 4. 40.

16 ¶ [e] When the even was come, they brought unto him many that were possessed with devils: and he cast out the spirits with his word, and healed all that were sick:

Anno DOMINI 31.

17 That it might be fulfilled which was spoken by Esaias the prophet, saying, [f] Himself took our infirmities, and bare our sicknesses.

[f] Isai. 53. 4. 1 Pet. 2. 24.

18 ¶ Now when Jesus saw great multitudes about him, he gave commandment to depart unto the other side.

19 [g] And a certain scribe came, and said unto him, Master, I will follow thee whithersoever thou goest.

[g] Luke 9. 57.

20 And Jesus saith unto him, The foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests; but the Son of man hath not where to lay his head.

Jew by religion, though probably he was a half convert, or what the Jews called a proselyte of the gate, Luke vii. 5. Bp. Pearce.

In explanation of the latter term, it should be mentioned, that the proselytes to the Jewish religion were of two sorts. Some, called "proselytes of the gate," because they were allowed to live among the children of Israel within their gates, and were not obliged to observe the ceremonial law, but only to forsake idolatry and to observe certain precepts. Others, called "proselytes of the covenant," were received into the Jewish covenant by circumcision, and were bound to observe the whole ceremonial law. Beausobre.

The reason of the high encomium bestowed on the centurion by our Saviour was, because he reasoned himself into a belief of our Lord's power to work miracles, even at a distance; because he who had been bred up in the principles of heathenism, and whose only guide was the light of nature, did notwithstanding freely submit himself to sufficient evidence, and was induced, by the accounts he had received of our Saviour's doctrines and miracles, to acknowledge that He was a Divine person. Whereas the Jews, to whom He was first and principally sent, who from their infancy were instructed in the Holy Scriptures, in which were such plain and express promises of the Messiah, and who actually did expect His coming about that time, suffered themselves to be so blinded by their prejudices and passions, that neither the unspotted sanctity of His life, the excellence of His doctrine, nor the repeated and astonishing miracles which He wrought, could make the slightest impression on the greater part of that stubborn people. Bp. Porteus.

11. —many shall come from the east &c.] Multitudes from all parts of the world shall come in, and believe on Christ, partake of this spiritual feast, and be made to sit down with Abraham the father of the faithful, and the rest of the Patriarchs of the Jewish nation. Dr. Hammond.

——sit down] "Lie down" literally. Allusion is here made to a nuptial banquet, where the guests are entertained by the master of the feast: the Jews at this time followed the custom, so familiar to the Greeks and Romans, of lying down in a recumbent posture at their meals, instead of sitting at them. Dr. Whitby. See the note at Amos ii. 8.

12. —the children of the kingdom] The Jews, for whom the kingdom of heaven, or the Gospel, was primarily designed, and to whom it was accordingly first preached. Bp. Pearce.

——into outer darkness:] The nuptial banquets were usually made in the night, and celebrated with many torches and various lights; hence the expression for those who were excluded, being "in outer darkness," is used to designate the unhappy state of those who were excluded from the kingdom of heaven. Dr. Whitby.

13. —and as thou hast believed, so be it done unto thee.] The faith of the master here contributes to the cure of the servant, only as being the motive of our Lord's prompt interference. And in every instance where we find such faith required, it is plain from the history, that the person of whom it was required must have had opportunities of being fully assured of our Lord's supernatural power, and gracious mercy in exerting it. When men improved these opportunities with serious attention, when they judged from what they saw and heard with fairness and candour, they could not fail of receiving a full conviction of our Lord's Divine character; and if, in consequence of this conviction, they applied to Him with seriousness and humility, He never refused to lend a pitying ear, and extend a saving arm: thus He rewarded the sincere believer, while He displayed a proof of His power to the unconverted. Dr. Graves.

——in the selfsame hour.] At the same instant of time. Dr. Campbell.

15. —and ministered unto them.] This circumstance seems mentioned as a proof of the completeness and speediness of the cure. Bp. Pearce.

16. When the even was come,] It is well known that the Jews began their day from the evening, at sunset. It was now the even, when the sabbath day was concluded, and when, in consequence, the Jews were under no apprehension of violating it. Lamy. St. Luke expresses, "when the sun was setting," Luke iv. 40.

——possessed with devils:] See note at chap. iv. 24.

17. —Himself took our infirmities,] The Jews applied this expression of the Prophet to the curing their diseases, as well as procuring remission of their sins; and as Christ, by healing diseases, took away the temporal punishment of sin, we may consider this prophecy as twice fulfilled; when, by taking away their diseases, He took away the temporal punishment of their sins; and when, by suffering on the cross, He procured a full remission of their guilt. Dr. Whitby.

18. —unto the other side.] On the other side of the lake Gennesareth, called also the sea of Tiberias. Jesus went to the country of the Gergesenes, ver. 28, or of the Gadarenes, Mark v. 1. This country was in Perea, on the south-east side of the lake. Bp. Pearce.

19. —Master, I will follow thee] It is probable that the scribe, on seeing our Lord's miracles, was desirous of attaching himself to Him, under the hope of sharing His gain and honours; but He, by declaring His poverty, (ver. 20,) instantly repressed his interested views. Grotius.

20. —the Son of man] This is the first time that Jesus is recorded, as giving to Himself this title; alluding, as is probable, to what Daniel says in chap. vii. 13, as appears from Matt. xxvi. 64. Bp. Pearce. Our Lord frequently speaks of Himself by this title, but we find it applied to Him by no one else, except by the

Anno DOMINI 31.

21 And another of his disciples said unto him, Lord, suffer me first to go and bury my father.

22 But Jesus said unto him, Follow me; and let the dead bury their dead.

23 ¶ And when he was entered into a ship, his disciples followed him.

h Mark 4. 37. Luke 8. 23.

24 h And, behold, there arose a great tempest in the sea, insomuch that the ship was covered with the waves: but he was asleep.

25 And his disciples came to him, and awoke him, saying, Lord, save us: we perish.

26 And he saith unto them, Why are ye fearful, O ye of little faith? Then he arose, and rebuked the winds and the sea; and there was a great calm.

27 But the men marvelled, saying, What manner of man is this, that even the winds and the sea obey him!

Anno DOMINI 31.

28 ¶ i And when he was come to the other side into the country of the Gergesenes, there met him two possessed with devils, coming out of the tombs, exceeding fierce, so that no man might pass by that way.

i Mark 5. 1. Luke 8. 26.

29 And, behold, they cried out, saying, What have we to do with thee, Jesus, thou Son of God? art thou come hither to torment us before the time?

30 And there was a good way off from them an herd of many swine feeding.

31 So the devils besought him, saying, If thou cast us out, suffer us to go away into the herd of swine.

32 And he said unto them, Go. And when they were come out, they went into first martyr, St. Stephen, Acts vii. 56. This shews that it is an expression of humility, and has reference to the abasement of His divine nature in the human. He seems to have used it to counteract the false opinion of the Jews concerning the nature of His kingdom, and to intimate to them that He was to arrive at His glory by passing through suffering and humiliation. Beausobre.

---

This title of "Son of man," is in all the Gospels found under the peculiar circumstances of being applied by Christ to Himself, but of never being used of Him, or towards Him, by any other person. It occurs seventeen times in St. Matthew's Gospel, twelve times in St. Mark, twenty-one times in St. Luke, and eleven times in St. John, and always with this restriction. Archdeacon Paley.

——hath not where to lay his head.] The lowly, destitute, and suffering condition of our Lord, renders His example to mankind perfect, and shews His virtues in their truest lustre, while it silences those pleas which self-love would otherwise have suggested. Had He lived in worldly prosperity, however conspicuous His virtues might have been, His example would have extended very little way. The poor and unfortunate would then have thought their own hard circumstances a sufficient excuse for not attempting to imitate His example. But what pretence is now left to any of us? Are we more wretched than our Master? Are we poor and therefore discontented? Let us look to Him who had not "where to lay His head," and yet was contented, and paid a ready obedience to His God. Bp. Sherlock.

22. —let the dead &c.] "Let the dead" in trespasses and sins, &c. Let those, who are unconcerned for the things of God, perform such offices of interring the dead; but do thou, who hast begun to follow Me, and to attend upon the doctrine of the kingdom of God, go on without interruption in that work. Dr. Whitby. It is probably a proverbial expression, Let worldly-minded men mind worldly things. Bp. Pearce.

Let the spiritually dead perform the office of burying those who are naturally dead. At present, your duty to preach the Gospel supersedes all other duties. Abp. Newcome.

24. —insomuch that the ship was covered with the waves:] So that the waves broke over the ship.

A strong current is caused in the lake of Gennesareth, by the river Jordan passing through the midst of it; and when this is opposed by contrary winds, which blow here with the force of a hurricane from the south-east, sweeping from the mountains into the lake, a boisterous sea is instantly raised, which the small vessels of the country are ill qualified to resist. Dr. E. D. Clarke.

26. —there was a great calm.] Not only the wind was laid, but the surface of the sea was smooth and level, as the word properly signifies; whereas, commonly after a storm, the water of the sea is for a long time in motion. This circumstance assists in shewing the full force of the miraculous power which was exerted. Bp. Pearce.

27. —even the winds and the sea obey him!] Since it is often mentioned as the peculiar property of God, "to still the noise of the seas," Ps. lxv. 7; cvii. 25, 29; it is not to be wondered that Christ's disciples should conceive there must be a Divine power in Him, who could perform so great a miracle. Dr. Whitby.

28. —into the country of the Gergesenes,] This country is called "the country of the Gadarenes" by St. Mark, (chap. v. 1,) and St. Luke, (chap. viii. 26,) because it lay contiguous to, or between, the two cities of Gergesa and Gadara, both within the district of Decapolis. Josephus informs us, that Gadara was a very rich city, and of chief note on that side of the country; also that Gergesa was a place of some importance. Dr. Wells.

"The ancient Gergesa, or Gerasa, can be no other than the modern Jerrash. The ruins of this town bear very striking marks of ancient splendour. I observed there remains of several publick buildings, distinguished by a very beautiful style of architecture; I found two amphitheatres, solid built of marble; some palaces, and three temples; also a whole street ornamented on both sides with a row of marble columns of the Corinthian order." Seetzen.

——two possessed with devils,] "A man which had devils," Luke viii. 27; see note there. Respecting the "possessed with devils," see the note on Matt. iv. 24.

——coming out of the tombs,] The tombs were often caves dug out of the rocks, where persons could find shelter; and thus robbers, as Josephus informs us, were accustomed to lurk there. Dr. Macknight.

Along the borders of the lake of Gennesareth may still be seen the remains of those ancient tombs, hewn by the earliest inhabitants of Galilee, in the rocks which face the water. Their existence at the present day, although not noticed by travellers in general, offers strong internal evidence of the accuracy of the Evangelist, who has recorded the transaction of the demoniacks dwelling among the tombs. Dr. E. D. Clarke.

29. —What have we to do with thee,] Rather, What hast Thou to do with us. Bp. Pearce.

——to torment us] That is, by denying to wicked spirits the power of working evil; to confine them in the abyss, Luke viii. 31. Grotius.

30. —a good way off] At some distance. Dr. Campbell.

31. —suffer us to go away &c.] Thus He did not send the devils into the herd of swine, but permitted them to go. Dr. Whitby.

Anno DOMINI 31.

the herd of swine: and, behold, the whole herd of swine ran violently down a steep place into the sea, and perished in the waters.

33 And they that kept them fled, and went their ways into the city, and told every thing, and what was befallen to the possessed of the devils.

34 And, behold, the whole city came out to meet Jesus: and when they saw him, they besought him that he would depart out of their coasts.

CHAP. IX.

2 Christ curing one sick of the palsy, 9 calleth Matthew from the receipt of custom, 10 eateth with publicans and sinners, 14 defendeth his disciples for not fasting, 20 cureth the bloody issue, 23 raiseth from death Jairus' daughter, 27 giveth sight to two blind men, 32 healeth a dumb man possessed of a devil, 36 and hath compassion of the multitude.

AND he entered into a ship, and passed over, and came into his own city. Anno DOMINI 31.

2 [a] And, behold, they brought to him a man sick of the palsy, lying on a bed: and Jesus seeing their faith said unto the sick of the palsy; Son, be of good cheer; thy sins be forgiven thee. [a] Mark 2.3. Luke 5. 18.

3 And, behold, certain of the scribes said within themselves, This man blasphemeth.

4 And Jesus knowing their thoughts said, Wherefore think ye evil in your hearts?

5 For whether is easier, to say, Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say, Arise, and walk?

6 But that ye may know that the Son of man hath power on earth to forgive sins, (then saith he to the sick of the palsy,) Arise, take up thy bed, and go unto thine house.

---

32. — and perished in the waters.] This is the only miracle recorded to have been wrought by our Lord, to the damage of any individuals; and though the nature of the guilt of the Gergesenes is not distinctly mentioned, we may be sure it must have been great, to require such a punishment. For God is infinitely wise, just, and holy, and can never act but for some wise, just, and holy purpose, whether that purpose be by us discoverable or not. Bp. Mann.

It is not improbable that these swine were kept by Jews, contrary to their law; and for the violation of this law they might justly incur a temporal punishment. Or, if the Gadarenes were heathens, their city was the metropolis of Perea, a country inhabited by disciples of Moses; and their conduct in keeping swine, being a contempt of the national religion, founded on Divine authority, afforded a just ground for punishment. Abp. Newcome. Christ could not have encouraged the notion of real possessions more than by His conduct on this occasion: and it is highly probable that this extraordinary occurrence was permitted chiefly to prove the reality of these possessions. Dr. Doddridge.

34. — they besought him that he would depart] It hence appears how unworthy these Gadarenes were of so great a blessing as the presence of our Saviour. Instead of feeling gratitude and joy at having One among them, who could command the infernal legions as He pleased, they seem only to have regarded their worldly profit in the loss of the herd of swine, and in consequence besought Him to depart from their coasts. Bragge. It is said at Luke viii. 37, "They were taken with great fear," at the presence of so extraordinary a Person; or they were afraid of sustaining further losses from Him. Beausobre.

Chap. IX. ver. 1. — passed over, — his own city.] Passed over the lake of Gennesareth, and came to Capernaum, Mark ii. 1, where He dwelt, Matt. iv. 13. Dr. Whitby.

2. — seeing their faith] In the account of this miracle given by St. Mark, chap. ii. 4, and by St. Luke, chap. v. 18, it is related, that, on account of the multitude, the friends of the sick man let him through the roof of the house in his couch. See note at Mark ii. 4. Nothing could better express the vigour of their faith; that is, their eager desire of obtaining, and their confident expectation of receiving a cure, from the power and goodness of Christ, of which they had entertained so full a persuasion. And therefore He, who never wanted inclination to pity and relieve the distressed, and only waited till men were duly qualified to receive the mercies which He was always ready to bestow, "seeing their faith," that is, finding them capable of such faith, and judging this a fit opportunity for exercising His Divine compassion, granted their request, and healed the distemper presently. Dean Stanhope.

—— thy sins be forgiven] The sins, for which thou wast punished by this disease, are forgiven, and the effect of them shall be removed. Bp. Mann. Our Saviour speaks, not of the eternal, but of the temporal, punishment inflicted for sin. Dr. Whitby.

Like an able and experienced physician, He strikes directly at the root, and sets Himself to remove the cause of the malady, which was sin. Had man never committed sin, he had never known disease. Sickness is a part of the curse inflicted on disobedience. Bp. Horne.

3. — This man blasphemeth.] By undertaking to forgive sins, which God alone has authority to do. Dr. S. Clarke.

True it is that God only can forgive sins. But why then was not the only just and right conclusion drawn, that He who did forgive them by His own power, and who demonstrated to the senses of those who were present, His ability to do so, by removing the pains and penalties inflicted on their account, that He is very God, though He appeared in the form of man; "God manifest in the flesh," to destroy the works of the devil? Bp. Horne.

4. — Jesus knowing their thoughts] To know the thoughts of others, as Christ did on several occasions, (see chap. xii. 25; Mark xii. 15; Luke vi. 8, &c.) is plainly the attribute of God, Ps. cxxxix. 2.

5. — whether is easier, to say, &c.] Both are equally impossible to any one, but a God of Almighty power and infinite mercy, who first made man, and then redeemed him. Bp. Horne.

6. — that the Son of man hath power &c.] It is evident that Christ here speaks of a power inherent in Himself, and not merely of the power of God assisting Him in the same manner as it did the Apostles. Dr. Whitby. The captious Pharisees, upon His releasing the sick man from inward guilt, immediately charged our Lord with blasphemy; that is, an impious dishonour done to God, by sacrilegiously usurping a right peculiar to Him alone. The principle on which this accusation went, our Lord plainly allows; but then He clears Himself of it by this consequence, that, as no power but God's could forgive sins, so none but God's could work this miracle of healing. If therefore He could give them a sensible proof of His divinity in one of the instances, they ought to be satisfied that He had done no more than became Him in the other. Consequently, that He who healed this person's body, not by a ministerial and delegated authority, not by invoking the assistance of God, as the Prophets used to do, but by an inherent authority of His own, who could command all created nature, was that very Lord of soul and body, who, as they

Anno DOMINI 31.

7 And he arose, and departed to his house.

8 But when the multitudes saw it, they marvelled, and glorified God, which had given such power unto men.

[b] Mark 2. 14. Luke 5. 27.

9 ¶ [b] And as Jesus passed forth from thence, he saw a man, named Matthew, sitting at the receipt of custom: and he saith unto him, Follow me. And he arose, and followed him.

10 ¶ And it came to pass, as Jesus sat at meat in the house, behold, many publicans and sinners came and sat down with him and his disciples.

11 And when the Pharisees saw it, they said unto his disciples, Why eateth your Master with publicans and sinners?

12 But when Jesus heard that, he said unto them, They that be whole need not a physician, but they that are sick.

[c] Hos. 6. 6. chap. 12. 7.

13 But go ye and learn what that meaneth, [c] I will have mercy, and not sacrifice: for I am not come to call the righteous, [d] but sinners to repentance.

Anno DOMINI 31.

14 ¶ Then came to him the disciples of John, saying, [e] Why do we and the Pharisees fast oft, but thy disciples fast not?

[a] 1 Tim. 1. 15. [e] Mark 2. 18. Luke 5. 33.

15 And Jesus said unto them, Can the children of the bridechamber mourn, as long as the bridegroom is with them? but the days will come, when the bridegroom shall be taken from them, and then shall they fast.

16 No man putteth a piece of ‖ new cloth unto an old garment, for that which is put in to fill it up taketh from the garment, and the rent is made worse.

‖ Or, raw, or, unwrought cloth.

17 Neither do men put new wine into old bottles: else the bottles break, and the wine runneth out, and the bottles perish: but they put new wine into new bottles, and both are preserved.

[f] Mark 5. 22. Luke 8. 41.

18 ¶ [f] While he spake these things unto them, behold, there came a certain ruler, acknowledged, had alone right to acquit the consciences of men. Dean Stanhope.

---

8. — they marvelled, and glorified God,] What miracle can be more complete, more glorious, than this? What have the Pharisees to say? Do they yet doubt whether this man's sins are forgiven him, and whether God is in Jesus to forgive them? They remain speechless, swelling with malice and envy, neither willing to commend, nor able to find fault: yet the hearts of the common people, more generous and open to conviction, were most sensibly touched at seeing the paralytick leap off his bed—"they marvelled, and glorified God." Bp. Horne.

9. — a man, named Matthew,] See the Preface to this Gospel.

—— at the receipt of custom:] He seems to have sat to receive a certain toll or rate, which was paid at Capernaum by all persons passing over the lake. Dr. Lightfoot.

10. — as Jesus sat at meat in the house,] In the house of Matthew, who, as appears from Luke v. 29, made on the occasion a great feast for Jesus, and invited many of the same corrupt occupation with himself, probably for the purpose of affording them an opportunity of receiving the benefit of conversion, as he had done. Dean Stanhope.

12. — They that be whole &c.] I converse with sinners, He says, for the same reason that physicians visit the sick: the end of My coming into the world is to heal and save men's souls. I therefore justly apply My remedies to such as want and desire them, not to those who think they have no need of them. Bp. Mann.

13. — I will have mercy, and not sacrifice:] See Hosea vi. 6. The words are to be understood not absolutely, but comparatively, "I will have mercy, rather than sacrifice;" for God had commanded sacrifices. Dr. Whitby.

By "mercy" are meant all those instances of kindness to our neighbour, whereby we may promote his advantage; by "sacrifice" the rites and ordinances of the ceremonial law, of which sacrifice was the chief. Dean Stanhope. And the plain meaning of the words is, that, in comparing together the different duties required of us, those which are of moral and natural obligation are most valued by God, and ought to take place of those which are positive and ritual. Abp. Tillotson.

—— I am not come to call the righteous, &c.] The great design of My coming into the world was, "not to call the righteous," but those that have been sinners, to repentance and reformation. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— the righteous,] By "the righteous" we are not here to understand those who were, like the Pharisees, righteous only in their own conceit, but those who had truly reformed their lives, had carefully endeavoured to abstain from all known sins, and set themselves sincerely to perform their whole duty towards God and man. Dr. Whitby.

The word "sinners" in this text imports such persons as live in the customary practice of sin, so that the tenour of their lives is wicked, and who are therefore to be called to that repentance, which consists in the change of their lives from the service of sin to holiness; and therefore, by "the righteous," we are not to understand those who are entirely free from sin—for in this sense there is not a righteous man on the earth—but those who are truly and sincerely righteous, have truly reformed their lives, carefully endeavour to abstain from all known sins, and set themselves sincerely to the performance of their whole duty, both to God and man; and so are righteous and acceptable in the sight of God. Bp. Tomline.

14. — Why do we and the Pharisees &c.] As if they had said, Our master John observes strict rules of abstinence, and appoints us to act like the Pharisees, the strictest sect among the Jews; wherefore do not Thou and Thy disciples use similar abstinence? Dr. Hammond.

15. — the children of the bridechamber] The guests at a marriage feast. Dr. S. Clarke.

16, 17. No man putteth &c.] His general meaning is, All things should be suited to the conditions of the persons, and to the circumstances of the time. As it would be absurd to put a piece of new cloth into an old garment; so it is very improper that My disciples should mix mourning and rejoicing together, by fasting while they have the enjoyment of My immediate presence. And, as it would be absurd to put new wine into old bottles, which will thereby be in great danger of being rent, so it would be very improper to put My disciples on fasting and austerities, while I am giving them the first instructions for their ministry. Dr. S. Clarke. He thought it not fit to impose the burden of fasting on His disciples, when they were not fit for such austerities, and might be tempted by them to fall off from Him. Dr. Whitby.

17. — new wine into old bottles:] See note at Job xxxii. 19. The bottles of the ancients being made of leather, they were liable to burst when old and dry, by the fermentation of new wine. Bp. Pearce.

18. — a certain ruler,] The ruler of the synagogue which was at Nazareth, named Jairus. See Mark v. 22. Dr. Whitby.

The ruler of the synagogue was properly the president of the and worshipped him, saying, My daughter is even now dead: but come and lay thy hand upon her, and she shall live.

Anno DOMINI 31.

19 And Jesus arose, and followed him, and so did his disciples.

20 ¶ And, behold, a woman, which was diseased with an issue of blood twelve years, came behind him, and touched the hem of his garment:

21 For she said within herself, If I may but touch his garment, I shall be whole.

22 But Jesus turned him about, and when he saw her, he said, Daughter, be of good comfort; thy faith hath made thee whole. And the woman was made whole from that hour.

23 And when Jesus came into the ruler's house, and saw the minstrels and the people making a noise,

24 He said unto them, Give place: for the maid is not dead, but sleepeth. And they laughed him to scorn.

25 But when the people were put forth, he went in, and took her by the hand, and the maid arose.

26 And ‖ the fame hereof went abroad into all that land.

Anno DOMINI 31.

27 ¶ And when Jesus departed thence, two blind men followed him, crying, and saying, Thou son of David, have mercy on us.

‖ Or, this fame.

28 And when he was come into the house, the blind men came to him: and Jesus saith unto them, Believe ye that I am able to do this? They said unto him, Yea, Lord.

29 Then touched he their eyes, saying, According to your faith be it unto you.

30 And their eyes were opened; and Jesus straitly charged them, saying, See that no man know it.

31 But they, when they were departed, spread abroad his fame in all that country.

32 ¶ [g] As they went out, behold, they brought to him a dumb man possessed with a devil.

[g] Luke 11. 14.

33 And when the devil was cast out, the dumb spake: and the multitudes marvelled, saying, It was never so seen in Israel.

[h] Chap. 12. 24.

34 But the Pharisees said, [h] He casteth out devils through the prince of the devils.

Mark 3. 22. Luke 11. 15.

---

council, appointed to superintend the concerns of the synagogue; but this name was sometimes given to all the members of this council. See Mark v. 35; Luke viii. 41. Beausobre.

——is even now dead:] "Is by this time dead," as appears from the parallel passage of St. Mark, chap. v. 23, and from the sequel of the story. Dr. Whitby.

20.—and touched the hem of his garment:] She was immediately made whole on touching it, according to Mark v. 29, and Luke viii. 44, where more particulars are related. Bp. Pearce.

——the hem] That fringe of His garment, which the Jews were commanded to wear for a distinction. See Numb. xv. 38; Deut. xxii. 12. The woman, it is probable, was sensible that her distemper was a legal uncleanness, and therefore came behind Him by stealth. Dean Stanhope.

22.—thy faith hath made thee whole.] Thy belief that I could do this, was the occasion of My healing thee. Bp. Mann.

23.—the minstrels and the people &c.] The minstrels or pipers playing mournful tunes, and the people making lamentations with their voices, according to the custom of the Jews when preparing for the funeral of a person deceased. Bp. Pearce.

24.—is not dead, but sleepeth.] Is not so departed, that she shall not return again; her death shall not continue above the space of an ordinary sleep, and she shall, as from a sleep, awake from it. Dr. Hammond.

26. And the fame hereof] "The fame hereof" was so great, because her death was publickly known, the minstrels were assembled, every preparation was made for the funeral, the assertion of our Lord was treated with scorn, and the people were convinced of her actual decease.

27.—Thou son of David,] This is the first time that we read of this title being given to Jesus, except by the angel Gabriel before His birth, Luke i. 32. By this title He was acknowledged to be the Messiah, or Christ, who (as all Jews agreed) was to be the Son of David, chap. xxii. 42, and John vii. 42. And by being the Son of David, Jesus had a right to the title of Messiah, 2 Sam. vii. 13, 16. Bp. Pearce.

30. And their eyes were opened;] We should well observe of how many various kinds were the miracles performed by our Saviour. He made the blind to see, the deaf to hear, the dumb to speak; He cleansed lepers, made the maimed whole, cast out devils, and healed every human malady; He stilled the sea, raised the dead, &c. And, under some of these kinds, His miracles were so numerous, that they exceed the sum of all which are recorded in the Hebrew Scriptures, as performed by God's Prophets. Besides those distinctly transmitted down to us, there are numerous other acts of supernatural power, which are referred to in general terms. The effects too of Christ's miraculous interposition were often, as in the present instance, immediate, and they were lasting. The miracles, again, were, in very many instances, wrought in the most publick manner; and, in general, they had a beneficial tendency, being acts of goodness as well as of power. Thus, in these and many other particulars, their nature and character is such, as to prove the conclusion of St. John, (John xx. 31,) "that He was the Christ, the Son of God." Abp. Newcome.

——See that no man know it.] See notes at chap. viii. 4.

33.—It was never so seen in Israel.] This admiration of the people is extremely natural; for none of their Prophets, not even Moses, had ever equalled Christ in the power and facility of working miracles. Here are four miracles, chiefly of the highest kind, wrought in the course of one afternoon: the infirm woman; the raising of Jairus's daughter from the dead; the cure of the two blind men; and the ejecting of the evil spirit. Dr. Lightfoot.

34.—He casteth out devils through the prince of the devils.] Thus it appears, that those who beheld our Saviour's miracles, did not deny their performance, but, on the contrary, admitted it; though they would not upon their evidence embrace the Gospel, because they conceived this to be contrary to the Mosaick Law, whose obligation their carnal and ambitious views led them to believe was eternal. They therefore contented themselves with asserting, that the miracles of Christ and His Apostles must be ascribed to magical and diabolical agency. But this opinion of their's proves completely that they acknowledged the miracles themselves to have been really performed. In truth, the hostility of the Jewish nation to Christianity from the first, confirms the truth of the Gospel miracles. Had the Jews been universally or even generally converted by them, the sceptick might argue, with some appearance of probability, that the facts had been invented

Anno DOMINI 31.

35 [i] And Jesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing every sickness and every disease among the people.

[i] Mark 6. 6. Luke 13. 22.

36 ¶ [k] But when he saw the multitudes, he was moved with compassion on them, because they ‖ fainted, and were scattered abroad, [l] as sheep having no shepherd.

[k] Mark 6. 34.

‖ Or, were tired and lay down.

37 Then saith he unto his disciples, [m] The harvest truly is plenteous, but the labourers are few;

[l] Numb. 27. 17.

[m] Luke 10. 2.

38 Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth labourers into his harvest.

CHAP. X.

1 Christ sendeth out his twelve apostles, enabling them with power to do miracles, 5 giveth them their charge, teacheth them, 16 comforteth them against persecutions: 40 and promiseth a blessing to those that receive them.

Anno DOMINI 31.

AND [a] when he had called unto him his twelve disciples, he gave them power ‖ against unclean spirits, to cast them out, and to heal all manner of sickness and all manner of disease.

[a] Mark 3. 14. Luke 9. 1.

‖ Or, over.

2 Now the names of the twelve apostles are these; The first, Simon, who is called Peter, and Andrew his brother; James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother;

3 Philip, and Bartholomew; Thomas, and Matthew the publican; James the son of Alpheus, and Lebbeus, whose surname was Thaddeus;

4 Simon the Canaanite, and Judas Iscariot, who also betrayed him.

5 These twelve Jesus sent forth, and or exaggerated to gratify the national propensity, and had been credited without examination or proof. On the contrary, we are now certain that the Gospel miracles were wrought in the presence of enemies, and thus subjected to the severest scrutiny; and that they carried with them conviction to multitudes, notwithstanding the fiercest opposition which national prejudice, bigotry, and vice could excite, and the strictest research which could be made by the most vigilant hostility. Dr. Graves.

---

35. — all the cities and villages,] That is, of Galilee, or of that part of it where Capernaum was, Mark vi. 6. Bp. Pearce.

—— teaching in their synagogues,— healing every sickness] Let us observe how Jesus, on all occasions, discovers Himself to be, what His name implies, the Saviour; leaving behind Him, whereever He goes, the warmth of fervent charity, the light of evangelical truth, and the fragrance of a good report concerning something done for the benefit of man and the glory of God. He goes about, not to gratify or profit Himself, but to diffuse His benefactions. He either teaches, or comforts, or raises from the dead, or heals, or feeds, or delivers, or departs into a mountain to pray. And all for us. For us He preaches, that we may learn the truth; for us He heals, and performs various miracles, that we may believe Him; for us, no less, He retires, for us He prays, for us He gives thanks to the Father. Thus He changes His situation often, His disposition never. In this, as well as in other things, "leaving us an example, that we should follow His steps," and not suffer any outward circumstances to make us forget our Christian profession. Bp. Horne.

36. — they fainted,] See the margin.

37. — The harvest truly &c.] Many remain to be instructed, but there are few to instruct them. Bp. Mann. This seems to have led Jesus in the next chapter to send His twelve disciples forth for the purpose of instructing the people. Bp. Pearce.

Chap. X. ver. 1.—had called unto him his twelve disciples,] Jesus had before this time chosen twelve from among His disciples, and given them the name of Apostles, according to St. Mark's account in chap. iii. 14; and St. Luke's in chap. vi. 13. Bp. Pearce.

—— he gave them power &c.] The circumstance of Christ's here delegating to the Apostles from His own authority the power of performing miracles, manifests His divine origin in a manner and degree far superiour to the instances of Moses, Elijah, and all other Prophets commissioned by God. Dr. Whitby. It is an instance of Divine power to which no other Prophet, true or false, ever pretended. In this, as in many other respects, He stands unrivalled and alone. Bp. Porteus.

2. —apostles] A name signifying "persons sent forth;" called also His disciples, because they learned from Him. Bp. Pearce.

—— first, Simon,] He is called "first," not as being so in dignity, but as being first called. See chap. iv. 18; Mark i. 16. Dr. Whitby.

—— called Peter,] Our Lord gave him this name when he came to find Him the first time with Andrew his brother. See John i. 42, 43.

3. — James the son of Alpheus,] Called "James the less," at Mark xv. 40, either on account of his age or his height; and "the Lord's brother" at Gal. i. 19. He is the author of the Catholick Epistle bearing the name of St. James. Beausobre.

—— Lebbeus, whose surname was Thaddeus;] At Luke vi. 15, 16, he is called "Judas the brother of James," who was the son of Alpheus. He is also called Jude at the end of his short Epistle. Probably Judas, and Thaddeus, or Theudas, were one and the same name. Bp. Pearce.

4. Simon the Canaanite,] He is called at Luke vi. 15, and Acts i. 13, "Simon Zelotes." Zelotes signifies, full of zeal; and hence many persons consider the term Canaanite to be a word with the same meaning, and derive it from a Hebrew word of this signification. Others suppose the word to be properly written Canaite, and to import that Simon belonged to the village of Cana in Galilee. Bp. Pearce.

—— Iscariot,] There have been various conjectures respecting the meaning of this word; the most probable is, that it implies him to have been born at Carioth, or Kerioth, a town in the tribe of Judah, mentioned at Josh. xv. 25. Bp. Pearce.

—— who also betrayed him.] Such was the wise counsel of Christ in admitting Judas among His disciples, that the great purpose might be accomplished of redeeming the human race by His sufferings and death, and that the Scriptures might be fulfilled, Acts i. 16. Dr. Whitby.

5. These twelve Jesus sent forth,] We should pause to consider who were the men singled out by our blessed Lord for the purpose of diffusing His religion through the world; that is, for the singular purpose of persuading men to relinquish the religion of their ancestors, the principles they had imbibed from their infancy, the customs, prejudices, and habits, the ways of thinking which they had for a long course of years indulged, and to adopt in their room a system of thinking and acting, in many respects directly opposite to them; a religion exposing them to many present hardships and severe trials, and referring them for their reward to a distant period and an invisible world. Would not a change such as this require agents of a superiour class, of considerable influence from birth, wealth, and station in life, men of profound erudition, of the brightest talents, the most consummate knowledge of the world and the human heart, and the most commanding eloquence? Were then the Apostles of this description? Quite the contrary. They were plain, humble, unpretending men, of low birth and low occupations, without learn-commanded them, saying, Go not into the way of the Gentiles, and into any city of the Samaritans enter ye not:

Anno DOMINI 31.

[b] Acts 13. 46.

6 [b] But go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel.

[c] Luke 10. 9.

7 And as ye go, preach, saying, [c] The kingdom of heaven is at hand.

8 Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils: freely ye have received, freely give.

9 [d] || Provide neither gold, nor silver, nor brass in your purses,

Anno DOMINI 31.

10 Nor scrip for your journey, neither two coats, neither shoes, nor yet staves: [e] for the workman is worthy of his meat.

[d] Mark 6. 8. Luke 9. 3. & 22. 35. || Or, Get.

11 [f] And into whatsoever city or town ye shall enter, enquire who in it is worthy; and there abide till ye go thence.

[e] 1 Tim. 5. 18. Luke 10. 7.

12 And when ye come into an house, salute it.

[f] Luke 10. 8.

---

ing, education, or any extraordinary endowments natural or acquired; without any thing in short to recommend them, but their simplicity, integrity, and purity of manners. With what hopes of success could men such as these set about the most difficult of all enterprises, the reformation of a corrupt world, and the conversion of it to a new faith? Yet we all know that they actually did accomplish these two most arduous things, and that, on the foundations they laid, the whole superstructure of the Christian church has been raised, and the Divine truths of the Gospel spread through all parts of the civilized world. How then is this to be accounted for? It is utterly impossible to account for it in any way but that which Christ Himself points out in His charge to the Apostles, ver. 8, "Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils." Here is the explanation of the whole mystery: it was by the powers with which they were invested, the miracles they were enabled to perform, that they made such multitudes of converts. The people saw that God was with them, and that therefore every thing they taught must be true. Bp. Porteus.

The persons whom our Lord chose for His partners and companions in establishing the Gospel were of the lowest class, as well in station as in abilities. Such persons were in many respects most difficult to be dealt with, but no unfit instruments for the purpose for which they were then designed; namely, to testify what they had so often seen and heard; and on all accounts most proper to afford the best and most unexceptionable evidence to futurity. They were persons who could by no means be supposed able either to conceive a scheme so great as that of reforming a world, of altering all its customs and opinions; or to entertain the least hope of accomplishing it whenever suggested to them: persons who wanted both courage and conduct to attempt this vast and truly original design, with any prospect of success: persons, too, who were to be suffered often to doubt and dispute with our Lord; to distrust, desert, and even deny Him; in order to convince after-ages that they were such as could not, with the least shew of reason, be suspected of having at first concerted all this of themselves, or carried it on afterwards among themselves, or effected what they did of it by any methods merely human.

With such as these did Christ hold conversation during the whole course of His ministry, affectionately complying with their weakness, patiently enduring their perverseness, in order to cure them both; to strengthen and increase their faith by degrees, and free them from all superstitious fears; to open their eyes and enlarge their understanding so far, that at length they might even of themselves judge what was right, and teach the same to others. To these, and by them to the world, He sets a perfect pattern of true heroism, namely, humility and resignation to the will of God; of meekness and the most extensive benevolence to man; demonstrating to what height virtue may be carried under the most disadvantageous circumstances, and shewing the practicableness of each part of our duty in the greatest difficulties. Bp. Law.

By an usual historical anticipation, St. Matthew connects the mission of the twelve Apostles with their selection and appointment, as if it followed immediately after. There was probably, however, an interval of half a year or more from their appointment before they were sent forth; and accordingly St. Mark and St. Luke separate these two events, and interpose several occurrences between them. Dr. Hales.

—— Go not into the way &c.] Go not, in this your present mission, among any of the Gentiles or Samaritans; for the salvation of the Gospel must first be offered to God's peculiar people. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— into any city of the Samaritans enter ye not:] He does not absolutely forbid them to enter into their cities, (see Luke ix. 52; John iv. 4, 5,) but to preach the Gospel there in their present mission. The Jews considered the Samaritans in the same light as heathens. See John iv. 9; viii. 48. Beausobre.

—— the Samaritans] The Samaritans were so named from Samaria, which was formerly the capital of the kingdom of the ten tribes. They were a mixture of such Jews as remained in the land when the ten tribes were carried into captivity, or of those who afterwards returned thither, and of those idolatrous people who were transplanted there by Shalmaneser. See the notes at 2 Kings xvii. The difference between the Jews and the Samaritans, in point of religion, may be reduced to these heads: first, that the Samaritans considered the temple of Gerizim as the centre of true religion, and the place for the proper worship of God; second, that they received, as of Divine authority, no other Scriptures but the five books of Moses; third, that their worship had some tincture of paganism, and of the opinions of the nations with whom they were connected. The Jews considered them as corrupters of true religion; and this cause of enmity being combined with many others, bore towards them an extreme aversion. Beausobre.

6. But go rather to the lost sheep &c.] To whom this doctrine of salvation is first sent, and is first to be preached, Acts iii. 26. He calls them lost sheep, because they were in great peril of being lost and ruined by the ignorance and wickedness of their guides. Dr. Whitby.

8.—freely ye have received, freely give.] Freely ye have received this power from Me; freely give the benefit of it to others. Dr. Whitby.

9. Provide neither gold, &c.] Encumber not yourselves with much provision of money, victuals, or apparel: but trust to the special providence of God on this extraordinary occasion. Bp. Mann.

—— gold, nor silver, nor brass] Alluding to coins of these three metals, then in common use. Dr. Hammond.

10. Nor scrip] By "scrip" is meant a travelling bag, or wallet, in which food was carried. Dr. Campbell.

The instructions here given concern only the first mission of the Apostles; they are revoked at Luke xxii. 36. Beausobre.

—— for the workman is worthy of his meat.] For ye may reasonably expect to be supplied with all necessaries by those who derive benefit from your labours. Dr. Hammond.

The Apostles were to take a long journey without making any other provision for it, than the staff in their hands, and the clothes they wore; "for" says our Lord, "the workman is worthy of his meat;" an intimation that the providence of God would watch over and supply their wants. This required no small confidence in their Master: and, unless they had good grounds for thinking that it was in His power to gain Providence on their side, or, in other words, that He was actually the Son of God, they would scarcely have run the risk of so unpromising an expedition. Bp. Porteus.

11.—who in it is worthy;] Worthy of having the Gospel preached to him, by being well disposed to receive it. Bp. Pearce.

12.—salute it.] By wishing the blessing of peace upon it,

Anno DOMINI 31.

13 And if the house be worthy, let your peace come upon it: but if it be not worthy, let your peace return to you.

g Mark 6. 11.

14 g And whosoever shall not receive you, nor hear your words, when ye depart out of that house or city, h shake off the dust of your feet.

h Acts 13. 51.

15 Verily I say unto you, It shall be more tolerable for the land of Sodom and Gomorrha in the day of judgment, than for that city.

i Luke 10. 3.

16 ¶ i Behold, I send you forth as sheep in the midst of wolves: be ye therefore wise as serpents, and || harmless as doves.

|| Or, simple.

17 But beware of men: for they will deliver you up to the councils, and they will scourge you in their synagogues;

18 And ye shall be brought before governors and kings for my sake, for a testimony against them and the Gentiles.

Anno DOMINI 31.

k Mark 13. 11. Luke 12. 11.

19 k But when they deliver you up, take no thought how or what ye shall speak: for it shall be given you in that same hour what ye shall speak.

20 For it is not ye that speak, but the Spirit of your Father which speaketh in you.

l Luke 21. 16.

21 l And the brother shall deliver up the brother to death, and the father the child: and the children shall rise up against their parents, and cause them to be put to death.

22 And ye shall be hated of all men for my name's sake: m but he that endureth to the end shall be saved.

m Mark 13. 13.

---

which was the usual salutation among the Jews. Bp. Mann. This salutation is expressed at Luke x. 5. Beausobre.

13. — let your peace return to you.] That is, they shall not obtain the peace you wish them, nor receive any benefit from your wishes. See a similar expression at Ps. xxxv. 13. Dr. Whitby.

14. — shake off the dust &c.] The Jews held the dust of heathen lands to be polluted. The meaning therefore of the phrase is, When ye depart from them, shake off the dust from your feet, as a proof that you consider them in the light of heathens. Dr. Whitby. With the same view St. Paul "shook his raiment," Acts xviii. 6. Bp. Pearce.

16. — as sheep in the midst of wolves:] That is, on an employment full of peril from the men of the world. Dr. Whitby.

The character of the Christian mission is denoted in these words, "Behold, I send you forth as sheep;" and the condition of an unbelieving world in the following, "I send you in the midst of wolves." Though the faith was to be propagated only by the mild measures of persuasion, yet even this would provoke the wolfish dispositions of the powers of darkness to employ all the iniquitous contrivance of fraud and violence for its suppression. Bp. Warburton.

—— wise as serpents, &c.] Be wise and prudent, that you may give your opponents no just occasion of reproaching you or your doctrine. Serpents were reckoned by the ancients remarkable for their sagacity: it is certain they have a peculiar vivacity in their eyes; so that to be sharp-sighted as a serpent was a proverb among the Greeks and Romans. Dr. Doddridge.

—— harmless] Meek and gentle. Dr. S. Clarke.

17. — beware of men:] Of those men whom I have described as wolves. Bp. Mann.

—— councils,] By "councils" are meant not only the great Sanhedrim, but inferiour tribunals.

—— scourge you in their synagogues;] It appears that the Jews caused to be chastised in some part of the synagogue those whom they judged guilty of any heresy. See Acts xxii. 19. According to some learned men, there was in every synagogue a council consisting of three judges, who had the power of ordering the punishment of scourging. Beausobre.

18. — for a testimony against them] That they, hearing of your doctrines and miracles, and seeing your simplicity, sincerity, and innocence, may either embrace the truth, or be left without excuse. Dr. S. Clarke. Or perhaps it should be rendered, "for a testimony to them," meaning that this shall be a means of proclaiming and testifying the Gospel to Gentiles and Jews. Drs. Hammond and Whitby.

19. — take no thought] Rather, Be not anxious. Bp. Pearce. See notes on chap. vi. 25. Christ promising here to His Apostles immediate assistance from the Holy Spirit, forbids them to meditate beforehand what they should say, Luke xxi. 14. Dr. Whitby. In ordinary cases men are left to the due use and improvement of their natural powers; but, you (Christ says to the Apostles) being engaged on an extraordinary mission from God, He will grant you the immediate assistance of His Holy Spirit, and enable you to defend the cause of truth against all opposition. Bp. Mann.

20. For it is not ye that speak, &c.] It is not so much ye that speak, as the Holy Spirit speaking by you. Grotius. How distrustful soever, He says, ye may be of your own abilities, let not this trouble you; for God will enable you to speak that which is most suitable and proper. Dr. Hammond.

21. And the brother &c.] The persecution which will be raised against you for preaching the Gospel will be very great and unnatural: the purity and holiness of your doctrine being utterly inconsistent with the covetousness, and contrary to the passions and lusts of the world, will provoke men, incorrigibly enslaved to these vices, to break through all the bonds, not only of virtue and humanity, but even of relation and natural affection, to persecute and destroy you; so that even fathers, and sons, and brethren shall kill one another in fierceness against the truth. Dr. S. Clarke.

22. — ye shall be hated of all men] Of the generality of men. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— he that endureth to the end &c.] He that maintains a constant persevering adherence to Christ, in spite of all the persecutions that shall befall him for the name of Christ, will adopt the most probable course to escape, in the event, not only eternal wrath, but even present destruction here. Dr. Hammond.

In the preceding passage (ver. 16—22) the Apostles are informed beforehand that they were to experience persecution and hatred from men, to be exposed to evils and dangers, and to be sent forth as sheep amongst wolves. Can we then conceive it possible that any men in their senses should, without some very powerful and extraordinary motive, voluntarily undertake such a commission as this, in which their only recompense was to be affliction, misery, pain, and death: in which all the natural affections of the human heart were to be extinguished or inverted, and their nearest relations, their parents, children, or brethren, were to be their persecutors and executioners? and this too, when instead of employing any art, or making any attempt to deceive His followers, our Saviour plainly tells them they are to expect nothing but what is most dreadful to human nature. Yet the first Apostles actually and cheerfully did expose themselves to all this evil at the command of their Lord. How is this to be explained and accounted for? Is there any instance upon record before this in the annals of the world, where twelve men, without any reason, and without being misled by any artifice or delusion, voluntarily exposed themselves at the desire of another person to persecution, torment, and destruction? There must have been some most forcible reason for such conduct as this; and that reason could be nothing less than a full and perfect conviction, arising from the miracles which they saw with their own eyes, and which they themselves were enabled to perform, that

Anno DOMINI 31.

23 But when they persecute you in this city, flee ye into another: for verily I say unto you, Ye shall not ‖ have gone over the cities of Israel, till the Son of man be come.

‖ Or, end, or, finish.

24 [n] The disciple is not above his master, nor the servant above his lord.

[n] Luke 6. 40. John 13. 16.

25 It is enough for the disciple that he be as his master, and the servant as his lord. If they have called the master of the house Beelzebub, how much more shall they call them of his houshold?

26 Fear them not therefore: [o] for there is nothing covered, that shall not be revealed; and hid, that shall not be known.

[o] Mark 4. 22. Luke 8. 17. & 12. 2.

27 What I tell you in darkness, that speak ye in light: and what ye hear in the ear, that preach ye upon the housetops.

Anno DOMINI 31.

28 [p] And fear not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul: but rather fear him which is able to destroy both soul and body in hell.

[p] Luke 12. 4

29 Are not two sparrows sold for a ‖ farthing? and one of them shall not fall on the ground without your Father.

‖ It is in value half-penny farthing in the original, as being the tenth part of the Roman penny.

30 [q] But the very hairs of your head are all numbered.

[q] 2 Sam. 14. 11.

31 Fear ye not therefore, ye are of more value than many sparrows.

32 [r] Whosoever therefore shall confess me before men, him will I confess also before my Father which is in heaven.

[r] Acts 27. 34. Luke 12. 8.

Christ was what He pretended to be, the Son of God; that all power was given to Him in heaven and in earth; and that He was able to fulfil the promises He had made them of a recompense in a future life, infinitely surpassing in magnitude and in duration all the sufferings they could experience in the present world. Bp. Porteus.

23. — Ye shall not have gone over the cities of Israel,] Meaning, according to the sense of the margin, Ye shall not have finished your visitation of the cities of Israel, till &c. Bp. Pearce.

—— till the Son of man be come.] Till He come to take vengeance on the Jews, by means of the Roman armies. See Matt. xxiv. 27, &c. Dr. Whitby. Till the kingdom of Christ shall be gloriously manifested in the final destruction of the nation. Dr. S. Clarke.

24. The disciple is not above &c.] This was a proverbial or known saying among the Hebrews. Our Saviour seems frequently to have purposely applied, and made allusion to, expressions that were current among them. Dr. Hammond. He means, If I, the Master, endure all manner of reproaches and persecutions, you, the disciples and servants, have no reason to expect to escape better. Dr. S. Clarke.

25. — If they have called &c.] If they have not scrupled to compare the Son of God to the chief of devils, what reason have ye to expect that they will not deal as ill with you? Dr. S. Clarke.

—— Beelzebub,] See note at 2 Kings i. 2.

26. Fear them not — for there is &c.] These words are capable of two senses; they either convey to them a warning not to be frightened from preaching the Gospel by despair of its success; for though at present it seemed hidden from the world, He would cause it to dissipate all clouds, and to shine through all countries: or else, not to be alarmed by the calumnies with which men would load them, for that He would make their integrity and the excellence of their doctrine to appear clear as the light. Dr. Whitby.

27. — in the ear,] That is, in a more private manner. Dr. Whitby.

—— upon the housetops.] The houses of the Jews having flat roofs, (see notes on Deut. xxii. 8; 2 Sam. xi. 2; Dan iv. 29,) it was usual and convenient, when any thing was to be proclaimed to the people, to do it from thence. Dr. Hammond.

28. — fear not them &c.] This passage refers the Apostles to a future life, in which all their views, their hopes and fears, were to centre, and by which their conduct in this world was entirely to be regulated. The worst their enemies could do to them in this life was to kill the body, which must some time or other be destroyed by age or disease. But God was able to kill the soul, which was formed for immortality, to annihilate it at once, or to condemn it to everlasting punishment. It was therefore of infinitely more consequence to avoid His displeasure, and to secure His approbation by performing their duty, than shamefully to desert their duty for the purpose of escaping the infliction of the bitterest evils that their fellow creatures could bring upon them. Bp. Porteus.

29. — for a farthing? &c.] The Greek word means the tenth part of a Roman penny or denarius, about three farthings of English money.

30. But the very hairs &c.] How magnificent is this idea of God's government! That He inspects the whole and every part of His universe every moment; and orders it according to the counsels of His infinite wisdom and goodness, by His omnipotent will! Whose thought is power; and His acts ten thousand times quicker than the light, unconfused in a multiplicity exceeding number, and unwearied through eternity. How much comfort and encouragement to all good and devout persons are contained in this thought! That Almighty God, as He has His eye continually upon them, so He is employed constantly in directing, in doing, what is best for them. Thus they may be sure indeed that all things work together for their good. The Lord is truly their Shepherd; not leaving them to chance or fate, but watching over them Himself; and therefore can they lack nothing. Dr. Ogden.

31. Fear ye not therefore, &c.] Here (ver. 29—31) we have that most important and consolatory doctrine of a particular Providence plainly and clearly laid down. This doctrine is one of the many instances in which we can have no certain ground of confidence but in the Gospel of Christ. It is Scripture only which on this momentous point can give rest to our souls. There we are assured that every individual being, even the least and most contemptible, even the sparrow that is sold for a farthing, is under the eye of the Almighty; that so far from man being too inconsiderable for the notice of his Maker, the minutest parts of his body, the very hairs of his head, are all numbered. These very strong instances are plainly chosen on purpose to quiet all our fears, and to banish from our minds every idea of our being too small and insignificant for the care and protection of Almighty God. Bp. Porteus.

32. Whosoever therefore shall confess &c.] Our Saviour means, that His disciples, whensoever the occasion demands, should unaffectedly own their religion, and stand by it. In such a case, dissimulation, or even reserve, is a meanspirited desertion of the worthiest cause in the world; and the words of the holy Jesus on another occasion are justly applicable to this, that he who is not for Him, is against Him. Whosoever is unwilling to be taken for a pious and good man, runs a great risk of soon becoming a profane and bad one. Abp. Secker.

—— him will I confess also before my Father] Meaning that He will own him for His true disciple and servant, and will confess him to be of His body and family. And how truly happy are all they who have the only begotten Son of God to confess them before His Father, and to intercede with Him in their behalf! They, on repenting for their past sins, are perfectly absolved from them by the merits of His death, and are accounted righteous in and through Him before Almighty God Himself.

Anno DOMINI 31.

33 [s] But whosoever shall deny me before men, him will I also deny before my Father which is in heaven.

[s] Mark 8. 38. Luke 9. 26. 2 Tim. 2. 12.

34 [t] Think not that I am come to send peace on earth: I came not to send peace, but a sword.

[t] Luke 12. 51.

35 For I am come to set a man at variance [u] against his father, and the daughter against her mother, and the daughter in law against her mother in law.

[u] Micah 7. 6.

36 And a man's foes shall be they of his own houshold.

37 [x] He that loveth father or mother more than me is not worthy of me: and he that loveth son or daughter more than me is not worthy of me.

[x] Luke 14. 26.

38 [y] And he that taketh not his cross, and followeth after me, is not worthy of me.

[y] Chap. 16. 24. Luke 9. 23. Mark 8. 34.

39 [z] He that findeth his life shall lose it: and he that loseth his life for my sake shall find it.

[z] John 12. 25.

40 ¶ [a] He that receiveth you receiveth me, and he that receiveth me receiveth him that sent me.

[a] Luke 10. 16. John 13. 20.

Anno DOMINI 31.

41 He that receiveth a prophet in the name of a prophet shall receive a prophet's reward; and he that receiveth a righteous man in the name of a righteous man shall receive a righteous man's reward.

42 [b] And whosoever shall give to drink unto one of these little ones a cup of cold water only in the name of a disciple, verily I say unto you, He shall in no wise lose his reward.

[b] Mark 9. 41.

CHAP. XI.

2 John sendeth his disciples to Christ. 7 Christ's testimony concerning John. 18 The opinion of the people, both concerning John and Christ. 20 Christ upbraideth the unthankfulness and unrepentance of Chorazin, Bethsaida, and Capernaum: 25 and praising his Father's wisdom in revealing the gospel to the simple, 28 he calleth to him all such as feel the burden of their sins.

AND it came to pass, when Jesus had made an end of commanding his

---

They are led by His Holy Spirit unto all truth and goodness, and sanctified throughout in body, soul, and spirit: they have to fear no evil, for He gives His angels charge over them to keep them in all their ways; they can want nothing that is good, for all things work together for their lasting welfare. Bp. Beveridge.

34. — I came not to send peace, &c.] Our Lord's meaning is to convey to His disciples right notions of that peace which He was to bring. It is not, He says, immediate temporal peace, but peace in a spiritual sense, peace in your own minds, and peace with God. Ultimately, indeed, I shall establish peace in every sense of the word; but at present, and for many years to come, I shall not bring peace, but a sword upon earth. The promulgation of My religion will be productive of much dissension, cruelty, and persecution, not only to you, but to all those who, for many ages afterwards, shall preach the Gospel in purity and truth. The true cause of this will be the wickedness and ferocious passions of men; but the occasion and the pretence for it will be the holy religion which you are to promulgate. In this sense, and this only, it is that I may be said to bring a sword upon earth; but they, who really bring it, are the open enemies or pretended friends of the Gospel. Bp. Porteus. If, through human depravity, Christ has been made to send "a sword on earth," let it be now our care to shew Him in a more amiable light, as "the Prince of peace." Men have sufficiently made the Gospel minister unto sin: let each of us, by our individual practice, endeavour to bring forth fruit by it unto holiness. Abp. Secker.

35. — I am come to set &c.] Our Saviour's meaning is, that the religion which He taught would meet with most violent opposition from the world, and would expose His Apostles and disciples to the most unjust and inhuman treatment, even sometimes from their nearest relations. Bp. Porteus. He warns His faithful followers that they must soon expect the dreadful effects of fiery zeal, even from their nearest friends and relations. Bp. Mann.

37. He that loveth &c.] That is, when our nearest and dearest relations come in competition with our belief in Christ, our affection to them and our deference to their opinions must give way to our love of our Redeemer, and our attachment to our Maker. Bp. Porteus.

38. — that taketh not his cross,] To take up the cross, alludes to the custom of obliging persons going to execution to carry the cross. The meaning is, that we should be ready to suffer hardships and afflictions for the sake of religion. Bp. Mann.

When we are commanded in Scripture "to take up our cross and follow Christ," "to deny ourselves," "to mortify our members, &c.;" these expressions by no means imply, what some have chosen to infer from them, that we are to renounce the world, and all its pleasures, employments, connexions and concerns, to forego every thing that is cheerful and agreeable to our nature, and to consume our whole life in abstinence and austerity. According to the fairest and most established rules of interpretation, these and many other similar phrases enjoin nothing more than a constant habit of vigilance and self-government, a cautious and jealous attention to the movements of our minds and the progress of our passions, a discreet and sober, not a criminal and unbounded, conformity to the world, a strict abstinence from all irregular and immoral gratifications, without either declining any of the duties, or sullenly withdrawing from the harmless enjoyments, conveniences, and comforts of social life. Bp. Porteus.

39. He that findeth] He that to save his life is an apostate from his faith, shall be punished with the loss of that life which alone deserves the name, the life everlasting; but he who sacrifices his life to his religion in this world, shall be rewarded with eternal life in the world to come. Bp. Porteus.

40. — receiveth me,] Receiveth in effect Me, whose ministers ye are; "and he that receiveth Me, receiveth Him that sent Me;" that is, My heavenly Father will consider the kindness as shewn directly unto Himself. Dr. Doddridge.

41. — a prophet in the name of a prophet] A teacher of Christianity, on account of his office, and out of regard to it. Bp. Pearce.

—— in the name of a righteous man] That is, out of true love to his righteousness. Dr. Whitby. He that hospitably entertains a Prophet, with a pious regard to the office which he bears, shall receive the reward of a Prophet himself, or a reward proportionable to the worth of the person he shelters and accommodates in a time of danger and difficulty; and he that entertains any righteous man with a cordial regard to the virtues of his character, shall himself receive the reward of a righteous man. Dr. Doddridge.

42. — one of these little ones] One of the meanest of My disciples. Dr. Whitby. "Little ones," not small in stature or age, but young in the knowledge of the Gospel. Such are called "babes," chap. xi. 25; 1 Cor. iii. 1, &c. Bp. Pearce.

Anno DOMINI 31.

twelve disciples, he departed thence to teach and to preach in their cities.

[a] Luke 7. 18. 2 [a] Now when John had heard in the prison the works of Christ, he sent two of his disciples,

3 And said unto him, Art thou he that should come, or do we look for another?

4 Jesus answered and said unto them, Go and shew John again those things which ye do hear and see:

[b] Isai. 35. 6. 5 [b] The blind receive their sight, and the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, and the deaf hear, the dead are raised up, and

[c] Isai. 61. 1. [c] the poor have the gospel preached to them.

6 And blessed is he, whosoever shall not be offended in me.

Anno DOMINI 31.

7 ¶ And as they departed, Jesus began to say unto the multitudes concerning John, What went ye out into the wilderness to see? A reed shaken with the wind?

8 But what went ye out for to see? A man clothed in soft raiment? behold, they that wear soft clothing are in kings' houses.

9 But what went ye out for to see? A prophet? yea, I say unto you, and more than a prophet.

10 For this is he, of whom it is written, [d] Behold, I send my messenger before thy

[d] Mal. 3. 1.

Chap. XI. ver. 1. —in their cities.] In the cities of the Jews in Galilee. Bp. Pearce.

3. —Art thou he that should come,] As the Scriptures on all occasions inform us that the Baptist, through the whole course of his ministry, had borne constant and ample testimony to the blessed Jesus, (see Matt. iii. 16; Luke iii. 21; John i. 29—34; iii. 24—28,) and made it his business to dispose the Jews in general, and his own disciples, to believe, reverence, and obey Jesus; we should offer great injury to his character, if we were to suppose his constancy so shaken, or his opinion and behaviour so inconsistent with themselves, that, after such irrefragable evidence, such open and solemn declarations of his faith, he should admit any doubt whether this were He that should come, the long promised, the universally expected Messiah, or whether men were still to look for another, in whom these promises and expectations should receive their desired accomplishment. Hence we may safely conclude, that John did not send this message with a design to satisfy any scruples of his own, but entirely for the sake and conviction of those disciples who brought the message, in order to confirm them in the belief of Jesus, and in right notions respecting Him. This was the more necessary, because their intemperate zeal and partial respect for their master, John, had hitherto made them averse to Jesus, and envious at His honour and miracles; and John, in compassion to their infirmities, condescends to have their scruples propounded in his own name. Dean Stanhope.

——do we look for another?] Are we to look for another? Bp. Pearce.

4. —Go and shew John &c.] He desires only that a faithful report of what themselves saw and heard might be made, and leaves them to their own master for the conclusions to be drawn from thence. He reasons with them thus: Such and such things are laid down by the Prophets (see the references in the margin) as certain marks and characters by which the Messiah may be known at His coming: the disciples of John had ocular demonstration of these things agreeing to Jesus; therefore they ought most assuredly to believe that Jesus was "He that should come;" and, after such evidence, they were not to look for another. Dean Stanhope.

It appears from this answer of our Lord to John's messengers, as from almost every other passage of His history, that He acted a part the most foreign and distant from that which an impostor and enthusiast would have acted. Was it for an impostor or enthusiast to refer messengers who came to him, to miraculous works performed before their eyes, to things done on the spot, to the testimony of their own senses? Would, or could any other than a Prophet, who really came from God, do this? In like manner, was it for any other than one who came from God, to bid His very disciples not believe in Him if He did not these works; or to tell unbelievers, that, if He had not done among them works which no other man did, their unbelief would have been excusable? In all this, we discern conviction and sincerity, fairness, truth, and evidence. Archdeacon Paley.

5. —the poor have the gospel preached] By "the poor" may either be meant the poor and humble in spirit; or, in the literal sense, persons of mean condition, who were neglected and contemned by the proud scribes and Pharisees, but with whom Christ saw fit to converse, and to whom He imparted the doctrines of Divine wisdom. Dr. Whitby. This passage, taken from Isaiah, chap. lxi. 1, is applied by Jesus to Himself in His sermon at Nazareth, Luke iv. 18, 21. Though the circumstance of the poor having the Gospel preached to them is not a miracle, yet it was a marked distinction of Christ, who addressed Himself to people of low degree, whom the Jewish doctors held in contempt. Dean Stanhope.

6. And blessed is he, &c.] Blessed is he whosoever shall not be ashamed of My doctrine, or discouraged by any temporal evils from obeying it. Dr. S. Clarke. It is unhappily too true, that, from the first coming of Christ in the flesh to this time, there have been unreasonable men, who have been offended in Him. And there will not fail to be such within the pale of Christianity itself, even till His second coming to judge the world. His doctrines have been complained of, as laying too great a restraint on human nature, as hard and impracticable sayings. His mysteries have been doubted of, disputed against, and ridiculed by men of perverse and proud minds, who are resolved to believe nothing farther than they can thoroughly and clearly comprehend. His Person itself, the circumstances and way of His coming into the world, have been an offence to many; "to the Jews a stumbling-block, and to the Greeks foolishness;" a constant occasion of falling to all godless and sinful men, whose high minds are not brought into captivity to the obedience of faith, nor made fit for the reception of the truth, as it is in Jesus. But blessed are all they, as His holy lips have pronounced, who in none of these ways are offended in Him. Bp. Atterbury.

The candour of the sacred writers is very remarkable, in honestly relating circumstances which, they must have perceived, would make against themselves. Amongst many other passages of this description, is this history of the message of John to Jesus, inquiring whether He was the expected Messiah; which, the Evangelists must have been aware, could not fail to afford a handle for cavil and objection. But truth, like honesty, neglects appearances. Archdeacon Paley.

7. —A reed shaken with the wind?] Which was usually to be seen in the wilderness. Grotius. He seems to represent by this figure of a reed, a man wavering in his testimony, and turning every way; (Dr. Whitby;) and commends John for his firmness and constancy of mind, in thus opposing him to a reed. Dean Stanhope.

8. —A man clothed in soft raiment?] In opposition to whom He commends John for his austerity and strictness of life. Dean Stanhope.

9. —and more than a prophet.] He so speaks of John, in regard to his having the privilege of shewing the Messiah personally present to the people, whom the rest only foresaw at a distance; and also for being himself the subject of prophecy, as the immediate harbinger of God incarnate. Dean Stanhope.

10. —Behold, I send—before thy face,] In Mal. iii. 1, it is face, which shall prepare thy way before thee.

Anno DOMINI 31.

11 Verily I say unto you, Among them that are born of women there hath not risen a greater than John the Baptist: notwithstanding he that is least in the kingdom of heaven is greater than he.

[e] Luke 16. 16.

12 [e] And from the days of John the Baptist until now the kingdom of heaven ‖ suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force.

‖ Or, is gotten by force, and they that thrust men.

13 For all the prophets and the law prophesied until John.

[f] Mal. 4. 5.

14 And if ye will receive it, this is [f] Elias, which was for to come.

15 He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.

[g] Luke 7. 31.

16 ¶ [g] But whereunto shall I liken this generation? It is like unto children sitting in the markets, and calling unto their fellows,

Anno DOMINI 31.

17 And saying, We have piped unto you, and ye have not danced; we have mourned unto you, and ye have not lamented.

18 For John came neither eating nor drinking, and they say, He hath a devil.

19 The Son of man came eating and drinking, and they say, Behold a man gluttonous, and a winebibber, a friend of publicans and sinners. But wisdom is justified of her children.

[h] Luke 10. 13.

20 ¶ [h] Then began he to upbraid the cities wherein most of his mighty works were done, because they repented not:

21 Woe unto thee, Chorazin! woe unto thee, Bethsaida! for if the mighty works, which were done in you, had been done in

---

"before Me," God being the first person. From this application then it appears, that Christ is one with God the Father, and that this coming of Christ into the world, is the coming of God Himself. Dr. Hammond.

11. — notwithstanding he that is least] Not the meanest Christian, but the meanest Evangelical prophet or preacher of Christian doctrines, is greater than John, in respect of his office, which is to preach the kingdom of the Messiah; in respect of his doctrine, which is more spiritual and heavenly, and founded on better promises; and in respect of the Divine assistance, by which this doctrine is confirmed. Dr. Whitby.

12. — the kingdom of heaven suffereth &c.] From the days of John the Baptist, persons of all descriptions, not only Jews, but even Gentiles also, and publicans and the greatest sinners, have pressed in to hear this gracious doctrine, and to accept the terms of repentance and forgiveness. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— the violent] Either publicans, sinners, &c. or else those who press with ardent desire to be partakers of it. Dr. Whitby. In the margin, "They that thrust men;" they that crowd and press one another in their endeavours to get in. Bp. Pearce.

13. For all the prophets &c.] Till the time of John, men had only the guidance and direction of the Law and the Prophets. Dr. S. Clarke.

14. — if ye will receive it, &c.] These words hint a suspicion that they would not receive his doctrine; which is sufficiently verified by the obstinate expectation of the Jewish nation, that Elias is still personally to come. Dr. Lightfoot.

—— this is Elias,] It was a general tradition in the Jewish nation, that Elias, or Elijah the Tishbite, was to come in person as the forerunner of the Messiah, to anoint Him and make Him known to the people, and that before the advent of the Son of David, Elias was to come and preach concerning Him. Dr. Whitby.

15. He that hath ears &c.] This expression, frequently used by our Saviour, implies that the matter is of peculiar importance, and deserving of their serious attention. Bp. Mann.

17. — We have piped — we have mourned] The Jews had their pipes for two uses, for joy and for lamentation. To this double use of pipes, which children imitated, our Lord refers in this expression. Dr. Whitby. The moral or meaning of this similitude is sufficiently evident from that which follows in the two next verses; but it is not so easy to explain the letter of the parable, from our not knowing sufficiently the customs prevailing in the days of Jesus. Bp. Pearce.

18. — neither eating nor drinking,] Practising great austerity and severity of life. Dr. S. Clarke.

19. — eating and drinking,] In the usual manner, using the ordinary diet of men. Dr. Hammond.

Our Lord came eating and drinking, that is, with all the marks of good will to men. He went to marriage feasts: the very first miracle that He wrought was to promote their cheerfulness; and He mingled in those social meetings with so much ease and freedom, with so little affectation of moroseness or reserve, that His enemies gave Him the name of a gluttonous man, and a winebibber. Bp. Porteus. It should be observed that our Lord enjoined no austerities as absolute duties, nor even recommended any, as carrying men to a higher degree of Divine favour. The religion of Christ stands eminently distinguished in this respect when compared with other religions which have been founded in the fanaticism either of their authors or their first followers. Archdeacon Paley.

—— But wisdom is justified &c.] The sense is, Both My disciples and those of John, who are "the children of wisdom," or wise, have discerned and acknowledged the wisdom of God, in My way of appearing to the Jews, and in that of John. Bp. Pearce. Or, in a more extended sense, When the perverseness of men has done its utmost in aspersing the preachers of true religion, wisdom and virtue will still vindicate themselves; and the methods of Divine Providence, in its several dispensations of mercy to mankind, will finally appear to be wise and good, in the destruction of the proud and obstinate, and the salvation of the humble and teachable. Dr. S. Clarke.

21. — Chorazin!] "Chorazin" is not mentioned as a place of our Lord's abode, except on this occasion. It is generally thought to have been on the western side of the sea of Galilee, not far from Capernaum. Dr. Wells.

—— Bethsaida!] This place lay on the lake of Gennesareth, at the north end, where the river Jordan flows into it. The name imports in the Hebrew language, "a place of hunting or fishing," for the latter of which especially, its situation was very convenient. St. John states, chap. i. 44, that three of the Apostles, Peter, Andrew, and Philip, belonged to this city. It is not once mentioned in the Old Testament, which is accounted for by what Josephus states, that it was only an inconsiderable village, till Philip the tetrarch built it up to the bulk and appearance of a rich and populous city, to which he gave also the name of Julias, out of respect to Julia, the daughter of Cesar. It is called "Bethsaida of Galilee" at John xii. 21, the name of Galilee extending in a larger sense to parts lying east of the sea of Galilee. The wo denounced by our Saviour against Bethsaida has long since come upon it, as it is reduced to the state of a very poor village, consisting of only five or six miserable cottages. Dr. Wells.

Anno DOMINI 31.

Tyre and Sidon, they would have repented long ago in sackcloth and ashes.

22 But I say unto you, It shall be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon at the day of judgment, than for you.

23 And thou, Capernaum, which art exalted unto heaven, shalt be brought down to hell: for if the mighty works, which have been done in thee, had been done in Sodom, it would have remained until this day.

24 But I say unto you, That it shall be more tolerable for the land of Sodom in the day of judgment, than for thee.

[i] Luke 10. 21.

25 ¶ [i] At that time Jesus answered and said, I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes.

26 Even so, Father: for so it seemed good in thy sight.

[k] John 3. 35.

27 [k] All things are delivered unto me of my Father: and no man knoweth the Son, but the Father; [l] neither knoweth any man the Father, save the Son, and he to whomsoever the Son will reveal him.

[l] John 6. 46.

28 ¶ Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest.

Anno DOMINI 31.

29 Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: [m] and ye shall find rest unto your souls.

[m] Jer. 6. 16.

30 [n] For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light.

[n] 1 John 5. 3.

CHAP. XII.

1 Christ reproveth the blindness of the Pharisees concerning the breach of the sabbath, 3 by scriptures, 9 by reason, 13 and by a miracle. 22 He healeth the man possessed that was blind and dumb. 31 Blasphemy against the Holy Ghost shall never be forgiven. 36 Account shall be made of idle words. 38 He rebuketh the unfaithful, who seek after a sign: 49 and sheweth who is his brother, sister, and mother.

AT that time [a] Jesus went on the sabbath day through the corn; and his disciples were an hungred, and began to pluck the ears of corn, and to eat.

[a] Mark 2. 23. Luke 6. 1. Deut 23. 25.

2 But when the Pharisees saw it, they said unto him, Behold, thy disciples do that which is not lawful to do upon the sabbath day.

—— Tyre and Sidon,] Places remarkable for their luxury, pride, and contempt of religion, as appears from many passages of the Old Testament. See Isai. xxiii. 9; Ezek. xxviii.

—— in sackcloth and ashes.] That is, with the deepest contrition and sorrow; sackcloth and ashes being in those days the outward signs of deep penitence. Dr. Campbell.

22. — It shall be more tolerable] Meaning, that the judgment or punishment which befalls mere heathen cities shall be lighter than that which awaits you. Dr. Hammond. Tyre and Sidon, two great cities, famous for their trade and wealth, were destroyed for their wickedness; and yet, having fewer advantages, they were less guilty than those, whom the preaching and miracles of Christ did not lead to repentance. Bp. Mann.

23. — exalted unto heaven, — brought down to hell:] These are allegorical expressions, taken from the Old Testament, (Isai. xiv. 13; lvii. 9,) which signify the highest exaltation and the lowest depression. Our Saviour seems to have spoken this to repress the pride of the Jewish nation, and the severity of their judgment upon others; as they used to affirm that their nation only would be saved, and that the people of Sodom would have no portion in the world to come. Dr. Whitby.

25. — answered and said,] This phrase is often used in the New Testament, where nothing had preceded to which the answer applies; it merely signifies, that the person spake with relation to such a matter, saying. Dr. Whitby.

—— I thank thee, O Father,] Jesus, reflecting on the success which the Gospel had met with, in persons of a different disposition from those upbraided in the last verses, here gives solemn thanks to the Father for it, and magnifies the wisdom of that dispensation, which left the self-conceited in their ignorance, and instructed the meek and dispassionate, the modest and the lowly, in the mysteries of the Gospel. Dean Stanhope.

—— because thou hast hid] Our Saviour does not thank God, because He had hid these things from the wise; but because, having done so, He had revealed them unto babes. Compare Rom. vi. 17; and see the note there. "The wise and prudent," men possessed with carnal worldly wisdom, and a swelling conceit of their proficiency: "Babes," those humble modest persons, who, having a low esteem of their own wisdom, give themselves up entirely to that wisdom which is from above. Dr. Whitby.

27. All things are delivered unto me] All things relating to My Father's will have been communicated to Me, John viii. 28; xii. 49. Bp. Pearce. All things belonging to My office. Dr. Whitby. The whole disposal of all things relating to the salvation of men is now committed to Me. Dr. S. Clarke.

28. — are heavy laden,] With the burdens of the Levitical law, the consciousness of your own frailties, or the difficulties of human life. Dean Stanhope.

29. Take my yoke upon you,] Become My disciples; for I am meek and lowly, (not like those severe and supercilious doctors,) and full of pity to every burdened soul. Dr. Whitby.

So easy is the yoke of Christ, that to the faithful Christian it is a pleasure rather than a trouble to bear it. He is a Master who will never require of us more than He will give us grace to perform, nor lay a greater burden upon us, than He will give us strength to bear. By Him we are enabled to mortify our sins, and withstand all temptations to them. By Him we can so fast and pray as to be heard, so hear and read as to be profited. By Him we can love and fear and trust in God, and serve and honour Him with a perfect heart and a willing mind; and, what is more, by His merits and mediation we procure the pardon of our sins, and the acceptance of our imperfect endeavours to do the will of God. Bp. Beveridge.

Chap. XII. ver. 1. — to pluck the ears of corn,] This action itself was lawful, Deut. xxiii. 25; the objection is confined to its being done on the sabbath day. Bp. Pearce.

2. But when the Pharisees saw it,] From this passage, amongst many others, it appears how constantly the Jews had their eyes fixed on Jesus and His followers; and how anxiously they sought for opportunities of fastening some guilt upon them. Bp. Porteus.

Profaneness and superstition very naturally prepare the way for each other. The Jews had for many ages, notwithstanding the most positive commands, been neglectful of the sabbath; but in later times they fell into the opposite extreme, into so strict and superstitious an observance of it, that they pretended to deem it unlawful to perform the most common action, to cure a disease, or to save the life of an animal on that day. Abp. Secker.

Anno DOMINI 31.

3 But he said unto them, Have ye not read [b] what David did, when he was an hungred, and they that were with him;

[b] 1 Sam. 21. 6.

4 How he entered into the house of God, and did eat the shewbread, which was not lawful for him to eat, neither for them which were with him, [c] but only for the priests?

[c] Exod. 29. 32, 33. Lev. 8. 31. & 24. 9.

5 Or have ye not read in the [d] law, how that on the sabbath days the priests in the temple profane the sabbath, and are blameless?

[d] Numb. 28. 9.

6 But I say unto you, That in this place is one greater than the temple.

7 But if ye had known what this meaneth, [e] I will have mercy, and not sacrifice, ye would not have condemned the guiltless.

[e] Hos. 6. 6. ch. 9. 13.

8 For the Son of man is Lord even of the sabbath day.

9 [f] And when he was departed thence, he went into their synagogue:

[f] Mark 3. 1. Luke 6. 6.

10 ¶ And, behold, there was a man which had his hand withered. And they asked him, saying, Is it lawful to heal on the sabbath days? that they might accuse him.

Anno DOMINI 31.

11 And he said unto them, What man shall there be among you, that shall have one sheep, and if it fall into a pit on the sabbath day, will he not lay hold on it, and lift it out?

12 How much then is a man better than a sheep? Wherefore it is lawful to do well on the sabbath days.

13 Then saith he to the man, Stretch forth thine hand. And he stretched it forth; and it was restored whole, like as the other.

14 ¶ Then the Pharisees went out, and ‖ held a council against him, how they might destroy him.

‖ Or, took counsel.

15 But when Jesus knew it, he withdrew

---

3. — Have ye not read &c.] Our Lord replies, that, in cases of extreme necessity, the severity of the Jewish law might be dispensed with and relaxed, as He proves by the instances which follow. Bp. Porteus.

4. — the house of God,] The tabernacle; the temple not having been then built. Dr. Campbell.

5. — the priests — profane the sabbath,] That is, perform the works required for the service of the temple on the sabbath, as on other days. Dr. Hammond. These arguments went to establish this general principle, that there might be obligations of a force superiour even to the law of Moses, and to which it ought in certain cases to give way; as, in the first instance, to the pressing demands of necessity; in the other, to the services of the temple. Bp. Porteus.

6. — one greater] Christ the Lord of the temple. Bp. Pearce.

7. — I will have mercy, &c.] See notes at chap. ix. 13. The meaning is, that when any institution interferes with the execution of a charitable or pious design, the former must give place to the latter; as, in the present instance, a strict observance of the sabbath must not be suffered to deprive My disciples of that refreshment, which is necessary to support them under the fatigue of following Me, and dispensing to mankind the blessings of the Gospel. We see then with what superstitious rigour the Jews adhered to the letter of their law; and with what superiour wisdom and dignity our Lord endeavoured to raise their minds above such trivial things to the true spirit of it, to the life and soul of religion.

Profanations of the sabbath among Christians have sometimes been defended on the ground of this passage in the Gospel. It has been alleged, that, since our Lord here reproves the Jews for too rigorous an attention to the rest of the sabbath, an intimation is conveyed, that we ought not to be too exact and scrupulous in that respect; and that many things may in fact be allowable, which timid minds consider as unlawful. But it should be observed, that Jesus condemns nothing in the conduct of the Jews but what was plainly absurd and superstitious; and He allows of no exceptions to that rest from labour, which they observed on the sabbath, except simply works of necessity and charity. It is lawful, in short, as our Saviour expresses it, to do well on the sabbath day; to preserve ourselves and to benefit our fellow creatures: with these exceptions, and these only, we should consecrate the sabbath as a holy rest unto the Lord. Bp. Porteus.

As the reason of the institution of the sabbath rests on those common benefits to all, the creation of the world and man's redemption, all descriptions of men stand obliged to the duties of the day. No elevation of rank may exempt from the duties of the sabbath; no meanness of condition may exclude; no inexperience of youth disqualifies for the employment; no decrepitude of age is unequal to the toil; no tenderness of sex can suffer from the fatigue. Among the Jews, the absolute cessation of all animal activity on their sabbath had a particular meaning in reference to their history and peculiar condition. But to mankind in general, to us Christians in particular, the proper business of the day is the worship of God in public assemblies, from which none may without some degree of crime be unnecessarily absent. Private devotion is the Christian's daily duty, but the peculiar duty of the sabbath is publick worship. As for those parts of the day, which are not occupied in the publick duty, every man's own conscience must direct him what portion of this leisure should be allotted to his private devotions, and what may be spent in sober recreation. Perhaps no better general rule can be laid down than this, that the same proportion of the sabbath should be devoted to religious exercises, publick and private, as every person would spend of any other day in his ordinary business. Bp. Horsley.

8. For the son of man is Lord even of the sabbath day.] Has a right to dispense with its obligations. And therefore it follows, that when He allows that works of mercy and necessity may be done on that day, this is a rule for His disciples in their observation of it. Bp. Pearce.

10. Is it lawful to heal &c.] They put the question in this general form, not from any desire of instruction, but on purpose that they might have an opportunity of accusing Him. Dr. Doddridge.

12. How much then is a man better &c.] If then, He says, the fear of the loss of a beast be accounted by you a sufficient excuse for breaking the rest of the sabbath; how much more ought an act of charity towards a man to be preferred before all ceremonial observances? So that, even yourselves being judges, it is lawful to do acts of righteousness and charity on the sabbath day. Dr. S. Clarke.

14. — held a council] Rather, consulted together. Grotius.

—— destroy him.] It might have been expected that the wisdom and benevolence displayed by our Saviour on the occasion just detailed, would have triumphed over even pharisaical obstinacy, and extorted the applause and admiration of His hearers. But stubborn prejudice and deep-rooted malignity are not so easily subdued. The Pharisees consulted to destroy Him. And for what? merely for giving ease to timid minds and scrupulous consciences, and for restoring the withered hand of a poor decrepit man. Bp. Porteus.

15. — he withdrew himself from thence:] Our Saviour, instead himself from thence: and great multitudes followed him, and he healed them all;

Anno DOMINI 31.

16 And charged them that they should not make him known:

17 That it might be fulfilled which was spoken by Esaias the prophet, saying,

[g] Isai. 42. 1.

18 [g] Behold my servant, whom I have chosen; my beloved, in whom my soul is well pleased: I will put my spirit upon him, and he shall shew judgment to the Gentiles.

19 He shall not strive, nor cry; neither shall any man hear his voice in the streets.

20 A bruised reed shall he not break, and smoking flax shall he not quench, till he send forth judgment unto victory.

21 And in his name shall the Gentiles trust.

[h] Luke 11. 14.

22 ¶ [h] Then was brought unto him one possessed with a devil, blind, and dumb: and he healed him, insomuch that the blind and dumb both spake and saw.

Anno DOMINI 31.

23 And all the people were amazed, and said, Is not this the son of David?

[i] Chap. 9. 34.

24 [i] But when the Pharisees heard it, they said, This fellow doth not cast out devils, but by Beelzebub the prince of the devils.

25 And Jesus knew their thoughts, and said unto them, Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation; and every city or house divided against itself shall not stand:

26 And if Satan cast out Satan, he is divided against himself; how shall then his kingdom stand?

27 And if I by Beelzebub cast out devils, by whom do your children cast them out? therefore they shall be your judges.

28 But if I cast out devils by the Spirit of inflicting on the Pharisees a punishment which might have destroyed them, chose to exhibit to them an example which might amend them. He shewed them the difference between those malignant vindictive passions which governed them, and the mild gentle conciliating disposition which His religion inspired: He withdrew Himself quietly and silently from them; and great multitudes followed Him, and He healed them all; and to avoid all irritation and all contest, He charged them that they should not make Him known. Bp. Porteus.

---

18. — he shall shew judgment] Shall teach the law and will of God. Bp. Mann.

19, 20. He shall not strive, nor cry; &c.] What an amiable picture is given in the passage which ensues, of the Divine Author of our faith; and how exactly does this prophetick description correspond to the whole tenour of His conduct, in the propagation of His religion! "He shall not strive, nor cry;" &c. that is, He shall exercise His office with meekness, gentleness, and humility, without contention and noise, without tumult and disturbance. "A bruised reed shall He not break;" that is, He will not bear hard upon a wounded and contrite, and truly humble heart, bowed down with a sense of its infirmity. "And smoking flax shall He not quench;" the faintest spark of returning virtue He will not extinguish by severity; but will cherish and encourage the one, and will raise, animate, and enliven the other, till by these gentle conciliating means He shall have triumphed over the wickedness and malevolence of His enemies, and completely established His religion throughout the world. Bp. Porteus. See notes at Isai. xlii. 2, 3.

20. — and smoking flax] The flax when about to be extinguished. The Jews used to employ flax, as we do cotton, for candles, or in lamps. Bp. Pearce.

—— till he send forth judgment unto victory.] That is, according to most interpreters, till He hath made His Gospel and His righteous law victorious over all His enemies. To this sense the words as they stand at Isai. xlii. 4, "till He have set judgment in the earth," agree. Dr. Whitby.

23. — Is not this the son of David?] Is not this the Christ whom we are expecting? Bp. Mann.

24. — but by Beelzebub the prince of the devils.] It should here be remarked, how great the difference is between the sentiments of modern unbelievers, and those of the first enemies of the Gospel, respecting the miracles of Christ. The former assert that our Saviour wrought no real miracles; that miracles are in their own nature incredible and impossible, and that no human testimony can obtain credit to events so contrary to experience, and so repugnant to the ordinary course of nature. But let us go to the unbelievers who lived in the earliest ages of the Gospel, and even to those who were eyewitnesses of our Lord's miracles, and they will tell us a very different story. They allow that Christ did work miracles; they acknowledge that He did expel evil spirits out of those that were possessed, and were forced to ascribe the miracles to the power of Beelzebub, not of God. The fact then of the miraculous cures they did not dispute; and this at once establishes the Divine mission of our Lord. Bp. Porteus.

The reputation of our Saviour's miracles pressed so hard upon the Pharisees, that there was great danger of the multitude being drawn off from them, and joining themselves to this new Master, of whose commission they daily beheld such numerous and convincing testimonies. Unable however to dispute the reality of the miracles, they endeavoured to harden their hearers against the evidence they carried with them, by a most perverse calumny, that of attributing what they could not deny to be above the power of nature and art, to the concurrence of the devil. Rather choosing to make it pass for the work of hell, in order to countenance their own wicked infidelity, and to discourage the belief of others; than to confess the Spirit of God, even where His power and goodness appeared most eminently visible, and where nothing could have hindered them from seeing it, but a settled resolution, not to see, and not to be persuaded. Dean Stanhope. Concerning Beelzebub, see the notes on 2 Kings i. 2.

25. — Every kingdom &c.] His argument is this: How absurd and preposterous is it to suppose that Satan will act against himself, by expelling his own ministers and agents, whom he has sent to take possession of the minds and bodies of men. This must clearly end in his ruin, and the overthrow of his empire over mankind. It is evidently therefore not by his assistance, but by the power of God, that I cast out devils; and, if so, it is clear to demonstration that I am commissioned by Heaven to teach true religion to mankind. Bp. Porteus.

27. — your children] Your disciples, or your countrymen; meaning the Jews who pretended to cast out devils. Dr. Hammond.

—— therefore they shall be your judges.] The sense is, Ye attribute not the casting out of devils by your countrymen to Beelzebub, but ye applaud the work when it is done by them. They therefore shall in this matter be your judges, that ye speak thus of My actions from the rankness and venom of your hearts. Dr. Lightfoot.

28. But if I &c.] If I cast out devils by the power of God, it is plain that I am come from God; My words therefore are true, and ye are bound to believe Me when I tell you that I am the Christ, and that the kingdom of God is begun, and is prevailing over the power of the devil.

Anno DOMINI 31.

of God, then the kingdom of God is come unto you.

29 Or else how can one enter into a strong man's house, and spoil his goods, except he first bind the strong man? and then he will spoil his house.

30 He that is not with me is against me; and he that gathereth not with me scattereth abroad.

[k] Mark 3. 28. Luke 12. 10. 1 John 5. 16.

31 ¶ Wherefore I say unto you, [k] All manner of sin and blasphemy shall be forgiven unto men: but the blasphemy against the Holy Ghost shall not be forgiven unto men.

32 And whosoever speaketh a word against the Son of man, it shall be forgiven him: but whosoever speaketh against the Holy Ghost, it shall not be forgiven him, neither in this world, neither in the world to come.

Anno DOMINI 31.

33 Either make the tree good, and his fruit good; or else make the tree corrupt, and his fruit corrupt: for the tree is known by his fruit.

34 O generation of vipers, how can ye, being evil, speak good things? [l] for out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh.

[l] Luke 6. 45.

35 A good man out of the good treasure of the heart bringeth forth good things: and an evil man out of the evil treasure bringeth forth evil things.

36 But I say unto you, That every idle word that men shall speak, they shall give account thereof in the day of judgment.

---

30. He that is not with me &c.] A proverbial expression. It is known, He says, that he who does not assist another in a contest, is certainly favourable to his enemy; consequently My casting out devils shews that I am Satan's declared enemy. Dr. Hammond. Or the expression may apply to the Jews: he that will not join with Me in this great work, must be looked upon as against Me. Dr. S. Clarke.

31. — blasphemy against the Holy Ghost] Which consisted in their maliciously ascribing the miracle wrought to Beelzebub, and not to the Spirit of God. Bp. Pearce. The Pharisees, who are thus charged with the guilt of blaspheming against the Holy Ghost, very well knew that the miracles they had seen could not be accounted for in a natural way; yet such was their spleen and rage against the Gospel, that they chose rather to impute them to the devil, than to acknowledge the Divine hand, which was so visible in them, that it could not be missed by any who were not wilfully blind. Dr. Waterland. Thus we see that this crime was confined solely and exclusively to those Pharisees who attributed miracles wrought by the Spirit of God to the agency of evil spirits. Since, therefore, miracles have long since ceased, and this blasphemy against the Holy Ghost relates solely to those who saw miracles performed with their own eyes, it is impossible for any one in later times to be literally guilty of this unpardonable blasphemy in its full extent; and there is therefore no just ground for apprehensions on the subject to be entertained by pious and scrupulous minds. Bp. Porteus.

Still there are some sins of a like nature, which may be committed by us, and which being committed may prove no less dangerous to those who are guilty of them, than that sin did prove to the Pharisees heretofore. Of this nature must especially be reckoned apostasy from the Christian religion, after having been convinced of its truth, and made partakers of its promises, and apostasy from the truth and purity of the Gospel for the sake of some worldly fears, or of some present hopes and advantages. Abp. Wake. If the sin against the Holy Ghost be of so high a nature, and so unpardonable, then must all approaches to it be very dreadful; such as profane scoffing at religion, and the Holy Spirit of God, which dwells in good men; perverse infidelity notwithstanding all reasonable evidence; obstinacy in a sinful and vicious course; sinning against the clear conviction of our consciences. These are all offences of a flagrant character, and of great provocation in the sight of God; and, if they be long continued, we know not how soon God may withdraw His grace from us, and suffer us to be "hardened through the deceitfulness of sin." Abp. Tillotson.

32. — whosoever speaketh — against the Son of man, it shall be forgiven] Against Christ, considered merely as a man; calling Him for instance a deceiver, a glutton, a winebibber; that, though a grievous sin, yet being slight in comparison, may the more easily be forgiven; but "whosoever" &c. Dr. Waterland.

—— neither in this world, neither &c.] This was a common mode of expression among the Jews, meaning that it shall never be forgiven. Dr. Whitby.

Had the offence here mentioned been merely speaking irreverently concerning the Person of the Holy Ghost, it would not have been easy to assign a reason, why that should be less pardonable than the same irreverence towards the Father and the Son. But since it was vilifying His miraculous operations and gifts, there appear in it the most evident marks of such guilt and danger, as could belong to no other. It was the greatest and most wilful obstinacy in wrong that can be imagined, when they and all around them saw the most illustrious and beneficial miracles, done in confirmation of the most holy and benevolent doctrines, to stand out in opposition to both; to insist that the devil conspired against himself, rather than own the finger of God, where it was so exceedingly visible; not only to oppose, but to revile, the strongest evidence laid before them in the fullest manner, and that, very probably, against the secret conviction of their own hearts; such behaviour manifests the most hardened and desperate wickedness. All men must suppose it, and our Saviour knew it, to proceed from an incurable disease within, prevailing over the most powerful and the last remedy, which Divine wisdom thought fit to use; and therefore His declaration, however powerful, was but the natural consequence of that unhappy state in which they were. Abp. Secker.

33. Either make &c.] The sense seems to be, A person is to be judged of by his actions: if My works are good, allow the agent to be good; if the works are bad, you are at liberty to consider the agent as bad; but now you allow My works to be good, and yet attribute them to the devil. Grotius.

34. — how can ye, being evil, &c.] But, He adds, it is impossible that you should speak any thing but evil: you are a perverse and malicious generation, and the thoughts of men's hearts will of course shew themselves by their words; they arise immediately from the heart within, and therefore necessarily discover whether it be good or evil. Bp. Porteus.

36. — every idle word] Every injurious, slandering, and blaspheming word. Bp. Pearce. We are not to understand by the word translated "idle," insignificant or trifling; but wicked, malicious, profane. Bp. Mann. Our Saviour's phrase manifestly refers immediately to the malignant calumny of the Pharisees which had preceded; yet it certainly includes all false, slanderous, and vindictive accusations of our neighbour, all discourse injurious to God or man, contrary to truth, decency, and purity of heart. Bp. Porteus.

Anno DOMINI 31.

37 For by thy words thou shalt be justified, and by thy words thou shalt be condemned.

[m] Chap. 16. 1. Luke 11. 29. 1 Cor. 1. 22.

38 ¶ [m] Then certain of the scribes and of the Pharisees answered, saying, Master, we would see a sign from thee.

39 But he answered and said unto them, An evil and adulterous generation seeketh after a sign; and there shall no sign be given to it, but the sign of the prophet Jonas:

[n] Jonah 1. 17.

40 [n] For as Jonas was three days and three nights in the whale's belly: so shall the Son of man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth.

41 The men of Nineveh shall rise in judgment with this generation, and shall [o] Jonah 3. 5. condemn it: [o] because they repented at the preaching of Jonas; and, behold, a greater than Jonas is here.

Anno DOMINI 31.

42 [p] The queen of the south shall rise up in the judgment with this generation, and shall condemn it: for she came from the uttermost parts of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon; and, behold, a greater than Solomon is here.

[p] 1 Kings 10. 1.

43 [q] When the unclean spirit is gone out of a man, he walketh through dry places, seeking rest, and findeth none.

[q] Luke 11. 24.

44 Then he saith, I will return into my house from whence I came out; and when he is come, he findeth it empty, swept, and garnished.

45 Then goeth he, and taketh with himself seven other spirits more wicked than himself, and they enter in and dwell there: [r] and the last state of that man is worse than the first. Even so shall it be also unto this wicked generation.

[r] Hebr. 6. 4. & 10. 26. 2 Pet. 2. 20.

46 ¶ While he yet talked to the people,

37. — by thy words] Not by thy actions only, but also by thy words. Dr. S. Clarke. "For by thy words thou shalt be justified," &c. that is, says our Saviour, Let every particular hearer apply these expressions to himself; it is not by thine actions only, but in some degree by thy words also, thou shalt be at last justified or condemned; since by the tenour of these, the disposition of thy heart is shewn, and thy true character discovered. Dr. Doddridge.

38. — we would see a sign from thee.] They had already seen various miracles; but they wanted a sign from heaven, chap. xvi. 1; Luke xi. 16. Dr. Whitby.

It is probable that they meant the sign of the Messiah coming with visible glory in the clouds of heaven, with His holy angels around Him, and all the other ensigns of celestial grandeur. This illustrious appearance of their promised Deliverer they considered so essential to His character, so indispensable a mark of His heavenly original, that they distinguished it by the name of "the sign of the Son of man," "the sign of His coming," Matt. xxiv. 3, 30. Our Lord, it is observable, constantly refused to give them the sign they demanded. The fact was, that they could not possibly be gratified with it, because it was inconsistent with that humble and lowly character, in which, for the wisest reasons, God designed, and the Prophets foretold, that the Redeemer of the world should actually appear. The sign they wished for was founded on an expectation of His descending visibly from heaven to the lower world, with the utmost splendour and magnificence. Whereas it was always intended and predicted, that He should be born of an earthly parent, should live in an obscure and indigent condition of life, should be despised, rejected, put to death upon the cross, laid in the grave, and rise from it again the third day. Bp. Porteus. See notes at chap. xvi. 1, 4.

39. — and adulterous generation] A spurious generation, which had degenerated from their ancestors. There is allusion to Isai. lvii. 3, 4. Our Lord perhaps refers also to the corruption of their manners, and their unjust divorces, which made them guilty of numberless adulteries. Beausobre.

—— but the sign of — Jonas:] A miracle, answering to that which occurred in the person of Jonah. By this figurative expression, He signified His own death, burial, and resurrection. He said in effect, You ask a sign from heaven, but the only sign I shall vouchsafe to you is a sign from the earth. Instead of descending from above, as you expect, in visible pomp and triumph, I shall rise with still greater triumph from the grave, after being numbered three days with the dead. Bp. Porteus.

He means that, as the prophetick office of Jonah was confirmed to the Ninevites, by his miraculous deliverance on the third day from the belly of the fish; so the Divine authority of Christ should be confirmed to the Jews by His resurrection on the third day. Dr. Jortin.

40. — three days and three nights] The expression "a day and a night" in the original, means, what we call a day, a space of twenty-four hours; and the Jews were wont to reckon any part of a day, as a day. Thus by the expression, three days and three nights, is meant any portion of three days. Since therefore they used to begin their days in the evening, and our Saviour was buried on the day of crucifixion, (the Friday), lay in the earth the whole of the sabbath, (the Saturday), and rose on the third day in the morning, (the Sunday); He was "in the heart of the earth" a part of three days, or, in the Hebrew idiom, "three days and three nights." Dr. Whitby, Bp. Pearce. See the note on Jonah i. 17.

41. — shall rise in judgment] That is, Their better behaviour shall make the wicked conduct of this generation appear in a worse light. Bp. Pearce. It was usual for witnesses to rise from their seats when they gave evidence against criminals.

This generation, our Saviour says, shall, by being compared with the people of Nineveh, appear to be more justly condemned to utter destruction. For, when the men of Nineveh were preached to by Jonah, who was a stranger, who continued among them but three days, and wrought no miracles to confirm his mission, they yet hearkened to him, and repented. But this generation, though they have Christ Himself sent to preach to them, though they hear His doctrine, and see His miracles, though they are astonished at the authority with which He teaches, and the power by which He acts; yet they are not by all these things brought to repentance. Dr. S. Clarke.

42. The queen of the south] See notes on 1 Kings x. 1.

43—45. When the unclean spirit &c.] The concluding words of this parable (ver. 45.) seem plainly to apply it to the unbelieving Jews of that age; and to import that Satan, who, by the labours of Christ and His disciples, had been cast out of so many of them, finding the Jewish nation, by their prodigious wickedness and incredulity, still more than ever prepared to receive him, would return to them and render them more incredulous, obdurate, and blasphemous, than they were before. Drs. Whitby and Lightfoot.

Otherwise, the words contain an admonition to the demoniacks who had been cured, to beware of relapsing into sin, lest they should be again possessed in a higher degree, so as to render their case desperate: according to the excellent comment of Abp. Cranmer, "Although the house of our conscience be once made clean, and the foul spirit be expelled from us in baptism or repentance; yet, if we become idle, and take not heed, he will return with seven worse spirits and possess us again." Dr. Hales.

43. — dry places,] Desert places, where there was no water. Bp. Pearce.

Anno DOMINI 31.

[s] behold, his mother and his brethren stood without, desiring to speak with him.

[s] Mark 3. 31. Luke 8. 20.

47 Then one said unto him, Behold, thy mother and thy brethren stand without, desiring to speak with thee.

48 But he answered and said unto him that told him, Who is my mother? and who are my brethren?

49 And he stretched forth his hand toward his disciples, and said, Behold my mother and my brethren!

50 For whosoever shall do the will of my Father which is in heaven, the same is my brother, and sister, and mother.

CHAP. XIII.

3 The parable of the sower and the seed: 18 the exposition of it. 24 The parable of the tares, 31 of the mustard seed, 33 of the leaven, 44 of the hidden treasure, 45 of the pearl, 47 of the drawnet cast into the sea: 53 and how Christ is contemned of his own countrymen.

Anno DOMINI 31.

THE same day went Jesus out of the house, [a] and sat by the sea side.

[a] Mark 4. 1.

2 And great multitudes were gathered together unto him, so that he went into a ship, and sat; and the whole multitude stood on the shore.

3 And he spake many things unto them in parables, saying, [b] Behold, a sower went forth to sow;

[b] Luke 8. 5.

4 And when he sowed, some seeds fell by the way side, and the fowls came and devoured them up:

5 Some fell upon stony places, where they had not much earth: and forthwith

---

46. — his mother and his brethren] See note at chap. xiii. 55.

48, 49. — Who is my mother? &c.] Who are they whom ye call My mother and My brethren? Do ye think that I esteem persons by any earthly relation or affections? Then, pointing to His disciples, He added, No, rather these are they, whom ye ought more properly to call My relations. Dr. S. Clarke.

50. — whosoever shall do the will &c.] How ought men to despise the mean and trifling advantages of this present world, greatness, wealth, honours, and authority, in comparison with that only true and valuable honour which is due to virtue and goodness! The Lord of lords, the supreme Prince of heaven and earth, hath said, That whosoever will do the will of His Father, the same is His brother, and sister, and mother. How great is the honour of faith and obedience! How blessed the consanguinity! To be born of God, and to bear the Lord Jesus Christ in our hearts; to express His image in every thought, and word, and action; and to be ourselves conformed to Him, partakers of His holiness, and of His crown. Thus to become His brethren, and the children of God, is no empty honour, no swelling sounding name, but gives a sure title to a share in His glory. For, if sons, then are we heirs, heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ; inheritors of a kingdom, not like the perishing ones that so dazzle our eyes here on earth; but one unspeakably happy, and full of glory, that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for us. Dean Stanhope.

Chap. XIII. ver. 2. — and sat; and the whole multitude stood] This was the Jewish custom in their schools and synagogues; the master sat to teach, and the scholars or audience stood around. Dr. Lightfoot.

3. — in parables,] The word "parable" is sometimes used in Scripture in a large and general sense, and applied to short sententious sayings, maxims, or aphorisms, expressed in a figurative, proverbial, or even poetical manner. But, as applied to our Saviour's parables, it signifies a short narrative of some event or fact, real or fictitious, in which a continued comparison is carried on, frequently between sensible and spiritual objects; and under this similitude some important doctrine, moral or religious, is conveyed. This mode of instruction has many advantages, more particularly in recommending virtue, and reproving vice. For 1st, when divine and spiritual things are represented by known and familiar objects, they are more easily comprehended, especially by rude and uncultivated minds. 2dly, This sort of composition is well calculated, as is found by experience, to command attention, to affect the heart, and to make a lasting impression on the memory. 3dly, The very obscurity in which parables are involved has the effect of exciting a greater degree of curiosity and interest, and of urging the mind to a more vigorous exertion of its faculties and powers, than any other mode of instruction. 4thly, When the mind is under the influence of strong prejudices, of violent passions, or inveterate habits; and when under these circumstances it becomes necessary to rectify errour, to dissipate delusion, or to reprove sin, there is no way in which this difficult task can be so well executed, and the painful truths, that must be told, so successfully insinuated into the mind, as by disguising them under the veil of a well wrought and interesting parable. Bp. Porteus.

It is certain not only that the Jewish doctors, and the wise men of the East taught by parables, but also that some of our Lord's parables, as that of the rich glutton, Luke xvi. and that of the ten virgins, Matt xxv. and others, were taken from the Jews. Dr. Whitby.

The parables of the New Testament excel, many of them, every thing of the kind that ever was written; not in point of style and diction, but in the choice of the subjects, in the structure of the narratives, in the aptness, propriety, and force of the circumstances woven into them; and, in some, as that of the good Samaritan, the prodigal son, the Pharisee and the publican, there is an union of pathos and simplicity, which, in the best productions of human genius, is the fruit only of a much-exercised and well-cultivated judgment. Archdeacon Paley.

Although our Lord followed the example of other Eastern teachers in the use of parables, He did it with a moderation and dignity becoming His character. He never introduces beasts of the field, or trees of the forest, debating and conversing together with the reason and faculties of man, nor does He bring forward emblematical persons, as influencing the counsels and actions of men. All is built upon nature and life, and the reality of things, and composed of circumstances which every one perceived might probably happen. Once only, in the parable of the rich man and Lazarus, the scene is laid beyond this visible world. Dr. Townson.

—— a sower went forth &c.] Our Lord was wont to draw His doctrines and instructions from the scenes of nature, the objects that surrounded Him, and the most common occurrences of life. Bp. Porteus. This parable, in simple and familiar imagery, exhibits the most profound knowledge of human nature, and the most philosophical survey of the hearts or dispositions of the various classes of hearers, of which the mixed multitude was then, and is always, composed. As in the earth there is great diversity of soils, some bad and some good, in different degrees and shades; so in mankind there is an equal diversity of hearts or dispositions, some bad more or less, some comparatively good. But, as the earth cannot produce any thing of itself without culture, except briers, thorns, and weeds, even where the soil is best, so neither can mankind, merely by themselves and without Divine cultivation, produce any spiritual fruit, acceptable to God. All, in the state of nature, are alike barren and unprofitable, until the good seed is sown in the former, by the careful husbandman; and the word of God in the latter, by Christ, His Apostles, and His ministers. Dr. Hales.

Anno DOMINI 31.

they sprung up, because they had no deepness of earth:

6 And when the sun was up, they were scorched; and because they had no root, they withered away.

7 And some fell among thorns; and the thorns sprung up, and choked them:

8 But other fell into good ground, and brought forth fruit, some an hundredfold, some sixtyfold, some thirtyfold.

9 Who hath ears to hear, let him hear.

10 And the disciples came, and said unto him, Why speakest thou unto them in parables?

11 He answered and said unto them, Because it is given unto you to know the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, but to them it is not given.

[c] Chap. 25. 29.

12 [c] For whosoever hath, to him shall be given, and he shall have more abundance: but whosoever hath not, from him shall be taken away even that he hath.

13 Therefore speak I to them in parables: because they seeing see not; and hearing they hear not, neither do they understand.

Anno DOMINI 31.

14 And in them is fulfilled the prophecy of Esaias, which saith, [d] By hearing ye shall hear, and shall not understand; and seeing ye shall see, and shall not perceive:

[d] Isai. 6. 9. Mark 4. 12. Luke 8. 10. John 12. 40. Acts 28. 26. Rom. 11. 8.

15 For this people's heart is waxed gross, and their ears are dull of hearing, and their eyes they have closed; lest at any time they should see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and should understand with their heart, and should be converted, and I should heal them.

16 But blessed are your eyes, for they see: and your ears, for they hear.

17 For verily I say unto you, [e] That many prophets and righteous men have desired to see those things which ye see, and have not seen them; and to hear those things which ye hear, and have not heard them.

[e] Luke 10. 24.

18 ¶ Hear ye therefore the parable of the sower.

19 When any one heareth the word of the kingdom, and understandeth it not,

---

8. —and brought forth fruit,] We should observe the gradation. The seed sown in the highway comes not up at all; that sown upon stony ground comes up, but increases not; that sown among thorns increases, but bears no fruit; but that which is sown on good ground brings forth fruit to perfection. Dr. Whitby.

9. Who hath ears to hear, let him hear.] As if He had said, This which I have delivered to you is not a discourse to amuse and entertain you; not a point of curiosity and speculation, not an ordinary and indifferent affair, which, whether you attend to or disregard, is of little importance. It is of consequence unspeakable, and nothing less than your eternal happiness or misery depends upon it. As you make a good or a bad use of My instructions, you will be acquitted or condemned when I come to judgment. Be wise therefore and remember. Dr. Jortin.

11. —it is given unto you] On account of your superiour docility and singleness of heart—"but to them it is not given," on account of their perverse prejudices, which made them unwilling to attend the Gospel truths, and incapable of understanding them.

—— the mysteries of the kingdom &c.] The hidden manner of God's dispensing His grace, which to others is more obscurely revealed in parables. Dr. Hammond. Things not before revealed, and now revealed only to such well-disposed persons, as the Apostles were. Bp. Pearce.

12. — whosoever hath,] That is, hath much. Bp. Pearce. Or, hath profitably and to his improvement; makes a proper use of. Dr. Whitby. This verse is a proverbial saying, often repeated by our Lord; it means here, that those, who are readily disposed to attend to His doctrine, shall be fully informed about it; whereas the careless and inattentive hearer shall have no benefit from His instruction. Bp. Pearce.

He who is studious to improve his measure of grace, shall find that measure increased to him: but he who neglects or stifles, neglects through irreligion, carelessness, and heedlessness, buries in sensuality, or stifles by the opposition of sin, the portion of grace and assistance which is vouchsafed to him, will find that portion withdrawn from him. Archdeacon Paley.

13. —because they seeing see not;] Because, by seeing the greatest miracles, they have not been convinced, and by hearing the plainest doctrines, they would not be made to understand. Dr. S. Clarke.

Because a great part of My audience is composed of persons who shut their eyes against the light, and neglect or abuse the means of knowledge, which have been hitherto in their power; therefore it is that I speak obscurely. Dr. Jortin.

14. And in them is fulfilled &c.] That is, what was said by Isaiah concerning those of his own time, was as truly fulfilled concerning the Jews of our Saviour's time. Dr. Whitby. This passage from Isai. vi. 9, is frequently quoted and applied to the unbelieving Jews, John xii. 40; Acts xxviii. 26; Rom. xi. 8. Bp. Pearce. "By hearing ye shall hear;" that is, though ye hear, yet ye will not understand. Their not improving by what they heard, was not owing to any decree of God, but to their own inattention and perverseness. They closed their eyes that they might not see, and be converted and set right. It is through men's own obstinacy that they continue in errour and sin; for God is ever ready to extend His compassion and gracious assistance. Bp. Mann.

The words in Isaiah are spoken directly of the Jews in his time. It should be observed, however, that the Prophet asks at ver. 11 of chap. vi. "How long" shall this blindness last? "And the Lord answered, Until the cities be wasted," &c. that is, until they were to be totally taken and destroyed. Perverse then as they were in Isaiah's time, such they continued to be. And therefore our Saviour justly and literally spoke of them in His own days, as the Prophet had done in his. They were from first to last the same hardened hypocritical people: and therein was the prophecy concerning them truly fulfilled. Dr. H. Owen.

17. —many prophets and righteous men] Many Prophets who foretold the coming of the Messiah, many righteous men, as Abraham and the Patriarchs, have desired to see with their eyes these things, which they only beheld afar off in the promises made to them. Dr. Whitby.

19. When any one heareth — then cometh the wicked one, &c.] The meaning is this: He who has no consideration, no sober and serious and settled respect for religion, when his duty is propounded to him, gives no attention to it; it makes no impression on him; his own vicious habits, and the bad example and the contagious society of wicked persons, who are the children of the wicked one, are more prevalent than the word of God, and soon blot out the faint and floating remembrance of it: the man goes on in his thoughtless iniquity, and still pursues his evil courses. Dr. Jortin.

Of this irreclaimable class were those Pharisees who blasphemed then cometh the wicked one, and catcheth away that which was sown in his heart. This is he which received seed by the way side.

Anno DOMINI 31.

20 But he that received the seed into stony places, the same is he that heareth the word, and anon with joy receiveth it;

21 Yet hath he not root in himself, but dureth for a while: for when tribulation or persecution ariseth because of the word, by and by he is offended.

22 He also that received seed among the thorns is he that heareth the word; and the care of this world, and the deceitfulness of riches, choke the word, and he becometh unfruitful.

23 But he that received seed into the good ground is he that heareth the word, and understandeth it; which also beareth fruit, and bringeth forth, some an hundredfold, some sixty, some thirty.

24 ¶ Another parable put he forth unto them, saying, The kingdom of heaven is likened unto a man which sowed good seed in his field:

Anno DOMINI 31.

25 But while men slept, his enemy came and sowed tares among the wheat, and went his way.

26 But when the blade was sprung up, and brought forth fruit, then appeared the tares also.

27 So the servants of the housholder came and said unto him, Sir, didst not thou sow good seed in thy field? from whence then hath it tares?

28 He said unto them, An enemy hath done this. The servants said unto him, Wilt thou then that we go and gather them up?

29 But he said, Nay; lest while ye gather up the tares, ye root up also the wheat with them.

30 Let both grow together until the harvest: and in the time of harvest I will

---

Christ, as casting out devils through Beelzebub, and those mockers who on the day of Pentecost represented His Apostles as drunk; and, at the present day, those obstinate atheists and infidels who scoff at all religion, and at that of Christ in particular. Dr. Hales.

——understandeth it not] "Layeth it not to heart," "thinks not on it," "considers it not." Dr. Hammond.

——This is he which received seed] Here are meant those persons, whose minds, like the beaten high road, are hard and impenetrable, and inaccessible to conviction; also the thoughtless, inattentive, and trifling, those who think nothing beyond the present scene, and never concern themselves about the truths of the Gospel. These, the hardened unbeliever, and the mere nominal Christian, constitute the first class here described: they receive the seed "by the way side," where it lies neglected on the surface till "the fowls of the air devour it," or the wicked one catcheth it out of their hearts, and there is an end at once of all their hopes of salvation, perhaps for ever. Bp. Porteus.

Seed falling on the hard high way cannot possibly take root and bring forth fruit: it lies exposed and unguarded, the sun burns it, the frost kills it, the wind disperses it, the rain washes it away, the foot of the passenger and of the beast tramples and crushes it, the birds of the air pick it up and eat it. Sad image and melancholy representation of the worst of sinners! Dr. Jortin.

20. But he that received the seed into stony places,] The tribulation or persecution mentioned in the next verse refers more immediately to the first disciples and preachers of the Gospel, who were exposed to the severest trials from their enemies, and some of whom undoubtedly, not having sufficient root in themselves, gave way to the storms that assailed them, and made shipwreck of their faith, as our Lord foretells that they would. But by this second sort of hearers are generally represented also weak and unstable Christians; they who receive Christianity at first with gladness, but want strength of mind, soundness of principle, and sincerity of faith, to keep them stedfast in it, and are unwilling, in compliance with its commands, to give up their favourite interests, and restrain their strongest passions. Bp. Porteus.

Of this description were many in the days of Christ and the Apostles; and such are those lukewarm Christians of the present day, who are ashamed of Christ and His Gospel, and dare not hold fast the profession of their faith, amidst the scoffs of infidels, the gainsayings of hereticks, the evil example of degenerate and corrupt Christians, and the united opposition of a vain selfish world. Dr. Hales.

21. —he is offended.] He is discouraged and falls away. Bp. Mann.

22. He also that received &c.] Here are represented those Christians who in their youth receive religious instruction and imbibe right principles; but no sooner do they go forth into the world, than they take the road either of business or of pleasure, pursue their interests, amusements, or guilty indulgencies, with unbounded eagerness, and have neither time nor inclination to cultivate the seeds of religion that have been sown in their hearts, and to root out the weeds that have been mingled with them. The consequence is, that the weeds prevail, and the seeds are choked or lost. Bp. Porteus.

To this class of people religion is presented and propounded; and they assent to it, and receive it, and call themselves Christians: but many things arise between them and their duty, many avocations and impediments, which prevent the word of God from having a due effect on their hearts. Dr. Jortin.

23. —he that heareth the word, and understandeth it;] As St. Luke cites our Lord's words, "He that in an honest and good heart, having heard the word, keepeth it, and bringeth forth fruit with patience." We here see that the principal qualification for hearing the word of God, and for rendering it capable of bearing fruit in us, is an honest and a good heart, a heart clear from prejudice, pride, and self-conceit, sincerely disposed, and earnestly desirous to find the truth, and firmly resolved to embrace it when found; ready to acknowledge its own ignorance, and weakness, and corruption, and "to receive with meekness the engrafted word, which is able to save the soul." Bp. Porteus.

These hear the word and understand it, lay it to heart, call it to mind, meditate on the benefits arising from it, the danger of neglecting it, the reasonable and amiable nature of it, and the wisdom of preferring eternal life to all other considerations. This is the fair foundation, laid for a regular course of life, and an honest discharge of Christian duties. Dr. Jortin.

24. —The kingdom of heaven &c.] The object of this parable is, first, to shew that, notwithstanding all the care and vigilance of Christ's ministers, "offences must needs come" into the world, through the subtilty of the devil, who sows mischief in the hearts of men; and secondly, to point out the reason of that long-suffering forbearance towards sinners, which the Almighty is pleased to display. Dr. Hales.

25. —tares] Perhaps rather "the darnel," a plant which resembles the wheat more than tares, and therefore suits better with the terms of the parable. Dr. Campbell.

30. Let both grow together until the harvest:] It has ever say to the reapers, Gather ye together first the tares, and bind them in bundles to burn them: but gather the wheat into my barn.

Anno DOMINI 31.

31 ¶ Another parable put he forth unto them, saying, [f] The kingdom of heaven is like to a grain of mustard seed, which a man took, and sowed in his field:

32 Which indeed is the least of all seeds: but when it is grown, it is the greatest among herbs, and becometh a tree, so that the birds of the air come and lodge in the branches thereof.

33 ¶ [g] Another parable spake he unto them; The kingdom of heaven is like unto leaven, which a woman took, and hid in three † measures of meal, till the whole was leavened.

34 [h] All these things spake Jesus unto the multitude in parables; and without a parable spake he not unto them:

35 That it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophet, saying, [i] I will open my mouth in parables; I will utter things which have been kept secret from the foundation of the world.

36 Then Jesus sent the multitude away, and went into the house: and his disciples came unto him, saying, Declare unto us the parable of the tares of the field.

Anno DOMINI 31.

37 He answered and said unto them, He that soweth the good seed is the Son of man;

38 The field is the world; the good seed are the children of the kingdom; but the tares are the children of the wicked one;

39 The enemy that sowed them is the devil; [k] the harvest is the end of the world; and the reapers are the angels.

40 As therefore the tares are gathered and burned in the fire; so shall it be in the end of this world.

41 The Son of man shall send forth his angels, and they shall gather out of his kingdom all ‖ things that offend, and them which do iniquity;

42 And shall cast them into a furnace of fire: there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth.

43 [l] Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father. Who hath ears to hear, let him hear.

44 ¶ Again, the kingdom of heaven is like unto treasure hid in a field; the which when a man hath found, he hideth, and for

[f] Mark 4. 30. Luke 13. 19.

[g] Luke 13. 20.

† The word in the Greek is, a measure containing about a peck and a half, wanting a little more than a pint.

[h] Mark 4. 33.

[i] Ps. 78. 2.

[k] Joel 3. 13. Rev. 14. 15.

‖ Or, scandals.

[l] Dan. 12. 3.

---

been a most grievous stumblingblock, not only to the unthinking crowd, but also to men of serious thought and reflection, that so little distinction is apparently made in the world between the good and the bad, between the wheat and the tares, and that they are both suffered to grow together until the harvest. But amongst other reasons for this dispensation, founded on the mercy, the longsuffering, and the forbearance of God, we are supplied with a very important one in this parable. When the servants of the householder ask him whether they should not root up the tares, he answers, "Nay; lest while ye gather up the tares, ye root up also the wheat with them," ver. 29. The meaning is, that, in the present imperfect scene of things, the virtuous and the wicked are so intermingled, and so connected with each other, that it is frequently impossible to punish the guilty, without involving the innocent in their sufferings. On this ground, the best and most substantial reasons may exist for delaying the punishment of the wicked, both with respect to individuals and nations; and thus, while we are rashly calling out for immediate vengeance, the Judge of all the earth is full of tenderness and pity, and sees the best reasons for respiting the most notorious offenders. Bp. Porteus.

God mercifully and wisely permits this mixture of the good and the bad, for the trial of both, for the improvement of the one, and for the amendment of the other. Both pass their days together, both grow together till the harvest; and God makes His sun to shine and His rain to descend on both, and allows both to partake in common of the common blessings of His providence. Thus shall it be till the end of the world. Then the state of probation ceases, and the state of retribution begins, and there is no longer any reason for persons of such different tempers, views, and behaviour, to inhabit the same place. The wicked will then be separated from the righteous, banished from the presence of God, and sent to dwell with creatures of the same perverse dispositions. The fear even of this should be sufficient to warn us so to behave ourselves here, that hereafter we may not be doomed to such cursed society, but may live with God, and with beings who love and imitate Him. Dr. Jortin.

This parable shews that iniquity can neither be prevented, nor immediately punished, consistently with the wisdom and goodness of God; and thereby shuts out every complaint, and forces us to acknowledge that God is just in all His ways, and righteous in all His dealings with mankind. Bp. Sherlock.

31.—like to a grain of mustard seed,] The meaning of this parable is, that the Gospel of Christ, at its first appearing, seemed mean and contemptible, received only by a few, and those of low condition; but that, in time, it should spread over the whole earth; and that doctrines, which the Jews then despised and rejected, should be embraced and flourish among all the nations of the Gentiles. Dr. S. Clarke.

32. Which indeed is the least of all seeds:] Or, smaller than most other seeds; not strictly speaking, than all.

—— and becometh a tree,] So it is said to be, when suffered to come to its full growth in the Eastern countries. Bp. Pearce.

The mustard seed, which with us produces only a small plant, grows in the East to such a height, and to so considerable a size, that it affords a shade. Beausobre. In like manner, the state of the Gospel, small as it was at first, was daily increasing in a greater proportion, than could have been expected from its beginning. Bp. Mann.

33.—till the whole was leavened.] Thus, He implies, the Gospel, which now begins to be taught amongst men, shall, by the power and evidence of truth, insensibly spread itself in time through all the nations of the world. Dr. S. Clarke.

35.—by the prophet,] By Asaph, the composer of Psalm lxxviii. See that Psalm at ver. 2, 3.

39. The enemy that sowed them is the devil;] That inveterate implacable enemy (as the very name of Satan imports) of the human race, the original author of all our calamities, and, at this moment, the prime mover and great master-spring of all the wickedness and misery which overwhelm the world. Bp. Porteus.

41.—all things that offend,] All that tempt others to fall off from the profession of Christianity. Bp. Pearce. "All things that offend, and them which do iniquity;" all false teachers and impenitent sinners. Dr. S. Clarke.

42.—into a furnace of fire:] Into hell, the place of the execution of God's final vengeance. Dr. S. Clarke.

44.—like unto treasure] The design of this and the next joy thereof goeth and selleth all that he hath, and buyeth that field.

Anno DOMINI 31.

45 ¶ Again, the kingdom of heaven is like unto a merchant man, seeking goodly pearls:

46 Who, when he had found one pearl of great price, went and sold all that he had, and bought it.

47 ¶ Again, the kingdom of heaven is like unto a net, that was cast into the sea, and gathered of every kind:

48 Which, when it was full, they drew to shore, and sat down, and gathered the good into vessels, but cast the bad away.

49 So shall it be at the end of the world: the angels shall come forth, and sever the wicked from among the just,

50 And shall cast them into the furnace of fire: there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth.

51 Jesus saith unto them, Have ye understood all these things? They say unto him, Yea, Lord.

52 Then said he unto them, Therefore every scribe which is instructed unto the kingdom of heaven is like unto a man that is an housholder, which bringeth forth out of his treasure things new and old.

53 ¶ And it came to pass, that when Jesus had finished these parables, he departed thence.

Anno DOMINI 31.

54 [m] And when he was come into his own country, he taught them in their synagogue, insomuch that they were astonished, and said, Whence hath this man this wisdom, and these mighty works?

[m] Mark 6. 1. Luke 4. 16.

55 [n] Is not this the carpenter's son? is not his mother called Mary? and his brethren, James, and Joses, and Simon, and Judas?

[n] John 6. 42.

56 And his sisters, are they not all with us? Whence then hath this man all these things?

57 And they were offended in him. But Jesus said unto them, [o] A prophet is not without honour, save in his own country, and in his own house.

[o] Mark 6. 4. Luke 4. 24. John 4. 44.

58 And he did not many mighty works there because of their unbelief.

CHAP. XIV.

1 Herod's opinion of Christ. 3 Wherefore John Baptist was beheaded. 13 Jesus departeth into a desert place: 15 where he feedeth five thousand men with five loaves and two fishes: 22 he walketh on the sea to his disciples: 34 and landing at Gennesaret, healeth the sick by the touch of the hem of his garment.

A. D. 32. beginning.

AT that time [a] Herod the tetrarch heard of the fame of Jesus, parable is to represent in general that the Gospel of Jesus is the greatest of blessings. Bp. Pearce. Also to shew the different dispositions of the converts which the Apostles would make to the Gospel; some would embrace it with joy, when found as it were by accident, like treasure hid in the field; others, when found after diligent search, like the merchant seeking precious pearls, would purchase the field and the pearl of great price with all their substance. The last (ver. 47.) alludes to the occupation of the Apostles as fishermen, and represents them as catching men indiscriminately of all sorts, both good and bad, to compose the visible Church of Christ. Dr. Hales.

[a] Mark 6. 14. Luke 9. 7.

52. — Therefore every scribe &c.] He warns them, that they should lay up these doctrines in their minds, that they may be thoroughly qualified to become preachers of the Gospel, and be able on all occasions to bring forth out of their memories, as out of a well furnished storehouse, instructions suited to persons of all capacities. Dr. S. Clarke.

54. — into his own country,] Nazareth, where He had been brought up, Luke iv. 16. Bp. Pearce.

—— Whence hath this man this wisdom,] Well may we ask, as the Jews on this occasion did with another spirit, Whence hath this Man wisdom? What education had Jesus, what patterns to form Himself upon, to become the man He was? By what train of thinking could He be led to conceive, by what prospects could He be moved to undertake, by what power was He enabled to accomplish, the unparalleled things He did? To imagine that such a Person could have existed by accident, is monstrously unreasonable. But, that He should also have fallen by accident just into that single country, in which there was a system of religion that He could build on, with a series of predictions applicable to Himself; and just at that period too, when these predictions had so pointed Him out, as to raise an universal expectation of Him; that, under all the disadvantages of a low condition, He should have spirit enough to make and maintain the highest of claims, sagacity enough to interpret the ancient oracles in a much sublimer and juster sense than any of the most learned instructors of the people, and self-denial enough to prefer, in consequence of these interpretations, persecution and crucifixion before the safety of a private station, or the splendour of offered dominion; that every one of these things (and many others equally strange) should meet in the same person, without the special appointment of Heaven, exceeds all power of chance. Consider Him only as a man, and He appears to have been the greatest and best of men. The general reasonableness of His doctrine, the coolness of His temper, the composedness and familiarity of His whole conversation, prove He was no enthusiast; the unvaried goodness of His life, the willingness with which He suffered death, the impossibility which He could not but see of attaining any worldly advantage by the course which He took, prove sufficiently well that He was no impostor. What must He then have been? And what else can we gather from His whole behaviour, than what the spectators did from the finishing scene of it upon the cross, "Truly this was the Son of God," Matt. xxvii. 54. Abp. Secker.

55. — carpenter's son?] The word, translated carpenter, means one who worked in iron, wood, or stone. It is the ancient tradition of the Church that Joseph was a carpenter. Beausobre.

—— his brethren,] It has been the most ancient and general opinion, that by the brethren of our Lord, are meant the sons of Joseph, the husband of His mother Mary, by a former wife. But St. Jerome, comparing together John xix. 25, Matt. xxvii. 56, Mark xv. 40, infers, that these were the sons of His mother's sister, the wife of Cleophas; it being consistent with the language of the Jews to call cousins by the name of brethren. Dr. Whitby.

57. — they were offended in him.] They slighted Him for the meanness of His parentage, and rejected His doctrine out of prejudice to His person. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— A prophet is not without honour,] An usual adage among the Jews, implying that he is less honoured in his own country than elsewhere. Grotius.

Chap. XIV. ver. 1. — Herod the tetrarch] Herod Antipas. See

Anno DOMINI 32. beginning.

2 And said unto his servants, This is John the Baptist; he is risen from the dead; and therefore mighty works ‖ do shew forth themselves in him.

‖ Or, are wrought by him.

3 ¶ [b] For Herod had laid hold on John, and bound him, and put him in prison for Herodias' sake, his brother Philip's wife.

A. D. 30.
[b] Luke 3. 19.

4 For John said unto him, [c] It is not lawful for thee to have her.

[c] Lev. 18. 16. & 20. 21.

5 And when he would have put him to death, he feared the multitude, [d] because they counted him as a prophet.

[d] Chap. 21. 26.

6 But when Herod's birthday was kept, the daughter of Herodias danced before them, and pleased Herod.

7 Whereupon he promised with an oath to give her whatsoever she would ask.

Anno DOMINI 30.

8 And she, being before instructed of her mother, said, Give me here John Baptist's head in a charger.

9 And the king was sorry: nevertheless for the oath's sake, and them which sat with him at meat, he commanded it to be given her.

10 And he sent, and beheaded John in the prison.

11 And his head was brought in a charger, and given to the damsel: and she brought it to her mother.

12 And his disciples came, and took up

---

note at chap. ii. 1. He is called tetrarch, because he had a fourth part of the dominions of Herod the Great, his father.

2. — This is John the Baptist; he is risen &c.] Herod, like most other persons of high rank at that time, was of the sect of the Sadducees, who denied the immortality of the soul, and the doctrine of a resurrection. His opinions therefore must have made him completely adverse to the idea of John the Baptist being risen from the dead. Yet the fears of Herod overruled all the prejudices of his sect, and raised up before his eyes the semblance of the murdered Baptist. Bp. Porteus. It was his guilty conscience that told him this was John the Baptist. He had murdered the holy man to please a lewd woman: and no sooner did he hear that there was one in the country who wrought miracles, than he concluded the Baptist was come from the grave, armed with power to take vengeance for his iniquities, and his own wrongs. Bp. Sherlock.

3. For Herod &c.] The Evangelist, having thus mentioned John the Baptist, goes back a little in his narrative, to make the reader acquainted with that part of the Baptist's history, which brought down upon him the resentment of Herod, and was the occasion of his death. Bp. Porteus.

—— for Herodias' sake, his brother Philip's wife.] Herodias was daughter of Aristobulus, a son of the first king Herod, and sister to Herod Agrippa, mentioned Acts xii. 1. Philip was son of the first Herod, but by a different mother from Herod Antipas. Bp. Pearce. Herod Antipas had been married a considerable time to the daughter of Aretas, king of Arabia Petrea; but conceiving a violent passion for his brother Philip's wife, Herodias, he first seduced her affections from her husband, then dismissed his own wife, and married Herodias, during the lifetime of his brother. Bp. Porteus.

4. — It is not lawful for thee] This was forbidden by the Levitical law. See Lev. xviii. 16, and xx. 21. Bp. Pearce. John had the honesty and courage to reproach the tyrant with the enormity of his guilt, although he could not be ignorant of the danger incurred by such a measure; but he determined to do his duty, and to take the consequences. Bp. Porteus.

5. — they counted him as a prophet.] As a teacher sent from God. Another reason for Herod's forbearance is mentioned by St. Mark, (chap. vi. 20,) that Herod feared John, that is, reverenced him, "knowing that he was a just and holy man." Bp. Pearce.

6. — the daughter of Herodias] Named Salome. She danced in publick, according to a very ancient custom of kings of the East, on festival occasions. Beausobre.

7. Whereupon he promised with an oath] The folly, the rashness, and the madness of such an oath as this, on so foolish an occasion, could be exceeded by nothing but the horrible purpose to which it was perverted by her to whom it was given, and her profligate instructor. Bp. Porteus.

8. — being before instructed of her mother,] We see here a fatal proof of the extreme barbarities to which that most diabolical sentiment of revenge will drive the natural tenderness even of a female mind; what a close connexion there is between crimes of apparently a very different complexion, and how frequently the uncontrolled indulgence of what are called the softer affections, leads ultimately to the most violent excesses of the malignant passions. We also find here a most awful warning held out, not only to the female sex, but to both sexes, to persons of all ages and conditions, to beware of giving way to any one evil propensity in their nature, however it may be disguised under popular names, however indulgently it may be treated by the world, however it may be authorized by general practice; because it is here seen that they may not only be led into the grossest extravagancies of that individual passion, but may also be insensibly betrayed into the commission of crimes of the deepest dye, which in their serious moments they always contemplated with the utmost horrour. Bp. Porteus.

—— in a charger.] "A charger" or large dish. Dr. Johnson. This is conformable to what frequently occurs at this day under some Eastern governments, as those of Turkey and Persia, where, when a warrant is issued for the execution of any person, an officer, called a capidgi, immediately takes it to him, puts him to death, and cutting off his head carries it to his master, in proof of his having executed the commission. Sir J. Chardin.

9. — the king was sorry:] The savage request appalled even the unfeeling heart of Herod himself. He was unprepared for such a request, and, though disgusted with John, did not choose to proceed to this extremity against him. Bp. Porteus.

It should be observed, in how dispassionate a manner, and with what uncommon candour St. Matthew relates this most atrocious action. He uses no exaggeration or invective; and there is no allowance in extenuation of Herod's conduct, which even a friend could have suggested, that this historian is not ready to make. Dr. Campbell.

—— nevertheless for the oath's sake,] Herod, instead of retreating by the only way he had left, that of retracting a promise which it was madness to make, and the extremity of wickedness to perform, was induced by a false point of honour (as worthless men frequently are) to commit an atrocious murder rather than violate a rash oath; an oath which could never make that right, which was before intrinsically wrong, which could never bind him to any thing in itself unlawful, much less to the most unlawful of all things, the destruction of an innocent and virtuous man. Bp. Porteus.

The speedy termination of the Baptist's ministry and life was, according to St. Chrysostom, designed by Providence, that the people might not be divided in opinion between him and Jesus. Thus, after spending nearly a year in prison, this holy man was wantonly sacrificed to the licentious fascinations of a young woman, instigated by the implacable vengeance of her mother, and to the rash oath of a worthless and merciless prince, which had far better been broken than kept. Dr. Hales.

Anno DOMINI 30. A. D. 32.

the body, and buried it, and went and told Jesus.

13 ¶ [e] When Jesus heard of it, he departed thence by ship into a desert place apart: and when the people had heard thereof, they followed him on foot out of the cities.

[e] Mark 6. 32. Luke 9. 10.

14 And Jesus went forth, and saw a great multitude, and was moved with compassion toward them, and he healed their sick.

15 ¶ [f] And when it was evening, his disciples came to him, saying, This is a desert place, and the time is now past; send the multitude away, that they may go into the villages, and buy themselves victuals.

[f] John 6. 5. Mark 6. 35.

16 But Jesus said unto them, They need not depart; give ye them to eat.

17 And they say unto him, We have here but five loaves, and two fishes.

18 He said, Bring them hither to me.

19 And he commanded the multitude to sit down on the grass, and took the five loaves, and the two fishes, and looking up to heaven, he blessed, and brake, and gave the loaves to his disciples, and the disciples to the multitude.

Anno DOMINI 32.

20 And they did all eat, and were filled: and they took up of the fragments that remained twelve baskets full.

21 And they that had eaten were about five thousand men, beside women and children.

22 ¶ And straightway Jesus constrained his disciples to get into a ship, and to go before him unto the other side, while he sent the multitudes away.

23 [g] And when he had sent the multitudes away, he went up into a mountain apart to pray: [h] and when the evening was come, he was there alone.

[g] Mark 6. 46. [h] John 6. 16.

24 But the ship was now in the midst of

---

13. — into a desert place] St. Luke adds at chap. ix. 10, "belonging to the city called Bethsaida."

—— on foot] Rather, "by land." It appears that Jesus did not cross the sea of Galilee, but proceeded in the ship along the shore. Bp. Pearce. The word in the original means "on foot," when contrasted with "on horseback;" and "by land," when opposed to "by sea." Dr. Campbell.

15. — when it was evening,] When the evening was coming on; see ver. 23, where it is said that "the evening was come," after the whole affair was over. Bp. Pearce.

—— a desert place,] "As we rode from the village of Hatti towards the sea of Tiberias, the guides pointed to a sloping spot from the heights on our right, whence we had descended, as the place where the miracle was performed of our Saviour feeding the multitude: it is therefore called the multiplication of bread; as the mount above, where the sermon was preached to His disciples, is called the mountain of Beatitudes, from the expressions used at the beginning of that discourse." Dr. E. D. Clarke.

—— the time is now past;] The day is now spent. Dr. Whitby. Or else, the time of supper, the time of making the chief meal, which in that country was commonly after the heat of the day began to abate. Bp. Pearce.

19. — he blessed,] Gave thanks to God. Dr. S. Clarke. It is becoming in all Christians to imitate the example of their Divine Master, in returning thanks to God at their daily meals, both to acknowledge His unceasing liberality, and to pray that the food may be sanctified to them, by tending to promote their health and welfare. Dean Stanhope.

21. And they that had eaten &c.] This miracle of multiplying the loaves and fishes was a very extraordinary and astonishing instance of our Lord's power over nature, and was calculated to make a most powerful impression on the minds of the spectators. But it seems to have had a spiritual as well as a literal meaning; bearing reference to that spiritual food, that celestial manna, that bread of life which our Lord was then dispensing in such abundance to those that hungered and thirsted after righteousness. Bp. Porteus.

This feeding of so vast a multitude, by a method altogether extraordinary and miraculous, should be used as a seasonable hint, to make us duly consider and acknowledge that bounteous providence of God, which every day feeds numbers infinitely greater, in a most wonderful, though ordinary manner. For what proportion do five thousand men bear to those numberless kindreds and countries that constantly subsist on His liberality? What is this one marvellous enlargement of five loaves and two fishes, to the inconceivable productions of animals, the variety of plants and herbs, and other increase of the earth; and the many unknown ways by which He opens His hand, and filleth all things living with plenteousness? Dean Stanhope.

22. And straightway Jesus &c.] It is related by St. John, (chap. vi. 15,) that the multitude, after the miracle of the loaves, designed to make Him a king. Dr. Wells.

23. — And when he had sent &c. — he went up into a mountain apart to pray:] We here read that our Saviour, after having spent the day in acts of charity, in relieving and instructing the people, withdrew to a secret place, where He spent the evening alone, in prayer and contemplation. From His example we learn, 1st, that we ought to set apart some portions of our time for private and silent acts of religion, for conversation with God and our own hearts. 2dly, That we ought to employ all the powers and abilities which God has conferred upon us, to the glory of their Author, and the benefit of mankind. Our Saviour spent the day in feeding and teaching the people. 3dly, That the active and social duties are more valuable than the contemplative virtues which are of a private and solitary nature. Our Saviour left not the people till the evening came on, and the hours which He passed in solitude and retirement were few, compared with those which He spent in the discharge of His ministry. 4thly, That, as our Saviour had, so we have, time enough for the one and the other, for the exercise of publick and of private duties and virtues, and that therefore neither should be omitted. Dr. Jortin.

The life of our Lord was a mixture of contemplation and action, of austerity and freedom; we find Him often, where the greatest concourse was, in the market-places, synagogues, and at festival entertainments; and we find Him also retiring from the crowd into a desert, or a garden, and there employing Himself in all kinds of religious exercise, and intercourse with God, in fasting, meditation, and prayer. In imitation of His spotless example, we may, doubtless, lead publick lives innocently and usefully; conversing with men, and doing them good; mutually sowing and reaping the several comforts and advantages of human society. But because the pleasures of conversation, when too freely tasted, are intoxicating and dangerous, because the temptations we there meet with are many and mighty; and even where the spirit is willing to resist, yet the flesh is often weak; we ought therefore to lessen the too great complacence we are apt to have in such satisfactions, by proper intermissions of them; to strengthen ourselves for such publick encounters, by our religious privacies; to retire from the world sometimes, and converse with God and our own consciences; examining the state, and fortifying the power of our souls in secrecy and silence: we must do, as our Lord did, "send the multitudes away, and go up into a mountain apart to pray." Bp. Atterbury.

Anno DOMINI 32.

the sea, tossed with waves: for the wind was contrary.

25 And in the fourth watch of the night Jesus went unto them, walking on the sea.

26 And when the disciples saw him walking on the sea, they were troubled, saying, It is a spirit; and they cried out for fear.

27 But straightway Jesus spake unto them, saying, Be of good cheer; it is I; be not afraid.

28 And Peter answered him and said, Lord, if it be thou, bid me come unto thee on the water.

29 And he said, Come. And when Peter was come down out of the ship, he walked on the water, to go to Jesus.

h Or, strong.

30 But when he saw the wind ‖ boisterous, he was afraid; and beginning to sink, he cried, saying, Lord, save me.

31 And immediately Jesus stretched forth his hand, and caught him, and said unto him, O thou of little faith, wherefore didst thou doubt?

32 And when they were come into the ship, the wind ceased.

33 Then they that were in the ship came and worshipped him, saying, Of a truth thou art the Son of God.

i Mark 6. 53.

34 ¶ [i] And when they were gone over, they came into the land of Gennesaret.

35 And when the men of that place had knowledge of him, they sent out into all that country round about, and brought unto him all that were diseased;

Anno DOMINI 32.

36 And besought him that they might only touch the hem of his garment: and as many as touched were made perfectly whole.

CHAP. XV.

3 Christ reproveth the scribes and Pharisees for transgressing God's commandments through their own traditions: 11 teacheth how that which goeth into the mouth doth not defile a man. 21 He healeth the daughter of the woman of Canaan, 30 and other great multitudes: 32 and with seven loaves and a few little fishes feedeth four thousand men, beside women and children.

THEN [a] came to Jesus scribes and Pharisees, which were of Jerusalem, saying, a Mark 7. 1.

2 Why do thy disciples transgress the tradition of the elders? for they wash not their hands when they eat bread.

3 But he answered and said unto them, Why do ye also transgress the commandment of God by your tradition?

4 For God commanded, saying, [b] Honour thy father and mother: and, [c] He that curseth father or mother, let him die the death.

b Exod. 20. 12. Deut. 5. 16.
c Exod. 21. 17. Lev. 20. 9. Prov. 20. 20.

5 But ye say, Whosoever shall say to his father or his mother, [d] It is a gift, by whatsoever thou mightest be profited by me;

d Mark 7. 11, 12.

---

25. — in the fourth watch] Between the hours of three and six in the morning. The Jews in these later times divided the night into four watches, ending respectively, at nine, twelve, three, and six o'clock, having learnt this division from the Romans.

—— walking on the sea.] To walk on the sea is mentioned as the peculiar mark and proof of Divine power at Job ix. 8. Dr. Whitby.

31. — wherefore didst thou doubt?] This miracle of Christ walking on the sea seems to have been designed to encourage the great principle of faith, and of trust and reliance upon God. The reproof of our Lord was well calculated to convince St. Peter, that it was in proportion to the degree and perseverance of his faith that he must rise or sink. And what He says to Peter, He says to all who waver in their belief, "O ye of little faith, wherefore do ye doubt?" Bp. Porteus.

33. — Of a truth thou art &c.] In St. Mark's Gospel, chap. vi. 51, it is mentioned, that "they were amazed beyond measure" at this miracle of walking on the sea; they were overwhelmed and overcome with this astonishing display of Divine power; and exclaimed, falling at His feet, as every one who considers this stupendous miracle must do, "Of a truth Thou art the Son of God." Bp. Porteus.

—— the Son of God.] The true Messiah, the Redeemer of Israel. Dr. S. Clarke.

34. — the land of Gennesaret.] The part of Galilee, which bordered the lake of Gennesaret on the west. This tract of country is described by Josephus as remarkable for the salubrity of its air, and the fertility of its soil, producing fruits of various kinds in great quantities, and in high perfection. Dr. Wells.

Chap. XV. ver. 2. — the tradition of the elders?] Josephus tells us that the Pharisees delivered many things to the people for legal injunctions, which they received from their fathers, but which were not written in the law of Moses; and that therefore the sect of the Sadducees rejected them, saying, that those things which are written, ought to be accounted legal, and that men ought not to observe such as come only by tradition from the fathers. Bp. Pearce.

—— wash not their hands] The custom of washing their hands before their meals was so strictly commanded among the Jews at this time, that, to neglect it, was to be held guilty of a heavy and capital crime. "He that taketh meat with unwashen hands," says one of their rabbies, "is worthy of death." Dr. Hammond.

4. — and, He that curseth &c.] See note at Lev. xx. 9.

—— let him die the death.] He shall surely be put to death, Exod. xxi. 17.

5. — It is a gift, &c.] At Mark vii. 11. it is expressed, "It is Corban:" it means probably some person or thing declared by vow or otherwise to be given to God, and therefore so sacred, as not to be applied to any other purpose. Bp. Pearce. Allusion is made to a method of rendering void the precept to relieve parents, practised by the Jews at this time. It was held by the traditions of the elders, that, if a son made a formal devotion to sacred purposes of those goods which he could afford for the relief of a parent, it was then not lawful for him to succour his parent. And, what was most strange, he was not held to be bound by his words to devote his estate to sacred uses; but, not to relieve the parent, he was inviolably bound. Dr. Lightfoot. The plain meaning of the passage is; A father, being in want, requires relief of his son; the son answers, that he has vowed to God what might have relieved his parent, and that so it becomes unlawful for him to relieve him: and the Pharisees approve of this practice, that he may thus make void his duty to his parent, in a manner quite contrary to the precept of honouring and relieving him. Dr. Hammond.

Anno DOMINI 32.

6 And honour not his father or his mother, he shall be free. Thus have ye made the commandment of God of none effect by your tradition.

7 Ye hypocrites, well did Esaias prophesy of you, saying,

[e] Isai. 29. 13.

8 [e] This people draweth nigh unto me with their mouth, and honoureth me with their lips; but their heart is far from me.

9 But in vain they do worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men.

[f] Mark 7. 14.

10 ¶ [f] And he called the multitude, and said unto them, Hear, and understand:

11 Not that which goeth into the mouth defileth a man; but that which cometh out of the mouth, this defileth a man.

12 Then came his disciples, and said unto him, Knowest thou that the Pharisees were offended, after they heard this saying?

[g] John 15. 2.

13 But he answered and said, [g] Every plant, which my heavenly Father hath not planted, shall be rooted up.

[h] Luke 6. 39.

14 Let them alone: [h] they be blind leaders of the blind. And if the blind lead the blind, both shall fall into the ditch.

Anno DOMINI 32.

15 [i] Then answered Peter and said unto him, Declare unto us this parable.

[i] Mark 7. 17.

16 And Jesus said, Are ye also yet without understanding?

17 Do not ye yet understand, that whatsoever entereth in at the mouth goeth into the belly, and is cast out into the draught?

18 But those things which proceed out of the mouth come forth from the heart; and they defile the man.

19 [k] For out of the heart proceed evil thoughts, murders, adulteries, fornications, thefts, false witness, blasphemies:

[k] Gen. 6. 5. & 8. 21.

20 These are the things which defile a man: but to eat with unwashen hands defileth not a man.

21 ¶ [l] Then Jesus went thence, and departed into the coasts of Tyre and Sidon.

[l] Mark 7. 24.

22 And, behold, a woman of Canaan came out of the same coasts, and cried unto him, saying, Have mercy on me, O Lord, thou son of David; my daughter is grievously vexed with a devil.

---

6. — Thus have ye made &c.] He tells them, that neither acts of charity nor of devotion can be well-timed, when they obstruct men in their duty to their parents. God will accept of nothing till this necessary duty be paid at home: and when they divert, even to sacred uses, what is required for the relief and comfort of a parent in want, the holy treasury is defiled by the offensive offering. Dr. Ogden.

7. — well did Esaias prophesy &c.] Rather, teach concerning you; that is, use words which are applicable to you. Bp. Pearce. He means to say, You are the sort of Jewish hypocrites, of which Esaias prophesied. Dr. Hammond.

10. — Hear, and understand:] Attend and consider, that ye may understand. Bp. Mann.

11. Not that which goeth into &c.] He says, Real purity and impurity do not consist in outward cleanliness or uncleanliness of body, but they are the inward and moral dispositions of the mind. Nothing that entereth into a man's mouth, and goeth into his stomach, can of itself make him appear sinful or unclean in the sight of God: those things only which come out of a man, the thoughts and desires proceeding from his heart and mind, can defile him in this sense. Dr. S. Clarke.

12. — the Pharisees were offended,] Were scandalized; were not induced, by what our Saviour said, to reject their own doctrine, but His, and to deny Him to be the true Messiah. Dr. Whitby.

They were offended, not less at the superiority of His arguments, which silenced them, than at the diminution of their reputation with the multitude, as "blind guides," who cavilled indeed at trifles, and were zealous for external purity, while by their captious questions and calumnies they were plotting against His reputation and His life. Dr. Hales.

13. — Every plant,] The Greek word properly means "every plantation, or nursery of plants," thus fitly applying to a multitude of men, as here the sect of the Pharisees. Dr. Hammond. The expression implies, that both they and their doctrines, not being of God, shall be destroyed, and perish together. Dr. S. Clarke.

14. — they be blind &c.] They are blind ignorant teachers, knowing not the truth, and refusing to be instructed in it: they shall perish therefore in their obstinacy themselves, and as many as will be led by them, preferring ignorance and superstition before knowledge and true religion, shall also perish with them. Dr. S. Clarke.

15. — this parable.] The saying at ver. 11.

21. — into the coasts of Tyre and Sidon.] Rather, "the parts" or inland countries belonging to the cities of Tyre and Sidon. Bp. Pearce.

22. — a woman of Canaan] A Canaanitish woman. St. Mark (chap. vii. 26.) calls her "a Greek, (or Gentile,) a Syrophenician by nation."

The old inhabitants of this tract were descendants of Canaan, not driven out by the Israelites; whence this part of the country seems to have retained the name of Canaan, long after the name had ceased in the parts which were taken possession of by the Israelites. The Greeks called the tract inhabited by the old Canaanites along the Mediterranean sea, Phenicia; the more inland parts, as being inhabited partly by Canaanites or Phenicians, and partly by Syrians, Syrophenicia. Hence this woman is said by St. Matthew to be of Canaan, but by St. Mark to be "a Syrophenician by nation," as she was "a Greek" by religion and language. Dr. Wells.

—— Have mercy on me, O Lord, &c.] This woman was under a sore calamity; and nothing sooner awakens, and more effectually disposes us to implore the mercy of God, than adversity. Sufferings make us active and ingenious in seeking out relief, and in trying every expedient, even when there is small reason to hope for success. So that in this point of view those calamities might be accounted Divine favours, which, surpassing all human relief, force us to have recourse immediately to God Himself; to God, whom we are strangely inclined to forget in the day of prosperity. Dr. Jortin.

—— O Lord, thou son of David;] This woman, living on the borders of the Holy Land, had probably learnt by conversation with the Jews, and with her own citizens, that in those days an illustrious Prophet and Prince was expected to arise in Judea, and that He was to descend from the house of David; and, as many believed that Jesus was this promised Deliverer, and as He had proved Himself by His miracles to be above the ordinary condition of men, she calls Him by the titles of "Lord," and "Son of David." Dr. Jortin.

Anno DOMINI 32.

23 But he answered her not a word. And his disciples came and besought him, saying, Send her away; for she crieth after us.

[m] Chap. 10. 6.

24 But he answered and said, [m] I am not sent but unto the lost sheep of the house of Israel.

25 Then came she and worshipped him, saying, Lord, help me.

26 But he answered and said, It is not meet to take the children's bread, and to cast it to dogs.

27 And she said, Truth, Lord: yet the dogs eat of the crumbs which fall from their masters' table.

28 Then Jesus answered and said unto her, O woman, great is thy faith: be it unto thee even as thou wilt. And her daughter was made whole from that very hour.

[n] Mark 7. 31.

29 [n] And Jesus departed from thence, and came nigh unto the sea of Galilee; and went up into a mountain, and sat down there.

Isai. 35. 5.

30 [o] And great multitudes came unto him, having with them those that were lame, blind, dumb, maimed, and many others, and cast them down at Jesus' feet; and he healed them:

Anno DOMINI 32.

31 Insomuch that the multitude wondered, when they saw the dumb to speak, the maimed to be whole, the lame to walk, and the blind to see: and they glorified the God of Israel.

[p] Mark 8. 1.

32 ¶ [p] Then Jesus called his disciples unto him, and said, I have compassion on the multitude, because they continue with me now three days, and have nothing to eat: and I will not send them away fasting, lest they faint in the way.

33 And his disciples say unto him, Whence should we have so much bread in the wilderness, as to fill so great a multitude?

34 And Jesus saith unto them, How many loaves have ye? And they said, Seven, and a few little fishes.

35 And he commanded the multitude to sit down on the ground.

36 And he took the seven loaves and the fishes, and gave thanks, and brake them, and gave to his disciples, and the disciples to the multitude.

---

23. But he answered her not a word.] Our Lord, who knows the hearts of men, both saw and esteemed the good disposition of this petitioner; but for a time He concealed His kind intentions, being willing to exercise her faith and submission, her patience and perseverance, to make her virtue manifest to the by-standers, and to make her also sensible of the true value of the favour which she at last obtained. Dr. Jortin.

This was the first instance in which our Lord's aid had been invoked by a person, neither by birth an Israelite, nor by profession a worshipper of the God of Israel. The miracle, which He was presently to work for her, was to be an action of no small importance; being a prelude to the disclosure of the great mystery, that through Him the gate of mercy was opened to the Gentiles. It was fit therefore that she should be put to some previous trial of her faith, and shew herself in some sort worthy of so high a preference. Bp. Horsley.

—— Send her away;] That is, give her a favourable dismission, and an answer of peace. Doubtless they were surprised at the coldness and silence of Christ; and not presuming directly to press Him, they take another method, and ask Him to relieve them from the importunity of the petitioner. Dr. Jortin.

24. — but unto the lost sheep &c.] Meaning the whole nation of the Jews, who being as sheep dispersed without a shepherd, are therefore called "lost sheep," Matt. x. 6. Dr. Whitby. The benefit of His miracles and doctrines was a benefit at present intended for Jews only; not for Gentiles, such as this woman was. Dean Stanhope.

26. — to dogs.] The Jews used to say, that the nations of the world were likened unto dogs; whereas they (the Jews) were the children of God. Our Saviour here uses the word according to the common speech of that nation. Dr. Lightfoot. See note at Mark vii. 27.

Our Lord, by this answer, intended to prove her, not to insult her; for she was recommended in His sight by her faith, her humility, and her affliction. Dr. Jortin.

27. — Truth, Lord: yet &c.] The word, rendered "truth," is a form of beseeching; "I beseech thee, Lord; for even the dogs" &c. Drs. Hammond and Whitby.

The woman, pursuing her request, which had been already declared by our Saviour inconsistent with the methods and design of His present mission, was answered by a proverb, upbraiding her unworthiness, seemingly chiding her presumption in conceiving any hopes of it: still she desists not, being content to be reckoned as a dog in comparison of the Jews, who had the honour of being treated as children. But from thence she forms an argument, to put in a claim for one miracle in her behalf, bearing a very small proportion to the numberless mercies of that kind vouchsafed to the Jews; for the crumbs that fall, compared to their full table. Dean Stanhope. See note at Mark vii. 28.

28. — O woman, great is thy faith:] Thus she obtained the approbation of One whose praise could not be bestowed amiss. He admired and loved a faith so thoroughly examined and proved, and in her he beheld with pleasure the success of His ministry, and the execution of His Father's designs in the conversion of the Gentile world. Dr. Jortin.

—— be it unto thee &c.] Our Saviour, at last, not only grants her application, which He before in appearance denied, but even commends it, and does it signal honour. We hence derive an example, that God may often delay to answer the prayers of His servants, for the purpose of increasing their virtue, of making it more conspicuous, and of thus rendering them more worthy of the benefits for which they petition. Had the Canaanitish woman been gratified on her first suit, she would not have made so noble a figure in the history of our Saviour's miracles: and the easiness of obtaining a boon, to which, as a stranger to Israel, she had no claim, would have been matter of offence to the Jews. But the frequent repulses she so bravely sustained, took away all ground of exception, justified our Lord in departing from His common method, and made her a pattern even to Christians of all future ages. In like manner does our heavenly Father deal with His children on all occasions. He tries those tempers by suspending His mercies, which indulgence and readiness to give are apt to spoil. He makes us feel our dependence, and trains us up to patience and resignation, to trust and constancy: for indeed we are not worthy to receive, till we are perfectly satisfied that He is the properest Judge, when, as well as how, and what, to give; and that, in all these regards, He proceeds upon reasons, not only wise in themselves, but beneficial to us. Dean Stanhope.

29. — and came nigh unto the sea &c.] St. Mark (chap. vii. 31) adds, "through the midst of the coasts of Decapolis." Bp. Pearce.

Anno DOMINI 32.

37 And they did all eat, and were filled: and they took up of the broken meat that was left seven baskets full.

38 And they that did eat were four thousand men, beside women and children.

39 And he sent away the multitude, and took ship, and came into the coasts of Magdala.

CHAP. XVI.

1 The Pharisees require a sign. 6 Jesus warneth his disciples of the leaven of the Pharisees and Sadducees. 13 The people's opinion of Christ, 16 and Peter's confession of him. 21 Jesus foreshewth his death, 23 reproving Peter for dissuading him from it: 24 and admonisheth those that will follow him, to bear the cross.

[a] Mark 8. 11. Luke 12. 54.

THE [a] Pharisees also with the Sadducees came, and tempting desired him that he would shew them a sign from heaven.

2 He answered and said unto them, When it is evening, ye say, It will be fair weather: for the sky is red.

3 And in the morning, It will be foul weather to day: for the sky is red and lowring. O ye hypocrites, ye can discern the face of the sky; but can ye not discern the signs of the times?

4 A wicked and adulterous generation seeketh after a sign; and there shall no sign be given unto it, but the sign of the prophet Jonas. And he left them, and departed.

5 And when his disciples were come to the other side, they had forgotten to take bread.

Anno DOMINI 32.

6 ¶ Then Jesus said unto them, Take heed and beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and of the Sadducees.

7 And they reasoned among themselves, saying, It is because we have taken no bread.

8 Which when Jesus perceived, he said unto them, O ye of little faith, why reason ye among yourselves, because ye have brought no bread?

9 [b] Do ye not yet understand, neither remember the five loaves of the five thousand, and how many baskets ye took up?

[b] Chap. 14. 17.

10 [c] Neither the seven loaves of the four thousand, and how many baskets ye took up?

[c] Chap. 15. 34.

11 How is it that ye do not understand that I spake it not to you concerning bread, that ye should beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and of the Sadducees?

12 Then understood they how that he bade them not beware of the leaven of bread, but of the doctrine of the Pharisees and of the Sadducees.

13 ¶ When Jesus came into the coasts of Cesarea Philippi, he asked his disciples, saying, [d] Whom do men say that I the Son of man am?

[d] Mark 8. 27. Luke 9. 18.

---

39. — into the coasts of Magdala.] St. Mark (chap. viii. 10.) says, "into the parts of Dalmanutha." The country, into which Jesus came, lay between or adjoining to both of these towns, which were situated on the eastern coast of the sea of Galilee. Dr. Wells.

Chap. XVI. ver. 1. The Pharisees also with the Sadducees] Though these two sects were completely opposed to each other, yet they both agreed to tempt Him, by asking Him for what they thought it was not in His power to grant. Bp. Pearce.

—— a sign from heaven.] Some miraculous sign, immediately from heaven, which might demonstrate Him to be sent by God, and to act by His power and commission. Dr. S. Clarke. They asked for some such publick sign, as when Moses brought the manna from heaven, and Elijah brought down fire, when Joshua stayed the sun in its course, and Isaiah caused its shadow to go backwards. Dr. Lightfoot.

3. — hypocrites,] He so calls them, because they pretended to be in want of further proof for their conviction of His being the Messiah, although in reality they did not desire it. Beausobre.

—— but can ye not discern &c.] Can ye not learn from the predictions of the Prophets, and from the things which ye see accordingly come to pass, the time and person of the Messiah. Dr. S. Clarke.

4. — there shall no sign be given &c.] It is evident that the Jews, in asking a sign, were actuated by prejudice and perverseness, which had already made them withstand the clearest evidence, and the greatest miracles; and which it was in vain to expect to conquer by working more miracles. It was therefore as reasonable to refuse to work more, as it is, not to persist in reasoning with a man who shews that he reasons only for the sake of contention, without any concern to discover truth. Dr. Gerard.

—— but the sign of the prophet Jonas.] As Jonah's being preserved three days in the fish's belly was a sign of his being a true Prophet sent from God; so the circumstance of My being buried three days in the earth, and then rising up from thence, shall be to you a sign that I also am a Prophet sent from God, to call you to repentance. Dr. Whitby.

5. — to the other side,] The other side of the sea of Galilee. See Mark viii. 13.

6. — beware of the leaven &c.] Jesus, taking occasion from the similitude of bread to draw some useful instructions for His disciples, bids them take care to avoid the leaven of the Pharisees and Sadducees, meaning their doctrines and hypocrisy, which were to spread like leaven. Dr. S. Clarke. It is a caution to avoid the precepts of those men who place the sum of their religion and worship in outward performances, which avail nothing to the sanctification of the soul. Dr. Whitby.

9. Do ye not yet understand, &c.] Do ye not know how easy it would be for Me to provide bread, if that were the thing about which I am concerned? Dr. S. Clarke.

13. — Cesarea Philippi,] This town was situated to the north of the sea of Galilee, at the distance of thirty miles from it, near the spring-head of Jordan. Its former name was Paneas, but this was changed into Cesarea by Philip the tetrarch, who repaired and beautified it, in honour of Tiberius Cesar; and in order to distinguish it from another Cesarea, mentioned frequently in the Acts of the Apostles, lying on the Mediterranean sea, it was called "Cesarea Philippi." Bp. Pearce.

It still retains its original name. "We arrived at Baniass or Panaass, the ancient Cesarea Philippi. This city, formerly so flourishing, is now destroyed, and on its ruins has arisen a little hamlet of about twenty miserable huts, inhabited by Mahometans. The circuit of the walls of the ancient city is easily distinguishable." Seetzen.

Anno DOMINI 32.

14 And they said, Some say that thou art John the Baptist: some, Elias; and others, Jeremias, or one of the prophets.

15 He saith unto them, But whom say ye that I am?

16 And Simon Peter answered and said, [e] Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God.

[e] John 6. 69.

17 And Jesus answered and said unto him, Blessed art thou, Simon Bar-jona: for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven.

18 And I say also unto thee, That [f] thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it.

Anno DOMINI 32.

[f] John 1. 42.

19 [g] And I will give unto thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven: and whatsoever thou shalt bind on earth shall be bound in heaven: and whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven.

[g] John 20. 23.

20 Then charged he his disciples that they should tell no man that he was Jesus the Christ.

21 ¶ From that time forth began Jesus

---

14. — Jeremias, or one of the prophets.] Jeremiah is particularly mentioned by name, because the ancient Jews considered him as the chief of the Prophets. Beausobre. It was the opinion of the Pharisees, as Josephus informs us, that the souls of good men migrated into other bodies. Abp. Newcome.

16. — the Christ, &c.] The promised Messiah, the natural and very Son of God. Dean Stanhope.

—— the living God.] A most ancient appellation of the Deity used by the Jews in opposition to the dead idols of the heathen. Grotius.

St. Peter's answer, connected with our Lord's question, ver. 13, amounts to this: Thou who sayest rightly of Thyself that Thou art the Son of man, art Christ the Son of the living God. The title of the Son of God belongs to Him, as God the Son: the title of Son of man belongs to Him in His human character. The former marks Him out as one of the three Persons of the ever blessed Trinity which was made man; the latter characterizes Him as that man who was united to the Godhead. St. Peter's confession therefore amounts to a full acknowledgment of the great mystery of godliness, God manifest in the flesh to destroy the works of the devil; and the truth of this faith is the rock on which Christ promises to build His Church. Bp. Horsley.

17. — Bar-jona:] Which means in Syriack, "The son of Jonas."

—— flesh and blood hath not &c.] Man hath not revealed it unto thee, &c. This faith of thine is not built on mere human testimony, but on miracles and doctrines which thou hast heard and seen, which are the testimonies of God Himself, whereby He hath testified concerning Me, to thee and to others such as thou art, Matt. xi. 25. Dr. Hammond.

18. — thou art Peter,] The Greek name "Peter" signifies a rock or stone, as does also "Cephas," John i. 42.

—— and upon this rock &c.] And upon thee who art this rock, I will build My Church, laying the first foundation of it upon thy preaching to the Jews, Acts ii. 41, 47, and to the Gentiles, Asts x. 5; xv. 7, &c. Dr. Whitby. St. Peter was already a very considerable disciple, joined ordinarily with St. James and St. John in partaking some peculiar favours of our Lord, chap. xvii: he twice made confession with the greatest boldness of Christ's being the Messiah and the Son of God, John vi. 69, and here, and after the resurrection of Christ, he among the twelve had the honour of His first appearing, 1 Cor. xv. 5, and proportionably was first of all to preach and make known the truth of that which is here professed, that Jesus is the Christ. In this respect he is here called a foundation stone of the Church of Christ, as being an excellent and principal instrument in first erecting that Church. Dr. Hammond. By the expression of the Church being founded on St. Peter as a rock, it is not meant that he was the only foundation of it, or that he had supremacy over it, but that he was the first and principal preacher of the Gospel in order of time. See Eph. ii. 20—22. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— I will build my church;] The Church to which our Lord here promises stability, and a final conquest over the power of the grave, is the building raised by Himself as the master builder; that is, by persons commissioned by Him, acting under His directions, and assisted by His Spirit, on the solid rock of the truth of St. Peter's faith. That faith was a faith in the mediatorial offices of Christ, in His Divinity, and in the mystery of the incarnation. Whatever be raised by man upon any other foundation, however it may assume the name of a church, is no part of Christ's building, and has no interest in these glorious promises. Bp. Horsley.

—— the gates of hell] That is, Death, the grave, destruction, shall not prevail against it. Dr. Hammond.

—— the gates of hell shall not prevail against it.] This promise of perpetual stability is to the Church universal of Christ: it affords no security to any particular church, if her faith or her works should not be found perfect before God. The time will never be when a true church shall not be somewhere subsisting on the earth; but any individual church, if it fall from its true profession, may sink into ruins. Of this, history furnishes but too abundant proof, in the examples of churches once illustrious, watered with the blood of the first saints and martyrs, which are now no more. Bp. Horsley.

19. And I will give unto thee &c.] That is, Thou shalt first open the kingdom of the Messiah, and make the first publication of the Gospel to the Gentiles; and whatsoever ordinances thou shalt, by the assistance of the Holy Ghost, make and establish (see Acts xv.) for the orderly settlement of the church, thy determination shall be ratified and confirmed by God. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— I will give — the keys] That is, the power of making laws to govern My Church. It is evident, that by this expression of giving the keys to St. Peter, our Saviour did not mean to give him any supremacy over the other Apostles, or over the whole Church, because He says that these keys were given to him, that with them he might bind and loose; but this expression is not peculiarly applied to him, but belongs also to the other Apostles, as appears from Matt. xviii. 18. Dr. Whitby.

"I will give unto thee the keys," that is, Into this church thou shalt have power to let in, and to shut out; by declaring the conditions of admission into it, by due administration of the sacraments, and by the exercise of discipline and censures appointed for that purpose. Dean Stanhope.

—— whatsoever thou shalt bind &c.] Meaning, that whatsoever things he should declare to be lawful or unlawful on earth, should be ratified in heaven: this privilege was afterwards extended to the rest of the Apostles, Matt. xviii. 18, and seems to correspond to the power of remitting or retaining sins in general, conferred on them jointly after our Lord's resurrection, John xx. 23, according to the Gospel terms of salvation; by which only mankind shall be acquitted or condemned at the day of judgment. Dr. Hales.

20. Then charged he &c.] See the notes at chap. viii. 4. The publick acknowledgment of this important truth might have provoked the Jews to put Him to death, before the time was come, which the Divine wisdom had appointed for that event. Bp. Mann.

21. From that time forth &c.] Referring to the confession of St. Peter, that He was Christ the Son of the living God. He did not think proper to disclose to them His approaching death, till their faith had attained some degree of constancy and firmness. But, when once it appeared that they not only esteemed and to shew unto his disciples, how that he must go unto Jerusalem, and suffer many things of the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be killed, and be raised again the third day.

Anno DOMINI 32.

22 Then Peter took him, and began to rebuke him, saying, Be it far from thee, Lord: this shall not be unto thee.

23 But he turned, and said unto Peter, Get thee behind me, Satan: thou art an offence unto me: for thou savourest not the things that be of God, but those that be of men.

[h] Chap. 10. 38. Mark 8. 34.

24 ¶ [h] Then said Jesus unto his disciples, If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me.

25 For whosoever will save his life shall lose it: and whosoever will lose his life for my sake shall find it.

Anno DOMINI 32.

26 For what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?

27 For the Son of man shall come in the glory of his Father with his angels; [i] and then he shall reward every man according to his works.

[i] Ps. 62. 12. Rom. 2. 6.

28 Verily I say unto you, [k] There be some standing here, which shall not taste of death, till they see the Son of man coming in his kingdom.

[k] Mark 9. 1. Luke 9. 27.

CHAP. XVII.

1 The transfiguration of Christ. 14 He healeth the lunatick, 22 foretelleth his own passion, 24 and payeth tribute.

---

loved their Master as a wise and virtuous man, that they not only revered Him as an inspired teacher of righteousness, but that they believed in Him as the Christ, the Son of God, the Redeemer of Israel; it then became seasonable to remove their prejudices, to extinguish their hopes of sharing in the splendour of an earthly kingdom, and to prepare and fortify their minds against all that "contradiction of sinners," which they with their Master were in this world to endure. Bp. Horsley.

—— how that he must go unto Jerusalem,] The form of expression is remarkable, must go, must suffer, &c. All these things were thus ordained by Providence, yet, as to outward appearance, depended entirely on man's free agency. Bp. Horsley.

—— and be killed, and be raised again] This is the earliest intimation, which the Evangelists have recorded, delivered by our Saviour to His disciples, of His approaching death and sufferings. See note at chap. xx. 19. Dean Stanhope.

22. — Be it far from thee,] This, in the original, is a peculiar phrase borrowed from the Hebrews, which signifies literally, May He (God) be propitious to thee; that is, God forbid it. Bp. Pearce. St. Peter, whose thoughts were full of the glory and greatness of the Messiah, was so disturbed with what our Lord had said, that he could not forbear expostulating with Him. Dr. S. Clarke.

23. — Get thee behind me, Satan:] Satan signifies an enemy; and "offence" means hindrance, or impediment, chap. xviii. 6, which St. Peter cast in our Saviour's way, by opposing the method which God had appointed for the salvation of mankind through a suffering Messiah. Bp. Mann.

The Holy Jesus, rebuking him, tells him that he was, in the tendency, though not in the design of his words, a tempter, an adversary to Him; and influenced by human weakness, instead of religious fortitude. Abp. Secker.

24. — let him deny himself, &c.] Let him resign himself absolutely to the will of God, renouncing all worldly desires, and resolving both to do and suffer whatever God shall think fit to require of him. Dr. S. Clarke. See note at chap. x. 38.

—— and follow me.] In self-denial and in suffering. Abp. Tillotson.

The self-denial which our Saviour claims from His disciples is nothing more than a willingness to part with all earthly comforts and conveniences, to quit all our temporal interests and enjoyments, and even life itself, for the sake of Him and His religion. And He who commands us to perform this duty, hath Himself in His own person given us the greatest example of self-denial, in that He denied Himself more, and suffered more grievous things than any of us can do. He bore the insupportable load of all the sins of mankind, and of the wrath and vengeance due to them. Never was sorrow like unto His sorrow. He underwent more affliction, and had more contempt poured upon Him, than ever was upon any of the sons of men; and yet He endured all this with incredible patience and meekness, with the greatest evenness and constancy of mind, and with the most perfect submission and resignation of Himself to the will of God. If then He thus denied Himself, well may we, who have much less to deny, but much more cause and reason for it. He did it voluntarily and of choice, but it is our duty. He did it for our sakes, we do it for our own. His own goodness moved Him to deny Himself for us, but gratitude obliges us to deny ourselves in any thing for Him. We deserved nothing from Him, but He has wholly merited all this, and infinitely more, from us. Abp. Tillotson.

25. For whosoever will save &c.] Whosoever shall save his life in this present time, by basely complying with temptations to forsake His religion, shall most truly lose it by incurring death everlasting: but he that constantly perseveres, and loses his life in this present time, to preserve his religion and virtue, does most truly save it unto everlasting happiness. Dr. S. Clarke.

26. —what is a man profited, &c.] These words ask a question, which comes the most home to every man's concern, of any that can possibly enter into his thoughts. It implies, that the salvation of a man's soul is so infinitely more important to him, so beyond and above any thing he can get, or any thing he can lose, any thing he can enjoy or suffer on this side the grave, that nothing which the world offers can make up for the loss of it, or be a compensation when that is at stake. This truth is self-evident; but unhappily, evident as it is, it is not thought of, it is not considered, it is not believed, in the degree to which it ought. Archdeacon Paley.

27. —in the glory of his Father] The same glory is called the glory of Christ, Matt. xxv. 31, and of the Father, of which the Son partook, John xvii. 5; and of both the Son and the Father in the parallel place, Luke ix. 26. Grotius.

28. — There be some standing here, &c.] I can assure you, He says, there are some here present, who will live to see the kingdom of God begun, in His glorious resurrection and ascension, and in His executing judgment on the unbelieving Jews, in the final destruction of their city and nation. Dr. S. Clarke. One of the Apostles, St. John, lived till after the destruction of Jerusalem. Bp. Pearce.

—— the Son of man coming in his kingdom.] That is, the Messiah affording an earnest of His intended future punishment, by the severe punishment He will execute on the unbelieving and disobedient Jews of this age. Dr. Whitby.

The evident tendency of our Saviour's words, in the latter part of this chapter, was to prepare the minds of His disciples for the cruel treatment which both He and they were to undergo, and at the same time to raise their drooping spirits by setting before their eyes His own exaltation, and their glorious rewards in another life. Bp. Porteus.

Anno DOMINI 32.

AND [a] after six days Jesus taketh Peter, James, and John his brother, and bringeth them up into an high mountain apart,

[a] Mark 9. 2. Luke 9. 28.

2 And was transfigured before them: and his face did shine as the sun, and his raiment was white as the light.

3 And, behold, there appeared unto them Moses and Elias talking with him.

4 Then answered Peter, and said unto Jesus, Lord, it is good for us to be here: if thou wilt, let us make here three tabernacles; one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias.

[b] 2 Pet. 1. 17.

5 [b] While he yet spake, behold, a bright cloud overshadowed them: and behold a voice out of the cloud, which said, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased; hear ye him.

Anno DOMINI 32.

6 And when the disciples heard it, they fell on their face, and were sore afraid.

7 And Jesus came and touched them, and said, Arise, and be not afraid.

8 And when they had lifted up their eyes, they saw no man, save Jesus only.

9 And as they came down from the mountain, Jesus charged them, saying, Tell the vision to no man, until the Son of man be risen again from the dead.

10 And his disciples asked him, saying, [c] Why then say the scribes that Elias must first come?

[c] Chap. 11. 14. Mark 9. 11.

Chap. XVII. ver. 1. — taketh Peter, James, and John] These three disciples seem to have been distinguished by our Lord's peculiar confidence, and to have generally attended Him on important occasions. St. John was so, as we know, (John xiii. 23,) in an eminent degree. St. James, his brother, would, from that near connexion, probably be brought more frequently under his Master's notice; and, as St. Peter was the very person who had expressed himself with so much indignation on the subject of our Saviour's sufferings, it was peculiarly necessary that he should be admitted to the ensuing spectacle, which was calculated to calm those emotions, and to remove that disgust, which the first mention of them had produced in his mind. Bp. Porteus.

—— into an high mountain] It has been constantly believed that this was mount Tabor in the tribe of Zebulun, mentioned at Judg. iv. 14. Dr. Whitby.

"This is a high mount," says Mr. Maundrell, "round and beautiful, standing by itself in the plain of Esdraelon, at a short distance from Nazareth, towards the east. After a very laborious ascent, which took up near an hour, we reached the highest part of the mountain, which has a plain area at the top, fertile and delicious, of an oval figure, extended about two furlongs in length, and one in breadth. It is enclosed with trees on all parts, except towards the south. It was anciently surrounded with walls and trenches, and other fortifications, of which there are remains to this day. There are in it several cisterns of good water; there are also three contiguous grottos made to represent the three tabernacles, which St. Peter proposed to erect, when astonished at the glory of the transfiguration. From the top of mount Tabor is a most extensive prospect, which well repays the labour of the ascent." Dr. Wells.

3. — Moses and Elias] The one the deliverer, the other the restorer of the Jewish law. Dr. Whitby.

4. — it is good for us to be here:] As if he had said, What greater happiness can we experience than to continue here in the presence of three such great and excellent persons. Here then let us for ever remain: here let us erect three tents, for Thee, for Moses, and for Elias, that you may all make this the constant place of your abode, and that we may always continue under the protection and government, under the united empire of our three great masters, whose sovereign laws and commands we are bound to obey. Bp. Porteus.

——let us make here three tabernacles;] St. Peter, it is probable, imagined that Jesus had now assumed His proper dignity; that Elias was come, according to Malachi's prediction; and that the kingdom was at length commenced. Dr. Macknight.

5. — a bright cloud] The Shechinah, that cloud of glory in which the Divine Majesty often appeared to the Jews. Bp. Pearce.

—— hear ye him.] As ye have hitherto followed Moses and the Prophets, so from henceforward hear and obey this My beloved Son. Dr. S. Clarke. These words refer to what Moses said to the Jews at Deut. xviii. 15, "The Lord thy God will raise up a Prophet—unto Him ye shall hearken." Hence it appears that Jesus was declared from heaven to be the Person promised to the Jews by Moses. See Acts iii. 22; vii. 37. Bp. Pearce. "This is My beloved Son:" This is My Son, not as Moses and all the Prophets were, My servants. Him and Him only ye are now to hear; He is from henceforth to be your Lord, your Legislator, and your King. The evangelical law being established, the ceremonial law must cease, and Moses and the Prophets must give way to Christ. Bp. Porteus.

8. — they saw no man, save Jesus] One great purpose of this singular scene of the transfiguration seems to have been, to represent the cessation of the Jewish, and the commencement of the Christian dispensation. It appears to have been one very prevailing prejudice among the disciples, that the whole Mosaical law, the ceremonial as well as the moral, was to continue in full force under the Gospel, and that the authority of Moses and the Prophets was not in any respect to give way on the establishment of Christianity, but to be placed on an equal footing with that of Christ. To correct these erroneous opinions, this scene of the transfiguration was presented to three chosen disciples. Moses and Elias were undoubtedly most proper representatives of the Law and the Prophets; and, when the three disciples saw these illustrious persons conversing familiarly with Jesus, they probably were confirmed in their opinion, that they were of equal authority with Him. But the gracious words which issued from the cloud most clearly explained the meaning of what was passing before the eyes of the disciples; "Hear ye Him, My beloved Son." The conclusion too of the whole scene harmonizes with this declaration: Moses and Elias instantly disappear, and "when the disciples lift up their eyes, they see no man, save Jesus only." The former objects of their veneration are no more; Christ remains alone, their unrivalled and undisputed Sovereign.

But, besides this primary and immediate design of the transfiguration, that event was perhaps intended to answer other purposes of great utility. Among others, it afforded a striking additional proof of the divine mission of Christ; for here was one of the few occasions in which God Himself was pleased, as it were, personally to interpose, and to make an open declaration from heaven in favour of His Son. And besides this, a particular attestation was given on the mount to two of the principal doctrines of Christianity; a general resurrection, and a day of retribution. The visible and illustrious representation of these doctrines in the glorified appearance of Christ, and Moses, and Elias, is appealed to by St. Peter, who saw it, as one convincing proof, among others, that "he had not followed cunningly devised fables, when he made known the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ." Bp. Porteus.

10. — Why then say the scribes &c.] That is, If we are not to declare that we have seen Elias till that time, why are we taught

Anno DOMINI 32.

11 And Jesus answered and said unto them, Elias truly shall first come, and restore all things.

12 But I say unto you, That Elias is come already, and they knew him not, but have done unto him whatsoever they listed. Likewise shall also the Son of man suffer of them.

13 Then the disciples understood that he spake unto them of John the Baptist.

[d] Mark 9. 17. Luke 9. 38.

14 ¶ [d] And when they were come to the multitude, there came to him a certain man, kneeling down to him, and saying,

15 Lord, have mercy on my son: for he is lunatick, and sore vexed: for ofttimes he falleth into the fire, and oft into the water.

16 And I brought him to thy disciples, and they could not cure him.

17 Then Jesus answered and said, O faithless and perverse generation, how long shall I be with you? how long shall I suffer you? bring him hither to me.

18 And Jesus rebuked the devil; and he departed out of him: and the child was cured from that very hour.

19 Then came the disciples to Jesus apart, and said, Why could not we cast him out?

20 And Jesus said unto them, Because of your unbelief: for verily I say unto you,

[e] Luke 17. 6.

[e] If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, Remove hence to yonder place; and it shall remove: and nothing shall be impossible unto you.

Anno DOMINI 32.

21 Howbeit this kind goeth not out but by prayer and fasting.

[f] Chap. 20. 17. Mark 9. 31. Luke 9. 44.

22 ¶ [f] And while they abode in Galilee, Jesus said unto them, The Son of man shall be betrayed into the hands of men:

23 And they shall kill him, and the third day he shall be raised again. And they were exceeding sorry.

24 ¶ And when they were come to Capernaum, they that received ‖ tribute money came to Peter, and said, Doth not your master pay tribute?

‖ Called in the original didrachma, being in value fifteen pence.

25 He saith, Yes. And when he was come into the house, Jesus prevented him, saying, What thinkest thou, Simon? of whom do the kings of the earth take custom or tribute? of their own children, or of strangers?

26 Peter saith unto him, Of strangers. Jesus saith unto him, Then are the children free.

‖ Or, a stater. It is half an ounce of silver, in value two shillings and sixpence, after five shillings the ounce.

27 Notwithstanding, lest we should offend them, go thou to the sea, and cast an hook, and take up the fish that first cometh up; and when thou hast opened his mouth, thou shalt find ‖ a piece of money: that take, and give unto them for me and thee.

---

by the scribes that Elias must first come. Bp. Pearce. It had indeed been prophesied that Elias was to come before the Messiah, to prepare the way for Him, Isai. xl. 3; Mal. iv. 5. Bp. Mann.

11.—shall first come, and restore all things.] Was to come first and restore all things. The expression here for "restore" is the same as at Malachi, chap. iv. 6, "He shall turn the heart" &c.; it is meant, that he shall set all things right in regard to religion. This John the Baptist, the Elias spoken of by Malachi, did, by preaching repentance with the success which attended him. Bp. Pearce.

12.—Elias is come already, &c.] Elias is come, as it is written of him in Malachi; and they, the Scribes and Pharisees, "have done unto him whatsoever they listed," rejecting his baptism, (Luke vii. 30,) and refusing to believe his doctrine, Matt. xxi. 25. Dr. Whitby.

15.—he is lunatick,] The symptoms mentioned at Luke ix. 39, seem to shew that this disease was an epilepsy, caused by the power of an evil spirit. Dr. Hammond.

17.—O faithless and perverse generation, &c.] It is related by St. Mark, chap. ix. 14, 16, that "the scribes were then questioning with Christ's disciples," and perhaps insulting over them, as having found out a distemper which could not be cured by His name and power, and Christ asked them what it was, about which they disputed. It seems therefore most probable, that Christ spake these words with reference to those scribes, to whom He at other times used similar language, Matt. xii. 39; Luke xi. 29. Dr. Whitby.

Or, we may consider this reproach as addressed to all who were then present, in the degree in which it applied to them; to the disciples, whose incredulity was blamed at ver. 20; to the father, who, according to St. Mark, chap. ix. 21—23, seems to doubt; but principally to the Jewish nation, which is represented precisely under this character at Deut. xxxii. 5, 20. Beausobre.

20.—faith as a grain of mustard seed,] A degree, however small, of active growing faith. Buxtorf informs us, that "a grain of mustard seed" was used proverbially by the Jews to express the least thing. Dr. Whitby.

——ye shall say unto this mountain,] Ye shall find nothing too hard for you to effect for the glory of God, and in confirmation of My doctrine; ye shall even be able to do things as apparently impossible as removing mountains and throwing them into the sea. Dr. S. Clarke. See the note on Zech. iv. 7.

21. Howbeit this kind &c.] Howbeit, ye must remember that God does not grant the power of working these greater miracles, such as casting out devils and the like, except to those whose faith is strengthened by earnest prayer and fasting, and accompanied with great devotion and purity of mind. Dr. S. Clarke.

23. And they shall kill him,] This is the second time that we read of our Saviour forewarning His disciples of His death and resurrection. Dean Stanhope.

24.—tribute money] Meaning the half shekel which was paid every year by all Jews above twenty years of age to the temple, for buying the daily sacrifice, and other things necessary for the publick worship, Exod. xxx. 13. Dr. Whitby.

25.—of their own children, or of strangers?] By "children" is here meant, natural offspring; by "strangers," the children of others their subjects.

26.—Then are the children free.] Our Lord's argument is this; If earthly kings do not receive tribute-money from their children, then am I, who am the Son of God, excused by their custom from paying any to God. Bp. Pearce.

27.—lest we should offend them,] That is, give them an opportunity of saying that I despise the temple and its service, and teach My disciples so to do. By this example, Christ teaches us to avoid the scandal and evil suspicions of men, however groundless they may be. Dr. Whitby.

Anno DOMINI 32.

CHAP. XVIII.

1 Christ warneth his disciples to be humble and harmless: 7 to avoid offences, and not to despise the little ones: 15 teacheth how we are to deal with our brethren, when they offend us: 21 and how oft to forgive them: 23 which he setteth forth by a parable of the king, that took account of his servants, 32 and punished him, who shewed no mercy to his fellow.

[a] Mark 9. 33. Luke 9. 46. AT [a] the same time came the disciples unto Jesus, saying, Who is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven?

2 And Jesus called a little child unto him, and set him in the midst of them,

3 And said, Verily I say unto you, [b] Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven.

[b] Chap. 19. 14. 1 Cor. 14. 20.

4 Whosoever therefore shall humble himself as this little child, the same is greatest in the kingdom of heaven.

5 And whoso shall receive one such little child in my name receiveth me.

[c] Mark 9. 42. Luke 17. 1, 2. 6 [c] But whoso shall offend one of these little ones which believe in me, it were better for him that a milstone were hanged about his neck, and that he were drowned in the depth of the sea.

Anno DOMINI 32.

7 ¶ Woe unto the world because of offences! for it must needs be that offences come; but woe to that man by whom the offence cometh!

8 [d] Wherefore if thy hand or thy foot offend thee, cut them off, and cast them from thee: it is better for thee to enter into life halt or maimed, rather than having two hands or two feet to be cast into everlasting fire.

[d] Chap. 5. 30. Mark 9. 45.

9 And if thine eye offend thee, pluck it out, and cast it from thee: it is better for thee to enter into life with one eye, rather than having two eyes to be cast into hell fire.

10 Take heed that ye despise not one of these little ones; for I say unto you, That in heaven their angels do always behold the face of my Father which is in heaven.

11 [e] For the Son of man is come to save that which was lost.

[e] Luke 19. 10.

12 [f] How think ye? if a man have an

[f] Luke 15. 4.

Chap. XVIII. ver. 1. —came the disciples unto Jesus,] It appears from the parallel passage of St. Mark, chap. ix. 34, that they had been disputing by the way "who should be the greatest" &c. meaning, who among the twelve Apostles then was, or should afterwards be, the superiour in Jesus's kingdom. It is evident that our Lord's disciples were for a considerable time possessed with the imagination, which prevailed universally among the Jews with respect to their Messiah, that their Master's kingdom was to be a temporal one; that He was at some time or other to become a Prince of great power and splendour, and that they of course should enjoy the largest share in His favour, and be placed in situations of great distinction. Bp. Porteus.

3. —Except ye be converted,] From these ambitious desires, Dr. Whitby.

—— and become as little children,] Unless a total change take place in the temper and disposition of your minds; unless ye become as unambitious and unaspiring, as meek, as humble and contented, as little concerned about worldly honours and distinctions, as the child before you, ye cannot "enter into the kingdom of heaven," ye can never be considered as true objects of Christ's kingdom here, or be capable of inheriting the rewards of heaven hereafter. Bp. Porteus. Thus declaring expressly, that a resemblance to such infant innocence, in meekness, and gentleness, and harmless simplicity of mind, was a proper and necessary qualification for His kingdom. Dean Stanhope.

4. —the same is greatest &c.] In the eye of God true humility is a most sublime virtue; and whoever shall humble himself as this little child, the same is greatest in the kingdom of heaven. Bp. Porteus.

6. —whoso shall offend one of these little ones] "To offend" in the scriptural use of the word, is to cause any one to fall from the faith, or to renounce his belief in Christ; and against every one who makes use of either violence or artifice to terrify or seduce the sincere, and humble, and unsuspicious believer in Christ from his faith and obedience to his divine Master, the severest woes and the heaviest punishments are here denounced. Bp. Porteus.

It must be inferred from this text, that it is false to suppose, that those who believe in Christ, and of whom it is the will of God that they should not perish, ver. 14, cannot be so "offended" as to fall from the faith and perish. For if this were so, wherein lies the force of this pathetical discourse; and why are such dreadful punishments threatened to deter men from doing what it is impossible that they should do? Dr. Whitby.

—— a milstone] The Greek expression is "a millstone turned by an ass;" that is, a millstone of the largest sort, larger than the stone of a common handmill. Dr. Doddridge.

7. —it must needs be that offences come;] In the present state of the world, it cannot be expected but that many should be seduced from the practice of virtue and piety. But wretched is that man, who is in any way the occasion of it, either by persuasion, enticement, or bad example. Bp. Mann.

8. Wherefore if thy hand &c.] See chap. v. 29, 30. If any thing as dear to thee even as a right hand, or a right eye, be the occasion of thy injuring the cause of virtue and piety, it is far better to part with it, whatever may be the difficulty, rather than to incur the eternal displeasure of God. Dr. S. Clarke. Our Saviour here applies to the particular sin He is now condemning the very same words which He had before used in His sermon on the mount, with reference to the crime of adultery. Bp. Porteus.

10. Take heed that ye despise not &c.] Take care that ye do not treat with scorn or contempt such little children as ye now see before you, or those believers in Me who resemble these children in docility, meekness, humility, and indifference to all that the world calls great and honourable; for, however contemptibly ye may think of them, your heavenly Father regards them with a more favourable eye: He even condescends to take them under His protection; He sends even His most favoured angels, those ministers of His that do His pleasure, to guard and watch over these little children, and these humble Christians, who are like them in purity and innocence of mind. Bp. Porteus.

—— their angels &c.] One thing is most clearly proved by this text, as it is confirmed by a multitude of others; namely, the doctrine not only of a general, but of a particular providence, which, either by ministering angels, or by the all-comprehending and omnipotent eye of God Himself, watches over those true disciples of Christ, who approach most nearly to the humility, the meekness, the innocence, and the simplicity of a child. Bp. Porteus.

11. For the Son of man &c.] Not only, He adds, are the angels thus employed, but it was the very purpose for which even the Son of God came into the world, to seek and bring back those who had strayed away. Bp. Mann.

Anno DOMINI 32. hundred sheep, and one of them be gone astray, doth he not leave the ninety and nine, and goeth into the mountains, and seeketh that which is gone astray?

13 And if so be that he find it, verily I say unto you, he rejoiceth more of that sheep, than of the ninety and nine which went not astray.

14 Even so it is not the will of your Father which is in heaven, that one of these little ones should perish.

[g] Lev. 19. 17. Luke 17. 3. 15 ¶ Moreover [g] if thy brother shall trespass against thee, go and tell him his fault between thee and him alone: if he shall hear thee, thou hast gained thy brother.

16 But if he will not hear thee, then take [h] Deut. 19. 15. John 8. 17. 2 Cor. 13. 1. Heb. 10. 28. with thee one or two more, that in [h] the mouth of two or three witnesses every word may be established.

17 And if he shall neglect to hear them, [i] 1 Cor. 5. 9. 2 Thess. 3. 14. tell it unto the church: but if he neglect to hear the church, let him be unto thee as an [i] heathen man and a publican.

[k] John 20. 23. 1 Cor. 5. 4. 18 Verily I say unto you, [k] Whatsoever ye shall bind on earth shall be bound in heaven: and whatsoever ye shall loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven.

Anno DOMINI 32.

19 Again I say unto you, That if two of you shall agree on earth as touching any thing that they shall ask, it shall be done for them of my Father which is in heaven.

20 For where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them.

21 ¶ Then came Peter to him, and said, Lord, how oft shall my brother sin against me, and I forgive him? [l] till seven times? [l] Luke 17. 4.

22 Jesus saith unto him, I say not unto thee, Until seven times: but, Until seventy times seven.

23 ¶ Therefore is the kingdom of heaven likened unto a certain king, which would take account of his servants.

24 And when he had begun to reckon, one was brought unto him, which owed him ten thousand ‖ talents.

‖ A talent is 750 ounces of silver, which after five shillings the ounce is 187l. 10s.

25 But forasmuch as he had not to pay, his lord commanded him to be sold, and his wife, and children, and all that he had, and payment to be made.

26 The servant therefore fell down, and

---

13. — he rejoiceth more] We are not to infer from this similitude that God sets more value, or looks with more complacency and approbation on one repenting sinner, than on many righteous persons who have uniformly and devoutly served Him. This can never be imagined, nor would it correspond with the illustration. The shepherd does not set a greater value on the lost sheep, than he does on those that are safe: but his joy for the moment, at the recovery of the lost sheep, is greater than he receives from all the rest, because he has regained that, and is sure of all the rest. The meaning therefore of this parable is, that God's parental tenderness extends to all, even to the sinner that goes astray, and that He rejoices at the recovery and conversion of every the meanest individual, and most grievous offender. Bp. Porteus.

15. — if thy brother shall trespass against thee,] In this passage (ver. 15—17) there are evident allusions to the laws and customs of the Jews, who, for the conviction of any offender, required the testimony of at least two witnesses; and in the case of notorious and obstinate offenders, reproved them publickly before the synagogue. But the obvious meaning in regard to ourselves is, that even against those who have ill-treated and injured us, we should not immediately proceed to extreme severity and rigour: but first try the effects of private and gentle and friendly admonition; if that fail, then call in two or three persons of character and reputation, to add weight and authority to our remonstrances; and, if that has no effect, we are then justified in bringing the offender before the proper tribunal, to be censured or punished as he deserves, avoiding all communication with him in future, except what common humanity may require even towards an enemy. Directions these, which are evidently the dictates of that moderation, mildness, and benevolence, which characterize all our Saviour's precepts, and more particularly distinguish those recorded in this chapter. Bp. Porteus.

16. — in the mouth of &c.] That is, by the testimony of two or three witnesses, every matter in dispute may be determined and settled. Bp. Pearce.

17. — the church,] Or society of Christian brethren. Bp. Mann.

—— let him be unto thee &c.] Let him be put out of the church, and his company be avoided, as the Jews avoid that of a heathen, and a Roman taxgatherer. Bp. Mann.

18. — Whatsoever ye shall bind &c.] See notes at chap. xvi. 19. Whatsoever ye shall determine upon earth, proceeding according to these My directions, shall be confirmed and ratified by God in heaven. Dr. S. Clarke.

19. — if two of you &c.] Whatever even two of you shall ask in prayer, for direction and assistance from above, in forming your judicial determinations, it shall be granted you; for (ver. 20.) where only two or three of you are gathered together in My name, and are acting under My authority, and for My glory in any case of great importance, there am I in the midst of you by My Holy Spirit, to guide, direct, and sanction your proceedings. Bp. Porteus.

22. — Until seventy times seven.] Meaning, a number without limitation. See Gen. iv. 24. Bp. Pearce. That is, the duty of forgiving injuries has no limit: however frequently you are injured, if real penitence and contrition follow the offence, a Christian is always bound to forgive. Bp. Porteus.

It has been said, that the disposition sometimes recommended by our Saviour is unattainable. So, it may be answered, is all perfection; but should a moralist therefore recommend imperfections? It is, however, one excellency of our Saviour's rules, that they are either never mistaken, or never so mistaken, as to do harm. Notwithstanding our Lord bade His followers "forgive their enemies seventy times seven times," the Christian world has hitherto suffered little by too much placability or forbearance. Archdeacon Paley.

23. Therefore is the kingdom of heaven likened &c.] The sense is, God's dealing with Christians is like to that of the king with his servants in this parable. Bp. Pearce.

—— take account of his servants.] Inquire to what extent each stood indebted to him. Dr. S. Clarke.

25. — and payment to be made.] That is, out of the money for which they were sold. Bp. Pearce. The creditor had this power among the Jews over an insolvent debtor. See 2 Kings iv. 1. Bp. Mann. At this very time, we are informed by travellers, insolvency is one of the causes of slavery in Africa. Bp. Porteus.

26. The servant — fell down, and worshipped him,] The form of lowly submission from the servant to his master, which is here described, is still practised in the East among the Arabs, where inferiours, in paying respectful deference to their superiours, fall

Anno DOMINI 32.

‖ worshipped him, saying, Lord, have patience with me, and I will pay thee all.

‖ Or, besought him.

27 Then the lord of that servant was moved with compassion, and loosed him, and forgave him the debt.

28 But the same servant went out, and found one of his fellowservants, which owed him an hundred ‖ pence: and he laid hands on him, and took him by the throat, saying, Pay me that thou owest.

‖ The Roman penny is the eighth part of an ounce, which after five shillings the ounce is sevenpence halfpenny.

29 And his fellowservant fell down at his feet, and besought him, saying, Have patience with me, and I will pay thee all.

30 And he would not: but went and cast him into prison, till he should pay the debt.

31 So when his fellowservants saw what was done, they were very sorry, and came and told unto their lord all that was done.

32 Then his lord, after that he had called him, said unto him, O thou wicked servant, I forgave thee all that debt, because thou desiredst me:

33 Shouldest not thou also have had compassion on thy fellowservant, even as I had pity on thee?

34 And his lord was wroth, and delivered him to the tormentors, till he should pay all that was due unto him.

Anno DOMINI 32.

35 So likewise shall my heavenly Father do also unto you, if ye from your hearts forgive not every one his brother their trespasses.

CHAP. XIX.

2 Christ healeth the sick: 3 answereth the Pharisees concerning divorcement: 10 sheweth when marriage is necessary: 13 receiveth little children: 16 instructeth the young man how to attain eternal life, 20 and how to be perfect: 23 telleth his disciples how hard it is for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God, 27 and promiseth reward to those that forsake any thing to follow him.

A. D. 33.

AND it came to pass, [a] that when Jesus had finished these sayings, he departed from Galilee, and came into the coasts of Judea beyond Jordan;

[a] Mark 10. 1.

2 And great multitudes followed him; and he healed them there.

3 ¶ The Pharisees also came unto him, tempting him, and saying unto him, Is it lawful for a man to put away his wife for every cause?

4 And he answered and said unto them, Have ye not read, [b] that he which made them at the beginning made them male and female, down before them, and kiss their feet, their knees, or their garments. Dr. Shaw.

[b] Gen. 1. 27.

---

28. — an hundred pence:] A very small sum comparatively.

34. — to the tormentors,] To the jailers or keepers of the prison. Dr. Hammond. The word in the original properly signifies "examiner," particularly one who had it in charge to examine by torture. Hence it came to signify jailer; for on such, in those days, this charge commonly devolved. Dr. Campbell.

35. So likewise &c.] No man, it is probable, ever heard or read this parable without feeling his indignation rise against the ungrateful and unfeeling servant, who, after having a debt of ten thousand talents remitted to him by his indulgent lord, threw his fellowservant into prison for a debt of a hundred pence. Yet how frequently are we ourselves guilty of this very offence! Who is there among us that has not had ten thousand talents forgiven him by his heavenly Father? let him take together all the offences of his life, all his sins and follies from the first hour of its maturity to the present time, and they may well be compared to this immense sum; which immense sum, if he has been a sincere penitent, has been all forgiven through the merits of his Redeemer. Yet, when his fellow Christian owes him a hundred pence, when he commits against him the most trivial offence, he too often refuses him forgiveness. Let every one of this description call to mind, that the unforgiving servant was delivered over to the tormentors, till he should pay the uttermost farthing. Let him recollect, that every human being must approve this sentence; that he himself cannot but approve it; that he cannot but feel himself precisely in the situation of that servant; and that, of course, he must expect at the last tremendous day the bitter and unanswerable reproach of his offended Judge, "O thou wicked servant, I forgave thee" &c. Bp. Porteus.

It might be thought at first view, that the description in this parable is overcharged, so incredible does it seem that a man, who had experienced such kind and merciful treatment, should, while the memory of so great a mercy was fresh upon his mind, even the very next moment, handle his fellowservant, who had made the same humble submission and request to him, which he had done to his lord, with so much harshness and cruelty, for so inconsiderable a sum. This would appear hardly credible, did we not see by daily experience how very unreasonable and unmerciful some men are, and with what confidence they can ask and expect great mercy from God, when they are willing to shew none to men. We commonly plead the greatness of the injury done to us, as a reason for not forgiving the offender. But whoever thou art, that makest this an argument, why thou canst not forgive thy brother, lay thine hand upon thine heart, and bethink thyself, how many more and much greater offences thou hast been guilty of against God; look up to that just and powerful Being who is above, and consider well, whether thou dost not both expect and stand in need of more mercy and favour from Him, than thou canst find in thy heart to shew to thine offending brother. Abp. Tillotson.

Chap. XIX. ver. 1. — beyond Jordan;] The country eastward of Jordan, where the tribes of Gad and Reuben were originally settled, now called Perea. See Mark x. 1; John x. 40. Dr. Hales.

3. — Is it lawful for a man] Of the different schools of the rabbies in our Saviour's time, that of Hillel taught that a man might put away his wife for any cause, because this divorce was permitted "if she found not favour in his eyes," Deut. xxiv. 1, and this was suitable to the current exposition of these words. On the other hand, the school of Shammai maintained that the wife was only to be put away for adultery, from the words which follow in that text, "because he hath found some uncleanness in her." The Pharisees seek a resolution of this question, "tempting Him;" that is, trying to induce Him to decide this question, either against the law of Moses, or else, as He must do, against the determination of one of their two famous schools, and thus to render Him offensive to them. Dr. Whitby.

4. — made them male and female,] Gen. i. 27. Made them one male, the other female, and joined them together as man and wife. Bp. Mann.

Anno DOMINI 33.

5 And said, [c] For this cause shall a man leave father and mother, and shall cleave to his wife: and [d] they twain shall be one flesh?

6 Wherefore they are no more twain, but one flesh. What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder.

7 They say unto him, [e] Why did Moses then command to give a writing of divorcement, and to put her away?

8 He saith unto them, Moses because of the hardness of your hearts suffered you to put away your wives: but from the beginning it was not so.

9 [f] And I say unto you, Whosoever shall put away his wife, except it be for fornication, and shall marry another, committeth adultery: and whoso marrieth her which is put away doth commit adultery.

10 ¶ His disciples say unto him, If the case of the man be so with his wife, it is not good to marry.

11 But he said unto them, All men cannot receive this saying, save they to whom it is given.

12 For there are some eunuchs, which were so born from their mother's womb: and there are some eunuchs, which were made eunuchs of men: and there be eunuchs, which have made themselves eunuchs for the kingdom of heaven's sake. He that is able to receive it, let him receive it.

13 ¶ [g] Then were there brought unto him little children, that he should put his hands on them, and pray: and the disciples rebuked them.

14 But Jesus said, Suffer little children, and forbid them not, to come unto me: for of such is the kingdom of heaven.

15 And he laid his hands on them, and departed thence.

16 ¶ [h] And, behold, one came and said unto him, Good Master, what good thing shall I do, that I may have eternal life?

17 And he said unto him, Why callest thou me good? there is none good but one, that is, God: but if thou wilt enter into life, keep the commandments.

---

c Gen. 2. 24. Ephes. 5. 31.
d 1 Cor. 6. 16.
e Deut. 24. 1.
f Chap. 5. 32. Mark 10. 11. Luke 16. 18. 1 Cor. 7. 11.
g Mark 10. 13. Luke 18. 15.
h Mark 10. 17. Luke 18. 18.

6. — What therefore God &c.] Since therefore God hath joined them together by so strict a tie, no man can separate or part them, without breaking this primitive law of God. Dr. S. Clarke.

8. — because of the hardness of your hearts] The law in Deut. xxiv. 1, 2, seems to have been a permission only to put away their wives; but with a command annexed to that permission, of giving them in that case a bill of divorcement. Bp. Pearce. See notes at Deut. xxiv. 1—4.

Our Lord replies, that Moses did not command, but only suffered or tolerated divorces, because of the hardness of their hearts, to prevent worse consequences. And he authoritatively decides, that dislike alone was not a sufficient ground; that nothing short of adultery on her part warranted divorce; and that otherwise, if she married again, which was permitted by the law, Deut. xxiv. 2, she and her second husband were both guilty of adultery. Dr. Hales.

10. — If the case of the man be so &c.] If the case of a man be so with his wife, that he must bear with all her infirmities or imperfections short of adultery, "it is not good to marry," or it is better to remain single. But our Lord disapproves of their reasoning, from the abuse of the sacred institution, against its use as required both by God and nature. Dr. Hales.

11. — cannot receive this saying,] That is, all men cannot live single, and abstain from matrimony. Dr. Whitby.

12. — eunuchs,] This word seems here used to denote the chastity of a single life. Dr. Hammond.

—— for the kingdom of heaven's sake.] That is, abstained from matrimony that they might be free to embrace Christianity, which at that time exposed all who professed it to various difficulties and dangers, which the cares of a family might have discouraged them from undergoing. Bp. Mann.

13. — there brought unto him little children,] It appears that these children were not brought to Christ to be healed of any bodily distemper, for then the disciples would not have hindered them, but to obtain from Him some spiritual blessing appertaining to the kingdom of God, and to admit them into the number of His disciples. The rite of Christian baptism was not yet instituted. Dr. Whitby.

—— put his hands on them,] It was usual among the Jews, when they prayed for a blessing on any person, to lay their hands on him. See Gen. xlviii. 14, 15. Bp. Pearce.

14. — for of such is the kingdom of heaven.] Whatever these words may signify mystically, the literal meaning of them is, that little children may be admitted into the dispensation of the Messiah, and, by consequence, that they may be baptized. Bp. Burnet.

16. — one came and said unto him,] He was a young man, ver. 20, a ruler, (Luke xviii. 18,) and he came running to him, (Mark x. 17.)

—— what good thing shall I do,] This was not an insidious question, or one of mere curiosity, as the questions put to our Lord, especially by the rulers, frequently were; but it appears to have been dictated by a sincere and anxious wish to be instructed in the way to that everlasting life, which he found Jesus held out to his disciples. Bp. Porteus.

17. — Why callest thou me good?] Why dost thou give Me a title not ascribed to your most renowned rabbies; not due to any mere man; thou oughtest to believe that I am more than human, and that the Divine nature dwelleth in Me, if thou conceivest this title truly to belong to Me, since "there is none good but One, that is, God." Dr. Whitby. The title that thou hast given Me, if thou desirest it to be understood in its true and full import, implies your belief that I am come from God; for He alone is the author and source of all good. Bp. Mann.

—— but one, that is, God:] But God only: but God pre-eminently, as the fountain of all wisdom, sovereignty, power, immortality, and goodness, which in all other beings, even in the Son Himself, are derived from the Father. Dr. Hales.

—— if thou wilt enter &c.] From these words of our Saviour we especially learn, what manner of works they are, which spring out of true faith, and lead faithful men to everlasting life. The young man, however, not satisfied with this, asked further, which commandments? The Scribes and Pharisees had made so many of their own laws and traditions, to bring men to heaven, besides God's commandments, that this man was in doubt whether he should come to heaven by those laws and traditions, or by the law of God; and therefore he asked Christ what commandments He meant. To this Christ made a plain answer, rehearsing the commandments, hereby declaring that the laws of God are the very way which leads to everlasting life, and not the traditions and laws of men. So that this is to be taken for a most

Anno DOMINI 33.

18 He saith unto him, Which? Jesus said, [i] Thou shalt do no murder, Thou shalt not commit adultery, Thou shalt not steal, Thou shalt not bear false witness,

[i] Exod. 20. 13.

19 Honour thy father and thy mother: and, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.

20 The young man saith unto him, All these things have I kept from my youth up: what lack I yet?

21 Jesus said unto him, If thou wilt be perfect, go and sell that thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven: and come and follow me.

22 But when the young man heard that saying, he went away sorrowful: for he had great possessions.

23 ¶ Then said Jesus unto his disciples, Verily I say unto you, That a rich man shall hardly enter into the kingdom of heaven.

Anno DOMINI 33.

24 And again I say unto you, It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God.

25 When his disciples heard it, they were exceedingly amazed, saying, Who then can be saved?

26 But Jesus beheld them, and said unto them, With men this is impossible; but with God all things are possible.

27 ¶ [k] Then answered Peter and said unto him, Behold, we have forsaken all, and followed thee; what shall we have therefore?

[k] Mark 10. 28. Luke 18. 28.

28 And Jesus said unto them, Verily I

---

true lesson taught by Christ's own mouth, that the works of the moral commandments of God are the very true works of faith which lead to the blessed life to come. Church Homilies.

18. — Thou shalt do no murder, &c.] Jesus said first, according to St. Mark, (chap. x. 19,) "Thou knowest the commandments." It is observable, that, in this enumeration, our Lord does not recite all the ten commandments, but only five of those which compose the second table. But we are not to imagine that He meant to say, that the observation of a few of God's commands would put the young man in possession of eternal life. His intention unquestionably was, by a very common use of speech, to make a part stand for the whole, and instead of enumerating every individual commandment, to specify a few which might represent the rest. He evidently includes all the moral commandments contained in the law of Moses, for He mentions one, "Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself," which is not among the ten commandments. See Lev. xix. 18. Bp. Porteus.

20. — what lack I yet?] It is probable that he flattered himself that he lacked nothing; that his obedience to the moral law rendered him perfect, qualified him to become a disciple and follower of Christ here, and gave him a claim to a superiour degree of felicity hereafter. Bp. Porteus.

21. — If thou wilt be perfect, go and sell &c.] Our Saviour means, Although God is graciously pleased to accept your obedience to the moral law, yet you must not flatter yourself that your obedience is perfect. To convince you how far you fall short of perfection, I will put your obedience to the test in a trying instance. You say that you have kept from your youth the moral law of Moses. Now one of those laws is, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, &c. If therefore you pretend to perfection, you must observe this law as well as all the rest, and consequently be ready to sacrifice to the command of God every thing that is most valuable to you in the world. I now therefore, as a Teacher sent from God, require you to sell all you have, and give to the poor, and follow Me, and you shall then have treasure in heaven. It should be well observed, that this command of our Saviour does not in its primary meaning relate to Christians of the present times, nor indeed to Christians at all, properly speaking; but to those who were at that time desirous of becoming so. Bp. Porteus.

22. — he went away sorrowful:] The young man made no reply; indeed he could not. He saw all his pretensions to perfection, his hopes of an extraordinary reward, vanish at once: he was not disposed to purchase even treasures in heaven at the price of all he possessed on earth. He therefore went away silent and sorrowful, for he had large possessions. Bp. Porteus.

23. — a rich man] It is expressed in St. Mark, (chap. x. 24,) a man "that trusteth in riches."

—— enter into the kingdom of heaven.] Here we must remember, that to "enter into the kingdom of heaven" means, to become a Christian, which they who had great possessions were unwilling to do, on account of the losses they might sustain by persecution. But the everlasting kingdom of glory hereafter is equally open to all true disciples of Christ, rich or poor; for it is not the condition we are placed in here, whether it be high or low, but the use we make of it, that will determine our condition in the life to come. Bp. Mann.

24. — It is easier for a camel &c.] The camel being the largest animal with which the Jews were acquainted, its name became proverbial for denoting any thing remarkably large; and "a camel's passing through a needle's eye" came, by consequence, as appears from some rabbinical writings, to express a thing absolutely impossible. Among the Babylonians, in whose country elephants were not uncommon, the usual phrase was, "an elephant's passing through a needle's eye:" but the elephant was unknown in Judea. Dr. Campbell.

The proverbial mode of expressing a high degree of improbability, by an elephant's passing through the eye of a needle, is also in use among the East Indians. Michaelis.

In the East the doors are frequently made extremely low, sometimes not more than three or four feet high, to prevent the plundering Arabs from riding into the inner court; still they train their camels to make their way, though with difficulty, through these doorways. It was probably in allusion to this practice that this proverbial expression was formed. Harmer.

The similitude here used implies an absolute impossibility; yet, according to every rule of interpreting Oriental proverbs, it is intended only to express a great difficulty.

Although these expressions of our Lord allude in their primary sense to the difficulty of embracing the Gospel in His time, and apply properly to those who trust in riches; yet to all rich men in general they hold out this most important admonition, that their situation is at best a situation of difficulty and danger; that their riches furnish them with so many temptations to intemperance, pride, forgetfulness of God, and contempt of every thing serious and sacred, that they have peculiar need to take heed to their ways, to keep their hearts with all diligence, and above all to implore that assistance from above, which may enable them to overcome the world, and all the enemies with whom they have to contend. Bp. Porteus.

25. — Who then can be saved?] What rich man then can receive Thy Gospel and be saved? Bp. Pearce.

26. — this is impossible;] Extremely difficult.

—— but with God &c.] But by the grace and assistance of God it is possible for such men to overcome all those temptations, to make a good use of their wealth, and to become worthy disciples of Christ. Dr. S. Clarke.

Anno DOMINI 33.

say unto you, That ye which have followed me, in the regeneration when the Son of man shall sit in the throne of his glory, [l] ye also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel.

[l] Luke 22. 30.

29 And every one that hath forsaken houses, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my name's sake, shall receive an hundredfold, and shall inherit everlasting life.

[m] Chap. 20. 16. Mark 10. 31. Luke 13. 30.

30 [m] But many that are first shall be last; and the last shall be first.

CHAP. XX.

1 Christ, by the similitude of the labourers in the vineyard, sheweth that God is debtor unto no man: 17 foretelleth his passion: 20 by answering the mother of Zebedee's children teacheth his disciples to be lowly: 30 and giveth two blind men their sight.

FOR the kingdom of heaven is like unto a man that is an housholder, which went out early in the morning to hire labourers into his vineyard.

‖ The Roman penny is the eighth part of an ounce, which after five shillings the ounce is sevenpence halfpenny.

2 And when he had agreed with the labourers for a ‖ penny a day, he sent them into his vineyard.

3 And he went out about the third hour, and saw others standing idle in the marketplace,

Anno DOMINI 33.

4 And said unto them; Go ye also into the vineyard, and whatsoever is right I will give you. And they went their way.

5 Again he went out about the sixth and ninth hour, and did likewise.

6 And about the eleventh hour he went out, and found others standing idle, and saith unto them, Why stand ye here all the day idle?

7 They say unto him, Because no man hath hired us. He saith unto them, Go ye also into the vineyard; and whatsoever is right, that shall ye receive.

8 So when even was come, the lord of the vineyard saith unto his steward, Call the labourers, and give them their hire, beginning from the last unto the first.

9 And when they came that were hired about the eleventh hour, they received every man a penny.

10 But when the first came, they supposed that they should have received more;

---

28. — in the regeneration] Opinions have been extremely various respecting the meaning of this word here; but most of the ancient Fathers, and the best modern commentators, connect it with the words that follow, "In the regeneration when the Son of man" &c.; and thus understand it to mean the day of judgment and recompense, when all mankind shall be as it were regenerated or born again, by rising from their graves. Bp. Porteus.

—— ye also shall sit upon twelve thrones,] At that solemn hour (the day of judgment) Jesus tells His Apostles that they shall also sit upon twelve thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel. This is an allusion to the custom of princes having their great men ranged around them as assessors and advisors when they sit in council or in judgment. Bp. Porteus. When I, says our Saviour, shall be exalted to everlasting dominion, and shall sit upon the throne of eternal glory, ye shall then be exalted also, and shall sit by Me in the next degree of glory and power. Dr. S. Clarke.

29. — every one that hath forsaken &c.] We must not confine this promise of our Saviour's to His own immediate followers and disciples; it extends to all His faithful servants in every age and nation of the world, who part with any thing which is dear and valuable to them for the sake of the Gospel. Whoever has passed any time in the world must have seen that every man who is sincere in the profession of his religion, who sets God always before his eyes, and who seeks above all things His favour and approbation, must sometimes make great and painful sacrifices to the commands of his Maker and Redeemer: and whoever does so, whoever gives up his pleasures, his interests, his fame, his favourite pursuits, his fondest wishes, and his strongest passions, for the sake of his duty, and in conformity to the will of his heavenly Father, may rest assured that he shall in no wise lose his reward. He will, in a degree proportioned to the self-denial he has exercised, and the sufferings he has undergone, experience the present comfort and support here promised to the Apostles; and will also, though not to the same extent, have an extraordinary recompense in the kingdom of heaven. Bp. Porteus.

—— shall receive an hundredfold,] In the peace, comfort, and joy of his own mind, which are infinitely more valuable than all earthly goods: and he shall be moreover entitled to an eternal inheritance in heaven. Bp. Mann, Dr. Hammond.

30. But many that are first &c.] That is, many of the Jews, to whom the blessings of the kingdom are first to be offered, shall be the last to partake of them; and many of the Gentiles, to whom they are to be offered after the Jews, shall first enjoy them. Dr. Whitby.

Chap. XX. ver. 1. For the kingdom of heaven &c.] This parable is intended to illustrate the expression which concluded the last chapter. For this saying, that the first shall be last, and the last first, may be confirmed to you by the following parable. Dr. Whitby.

2. — a penny a day,] A Roman penny (about sevenpence halfpenny of our money) was probably the usual price of a day's labour among the Jews, as Tacitus informs us it was among the Romans. Dr. Doddridge.

3. — about the third hour,] That is, about nine o'clock in the morning. The Jews began their day about six o'clock in the morning, and reckoned twelve hours in it. Bp. Pearce. Thus the others were hired respectively at twelve at noon, and at three in the afternoon; and, last of all, at five in the afternoon, answering to what the Jews called the eleventh hour.

From the instance of these labourers, who were not rewarded in proportion to their respective services, all we can conclude is this, that the length of their labours, or the time employed, was not the only thing to be considered; other circumstances were to be taken into the account, in order to a due and just proportion in the retribution. Perhaps those who wrought but a few hours, or but one hour, were as willing to work as others could be, but had not the good fortune to be hired so soon. Perhaps, after they were hired, they worked with far greater diligence and application than the others did. When an all-wise Master appoints the work, and distributes the wages, every minute circumstance must be exactly weighed and considered. It is not with the all-wise God as with an earthly master: He considers all circumstances; makes allowance for necessary hindrances, looks at the men as well as at the work; at their tempers, their dispositions, their heartiness, and forwardness in what they do; and upon the whole, balances the account with an unerring exactness. Dr. Waterland.

Anno DOMINI 33.

and they likewise received every man a penny.

11 And when they had received it, they murmured against the goodman of the house,

12 Saying, These last || have wrought but one hour, and thou hast made them equal unto us, which have borne the burden and heat of the day.

|| Or, have continued one hour only.

13 But he answered one of them, and said, Friend, I do thee no wrong: didst not thou agree with me for a penny?

14 Take that thine is, and go thy way: I will give unto this last, even as unto thee.

15 Is it not lawful for me to do what I will with mine own? Is thine eye evil, because I am good?

16 [a] So the last shall be first, and the first last: for many be called, but few chosen.

[a] Chap. 19. 30.

17 ¶ [b] And Jesus going up to Jerusalem took the twelve disciples apart in the way, and said unto them,

Anno DOMINI 33.

18 Behold, we go up to Jerusalem; and the Son of man shall be betrayed unto the chief priests and unto the scribes, and they shall condemn him to death,

[b] Mark 10. 32. Luke 18. 31.

19 [c] And shall deliver him to the Gentiles to mock, and to scourge, and to crucify him: and the third day he shall rise again.

[c] John 18. 32.

20 ¶ [d] Then came to him the mother of Zebedee's children with her sons, worshipping him, and desiring a certain thing of him.

[d] Mark 10. 35.

21 And he said unto her, What wilt thou? She saith unto him, Grant that these my two sons may sit, the one on thy right hand, and the other on the left, in thy kingdom.

15. — Is thine eye evil,] That is, unkind, grudging, uncharitable. See a similar phrase, Ecclus. xiv. 8; Mark vii. 22. Bp. Pearce.

—— because I am good?] The word translated "good" has here, as in some other places, (Matt. xii. 12; Acts. ix. 36,) a peculiar sense, implying bounty, liberality. Dr. Hammond.

16. So the last shall be first, &c.] See the note on chap. xix. 30. Thus many of those who were here later in time, and seem now inferiour in many respects, as the Gentiles and they which are last called, shall finally equal or even exceed in dignity and glory others, who now have the precedence in many advantages, as the Jews and they who are first called. Dr. S. Clarke.

To the Jews God was pleased to make the first express discoveries of His will by a written law: their nation alone, in the ages before the Gospel, were blessed with a revealed religion; and, at the first publication of the Gospel, our Lord confined His own presence and ministry to this people and country. So did His Apostles and disciples, by His direction, during His abode on earth, and for some time after His ascension. The several stages of this answer to the repeated invitations of the morning, the third, the sixth, and ninth hours in the parable. At last, which answers to the eleventh hour, this benefit was extended to the Gentiles. They readily accepted it, and by so doing became partakers of the same grace and precious promises with those, who having been always under the legal, were removed sooner under the evangelical, dispensation. This, as is expressed in the parable, gave great offence to those earlier converts, who deemed themselves hardly treated when men from darkness and idolatry were transferred into the same marvellous light with themselves, and all that distinction of favour, which had been the boasted prerogative of their race for so many generations, was taken away.

Let us be sure to make a right use of the encouragement here given to the labourers at the eleventh hour. This we must do, not by rendering it an argument for presumption to sooth us in impenitence and sloth, as if God were bound to receive us at what time, and upon what terms, we please. This would be extremely to pervert the meaning of the text, which tells us indeed, that call was the last; but does not tell us that they who refused His former calls were called again and again. If this be done, it is grace and favour, not justice and debt. But we, who live under the ministry of the Gospel, have His calls daily sounding in our ears; and, if we continue obstinately deaf, cannot be sure that our last call is not already over. The true benefit then arising from hence is, to all such as have had the unhappiness to lie long in sin and ignorance, that God will accept them, though they come late into their Master's vineyard, provided they work faithfully to the utmost of their power; that He makes gracious allowances for infirmities and hindrances, but then He expects that we should be sensible of them too, that we should strive against them the best we can; remembering that the longer it is before we begin, the shorter is our time for work, and therefore we should with more haste and earnestness prepare for the evening, when an account will be taken of what we have done, and our wages awarded accordingly. Dean Stanhope.

—— for many be called, &c.] For though many of the Jews be called by the preaching of the Gospel, but few of them will be chosen, or prevailed upon, by believing, to become the elect of God, Rom. ii. 5, 7. Dr. Whitby.

19. And shall deliver him &c.] This is the third express declaration of His death, which Jesus made to His disciples: see chap. xvi. 21; xvii. 22; but He now for the first time told them of the mode of His death; that He should be delivered to the Gentiles, to be mocked, scourged, and crucified. It should be observed, how much more full and distinct His discovery of these events became, in proportion as the period when they were to happen drew nigh. Dean Stanhope.

—— and to crucify him:] This prediction of the mode of His death must have furnished the Apostles with a strong proof of the spirit of prophecy displayed by our Lord. It was very much more probable that He would be privately slain, or stoned to death in a tumult, than that He should suffer the punishment of crucifixion; which was customary among the Romans, but was wholly unusual among the Jews. Dr. Doddridge.

Whether we reflect on the danger which the disciples were in, of being wholly cast down and oppressed with so severe an affliction, as the death of their Master, and the insults and malice of His and their enemies; this forewarning of the events was exceedingly seasonable and kind, to prepare them for so heavy a burden, and to sustain them under it. Or whether we regard the prevailing errour concerning the Messiah's first appearance, and the spiritual nature of His kingdom, it was well suited to rectify their mistakes on that subject: or, if we consider the scandal which was likely to arise from a crucified Lord; it was fit to shew that His death was voluntary, and so a demonstration of infinite love; fit to signify, by its agreement with the prophecies, that this design, and all the parts of it, were ordained by the Highest Wisdom; fit to represent the shame of our Lord's crucifixion abundantly recompensed by the glories of His resurrection. Dean Stanhope.

20. — the mother of Zebedee's children] Her name was Salome, and she was the mother of the two Apostles, James and John. St. Mark, chap. x. 35, mentions that this request was made by the two Apostles themselves: it is probable that their mother made it at their desire. Dean Stanhope.

21. — the one on thy right hand, &c.] She requests that her two sons might have the privilege of being placed next in honour to the Messiah Himself. The expression refers to the custom in

Anno DOMINI 33.

22 But Jesus answered and said, Ye know not what ye ask. Are ye able to drink of the cup that I shall drink of, and to be baptized with the baptism that I am baptized with? They say unto him, We are able.

23 And he saith unto them, Ye shall drink indeed of my cup, and be baptized with the baptism that I am baptized with: but to sit on my right hand, and on my left, is not mine to give, but it shall be given to them for whom it is prepared of my Father.

24 And when the ten heard it, they were moved with indignation against the two brethren.

25 But Jesus called them unto him, and said, [e] Ye know that the princes of the Gentiles exercise dominion over them, and they that are great exercise authority upon them.

[e] Luke 22. 25.

26 But it shall not be so among you: but whosoever will be great among you, let him be your minister; Anno DOMINI 33.

27 And whosoever will be chief among you, let him be your servant:

28 Even as the [f] Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many.

[f] Phil. 2. 7.

29 [g] And as they departed from Jericho, a great multitude followed him.

[g] Mark 10. 46. Luke 18. 35.

30 ¶ And, behold, two blind men sitting by the way side, when they heard that Jesus passed by, cried out, saying, Have mercy on us, O Lord, thou Son of David.

31 And the multitude rebuked them, because they should hold their peace: but they cried the more, saying, Have mercy on us, O Lord, thou son of David.

32 And Jesus stood still, and called them, earthly courts, of giving precedence to those of the first rank and dignity, by seating them nearest to the person of the prince. Dean Stanhope.

---

22. — Ye know not what ye ask.] Their apprehensions of the kingdom of the Messiah were gross, carnal, and low. For, as His kingdom was not of this world, so neither would the manners and advantages of it hold any such resemblance to those on earth, as they fondly imagined. Himself was not to acquire and possess a crown by wars and triumphs, but by sufferings, and shame, and hardship. Dean Stanhope.

—— Are ye able to drink of the cup &c.] This is a figurative expression, often made use of by the sacred and other writers. See chap. xxvi. 39; Ps. xi. 6; Is. li. 17; Jer. xxv. 15, &c. To drink of the same cup is to have the same measure of afflictions.

—— the cup] In ancient times the master of a family used to distribute to his children and servants a certain separate allowance of meat and drink for each by himself, differing in quantity and quality according to their desert. The same custom was also observed in entertaining guests, Gen. xliii. 34. In allusion to this custom the word cup is used for the dispensations of Providence; Almighty God, as one common Master and Father, appointing to every one his respective share of good and evil. Bp. Mann.

—— and to be baptized with the baptism &c.] Here the overwhelming with calamities is represented, in a manner familiar in Scripture, by immersion in waters. See Ps. xlii. 7; lxix. 2, &c. Dr. Whitby.

23. — Ye shall drink indeed &c.] This prediction was accomplished respecting these two disciples. St. James was put to death by the malice of Herod, (Acts xii. 1, 2,) and St. John was scourged and imprisoned by the council at Jerusalem, (Acts v. 21, 40,) afterwards banished into the isle of Patmos, (Rev. i. 9,) and, as has always been reported in the Church, suffered at last a most cruel death. Dean Stanhope.

—— is not mine to give,] Implying that the honours and degrees of happiness "in His kingdom" are not the Son's to give, in the sense in which the Apostles supposed; that is, He does not give them absolutely and arbitrarily; not led by partiality or respect of persons, or vanquished by importunities, as earthly princes are; but that He is limited by considerations of equity and strict justice, from which it can never be consistent with the perfections of His nature to depart. Dean Stanhope.

This expression argues no defect in the power of Christ, but only a perfect conformity to His Father's will. Dr. Whitby.

—— but — to them for whom it is prepared] But to those persons, and according to those qualifications which God hath appointed. Dr. S. Clarke. Every Christian will then be exalted to a higher degree of bliss and glory, in proportion as he has drunk deeper of Christ's cup: as his humility, his sufferings, patience, and meek disposition, have brought him to a nearer conformity with his Master; so shall he be considered and placed nearest to Him in happiness. Dean Stanhope.

25, 26. — Ye know that the princes &c.] Ye know that, in the kingdoms of this world, men strive ambitiously to get dominion one over the other; and they who are greatest in riches and power, have the greatest honour and respect paid to them by others. But among you I will have things ordered by other measures: he that desires to be great and honourable among you, let him seek to deserve his honour by meekness and lowliness; and let him exercise his power, not in domineering over any, but in assisting and doing good to all. Dr. S. Clarke.

Our Lord in this answer says to His disciples, I allow of no strife among you for place or station; no selfish or ambitious views; all the contention must be who shall be most charitable and humble, and the most diligent in his kind services to his fellow members of My family. Duchal.

28. — to give his life a ransom for many.] To die for the redemption of mankind. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— a ransom] This expression proves that Christ suffered in our stead, and gave His life to redeem mankind, who were subject to death, the wages of sin.

——for many.] For all men; for so the word "many" frequently signifies. See Rom. v. 15, 19; Dan. xii. 2. Dr. Whitby. See notes at Dan xii. 2; Rom. v. 15.

In this, as well as in numberless other passages which lie spread through various parts of the New Testament, it is as plain as words can make any thing, that the death of Christ is proposed to us as our sacrifice and reconciliation, our atonement and redemption. It is not possible for any one who considers these expressions, to imagine that Christ's death was only a confirmation of His Gospel, a pattern of a holy and patient suffering of death, and a necessary preparation to His resurrection, by which He gave us a clear proof of a resurrection, and, by consequence, of eternal life, as by His doctrine He has shewed the way to it. Thus it is plain that Christ's death was our sacrifice; by which is meant that God, intending to reconcile the world to Himself, and to encourage sinners to repent and turn to Him, thought fit to offer the pardon of sin, together with the other blessings of His Gospel, in such a way as should demonstrate both the guilt of sin, and His hatred of it; and yet, with that, His love of sinners, and His compassion towards them. Bp. Burnet.

30. — two blind men] St. Mark (chap. x. 46.) and St. Luke (chap. xviii. 35.) mention only one blind man, named Bartimeus. It is probable that he was more known, or of higher rank than the other; on which account they mention him only. Bp. Pearce.

—— thou son of David.] To call Jesus "the Son of David," was to acknowledge Him as the Messiah. Bp. Mann.

Anno DOMINI 33.

and said, What will ye that I shall do unto you?

33 They say unto him, Lord, that our eyes may be opened.

34 So Jesus had compassion on them, and touched their eyes: and immediately their eyes received sight, and they followed him.

CHAP. XXI.

1 Christ rideth into Jerusalem upon an ass, 12 driveth the buyers and sellers out of the temple, 17 curseth the fig tree, 23 putteth to silence the priests and elders, 28 and rebuketh them by the similitude of the two sons, 35 and the husbandmen, who slew such as were sent unto them.

[a] Mark 11. 1. Luke 19. 29.

AND [a] when they drew nigh unto Jerusalem, and were come to Bethphage, unto the mount of Olives, then sent Jesus two disciples,

2 Saying unto them, Go into the village over against you, and straightway ye shall find an ass tied, and a colt with her: loose them, and bring them unto me.

3 And if any man say ought unto you, ye shall say, The Lord hath need of them; and straightway he will send them.

Anno DOMINI 33.

4 All this was done, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophet, saying,

5 [b] Tell ye the daughter of Sion, Behold, thy King cometh unto thee, meek, and sitting upon an ass, and a colt the foal of an ass.

[b] Isai. 62. 11. Zech. 9. 9. John 12. 15.

6 [c] And the disciples went, and did as Jesus commanded them,

[c] Mark 11. 4.

7 And brought the ass, and the colt, and put on them their clothes, and they set him thereon.

8 And a very great multitude spread their garments in the way; others cut down branches from the trees, and strawed them in the way.

9 And the multitudes that went before, and that followed, cried, saying, Hosanna to the son of David: Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord; Hosanna in the highest.

---

34. — and immediately their eyes received sight,] We should well observe that our Saviour's miracles were not wrought sparingly and seldom, as the counterfeit miracles of impostors have ever been; but He shewed His divine power very often, on all just occasions, and in a great variety of instances, some of them so amazing, that they stopped the mouths of His greatest enemies, or else forced them to such acknowledgments as they were most unwilling to make. Bragge.

Chap. XXI. ver. 1. And when they drew nigh &c.] It appears from John xii. 1, 2, 12, 13, that the time of Christ's solemn entry into Jerusalem, the account of which follows, was five days before the passover. Dean Stanhope.

—— to Bethphage, unto the mount of Olives,] Bethphage was a village near Jerusalem, on the mount of Olives. The mount of Olives, so called from the olive trees which grew upon it, lay near Jerusalem to the east, and was separated from it by the brook Kedron. Dr. Wells.

2. — and straightway ye shall find &c.] We should here remark the Divine knowledge and power of our blessed Lord: the former in foretelling where and in what manner His disciples should find the beasts required for the occasion; the latter in inclining the hearts of persons at a distance to so ready a compliance with His commands. Dean Stanhope.

4. — that it might be fulfilled &c.] Events were so admirably disposed, by the wise providence of God, to fulfil His purposes, that the minutest circumstances relating to Christ were described beforehand, in order to prepare men for His reception. Bp. Mann.

5. Tell ye &c.] See Zech. ix. 9, and the notes there. The Jews themselves applied the passage to the expected Messiah.

—— the daughter of Sion,] That is, Jerusalem, so named from mount Sion, on which the city was partly built. This poetical manner of personifying cities and countries was familiar to the Prophets. See Isai. lxii. 11; Zech. ix. 9. Dr. Campbell.

—— upon an ass, and a colt] Rather, "Upon an ass, even a colt," Mark xi. 7; Luke xix. 35; John xii. 14. Dr. Whitby, Bp. Pearce.

7. — thereon.] "Upon the colt," Luke xix. 35. Dr. Whitby.

8. — spread their garments &c.] The strewing of clothes, flowers, and branches before kings, was an usual ceremony in the East. See among other passages 2 Kings ix. 13. Dr. Whitby.

9. — Hosanna to the son of David:] The word "Hosanna" is an abbreviation of two Hebrew words, which signify "save now:" they are found at Ps. cxviii. 25, and were a customary acclamation of the common people on solemn occasions. Bp. Pearce. The people sing hosannas to Jesus in this manner, as proclaiming Him the Messiah. For it had been their custom, at the feast of tabernacles, not only to sing hosannas with the greatest joy, but to carry branches in their hands, to celebrate their expectation of the coming of their Messiah; on which account it was that, on acknowledging Jesus for this Messiah, they sing the hosannas, and use the rites customary at that feast; wishing prosperity to Him and His kingdom, from Him that dwelleth "in the highest." Dr. Whitby.

—— Blessed is he &c.] Blessed is He whom God hath sent to be our King and Deliverer. Dr. S. Clarke.

At the time predicted by the Prophets, not only Jerusalem looked for a completion of the prophecies, but the whole earth sat still, expecting that Judea should give her a King. And, lo, the promised King of the Jews is born of the royal house and lineage of David. All the circumstances of His birth, the words of His mouth, and the actions of His life, demonstrate Him to be the Messiah, foretold by the Prophets from the beginning of the world. He cometh to His own; and Jerusalem is commanded to rejoice and shout: but His own receive Him not; and Jerusalem turns a deaf ear to the voice of all her Prophets, not suffering herself to believe that any thing said by them could refer to Jesus of Nazareth. Her heart was depraved and hardened: she demanded to be put in possession of the empire of this world: she despised the appearance of her King, with the acclamations of an ignoble multitude; and soon nailed a spiritual Monarch to the cross. With how different sensations are the members of the Christian church affected, when they hear the words of Zechariah, "Behold thy King cometh unto thee," and read the history of their accomplishment in this chapter, from which is selected the Gospel for the first Sunday in Advent! With inexpressible delight we carry back our thoughts to that happy era, when the King of the Gentiles, as well as of the Jews, made His appearance in the flesh. We join His train, we attend Him in His progress towards Jerusalem, and seem to enter with Him into the holy city, while the multitude of those who go before, and who follow after, cry, "Hosanna to the Son of David: Blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord." When we behold this scene, as presented to our view at this season, we are taught to conceive by it a noble idea of the Messiah, at His first advent, ushered into the Church,

Anno DOMINI 33.

10 [d] And when he was come into Jerusalem, all the city was moved, saying, Who is this?

[d] Mark 11. 15. Luke 19. 45. John 2. 13.

11 And the multitude said, This is Jesus the prophet of Nazareth of Galilee.

12 ¶ And Jesus went into the temple of God, and cast out all them that sold and bought in the temple, and overthrew the tables of the moneychangers, and the seats of them that sold doves, 13 And said unto them, It is written, [e] My house shall be called the house of prayer; [f] but ye have made it a den of thieves.

[e] Isai. 56. 7. [f] Jer. 7. 11. Mark 11. 17. Luke 19. 46.

14 And the blind and the lame came to him in the temple; and he healed them.

15 And when the chief priests and scribes saw the wonderful things that he did, and the children crying in the temple, and saying, Hosanna to the son of David; they were sore displeased,

16 And said unto him, Hearest thou what these say? And Jesus saith unto them, Yea; have ye never read, [g] Out of the mouth of babes and sucklings thou hast perfected praise?

[g] Ps. 8. 2.

17 ¶ And he left them, and went out of the city into Bethany; and he lodged there.

Anno DOMINI 33.

18 Now in the morning as he returned into the city, he hungered.

19 [h] And when he saw a fig tree in the way, he came to it, and found nothing thereon, but leaves only, and said unto it, Let no fruit grow on thee henceforward for ever. And presently the fig tree withered away.

[h] Mark 11. 13.

20 And when the disciples saw it, they marvelled, saying, How soon is the fig tree withered away!

21 Jesus answered and said unto them, Verily I say unto you, If ye have faith, and doubt not, ye shall not only do this which is done to the fig tree, but also if ye shall say unto this mountain, Be thou removed, and be thou cast into the sea; it shall be done.

22 And all things, whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer, believing, ye shall receive.

23 ¶ [i] And when he was come into the temple, the chief priests and the elders of the people came unto him as he was teaching, and said, By what authority doest thou as her Lord and King, the Prophets going before, and the Apostles following after Him, all proclaiming and bearing testimony to Jesus, all singing Hosanna to the son of David, all pronouncing the blessedness of Him, who thus cometh in the name of Jehovah. We know that this is He, to whom give all the Prophets witness; and that He hath fulfilled these things which were written of Him. We know that He hath overcome our enemies, and triumphed gloriously, that He hath erected an universal and everlasting kingdom, and given laws to the world; nay, that He doth govern all things in heaven and earth. Bp. Horne.

[i] Mark 11. 27. Luke 20. 1.

---

12. — into the temple of God,] Into the outer court of the temple, called the court of the Gentiles. Bp. Pearce.

—— the tables of the moneychangers,] Meaning those who furnished the Jews, who came from foreign parts with money for their bills, or with the current money of Judea for that of their own country, or changed larger pieces of money into smaller. Dr. Whitby, Bp. Pearce.

—— that sold doves,] St. John (chap. ii. 15) adds, that our Saviour drove out also "the sheep and the oxen;" all of which were wanted for sacrifices: the doves for offerings made by the poor, Levit. v. 7. Bp. Pearce.

13. — but ye have made it a den of thieves.] Ye, by turning My house into a place of unjust gain, of gain got by exactions, have given just occasion to apply to you the words of Jeremiah, chap. vii. 11. Dr. Whitby.

—— of thieves.] Meaning persons who make undue gain of others by traffick. Dr. Hammond. He intimates, that profit extorted by fraud and oppression is nothing else than robbery: and that the exercise of such trades in a consecrated place, was so derogatory to the purposes of its institution, that it made their injustice become sacrilege. From our Saviour's words and actions on this occasion, we should learn, what respect is due to the temples of God, and how we ought to behave ourselves in them. Since they are the houses of God, we should demean ourselves in them, as under His more immediate presence and observation; and, since they are houses of prayer, every one should be careful to make them such to himself, by frequenting them conscientiously, and joining in the prayers devoutly. Dean Stanhope.

16. — hast perfected praise?] Hast caused Thy praise to be set forth in a most perfect manner. Bp. Pearce.

17. — into Bethany;] To the house of Lazarus, whom He had raised from the dead, John xii. 1.

19. — and found nothing thereon,] The law of Moses, at Deut. xxiii. 24, 25, permitted the Jews, when passing through a vineyard or field of corn, to gather food for immediate use; and this law was extended to olives, figs, and all other eatable fruits. Bp. Pearce.

—— And presently the fig tree withered away.] This transaction may be considered as typifying the impending destruction of the Jews, in consequence of their want of fruit. Our blessed Lord prefigured His eternal mercies by numberless miracles for the good of mankind. He expressed the severity of His judgments on the unfruitful and barren, by a single sign inflicted on the senseless tree. Grotius. Considered in a moral light, this miracle may be a caution to us, not to be barren or unfruitful in the work of the Lord: otherwise, if we have only the shew and profession of Christianity, and bring forth only leaves without producing fruits of it in holiness of life, we shall be devoted to destruction. Bp. Mann. Respecting this transaction of the fig tree, see further notes at Mark xi. 13, &c.

21. — say unto this mountain, &c.] See note at chap. xvii. 20. No encouragement is here given to any enthusiastick notion of the power of faith; it is only a strong figurative expression, signifying that, by a firm and lively trust in God, the disciples would be enabled to work the greatest miracles. Bp. Mann.

22. And all things, whatsoever &c.] Whatsoever ye shall ask of God, in order to confirm your doctrine and ministry, with steadfast faith, without doubt or wavering, He will enable you to perform. Dr. S. Clarke.

23. — the elders of the people] Meaning the magistrates, who from their age and gravity were chosen in every city, and invested with authority in publick matters. Beausobre.

—— doest thou these things?] Referring to His publick entry into Jerusalem, His driving the buyers and sellers from the temple, His miracles wrought in the temple, and His teaching there. Abp. Newcome.

Anno DOMINI 33.

these things? and who gave thee this authority?

24 And Jesus answered and said unto them, I also will ask you one thing, which if ye tell me, I in like wise will tell you by what authority I do these things.

25 The baptism of John, whence was it? from heaven, or of men? And they reasoned with themselves, saying, If we shall say, From heaven; he will say unto us, Why did ye not then believe him?

26 But if we shall say, Of men; we fear [k] the people; for all hold John as a prophet.

[k] Chap. 14. 5.

27 And they answered Jesus, and said, We cannot tell. And he said unto them, Neither tell I you by what authority I do these things.

28 ¶ But what think ye? A certain man had two sons; and he came to the first, and said, Son, go work to day in my vineyard.

29 He answered and said, I will not: but afterward he repented, and went.

30 And he came to the second, and said likewise. And he answered and said, I go, sir: and went not.

31 Whether of them twain did the will of his father? They say unto him, The first. Jesus saith unto them, Verily I say unto you, That the publicans and the harlots go into the kingdom of God before you.

Anno DOMINI 33.

32 [l] For John came unto you in the way of righteousness, and ye believed him not: but the publicans and the harlots believed him: and ye, when ye had seen it, repented not afterward, that ye might believe him.

[l] Chap. 3. 1.

33 ¶ Hear another parable: There was a certain housholder, [m] which planted a vineyard, and hedged it round about, and digged a winepress in it, and built a tower, and let it out to husbandmen, and went into a far country:

[m] Isai. 5. 1. Jer. 2. 21. Mark 12. 1. Luke 20. 9.

34 And when the time of the fruit drew near, he sent his servants to the husbandmen, that they might receive the fruits of it.

35 And the husbandmen took his servants, and beat one, and killed another, and stoned another.

36 Again, he sent other servants more than the first: and they did unto them likewise.

37 But last of all he sent unto them his son, saying, They will reverence my son.

38 But when the husbandmen saw the son, they said among themselves, This is the heir; [n] come, let us kill him, and let us seize on his inheritance.

[n] Chap. 26. 3. John 11. 53.

---

25. The baptism of John, &c.] His question is, When John the Baptist preached and baptized, did he do so by God's appointment, or was it only a human contrivance? Dr. S. Clarke.

—— Why did ye not then believe him?] When he pointed out Me as the Christ. See chap. iii. 3, 11, 14; John i. 29, 30. Bp. Pearce.

27. — Neither tell I you] This question of our Saviour, as it completely silenced and confounded these malicious Scribes and Pharisees, containing a secret conviction and reproof of their unreasonable unbelief in rejecting John the Baptist, so it pointed out the reasonableness of His not returning a positive answer to their question, since it was evident that they who believed not John the Baptist, whom yet they dared not expressly deny to be sent from God, would much less have believed Jesus's plain assertion of His own Divine authority. Dr. S. Clarke.

28. — A certain man &c.] Our Saviour, by this parable, points out the justice of God in utterly rejecting the chief priests and elders, with all their pretences of religion, and receiving in their stead the penitent Gentiles. Dr. S. Clarke.

31. — the publicans and the harlots] Even publicans and harlots, those whom you most despise and hate, repent and become Christians, whilst you obstinately set yourselves against the gracious terms of the Gospel. Bp. Mann.

Profligate persons were sometimes sufficiently humble to repent, but the Pharisees, who had faults also, and great ones, though not so scandalous, had withal so much pride and high-mindedness, that they imagined it more their business to sit as censors and correctors over all mankind, than to confess their own sins, or to repent of them. Dr. Waterland.

32. — came — in the way of righteousness,] Came to preach to you the necessity of repentance and obedience. Dr. S. Clarke. Setting an example of righteousness, and promoting its cause. Abp. Newcome.

—— and ye, when ye had seen it,] When ye had seen even the publicans and most vicious people wrought upon by his preaching, yet this had no effect upon you. Dr. Hammond.

33. — which planted a vineyard,] There is no allegory in Scripture more frequent or more significant, than that which represents the Church of God under the figure of a vine or vineyard. Dean Stanhope. See notes at Ps. lxxx. 8; Isai. v. 1, 2.

—— digged a winepress,] In Persia they still dig their winepresses; for they form them in hollow places dug in the ground, which they line with mason's work. Sir J. Chardin.

—— built a tower,] An elevated building, where the vinedresser might lodge, to overlook and watch the vineyard. Dr. Lightfoot.

35. — beat one, and killed another, &c.] This refers generally to the maltreatment of the Prophets by the Jews; and perhaps, particularly, to Jeremiah, whom they beat; Isaiah, whom they killed; and Zechariah the son of Jehoiada, whom they stoned. Grotius.

37. — last of all he sent unto them his son,] "Having yet one son, His wellbeloved," Mark xii. 6. Thus, at last, God sent His Son into the world, that, if there were any means left of reducing the Jews to repentance, they might be convinced at last by the miracles and authority of Christ. Dr. S. Clarke.

38. — This is the heir;] This verse, compared with John xi. 48, seems to hint that the rulers of the Jews acknowledged amongst themselves, that Christ was the Son of God. Dr. Lightfoot.

—— This is the heir; come, let us kill him,] Thus the Jews, after all the indignities which they had offered to God's messengers the Prophets, were to add this at last, to fill up the measure of their iniquity; that they should also put to death the Son of God, casting Him out of the Church, who was the foundation of it, and the author of all God's blessings to it. Dr. S. Clarke.

Anno DOMINI 33.

39 And they caught him, and cast him out of the vineyard, and slew him.

40 When the lord therefore of the vineyard cometh, what will he do unto those husbandmen?

41 They say unto him, He will miserably destroy those wicked men, and will let out his vineyard unto other husbandmen, which shall render him the fruits in their seasons.

42 Jesus saith unto them, [o] Did ye never read in the scriptures, The stone which the builders rejected, the same is become the head of the corner: this is the Lord's doing, and it is marvellous in our eyes?

43 Therefore say I unto you, The kingdom of God shall be taken from you, and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof.

44 And whosoever [p] shall fall on this stone shall be broken: but on whomsoever it shall fall, it will grind him to powder.

45 And when the chief priests and Pharisees had heard his parables, they perceived that he spake of them.

46 But when they sought to lay hands on him, they feared the multitude, because they took him for a prophet.

o Ps. 118. 22. Acts 4. 11.

p Rom. 9. 33. 1 Pet. 2. 7. Isai. 8. 14.

CHAP. XXII.

Anno DOMINI 33.

1 The parable of the marriage of the king's son. 9 The vocation of the Gentiles. 12 The punishment of him that wanted the wedding garment. 15 Tribute ought to be paid to Cesar. 23 Christ confuteth the Sadducees for the resurrection: 34 answereth the lawyer, which is the first and great commandment: 41 and poseth the Pharisees about the Messias.

AND Jesus answered [a] and spake unto them again by parables, and said, a Luke 14. 16. Rev. 19. 9.

2 The kingdom of heaven is like unto a certain king, which made a marriage for his son,

3 And sent forth his servants to call them that were bidden to the wedding: and they would not come.

4 Again, he sent forth other servants, saying, Tell them which are bidden, Behold, I have prepared my dinner: my oxen and my fatlings are killed, and all things are ready: come unto the marriage.

5 But they made light of it, and went their ways, one to his farm, another to his merchandise:

6 And the remnant took his servants, and entreated them spitefully, and slew them.

---

41. They say unto him,] The chief priests and elders, with whom He was now discoursing, (ver. 23,) say unto Him. Bp. Pearce.

—— He will miserably destroy &c.] The ingratitude and insolence of the husbandmen, here represented, constrained even these hearers to acknowledge it a most fit thing, that the Lord of the vineyard should dispossess and destroy these wretches, and provide Himself with other husbandmen, more true to their trust, and more sensible of the honour of having it reposed in them. This image of that which the Jews had done, and were about to do, manifests the justice of that punishment, which they thus drew on themselves and their whole nation, when God turned those very measures to their destruction, upon which they chiefly depended for the safety and establishment of their usurped dominion over the people's consciences. For He utterly destroyed their city, dispersed their people, and carried His Gospel to the Gentiles, whose spirit and behaviour proved them more worthy objects of this unexpected mercy. Dean Stanhope.

The owner of the vineyard here is God; the husbandmen are the Jews, His chosen and peculiar people; the servants were the holy Prophets, who were sent to warn them to give the fruits of a holy and good life. But, instead of their reforming by their admonitions, they put them to death. Thus they did likewise to the Son of God Himself. The Jews then being no longer worthy of the Divine grace, which they had thus abused, the vineyard was given to others; that is, the Gospel was preached to other nations, whereby we and all mankind have been called out of darkness into His marvellous light. Let us then take care to walk as children of light, in all holiness and virtue; for, in proportion to the means of grace will be our account at the last day. Bp. Mann.

42. — The stone which the builders rejected, &c.] See note at Ps. cxviii. 22. The expression, "head of the corner," seems to denote that stone of the corner which is the uppermost, and binds all under it the closer together. Bp. Pearce. In the same manner, Christ the Messiah, whom the Jews rejected, shall receive and unite the Gentiles to His Church, as a principal corner stone unites and links together the two sides of a building. See Ephes. ii. 20. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— this is the Lord's doing,] This is a wonderful act of the Divine power, and an extraordinary instance of the immediate and overruling influence of God's peculiar providence. Dr. S. Clarke.

43. — The kingdom — shall be taken &c.] This is one of the clearest predictions of the rejection of the Jews, and of the call of the Gentiles, to be found in the Gospel histories. Dr. Campbell. The meaning is, the Jewish nation shall no longer be the peculiar people of God; but other nations, more worthy of the title, shall obtain this distinction. Rosenmüller.

44. — whosoever shall fall &c.] The meaning is, This great and general revelation of the will of God by the Messiah, being the last discovery that He will ever make to mankind; whoever shall stumble and be offended at any part of it, or behave himself in any manner unworthy of it, shall be severely punished. But he that shall utterly and finally reject it, or behave himself so as to deserve the utmost effect of the wrath which it reveals and brings along with it, shall be miserably and utterly destroyed. Dr. S. Clarke.

Chap. XXII. ver. 2. The kingdom of heaven &c.] The primary and principal object of this parable is to represent, under the image of a marriage feast, the invitation given to the Jews to embrace the Gospel; their rejection of that gracious offer, the severe punishment inflicted on them for their ingratitude and obstinacy, and the admission of the heathens to the privileges of Christianity in their room. See Isai. liv. 5; Ps. xlv; Jer. iii. 8. Bp. Porteus.

— The kingdom of heaven is like &c.] That is, The dispensations of the Almighty, with respect to the Christian religion, here denoted by the kingdom of heaven, may be compared to the conduct of a certain king, &c. Bp. Porteus.

—— made a marriage] A marriage feast, as the Greek word signifies, and as must be understood from the sequel of the parable. These feasts continued for several days, Judg. xiv. 10, 12. Dr. Whitby.

4. — my oxen and my fatlings &c.] By this is conveyed a significant intimation of the invaluable mercies designed by God for His creatures in the Christian dispensation. Dean Stanhope.

6. — entreated them spitefully,] Thus the Jews not only treated

Anno DOMINI 33.

7 But when the king heard thereof, he was wroth: and he sent forth his armies, and destroyed those murderers, and burned up their city.

8 Then saith he to his servants, The wedding is ready, but they which were bidden were not worthy.

9 Go ye therefore into the highways, and as many as ye shall find, bid to the marriage.

10 So those servants went out into the highways, and gathered together all as many as they found, both bad and good: and the wedding was furnished with guests.

11 ¶ And when the king came in to see the guests, he saw there a man which had not on a wedding garment:

12 And he saith unto him, Friend, how camest thou in hither not having a wedding garment? And he was speechless. Anno DOMINI 33.

13 Then said the king to the servants, Bind him hand and foot, and take him away, and cast him into outer darkness; there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

14 [b] For many are called, but few are chosen. [b] Chap. 20. 16.

15 ¶ [c] Then went the Pharisees, and took counsel how they might entangle him in his talk. [c] Mark 12. 13. Luke 20. 20.

16 And they sent out unto him their disciples with the Herodians, saying, Master, we know that thou art true, and teachest the way of God in truth, neither carest with contempt the words of eternal life, but pursued with unceasing rancour the first preachers of the Gospel, and persecuted them even unto death. Bp. Porteus.

---

7.—he sent forth his armies, &c.] This points out in the plainest terms the Roman armies under Vespasian and Titus, which, not many years after this was spoken, besieged Jerusalem, and destroyed the city, with an immense number of its inhabitants. This terrible devastation our Lord here predicts in general terms, (as afterwards more particularly at chap. xxiv,) and represents, as the judgment of God on this perverse and obstinate people, for their rejection of the Christian religion, their savage treatment of the Apostles and their associates, and their many other atrocious crimes. This punishment however is here represented by anticipation, as having been inflicted during the marriage feast, though, in fact, it did not take place till after the Gospel had been for some time promulgated. Bp. Porteus.

9. Go ye therefore into the highways, &c.] It may be thought perhaps, at first view, that our Lord has here introduced a circumstance not very natural or probable. It may be imagined that, at a magnificent royal entertainment, if any of the guests happened to fail in their attendance, a great king would never think of supplying their places by sending his servants into the highways to collect together all the travellers and strangers they could meet with, and make them sit down at the marriage feast. But, strange as this may seem, there is something that approaches very near it in the customs of the Eastern nations, even in modern times. For a traveller of great credit and reputation, Bp. Pococke, informs us, that an Arab prince will often dine in the street before his door, and call to all that pass, even to beggars, in the name of God; and they come and sit down to table, and, when they have done, retire with the usual form of returning thanks. Bp. Porteus. See notes at Job xxxi. 17.

10.—and gathered together all &c.] Allusion is here made to the calling in of the Gentiles or heathens to the privileges of the Gospel, after they had been haughtily rejected by the Jews. This was first done by St. Peter in the instance of Cornelius, (Acts x,) and afterwards extended to the Gentiles at large by him and the other Apostles. And in this gracious invitation, no exceptions, no distinctions were to be made. The servants gathered together all that they found, both good and bad; men of all characters and descriptions were to have the offers of mercy and salvation made to them, even the very worst of sinners; for it was these chiefly that our Saviour came to call to repentance, Matt. ix. 12; xxi. 31. Bp. Porteus.

11.—when the king came in to see the guests,] By the king being represented as coming in to see whether the guests were prepared with proper garments, it is intended to set forth how absolutely and indispensably God expects and requires that every man, who hopes to be admitted into the kingdom of heaven, should have his mind endued with those habitual virtuous qualifications, which can no otherwise be acquired but by righteous practice. Dr. S. Clarke.

——which had not on a wedding garment:] The wedding garment, it is thought, was a robe, which it was usual for the master of the feast to furnish for those guests who were unable to provide themselves with it. We find traces of this custom in classical writers, and even in modern entertainments in the East. It was highly indecorous and offensive to intrude on the festivity of the feast without this garment. Bp. Porteus. By the wedding garment is here intended that purity of mind and conversation, that charity, and those good works, which are the genuine fruits and evidences of a truly Christian faith. Dean Stanhope.

12.—And he was speechless.] Meaning, that he had nothing to say in exculpation of himself.

13.—cast him into outer darkness; &c.] He was driven from the blaze and splendour of the feast to the darkness and gloom of the street without, where he was left to unavailing grief and remorse for his offence, and for the loss of his enjoyments. The man without the wedding garment is every one that is not clothed with the "robe of righteousness;" every one that pretends to be a Christian without possessing the true evangelical temper and disposition of mind, without the virtues of a holy life; every one that expects to be saved by Christ, yet regards not the conditions on which that salvation depends; every profane, every unjust, every dissolute man; every one that presumes to say, Lord, Lord, yet doeth not the will of his heavenly Father; all these shall be excluded from the privileges of the Gospel, and cast into outer darkness: for many (ver. 14.) are called upon and invited to embrace the Gospel, but few, comparatively speaking, receive it, or at least conduct themselves in a manner suitable to their high and heavenly calling, so as to be chosen or deemed worthy to inherit the kingdom of heaven. Bp. Porteus.

Considered in a moral and practical light, this parable should teach us the necessity of adorning the soul with all Christian graces and virtues, that we may always be in a due state of preparation to approach God in any act of religion, and also to stand before Him with humble confidence in the day of judgment. Bp. Mann.

14. For many are called, but few are chosen.] By these concluding words, our Lord expressly declares that the chosen or elect of God are not persons originally and unconditionally from the beginning decreed to be saved; but all such as shall at the end be found to have the wedding garment; that is, to be clothed with righteousness, having led a holy and a virtuous life. Dr. S. Clarke.

16.—with the Herodians,] Respecting the Herodians nothing is known with certainty; but there is great reason to assent to the judicious conjectures of Dean Prideaux and others, who consider the Herodians, not as a religious sect, but a political party, who began to grow eminent in the days of Herod the Great, as favouring his claims, and those of his patrons, the Romans, to the sovereignty of Judea. Some of these, no doubt, might be weak thou for any man: for thou regardest not the person of men.

Anno DOMINI 33.

17 Tell us therefore, What thinkest thou? Is it lawful to give tribute unto Cesar, or not?

18 But Jesus perceived their wickedness, and said, Why tempt ye me, ye hypocrites?

19 Shew me the tribute money. And they brought unto him a ‖ penny.

20 And he saith unto them, Whose is this image and ‖ superscription?

21 They say unto him, Cesar's. Then saith he unto them, [d] Render therefore unto Cesar the things which are Cesar's; and unto God the things that are God's.

22 When they had heard these words, they marvelled, and left him, and went their way.

23 ¶ [e] The same day came to him the Sadducees, [f] which say that there is no resurrection, and asked him,

24 Saying, Master, [g] Moses said, If a man die, having no children, his brother shall marry his wife, and raise up seed unto his brother.

25 Now there were with us seven brethren: and the first, when he had married a wife, deceased, and, having no issue, left his wife unto his brother:

26 Likewise the second also, and the third, unto the seventh.

27 And last of all the woman died also.

28 Therefore in the resurrection whose

‖ In value sevenpence halfpenny: ch. 20. 2.
‖ Or, inscription.
[d] Rom. 13. 7.

Anno DOMINI 33.

[e] Mark 12. 18. Luke 20. 27.
[f] Acts 23. 8.
[g] Deut. 25. 5.

---

enough to imagine that Herod was the Messiah, or wicked enough to pretend that they did, in order to serve his cause; and would be ready to vindicate his conduct, when, the better to pay his court to the Romans, he consecrated temples to some of their false deities. This party, having begun in the time of Herod, may well be supposed to have continued long afterwards in favour and power, by the indulgence of the Herods, and influence of the Romans. Bp. Percy.

—— neither carest thou for any man:] Thou wilt not be restrained, by fear or respect for any man, from declaring to us plainly the will of God. Dr. S. Clarke.

17. — Is it lawful to give tribute &c.] May we do this without a breach of our duty to God? Bp. Pearce. In order to understand the insidious nature of the question here proposed to Jesus, it must be observed, that the Jews at this time, being under the dominion of the Romans, paid them an annual tribute in money, as an acknowledgment of their subjection. The Pharisees however were adverse to the payment of this tribute; and contended that, as they were the peculiar people of God, and He their only rightful Sovereign, they ought not to pay tribute to any foreign prince whatever. There were many others who maintained a contrary opinion, and it was a question much agitated among different parties. The Herodians, as is plain from their name, were in some way or other attached to Herod; and, as he was a friend to the Roman government, they probably maintained the propriety of paying the tribute. Bp. Porteus.

—— unto Cesar,] Cesar was the general title given to all the Roman emperours. Bp. Mann.

18. — Why tempt ye me,] They conceived it impossible that He could extricate Himself from the dilemma into which they had brought Him; being persuaded that, in answering this question, He must either render Himself odious to the Jewish people, by opposing their popular notions of liberty; or, on the other hand, give offence to the emperour, and expose Himself to the charge of disaffection to the Roman government, by denying their right to the tribute they had imposed. Bp. Porteus.

19. — a penny.] A Roman denarius, about sevenpence halfpenny of our money.

21. They say unto him, Cesar's.] By admitting that this was Cesar's coin, and by consenting to receive it as the current coin of their country, they in fact acknowledged their subjection to his government. Bp. Porteus. The inserting a prince's name in the Khootba, (or publick prayer for the king,) and the inscribing it on the current coin, are reckoned in the East the most certain acknowledgments of sovereignty. Elphinstone.

—— Render therefore &c.] There is scarcely any thing which proves both wisdom and rightness of mind more fully than proper behaviour on sudden occasions, and proper answers to unforeseen questions: for what a man shews himself to be at such times, we have in general great cause to believe he really is. To this trial our Saviour, living a publick life, in the midst of persons taking every advantage to ensnare Him, was perpetually exposed; and His character not only did not suffer, but was exalted by every such occasion of shewing His wisdom and sedateness, insomuch that His enemies were amazed, and paid Him the unwilling tribute of publick approbation. Abps. Secker and Newcome.

—— unto Cesar the things which are Cesar's;] Our Saviour in this answer not only shewed admirable wisdom and discretion in disengaging Himself from the difficulties in which the question was intended to involve Him; but, without entering into any political discussion, He laid down a doctrine of the first importance to the peace and happiness of mankind, as a fundamental rule of His religion; namely, that we should always pay obedience to lawful authority, and submit to that acknowledged and established government under which we live. Here then we see the whole weight of the Gospel, and of its Divine Author, thrown into the scale of lawful authority. Here we see that the Christian religion comes in as a most powerful auxiliary to the civil magistrate, and lends the entire force of its sanctions to the established government of every country; an advantage of infinite importance to the peace and welfare of society. Bp. Porteus. Amongst the peculiar qualities of our holy religion is to be reckoned its complete abstraction from all views of civil policy. Christianity, while it declines every question relating to particular forms of government, is alike friendly to them all, by tending to make men virtuous, and therefore easier to be governed; by stating obedience to government, in ordinary cases, to be not merely a submission to force, but a duty of conscience; by inducing dispositions favourable to publick tranquillity; and by recommending prayers for communities and governours, of every description, with a solicitude and fervency, proportioned to the influence they possess upon human happiness. Archdeacon Paley.

The manner in which our Saviour points out in this sentence the perfect consistency between civil obedience to men, and pious homage to God, is truly admirable. Enthusiasts, exalted as they have conceived themselves to be by the peculiar favour of God, have sometimes scorned to pay homage to man; and the extravagancies which flow from these wild tenets, have too often disgraced the page of history: it is important to observe, how entirely Christianity is free from every such tendency, and how strongly it condemns it. Dr. Graves.

24. — Master, Moses said, &c.] See Deut. xxv. 5. The object of the Sadducees here is to shew the absurdity and the falsehood of these doctrines of a resurrection and a future state, by stating a difficulty respecting them, which they conceive to be insuperable. Bp. Porteus.

28. — in the resurrection] In that state which shall be after the resurrection has taken place, supposing that there is one. Bp. Pearce.

Anno DOMINI 33.

wife shall she be of the seven? for they all had her.

29 Jesus answered and said unto them, Ye do err, not knowing the scriptures, nor the power of God.

30 For in the resurrection they neither marry, nor are given in marriage, but are as the angels of God in heaven.

31 But as touching the resurrection of the dead, have ye not read that which was spoken unto you by God, saying,

[k] Exod. 3. 6.

32 [h] I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob? God is not the God of the dead, but of the living.

33 And when the multitude heard this, they were astonished at his doctrine.

Anno DOMINI 33.

34 ¶ [i] But when the Pharisees had heard that he had put the Sadducees to silence, they were gathered together.

[i] Mark 12. 28.

35 Then one of them, which was a lawyer, asked him a question, tempting him, and saying,

36 Master, which is the great commandment in the law?

37 Jesus said unto him, [k] Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind.

[k] Deut. 6. 5. Luke 10. 27.

38 This is the first and great commandment.

---

29. — Ye do err, &c.] He tells them, that their errour arises from their not attending to the Scriptures, (see note at ver. 32,) and duly considering the power of God, which could effect with the utmost ease, what appeared to them impossible; and from their ignorance of the state of human beings in heaven, which resembles that of angels, and in which the relation of marriage is unknown. Bp. Porteus.

30. — are as the angels of God] It is worthy of observation, that our Lord's discourses exhibit no particular description of the invisible world. He affirms generally the happiness of the good, and the misery of the bad; but maintains a solemn reserve as to any thing further. The question concerning the woman who had been married to seven brothers, was of a nature calculated to draw from Him a more circumstantial account of the state of men in their future existence; but He cut short the inquiry by an answer which at once rebuked intruding curiosity, and is agreeable to the best apprehensions we can form on the subject, that they will be "as the angels of God in heaven." This reserve of our Saviour should be well observed, because it repels all suspicion of enthusiasm; for enthusiasm is wont to expatiate on the condition of the departed, above all other subjects, and with a wild particularity. The Koran of Mahomet is half made up of such enthusiastick descriptions. Archdeacon Paley.

32. — God is not the God of the dead, &c.] By a clear inference from the words of Scripture, our Saviour here shews that, although the bodies of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, had long been in their graves, yet their souls had survived and were at that moment in existence. Hence it necessarily followed that the soul did not perish with the body, as the Sadducees believed, but that it continued in being after death. Bp. Porteus.

"I am the God of Abraham," &c. not "I was the God;" intimating that Abraham, Isaac, &c. were still living, and that He was still their God, in their present separate state of existence. Dr. Hales.

35. — a lawyer,] A scribe or expounder of the law, Mark xii. 28. Bp. Pearce. The office of the scribes consisted of two parts, the interpreting of the law in the synagogues, and the explaining of the traditions. Dr. Whitby.

36. — which is the great commandment &c.] This was a famous question among the Jews, some contending that the precept of sacrifice was greatest, as is insinuated, Mark xii. 33; others contending for that of wearing phylacteries, to which Christ answers by stating as "the great commandment" the precept for the love of God, which they always wore on their phylacteries. Dr. Whitby.

It seems to have been a maxim received among the Scribes and Pharisees, that such a multiplicity of precepts, as the law contained, was too great for any one to observe; and therefore all that could be required was, that each should select to himself one or two great and important duties, on account of which, if inviolably observed, his transgressions in other respects would be overlooked. Bp. Porteus.

37. — Thou shalt love the Lord — with all thy heart, &c.] Whether these three terms, the "heart," the "soul," the "mind," be here used to denote so many distinct faculties, as some have thought, it is by no means necessary to inquire. Certainly, they signify that true love to God is exclusively seated in the soul. We are then said to love God when we entirely look up to Him, as our chiefest good; and to love Him "with all our heart," when our whole soul is thus inclined to Him; when all our affections meet in Him, and are fixed upon Him so fast, that nothing is able to draw them off, all other things being esteemed of no value in comparison with Him. Bp. Beveridge.

38. This is the first &c.] The love of our Maker is confessedly the first and great commandment, and stands at the head of every Christian virtue. For it is conformable to all our ideas of order and propriety, that the Supreme Lord of all, the first and greatest and best of beings, should have the first place in our regards, and that those duties which respect Him as their immediate object should have the precedency and command over every other. Besides, among all the incentives to virtue, the love of God is the only one, whose operation is sufficiently effectual and extensive, the only one that can reach to every instance of duty, and produce an uniform consistent character of goodness. It is the grand leading principle of right conduct, the original source and fountain from which all Christian graces flow; from which the living waters of religion take their rise, and branch out into all the various duties of life. A man without any religion may act laudably by chance; his virtue may break out sometimes in sudden temporary gleams; but whoever wishes to be habitually and uniformly good, must have the vital principle of piety working at his heart, and by a constant regular warmth producing constant and regular fruits of righteousness. Bp. Porteus.

The love of God is properly styled the first commandment, in respect to God who is the object of the love, and because it is indeed the foundation of all religion, even of that commandment which is styled the second. But by our Saviour's saying that the love of God is the first commandment, we must by no means infer that it ever is or can be inconsistent with the second: for, in fact, the love of our neighbour is deducible from the love of God. No man, who thinks himself bound to love and obey God, can deem himself at liberty to hurt or oppress those whom God has taken under the care and protection of His common providence. No man, who believes it to be his interest as well as his duty to please God, can fail of being kind and tender towards those who are the children of God, and in whose happiness He is not an unconcerned spectator. For this reason, the love of God is called the first and great commandment, and for this reason it never can be inconsistent with the love of our neighbour, which is the second. In all cases where our duty towards our neighbour is clear and plain, we may be certain that our duty to God concurs with it. Bp. Sherlock.

Anno DOMINI 33.

39 And the second is like unto it, [l] Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.

40 On these two commandments hang all the law and the prophets.

[l] Lev. 19. 18.

41 ¶ [m] While the Pharisees were gathered together, Jesus asked them,

[m] Mark 12. 35. Luke 20. 41.

42 Saying, What think ye of Christ? whose son is he? They say unto him, The son of David.

43 He saith unto them, How then doth David in spirit call him Lord, saying,

[n] Ps. 110. 1.

44 [n] The LORD said unto my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand, till I make thine enemies thy footstool?

45 If David then call him Lord, how is he his son? Anno DOMINI 33.

46 And no man was able to answer him a word, neither durst any man from that day forth ask him any more questions.

CHAP. XXIII.

1 Christ admonisheth the people to follow the good doctrine, not the evil examples, of the scribes and Pharisees. 5 His disciples must beware of their ambition. 13 He denounceth eight woes against their hypocrisy and blindness: 34 and prophesieth of the destruction of Jerusalem.

THEN spake Jesus to the multitude, and to his disciples,

---

39. — is like unto it,] In excellence and dignity. Dr. S. Clarke. Resembles it in its comprehensive nature, and in its applying to the inward feelings as well as to the outward actions. Grotius.

Our Saviour had already sufficiently answered the question proposed to Him, by saying that the love of God was the great commandment in the law. But most of the Jews, to whom He spake, thought the best proof of their fulfilling that duty, was a scrupulous exactness in some or all of the ceremonial precepts that God had enjoined them. And on the merit of this they indulged themselves in great hardness of heart, even towards their brethren of the same religion, and in utter disregard, if not implacable hatred, of all who were of a different religion, perhaps only of a different sect. If therefore He had carried His reply no further, His hearers would probably not have understood Him as condemning their superstition and uncharitableness. Therefore He immediately subjoins, from the express words of Moses, Lev. xix. 18, another commandment, which, if they misinterpreted the first, might shew them their mistake, and which to every considerate person would appear "like unto it" in its nature, and second in its dignity and use. Abp. Secker.

40. On these two commandments hang &c.] Importing that in these two commandments is compendiously contained all that the Law and the Prophets require, in reference to our duty to God and man. Dr. Whitby.

If any teacher of morality had been asked for a general principle of conduct, and for a short rule of life; and if he had instructed the person who consulted him, constantly to refer his actions to what he believed to be the will of his Creator, and constantly to have in view, not his own interest and gratification only, but the happiness and comfort of those about him; he would have been thought, we cannot doubt, in any age to have delivered a most judicious answer: because, by the first direction, he suggested the only motive which acts steadily and uniformly, in sight and out of sight, in familiar occurrences, and under pressing temptations; and, in the second, he corrected that which, of all tendencies in the human character, stands most in need of correction, selfishness, or a contempt of other men's convenience and satisfaction. Now what, in the most applauded philosopher of any, even the most enlightened, age of the world, would have been deemed worthy of his wisdom and his character, to say; our Saviour has said, and upon just such an occasion, as has been supposed. Nor does it detract from the merit of His answer, that the precepts which He gives existed before in the code of Moses. For it was entirely our Saviour's own, that He singled these precepts out from the rest of that voluminous institution; that He stated them, not simply amongst the number, but as the greatest and the sum, of all the others; in a word, that He proposed them to His hearers for the great rule and principle of their conduct. Archdeacon Paley. See the notes on Deut. vi. 5.

If our Saviour could truly say, that the sum of the Jewish religion, as it was delivered by Moses and the Prophets, did consist in those two things, the love of God and the love of our neighbour, much greater reason have we to say, that the religion, which He taught, may be summed up in these two duties. For in the Jewish law there were many precepts, which concerned indifferent matters, and did not seem to have any immediate reference to the business of loving God and our neighbour: but in our Saviour's institution there is hardly one thing recommended to us, that doth not directly relate to this matter; that is not either an instance, wherein we are to express our love to God and our neighbour, or a means, whereby we may be furthered in the practising of those duties; or an argument, and motive, and encouragement, to excite us to the practising of them. It is the design of all His doctrines, to give us right notions of God and our neighbour; to teach us how excellent, how good God is in Himself, and how kind, how gracious to us; and, therefore, what infinite reason we have to love and serve Him; and to love and serve all mankind, who are our neighbours, for His sake. It is the design of His precepts, to give rules in what manner, and in what degree, we are to express our love to God and our neighbour; and to oblige us, under the highest penalty, not to fail in our duty in these matters. It is the design of His promises, to encourage us in the constant and sincere performance of these duties, notwithstanding whatever temptations we meet with to the contrary, by offering to us greater assistances for the performance of them, and proposing greater rewards to the performance of them, than mankind had ever yet heard of. And lastly, it was the design of His whole life and conversation in the world, to give us a true pattern and example of love to God and man, in all the several instances, wherein it is our duty to express it. Abp. Sharp.

42. — What think ye of Christ?] Our Saviour was unwilling openly to declare every thing respecting Himself till after His resurrection; yet was desirous to impress upon the minds of the people, that the kingdom of the Messiah was of a nature far superiour to that of David. Grotius.

43. — in spirit] Rather, "By the Spirit," that is, by the Holy Ghost (as in Mark xii. 36) inspiring him. Bp. Pearce

45. If David then call him Lord, &c.] Their proper answer would have been, that, though Jesus in His human nature was the Son of David, yet, as He was the Son of God and the Christ, He was the Lord of David. Bp. Pearce.

46. And no man was able &c.] In their answer they must either have contradicted this declaration of David, or else they must have condemned themselves for their unbelief. Bp. Mann.

—— neither durst any man &c.] That is, no man durst any more ask Him any captious questions for the publick trial of His wisdom. Abp. Newcome.

Chap. XXIII. ver. 1. Then spake Jesus &c.] Our Saviour now proceeds, in a finished model of Divine eloquence, to utter his last most animated, dignified, and severe censure on the Pharisees; in which, no longer acting on the reserve, when His hour was come, He boldly and authoritatively denounced repeated woes on the Scribes and Pharisees for their complicated vices, their hypocrisy, ostentation, pride, arrogance, extortion, rapacity, and long continued persecution of the Prophets, from the earliest times, to the sacrilegious murder of one of the last and greatest, Zechariah; concluding with the prediction of the desolation of their temple, and

Anno DOMINI 33.

2 Saying, The scribes and the Pharisees sit in Moses' seat:

3 All therefore whatsoever they bid you observe, that observe and do; but do not ye after their works: for they say, and do not.

[a] Luke 11. 46.

4 [a] For they bind heavy burdens and grievous to be borne, and lay them on men's shoulders; but they themselves will not move them with one of their fingers.

5 But all their works they do for to be seen of men: [b] they make broad their phylacteries, and enlarge the borders of their garments,

[b] Numb. 15. 38. Deut. 22. 12.

[c] Mark 12. 38. Luke 11. 43.

6 [c] And love the uppermost rooms at feasts, and the chief seats in the synagogues,

7 And greetings in the markets, and to be called of men, Rabbi, Rabbi.

Anno DOMINI 33.

8 [d] But be not ye called Rabbi: for one is your Master, even Christ; and all ye are brethren.

[d] Jam. 3. 1.

9 And call no man your father upon the earth: [e] for one is your Father, which is in heaven.

[e] Mal. 1. 6.

10 Neither be ye called masters: for one is your Master, even Christ.

11 But he that is greatest among you shall be your servant.

12 [f] And whosoever shall exalt himself shall be abased; and he that shall humble himself shall be exalted.

[f] Luke 14. 11. & 18. 14.

13 ¶ But [g] woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye shut up the [g] Luke 11. 52.

---

the withdrawing of His presence, till their final conversion. Dr. Hales.

In this last address of our Lord to the Scribes and Pharisees, every one must be struck with the severity of His reproofs. His rebukes were stern, but just; indignant, but dictated by virtuous indignation; earnest and vehement, but the grave language of insulted Majesty, of perfect goodness detesting vice, and of perfect knowledge penetrating all its disguises and aggravations. Abp. Newcome.

2. — sit in Moses' seat:] Are the received interpreters of the law of Moses. Dr. Whitby. Are your lawful rulers, having authority over you, succeeding Moses and the seventy elders, Numb. xi. 16. Dr. Hammond.

3. — but do not ye after their works:] Receive them, He says, for your instructors, but beware of taking them for your examples. Bp. Warburton.

Our Lord instructs His hearers to distinguish between the publick and private character of the teacher. He shews them, that the men, who say and do not, should never be followed for examples; yet that ministers of religion, who sit in Moses's chair, and are invested with authority to teach the law, are to be attended to as instructors, when in their office they denounce and enforce the ordinances of God. Bp. Warburton. In the same manner, Christians are bound to observe whatever their authorized ministers and pastors shall deliver out of the word of God, and to consider every holy ordinance as valid, which they shall perform agreeably to the institution of Christ, even although their character and conduct should not be wholly conformable to the duties which they teach. Bp. Tomline.

4. — they bind heavy burdens] They impose many severe ordinances on others beyond what the law prescribes; but will not themselves be persuaded to perform those things which by the clear law of God are most necessary. Dr. Hammond.

5. — make broad their phylacteries,] See notes at Exod. xiii. 9. Make broad, that is, wear them larger than other men. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— the borders] These are the fringes which the Jews were commanded to wear (Numb. xv. 38) as a mark and memorial of their being God's peculiar people, to be distinguished from other nations. These the Pharisees enlarged for purposes of vanity and ostentation. Dr. Hammond.

6. — the uppermost rooms] That is, the uppermost places. At the feasts of the ancients, each couch held three persons; and it was esteemed the greatest honour for the guest to be placed on the same couch with the master of the house. Bp. Pearce.

Our Saviour displayed the same preference for the meek and humble character, which was remarked in chap. v. 38, (see note there,) in His repeated correction of the ambition of His disciples; His frequent admonitions, that greatness was to consist in humility; His censure of that love of distinction, and greediness of superiority, which the chief persons amongst His countrymen were wont to display, ver. 5—8. Archdeacon Paley.

—— the chief seats in the synagogues,] According to the most ancient custom of the Jews, those persons, who held no office in the synagogues, used to sit according to the distinctions of age. But, afterwards, it became the custom for those, who had the highest character for erudition, to sit in the places of greatest honour. To this custom allusion is made in this expression. Rosenmüller.

7. — Rabbi.] That is, My master, or teacher, John i. 38; xx. 16; a title which the scribes had at that time assumed. Bp. Pearce.

8. But be not ye called Rabbi:] Let no man among you contend for superiority or precedence, for ye have one Supreme Head, which is Christ. Dr. S. Clarke. Our Saviour does not here forbid the use of such titles of respect as properly belong to superiour rank or natural relation; but He forbids His disciples on the one hand to usurp an undue authority over the conscience, or on the other to yield an implicit obedience in matters of religion, to the dictates of men. Bp. Mann.

9, 10. And call no man your father &c.] The import of these words seems to be, that no man should be called "father upon earth," so that we should yield an absolute subjection to his will and pleasure, or be absolutely swayed and governed by it; also that we should call no man guide or master upon earth, so as absolutely to submit ourselves, in the concernment of our eternal interests, to the conduct of his judgment, or give him dominion over our faith and conscience; Christ being the sole Guide and Teacher of His Church, commissioned by His Father to reveal His will, and teach us what is needful to be known, believed, or done, in order to salvation, and His Apostles being His ministers and ambassadours teaching in His name. Dr. Whitby. The general meaning is, Hearken to God and not to man, in cases where it is evident that God teaches and requires one thing, and man another. Be not overruled by the authority of natural and earthly fathers, nor of spiritual fathers, that is, pastors and teachers, nor of political fathers, that is, of rulers and magistrates. They are all to be obeyed, but with this exception, that they require nothing contrary to the will of God. In such cases, "call no man father upon earth," says our Lord, "for One is your Father, which is in heaven;" and call no man master, "for One is your Master, even Christ." Dr. Jortin.

It clearly appears that, in this passage, "calling any man father upon earth," signifies paying to any earthly teacher not a due regard and attention, but that deference which the Scribes and Pharisees were reproved by our Saviour for unjustly claiming. And the deference which they claimed was, that men should follow them implicitly and ignorantly in the traditions which they taught. Dr. S. Clarke.

12. And whosoever &c.] It is worthy of observation, that no one sentiment of our Lord's is so frequently repeated as this, which occurs at least ten times in the Evangelists. Dr. Doddridge.

13. — ye shut up the kingdom of heaven &c.] Ye obstruct the kingdom of heaven against men: for ye neither go in yourselves, neither suffer ye them that are entering to go in.

Anno DOMINI 33.

14 Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! [h] for ye devour widows' houses, and for a pretence make long prayer: therefore ye shall receive the greater damnation.

[h] Mark 12. 40. Luke 20. 47.

15 Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye compass sea and land to make one proselyte, and when he is made, ye make him twofold more the child of hell than yourselves.

16 Woe unto you, ye blind guides, which say, Whosoever shall swear by the temple, it is nothing; but whosoever shall swear by the gold of the temple, he is a debtor!

17 Ye fools and blind: for whether is greater, the gold, or the temple that sanctifieth the gold?

18 And, Whosoever shall swear by the altar, it is nothing; but whosoever sweareth by the gift that is upon it, he is ‖ guilty.

‖ Or, a debtor, or, bound.

19 Ye fools and blind: for whether is greater, the gift, or the altar that sanctifieth the gift?

20 Whoso therefore shall swear by the altar, sweareth by it, and by all things thereon.

Anno DOMINI 33.

21 And whoso shall swear by the temple, sweareth by it, and by him that dwelleth therein.

22 And he that shall swear by heaven, sweareth by the throne of God, and by him that sitteth thereon.

23 Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! [i] for ye pay tithe of mint and anise and cummin, and have omitted the weightier matters of the law, judgment, mercy, and faith: these ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone.

[i] Luke 11. 42.

24 Ye blind guides, which strain at a gnat, and swallow a camel.

25 Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! [k] for ye make clean the outside of the cup and of the platter, but within they are full of extortion and excess.

[k] Luke 11. 39.

26 Thou blind Pharisee, cleanse first that which is within the cup and platter, that the outside of them may be clean also.

27 Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye are like unto whited sepulchres, which indeed appear beautiful entrance into the kingdom of heaven by your example, pretending to be guides to others, and yourselves refusing to enter—by your doctrine in cavilling at My words—by your authority in persecuting those who embrace the Gospel. Dr. Whitby.

---

14. — ye devour widows' houses,] Ye break the moral and eternal law of God by your rapine and extortion, oppressing the widows and fatherless whom God hath commanded you to support, and think to hide your covetousness under the specious formality of long prayers and great strictness in the external parts of religion. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— for a pretence make long prayer:] Use long prayers for a disguise: their true motive was avarice, devotion was only their mask. Dr. Campbell. They sometimes continued three hours in prayer, and perhaps pretended that their prayers could avail to procure favours for others, and under this pretence received gifts and presents. Dr. Whitby.

15. — ye compass sea and land &c.] Ye pretend great zeal to convert a stranger to your religion; but, when ye have so done, ye corrupt his natural notions of good and evil with false doctrines and vain schemes of religion, and make him much worse than he was before. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— the child of hell] A Hebrew expression for one worthy of hell. Beausobre.

16. — which say, Whosoever &c.] It appears that the Pharisees, in their traditions, established those oaths only to be binding, which were sworn by God or something immediately consecrated to Him; and therefore did not maintain the obligation of oaths made by the temple or altar, which had only a general consecration, but of those made by particular oblations and gifts, devoted to God by the voluntary piety of men, such as the gold on the temple and the gift on the altar, to which they attached more peculiar sanctity. This our Saviour considers to be a pitiful deceit to frustrate the obligation of oaths. It is probable that, by increasing the presumed sanctity of the gifts offered in the temple, they had the object of making men more liberal in this way, and thus of deriving gain from their doctrine. Dr. Hammond.

18. — he is guilty.] Rather, "he is bound" (as in the margin) to make the oath good. Bp. Pearce.

23. — ye pay tithe &c.] Ye are superstitiously scrupulous and precise in things of smaller moment; but matters of great and eternal obligation, justice and equity, mercy and charity, faithfulness and truth towards God and men, ye wholly slight and neglect. Dr. S. Clarke.

As if He had said, Ye ought to perform your duty, not only to God, but to your neighbour also, and to your neighbour for God's sake: as ye pretend to worship and obey God, ye ought to be merciful, just, and faithful unto men. Here let us observe how He calls judgment, mercy, and faith, or fidelity, the weightier matters of the law; because, without them, whatever else we do will avail nothing in procuring our salvation, these being the great and necessary duties which God requires of us, one towards another. Bp. Beveridge.

24. — which strain at a gnat,] In the old English translation this is rendered "which strain out a gnat," and this is more conformable to the sense of the passage. Allusion is made to the custom which prevailed all over the East, of passing their wine and other liquors through a strainer, that no gnats or flies might get into the cup. Bp. Pearce. The Jews reckoned flies among unclean animals, and on that account were particularly careful to strain their wine. Lamy.

There is a modern Arabick proverb to this effect; He swallowed an elephant but was strangled by a flea. Fragments to Calmet.

The meaning is, Ye are superstitiously exact in small things, but negligent in those of greater importance. Bp. Mann.

26. — cleanse first that which is within] Implying, that the cleansing of the heart is of infinitely greater importance; that, after all their washings, their hands will still be unclean in a moral sense, if they be covetous and unjust in their dealings; and the true way to make them, in a moral sense, clean, is, to employ them, in a natural sense, in works of charity and compassion. Bp. Mann.

27. — ye are like unto whited sepulchres,] It was the custom of the Jews to whiten their sepulchres, both for the purpose of ornament, and to prevent the danger of pollution by too near an approach. The rabbies carried so far the notion of the danger of defilement from this cause, that they used to mark with chalk on outward, but are within full of dead men's bones, and of all uncleanness.

Anno DOMINI 33.

28 Even so ye also outwardly appear righteous unto men, but within ye are full of hypocrisy and iniquity.

29 Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! because ye build the tombs of the prophets, and garnish the sepulchres of the righteous,

30 And say, If we had been in the days of our fathers, we would not have been partakers with them in the blood of the prophets.

31 Wherefore ye be witnesses unto yourselves, that ye are the children of them which killed the prophets.

32 Fill ye up then the measure of your fathers.

33 Ye serpents, ye generation of vipers, how can ye escape the damnation of hell?

34 ¶ Wherefore, behold, I send unto you prophets, and wise men, and scribes: and some of them ye shall kill and crucify; and some of them shall ye scourge in your synagogues, and persecute them from city to city:

Anno DOMINI 33.

35 That upon you may come all the righteous blood shed upon the earth, [l] from the blood of righteous Abel unto the blood of Zacharias son of Barachias, whom ye slew between the temple and the altar.

[l] Gen. 4. 8.

36 Verily I say unto you, All these things shall come upon this generation.

37 [m] O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets, [n] and stonest them which are sent unto thee, how often would [o] I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not!

[m] Luke 13. 34.
[n] 2 Chron. 24. 21.
[o] 2 Esdras 1. 30.

38 Behold, your house is left unto you desolate.

39 For I say unto you, Ye shall not see me henceforth, till ye shall say, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord.

---

the surface of the earth the ground under which their sepulchral caves extended. Rosenmüller. At present it is the custom in Palestine for every family to be placed in a separate walled enclosure in the publick burial ground, with upright grave-stones placed at the head and feet; the grave-stones and even the walls are whitewashed. Dr. Shaw. So in Arabia, Niebuhr relates, that almost all the little buildings, erected over the tombs of wealthy Mahometans, are whitewashed at the time when the Ramadan, or Mahometan Lent, is approaching. Harmer.

29. — because ye build the tombs &c.] While ye yourselves are no less wicked than those who anciently murdered God's messengers and Prophets, ye pretend to have a great honour for the memory of these Prophets, and to testify your respect for the holy men of old, by building and adorning their tombs. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— and garnish the sepulchres] Windus, speaking of persons reverenced as saints among the Mahometans, mentions, among other things, "after their death, some great man hears of their fame, and makes it an act of devotion to beautify their tombs." Harmer.

31. — ye be witnesses unto yourselves, &c.] Ye prove yourselves their genuine offspring, by being like unto them, and imitating their wickedness. Dr. S. Clarke.

32. Fill ye up then the measure of your fathers.] The judgments which our Saviour denounces in this passage were temporal, such as were likely to reclaim the Jews, such as they had provoked God to send upon them, by not only imitating, but far exceeding and filling up the measure of their fathers' iniquities, by withstanding a clearer light, crucifying the Son of God, and murdering those that bore testimony to His resurrection. Thus we should well observe, in vindication of the justice of Providence, that every man's own sins are the true and proper cause of his own punishments. The sins of ancestors may be the occasion of God's choosing to punish the descendants in this or that particular way; but it is because they themselves have deserved punishment from their offended Lord, that their parents' sins, and their own repetition of them, may reasonably be allowed to quicken the season, and to fix the method of their punishment. Dean Stanhope.

34. — and some of them ye shall kill &c.] They fulfilled this prediction by stoning St. Stephen, Acts vii. 59; cutting off St. James with the sword, Acts xii. 2; scourging St. Peter and the other Apostles, Acts v; and persecuting St. Paul and St. Barnabas from city to city, Acts xiv. 5, 6. Dr. Whitby.

35. That upon you may come &c.] That the punishment of all the blood shed in the land may come upon you, who take pleasure in the works of your fathers, and by the same bloody actions fill up the measure of their sins, by killing your Messiah, the Chief of all Prophets, and those Apostles whom He sent last of all to offer to you terms of pardon and salvation. Dr. Whitby.

Our Saviour seems to express, that the punishment of the Jews in the destruction of Jerusalem should be so horrible, as if God had once for all arraigned them of all the righteous blood that ever had been shed in the world, and brought the punishment of it upon them, though in truth the punishment did not exceed the desert of their own sins. Abp. Tillotson.

—— Zacharias son of Barachias,] It has been the subject of various opinions, who is the Zacharias here mentioned. Zacharias, or Zechariah the Prophet, who wrote the book bearing his name, was the son of Barachias, or Berachiah, Zech. i. 1; and accordingly it is most obvious to suppose that he is the person here intended: see the Introduction to Zechariah. But we have no account of his having been put to death in the manner here related. On the other hand, it is expressly mentioned of another Zacharias, that he was slain by the people, at the command of Joash, between the temple and the altar, 2 Chron. xxiv. 19—21. And he was the last of the Prophets whose death is mentioned in the Old Testament. Accordingly, many interpreters have considered him to be the person here designed. It is true that he is stated to be the son of Jehoiada, not of Barachias; but against this objection it is alleged, that it was not unusual among the Jews for the same person to bear two names. Edit.

37. — how often would I &c.] There is an expression similar to this at 2 Esdr. i. 30, also Ps. xci. 4. The meaning is, How many instances of the tenderest affection, how many offers of conversion and grace, of protection and defence, from the calamities now approaching, have I laid before you: but ye rejected them all. The expression comprehends all the kind endeavours to convince and instruct them in the Gospel covenant, and to make them partakers of those privileges, and that salvation, which they rejected with such blind and unbending obstinacy. Dean Stanhope.

This apostrophe of our Saviour to Jerusalem is inimitably passionate and tender. Dr. Hales.

38. Behold, your house &c.] Behold now the time of mercy is past; and the final desolation of the city and temple, with the terrible destruction of the Jewish people, is irreversibly decreed by God. Dr. S. Clarke.

39. — Ye shall not see me henceforth,] The meaning is, Ye who have now with so much indignation heard the children and the people saluting Me thus, "Blessed is He that cometh in the

Anno DOMINI 33.

CHAP. XXIV.

1 Christ foretelleth the destruction of the temple: 3 what and how great calamities shall be before it: 29 the signs of his coming to judgment. 36 And because that day and hour is unknown, 42 we ought to watch like good servants, expecting every moment our master's coming.

[a] Mark 13. 1. Luke 21. 5. AND [a] Jesus went out, and departed from the temple: and his disciples came to him for to shew him the buildings of the temple.

2 And Jesus said unto them, See ye not all these things? verily I say unto you, [b] There shall not be left here one stone upon another, that shall not be thrown down.

[b] Luke 19. 44.

3 ¶ And as he sat upon the mount of Olives, the disciples came unto him privately, saying, Tell us, when shall these things be? and what shall be the sign of thy coming, and of the end of the world?

Anno DOMINI 33.

4 And Jesus answered and said unto them, Take heed that no man deceive you.

5 For many shall come in my name, saying, I am Christ; and shall deceive many.

6 And ye shall hear of wars and rumours of wars: see that ye be not troubled: for all these things must come to pass, but the end is not yet.

7 For nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom: and there

---

name of the Lord," (chap. xxi. 9,) after a while shall lie under so great calamities for the punishment of your infidelity, that ye would be glad of a deliverer whom ye might hail with these same words. Dr. Whitby.

Chap. XXIV. This chapter contains one of the clearest and most important prophecies that is to be found in the sacred writings; that which our blessed Lord delivered respecting the destruction of Jerusalem, to which the whole of this chapter in its primary acceptation refers. At the same time it must be admitted, that the forms of expression, and the images employed, are for the most part applicable also to the day of judgment; and that an allusion to that great event runs through almost every part of the prophecy. It is by no means uncommon in the prophetical writings, that two subjects, a principal and a subordinate one, should be carried on together. In this manner our Saviour here seems to hold out the destruction of Jerusalem, which is His principal subject, as a type of the dissolution of the world, which is the under part of the representation. This general remark is a key to the whole prophecy, and will afford an easy solution to several difficulties that occur in it. Bp. Porteus.

Our blessed Saviour, as He was the great subject of prophecy, so was an illustrious Prophet Himself: as He excelled in all other spiritual gifts and graces, so was He eminent in this also; and gave ample proofs of His divine commission by His prophecies, as well as by His miracles. Bp. Newton.

Ver. 1.—to shew him the buildings of the temple.] That is, to draw His attention to the magnitude, the splendour, the apparent solidity and stability of that magnificent structure. Bp. Porteus.

2.—There shall not be left here one stone &c.] It appears from Josephus, that there was scarcely any thing more remarkable in this celebrated temple, than the stupendous size of the stones of which it was constructed. In the superstructure there were stones of the whitest marble, upwards of sixty-seven feet long, more than seven feet high, and nine broad. And in the accounts of St. Mark and St. Luke it is mentioned, that the disciples particularly pointed out to Him "the goodly stones." This circumstance gives peculiar force to our Saviour's prediction here, which was fulfilled almost in a literal sense. For when the Romans had taken Jerusalem, Titus ordered his soldiers to dig up the foundations both of the city and of the temple. The Jewish writers themselves acknowledge that Terentius Rufus, who was left to command the army, tore up with a ploughshare the foundations of the temple, hereby fulfilling the prophecy of Micah, chap. iii. 12. And, in confirmation of this remarkable circumstance, Eusebius assures us, that the temple was ploughed up by the Romans, and that he himself saw it lying in ruins. Bp. Porteus.

Respecting this prophecy of our Saviour, fulfilled in so literal and remarkable a manner, it may be observed, that St. Matthew and St. Mark were certainly deceased before the fulfilment of it took place, and that St. Luke was probably so likewise; and St. John, who survived the destruction of the city, does not notice the prediction. So that there can be no possible suspicion of the prophecy having been contrived after the event. Annotations on the Gospels.

3.—of thy coming,] To destroy the Jewish state, as had just been foretold. "And of the end of the world?" Rather, "of the end of the age?" that is, of the age when the Jewish Church and state were to last. Bp. Pearce.

On comparing together the parallel passages in St. Mark and St. Luke, it appears that the real questions here asked by the disciples are, at what time the predicted destruction of Jerusalem was to take place, and what were the signs that would precede it. Bp. Porteus.

5.—saying, I am Christ;] Meaning, that many should arise and delude the people with the hopes of delivering them from their miseries; which was what the Jews expected from their Messiah, as appears from Luke xxiv. 31. Of this sort was Theudas, mentioned by Josephus, in the time when Fadus was procurator of Judea. This impostor persuaded the multitude to follow him to the river Jordan, and pretended that he would divide the waters, and afford them an easy passage; by these means he deceived many, and lost his own life. Such were also other impostors and deceivers mentioned by Josephus, who, under the pretence of religion, drew the people into the wilderness, promising them there signs of deliverance, and deceiving them to their destruction, at the time when Felix was governour. Such too was the Egyptian false prophet, who deceived no less than 30,000 of the people, a great part of whom the Romans destroyed. Several other instances are mentioned by Josephus of impostors who pretended to deliver the people from their servitude. Bp. Kidder.

6.—ye shall hear of wars] That there were in reality great disturbances and commotions in those times; that there were not only rumours of wars, but wars actually existing, and continued dissensions, insurrections, and massacres among the Jews, and other nations who dwelt in the same cities with them, is so fully attested by all the historians of that period, and more particularly by Josephus, that to produce all the dreadful events of that kind which he enumerates, would be to transcribe a great part of his history. Bp. Porteus.

——but the end is not yet.] That is, many such calamities must happen before the final and utter destruction of the Jewish nation. Dr. S. Clarke.

7.—nation shall rise against nation,] Besides the seditions of the Jews, made horridly bloody by their mutual slaughter, and other storms of war in the Roman empire from strangers, the commotions of Otho and Vitellius, and those of Vitellius and Vespasian, are particularly memorable, whereby not only the whole Roman empire was shaken, but the capital itself was made the scene of commotions. Such convulsions the Roman empire suffered, at the time when Vespasian, the scourge and vengeance of God upon the Jews, ascended the throne. Dr. Lightfoot.

Anno DOMINI 33.

shall be famines, and pestilences, and earthquakes, in divers places.

8 All these are the beginning of sorrows.

[c] Chap. 10. 17. Luke 21. 12. John 16. 2.

9 [c] Then shall they deliver you up to be afflicted, and shall kill you: and ye shall be hated of all nations for my name's sake.

10 And then shall many be offended, and shall betray one another, and shall hate one another.

11 And many false prophets shall rise, and shall deceive many.

12 And because iniquity shall abound, the love of many shall wax cold.

13 But he that shall endure unto the end, the same shall be saved.

14 And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come.

Anno DOMINI 33.

15 [d] When ye therefore shall see the abomination of desolation, spoken of by [e] Daniel the prophet, stand in the holy place, (whoso readeth, let him understand:)

[d] Mark 13. 14.

[e] Dan. 9. 27.

16 Then let them which be in Judea flee into the mountains:

17 Let him which is on the housetop not come down to take any thing out of his house:

18 Neither let him which is in the field return back to take his clothes.

19 And woe unto them that are with ——famines,] There was a famine in the fourth year of Claudius Cesar, which, according to Eusebius, oppressed the whole Roman empire, and more especially Judea, (Acts xi. 28,) where, as Josephus says, many perished for want of food. Dr. Whitby.

——pestilences,] In hot countries, a pestilence commonly follows a famine: Josephus mentions a particular instance of this occurring in Judea. Bp. Pearce.

——earthquakes,] Josephus mentions an earthquake to have happened when the Idumeans encamped on the outside of Jerusalem; and Philostratus speaks of earthquakes happening, not long before the destruction of Jerusalem, in Crete, Smyrna, and other places, where a considerable number of Jews were residing. Bp. Pearce.

9. Then shall they deliver you up &c.] "And shall kill you;" that is, some of you: see Acts vii. 59; xii. 1; xxii. 4, &c. Dr. Whitby. That every circumstance here mentioned was minutely and exactly verified in the sufferings of the Apostles and disciples after our Lord's decease, must be perfectly well known to every one that has read the Acts of the Apostles. It is there seen that the lives of the Apostles were one continued scene of persecution, affliction, and distress of every kind; that they were imprisoned, beaten, brought before councils and kings; were many of them put to death, and were hated of all nations, by the heathens as well as by the Jews, for the sake of Christ; that is, for being called by His name. The very name of Christian was a crime, and it exposed them to every species of insult, indignity, and cruelty. Bp. Porteus.

10. —then shall many be offended,] Many, who shall be professed Christians, shall fall off from their religion. Bp. Pearce.

11. —many false prophets] The Hebrews included under the term "prophets" teachers and interpreters of the law. The law of Christ was falsely taught by many in the early ages: see 2 Tim. ii. 17; 2 Cor. xi. &c. Grotius.

12. —because iniquity shall abound, &c.] So apt is wickedness in its own nature to spread and propagate itself, not only because evil men continually increase unto more ungodliness, but because even they who are well disposed are too often drawn aside by the example, or wearied out by the opposition, of a vicious and corrupt world. Dr. S. Clarke.

13. —the same shall be saved.] Shall be saved from the common destruction, Acts ii. 21. Bp. Mann. Shall be saved, both in this world and in the next. It is, as we know, the universal doctrine of Scripture, that they who persevere in the belief and practice of Christianity to the end of their lives, shall, through the merits of their Redeemer, be rewarded with everlasting life. And, with respect to the present life, and the times to which our Saviour more immediately alludes, it is remarkable that none of His disciples were known to perish in the siege and destruction of Jerusalem. Bp. Porteus.

14. —shall be preached in all the world] That the Gospel was indeed so spread before the destruction of Jerusalem, "through the whole world," that is, through the Roman empire, the then known world, we are informed by St. Paul in various passages, Rom. i. 8; x. 18; Coloss. i. 6, 23. This great event He only could foretell, who, having all power in heaven and in earth, was able to effect it. Dr. Whitby.

The Acts of the Apostles contain only a small part of the history of a small part of the Apostles; and yet even in that history we see that the Gospel was most widely disseminated, and had taken root in the most considerable parts of the Roman empire. Bp. Newton.

——for a witness unto all nations;] That I am the Christ. "And then shall the end" of the Jewish Church and polity "come." Dr. Whitby.

15. When ye therefore shall see &c.] Our Lord here goes on to still more alarming and more evident indications of the near approach of danger to the Jewish nation. By comparing the expression here with Luke ix. 27, it is clear that "the abomination of desolation" denotes the Roman army which besieged Jerusalem, and which Daniel, in the place here alluded to, calls "the abomination that maketh desolate." The Roman army is here called an abomination, because upon its standards were depicted the images of their emperour, and the tutelary gods whom they worshipped; and it is well known that idols were held by the Jews in the utmost abhorrence, and they called them by the very name here used, "an abomination." The word "desolation" is added for an obvious reason, because this mighty army brought ruin and desolation on Jerusalem. This city, and the mountain on which it stood, and a circuit of several furlongs around it, were accounted holy ground: and, as the Roman standards were planted in the most conspicuous places near the fortifications of the city, they are here said to stand in "the holy place." And Josephus tells us, that, after the city was taken, the Romans brought their ensigns into the temple, and placed one of them against the eastern gate, and sacrificed to them there; which was the greatest insult and outrage that could possibly be offered to that wretched people. Bp. Porteus.

16. Then let them &c.] Then let them which are in Judea, knowing that the final destruction of the nation is coming, flee for their lives. Dr. S. Clarke.

17. Let him which is on the housetop &c.] In illustration of this passage it should be mentioned, that the flat roofs of the houses in the towns of Palestine communicate with each other; so that a person might proceed from the roof to the city walls, and escape into the country without coming down into the street. Williams. And the stairs leading from the tops of the houses were on the outside. See note at Mark ii. 4. Bp. Pearce.

18. —to take his clothes.] That is, his upper garment or cloak, which according to custom he left at home when he went into the field. See Mark xiii. 16. Bp. Pearce.

19. —woe unto them that are with child, &c.] For neither will child, and to them that give suck in those days!

Anno DOMINI 33.

20 But pray ye that your flight be not in the winter, neither on the sabbath day:

21 For then shall be great tribulation, such as was not since the beginning of the world to this time, no, nor ever shall be.

22 And except those days should be shortened, there should no flesh be saved: but for the elect's sake those days shall be shortened.

[f] Mark 13. 21. Luke 17. 23.

23 [f] Then if any man shall say unto you, Lo, here is Christ, or there; believe it not.

24 For there shall arise false Christs, and false prophets, and shall shew great signs and wonders; insomuch that, if it were possible, they shall deceive the very elect.

Anno DOMINI 33.

25 Behold, I have told you before.

26 Wherefore if they shall say unto you, Behold, he is in the desert; go not forth: behold, he is in the secret chambers; believe it not.

27 For as the lightning cometh out of the east, and shineth even unto the west; so shall also the coming of the Son of man be.

[g] Luke 17. 37. [h] Mark 13. 24. Luke 21. 25. Isai. 13. 10. Joel 2. 31. Ezek. 32. 7.

28 [g] For wheresoever the carcase is, there will the eagles be gathered together.

29 ¶ Immediately after the tribulation of those days [h] shall the sun be darkened, such persons be in a condition to fly, nor will they be able to endure the distress and hardships of a siege. This woe was sufficiently fulfilled in the cruel slaughters which were made both of women and children, and particularly in that grievous famine which so miserably afflicted Jerusalem during the siege. Bp. Newton.

---

20. — in the winter,] Notwithstanding the general warmth of the climate of Judea, the winters there are cold, and the roads scarcely passable. "Neither on the sabbath day," lest you be exposed to the indignation of the Jews for travelling on that day, or hindered from doing so by your own superstition. The distance allowed by the Jews for a sabbath-day's journey was only two thousand cubits, or about five furlongs. Dr. Whitby, Bp. Pearce.

These kind admonitions of our Saviour were not lost upon the disciples. For we learn from the best ecclesiastical historians, that when the Roman armies approached Jerusalem, all the Christians left that devoted city and fled to Pella, a mountainous country, and to other places beyond the river Jordan. Josephus too informs us, that when Vespasian was drawing his forces towards Jerusalem, a great multitude fled from Jericho into the mountainous country for their security. Bp. Porteus.

21. — such as was not since &c.] Whoever will turn to the history of this war by Josephus, and there read the detail of the horrible and almost incredible calamities endured by the inhabitants of Jerusalem during the siege, not only from the fire and sword of the enemies without, but from famine and pestilence, and continual massacres and murders from the fiendlike fury of the seditious zealots within, will be convinced that the very strong terms used by our Lord do not go beyond the truth. Indeed Josephus himself, in his preface to his history, expresses himself almost in the very same words. "Our city," he says, "of all those subjected to the Romans, was raised to the highest felicity, and was thrust down again to the lowest gulph of misery: for, if the misfortunes of all from the beginning of the world were compared with those of the Jews, they would appear much inferiour on comparison." This is almost precisely the same as what our Saviour says in this verse. It is impossible, it may well be thought, even for the most stubborn infidel not to be struck with the great similarity of these two passages; and not to see that the prediction of our Lord, and the accomplishment of it, as described by the historian, are exact counterparts of each other, and seem almost to have been written by the same person. Yet Josephus was not born till after our Saviour was crucified; and he was not a Christian, but a Jew; and certainly never meant to give any testimony to the truth of our religion. Bp. Porteus.

22. — but for the elect's sake] That is, for the sake of the Christians. See ver. 13, and 2 John i. Bp. Pearce. For the sake of those Christians who will adhere to the profession of their faith, in the midst of trials and persecutions. Bp. Tomline.

We frequently find in the New Testament those who are called to the knowledge and belief of the Christian faith, called the elect. See ver. 31; 1 Pet. ii. 9, &c. Dr. Whitby. See the note at 1 Thess. i. 4.

The Christian Jews, partly through the fury of the zealots on the one hand, and the hatred of the Romans on the other, and partly through the difficulty of subsisting in the mountains without houses or provisions, would probably almost all have been destroyed, either by the sword or famine, if the days had not been shortened. But, providentially, the days were shortened; the besieged, by their internal divisions and mutual slaughters, and by deserting their strong holds, assisting the capture of the city, which could not otherwise have been effected, except after a very long period of time. Bp. Newton.

24. — there shall arise false Christs, &c.] Our Lord had already cautioned His disciples against believing the false Christs and false prophets who would appear before the siege; and He now warns them against those that would rise up during the siege. This, as Josephus tells us, they did in great abundance, and flattered the Jews with the hope of seeing their Messiah coming, with great power, to rescue them from the Romans. And they pretended to shew "signs and wonders;" the very words used by that historian as well as by our Lord. Bp. Porteus.

26. Wherefore if they shall say &c.] Wherefore, if it shall be reported that Christ appears visibly in the desert, and is preparing to come and deliver His servants, regard it not. And, if they say He is secretly in any private place, ready to shew Himself and appear publickly, give no credit to it at all. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— in the desert;] It is surprising that our Saviour should not only foretell the appearance of these impostors, but also the manner and circumstances of their conduct. For several of the false Christs and prophets conducted their followers into "the desert." Josephus mentions various instances, in which these impostors persuaded the people to follow them into the deserts, where they promised to shew manifest signs and wonders done by the providence of God; and the consequence was, that those who were persuaded by them drew down destruction on themselves. Bp. Newton.

27. For as the lightning &c.] As the lightning shineth through all places in an instant, so the power of Christ in destroying His enemies shall demonstrate itself evidently through all the land at once. Dr. S. Clarke.

28. For wheresoever the carcase is, &c.] Meaning that, as the eagles collect wherever they find their prey, so shall the Roman armies follow the call of Divine vengeance. This expression contains a beautiful allusion to the eagles of the Roman standards. Abp. Newcome.

29. — shall the sun be darkened, &c.] These which follow are strong figurative expressions, denoting that the Jewish state should be utterly destroyed. By similar figures we frequently find described in Scripture an utter desolation, and terrible destruction brought upon nations and capital cities. So Isaiah of Babylon, chap. xiii. 9, 10. In like terms the wrath of God against the

Anno DOMINI 33.

and the moon shall not give her light, and the stars shall fall from heaven, and the powers of the heavens shall be shaken:

30 And then shall appear the sign of the Son of man in heaven: and then shall all the tribes of the earth mourn, [i] and they shall see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory.

31 [k] And he shall send his angels ‖ with a great sound of a trumpet, and they shall gather together his elect from the four winds, from one end of heaven to the other.

32 Now learn a parable of the fig tree; When his branch is yet tender, and putteth forth leaves, ye know that summer is nigh:

33 So likewise ye, when ye shall see all these things, know that it is near, even at the doors.

34 Verily I say unto you, This generation shall not pass, till all these things be fulfilled.

35 [l] Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away.

36 ¶ But of that day and hour knoweth no man, no, not the angels of heaven, but my Father only.

37 But as the days of Noe were, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be.

38 [m] For as in the days that were before the flood they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day that Noe entered into the ark,

39 And knew not until the flood came, and took them all away; so shall also the coming of the Son of man be.

40 [n] Then shall two be in the field; the one shall be taken, and the other left.

41 Two women shall be grinding at the mill; the one shall be taken, and the other left.

[i] Rev. 1. 7.

[k] 1 Cor. 15. 52. 1 Thess. 4. 16.

‖ Or, with a trumpet, and a great voice.

Anno DOMINI 33.

[l] Mark 13. 31.

[m] Gen. 7. 5. Luke 17. 26.

[n] Luke 17. 36.

Idumeans is expressed, Isai. xxxiv. 3, 4. Again, the destruction of Egypt, Ezek. xxxii. 7. Maimonides applied this passage to the destruction of all the Jews of superiour rank by the zealots. Twelve thousand of the nobility were slain by them, as Josephus relates. Dr. Whitby.

30, 31. And then shall appear the sign &c.] Then it shall become most evident that Jesus was the true and only Messiah, and the Jews shall lament and mourn, and be forced to acknowledge the power, and glory, and majesty of Christ, who will then send forth His ministers among the Gentiles, and will gather into one body those who believe and obey His Gospel, from among all the nations of the earth. In like manner at the end of the world, after long persecutions and afflictions of the church, and after great disturbances and revolutions in all the nations of the world, Christ will at last appear in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory, and He will send His angels through the world, and gather together His elect, that is, all good men, who have believed and obeyed Him, and reward them with eternal life. Dr. S. Clarke.

At that time the Son of man, whom the Jews would not before acknowledge, shall give proof of Himself, not indeed in any visible form, but in vengeance and judgment so visible, that all the tribes of the earth shall be forced to acknowledge Him the avenger. The Jews, many times, asked for a sign; now a sign will appear, that He is the true Messiah whom they despised, derided, crucified; namely, His signal vengeance and fury, such as never any nation felt from the first foundation of the world. Dr. Lightfoot.

33. So likewise ye, &c.] The shooting forth of leaves and buds is not a surer token of the approach of summer, than these signs are, that Christ will then enter on His glorious kingdom. Dean Stanhope.

The approach of summer, says our Lord, is not more surely indicated by the first appearances of spring, than the final destruction of the wicked by the beginnings of vengeance on this impenitent people. The opening of the vernal blossom is the first step in a natural process, which necessarily terminates in the ripening of the summer fruits; and the rejection of the Jews, and the adoption of the believing Gentiles, is the first step in the execution of a general plan of Providence, which will end in the general judgment. Bp. Horsley.

34. — This generation shall not pass,] Accordingly, all these events did actually take place, within forty years after our Saviour delivered this parable, and before that generation had passed away. Bp. Porteus.

35. Heaven and earth &c.] Meaning, These prophecies of Mine shall most certainly be fulfilled. Bp. Pearce. Though heaven and earth are deemed the most unchangeable of all things; yet even these are not so firm as My prediction of these things. They shall be dissolved, but My words shall not be changed, nor shall one tittle of that, which I have now delivered, fail of its designed event. Dean Stanhope.

36. But of that day and hour &c.] That is, the precise time (John vii. 30.) when these things shall come to pass, no one knoweth, but God only. Bp. Pearce.

37. — as the days of Noe] The meaning of this passage (ver. 37—41.) is, When the day of desolation shall come upon the city and temple of Jerusalem, the inhabitants shall be as thoughtless and unconcerned, and as unprepared for it, as those in the days of Noah were for the flood. But, as some (more particularly the Christians) will be more watchful, and in a better state of mind than others, the providence of God will make a distinction between His faithful and His disobedient servants; and will protect and preserve the former, but leave the latter to be taken or destroyed by their enemies; although they may both be in the same situation of life, may be engaged in the same occupations, and may appear to the world to be in all respects in similar circumstances. Bp. Porteus.

41. Two women shall be grinding] This expression is illustrated by modern customs in the East.

"Scarcely had we reached our apartment at Nazareth, than we beheld two women grinding at the mill, in a manner most forcibly illustrating the saying of our Saviour. They were preparing flour to make our bread, as is always customary in the country when strangers arrive. The two women seated on the ground held between them two round flat stones. In the centre of the upper stone was a cavity for pouring in the corn, and by the side of this an upright wooden handle for moving the stone. As the operation began, one of the women with her right hand pushed this handle to the woman opposite, who again sent it to her companion, thus communicating a rotatory and very rapid motion to the upper stone; their left hands being all the while employed in supplying fresh corn, as fast as the bran and flour escaped from the sides of the machine." Dr. E. D. Clarke.

The meaning is, that Providence will then make a distinction between such as are not all distinguished now. Some will be rescued from the destruction of Jerusalem, like Lot out of the burning of Sodom; while others, the same perhaps in outward circumstances, will be left to perish in it. Bp. Newton.

Anno DOMINI 33.

42 ¶ [o] Watch therefore: for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come.

43 [p] But know this, that if the goodman of the house had known in what watch the thief would come, he would have watched, and would not have suffered his house to be broken up.

44 Therefore be ye also ready: for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of man cometh.

45 [q] Who then is a faithful and wise servant, whom his lord hath made ruler over his houshold, to give them meat in due season?

46 Blessed is that servant, whom his lord when he cometh shall find so doing.

47 Verily I say unto you, That he shall make him ruler over all his goods.

48 But and if that evil servant shall say in his heart, My lord delayeth his coming;

49 And shall begin to smite his fellow-servants, and to eat and drink with the drunken;

50 The lord of that servant shall come in a day when he looketh not for him, and in an hour that he is not aware of,

51 And shall ‖ cut him asunder, and appoint him his portion with the hypocrites: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

Anno DOMINI 33.

[o] Mark 13. 35.
[p] Luke 12. 39. 1 Thess. 5. 2. Rev. 16. 15.
[q] Luke 12. 42.
‖ Or, cut him off.

CHAP. XXV.

1 The parable of the ten virgins, 14 and of the talents.
31 Also the description of the last judgment.

THEN shall the kingdom of heaven be likened unto ten virgins, which took their lamps, and went forth to meet the bridegroom.

2 And five of them were wise, and five were foolish.

3 They that were foolish took their lamps, and took no oil with them:

4 But the wise took oil in their vessels with their lamps.

5 While the bridegroom tarried, they all slumbered and slept.

---

42. Watch therefore: &c.] Here ends the prophetical part of our Lord's discourse: that which follows is altogether exhortatory. It may be called the moral of the prophecy, the practical application of it, not only to His immediate hearers, but to His disciples in all future ages: for this concluding admonition certainly alludes no less to the final judgment, than to the destruction of Jerusalem, and applies with at least equal force to both. Indeed, the prophecy itself, although in its primary and strictest sense it relates throughout to the destruction of the temple, city, and government of Jerusalem; yet, as has already been stated, was probably intended by Jesus as a type and an emblem of the dissolution of the world itself, to which the total subversion of a great city, and a whole nation, bears some resemblance. But, with respect to the conclusion, there can be no doubt of its being intended to call our attention to the last solemn day of account, with a view to which it is too clear to need much explanation, and too impressive to require additional enforcement. Bp. Porteus.

He means by these declarations to remind every man that his particular doom is near: for, whatever may be the season appointed in the secret counsels of God for that great and terrible day, when the heavens and the earth shall flee from the face of Him who shall be seated on the throne, and their place shall be no more found; whatever may be the destined time of this publick catastrophe, the end of the world, with respect to every individual, takes place at the conclusion of his own life. In the grave there will be no repentance, no virtues can be acquired, no evil habits thrown off. With that character, whether of virtue or of vice, with which a man leaves the world, with that he must appear before the judgment seat of Christ. In that moment therefore, in which his present life ends, every man's future condition becomes irreversibly determined. In this sense, to every one that standeth here, "the coming of the Lord draweth nigh; the Judge standeth before the door;" let us watch, therefore, and pray, watch over ourselves, and pray for the succours of God's grace, that we may be able to stand before the Son of man. Nor shall vigilance and prayer be ineffectual. On the incorrigible and perverse, on those who mock at God's threatenings, and reject His promises, on these only the severity of wrath will fall. But for those who lay these warnings seriously to heart, who dread the pollutions of the world, and flee from sin as from a serpent; who fear God's displeasure more than death, and seek His favour more than life, though much of frailty will to the last adhere to them, yet these are the objects of the Father's mercy, of the Redeemer's love. For these He died, for these He pleads, these He supports and strengthens with His Spirit, these He shall lead with Him triumphant to the mansions of glory, when sin and death shall be cast into the lake of fire. Bp. Horsley.

51. — shall cut him asunder,] A mode of punishment used in the East: meaning generally, He will severely punish him—will destroy him with the sword here, and condemn him hereafter. Abp. Newcome.

—— the hypocrites:] Those hypocritical servants, who professed to be busy for the master when he was present, but were idle in his absence. Bp. Pearce.

Chap. XXV. ver. 1. Then shall &c.] The parables which follow are designed to carry on the subject with which the preceding chapter concludes; namely, that of the last solemn day of retribution: the object of them is, to call our attention to that great event, and to warn us of the necessity of being always prepared for it. Bp. Porteus.

—— the kingdom of heaven be likened &c.] Meaning, the state of the Gospel, and the method of God's dealings with men will be such, as may fitly be represented by this similitude. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— took their lamps,] The Jewish marriages, and the feasts which followed them, were performed at night. Bp. Pearce. See note at ver. 6.

2. — five of them were wise, and five were foolish.] The wise virgins represent those who had not only embraced the Christian religion, but who likewise persevered in that profession, and brought forth fruits answerable to it.

4. — oil in their vessels] In many parts of the East, and particularly in the Indies, it is the custom, instead of torches and flambeaux, to carry a pot of oil in one hand, and a lamp, which is thus supplied with oil, in the other. Candles are seldom used in the East, especially among persons of higher rank. Sir J. Chardin.

5. — they all slumbered and slept.] This did the wise virgins, as well as the foolish. Thus, too often, even the best and most considerate sort of Christians, are not so watchful as they ought to be, to prepare for death and judgment. In many things, says St. James, we all offend, even the best of us; and who is there that does not, some time or other, remit of his vigilance and care, so as to lie open to temptation, for want of a sufficient guard on

Anno DOMINI 33.

6 And at midnight there was a cry made, Behold, the bridegroom cometh; go ye out to meet him.

7 Then all those virgins arose, and trimmed their lamps.

8 And the foolish said unto the wise, Give us of your oil; for our lamps are ‖ gone out.

‖ Or, going out.

9 But the wise answered, saying, Not so; lest there be not enough for us and you: but go ye rather to them that sell, and buy for yourselves.

10 And while they went to buy, the bridegroom came; and they that were ready went in with him to the marriage: and the door was shut.

11 Afterward came also the other virgins, saying, Lord, Lord, open to us.

12 But he answered and said, Verily I say unto you, I know you not.

[a] Chap. 24. 42. Mark 13. 33.

13 [a] Watch therefore, for ye know neither the day nor the hour wherein the Son of man cometh.

[b] Luke 19. 12.

14 ¶ [b] For the kingdom of heaven is as a man travelling into a far country, who called his own servants, and delivered unto them his goods.

Anno DOMINI 33.

15 And unto one he gave five ‖ talents, to another two, and to another one; to every man according to his several ability; and straightway took his journey.

‖ A talent is 187*l.* 10*s.* ch. 18. 24.

16 Then he that had received the five talents went and traded with the same, and made them other five talents.

17 And likewise he that had received two, he also gained other two.

18 But he that had received one went and digged in the earth, and hid his lord's money.

19 After a long time the lord of those servants cometh, and reckoneth with them.

20 And so he that had received five talents came and brought other five talents, saying, Lord, thou deliveredst unto me five talents: behold, I have gained beside them five talents more.

21 His lord said unto him, Well done, thou good and faithful servant: thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy lord.

---

himself? Blessed are those servants, and wise indeed, whose lamps always burn bright, and whom the Bridegroom, when He comes, shall find watching, and in a fit posture and preparation to meet Him. Abp. Tillotson.

6. — at midnight there was a cry &c.] In "the Customs of the East Indians and the Jews compared," a statement is given of the marriage ceremonies of the former, remarkably resembling the usages of the latter. It is mentioned, among other circumstances, that the new married couple go abroad for some hours, attended by their friends and kindred, with drums and trumpets preceding them, and lighted by flambeaux. On their return home, where the women and domesticks wait for them, the whole house is enlightened with little lamps, and many flambeaux are kept ready for their arrival, besides those that accompany them. These flambeaux are nothing else but pieces of linen squeezed hard together into a round form, and thrust into a mould of copper. Those who hold them in one hand have in the other a bottle full of oil, and they take care to pour out of it from time to time on the linen, which otherwise gives no light.

10. — the bridegroom came;] We should well observe here the fatal effects of putting off the necessary preparations for meeting our Judge. We ought to be always ready whenever He may please to come. When that time shall be, it is not in our power to know. Bp. Mann.

—— and the door was shut.] The patience of God will not always last: the day of the Lord will come, as a thief in the night, and will surprise the careless world at once, and give them no time to trim up their lamps and get oil; but in an instant the door will be shut, and they shall never enter into the kingdom of God. Let the sinner be wise in time, and improve the present opportunities of life with all his might, with all possible care and diligence, lest judgment find him unprepared. Abp. Tillotson.

13. Watch therefore,] This is the application which our Saviour makes of the parable; we hence learn that the design of this parable is to instruct us that we ought to be continually vigilant, and always on our guard, and in a constant readiness and preparation to meet the Bridegroom, because we know not the hour of His coming to judgment; nor yet, which will be of the same consequence and concernment to us, do any of us know the precise time of our own death. Either of these may happen at any time, and come when we least expect. It behoves us therefore to make the best and speediest provision that we can for another world, and to be continually on the watch, and to trim our lamps, that we may not be surprised by either of these events, our own particular death, or the general judgment of the world. More particularly should we take up an immediate and effectual resolution, not to delay our repentance and the reformation of our lives, that we may not have that great work to perform at a time when we are not fit to do any thing, much less to prepare for eternity, and do that in a few moments, which ought to have been the care and endeavour of our whole lives; that we may not be forced to perform a hurried, imperfect, and too probably unavailing repentance; to perform that in great haste and confusion, which certainly does require our wisest and most deliberate thoughts, and the most serious consideration. Abp. Tillotson.

——for ye know neither the day nor the hour] From the complete uncertainty at what time "the Son of man cometh," we should be impelled immediately to reconcile ourselves to God by a sincere and hearty repentance, that the terrible day of God's wrath may not find us unprepared. We should be ever on our guard, and frequent in all acts of piety and devotion, that we may make a daily advancement towards Christian perfection. We should humbly pray to God that the day of judgment may not overtake us unawares; but that, by patient continuance in well-doing, we may wait for glory, honour, and immortality. Nelson.

14. For the kingdom of heaven is &c.] By a man travelling into a far country, is here represented our Saviour's leaving this world, and ascending into heaven, after He had finished the great work of our redemption: and by His delivering to His servants His goods, is signified His strengthening His disciples with sufficient grace for the performance of their duty and service towards Him. By the lord's returning after a long time, and reckoning with the servants, is represented the coming of Christ to judgment at the end of the world, then to inquire into every man's works, and to reward or punish, as there is just occasion. Bragge.

21. — enter thou into the joy of thy lord.] The word, translated "joy," is applied particularly to a feast. The metaphor is still

Anno DOMINI 33.

22 He also that had received two talents came and said, Lord, thou deliveredst unto me two talents: behold, I have gained two other talents beside them.

23 His lord said unto him, Well done, good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy lord.

24 Then he which had received the one talent came and said, Lord, I knew thee that thou art an hard man, reaping where thou hast not sown, and gathering where thou hast not strawed:

25 And I was afraid, and went and hid thy talent in the earth: lo, there thou hast that is thine.

26 His lord answered and said unto him, Thou wicked and slothful servant, thou knewest that I reap where I sowed not, and gather where I have not strawed:

27 Thou oughtest therefore to have put my money to the exchangers, and then at my coming I should have received mine own with usury.

Anno DOMINI 33.

28 Take therefore the talent from him, and give it unto him which hath ten talents.

29 [c] For unto every one that hath shall be given, and he shall have abundance: but from him that hath not shall be taken away even that which he hath.

[c] Chap. 13. 12. Mark 4. 25. Luke 8. 18.

30 And cast ye the unprofitable servant into outer darkness: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

31 ¶ When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory:

32 And before him shall be gathered all nations: and he shall separate them one from another, as a shepherd divideth his sheep from the goats:

---

used of representing the joys of heaven by a feast; and the master, in reward for his servant's good conduct, invites him to feast with him. Dr. Whitby.

24. — that thou art an hard man,] The pretence here made by the servant is false and groundless. God requires not of His servants more than He has given them power to perform. But certainly, the stricter we imagine Him to be, the more careful we ought to be, in improving the talent He has committed to our charge. Bp. Mann.

26. — thou knewest that I reap &c.] This is not a concession that the master was truly so, but it is an argument out of the servant's own mouth to condemn him, for not acting suitably to his own hard conceptions of his lord. Dr. Whitby. He means, Though it were true, as you say, that I reap where I sow not, and you durst not risk the money in merchandise, still you should have put it out to interest, to the publick moneychangers: some exertions ought to have been made. Thus God only requires service from us, in proportion to the means, and to the degree of grace which He grants. Dr. Lightfoot.

27. Thou oughtest — to have put my money to the exchangers,] Meaning, that he ought to have turned it to profit by some honest way of trade. He uses this expression to upbraid the folly and sloth of the servant. Dr. Lightfoot.

Hence we are instructed, that he who has received much grace, must be eminent for much holiness. His piety must rise proportionably to the communications of the Holy Spirit which he enjoys; and his diligence be commensurate with his strength. He that hath received five talents, must gain other five with them; and no man must be without some increase, though he hath received but one. Bragge.

29. For unto every one that hath &c.] To him that uses and duly improves God's spiritual gifts, so much shall by degrees be given, that at the last he shall have all abundance; but from him who doth not so, that which he formerly had shall be taken away. Dr. Hammond.

The moral of this parable is, that Jesus will reward and punish Christians according to their behaviour, under the means of grace afforded them; and that what will be required from every one will be in proportion to that which has been given him. Bp. Pearce.

In the foregoing parable we see, on the one hand, all possible encouragement given to diligence and industry, and a lively improving piety, in an abundant increase of grace, with all the blessed attendants of it in this world, and a full enjoyment of God in heaven. On the other side, we are presented with considerations which, if duly weighed, will make any one afraid of spiritual sloth and idleness, and not dare to neglect the improvement of his talent; for, by so doing, he will be deprived of God's grace here, and doomed to eternal misery at the day of judgment. Bragge.

31. When the Son of man shall come &c.] Our blessed Lord, after the admonitory parables which precede, containing exhortations to prepare for the last great day, is naturally led on to a description of the day itself. He represents Himself as a great and mighty King, the Supreme Lord of all, sitting on the throne of His glory, with all the nations of the world assembled before Him, and waiting their final doom from His lips. What an astonishing and stupendous spectacle is this! He then at one glance, which penetrates the heart of every individual of that immense multitude, discerns the respective merits or demerits of every human being there present, and separates the good from the bad, with as much ease as a shepherd divides his sheep from the goats. He proceeds to question them on one most important branch of their duty, as a specimen of the manner, in which the inquiry into the whole of their behaviour will be conducted; and then, with the authority of an Almighty Sovereign and Judge, He pronounces in a few words the irreversible sentence, which consigns the wicked to everlasting punishment, and the righteous to life eternal. Bp. Porteus.

32. — shall be gathered all nations:] That is, all mankind that ever lived in any nation on the face of the earth, from the creation of it to that day. Bp. Beveridge.

The doctrine of a future judgment, to be executed by that Divine Person who came down from heaven to be crucified, in order that He might deliver us from death eternal, is the strongest argument that was ever urged, or that can be conceived, to make men good. It has an efficacy proper to work on every disposition; to restrain the rash, to recover the fallen, to confirm the wavering, to soften the obdurate, to awe the presumptuous, to encourage and animate the desponding and weak, and to improve and exalt the virtuous and good of every degree, to perfection. Dr. Ogden.

—— he shall separate them one from another,] It is to be observed that all mankind, when assembled before the judgment seat of Christ, are divided into two great classes, the wicked and the good: those who are punished and those who are rewarded. There is no middle, no intermediate station provided for those who are lukewarm and indifferent, who are "neither cold nor hot," who do not reject the Gospel, but give themselves very little concern about it; who, instead of working out their salvation with fear and trembling, leave that matter to take care of itself, and are at perfect ease as to the event. Such persons hope probably to be exempted from punishment at least, if not

Anno DOMINI 33.

33 And he shall set the sheep on his right hand, but the goats on the left.

34 Then shall the King say unto them on his right hand, Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world:

[d] Isai. 58. 7. Ezek. 18. 7.

35 [d] For I was an hungred, and ye gave me meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink: I was a stranger, and ye took me in:

36 Naked, and ye clothed me: I was sick, and ye visited me: I was in prison, and ye came unto me.

37 Then shall the righteous answer him, saying, Lord, when saw we thee an hungred, and fed thee? or thirsty, and gave thee drink?

38 When saw we thee a stranger, and took thee in? or naked, and clothed thee?

39 Or when saw we thee sick, or in prison, and came unto thee?

Anno DOMINI 33.

40 And the King shall answer and say unto them, Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me.

41 Then shall he say also unto them on the left hand, [e] Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels:

[e] Ps. 6. 8. ch. 7. 23.

42 For I was an hungred, and ye gave me no meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me no drink:

43 I was a stranger, and ye took me not in: naked, and ye clothed me not: sick, and in prison, and ye visited me not.

44 Then shall they also answer him, saying, Lord, when saw we thee an hungred, or entitled to reward. But how vain this hope is, our Saviour's representation of the final judgment most clearly shows. Those who are not set on the right hand, must go to the left. Those who are not rewarded, are consigned to punishment. There are, indeed, different mansions both for the righteous and the wicked; there are different degrees of punishment for the one, and of reward for the other; still it does not appear that there is any middle or intermediate state between punishment and reward. Bp. Porteus.

---

33. — on his right hand, — on the left.] Here seems to be an allusion to the received custom of the Jews in capital causes, of placing criminals who were acquitted on the right hand of the Sanhedrim, and those who were to receive the sentence of condemnation, on the left hand. Dr. Whitby.

34. — prepared for you from the foundation &c.] That is, which God ordained from the beginning of the world, to take place at the proper season. Bp. Pearce.

35. For I was an hungred, &c.] It is an observation of some importance to be impressed on our minds, that, although charity to our neighbour, and indeed only one branch of that comprehensive duty, liberality to the poor, is here specified as the only Christian virtue, concerning which inquiry will be made at the day of judgment; yet we must not imagine that this is the only virtue which will be expected from us, and that on this alone will depend our final salvation. Nothing can be more distant from truth, or more dangerous to religion, than this opinion. The fact is, that charity, or love to man in all its extent, being that virtue which Christ has made the very badge and discriminating mark of His religion, is here constituted by Him the representative of all other virtues, just as faith is, in various passages of Scripture, used to denote and represent the whole Christian religion. But, that neither charity, nor any other single virtue can entitle us to eternal life, is clear from the whole tenour of the New Testament, which every where requires universal holiness of life. We are commanded "to stand perfect and complete in all the will of God," Col. iv. 12; "to add to our faith virtue, and to virtue knowledge, and to knowledge temperance, and to temperance patience, and to patience godliness, and to godliness brotherly kindness, and to brotherly kindness charity," 2 Pet. i. 5, 6. Here we see that charity makes only one in that large assemblage of virtues, which are required to constitute the Christian character; and even while we endeavour to fulfil all righteousness, still it is not on that righteousness, but on the merits of our Redeemer, that we must rely for our acceptance with God. We must therefore collect the terms of our salvation, not from any one passage, but from the whole tenour of the sacred writings taken together; and, if we judge by this rule, which is the only one that can be safely relied on, we shall find that nothing less than a sincere and lively faith in Christ, producing in us, as far as the infirmity of our nature will permit, universal holiness of life, can ever make our final calling and election sure. But thus much we may certainly collect from our Lord's representation of the final judgment, that charity or love to man is one of the most essential duties of our religion, and that to neglect this virtue must be peculiarly dangerous, and render us peculiarly unfit to appear at the last day before the tribunal of Christ. Bp. Porteus.

40. — Inasmuch as ye have done it &c.] It is in vain to search among the works of any sage of antiquity for so pathetick a recommendation of benevolence to the distressed, and enforced by such assurances of a reward, as is here given by Christ. S. Jenyns.

— the least of these my brethren,] That is, the meanest among true Christians. Bp. Pearce.

This memorable and gracious answer of our Saviour is fit to be engraven in the hearts, and ever sounding in the ears, of all industrious promoters of charity. True it is, our Saviour says, Me in person ye never relieved, supported, comforted; but since ye performed these kind offices to others, who belonged to Me, at My command, and for My sake; I consider what you did to them (even to one of the least of them) as done to Myself, and shall accordingly give you a most valuable recompense. These words, considered as they ought to be as to their general drift, press upon us two powerful motives to the practice of charity; the one, that upon this point, we shall certainly be tried and examined at the great day of account; the other, that acts of mercy done to the poor will then be accepted and rewarded, as done to our Saviour Himself. Bp. Atterbury.

41. — Depart from me, ye cursed, &c.] O terrible sentence of the most righteous Judge! a sentence as full of wrath and vengeance, as that of the righteous (ver. 34.) is full of grace and favour. To the righteous He says, "Come, ye blessed of My Father;" to the wicked, "Depart from Me, ye cursed." He does not add "of My Father," because it is not God, but they who have brought this curse upon themselves. To those on His right hand He says, "Inherit the kingdom;" to those on His left, "Depart into everlasting fire." He tells the former, that the kingdom, which they shall inherit, was "prepared for them from the foundation of the world;" the latter, that the fire, to which they must go, was "prepared," not for them, but "for the devil and his angels;" by this He signifies, that the place of punishment, to which they are condemned, was at first designed only for the devil and the fallen angels; but, seeing they have done the works of the devil, and would not be persuaded to turn to God, and serve Him, they must now go to the same place, and there live for ever with the fiends of hell. Bp. Beveridge.

athirst, or a stranger, or naked, or sick, or in prison, and did not minister unto thee?

45 Then shall he answer them, saying, Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye did it not to one of the least of these, ye did it not to me.

46 And [f] these shall go away into everlasting punishment: but the righteous into life eternal.

[f] Dan. 12. 2. John 5. 29.

CHAP. XXVI.

1 The rulers conspire against Christ. 6 The woman anointeth his feet. 14 Judas selleth him. 17 Christ eateth the passover: 26 instituteth his holy supper: 36 prayeth in the garden: 47 and being betrayed with a kiss, 57 is carried to Caiaphas, 69 and denied of Peter.

AND it came to pass, when Jesus had finished all these sayings, he said unto his disciples,

2 [a] Ye know that after two days is the feast of the passover, and the Son of man is betrayed to be crucified.

[a] Mark 14. 1. Luke 22. 1. John 13. 1.

3 [b] Then assembled together the chief priests, and the scribes, and the elders of the people, unto the palace of the high priest, who was called Caiaphas,

Anno DOMINI 33.

[b] John 11. 47.

4 And consulted that they might take Jesus by subtilty, and kill him.

5 But they said, Not on the feast day, lest there be an uproar among the people.

6 ¶ [c] Now when Jesus was in Bethany, in the house of Simon the leper, [c] Mark 14. 3. John 11. 1.

7 There came unto him a woman having an alabaster box of very precious ointment, and poured it on his head, as he sat at meat.

8 But when his disciples saw it, they had indignation, saying, To what purpose is this waste?

9 For this ointment might have been sold for much, and given to the poor.

10 When Jesus understood it, he said unto them, Why trouble ye the woman? for she hath wrought a good work upon me.

---

46. —the righteous into life eternal.] The doctrine of life everlasting is the greatest spur to obedience and the practice of virtue, not only out of love and thankfulness to our Divine Benefactor, but out of regard to our own interest. The richer the reward, the more it deserves our assiduous and earnest endeavours. Shall we not press "toward the mark for the prize of our high calling," when we reflect that in value it exceeds all that eye hath seen, or ear heard, or the heart of man hath conceived; and hath, besides, this transcendent excellence, that, like the Giver's mercy, it endureth for ever? The possessions or distinctions of this vain world in their nature can never satisfy, and drop from us as fast as we obtain them, at the latest with this short life, and many of them much sooner: but the heavenly bliss continues unfading to eternity, and after the revolution of endless, endless ages, is but still beginning. How should we despise the empty pomp, the idle bustle, the little greatness of this poor transient state, were the eyes of our understanding, by God's grace, enlightened to know what is the hope of His calling, and what the riches of the glory of His inheritance! Dr. Ogden.

In this and many other passages of a similar nature, we are expressly assured that both our existence and our happiness hereafter will be, in the strictest sense of the word, everlasting. This none but God Himself could promise, or, when promised, fulfil. It is more than the utmost sagacity of human reason could discover, more than the utmost perfection of human virtue could claim. Eternal life, therefore, is constantly and justly represented in Scripture as the gift, the free gift of God, through Jesus Christ; and, were it on this account only, it might be truly said, that life and immortality were brought to light through the Gospel. Bp. Porteus.

In the description of the last day given in this chapter, ver. 31—46, the most august scene that imagination can conceive is represented with a mixture of simplicity and pathos. The glory and majesty of the Judge and King are contrasted by His humility and benevolence. The righteous resume His words in the most natural manner, ver. 37, and, by resuming them, seem to inculcate anew the duties of humanity, never elsewhere so forcibly recommended. In like manner, when the wicked recapitulate the omissions with which they are charged, ver. 44, we seem a second time warned against the effect of such crimes. Abp. Newcome.

Chap. XXVI. ver. 2. —the feast of the passover,] See notes at Exod. xii. This feast began on the 14th day of the first full moon, in the month Nisan, and, properly speaking, lasted only one day, but the seven days of unleavened bread immediately followed, so that the entire festival lasted eight days; the whole being sometimes called "the feast of the passover," and "the days of unleavened bread," Luke xxii. 1, 7. Bp. Pearce. St. Mark's expression is "the feast of the passover, and of unleavened bread," Mark xiv. 1.

5. —Not on the feast day,] The day of the passover. It seems probable that their design was not to apprehend Jesus till the eight days of the paschal feast were concluded, and when the multitude of people, who came to Jerusalem for that occasion, should be diminished; but Judas, having come to the chief priests soon after, and made an offer of betraying Him in the night, they changed their design, and seized upon Him on the evening of the first of these eight days, intending to have Him tried and condemned in the night, and crucified early in the morning, before the multitude of the people should come together. Bp. Pearce.

6. —in Bethany,] Bethany was on the mount of Olives, about fifteen furlongs from Jerusalem. It was in this place that our Lord performed the signal miracle of raising Lazarus from the dead, John xi. 1, 18. Mr. Maundrell informs us that it is at present a very small village. Dr. Wells.

7. —a woman] See the note at John xii. 3.

——and poured it on his head,] This act, however it may appear strange to us, was perfectly conformable to the customs of ancient times, not only in Asia, but in the more polished parts of Europe; and, among the Jews particularly, the custom of anointing the head seems to have been almost as common a custom as that of washing the face. See Matt. vi. 17, 18. The particular act here recorded was intended as a mark of respect to our Lord by this devout woman. Bp. Porteus.

8. —saying, To what purpose is this waste? &c.] It was only Judas Iscariot who said this, and that from covetousness, John xii. 4—6. Some of the disciples seem to have approved of it, by reason of the pretext of charity, Mark xiv. 5, and the rest did not contradict it, but approved by their silence; on which account they are here mentioned without any exception, as uniting with Judas. Dr. Whitby.

10. —Why trouble ye the woman?] Why do you blame the woman? Surely, this expense is as well bestowed on Me whilst I am alive, as in preparing My dead body for burial; on which occasion you know it is the constant custom to use costly spices and perfumes, John xix. 39, 40. Bp. Mann. Thus Jesus, seeing at

Anno DOMINI 33.

11 [d] For ye have the poor always with you; but me ye have not always.

[d] Deut. 15. 11.

12 For in that she hath poured this ointment on my body, she did it for my burial.

13 Verily I say unto you, Wheresoever this gospel shall be preached in the whole world, there shall also this, that this woman hath done, be told for a memorial of her.

Mark 14. 10. Luke 22. 3.

14 ¶ [e] Then one of the twelve, called Judas Iscariot, went unto the chief priests,

15 And said unto them, What will ye give me, and I will deliver him unto you? And they covenanted with him for thirty pieces of silver.

16 And from that time he sought opportunity to betray him.

[f] Mark 14. 12. Luke 22. 7.

17 ¶ [f] Now the first day of the feast of unleavened bread the disciples came to Jesus, saying unto him, Where wilt thou that we prepare for thee to eat the passover?

18 And he said, Go into the city to such a man, and say unto him, The Master saith, My time is at hand; I will keep the passover at thy house with my disciples.

19 And the disciples did as Jesus had appointed them; and they made ready the passover.

Anno DOMINI 33.

20 [g] Now when the even was come, he sat down with the twelve.

[g] Mark 14. 18. Luke 22. 14. John 13. 21.

21 And as they did eat, he said, Verily I say unto you, that one of you shall betray me.

22 And they were exceeding sorrowful, and began every one of them to say unto him, Lord, is it I?

23 And he answered and said, [h] He that dippeth his hand with me in the dish, the same shall betray me.

[h] Ps. 41. 9.

24 The Son of man goeth as it is written of him: but woe unto that man by whom the Son of man is betrayed! it had been good for that man if he had not been born.

25 Then Judas, which betrayed him, answered and said, Master, is it I? He said unto him, Thou hast said.

[i] 1 Cor. 11. 24.

26 ¶ And as they were eating, [i] Jesus took bread, and ‖ blessed it, and brake it, once the piety of her heart, and the purity of her intentions, with that sweetness of temper which was natural to Him, not only accepted her humble offering with complacency, but generously defended her against the illiberal cavil. Bp. Porteus.

‖ Many Greek copies have, gave thanks.

---

12. — did it for my burial.] The woman's design was to shew her respect for Jesus, but He takes occasion hence to forewarn His disciples, that His burial was approaching. Grotius.

13. — Wheresoever this gospel &c.] This, as we know, was no vain prediction; it has been most literally and punctually fulfilled, and we ourselves are witnesses of its completion at this very moment. Bp. Porteus. Three out of the four Evangelists, St Matthew, St. Mark, and St. Luke, have recorded this event. Bp. Pearce.

15. — for thirty pieces of silver.] For thirty shekels, about £3. 10*s.* 8*d.* of our money. It appears from Exod. xxi. 32, that this was the price to be paid for a slave or servant when killed by a beast. So vilely was He esteemed who shed His precious blood for man; and so true it is, that Christ took upon Him the form of a servant. Drs. Hammond and Whitby.

17. — the first day of — unleavened bread] The morning of the day, (Thursday,) on the evening of which the paschal lamb was ordered to be slain. Though, strictly speaking, they were not obliged to abstain from leavened bread till the paschal supper, yet, through caution not to offend against the law, they began to remove leavened bread from their houses on the 14th, before the lamb was killed. Hence this day is here called "the first of unleavened bread," though Moses gives that name to the 15th, Exod. xii. 17. Le Clerc.

23. — He that dippeth his hand with me in the dish,] In Barbary, and probably in the East, when the food is any liquid substance, after having broken their bread into small pieces, they dip their hands and their morsels together in it. Dr. Shaw.

24. The Son of man goeth &c.] I must indeed suffer, Jesus says, according to the will of God, and according to the prophecies concerning Me: but, though the Divine Wisdom thinks fit to use the wickedness of My betrayer as an instrument to effect His great designs; yet the wickedness of him, who thus wilfully and maliciously betrays Me, is not on this account the less; and therefore his punishment will be so grievous, that it were happy for him had he never been born. Dr. S. Clarke.

25. — Thou hast said.] This expression affirms, Yes, thou art the person whom I mean. The words seem spoken to Judas apart. We should here observe, on the one hand, the divine foreknowledge of Christ, in discovering the hidden designs of the heart; and, on the other hand, the deceitfulness of sin, which drives men to their destruction, notwithstanding the plainest warning. Bp. Mann. This was said to Judas in a low voice, unheard by the rest. Dr. Hales.

26. — Jesus took bread, &c.] We should bear in mind that our Lord was now solemnly commemorating the passover, the most considerable of all the sacrifices appointed under the Old Testament, and the type of the great sacrifice for sin, made by "Christ our Passover," 1 Cor. v. 7. In the expressions therefore which He uses, He refers to the occasion present, and the objects before Him, which must all be taken into the account, if we would comprehend the fulness of His meaning. It is as if He had said, You are eating the flesh of this lamb; the blood of it has been shed on the altar to make atonement. But you must now know that these things are but shadows. I am the great sacrifice, and My blood the true atonement. Eat of this bread, drink of this cup, considering them as representing My body and blood, and you shall be partakers of what was always the end and meaning of the legal passover; of this body, which is just now going to be offered in sacrifice to God for the sins of all men; of this blood, "without shedding of which is no remission," Heb. ix. 22. Dr. Ogden.

The Jews had been accustomed to partake, at all their feasts, of bread and wine, in a serious and devout manner, after a solemn blessing or thanksgiving to God for His goodness to men; but especially at the feast of the passover, which our Saviour was celebrating with His disciples, when He instituted this holy sacrament: at that feast, in their thanksgiving, they commemorated more at large the mercies of their God, dwelling however chiefly on their deliverance from the bondage of Egypt. And, as this had many particulars resembling that infinitely more important redemption of all mankind from sin and ruin which our Saviour was then about to accomplish, He very naturally directed His disciples that their ancient custom should for the future be applied to the greatest of Divine blessings, and become the memorial of "Christ their Passover sacrificed for them;" as indeed the bread broken aptly enough represented His body, and the wine poured forth expressly figured out His blood shed for our salvation. Abp. Secker.

Anno DOMINI 33.

and gave it to the disciples, and said, Take, eat; this is my body.

27 And he took the cup, and gave thanks, and gave it to them, saying, Drink ye all of it;

28 For this is my blood of the new testament, which is shed for many for the remission of sins.

29 But I say unto you, I will not drink henceforth of this fruit of the vine, until that day when I drink it new with you in my Father's kingdom.

‖ Or, psalm.

30 And when they had sung an ‖ hymn, they went out into the mount of Olives.

[k] Mark 14. 27. John 16. 32. [l] Zech. 13. 7.

31 Then saith Jesus unto them, [k] All ye shall be offended because of me this night: for it is written, [l] I will smite the shepherd, and the sheep of the flock shall be scattered abroad.

Anno DOMINI 33.

32 But after I am risen again, [m] I will go before you into Galilee.

[m] Mark 14. 28. & 16. 7.

33 Peter answered and said unto him, Though all men shall be offended because of thee, yet will I never be offended.

34 Jesus said unto him, [n] Verily I say unto thee, That this night, before the cock crow, thou shalt deny me thrice.

[n] John 13. 38.

35 Peter said unto him, Though I should die with thee, yet will I not deny thee. Likewise also said all the disciples.

36 ¶ [o] Then cometh Jesus with them unto a place called Gethsemane, and saith unto the disciples, Sit ye here, while I go and pray yonder.

[o] Mark 14. 32. Luke 22. 39.

——this is my body.] This is a figurative mode of expression, and must be understood to mean, This is the representation or sign of My body, in the same sense as the lamb is called the passover. The bread could not be Christ's natural body whilst He was alive; for it was His body that performed the action of breaking and giving the bread; nor could the wine in the cup be His blood, for that was still flowing in His veins. Bp. Mann.

These words can by no natural construction support the doctrine of transubstantiation maintained in the Romish Church. For the words when uttered by the priest cannot surely signify more than when they were uttered by Christ Himself; and He evidently alluded to the approaching sacrifice of Himself on the cross; on which His body was to be broken and pierced, and His blood shed by the nails, and by the spear. Dr. Hales.

The Catechism of our Church affirms, that "the body and blood of Christ are verily and indeed taken and received by the faithful in the Lord's supper." The meaning of which is, that although in one sense all communicants equally partake of the outward signs of the body and blood of Christ, yet in a much more important sense, the "faithful" only, the pious and virtuous receiver, eats His flesh and drinks His blood, shares in the life and strength derived to men from His incarnation and death, and, through faith in Him, becomes, by a vital union, one with Him; a member, as St. Paul expresses it, "of His flesh, and of His bones," Eph. v. 30: not in a literal sense, but in a figurative and spiritual one. In appearance, the sacrament of Christ's death is given to all alike; but, verily and indeed, in its beneficial effects, to none besides the faithful. Even to the unworthy communicant He is present, as He is wherever we meet together in His name; but, in a better and most gracious sense, to the worthy soul, becoming by the inward virtue of His spirit, its food and sustenance. Abp. Secker.

27.—Drink ye all of it;] We should observe, that the command for all to drink of the cup was positive and express; and directly opposed to the practice in the Romish Church, of giving the cup to the clergy only, and denying it to the laity. It is material also to notice the reason assigned by our Saviour, why all the Apostles were to drink of it: "For this is My blood, &c.—shed for many for the remission of sins." All therefore, who stand in need of remission of sins, are to drink of the cup; that is, all mankind, laity as well as clergy. Bp. Tomline.

The design of our blessed Saviour, in this institution of the Lord's supper, was to leave to the Church a perpetual, solemn, and sacred memorial of His death for us; that, as often as we come to the Lord's table, and there join in the celebration of this holy Sacrament, we might be moved, by what is there done, at once to call to remembrance all the circumstances of His passion, to consider Him as set forth crucified before our eyes, and to meditate on the love of Christ thus dying for us, and on the mighty benefits and advantages which have accrued to us thereby, and have our hearts affected after a suitable manner towards Him. Abp. Wake.

The sacrament of the Lord's supper, being thus instituted, was adopted by all early Christians, with very few exceptions; and no modern sect rejects it, except the Quakers, and some mysticks, who make the whole of religion to consist in contemplative love. Bp. Tomline.

29.—I will not drink henceforth &c.] The meaning is, This is the last time that this supper will be a representation of the passover. It shall hereafter take a new signification. When My kingdom, that is, My religion, is fully confirmed and established in My rising from the dead, this supper shall be the memorial of a more noble sacrifice. The passover, which was a type of the redemption to be wrought by Me, shall be fulfilled and completed by My death and resurrection. The shadow passes away, the substance takes place; and, when you eat this supper in remembrance of Me, there will I be virtually present among you: and your souls shall be nourished and refreshed by My grace, as your bodies are by the bread and wine. Bp. Porteus.

——in my Father's kingdom.] This expression seems to refer to the period after His resurrection, the kingdom or state of the Gospel, erected at His resurrection, and more completely begun at His ascension. Dr. Whitby.

30.—had sung an hymn,] The Jews usually sung after their repasts verses or pious songs. After the paschal feast, they sung from the 112th to the 119th Psalms. It is probable either that these were sung by our Lord and His disciples, or else some other hymn adapted to this particular institution. Dr. Hammond.

31.—shall be offended because of me] Meaning that they should fall away from Him, and be afraid to own Him. Dr. S. Clarke.

——for it is written,] See notes at Zech. xiii. 7.

32. But after I am risen &c.] This He said, to console and support His disciples under the approaching trial. Bp. Porteus.

34.—before the cock crow,] St. Mark's words are, "Before the cock crow twice." The Jews reckoned the first cockcrowing about midnight; the second, more properly called so, about break of day. St. Matthew's words are to be referred to the latter, which St. Mark calls the second cockcrowing. Dr. Whitby.

35.—yet will I not deny thee.] From reading these words of St. Peter, and viewing his subsequent behaviour, we learn that confidence and presumption are very unpromising signs of steadfastness and perseverance in religion. Trust in God is one thing, and trust in ourselves is another; and there is reason to think that they will differ as much in the success that attends them, as they do in the power on which they are founded. Bp. Sherlock.

36.—a place called Gethsemane,] The word means, "the place of oil-presses." This village was situated on the mount of Olives, ver. 30.

Anno DOMINI 33.

37 And he took with him Peter and the two sons of Zebedee, and began to be sorrowful and very heavy.

38 Then saith he unto them, My soul is exceeding sorrowful, even unto death: tarry ye here, and watch with me.

Anno DOMINI 33.

39 And he went a little farther, and fell on his face, and prayed, saying, O my Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass

37. —Peter and the two sons of Zebedee,] These three disciples had, at the transfiguration, seen His mortal body suddenly clothed with light as with a garment; they beheld His glory, as the glory of the only begotten; they saw the Sun of righteousness shining in its full power, and heard the voice from heaven declaring Jesus to be the beloved of the Father. They are now called upon to behold Him encompassed with the infirmities of a man, and beset by the powers of darkness, and humbled under the load of our sins; to hear the same Divine Person praying in a bitter agony, as one smitten of God in His anger, and afflicted unto death. And these are subjects on which no Christian can meditate without infinite profit and advantage. By viewing in the transfiguration of Jesus the glory of His person, and an ensample of that glory which He will bestow on His saints at the resurrection, he is armed against the pain and shame of the cross, and strengthened to undergo his portion of suffering in this world. By attending his Redeemer in the garden during His agony, he learns the intolerable punishment due to sin, and the amazing love of Him who would descend from Tabor to Gethsemane to endure it for sinners: he is prepared to take up his cross, and to be conformed to Christ in sufferings, from thence looking back to the glory which the Son of God left for a time, that He might bestow it on His beloved disciples for ever. Bp. Horne.

38. —My soul is exceeding sorrowful,] Was ever sorrow like unto His sorrow, in the day when God laid on Him the iniquity of us all? How should the serious consideration of all this make us lament and mourn, loath and abhor ourselves, and repent in dust and ashes, that we should have been the occasion of so much grief and anguish, horrour and consternation to the Son of God Himself! Bp. Beveridge.

What more lively representation can we possibly desire of our Lord's willing sufferings for our sakes, than this which the tragical scene in the garden sets before our eyes? Those tortures of body, and that exceeding sorrow and heaviness, even unto death; those agonies and earnest prayers, which extorted even drops of blood, and a most vehement importunity that the bitterness of that cup, which He was then about to drink, might, if possible, pass from Him: these are all indications of anguish and grief of heart, greater than can be expressed. By all these pangs our Lord has convinced us, at how dear a price He thought our souls worth purchasing; what obligations to love and gratitude are laid upon those for whom He endured so much; and how highly displeasing in the sight of God sin must ever be, since so heavy a load of suffering was laid by God on the Son of His love, when through His unspeakable kindness He submitted to bear the sins of others. Dean Stanhope.

Where is the wise disputer of the world, who says that pain and affliction are not evils? Bring him to Gethsemane; there shall he see a just Man and perfect, a Man whose conscience reproaches Him with no vice or folly, a Man whose life hath been piety and love, unaffected piety, disinterested love; a Man in whose ample mind are hidden all the treasures of knowledge; a Man assuredly entitled to every comfort which the consciousness of perfection, of perfect virtue, and of perfect wisdom, can bestow: he shall see this wise, this good, this perfect Man, this Man in union with Divinity, overwhelmed with grief and tribulation. Surely He bears our griefs, He carries our sorrows, He undergoes the chastisement of our peace. See His mortified looks, His troubled gestures! See the bloody sweat! strange symptoms of the unuttered pangs that rend His righteous heart. See Him prostrate on the earth in anxious supplication. Humble thyself, O vain philosophy! dismiss thy arrogant maxims: learn from this affecting spectacle a better wisdom than thine own; learn it of Him who brought it from above. Say not that affliction is not an evil: say that it is to be borne with humility, as the punishment of sin; to be endured with fortitude, as the instrument of good; to be accepted with thankfulness, as the discipline of God, whereby He trains His sons to virtue, and fits the virtuous for glory; but confess that it is that, which the most perfect natures do the most abhor; that, which it is the wisdom of man, with due submission to the dispensations of Providence, to shun. Bp. Horsley.

39. —fell on his face, and prayed,] We find our Lord resorting to prayer in His last extremity, and with an earnestness, a vehemence of devotion, proportioned to the occasion. The terms, in which the Evangelists describe His devotion on this occasion, are the strongest that could be used. As soon as He came to the place, He desired His disciples to pray. This did not content Him; this was not sufficient for the state and suffering of His mind. He parted even from them: He withdrew about a stone's cast and kneeled down. Hear how His struggle in prayer is described. Three times He came to His disciples, and returned again to prayer; thrice He kneeled down at a distance from them, repeating the same words. Being in an agony, He prayed more earnestly; drops of sweat fell from His body, as if it had been great drops of blood; yet in all this, throughout the whole scene, the constant conclusion of His prayer was, "Not My will, but Thine be done." It was the greatest occasion that ever was; and the earnestness of our Lord's prayer, the devotion of His soul, corresponded with it. Scenes of deep distress await us all. It is in vain to expect to pass through the world without falling into them. But we have in our Lord's example a model for our behaviour, in the most severe and trying of all occasions; afflicted, yet resigned; grieved and wounded, yet submissive; not insensible of our sufferings, yet increasing the ardour and fervency of our prayer in proportion to the pain and acuteness of our feelings. But whatever may be the fortune of our lives, one great extremity at least, the hour of approaching death, is certainly to be passed through. What ought then to occupy us? Prayer. Prayer, with our blessed Lord, was the refuge from the storm; almost every word He uttered during that tremendous scene was prayer: prayer the most earnest, the most urgent; repeated, continued, proceeding from the recesses of His soul; private, solitary; prayer for deliverance; prayer for strength; above all, prayer for resignation. Archdeacon Paley.

——O my Father,] Our Saviour on no occasion uttered vehement or rapturous ejaculations in His prayers. As the Lord's prayer is a model of calm devotion, so His words in the garden are unaffected expressions, of a deep indeed, but sober piety. He never appears to have been worked up into any thing like that elation, or that emotion of spirits, which is occasionally observed in most of those, to whom the name of enthusiast can in any degree be applied. Archdeacon Paley.

——if it be possible, let this cup &c.] We must remember that our Saviour, though He was the Son of God, was also the Son of man; and, as such, was subject to all the infirmities which belong to human nature. It was not to be expected from Him, as He was man, that He should shew no unwillingness to suffer, but that He should conquer that unwillingness, rest in the Divine appointments, and make God's choice His own. Our Lord's prayer therefore to be excused from His portion of suffering, was no disparagement either of His obedience to God, or of His love to man; but, in truth, a higher commendation of both. Since, notwithstanding so strong a sense of what He was about to undergo, He freely gave Himself up to sufferings, so harsh to human nature in general, so exceeding bitter to Himself in particular. The more earnest were His prayers for a release, the more meritorious was His submission. Dean Stanhope.

Our Lord utters this prayer in the anguish of His soul, but with perfect resignation to the will of the Father. The counsels from me: nevertheless not as I will, but as thou wilt.

Anno DOMINI 33.

40 And he cometh unto the disciples, and findeth them asleep, and saith unto Peter, What, could ye not watch with me one hour?

41 Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation: the spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak.

42 He went away again the second time, and prayed, saying, O my Father, if this cup may not pass away from me, except I drink it, thy will be done.

43 And he came and found them asleep again: for their eyes were heavy.

44 And he left them, and went away again, and prayed the third time, saying the same words.

45 Then cometh he to his disciples, and saith unto them, Sleep on now, and take your rest: behold, the hour is at hand, and the Son of man is betrayed into the hands of sinners.

46 Rise, let us be going: behold, he is at hand that doth betray me.

Anno DOMINI 33.

47 ¶ And [p] while he yet spake, lo, Judas, one of the twelve, came, and with him a great multitude with swords and staves, from the chief priests and elders of the people.

[p] Mark 14. 43. Luke 22. 47. John 18. 3.

48 Now he that betrayed him gave them a sign, saying, Whomsoever I shall kiss, that same is he: hold him fast.

49 And forthwith he came to Jesus, and said, Hail, master; and kissed him.

50 And Jesus said unto him, Friend, wherefore art thou come? Then came they, and laid hands on Jesus, and took him.

51 And, behold, one of them which were with Jesus stretched out his hand, and drew his sword, and struck a servant of the high priest's, and smote off his ear.

52 Then said Jesus unto him, Put up again thy sword into his place: [q] for all they that take the sword shall perish with the sword.

[q] Gen. 9. 6. Rev. 13. 10.

---

of God are founded on unerring wisdom. They cannot be reversed or changed. The awful sentence is gone forth: "without shedding of blood is no remission." Love to man, joined with a zeal for His Father's honour; these motives, which first engaged Him in the painful work of our redemption, prevail over His human feelings, and He surrenders Himself without resistance; thus verifying the ancient prediction, "He was brought as a lamb to the slaughter." Bp. Horsley.

——nevertheless not as I will, &c.] Notwithstanding our Lord's extreme agony of mind, we find that He displayed the utmost firmness and fortitude of soul, and the constant termination of His prayer was, "Not My will, but Thine be done." He submitted with the most perfect resignation to those calamities, which He felt so acutely, and deprecated so earnestly. From His example we should learn what conduct we ought to observe when distress and misery overtake us. We are not only allowed, but we are encouraged by what He did, to pour forth our petitions to the throne of Grace, for help in time of need. We are permitted to pray for the removal of our calamities with earnestness and with fervour: we may implore the Almighty that the bitter cup of affliction may pass away from us; but the conclusion must always be the same which His was, "Not as I will, but as Thou wilt." Of one thing we may be assured, that if the evils which overwhelm us are not removed, yet our supplications shall not be vain; we shall at least be enabled to bear them. And though we must not expect to have an angel sent from heaven to support us, as was done to Jesus, (Luke xxii. 43,) yet we may expect, and expect with confidence, that a more than angelick Comforter, even the Spirit of Truth, will shed His healing influence over our souls, and preserve us from sinking even under the severest trials. Bp. Porteus.

The sentiments and supplications, suitable to all human beings in a state of distress, are here expressed in a few words by Him who was the greatest example at once both of suffering and of submission. He who was "in the beginning with God, and was God," being become man, and about to be betrayed, forsaken, blasphemed, and crucified, though He could have commanded all the hosts of heaven, utters but these words, "O My Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from Me: nevertheless not as I will, but as Thou wilt." Dr. Ogden.

The former part of our Lord's petition, "If it be possible, let this cup pass from Me," is the voice of human nature, yielding to those feelings which God, who planted them in man, cannot disapprove, when duly regulated. This latter part is the voice of the same human nature, according to that principle of reason and duty, which sets bounds to our desires, checks and controuls our passions and inclinations, and represents it as a becoming and necessary act of obedience, to resign ourselves entirely to the merciful providence of God. He, who was innocence itself, did pray to be delivered from afflictions, shame, and bodily sufferings; and we, without any reflection on our virtue, may do the same. But we must always remember so to do, with that limitation and reserve, of which our blessed Master has left us so admirable a pattern. Dean Stanhope.

41. —the spirit indeed is willing, but &c.] Immediately after that our Lord had desired His disciples to watch and pray, that they might not be overcome by the severe trials that awaited them, He adds, feeling for the infirmity of human nature, "the spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak;" that is, I know your hearts are right, and your intentions good; but the weakness of your frail nature overpowers your best resolutions. Bp. Porteus. His gentle rebuke is mixed with a gracious apology for the weakness and infirmity of human nature. Dr. Hales.

45. —Sleep on now, &c.] He means, By your watching ye can shew no farther kindness or concern for Me, as I am now to be delivered into the hands of those who are emphatically styled sinners. Dr. Whitby.

48. —Whomsoever I shall kiss,] It was the custom of the Jews thus to salute each other, as a token of regard, or after a long absence, &c.; as fully appears from Luke vii. 45. Grotius.

50. —Friend, wherefore art thou come?] He seems to have put this question to Judas, not as desiring a reply, but to strike the traitor with deeper conviction of his guilt. Bp. Mann.

51. —one of them which were with Jesus] St. John only, (chap. xviii. 10,) of all the Evangelists, mentions that it was St. Peter who did this act of violence. The probable reason is, that St. Peter was dead when St. John wrote his Gospel, and was alive when the other three wrote; they therefore were unwilling to expose him to the risk of reproach or punishment, by recording his name, as a person who had opposed the magistrates in such a manner. Bp. Pearce.

52. —all they that take the sword &c.] This seems to have been a proverbial expression. Our Saviour probably meant to signify by it to His disciples, that such weapons as the sword are not those by which the Messiah's cause was to be defended. Dr. Campbell. We are not to infer from this reproof given to St. Peter,

Anno DOMINI 33.

53 Thinkest thou that I cannot now pray to my Father, and he shall presently give me more than twelve legions of angels?

54 But how then shall the scriptures be fulfilled, [r] that thus it must be?

[r] Isai. 53. 10.

55 In that same hour said Jesus to the multitudes, Are ye come out as against a thief with swords and staves for to take me? I sat daily with you teaching in the temple, and ye laid no hold on me.

[s] Lam. 4. 20.

56 But all this was done, that the [s] scriptures of the prophets might be fulfilled. Then all the disciples forsook him, and fled.

[t] Mark 14. 53. Luke 22. 54. John 18. 13.

57 ¶ [t] And they that had laid hold on Jesus led him away to Caiaphas the high priest, where the scribes and the elders were assembled.

58 But Peter followed him afar off unto the high priest's palace, and went in, and sat with the servants, to see the end.

Anno DOMINI 33.

59 Now the chief priests, and elders, and all the council, sought false witness against Jesus, to put him to death;

60 But found none: yea, though many false witnesses came, yet found they none. At the last came two false witnesses, 61 And said, This fellow said, [u] I am able to destroy the temple of God, and to build it in three days.

[u] John 2. 19.

62 And the high priest arose, and said unto him, Answerest thou nothing? what is it which these witness against thee?

63 But Jesus held his peace. And the high priest answered and said unto him, I that the use of the sword in self-defence is unlawful; but that the use of it against the magistrates and ministers of justice (which was the case in the present instance) is unlawful. It was meant also to check that propensity, which is but too strong and apparent in a large part of mankind, to have recourse to the sword on all occasions, and more particularly to restrain private persons from avenging private injuries, which they should rather leave to the magistrate or to God. In all such cases, they who take the sword unjustly and rashly, will probably, as our Saviour here forewarns them, perish with the sword; with the sword of their adversary, or of the magistrate. This denunciation may also allude to the Jews who now seized on Jesus; and may be meant to intimate to His disciples, that it was perfectly needless for them to draw their swords on these miscreants, since they would all perish at the seige and capture of Jerusalem by the sword of the Romans. Bp. Porteus.

---

53. — twelve legions of angels?] The Roman legion consisted of about six thousand men. Our Saviour seems to mention twelve, in allusion to His twelve Apostles, who were now about to forsake Him. Bp. Pearce.

54. But how then shall the scriptures &c.] If it had been the intention of Providence to protect Jesus and His religion by force, there is no doubt but a host of angels might have been sent to defend Him, as one was actually sent to comfort Him. But this would have defeated the very purpose for which He came into the world; which was, that He should "make His soul an offering for sin," Isai. liii. 10. The Prophets foretold, more particularly Isaiah and Daniel, that He should do so. And, besides this, nothing could be more abhorrent from the spirit of His religion, than force, violence, and bloodshed. These instruments of destruction He left to fanaticks and impostors. The only weapons He made use of were of a different nature; the sword of the Spirit, the shield of faith, and the armour of righteousness. Bp. Porteus.

56. But all this was done, &c.] That is, all these things were foreseen by the providence of God, and have a visible tendency to prove the truth of the prophecies concerning My death. Bp. Mann.

—— that the scriptures — might be fulfilled.] As the various events which befell our heavenly Redeemer while on earth are said to have come to pass, "that the Scriptures might be fulfilled;" so on the other hand those Scriptures were therefore written, and the things recorded in them were done, because the supreme Wisdom had foreordained the events that should correspond to them. The services under the Mosaick law, and before it, were but "a shadow of good things to come." The Redeemer's death was the whole meaning of every sacrifice in all ages; and when at last, in the fulness of time, He was offered upon the cross, He was "the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world." Dr. Ogden.

—— forsook him, and fled.] Here we have the exact completion of that prophecy which He had just before delivered, that all His disciples should be offended because of Him; that is, should desert Him, that very night. And, that this prediction was so accomplished, is clear beyond all controversy, because it was an event which the disciples would for their own credit gladly have suppressed, if they durst. By recording this event, they recorded their own weakness and pusillanimity. And we may be perfectly assured that they would not invent a falsehood, on purpose to perpetuate their own disgrace. We have therefore in this incident a demonstrative proof that our Lord's prophecy was actually fulfilled, and that the Evangelists were men of the strictest veracity and integrity, who were determined to sacrifice every thing, even their own reputation, to the sacred cause of truth. Bp. Porteus.

What became of the panick-struck Apostles, we are not informed by these most candid and impartial of all historians, the Evangelists, recording their own disgrace: two only of the number, St. John and St. Peter, returned to see the event, ver. 58; John xviii. 15. Dr. Hales.

59. — sought false witness] Sought for some testimony which might affect His life; and no such testimony could be given without being false. Bp. Pearce. There was no difficulty in finding out and suborning false witnesses in abundance, who were perfectly well disposed to conform to their wishes; but they found for a long time none whose evidence came up to the point they aimed at, that of charging Him with a capital crime by such evidence as would induce the Roman governour to ratify their sentence. Bp. Porteus.

60. — yet found they none.] None which amounted to a capital charge. Bp. Pearce.

61. — I am able to destroy &c.] Our Saviour meant, not the material fabrick of the temple, (John ii. 21,) but the frame of His bodily constitution; which, though they might destroy it by putting Him to death, would nevertheless be restored to life again in three days. But, as He used a figurative expression, the Jews made this malicious and perverse application of it in the literal sense. Bp. Mann. To speak disrespectfully of, or to prophecy against, the temple, was considered by the Jews to be blasphemy, and, of course, a capital offence. Bp. Porteus.

It is observable, that, although St. Matthew relates the charge, upon which our Lord was condemned, to be a threat of destroying the temple, yet he does not inform us upon what circumstance the calumny was founded. This information is afforded us by St. John in the early part of his history, John ii. 18—22. Now, as there is not the least appearance of care or design in St. John, to make his narrative tally with those of the other Evangelists, we are furnished by this casual agreement with a striking incidental proof of the veracity of the two historians. Archdeacon Paley.

63. But Jesus held his peace.] He disdained to make any adjure thee by the living God, that thou tell us whether thou be the Christ, the Son of God.

Anno DOMINI 33.

64 Jesus saith unto him, Thou hast said: nevertheless I say unto you, [x] Hereafter shall ye see the Son of man sitting on the right hand of power, and coming in the clouds of heaven.

[x] Chap. 16. 27. 1 Thess. 4. 16. Rom. 14. 10.

65 Then the high priest rent his clothes, saying, He hath spoken blasphemy; what further need have we of witnesses? behold, now ye have heard his blasphemy.

66 What think ye? They answered and said, He is guilty of death.

[y] Isai. 50. 6.

67 [y] Then did they spit in his face, and buffeted him; and others smote him with

‖ Or, rods.

‖ the palms of their hands,

[z] Mark 14. 66. Luke 22. 55. John 18. 25.

68 Saying, Prophesy unto us, thou Christ, Who is he that smote thee?

69 ¶ [z] Now Peter sat without in the palace: and a damsel came unto him, saying, Thou also wast with Jesus of Galilee.

Anno DOMINI 33.

70 But he denied before them all, saying, I know not what thou sayest.

71 And when he was gone out into the porch, another maid saw him, and said unto them that were there, This fellow was also with Jesus of Nazareth.

72 And again he denied with an oath, I do not know the man.

73 And after a while came unto him they that stood by, and said to Peter, Surely thou also art one of them; for thy speech bewrayeth thee.

74 Then began he to curse and to swear, saying, I know not the man. And immediately the cock crew.

75 And Peter remembered the word of Jesus, which said unto him, Before the cock crow, thou shalt deny me thrice. And he went out, and wept bitterly.

---

answer to such unfounded and contemptible accusations. Bp. Porteus.

—— I adjure thee by the living God,] I require thee to declare upon oath. It was the custom of the Jews thus to adjure a person, wishing execrations upon him if he did not speak and answer truly. This was considered as imposing the obligation of an oath on the person adjured; and therefore Christ, though before He had held His peace, yet being now adjured, thought Himself bound to answer. Dr. Hammond. As our Saviour, when examined in this manner, thought fit to answer, His example most certainly justifies His followers in taking an oath when required by lawful authority. Bp. Mann.

64. — Thou hast said:] Thou hast said what is true, I am the Messiah, the Christ, the Son of God: for all these were synonymous terms among the Jews. Bp. Porteus.

—— nevertheless &c.] Nevertheless, ye shall shortly see a convincing evidence of it, in that wonderful and unparalleled destruction which I shall send upon the Jewish nation. Dr. S. Clarke. "On the right hand of power" means, "at the right hand of God the Father," who is sometimes called "power" by the Jews. Dr. Hammond. Also "to come in the clouds of heaven," was looked upon by the Jews as a certain indication of their Messiah. The expression here refers to Dan. vii. 13. Dr. Whitby.

65. — rent his clothes,] As a mark of horrour and indignation. Bp. Porteus.

66. — He is guilty of death.] His crime subjects Him, by the law of Moses, to the punishment of death. Bp. Mann.

67. Then did they spit &c.] Such were the indignities offered to the Lord of all by His own infatuated creatures; and, although He could with one word have laid them prostrate at His feet, yet He bore all these insults without a single murmur or complaint, and never once spake unadvisedly with His lips. "Though He was reviled, He reviled not again; though He suffered, He threatened not," 1 Pet. ii. 23. Bp. Porteus.

Such were the injuries and indignities which the meek and lowly Jesus bore without a murmur, thus fulfilling the prophecies of Isaiah, chap. l. 5, 6; liii. 4—8. Dr. Hales.

68. — Prophesy unto us,] He was at this time blindfolded, and His face covered, Mark xiv. 65; Luke xxii. 64; they desire Him to declare, without seeing, who it was that smote Him. Bp. Pearce.

69. — in the palace:] In the courtyard or common hall, appointed for the lower sort of people. Bp. Mann.

73. — thy speech bewrayeth thee.] His accent and dialect discovered him to be a Galilean, as all the Apostles were. Bp. Mann.

75. — And he went out, and wept bitterly.] The reflections, that crowd upon the mind from this most affecting incident of St. Peter's denial of his Master, are various and important. This event should first be well remarked, as it affords a clear and striking accomplishment of our Saviour's prediction, that before the cock crew, St. Peter should deny Him thrice; and, next, as it affords a melancholy proof of the infirmity of human nature, the weakness of our best resolutions when we are left to ourselves, and the extreme danger of too much confiding in our own strength. That St. Peter was most warmly attached to Jesus, that his intentions were upright, and his professions at the moment sincere, there can be no doubt. But his temper was too hot, and his confidence in himself too great. When our Lord told him, and all the other Apostles, that they would desert Him that night, St. Peter was the first to say to Him, "Though all men shall be offended because of Thee, yet will I never be offended." And when Jesus again assured him, that before the cock crew he should deny Him thrice, St. Peter insisted with still greater vehemence on his unshaken fidelity, and declared, "that though he should die with Him, yet would he not deny Him." Yet deny Him he did, with execrations and oaths; and left a memorable lesson, even to the best of men, not to entertain too high an opinion of their own constancy and firmness in the hour of temptation. "Let him that thinketh he standeth, take heed lest he fall," 1 Cor. x. 12.

And hence we see the wisdom and the necessity of looking beyond ourselves, of looking up to Heaven for support and assistance in the discharge of our duty. "Trust then in the Lord," as the wise king advises, Prov. iii. 5, 6, "with all thine heart, and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge Him, and He shall direct thy paths." Bp. Porteus. See further note at Mark xiv. 72.

The sudden repentance of St. Peter is no less remarkable and surprising than his fall. While he was even abjuring his Lord with oaths and imprecations, one pitying look of his now doubly suffering Master, mingled with regret, pierced him through, and melted him into tears of contrition and godly sorrow, that worketh repentance. His fall furnishes a melancholy instance of natural infirmity, even in the best of men, who presume on their own strength and sufficiency to resist temptation, while His speedy rising again sets before us an encouraging example of the invigorating power of Divine grace triumphing over the tempter. Dr. Hales.

There can be no stronger proof of the candour and humility of the sacred writers, than is afforded by the manner in which they speak of their own characters, and their own faults and weaknesses. The crime of St. Peter in denying his Lord, and that

Anno DOMINI 33.

CHAP. XXVII.

1 Christ is delivered bound to Pilate. 3 Judas hangeth himself. 19 Pilate, admonished of his wife, 24 washeth his hands: 26 and looseth Barabbas. 29 Christ is crowned with thorns, 34 crucified, 40 reviled, 50 dieth, and is buried: 66 his sepulchre is sealed, and watched.

[a] Mark 15. 1. Luke 22. 66. John 18. 28.

WHEN the morning was come, [a] all the chief priests and elders of the people took counsel against Jesus to put him to death:

2 And when they had bound him, they led him away, and delivered him to Pontius Pilate the governor.

3 ¶ Then Judas, which had betrayed him, when he saw that he was condemned, repented himself, and brought again the thirty pieces of silver to the chief priests and elders,

Anno DOMINI 33.

4 Saying, I have sinned in that I have betrayed the innocent blood. And they said, What is that to us? see thou to that.

5 And he cast down the pieces of silver in the temple, [b] and departed, and went and hanged himself.

[b] Acts 1. 18.

6 And the chief priests took the silver pieces, and said, It is not lawful for to put of St. Paul in his bitter persecution of the church, are not suppressed, though their reputation must have been deemed so essential to the Christian cause, and though their transitory, but great, offences were followed by a whole life of penitence. Thus, throughout their writings, all is open and undisguised; no secret is made of the names or transgressions of any of the Apostles; the slowness of their understandings, their prejudices and bigotry, their temporal views and contentions for power, their desertions of their Divine Master in the hour of distress, the accidental differences which occurred between them in the course of their ministry, are all fully and plainly related. Dr. Graves.

---

Chap. XXVII. ver. 1. —took counsel against Jesus &c.] It was related in the last chapter, that the chief priests and elders had, in their summary way, without the shadow of justice, without any consistent evidence, decided the fate of Jesus, and pronounced Him guilty of death. Their next care was, how to get this sentence confirmed and carried into execution; for under the Roman government, they had not at this time the power of life and death; though they could try and condemn a criminal, they could not execute him without a warrant from the Roman governour: they accordingly determined to carry Him before Pilate, the Roman procurator of Judea at that time. But then, in order to ensure success in that quarter, it was necessary to give their accusations against Jesus such a shape and colour, as should prevail upon the governour to put Him to death. For this purpose, they found it expedient to change their ground, for they had condemned Him for blasphemy, which they knew would have little weight with the Roman governour. They therefore resolved to bring Him before Pilate as a state prisoner; and to charge Him with treasonable and seditious practices, with setting Himself up as a King in opposition to Cesar, and persuading the people not to pay tribute to that prince. Bp. Porteus.

In all this we observe a remarkable display of a particular providence. It had been foretold, that the Messiah should be crucified: but this could never have happened, if He had died by the hands of the Jews, or for any offence against their law; for crucifixion was a mode of punishment customary with the Romans, but not with the Jews. Dean Stanhope.

2. —and delivered him to Pontius Pilate] Pontius Pilate had been appointed procurator of Judea about six years before this by Tiberius Cesar, the Roman emperour. Dr. Hales. After governing Judea for ten years, he was deprived of his office on account of his malpractices, was involved in various calamities, and died by his own hands at Vienne in Gaul, the place of his banishment. Abp. Newcome.

——the governour.] He is probably so called, because the title of procurator was less known, and because Pilate exercised the functions of a governour in deciding criminal causes, as indeed it was customary for the procurators to do in the smaller provinces of the Roman empire. Beausobre.

3. —repented himself,] Judas did not become a true and sincere penitent for his crime; but, now finding matters grown to a desperate height, and seeing no probable means of escape for Jesus from the malice of the Jews, he seems to have recollected the predictions of our Lord concerning the dreadful vengeance, which would overtake the person who had betrayed Him to death. This and many other dreadful reflections, working together with all that confusion which fear and guilt usually create, appear to have made up the concern and sorrow which he now felt. Dean Stanhope.

4. —I have sinned in that I have betrayed the innocent blood.] We should well observe how striking a proof is afforded, by this testimony of Judas, of the perfect innocence and integrity of our Lord's character, and of the truth of His pretensions. If there had been any thing reprehensible in the former, or any deceit in the latter, it must have been known to Judas, who, being one of the twelve constant companions of His ministry, was witness to every thing He said or did. And, by making a discovery on this subject, he would not only have justified his own treachery, but would have highly gratified the chief priests and rulers. Instead, however, of producing any evidence against Jesus, Judas here gives a voluntary and most decisive evidence in His favour. This testimony of Judas is invaluable, because it is the testimony of an unwilling witness; the testimony, not of a friend, but of an enemy; the testimony, not of one desirous to favour and befriend the accused, but of one who had actually betrayed Him. After such evidence as this, it seems impossible for any ingenuous mind either to question the reality of our Saviour's miracles, or the divinity to which He laid claim; because, as Judas declared Him innocent, He must have been, what He assumed to be, the Son of God, and His religion the word of God. Bp. Porteus.

——What is that to us?] This answer of the chief priests was perfectly natural for men of their character. Men who had any feeling, any sentiments of common humanity, or even of common justice, would naturally have paused under these circumstances; would have examined Judas, and investigated the grounds of his repentance. But this was very far from entering into their plan. With the guilt or innocence of Jesus they did not concern themselves. All they wanted was the destruction of a Man whom they hated and feared, and whose life and doctrine were a standing reproach to them. This was their sole object; as to the mercy or the justice of the case, they were perfectly indifferent. Bp. Porteus.

5. —went and hanged himself.] His end was still more dreadful; for he fell headlong, the rope probably giving way, and "his bowels gushed out," Acts i. 18. Bp. Mann. Thus crowning with suicide the murder of his Master and his Friend, rejecting his compassionate Saviour, and plunging his own soul into perdition. Dr. Hales.

6. —It is not lawful—into the treasury, &c.] Meaning the treasury of the temple. How astonishing is the inconsistence of human nature, and how strange the contrivances, by which even the most abandoned of men endeavour to satisfy their minds and quiet their apprehensions! these very men, who had no scruple at all in murdering an innocent person, yet had wonderful qualms of conscience about putting into the treasury the money which they themselves had given as "the price of blood." Bp. Porteus.

Anno DOMINI 33.

them into the treasury, because it is the price of blood.

7 And they took counsel, and bought with them the potter's field, to bury strangers in.

[c] Acts 1. 19.

8 Wherefore that field was called, [c] The field of blood, unto this day.

9 Then was fulfilled that which was spoken by Jeremy the prophet, saying, [d] And they took the thirty pieces of silver, the price of him that was valued, ‖ whom they of the children of Israel did value;

[d] Zech. 11. 12.

‖ Or, whom they bought of the children of Israel.

10 And gave them for the potter's field, as the Lord appointed me.

11 And Jesus stood before the governor: and the governor asked him, saying, Art thou the King of the Jews? And Jesus said unto him, Thou sayest.

12 And when he was accused of the chief priests and elders, he answered nothing.

13 Then said Pilate unto him, Hearest thou not how many things they witness against thee?

14 And he answered him to never a word; insomuch that the governor marvelled greatly.

Anno DOMINI 33.

15 [e] Now at that feast the governor was wont to release unto the people a prisoner, whom they would.

[e] Luke 23. 17.

16 And they had then a notable prisoner, called Barabbas.

17 Therefore when they were gathered together, Pilate said unto them, Whom will ye that I release unto you? Barabbas, or Jesus which is called Christ?

18 For he knew that for envy they had delivered him.

19 ¶ When he was set down on the judgment seat, his wife sent unto him, saying, Have thou nothing to do with that just man: for I have suffered many things this day in a dream because of him.

[f] John 18. 40. Acts 3. 14.

20 [f] But the chief priests and elders persuaded the multitude that they should ask Barabbas, and destroy Jesus.

21 The governor answered and said unto them, Whether of the twain will ye that I release unto you? They said, Barabbas.

22 Pilate saith unto them, What shall I do then with Jesus which is called Christ? They all say unto him, Let him be crucified.

—— the price of blood.] It was deemed unlawful by the Jews, and from them by the first Christians, that executioners should make any offerings, and that alms should be received from them: thus, by analogy, money by which life was bought was not to be put into the treasury. Dr. Hammond.

7. — the potter's field,] This field is now shewn beyond the valley of Hinnom; from the veneration it has obtained among Christians, it is called the Holy Field. Dr. Wells.

—— strangers] Probably Jews from distant parts, who died in Jerusalem. Grotius.

9. — by Jeremy the prophet,] The words here quoted are found, not in Jeremiah, but in Zechariah, at chap. xi. 12. Among other ways of accounting for this, it has been conjectured, that the Evangelist wrote only "the Prophet," without naming him, and that some person at an early period inserted, by mistake, in his manuscript, the name of Jeremiah, instead of Zechariah, which mistake afterwards crept into the text. Bp. Pearce.

11. And Jesus] The passage respecting Judas, ver. 3—10, comes in by way of a parenthesis; and the relation is here continued from ver. 2. Bp. Pearce.

—— stood before the governor:] Little did that governour imagine who it was that then stood before him. Little did he suspect that he must himself one day stand before the tribunal of that very Person whom he was then going to judge as a criminal. Bp. Porteus.

—— Thou sayest.] That is, I am what thou sayest.

14. — he answered him to never a word;] Our Lord's conduct on this occasion was truly dignified. When He was called upon to acknowledge what was really true, He gave a direct answer both to the chief priests and to Pilate. He acknowledged that He was the Christ, the Son of God, the King of the Jews: but false and frivolous and unjust accusations He treated, as they deserved, with profound and contemptuous silence. Bp. Porteus.

15. — was wont to release unto the people &c.] This seems not to have been the custom of the Jews, but introduced by the Roman governour as an act of grace, for the purpose of gaining popularity. The custom obtained among some other nations. Dr. Hammond.

16. — a notable prisoner, called Barabbas.] One who was a robber, and was imprisoned for having been concerned in an insurrection or sedition in the city, in which murder had been committed, Mark xv. 7; Luke xxiii. 19; John xviii. 40. Bp. Pearce.

17. — Whom will ye that I release] Pilate appears to have seen clearly that the whole accusation against Jesus was malicious and groundless, and accordingly made several efforts to save Him. As St. Luke relates, (chap. xxiii. 6, 7,) he sent him to Herod, in order to save himself the pain of condemning an innocent man; but, on Herod's sending Him back, Pilate was not discouraged, but had recourse to the new expedient of offering to release Jesus, as the customary act of grace on the feast day. Bp. Porteus.

18. — for envy] Through the envy and malice of the chief priests and scribes, who were enraged at the esteem which His works and doctrines had gained Him among the people. Dr. S. Clarke.

20. — persuaded the multitude] Had the people been left to their own unbiassed feeling, it is probable they would not have hesitated one moment in their choice: but it appears they were under the influence of leaders more wicked than themselves. This affords an awful warning to the lower orders of the people, to beware of giving themselves up, as they too frequently do, to the direction of artful and profligate leaders, who abuse their simplicity and credulity to the worst purposes. The Jewish people seem to have been naturally attached to Jesus. They were astonished at His miracles, they were charmed with His discourses; and their diseases and infirmities were relieved by His omnipotent benevolence. But, notwithstanding all this, by the dexterous management of their chief priests and elders, their admiration of Jesus was converted, in a moment, into the most rancorous hatred; they were persuaded to ask the life of a murderer in preference to His, and to demand the destruction of One who had never offended, whose innocence was as clear as the day, and was repeatedly acknowledged and strongly urged upon them, by the very judge who had tried Him. Bp. Porteus.

Anno DOMINI 33.

23 And the governor said, Why, what evil hath he done? But they cried out the more, saying, Let him be crucified.

24 ¶ When Pilate saw that he could prevail nothing, but that rather a tumult was made, he took water, and washed his hands before the multitude, saying, I am innocent of the blood of this just person: see ye to it.

25 Then answered all the people, and said, His blood be on us, and on our children.

26 ¶ Then released he Barabbas unto them: and when he had scourged Jesus, he delivered him to be crucified.

[g] John 19. 1. [i] Or, governor's house.

27 [g] Then the soldiers of the governor took Jesus into the ‖ common hall, and gathered unto him the whole band of soldiers.

28 And they stripped him, and put on him a scarlet robe. Anno DOMINI 33.

29 ¶ And when they had platted a crown of thorns, they put it upon his head, and a reed in his right hand: and they bowed the knee before him, and mocked him, saying, Hail, king of the Jews!

30 And they spit upon him, and took the reed, and smote him on the head.

31 And after that they had mocked him, they took the robe off from him, and put his own raiment on him, and led him away to crucify him.

32 [h] And as they came out, they found a man of Cyrene, Simon by name: him they compelled to bear his cross. [h] Mark 15. 21. Luke 23. 26.

33 [i] And when they were come unto a place called Golgotha, that is to say, a place of a skull, [i] John 19. 17.

---

24. — and washed his hands] This was an ancient custom, among the Jews at least, of declaring innocence. See Deut. xxi. 6, 7, and Ps. xxvi. 6. Bp. Pearce. Pilate, having basely shrunk from his duty, and, contrary to his own conviction, condemned an innocent man, endeavoured to clear himself from this guilt, and to satisfy his conscience, by the vain ceremony of washing his hands before the multitude; but not so could he wash away the foul and indelible stain of murder from his soul. Still he hoped to transfer it to the accomplices of his crime. Bp. Porteus.

The extreme reluctance of Pilate to sentence Christ, considering his merciless character, (see further the account given by St. John,) is signally remarkable; and, still more, his repeated protestations of the innocence of his prisoner, although he had generally made no scruple of confounding the innocent with the guilty. But he was unquestionably influenced by the overruling providence of God, to make the righteousness of His Son appear in the clearest light, by the fullest, the most authentick, and the most publick evidence; 1st, by the testimony even of His judges, Pilate and Herod; 2d, by the message of Pilate's wife, delivered to him on the tribunal; 3d, by the testimony of the traitor Judas, who hanged himself in despair for betraying the innocent blood; 4th, by the testimony of the Roman centurion and guard, at His crucifixion, to His divinity and righteousness; and 5th, of His fellow-sufferer on the cross. Never was innocence attested like unto His. Dr. Hales.

25. — His blood be on us, &c.] A most fatal imprecation this, and most dreadfully fulfilled upon them at the siege of Jerusalem, when the vengeance of Heaven overtook them with a fury unexampled in the history of the world; when they were at once exposed to the horrours of famine, of sedition, of assassination, and the sword of the Romans. Bp. Porteus.

26. — when he had scourged Jesus,] It was the custom of the Romans to scourge those who were destined for crucifixion, as appears from several passages in their writings. Bp. Pearce.

—— he delivered him to be crucified.] And now our blessed Lord is condemned; He is condemned by those who could not have pronounced any sentence against Him, had not He Himself at the same time vouchsafed to them breath to do so; He is condemned to die for us, that we might not be condemned to eternal death by Him; He is condemned to die the death, the shameful, the painful, the accursed death on the cross, and all to redeem us from shame, from pain, and from all the curses of the law. Bp. Beveridge.

Thus the judge himself, who was thoroughly convinced of the innocence of his prisoner, and actually used every means in his power to preserve Him, had not the honesty and the courage to protect Him effectually; and his conduct affords a most dreadful proof what publick justice was among the most enlightened, and, as they themselves boasted, the most virtuous people in the ancient heathen world. We see a Roman governour sent to dispense justice in a Roman province, and invested with full powers to save or to destroy; we see him with a prisoner before him in whom he repeatedly declared he could find no fault; and yet, after a few ineffectual struggles with his own conscience, he delivers up that prisoner, not merely to death, but to the most horrible and excruciating torments. The fact is, he was afraid of the people, he was afraid of Cesar; and, when the clamorous multitude cried out to him, "If thou let this man go, thou art not Cesar's friend," all his firmness and resolution at once forsook him. He shrunk from the dangers that threatened him, and sacrificed his conscience and duty to the menaces of a mob, and the dread of sovereign power. Bp. Porteus.

28, 29. — a scarlet robe. — a crown of thorns, &c.] They clothed Him in these pretended ensigns of royalty, in derision of His title of King of the Jews. Dr. Whitby. We hasten over this scene of insolence and outrage with averted eyes, and can scarcely believe that any thing in the shape of man could have proceeded to this extreme of wanton barbarity. What a difference is there between this treatment of the innocent and injured Jesus, and that of the vilest criminal in our own country, previous to His execution: and how strongly does this mark the difference between the spirit of Paganism and the spirit of Christianity. Bp. Porteus. What inhuman wretches must these have been, thus to revel and sport with a condemned man; to triumph in His death, and preface it with so much insult and derision. But God was pleased to permit that these persons should so behave themselves, in order to fill up the measure of their iniquities, and the bitterness of that cup, which His Son was appointed to drink. It was requisite, to shew God's utter detestation of sin, that He who had no sin of His own, and took our's upon Him, must suffer all that was in any way due to it, all that could be consistent with His nature to suffer. Stackhouse.

32. — as they came out,] As they came out of the city. It was the Jewish (as also the Roman) custom to execute offenders without the city or the camp, Heb. xiii. 12; Numb. xv. 35; 1 Kings xxi. 13. Grotius.

—— him they compelled to bear his cross.] It was the custom that the person who was to be crucified should bear his own cross. This it appears that our Saviour for some time did, John xix. 17; Heb. xii. 2; but, the burden being found too great for Him, they compel this Simon to bear it either for Him, or together with Him. Dr. Whitby.

33. — a place called Golgotha,] The hill, on which our Saviour was crucified, is thought to have been called Golgotha in Hebrew, and Calvary in Latin, from its somewhat resembling the shape of a human skull. Being appropriated to the execution of malefactors, it was shut out of the city as a polluted place. But, since it was made the altar on which was offered up the precious and

Anno DOMINI 33.

34 ¶ They gave him vinegar to drink mingled with gall: and when he had tasted thereof, he would not drink.

35 And they crucified him, and parted his garments, casting lots: that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophet, [k] They parted my garments among them, and upon my vesture did they cast lots.

[k] Ps. 22. 18.

36 And sitting down they watched him there;

37 And set up over his head his accusation written, THIS IS JESUS THE KING OF THE JEWS.

38 Then were there two thieves crucified with him, one on the right hand, and another on the left.

39 ¶ And they that passed by reviled him, wagging their heads,

40 And saying, Thou that destroyest the temple, and buildest it in three days, save thyself. If thou be the Son of God, come down from the cross.

Anno DOMINI 33.

41 Likewise also the chief priests mocking him, with the scribes and elders, said,

42 He saved others; himself he cannot save. If he be the King of Israel, let him now come down from the cross, and we will believe him.

43 [l] He trusted in God; let him deliver him now, if he will have him: for he said, I am the Son of God.

[l] Ps. 22. 8. Wis. 2. 16, 17, 18.

44 The thieves also, which were crucified with him, cast the same in his teeth.

45 Now from the sixth hour there was darkness over all the land unto the ninth hour.

46 And about the ninth hour Jesus cried with a loud voice, saying, Eli, Eli, lama sabachthani? that is to say, [m] My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?

[m] Ps. 22. 1.

---

all-sufficient sacrifice for the sins of the whole world, it has recovered itself from that infamy; and being resorted to by Christians with great devotion, it has drawn the city round about it, and now stands in the midst of Jerusalem, a great part of the hill of Sion being shut out of the walls, to make room for the admission of mount Calvary. Dr. Wells.

34. — vinegar — mingled with gall:] St. Mark says, (chap. xv. 23,) "they gave Him wine mingled with myrrh;" the two accounts agree, for by the term translated vinegar is sometimes meant a strongly fermented wine, (see note at Ruth ii. 14;) and the word translated gall signifies any bitter infusion. This potion was probably administered to the condemned, in order to produce stupefaction, and take away the sense of pain. Dr. Whitby.

—— and when he had tasted thereof, he would not drink.] Our Saviour refused to drink, as He needed none of those arts to diminish the sense of pain, and as He wished to shew His patience and resignation to suffering. Dr. Whitby. Also, presence of mind was necessary to enable Him to accomplish the prophecies relating to His death. On this latter account He chose to taste, though He refused to drink. See Ps. lxix. 21.

35. And they crucified him,] Crucifixion was a death, deemed so scandalous and full of shame, that it was made peculiar to the meanest condition and the most heinous offences, and inflicted as the last mark of detestation on robbers, murderers, and the vilest of the people. Herein then we perceive the unspeakable condescension of our blessed Saviour, who not only vouchsafed to die, but disdained not the most ignominious death, that the malice and scorn of His enemies could inflict; to take upon Him the form of the meanest servant, nay, of the basest criminal. That "He became obedient unto death," was a most astonishing instance of humility; but to stoop so very low as the death of the cross, this was to "make Himself of no reputation" indeed. Dean Stanhope.

The judgment hall, and all the scenes of our Lord's condemnation and execution, were so many theatres, on which He acted, in the full eye of the world, divers parts of the sublimest virtue. He there expressed His insuperable constancy in attesting truth and maintaining a good conscience, His meekness in calmly enduring the greatest wrongs, His patience in contentedly submitting to the saddest adversities; His entire resignation to the will and providence of God, His peaceful submission to the law and power of man; His admirable charity in pitying, in excusing, in obliging those by His good wishes and earnest prayers, who in a manner so injurious, so despiteful, so cruel, persecuted Him; yea, in gladly suffering all this from their hands for their salvation; His unmoveable faith in God, and unalterable love towards Him, under so fierce a trial, so dreadful a temptation. All these excellent virtues and graces, by the matter being thus ordered, in a degree most eminent, and in a manner most conspicuous, were demonstrated, to the praise of God's name, and the commendation of His truth, for the settlement of our faith and hope, for an instruction and encouragement to us, of good practice in those highest instances of virtue. Dr. I. Barrow.

—— by the prophet,] By David. See Ps. xxii. 18.

37. — his accusation written,] This was according to the custom of the Romans, with whom it was usual to cause the title of the crimes, for which a malefactor was condemned, to be either carried before him or affixed to the instrument of his punishment. Dr. Whitby.

38. Then were there two thieves &c.] This was done with the view of adding to the ignominy of our Saviour's sufferings. But this act of malignity, like many other instances of the same nature, answered a purpose little intended by the authors of it. It was the completion of a prophecy of Isaiah, in which, alluding to this very transaction, he says of the Messiah, "He was numbered with the transgressors." Bp. Porteus. See Mark xv. 28.

40. — Thou that destroyest] Thou that saidst Thou wast able to destroy, &c. See note at chap. xxvi. 61. Bp. Pearce.

44. The thieves also,] See Luke xxiii. 39, and note there.

45. — there was darkness] A miraculous darkness from the sixth hour till the ninth; that is, from noon till three o'clock, according to our reckoning. Bp. Mann. This obscuration of the sun must have been preternatural, from its extent and duration, and from the opposition of the moon to the sun, the passover being at the time of the full moon. Dr. Hales.

46. — My God, my God, &c.] We are not to imagine, that Jesus meant by these words to express any distrust of God's favour and kindness towards Him, or any apprehension that the light of His countenance was withdrawn from Him. This was impossible. He well knew that under that load of affliction which, for the salvation of mankind, He voluntarily took upon Himself, He was still His heavenly Father's "beloved Son, in whom He was well pleased." These expressions therefore of seeming despondence, were nothing more than the natural and almost unavoidable effusions of a mind tortured with the acutest pain; of which many similar instances occur in the Psalms. Indeed these words themselves are the beginning of the twenty-second Psalm; and by citing them He shewed that He meant to apply the whole of that Psalm to Himself. And this very Psalm, although in the out set it breathes an air of dejection and complaint, yet ends in expressing the firmest trust in the mercy and protection

Anno DOMINI 33.

47 Some of them that stood there, when they heard that, said, This man calleth for Elias.

48 And straightway one of them ran, and took a spunge, [n] and filled it with vinegar, and put it on a reed, and gave him to drink.

[n] Ps. 69. 21.

49 The rest said, Let be, let us see whether Elias will come to save him.

50 ¶ Jesus, when he had cried again with a loud voice, yielded up the ghost.

51 And, behold, the veil of the temple was rent in twain from the top to the bottom; and the earth did quake, and the rocks rent;

Anno DOMINI 33.

52 And the graves were opened; and many bodies of the saints which slept arose,

53 And came out of the graves after his resurrection, and went into the holy city, and appeared unto many.

54 Now when the centurion, and they that were with him, watching Jesus, saw the earthquake, and those things that were done, they feared greatly, saying, Truly this was the Son of God.

55 And many women were there behold-of God. And our Lord Himself, when He breathed His last, committed Himself with boundless confidence to the care of the Almighty; "Father, into Thy hands I commend My spirit." Bp. Porteus.

---

47. — calleth for Elias.] This is a taunt of the by-standers, pretending to mistake "Eli," "My God," for the name of Elias. Rosenmüller.

48. And straightway &c.] They perceived by His speaking that He was still alive; and Jesus had said, (John xix. 28,) "I thirst." Bp. Pearce. Vinegar had been for many ages the common drink of the lower people in the East, (Ruth ii. 14;) and, as it was at that time the beverage of the Roman soldiers, it was probably offered to Christ by one of them more humane than the rest. Bp. Mann.

50. — yielded up the ghost.] Such was the death to which the unrelenting malice of His enemies consigned the meek and holy Jesus. In the detail of all the minute occurrences concerning our Saviour's passion, though brought about by natural and common causes, the ancient prophecies were remarkably fulfilled. It was not till every tittle was fulfilled, that the patient Son of God, as if then and not before at liberty to depart, said, "It is finished!" bowed His anointed head, and rendered up the ghost. Wonderful catastrophe! replete with mysteries; among which the harmony of Divine providence and human liberty is not the least. Mechanical causes, governed by a single intellect, could not with more certainty have wrought the predetermined effect: independent beings could not have pursued, with greater liberty than the persons concerned in this horrid transaction, each his separate design. "It is finished!" Holy victim! Thy sufferings are finished! All is finished, that wicked men were wonderfully destined to contribute towards the general deliverance! what remains, infinite power and infinite mercy shall accomplish. The disciples, those few of them who had the courage to be present at this dismal scene, hung their heads in sorrowful despondency, and seemed to have abandoned the hope that this was He who should redeem Israel. But Israel is redeemed. The high sacrifice, appointed before the foundation of the world, typified in all the sacrifices of the law, is now slain, and is accepted. That Jesus, who, according to His own prediction, hath expired on the cross, shall, according to His own prediction, be raised again on the third day. He is raised, He is entered into glory; He is sitten down for ever at the right hand of the Majesty on high: there He pleads the merit of His blood in behalf of those crying sins that caused it to be shed. Nor does He plead in vain. The final judgment is committed to Him; and the greatest of sinners, that will but forsake their evil ways, have no reason to fear the severity of a Judge who hath Himself been touched with the feeling of our infirmities. On the other hand, let not any deceive themselves with a vain reliance on His merits, who, after all that the Son of God hath done and suffered for them, remain impenitent. The sacrifice of the cross was no less a display of the just severity than of the tender mercy of God. The authority of His government must be maintained. This rendered intercession and atonement necessary for the pardon of sin in the first instance,—the most meritorious intercession, the highest atonement. For those "who neglect so great salvation," who cannot be reclaimed by the promises and threatenings of the Gospel, by the warnings of God's wrath, by the assurance of mercy, by the contemplation of their Saviour's love; for those who cannot be reclaimed by these powerful motives from obstinate causes of wilful vice, there assuredly "remaineth no more sacrifice for sins, but a certain fearful looking for of fiery indignation," which at the last day shall burn with inextinguishable rage against those incorrigible adversaries of God and goodness. Bp. Horsley.

51. And, behold, the veil &c.] Such were the convulsions into which the whole frame of nature was thrown, when the Lord of all yielded up His life. The vail here mentioned was a curtain of rich tapestry, which separated the Holy place of the temple from the Holy of Holies. By the rending of it was probably signified the abolition of the whole Mosaick ritual, the removal of the partition between Jew and Gentile, and the admission of the latter, on the terms of the Gospel covenant, into heaven, of which the Holy of Holies was a type. Bp. Porteus.

All creatures in heaven and in earth are moved at our Saviour's passion. The sun in heaven shrinking in his light; the earth trembling under it; the very stones cleaving in sunder, as if they had sense and sympathy in it: and shall sinful men only not be moved by it, they to whom it appertained, and for whom it procured unspeakable blessings? Bp. Andrewes.

52. — many bodies of the saints &c.] According to the opinion of the Jews, when their Messiah came, there was to be a resurrection of some pious men. Dr. Whitby.

53. — went into the holy city,] The sepulchres of the Jews were always out of their cities. Abp. Newcome.

54. — the centurion,] The Roman captain, who, with a guard of soldiers, was ordered to attend the crucifixion of Jesus, and see the sentence executed. Bp. Porteus.

—— Truly this was &c.] When the centurion saw the meekness, the patience, the resignation, the firmness with which our Lord endured the most excruciating torments; when he heard Him, at one time, fervently praying for His murderers; at another, disposing with dignity and authority of a place in paradise to one of His fellow-sufferers; and at length, with that confidence which nothing but conscious virtue and conscious dignity could at such a time inspire, recommending His spirit into the hands of His heavenly Father; he could not but conclude Him to be a most extraordinary person, and something more than human. But when, moreover, he observed the astonishing events that took place when Jesus expired; the agitation into which the whole frame of nature seemed to be thrown; the supernatural darkness, the earthquake, the rending of rocks, the opening of graves; he then burst out involuntarily into that striking exclamation, "Truly this was the Son of God." Here then we have a testimony to the divine character of our Lord, which must be considered as in the highest degree impartial and incorrupt: the honest, unsolicited testimony of a plain man, a soldier and a heathen; the testimony, not of one who was prejudiced in favour of Christ and His religion, but of one, who by habit and education was probably strongly prejudiced against them. Bp. Porteus.

Anno DOMINI 33.

ing afar off, which followed Jesus from Galilee, ministering unto him:

56 Among which was Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James and Joses, and the mother of Zebedee's children.

° Mark 15. 42. Luke 23. 50. John 19. 38.

57 ° When the even was come, there came a rich man of Arimathea, named Joseph, who also himself was Jesus' disciple:

58 He went to Pilate, and begged the body of Jesus. Then Pilate commanded the body to be delivered.

59 And when Joseph had taken the body, he wrapped it in a clean linen cloth, 60 And laid it in his own new tomb, which he had hewn out in the rock: and he rolled a great stone to the door of the sepulchre, and departed.

61 And there was Mary Magdalene, and the other Mary, sitting over against the sepulchre.

Anno DOMINI 33.

62 ¶ Now the next day, that followed the day of the preparation, the chief priests and Pharisees came together unto Pilate, 63 Saying, Sir, we remember that that deceiver said, while he was yet alive, After three days I will rise again.

64 Command therefore that the sepulchre be made sure until the third day, lest his disciples come by night, and steal him away, and say unto the people, He is risen from the dead: so the last error shall be worse than the first.

65 Pilate said unto them, Ye have a watch: go your way, make it as sure as ye can.

66 So they went, and made the sepulchre sure, sealing the stone, and setting a watch.

55.—which followed Jesus] Rather, "which had followed Jesus;" that is, when He last came from Galilee up to Jerusalem. Bp. Pearce.

56.—Mary Magdalene,] Mary of Magdala: so called from her being of the town of Magdala. See Mark xvi. 9; Luke viii. 2. Respecting Magdala, see note at chap. xv. 39.

——the mother of Zebedee's children.] Named Salome, the mother of St. James and St. John, Mark xv. 40. Bp. Pearce.

57.—a rich man &c.] It is particularly mentioned that Joseph was "a rich man," in order to point out by what a singular contrivance of Providence the prophecy was fulfilled, that the Messiah should make His grave with the rich in His death, Isai. liii. 9. The completion of this was highly improbable beforehand: for, according to the Roman laws, the bodies of persons crucified were left to hang exposed in the air; and the Jews usually buried their malefactors in some neglected publick place. Dean Stanhope.

——of Arimathea,] This is supposed to be the same place where Samuel was born, called by the Hebrews Ramathaimzophim. Dr. Hammond. See note at 1 Sam. i. 19.

58.—begged the body of Jesus.] It was not lawful with the Jews to suffer their criminals to hang all night on the tree, Deut. xxi. 23. They usually buried them ignominiously; but at the request of a family, would often permit a regular funeral. Dr. Lightfoot. Joseph, it is probable, wished to do as much honour to Jesus, as he was permitted at that time, and especially to preserve His body from the ignominy of being cast out among those of common executed malefactors. Dr. S. Clarke.

60. And laid it in his own new tomb,] It was a new tomb, in which no man had before been laid; it was an excavation in a rock, and guarded by a band of sixty soldiers, so that there could be no ground of suspicion that our Lord did not truly rise. Dr. Whitby.

——hewn out in the rock:] This is agreeable to the fashion of that country, where they cut their tombs out of the solid stone. This circumstance, minute as it appears, completely obviates the absurd objection of the Jews, "that His disciples stole Him away;" since, from such a tomb as this, there was no possible way by which His body could be removed, except by the mouth or door of the cave, at which (as we are told afterwards) a guard was placed, and where a great stone was rolled. It is worthy of observation, that the Evangelists are not more particular in any thing relating to our blessed Saviour, than in the narrative of His burial. They seem to have been thus particular for the purpose of proving, beyond all possibility of doubt, those two great points of the Christian religion, the death and resurrection of Jesus. It was necessary that every possible conviction should be given to the world of these two events. If we were not well assured that He was really dead, we should not be certain that atonement was made for the sins of the world; and, if we had any ground of doubt respecting His resurrection, we could not depend on that atonement being accepted. On this account, the Holy Spirit has thought fit particularly to record His burial, in order to remove all possible suspicion, either that His body did not actually die, or that the same body did not rise again. Dean Stanhope.

62.—the next day, that followed &c.] Friday, or the sixth day of the week, being the day before the sabbath, was called "the day of the preparation," (for the sabbath,) and it was in this year the day of the passover. "The next day, that followed" it, was the sabbath day, called by St. John, (chap. xix. 31,) "an high day," because it was one of the eight days of the paschal feast. Bp. Pearce. It should be remembered, that the "next day," here mentioned, began on the evening of the Friday on which our Lord was crucified, as the Jews reckoned their days from the evening. Bp. Porteus.

63.—we remember that that deceiver said,—I will rise again.] It is material to remark this expression of our Lord's enemies; for at the very time that He predicted His resurrection, He predicted also His crucifixion, and all that He should suffer from the malice of these very men who now applied to Pilate for a guard. See Matt. xvi. 21. These men knew full well that the first part of this prediction had been accurately fulfilled through their malignity; and, instead of repenting of what they had done, they were so infatuated as to suppose, that by a guard of soldiers they could prevent the completion of the second. Bp. Watson.

66.—sealing the stone, and setting a watch.] One cannot help admiring the wisdom of Providence in so disposing events, that the extreme anxiety of these men to prevent collusion, should be the means of adding the testimony of sixty unexceptionable witnesses, (the number of the Roman soldiers on the guard,) to the truth of the resurrection, and to the establishing the reality of it beyond all power of contradiction. The circumstance of sealing the stone was a precaution of which several instances occur in ancient times; we have a particular instance in the history of Daniel, chap. vi. 17. Bp. Porteus.

This uncommon care on their part was permitted, but overruled by God, in order to furnish the strongest proofs of the miraculous resurrection of His Son; and to confute these wicked men and their calumny which they suggested to Pilate, and afterwards propagated, "that the disciples stole the body away by night," although they had used every human precaution to prevent its being taken away out of a new tomb, where there was no other corpse, and that tomb hewn out of a rock inaccessible behind, and its mouth secured by a great stone, under a seal and a guard of soldiers. In vain did they fight against God and kick against the pricks; sorely, to their own confusion and destruction. Dr. Hales.

Anno DOMINI 33.

CHAP. XXVIII.

1 Christ's resurrection is declared by an angel to the women. 9 He himself appeareth unto them. 11 The high priests give the soldiers money to say that he was stolen out of his sepulchre. 16 Christ appeareth to his disciples, 19 and sendeth them to baptize and teach all nations.

[a] Mark 16. 1. John 20. 1.

IN the [a] end of the sabbath, as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to see the sepulchre.

‖ Or, had been.

2 And, behold, there ‖ was a great earthquake: for the angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and came and rolled back the stone from the door, and sat upon it.

3 His countenance was like lightning, and his raiment white as snow:

4 And for fear of him the keepers did shake, and became as dead men.

5 And the angel answered and said unto the women, Fear not ye: for I know that ye seek Jesus, which was crucified.

6 He is not here: for he is risen, as he said. Come, see the place where the Lord lay.

7 And go quickly, and tell his disciples that he is risen from the dead; and, behold, he goeth before you into Galilee; there shall ye see him: lo, I have told you.

8 And they departed quickly from the sepulchre with fear and great joy; and did run to bring his disciples word.

Anno DOMINI 33.

9 ¶ And as they went to tell his disciples, behold, Jesus met them, saying, All hail. And they came and held him by the feet, and worshipped him.

10 Then said Jesus unto them, Be not afraid: go tell my brethren that they go into Galilee, and there shall they see me.

11 ¶ Now when they were going, behold, some of the watch came into the city, and shewed unto the chief priests all the things that were done.

12 And when they were assembled with the elders, and had taken counsel, they gave large money unto the soldiers, 13 Saying, say ye, His disciples came by night, and stole him away while we slept.

14 And if this come to the governor's ears, we will persuade him, and secure you.

15 So they took the money, and did as they were taught: and this saying is commonly reported among the Jews until this day.

16 ¶ Then the eleven disciples went away into Galilee, into a mountain where Jesus had appointed them.

17 And when they saw him, they worshipped him: but some doubted.

Chap. XXVIII. ver. 1. In the end of the sabbath,] That is, "When the sabbath was past," (see Mark xvi. 1,) which was after sunset, on the Saturday evening. "As it began to dawn," that is, "very early in the morning," (Mark xvi. 2; Luke xxiv. 1,) and "when it was yet dark," John xx. 1. Bp. Pearce.

The day of our Lord's resurrection was that on which it was before designed that He should rise. Accordingly, on this day, the sheaf of their firstfruits, by which their harvest was to be consecrated, was lifted up before God, among the Jews, Lev. xxiii. 10, to signify that Christ, our firstfruits, should on that day be raised up by God, and so become a surety to us, of our future resurrection. See Rom. xi. 16; 1 Cor. xv. 20, 23. Abp. Wake.

——the other Mary] The mother of James and Joses, mentioned at chap. xxvii. 56.

2. —the angel of the Lord descended] This angel brought with him indeed a most glorious day-spring, his brightness covering the heavens and enlightening the world: "his countenance was like lightning, and his raiment white as snow," all purity and joy and triumph and glory. Bp. Horne.

7. —tell his disciples] The disciples, after their Lord's crucifixion, appear to have entertained no hopes of His resurrection. Shocked and confounded, dismayed at finding Him condemned to the ignominious death of the cross, they forgot every thing He had said to them respecting His rising again. Most of them seem to have remained concealed during the whole time of Jesus being in the grave, and to have given themselves up to sorrow and despair. They had not even the courage or the curiosity to go to the sepulchre on the third day to see whether the promised event had taken place or not. Thus then it is perfectly clear that they were not at all disposed to be over-credulous in regard to the resurrection; their prepossessions led them the contrary way; and nothing but the most irresistible evidence would be able to convince them of a fact, which they seemed to think in the highest degree improbable. Bp. Porteus.

——into Galilee;] He had many disciples there whom He destined to be witnesses of His resurrection, and there He appeared to five hundred brethren at once, 1 Cor. xv. 6. Grotius.

9. —All hail.] An accustomed mode of salutation. Bp. Mann.

13. —His disciples came by night,] This story told by the guards carries collusion on the face of it. Men in their circumstances would not have made such an acknowledgment of their negligence, without previous assurances of protection and impunity. Dr. Townshend.

16. —the eleven disciples] The Apostles, originally twelve, but now reduced to eleven, by the defection of Judas. Bp. Porteus.

——into a mountain] This was probably, as is said by constant tradition, mount Tabor, that on which He was transfigured before them. Grotius.

Respecting the several appearances of our Saviour after His resurrection, see the note at the end of St. John's Gospel.

17. —they worshipped him:] On this and other occasions (see Matt. xv. 25) Christ permitted Himself to be worshipped; but He would undoubtedly have refused this, as did St. Peter, (Acts x. 25, 26,) if, like him, He had been a mere man. Bp. Tomline.

——but some doubted.] It cannot be wondered that, among the great number of persons who saw Jesus, there should be some who, like the disciples mentioned by St. Luke, chap. xxiv. 41, "believed not for joy and wondered;" that is, (as is very natural,) were afraid to believe what they so ardently wished to be true; or who, like St. Thomas, would not believe, unless they touched the body of Jesus, and thrust their hands into His sides. But their doubts, like his, were probably soon removed. This circumstance therefore only serves to shew the scrupulous fidelity of the sacred historians, who, like honest men, fairly relate every thing that passed on this and other similar occasions, whether it appears to make for them, or against them. Bp. Porteus.

The transaction, as related by St. Matthew, seems to be this.

Anno DOMINI 33. 18 And Jesus came and spake unto them, saying, All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth.

19 ¶ [b]Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: Anno DOMINI 33. [b] Mark 16. 15.

Christ appeared first at a distance; the greater part of those present, as soon as they saw Him, "worshipped;" but "some," seeing Him as yet only at a distance, "doubted;" whereupon Christ came up to them, ver. 18, and spake to them, &c.: so that the doubt may have been a doubt only at first, when He was seen at a distance, which was immediately dispelled on His approaching nearer, and conversing with them. Dr. Townshend.

Surely no dishonest writer would, in the very last place where he mentions the resurrection, and in the conclusion of his book, have suggested such a cavil to unbelievers, as to say that "some doubted." This passage shews, among many others, that the Evangelists were plain men, who, conscious of their own integrity, have related what they knew with admirable simplicity. Had they been deceivers, they would have written with more caution and art, and have endeavoured to obviate every cavil. Bp. Watson.

No remarks are thrown in on any occasion by the sacred writers to anticipate objections: nothing of that caution appears, which never fails to distinguish the testimony of those who are conscious of imposture; no endeavour to reconcile the mind of the reader to what may be extraordinary in the narrative. Dr. Beattie.

18. — All power is given unto me] Jesus, in His divine nature, had this power from all eternity: but it was now to be exercised in His human nature also, which, from a state of humiliation, from "the form of a servant," was soon to be exalted to the highest dignity, and placed at the right hand of God. Accordingly, St. Paul informs us, God has set our Lord "at His own right hand in the heavenly places," &c. Ephes. i. 20—23, and again, Phil. ii. 9—11. In the same magnificent language He is spoken of in the book of Revelation, chap. v. 12, 13. Such is the dignity of the Lord and Master whom we serve, and such is that authority with which, in the two concluding verses of this chapter, He gives His last command to His Apostles. Bp. Porteus.

Our Lord, having finished His course of afflictions, and possessing the reward of them, a place at the right hand of God, and the exercise of "all power in heaven and in earth," has become the Author of eternal salvation to all those that obey Him. He governs the Church which is yet left behind Him upon earth; and by His word and ordinances, His providence and Spirit, He conducts all those who are willing to be thus led along the same road, to the same place, whither He is gone before: that, being first made conformable to His death, they may become partakers of His resurrection; and following Him through the paths of pain and trouble, may join in His triumphant ascension; and that, where He is, they may also be. Dr. Ogden.

18, 19. — All power is given unto me — Go ye therefore, &c.] As if He had said, I have now all power over all things in the world conferred upon Me; by virtue of which I command, empower, and commission you, to enlarge, settle, and govern the Church which I have founded; to administer the sacraments which I have instituted, and to persuade mankind to embrace My doctrine, to submit to My discipline, to obey My laws, and to come up to the terms which I have procured for them, and propounded to them in order to their salvation. "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations:" or, as the word in the original properly signifies, Make all nations My disciples, bring them over to My religion; and this I would have you do in two ways; first, by "baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost," and so initiating them into My Church, upon their consenting to the faith which I have published to the world; and secondly, "Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you," that so they may be My disciples indeed, not only by an outward profession of the faith which I have taught them, but also by performing sincere and universal obedience to all the commands that I have laid upon them. Bp. Beveridge.

These words (ver. 19, 20) contain that great commission and charter granted by our Saviour to His Apostles and their successors, by virtue of which we and all mankind have been called to the knowledge and practice of true religion, enforced by the motives of eternal happiness or misery. Abp. Secker.

19. — teach all nations, baptizing them &c.] In this form of baptism there is no restriction or exception whatever as to the persons who were to be baptized. Nations consist of persons of all ages, and therefore infants as well as adults must be included in this command, as the objects of baptism: and this inference will be the more evident when we reflect, that the commission was given to Jews, who were accustomed to see infants baptized; and they would of course consider themselves authorized to receive converts to Christianity in the same manner as they had received converts to Judaism. Had our Saviour intended any alteration in the Jewish practice of baptizing, or any limitation with respect to age, He would not have failed to specify it. Bp. Tomline.

The sacrament of baptism being instituted in our Church from this express command of our Saviour, it is ordained that infants should be baptized, their sureties making in their names promises of repentance and faith, which they, when they come to mature age, are bound to perform. God expressly ordered the children of the Jews to be admitted into covenant with Him at eight days old. Into the place of circumcision baptism has succeeded, as the Gospel has into the place of the Law. There is therefore the same reason why our children should from the beginning be admitted into the Christian, as why the infants of Jews should have been admitted into the legal covenant. God has made no exceptions in this particular. Infants with us are as capable of covenanting, as they were with them. And, if God did not think fit to consider the age of infants among the Jews to be a bar to their receiving circumcision, we ought not to think the same defect to be any sufficient obstacle to the admission of our infants by baptism into the covenant of the Gospel. Abp. Wake.

—— baptizing them in the name &c.] He here declares that baptism was the ceremony by which our Lord's disciples were to be admitted into His religion. This was sometimes used by the Jews on the admission of proselytes, and by the heathens on initiation into their mysteries. But the baptism of Christians was to be accompanied with a peculiar form of words, which distinguished it from every other. They were to be baptized "in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." This form of words has, accordingly, been used in the Christian Church, from the earliest times down to the present; and is the mode of baptism adopted and constantly practised by the Church of England; and it is remarkable, not only on this account, but as being also one principal ground of a very distinguished doctrine of the Gospel, and of the Church of England, the doctrine of the Trinity. For the plain and natural interpretation of the words is, that by being baptized in the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost, we are dedicated and consecrated equally to the service of each of those three divine Persons; we are made the servants and disciples of each, and are consequently bound to honour, worship, and obey each of them equally. This evidently implies that they are equal in their nature, and that "all the fulness of the Godhead" dwells in each. In confirmation of this, we find in various parts of Scripture, that all the attributes of Divinity are ascribed to each. And yet, as the unity of the supreme Being is every where taught in the same Scriptures, and is a fundamental article of our religion, we are naturally led to conclude with our Church in its first article, "That there is but one living and true God, of infinite power, wisdom, and goodness; the Maker and Preserver of all things both visible and invisible: and that in the unity of this Godhead there are three Persons, of one substance, power, and eternity; the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost." Bp. Porteus.

To baptize "in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost," is to perform this rite or sacrament by the

Anno DOMINI 33.

20 Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world. Amen.

Anno DOMINI 33.

authority of, and by special relation to, the three Persons of the blessed Trinity, Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, as the chief objects of the Christian faith, of which solemn profession is then made. So that, on this form of baptism, compared with what is elsewhere said in Scripture concerning the Son and the Holy Ghost, is founded the doctrine of the blessed Trinity, in that simplicity and clearness in which the Scripture has delivered it. Abp. Tillotson.

Sometimes Scripture speaks of baptism as if it were administered only "in the name of the Lord Jesus," Acts ii. 38; x. 48; xix. 5. But it fully appears that the name of the Holy Ghost was used at the time of baptism, Acts xix. 2, 3; and therefore, we may be certain, that of the Father also. Now being baptized "in the name" of these three, may signify being baptized by virtue of their authority: but the more exact translation is, "into the name;" and the more full import of the expression is, by this solemn action taking upon us their name, and professing ourselves devoted to the faith, and worship, and obedience, of these three, our Creator, our Redeemer, our Sanctifier. In this profession the whole of Christianity is briefly comprehended, and on this foundation therefore the Christian creeds are all built. Abp. Secker.

Since baptism is to be performed in the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost, they must all three be Persons; and since no superiority or difference whatever is mentioned in this solemn form of baptism, we conclude that they are all three of one substance, power, and eternity. Since we are to be baptized in the name of the Father, and the Son, and the Holy Ghost, it is quite impossible that, while the Father is self-existent, eternal, the Lord God omnipotent; the Son, in whose name we are equally baptized, should be a mere man, born of a woman, and subject to all the frailties and imperfections of human nature; or that the Holy Ghost, in whose name also we are equally baptized, should be a bare energy or operation, a quality or power, without even a personal existence. Bp. Tomline.

This form of baptism, whilst it proves the divinity of each Person, proves also their unity in the Godhead. For we hear in it but of one name. Now, as the Apostle reasons, "To Abraham and his seed were the promises made; He saith not, And to seeds, as of many, but as of one, And to thy seed," Gal. iii. 16; so we are baptized, not in the names, as of many, but "in the name," as of one: one name, and one nature or essence. Bp. Andrewes.

Let us always bear in mind how essential a doctrine of our religion is the doctrine of the Trinity. For what is Christianity but a manifestation of the three Divine Persons, as engaged in the great work of man's redemption, begun, continued, and to be ended by them, in their several relations of Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, Creator, Redeemer, and Sanctifier, three Persons, one God. If there be no Son of God, where is our redemption? If there be no Holy Spirit, where is our sanctification? Without both, where is our salvation? And if these two Persons be any thing less than Divine, why are we baptized equally "in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost?" Let us not be deceived: "This is the true God, and eternal life." Bp. Horne.

20.—lo, I am with you alway, &c.] I, the eternal Son of God, and now also become the Son of man; I, who have in your sight caused the blind to see, the lame to walk, the dead to rise, with a word of My mouth; I, who have all power committed to Me in heaven and in earth; "I am with you:" not, I will be with you, but I am with you, in the present tense, hereby reminding them of His divine power and essence, to which all things were present. I am with you, My Apostles, not with any one or any part of you, but with all of you equally, and at all times, so that, wheresoever you are, whensoever you do any thing towards the execution of this My commission, I am with you in the doing of it: and that to the very end of the world; that is, so long as I have a Church on earth, which shall be till My coming again to judge the world. Bp. Beveridge.

It is remarkable that St. Matthew has made no mention of our Lord's ascension into heaven; the relation of which is given by St. Mark and St. Luke. The reason of this omission it is not perhaps very easy to assign, nor is it necessary. We know that, in several other instances, various circumstances are omitted by one Evangelist, which are supplied by the rest, and others passed over by those which are noticed by the former; a plain proof that they did not write in concert with each other, but each related his own story, and selected such facts and events as appeared to him most deserving of notice. Bp. Porteus.

It is also observable, that St. Matthew notices only one of our Saviour's appearances to His disciples after His resurrection. It may be mentioned as a probable reason of this, that the particular design which St. Matthew had in view while he was writing the history of the resurrection, was to attest the faithful performance of Christ's promise to His disciples, to go before them into Galilee; because he alone, except St. Mark, who seems to have taken it from him, has recorded this promise, and he alone has confined his narrative to that single appearance to the disciples which fulfilled it. It was the preconcerted, the great and most publick manifestation of our Lord's person. It was the thing which dwelt upon St. Matthew's mind, and he adapted his narrative to it. Archdeacon Paley.

The following Chapters from St. Matthew are appointed as Proper Lessons, or as Gospels, on Sundays and Holydays:

Chap. I.	ver. 18—25,	Sunday after Christmas,	Gospel.
—— II.	— 1—12,	Epiphany,	ditto.
—— II.	— 13—18,	Innocents' Day,	ditto.
—— III.		Trinity Sunday,	Morning.
—— III.		St. John Baptist,	Morning.
—— IV.	ver. 1—11,	1st Sunday in Lent,	Gospel.
—— IV.	— 18—22,	St. Andrew,	ditto.
—— V.	— 1—12,	All Saints,	ditto.
—— V.	— 20—26,	6th Sunday after Trinity,	ditto.
—— VI.	— 16—21,	Ash-Wednesday,	ditto.
—— VI.	— 24—34,	15th Sunday after Trinity,	ditto.
—— VII.	— 15—21,	8th Sunday after Trinity,	ditto.
—— VIII.	— 1—13,	3d Sunday after Epiphany,	ditto.
—— VIII.	— 23—34,	4th Sunday after Epiphany,	ditto.
—— IX.	— 1— 8,	19th Sunday after Trinity,	ditto.
—— IX.	— 9—13,	St. Matthew,	ditto.
—— IX.	— 18—26,	24th Sunday after Trinity,	ditto.
—— XI.	— 2—10,	3d Sunday in Advent,	ditto.
—— XI.	— 25—30,	St. Matthias,	ditto.
—— XIII.	— 24—30,	5th Sunday after Epiphany,	ditto.
—— XIV.	— 1—13,	St. John the Baptist,	Evening.
Chap. XV.	ver. 21—28,	2d Sunday in Lent,	Gospel.
—— XVI.	— 13—19,	St. Peter,	ditto.
—— XVIII.	— 1—10,	St. Michael and All Angels,	ditto.
—— XVIII.	— 21—35,	22d Sunday after Trinity,	ditto.
—— XIX.	— 27—30,	Conversion of St. Paul,	ditto.
—— XX.	— 1—16,	Septuagesima Sunday,	ditto.
—— XX.	— 20—28,	St. James the Apostle,	ditto.
—— XXI.	— 1—13,	1st Sunday in Advent,	ditto.
—— XXI.	— 33—41,	King Charles the Martyr,	ditto.
—— XXII.	— 1—14,	20th Sunday after Trinity,	ditto.
—— XXII.	— 15—22,	23d Sunday after Trinity,	ditto.
—— XXII.	— 16—22,	Restoration of the Royal Family,	ditto.
—— XXII.	— 34—46,	18th Sunday after Trinity,	ditto.
—— XXIII.	— 34—39,	St. Stephen,	ditto.
—— XXIV.	— 23—31,	6th Sunday after Epiphany,	ditto.
—— XXVI.		6th Sunday in Lent,	Morning.
—— XXVII.	ver. 1—54,	Sunday next before Easter,	Gospel.
—— XXVII.	—57—66,	Easter Even,	ditto.
—— XXVIII.		Monday in Easter-week,	Morning.

THE GOSPEL

ACCORDING TO

ST. MARK.

INTRODUCTION.

It has been doubted, both in ancient and modern times, whether St. Mark the Evangelist is the same as "John, whose surname was Mark," mentioned in the Acts, and in some of St. Paul's Epistles, Acts xii. 12, 25; Col. iv. 10. Allowing that they were the same, which, though an uncertain point, may be believed without any inconsistency, the writer of this Gospel was the nephew of Barnabas, being his sister's son; and it is supposed that he was converted to the Gospel by St. Peter, who calls him his son, 1 Pet. v. 13. The first historical fact mentioned of him in the New Testament is, that he went in the year 44 from Jerusalem to Antioch with Barnabas and Saul. Not long after, he sent out from Antioch with those Apostles upon a journey, which they undertook by the direction of the Holy Spirit, for the purpose of preaching the Gospel in different countries; but he soon left them, probably without sufficient reason, at Perga in Pamphylia, and went to Jerusalem, Acts xiii. Afterwards, when Paul and Barnabas had determined to visit the several churches which they had established, Barnabas proposed that they should take Mark with them; to which Paul objected, because Mark had left them in their former journey. This produced a sharp contention between Paul and Barnabas, which ended in their separation. Mark accompanied his uncle Barnabas to Cyprus, but it is not mentioned whither they went when they had left that island. We may conclude that St. Paul was afterwards reconciled to St. Mark, from the manner in which he mentions him in his Epistles, written subsequently to this dispute, and particularly from the direction which he gives to Timothy; "Take Mark, and bring him with thee: for he is profitable to me for the ministry." No further circumstances are recorded of St. Mark in the New Testament; but it is believed, upon the authority of ancient writers, that, soon after his journey with St. Barnabas, he met with St. Peter in Asia, and that he continued with him for some time, perhaps till St. Peter suffered martyrdom at Rome.

St. Mark, even humanly speaking, was a very credible witness of the life of Christ. He was, in the strict sense of the word, an Evangelist; that is, a preacher sent by the Apostles to Jews and Gentiles, without being confined to any particular Church. What Timothy was to St. Paul, Mark was to St. Peter and St. Barnabas, and at last he bore the same relation to St. Paul himself. It was usual for such Evangelists to have extraordinary gifts of the Holy Ghost, 1 Tim. iv. 14; 2 Tim. i. 6. Hence we have just reason to believe that St. Mark wrote by inspiration: and, as the primitive Church has transmitted to us his Gospel as a book of Divine authority, without ever entertaining the least doubt of his inspiration, we have every reason to consider it as a work divinely inspired.

Different persons have assigned different dates to this Gospel: but, as there is an almost unanimous concurrence of opinion that it was written while St. Mark was with St. Peter at Rome, and as we find no ancient authority for supposing that St. Peter was in that city till the year 64, we may be disposed to date the publication of this Gospel about the year 65.

As St. Mark wrote this Gospel for the use of the Christians at Rome, which was at that time the great metropolis and common centre of all civilized nations, we accordingly find it free from all peculiarities, and equally accommodated to all descriptions of persons. Quotations from the ancient Prophets, and allusions to Jewish customs, are as much as possible avoided; and such explanations are added as might be necessary for Gentile readers at Rome: thus, when "Jordan" is first mentioned in this Gospel, the word "river" is prefixed, chap. i. 5; the Oriental word "Corban" is said to mean "a gift," chap. vii. 11; the "preparation" is said to be "the day before the sabbath," chap. xv. 42; and "defiled hands" are said to mean "unwashen hands," chap. vii. 2; and the superstition of the Jews upon that subject is stated more at large than it would have been by a person writing at Jerusalem.

The Gospel of St. Mark is a simple and compendious narrative, and his style is clear and correct; he is, in general, much less circumstantial than St. Matthew; and usually follows his arrangement. Some authors represent St. Mark's Gospel as an abridgement of St. Matthew's, but this is surely a mistaken idea. St. Mark entirely omits several important things related by St. Matthew, such as the genealogy and birth of Christ, the massacre at Bethlehem, and the sermon upon the mount. He dilates upon some facts which are concisely mentioned by St. Matthew, such as the cure of the paralytick in the second chapter, (compare Matt. ix. 2,) and the miracle among the Gadarenes in the fifth, (compare Matt. viii. 28.) He now and then departs from the order of time and arrangement of facts observed by St. Matthew; and there have been enumerated above thirty circumstances noticed by St. Mark, which are not found in any other Gospel: many of these are trifling, but two of them are the miraculous cures recorded in the seventh chapter, and in the middle of the eighth. If, however, we except slight additions made by St. Mark to the narrative common to the first three Evangelists, there are not more than twenty-four verses in his whole Gospel which contain facts not recorded either by St. Matthew or by St. Luke. Bp. Tomline.

Anno DOMINI 26. ending.

CHAP. I.

1 The office of John the Baptist. 9 Jesus is baptized, 12 tempted, 14 he preacheth: 16 calleth Peter, Andrew, James and John: 23 healeth one that had a devil, 29 Peter's mother in law, 32 many diseased persons, 41 and cleanseth the leper.

THE beginning of the gospel of Jesus Christ, the Son of God;

[a] Mal. 3. 1. 2 As it is written in the prophets, [a] Behold, I send my messenger before thy face, which shall prepare thy way before thee.

[b] Isai. 40. 3. Luke 3. 4. John 1. 23. 3 [b] The voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight.

[c] Matt. 3. 1. 4 [c] John did baptize in the wilderness, and preach the baptism of repentance ‖ for the remission of sins.

‖ Or, unto.

[d] Matt. 3. 5. 5 [d] And there went out unto him all the land of Judea, and they of Jerusalem, and were all baptized of him in the river of Jordan, confessing their sins.

[e] Matt. 3. 4. 6 And John was [e] clothed with camel's hair, and with a girdle of a skin about his loins; and he did eat locusts and wild honey;

7 And preached, saying, There cometh one mightier than I after me, the latchet of whose shoes I am not worthy to stoop down and unloose.

8 I indeed have baptized you with water: but he shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost.

A. D. 27. [f] Matt. 3. 13. 9 [f] And it came to pass in those days, that Jesus came from Nazareth of Galilee, and was baptized of John in Jordan.

Anno DOMINI 27. 10 And straightway coming up out of the water, he saw the heavens ‖ opened, and the Spirit like a dove descending upon him:

‖ Or, cloven, or, rent.

11 And there came a voice from heaven, saying, Thou art my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.

[g] Matt. 4. 1. 12 [g] And immediately the spirit driveth him into the wilderness.

13 And he was there in the wilderness forty days, tempted of Satan; and was with the wild beasts; and the angels ministered unto him.

A. D. 30. ending. [h] Matt. 4. 12. 14 Now after that John was put in prison, [h] Jesus came into Galilee, preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God, 15 And saying, The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand: repent ye, and believe the gospel.

[i] Matt. 4. 18. 16 [i] Now as he walked by the sea of Galilee, he saw Simon and Andrew his brother casting a net into the sea: for they were fishers.

17 And Jesus said unto them, Come ye after me, and I will make you to become fishers of men.

18 And straightway they forsook their nets, and followed him.

19 And when he had gone a little farther thence, he saw James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother, who also were in the ship mending their nets.

20 And straightway he called them: and they left their father Zebedee in the ship with the hired servants, and went after him.

Chap. I. ver. 1. The beginning of the gospel &c.] This seems to be the title or preface of the whole Gospel. Here beginneth the history of the life and doctrine of Jesus Christ the Son of God, and Saviour of mankind; whose appearance in the flesh was ushered in by the preaching of John the Baptist, as the Prophets had in old time foretold concerning him. Dr. S. Clarke.

2. — in the prophets,] Malachi and Isaiah. See the margin.

4. John did baptize &c.] According to the predictions just mentioned, when the time drew near that the Son of God was to be manifested in the flesh, John the Baptist appeared, &c.

—— preach the baptism of repentance &c.] Preach to all the people the necessity of repentance, of forsaking their sins, and reforming their lives, and signify this to them by the sensible and external sign of baptizing with water; that they might hereby be prepared to receive the Gospel, and fitted to be made partakers of that salvation, of which Jesus was to be the author and publisher. Dr. S. Clarke. Respecting John's baptism, see notes at Matt. iii.

7. — I am not worthy to — unloose.] St. Matthew gives the words "to bear." The meaning of both is, whose servant I am not worthy to be. The shoes worn in Palestine were sandals tied with thongs on the feet. Dr. Whitby, Le Clerc. It is probable that John the Baptist, discoursing at different times, used both the expressions recorded by St. Matthew and St. Mark; which accounts for their reporting his words differently. And a similar explanation may be given in the several passages where our Saviour's words are reported with some little variation by the several Evangelists. Edit.

12. — the spirit driveth him] The meaning is, He went into the wilderness by the Divine impulse of the Holy Spirit, Matt. iv. 1. Bp. Mann. Respecting our Lord's temptation, see notes at Matt. iv. 1—12; Luke iv. 1, 2, 13.

13. — was with the wild beasts;] In a place where no human being was, but wild beasts only. Dr. Wells.

15. — The time is fulfilled, &c.] The time which the wisdom of God predetermined, and which the ancient Prophets expressly foretold, to bring in and establish the kingdom of the Messiah, is now accomplished: God is about to make the last revelation of His will to mankind, in which righteousness only and sincerity of heart will be required and accepted. Repent ye therefore, and embrace and obey this doctrine. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— repent ye, and believe the gospel.] St. John had before called them to repentance, Matt. iii. 2. Jesus now calls them to the duty of faith, of which they had not before heard: "Believe ye the Gospel." Believe the glad tidings which are now brought to you of pardon and salvation.

Let us observe from this text the necessary connexion which subsists between faith and repentance. They are both necessary to salvation: repentance, because without it we cannot go to Christ; and faith, because without it we can receive no benefits from His atoning merits. Faith without repentance is nothing but a groundless presumption; and repentance without faith in the merits of our Redeemer can avail nothing to our salvation: we must not only repent, but we must believe the Gospel. Bp. Beveridge.

16. Now as he walked] Respecting the following transaction, see notes at Matt. iv. 18, 19, 22.

Anno DOMINI 31.

21 [k] And they went into Capernaum; and straightway on the sabbath day he entered into the synagogue, and taught.

22 [l] And they were astonished at his doctrine: for he taught them as one that had authority, and not as the scribes.

23 [m] And there was in their synagogue a man with an unclean spirit; and he cried out,

24 Saying, Let us alone; what have we to do with thee, thou Jesus of Nazareth? art thou come to destroy us? I know thee who thou art, the Holy One of God.

25 And Jesus rebuked him, saying, Hold thy peace, and come out of him.

26 And when the unclean spirit had torn him, and cried with a loud voice, he came out of him.

27 And they were all amazed, insomuch that they questioned among themselves, saying, What thing is this? what new doctrine is this? for with authority commandeth he even the unclean spirits, and they do obey him.

28 And immediately his fame spread abroad throughout all the region round about Galilee.

29 [n] And forthwith, when they were come out of the synagogue, they entered into the house of Simon and Andrew, with James and John.

30 But Simon's wife's mother lay sick of a fever, and anon they tell him of her.

31 And he came and took her by the hand, and lifted her up; and immediately the fever left her, and she ministered unto them.

32 And at even, when the sun did set, they brought unto him all that were diseased, and them that were possessed with devils.

Anno DOMINI 31.

33 And all the city was gathered together at the door.

34 And he healed many that were sick of divers diseases, and cast out many devils; and suffered not the devils ‖ to speak, because they knew him.

‖ Or, to say that they knew him.

35 And in the morning, rising up a great while before day, he went out, and departed into a solitary place, and there prayed.

36 And Simon and they that were with him followed after him.

37 And when they had found him, they said unto him, All men seek for thee.

38 And he said unto them, Let us go into the next towns, that I may preach there also: for therefore came I forth.

39 And he preached in their synagogues throughout all Galilee, and cast out devils.

40 [o] And there came a leper to him, beseeching him, and kneeling down to him, and saying unto him, If thou wilt, thou canst make me clean.

[o] Matt. 8. 2.

41 And Jesus, moved with compassion, put forth his hand, and touched him, and saith unto him, I will; be thou clean.

42 And as soon as he had spoken, immediately the leprosy departed from him, and he was cleansed.

43 And he straitly charged him, and forthwith sent him away;

44 And saith unto him, See thou say nothing to any man: but go thy way, shew

[k] Matt. 4. 13.
[l] Matt. 7. 28.
[m] Luke 4. 33.
[n] Matt. 8. 14.

22. And they were astonished &c.] See notes at Matt. vii. 28, 29.

24. — to destroy us?] To take away our power over mankind.

—— the Holy One of God.] The Messiah, the Son of God. Dr. S. Clarke.

26. — had torn him,] Had shaken or convulsed him. It appears from Luke iv. 35, that he "hurt him not." Bp. Pearce.

32. — at even, when the sun did set,] The reason why they brought the diseased persons at even, and when the sun did set, seems to have been, that then the sabbath was past, and no objection could be made to their bringing them to be healed. Bp. Pearce.

41. — I will; be thou clean.] See note at Matt. viii. 3.

44. — See thou say nothing to any man:] Instead of accepting that due tribute of esteem and veneration, which must naturally attend the opening His divine commission with the more plain undesigning people, but which would have no other effect on the invincible prejudices of their rulers, than to increase their opposition, and give them occasion to misrepresent Him still more, and grow more violent in persecuting His followers, our Lord mercifully chooses to avoid every thing of that kind which might raise their envy, and exasperate their malice; concealing His pre-eminence under the mean garb of poverty, and confining His wonders for the most part to private places and obscure villages; till He had done enough to ascertain the evidence, and establish the belief of His divine authority among them; till He was ready to finish all that remained for Him to do in a more publick manner, by witnessing His last good confession both to the Jewish and the Roman magistrate; by declaring the true end of His coming into the world, and bearing testimony to His most unblameable life in it, before these iniquitous judges; and (what was the necessary consequence of that, without either violently overruling them, or miraculously escaping from them) sealing the same confession with His blood. Bp. Law.

It might seem, at first sight, from this and other similar injunctions, that our Lord intended to conceal Himself, and did not wish to be known as the Messiah, or to be believed on as such. But we shall conclude this proceeding of His to have been conformable to Divine wisdom, and suited to a fuller manifestation of His being the Messiah, when we consider that He had to accomplish the time foretold of His ministry, and, after a life illustrious in miracles and good works, attended with humility, meekness, patience, and sufferings, to be led as a sheep to the slaughter, and with all resignation be brought to the cross. All this could not have been accomplished, if, as soon as He appeared in publick, and began to preach, He had immediately professed Himself to be the Messiah, the King to whom belonged that kingdom, which He proclaimed as being at hand. For His enemies among the Jews would have laid hold of Him, and taken away His life; thyself to the priest, and offer for thy cleansing those things which Moses commanded, for a testimony unto them.

Anno DOMINI 31.

[p] Luke 5. 15.

45 [p] But he went out, and began to publish it much, and to blaze abroad the matter, insomuch that Jesus could no more openly enter into the city, but was without in desert places: and they came to him from every quarter.

CHAP. II.

1 Christ healeth one sick of the palsy, 14 calleth Matthew from the receipt of custom, 15 eateth with publicans and sinners, 18 excuseth his disciples for not fasting, 23 and for plucking the ears of corn on the sabbath day.

[a] Matt. 9. 1.

AND again [a] he entered into Capernaum, after some days; and it was noised that he was in the house.

2 And straightway many were gathered together, insomuch that there was no room to receive them, no, not so much as about the door: and he preached the word unto them.

3 And they come unto him, bringing one sick of the palsy, which was borne of four.

4 And when they could not come nigh unto him for the press, they uncovered the roof where he was: and when they had broken it up, they let down the bed wherein the sick of the palsy lay.

5 When Jesus saw their faith, he said unto the sick of the palsy, Son, thy sins be forgiven thee.

6 But there were certain of the scribes sitting there, and reasoning in their hearts,

7 Why doth this man thus speak blas-

[b] Job 14. 4. Isai. 43. 25.

phemies? [b] who can forgive sins but God only?

8 And immediately when Jesus perceived in his spirit that they so reasoned within themselves, he said unto them, Why reason ye these things in your hearts?

Anno DOMINI 31.

9 Whether is it easier to say to the sick of the palsy, Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say, Arise, and take up thy bed, and walk?

10 But that ye may know that the Son of man hath power on earth to forgive sins, (he saith to the sick of the palsy,)

11 I say unto thee, Arise, and take up thy bed, and go thy way into thine house.

12 And immediately he arose, took up the bed, and went forth before them all; insomuch that they were all amazed, and glorified God, saying, We never saw it on this fashion.

13 And he went forth again by the sea side; and all the multitude resorted unto him, and he taught them.

14 [c] And as he passed by, he saw Levi the son of Alpheus sitting ‖ at the receipt of custom, and said unto him, Follow me. And he arose and followed him.

[c] Matt. 9. 9.

‖ Or, at the place where the custom was received.

15 And it came to pass, that, as Jesus sat at meat in his house, many publicans and sinners sat also together with Jesus and his disciples: for there were many, and they followed him.

16 And when the scribes and Pharisees saw him eat with publicans and sinners, they said unto his disciples, How is it that he eateth and drinketh with publicans and sinners?

17 When Jesus heard it, he saith unto them, They that are whole have no need of the physician, but they that are sick: I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance.

[d] Matt. 9. 14. Luke 5. 33.

18 [d] And the disciples of John and of the

---

at least, they would have disturbed His ministry, and obstructed the work on which He was employed. That this was the ground of His caution and reserve, appears, among other passages, from John vii. 1. Locke. See further notes at Matt. viii. 4.

45. — could no more openly] Did not think it proper to enter openly any more into the city, Capernaum, called "His own city" by St. Matthew, chap. ix. 1. Bp. Pearce.

Chap. II. ver. 3. — which was borne of four.] So helpless, that he had four persons to carry him. Bp. Mann. Respecting this transaction of the paralytick, see notes at Matt. ix. 1—8.

4. — they uncovered the roof &c.] It seems that, when they were unable to carry the paralytick by the door to Jesus, by reason of the crowd, they brought him to the flat roof of the house by the stairs on the outside: when they were there, they forced open the door which led to the inside of the house, and so conveyed him to Jesus: this is called "uncovering the roof;" because the door, lying even with the roof, was a part of it when it was laid down and shut. Bp. Pearce. Or perhaps the form of houses in Palestine now subsisting may suggest a somewhat different explanation. The houses, being low and flat-roofed, consisting generally of a ground-floor only, or one upper story, are built round a paved court, into which the entrance from the street is through a gateway: the stairs which lead to the roof are usually in this gateway. It is customary to fix cords from the parapet walls (Deut. xxii. 8) of the flat roofs across this court, and upon them to expand a vail or covering, as a shelter from the heat. Perhaps it was in this area that our Saviour taught: the paralytick was brought to the roof by making a way through the crowd to the stairs in the gateway, or by the terraces of the adjoining houses: they then rolled back the vail or covering, and let the sick man down over the parapet of the roof into the area or court of the house where Jesus was. Dr. Shaw.

8. — perceived in his spirit] Perceived by the spirit that was in Him. Bp. Pearce.

10. — hath power — to forgive sins,] It may be observed, that the Jews, having said at ver. 7, "Who can forgive sins but God only?" Jesus, by affirming that He had power to forgive them, led them to conclude that He claimed to be God; which most assuredly He would not have done, if the claim did not of right belong to Him. Bp. Pearce.

14. — as he passed by,] As He passed by the custom-house, at the side of the lake. There were places for collecting toll on the principal roads, and on the lake, rivers, &c. Dr. Lightfoot. Respecting this and the following verses to ver. 23, see notes at Matt. ix. 9—17.

Anno DOMINI 31. Pharisees used to fast: and they come and say unto him, Why do the disciples of John and of the Pharisees fast, but thy disciples fast not?

19 And Jesus said unto them, Can the children of the bridechamber fast, while the bridegroom is with them? as long as they have the bridegroom with them, they cannot fast.

20 But the days will come, when the bridegroom shall be taken away from them, and then shall they fast in those days.

‖ Or, raw, or, unwrought.

21 No man also seweth a piece of ‖ new cloth on an old garment: else the new piece that filled it up taketh away from the old, and the rent is made worse.

22 And no man putteth new wine into old bottles: else the new wine doth burst the bottles, and the wine is spilled, and the bottles will be marred: but new wine must be put into new bottles.

[e] Matt. 12. 1.

23 [e] And it came to pass, that he went through the corn fields on the sabbath day; and his disciples began, as they went, to pluck the ears of corn.

24 And the Pharisees said unto him, Behold, why do they on the sabbath day that which is not lawful?

25 And he said unto them, Have ye never read what David did, when he had need, and was an hungred, he, and they that were with him?

26 How he went into the house of God in the days of Abiathar the high priest, and did eat the shewbread, which is not lawful to eat but for the priests, and gave also to them which were with him? Anno DOMINI 31.

27 And he said unto them, The sabbath was made for man, and not man for the sabbath:

28 Therefore the Son of man is Lord also of the sabbath.

CHAP. III.

1 Christ healeth the withered hand, 10 and many other infirmities: 11 rebuketh the unclean spirits: 13 chooseth his twelve apostles: 22 convinceth the blasphemy of casting out devils by Beelzebub: 31 and sheweth who are his brother, sister, and mother.

AND [a] he entered again into the synagogue; and there was a man there which had a withered hand. [a] Matt. 12. 9.

2 And they watched him, whether he would heal him on the sabbath day; that they might accuse him.

3 And he saith unto the man which had the withered hand, Stand forth.

4 And he saith unto them, Is it lawful to do good on the sabbath days, or to do evil? to save life, or to kill? But they held their peace.

5 And when he had looked round about on them with anger, being grieved for the ‖ hardness of their hearts, he saith unto the man, Stretch forth thine hand. And he stretched it out: and his hand was restored whole as the other. ‖ Or, blindness.

6 And the Pharisees went forth, and straightway took counsel with the Herodians against him, how they might destroy him.

---

19. — the children of the bridechamber] Thus the Greek phrase is literally translated: it means the bridemen, the young men who used to be attendant at marriages on the bride and bridegroom. Dr. Campbell.

23. — began, — to pluck] A Hebrew form of speech for "plucked." Dr. Whitby. Respecting this transaction, see notes at Matt. xii. 1—8.

26. — in the days of Abiathar the high priest,] In 1 Sam. xxi. it is said that Ahimelech was then "the priest," meaning the high priest. Abiathar was the son of this Ahimelech, was then present with him, and perhaps acted as his deputy: he became high priest on his father's death, and was a very distinguished person in the days of David, having fled to him with the ephod, 1 Sam. xxx. 7. Hence his name is mentioned here, as he was the more celebrated person of the two, and as this event happened a very short time before his accession to the high priesthood. Bp. Pearce, Grotius.

27. — The sabbath was made &c.] He declares that the sabbath was to be subordinate to its purpose, and that this purpose was the real good of those who were the subjects of it. Archdeacon Paley. The meaning is, that ritual institutions, such as the strict Jewish observation of the sabbath, are not like duties of eternal obligation, indispensably to be observed in every extremity or necessity, but were appointed by God only for the present use of man, to conduce to the more becoming practice of the great duties of religion. Dr. S. Clarke. Therefore (ver. 28.) the Son of man, or the Messiah, must have a power of dispensing with the strict observation of the Jewish sabbath in proper cases, such as occasions of mercy or necessity. Bp. Pearce.

This maxim here laid down by our Saviour, at the same time that it establishes in the most peremptory terms the distinction between natural duties and positive institutions, defines with the greatest precision and perspicuity in what the difference consists; and as little justifies the wilful neglect of the ordinances of religion, as it countenances an hypocritical formality in the performance, or a superstitious reliance on the merit of them. Bp. Horsley.

28. — the Son of man is Lord &c.] The Messiah, who came into the world for the benefit of mankind, has power to regulate the sabbath. Abp. Newcome.

Chap. III. ver. 1. — into the synagogue;] At Capernaum. This was on another sabbath day, Luke vi. 6. Bp. Pearce.

4. — to do good — or to do evil?] He appeals to the Jews themselves, which is the best method of keeping the sabbath, and the most acceptable to God; to do a good work of great necessity and charity, or to neglect doing it, on pretence of resting on the sabbath. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— to save life, or to kill?] To save life, or to suffer to perish.

5. — with anger, being grieved &c.] Angry at their obstinate malice, and grieved at their incurable blindness, that they would not receive His gracious assistance. Dr. S. Clarke. His "anger" was not mixed with a desire of revenge, but was a serious displeasure of the mind arising from their misconduct. Dr. Whitby.

Anno DOMINI 31.

7 But Jesus withdrew himself with his disciples to the sea: and a great multitude from Galilee followed him, and from Judea,

8 And from Jerusalem, and from Idumea, and from beyond Jordan; and they about Tyre and Sidon, a great multitude, when they had heard what great things he did, came unto him.

9 And he spake to his disciples, that a small ship should wait on him because of the multitude, lest they should throng him.

10 For he had healed many; insomuch that they ‖ pressed upon him for to touch him, as many as had plagues.

‖ Or, rushed.

11 And unclean spirits, when they saw him, fell down before him, and cried, saying, Thou art the Son of God.

12 And he straitly charged them that they should not make him known.

[b] Matt. 10. 1.

13 [b] And he goeth up into a mountain, and calleth unto him whom he would: and they came unto him.

14 And he ordained twelve, that they should be with him, and that he might send them forth to preach,

15 And to have power to heal sicknesses, and to cast out devils:

16 And Simon he surnamed Peter;

17 And James the son of Zebedee, and John the brother of James; and he surnamed them Boanerges, which is, The sons of thunder:

18 And Andrew, and Philip, and Bartholomew, and Matthew, and Thomas, and James the son of Alpheus, and Thaddeus, and Simon the Canaanite,

Anno DOMINI 31.

19 And Judas Iscariot, which also betrayed him: and they went ‖ into an house.

‖ Or, home.

20 And the multitude cometh together again, so that they could not so much as eat bread.

21 And when his ‖ friends heard of it, they went out to lay hold on him: for they said, He is beside himself.

‖ Or, kinsmen.

22 ¶ And the scribes which came down from Jerusalem said, [c] He hath Beelzebub, and by the prince of the devils casteth he out devils.

[c] Matt. 9. 34.

23 And he called them unto him, and said unto them in parables, How can Satan cast out Satan?

24 And if a kingdom be divided against itself, that kingdom cannot stand.

25 And if a house be divided against itself, that house cannot stand.

26 And if Satan rise up against himself, and be divided, he cannot stand, but hath an end.

27 No man can enter into a strong man's house, and spoil his goods, except he will first bind the strong man; and then he will spoil his house.

28 [d] Verily I say unto you, All sins shall be forgiven unto the sons of men, and blasphemies wherewith soever they shall blaspheme:

[d] Matt. 12. 31.

29 But he that shall blaspheme against the Holy Ghost hath never forgiveness, but is in danger of eternal damnation:

30 Because they said, He hath an unclean spirit.

---

7. — withdrew himself] His time of suffering not being yet come. Dr. Whitby. See also note at Matt. xii. 15.

—— to the sea:] The sea of Galilee. He withdrew Himself from the dominions of Herod Antipas, on the western side of this lake, to those of Philip on the eastern, to preserve Himself from the Pharisees and Sadducees.

8. — Idumea] See note at 1 Mac. iv. 15.

10. — as had plagues.] Meaning diseases of a grievous kind. Bp. Pearce.

11. And unclean spirits, &c.] That is, persons possessed with unclean spirits, as soon as they saw Him, ran and knelt down before Him, and confessed Him to be the Messiah, the Son of God. Dr. S. Clarke.

14. And he ordained twelve,] Respecting the calling of the twelve Apostles, see notes at Matt. x. 1—5.

17. — Boanerges,] This word is compounded of two Hebrew words explained in the text. Christ seems to have given the name to these two disciples from a foresight of the peculiar heat and zeal of their temper. Of this they quickly gave an instance in their desire to call down fire from heaven to consume the Samaritans, Luke ix. 54. St. John also shewed his zeal in forbidding him that cast out devils in the name of Christ, Mark ix. 38. We find too, in the Acts, that St. John was generally one of the chief speakers and actors in the defence and propagation of the Gospel; and the peculiar zeal of these two Apostles seems to have afforded the reason why the one was imprisoned, (Acts iv, v,) and the other slain by Herod, Acts xii. 2. Dr. Whitby.

By this title He intimated the powerful effects of their preaching that word, which is frequently compared to thunder; being, like that, the voice of God speaking from heaven, mighty in its operation. Bp. Horne.

18. — Thaddeus,] See note at Matt. x. 3.

21. — to lay hold on him:] To restrain Him from such a laborious discharge of His ministry; to use their persuasions with Him that He would take proper repose and refreshment. Abp. Newcome.

—— for they said, He is beside himself.] They thought His zeal had carried Him too far, so as to make Him neglect even the necessary refreshments of nature. Dr. S. Clarke.

They mean, He has forgotten Himself and His own health: He is so vehement in discharging His office, and in preaching, that He is transported beyond Himself, and His understanding disturbed, so that He takes not the necessary care of His food and sleep. Dr. Lightfoot. Or the expression, "they said," may not refer to our Lord's relations; but may mean generally, "Men said;" "a rumour had gone abroad," spread probably by the Pharisees. Rosenmüller.

We have here an instance of the impartiality with which the Evangelists relate our Lord's history, and of their consciousness that His conduct refuted the objections raised against it. Abp. Newcome.

22. — which came down from Jerusalem] Probably for the purpose of watching our Saviour's conduct. Abp. Newcome.

—— He hath Beelzebub,] See note at Matt. ix. 34.

28. — All sins shall be forgiven &c.] See notes at Matt. xii. 31, 32.

Anno DOMINI 31.

31 ¶ [c] There came then his brethren and his mother, and, standing without, sent unto him, calling him.

[c] Matt. 12. 46.

32 And the multitude sat about him, and they said unto him, Behold, thy mother and thy brethren without seek for thee.

33 And he answered them, saying, Who is my mother, or my brethren?

34 And he looked round about on them which sat about him, and said, Behold my mother and my brethren!

35 For whosoever shall do the will of God, the same is my brother, and my sister, and mother.

CHAP. IV.

1 The parable of the sower, 14 and the meaning thereof. 21 We must communicate the light of our knowledge to others. 26 The parable of the seed growing secretly, 30 and of the mustard seed. 35 Christ stilleth the tempest on the sea.

[a] Matt. 13. 1.

AND [a] he began again to teach by the sea side: and there was gathered unto him a great multitude, so that he entered into a ship, and sat in the sea; and the whole multitude was by the sea on the land.

2 And he taught them many things by parables, and said unto them in his doctrine,

3 Hearken; behold, there went out a sower to sow:

4 And it came to pass, as he sowed, some fell by the way side, and the fowls of the air came and devoured it up.

5 And some fell on stony ground, where it had not much earth; and immediately it sprang up, because it had no depth of earth:

6 But when the sun was up, it was scorched; and because it had no root, it withered away.

7 And some fell among thorns, and the thorns grew up, and choked it, and it yielded no fruit.

8 And other fell on good ground, and did yield fruit that sprang up and increased; and brought forth, some thirty, and some sixty, and some an hundred.

Anno DOMINI 31.

9 And he said unto them, He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.

10 And when he was alone, they that were about him with the twelve asked of him the parable.

11 And he said unto them, Unto you it is given to know the mystery of the kingdom of God: but unto them that are without, all these things are done in parables:

12 [b] That seeing they may see, and not perceive; and hearing they may hear, and not understand; lest at any time they should be converted, and their sins should be forgiven them.

[b] Matt. 13. 14.

13 And he said unto them, Know ye not this parable? and how then will ye know all parables?

14 ¶ The sower soweth the word.

15 And these are they by the way side, where the word is sown; but when they have heard, Satan cometh immediately, and taketh away the word that was sown in their hearts.

16 And these are they likewise which are sown on stony ground; who, when they have heard the word, immediately receive it with gladness;

17 And have no root in themselves, and so endure but for a time: afterward, when affliction or persecution ariseth for the word's sake, immediately they are offended.

18 And these are they which are sown among thorns; such as hear the word,

19 And the cares of this world, [c] and the deceitfulness of riches, and the lusts of other things entering in, choke the word, and it becometh unfruitful.

[c] 1 Tim. 6. 17.

20 And these are they which are sown on good ground; such as hear the word, and receive it, and bring forth fruit, some thirtyfold, some sixty, and some an hundred.

---

31. There came then his brethren &c.] See notes at Matt. xii. 48, 50.

Chap. IV. ver. 1. And he began again &c.] On the parable of the sower, and other matters contained in this chapter, see notes at Matt. xiii. and other places referred to in the margin.

10. — when he was alone,] When He was in private: when the multitude were gone away, and none left with Him but His constant followers. Bps. Pearce and Mann.

11. — unto them that are without,] This appellation the Jews were accustomed to give to the heathens. Dr. Whitby.

12. That seeing they may see, &c.] St. Matthew (chap. xiii. 13.) gives the words, "because they seeing see not:" and his expression explains the meaning of this passage of St. Mark. It is not meant that our Saviour spake to them in parables with the design that they should not perceive nor understand; but He foreknew that this would be the case, by reason of their obstinate prejudices against Him and His doctrine; and therefore He would not suffer them to know the mystery of the kingdom of God. Bp. Pearce.

—— lest at any time they should be &c.] So that they should not at any time be converted. He speaks of the effect which would follow from their hardness of heart. St. Matthew (chap. xiii. 15.) supplies the words which make up the full sense, "For this people's heart is waxed gross, &c. — lest at any time they should see" &c. Bp. Pearce. From their voluntary hardening their hearts, God withdrew His grace, and the means which He would otherwise have afforded them, and which He did afford to others. Dr. Hammond.

The saying is somewhat proverbial, and is applied to those who might see, if they would make use of their faculties, what they overlook through their inattention and folly. Le Clerc.

13. — how then will ye know &c.] As ye understand not the meaning of so easy a similitude as this, how will ye understand the meaning of other harder parables? Dr. S. Clarke.

Anno DOMINI 31.

21 ¶ [d] And he said unto them, Is a candle brought to be put under a ‖ bushel, or under a bed? and not to be set on a candlestick?

22 [e] For there is nothing hid, which shall not be manifested; neither was any thing kept secret, but that it should come abroad.

23 If any man have ears to hear, let him hear.

24 And he saith unto them, Take heed what ye hear: [f] with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you: and unto you that hear shall more be given.

25 [g] For he that hath, to him shall be given: and he that hath not, from him shall be taken even that which he hath.

26 ¶ And he said, So is the kingdom of God, as if a man should cast seed into the ground;

27 And should sleep, and rise night and day, and the seed should spring and grow up, he knoweth not how.

28 For the earth bringeth forth fruit of herself; first the blade, then the ear, after that the full corn in the ear.

29 But when the fruit is ‖ brought forth, immediately he putteth in the sickle, because the harvest is come.

30 ¶ And he said, [h] Whereunto shall we liken the kingdom of God? or with what comparison shall we compare it?

31 It is like a grain of mustard seed, which, when it is sown in the earth, is less than all the seeds that be in the earth:

32 But when it is sown, it groweth up, and becometh greater than all herbs, and shooteth out great branches; so that the fowls of the air may lodge under the shadow of it.

Anno DOMINI 31.

33 [i] And with many such parables spake he the word unto them, as they were able to hear it.

34 But without a parable spake he not unto them: and when they were alone, he expounded all things to his disciples.

35 [k] And the same day, when the even was come, he saith unto them, Let us pass over unto the other side.

36 And when they had sent away the multitude, they took him even as he was in the ship. And there were also with him other little ships.

37 And there arose a great storm of wind, and the waves beat into the ship, so that it was now full.

38 And he was in the hinder part of the ship, asleep on a pillow: and they awake him, and say unto him, Master, carest thou not that we perish?

39 And he arose, and rebuked the wind, and said unto the sea, Peace, be still. And the wind ceased, and there was a great calm.

40 And he said unto them, Why are ye so fearful? how is it that ye have no faith?

41 And they feared exceedingly, and said one to another, What manner of man is this, that even the wind and the sea obey him?

CHAP. V.

1 Christ delivering the possessed of the legion of devils, 13 they enter into the swine. 25 He healeth the woman of the bloody issue, 35 and raiseth from death Jairus his daughter.

[d] Matt. 5. 15. ‖ The word in the original signifieth a less measure, as Matt. 5. 15.

[e] Matt. 10. 26.

[f] Matt. 7. 2.

[g] Matt. 13. 12.

‖ Or, ripe.

[h] Matt. 13. 31.

[i] Matt. 13. 34.

[k] Matt. 8. 23.

21.—Is a candle brought &c.] Our Saviour had used words nearly the same as these in a different sense at Matt. v. 15. He means here, that the word of God, which is intended for a lantern to our feet, and a light to our paths, is delivered in parables, not that it may be concealed by those to whom it is delivered, but that, the attention being employed with the greater diligence to observe the intended application, the same may be more clearly understood and more deeply imprinted on the mind. Bp. Mann.

22. For there is nothing hid, &c.] He means, that the things which He now tells them privately ought to manifest themselves publickly by their effects in their life and doctrine; and though it was necessary at present to conceal some things from the multitude, because their prejudices made them now incapable of receiving them, yet the time was coming when all these things must be published openly and plainly before all the world. Dr. S. Clarke. At Matt. x. 26, our Saviour had used nearly the same words on a different occasion.

24.—with what measure ye mete, &c.] This seems to be a proverbial expression, here applied in a spiritual sense. If you make a good use of religious knowledge, you will, by the grace of God, make a proportional improvement; if you be negligent or inattentive, you will lose that portion of knowledge you might have secured to yourselves. Bp. Mann.

—— unto you that hear] To you that are attentive. Dr. Campbell.

26.—So is the kingdom of God,] This parable (ver. 26—29.) is related only by St. Mark. It seems to mean, that as the seed, after it is once sown, without any further knowledge or care of the husbandman, grows up and increases by secret and imperceptible degrees, till it comes to its just maturity; so Christ, after He has once taught the doctrine of true religion, and preached it in the world, appears no more Himself visible to assist and promote it, but suffers it to spread and increase by means secret and undiscerned, till at length it produces its full effect. Dr. S. Clarke.

29. But when the fruit is brought forth, &c.] "At the time of harvest, when the corn is grown ripe." See the margin. So, at the end of the world, Christ will again visibly appear, to take to Himself and reward those who have received His doctrine, and brought forth the fruits of it. Dr. S. Clarke.

33.—as they were able to hear it.] That is, by degrees discovering the truth to them, as they were capable of bearing it. Dr. S. Clarke.

35. And the same day,] In the original, "In that day," meaning probably on some day about the same time of His teaching. St. Matthew (chap. viii. 23.) represents what follows as happening at a different time from the preceding events. Grotius, Bp. Pearce.

37.—that it was now full.] That there was now a considerable quantity of water in it. Bp. Pearce.

Anno DOMINI 31.

AND [a] they came over unto the other side of the sea, into the country of the Gadarenes.

[a] Matt. 8. 28.

2 And when he was come out of the ship, immediately there met him out of the tombs a man with an unclean spirit,

3 Who had his dwelling among the tombs; and no man could bind him, no, not with chains:

4 Because that he had been often bound with fetters and chains, and the chains had been plucked asunder by him, and the fetters broken in pieces: neither could any man tame him.

5 And always, night and day, he was in the mountains, and in the tombs, crying, and cutting himself with stones.

6 But when he saw Jesus afar off, he ran and worshipped him,

7 And cried with a loud voice, and said, What have I to do with thee, Jesus, thou Son of the most high God? I adjure thee by God, that thou torment me not.

8 For he said unto him, Come out of the man, thou unclean spirit.

9 And he asked him, What is thy name? And he answered, saying, My name is Legion: for we are many.

10 And he besought him much that he would not send them away out of the country.

11 Now there was there nigh unto the mountains a great herd of swine feeding.

12 And all the devils besought him, saying, Send us into the swine, that we may enter into them.

13 And forthwith Jesus gave them leave. And the unclean spirits went out, and entered into the swine: and the herd ran violently down a steep place into the sea, (they were about two thousand;) and were choked in the sea.

Anno DOMINI 31.

14 And they that fed the swine fled, and told it in the city, and in the country. And they went out to see what it was that was done.

15 And they come to Jesus, and see him that was possessed with the devil, and had the legion, sitting, and clothed, and in his right mind: and they were afraid.

16 And they that saw it told them how it befell to him that was possessed with the devil, and also concerning the swine.

17 And they began to pray him to depart out of their coasts.

18 And when he was come into the ship, he that had been possessed with the devil prayed him that he might be with him.

19 Howbeit Jesus suffered him not, but saith unto him, Go home to thy friends, and tell them how great things the Lord hath done for thee, and hath had compassion on thee.

20 And he departed, and began to publish in Decapolis how great things Jesus had done for him: and all men did marvel.

21 And when Jesus was passed over again by ship unto the other side, much people gathered unto him: and he was nigh unto the sea.

22 [b] And, behold, there cometh one of the rulers of the synagogue, Jairus by name; and when he saw him, he fell at his feet,

[b] Matt. 9. 18.

23 And besought him greatly, saying, My little daughter lieth at the point of

---

Chap. V. ver. 1.—the country of the Gadarenes.] See note at Matt. viii. 28.

There is reason to suppose that the modern town of M'kess is the ancient Gadara. This town is situated on the southern bank of a river called the Shariat Manadra, which falls into the river Jordan below the lake of Tiberias. It was formerly a large and opulent town, proofs of which are still visible in remnants of marble columns, and of large buildings, in great numbers of sarcophaguses, ornamented with bas-reliefs, with carved work and garlands, which are still tolerably perfect. Many beautiful, vast, and very remarkable caverns are seen hereabouts, which serve as places of retreat for five or six families of Arabs. The country about M'kess bears the name of Al-jedur, which is probably derived from Jadar, or Gadara. Seetzen.

2.—a man with an unclean spirit,] St. Matthew mentions two persons possessed with devils. It is probable that one of them was of greater note in the country, or was more remarkable for the effects of his possession by the unclean spirit (ver. 4.) than the other; on which account St. Mark and St. Luke speak only of one, and wholly omit the mention of the other. Dr. Whitby. Respecting this transaction, see notes at Matt. viii. 28—32.

5.—in the mountains,] The tombs being cut in the sides of mountains. Bp. Pearce.

7.—thou torment me not.] "Before the time," Matt. viii. 29. Here was such a reference to the final sentence which Christ was to pass on these evil spirits at the end of the world, Jude 6, as could not be dictated by lunacy: it may be questioned if the person speaking, or any of the hearers but Christ Himself, understood the full meaning of it. Dr. Doddridge.

9.—My name is Legion:] The Roman legion consisted at that period of six thousand men: the word was usual with the Jews to express a great number. Dr. Lightfoot.

10.—not send them away] "Into the deep," as St. Luke expresses, chap. viii. 31. The devils seem to have known that they were there to be tormented or punished after the day of general judgment. See Jude 6. Bp. Pearce.

17.—to pray him to depart] They were afraid of His power, and did not think themselves safe while He remained in their country. See Luke v. 8. Bp. Mann.

19.—tell them how great things &c.] Jesus had usually commanded the person healed not to divulge the miracle; but in this instance He commanded the contrary. The reason of this seems to have been, that Gadara was a town inhabited by heathens as well as Jews; and on that account, as well as on account of its distance from Judea, there was not the same danger in having it known there, before His time was come, that He worked miraculous cures, as there was from the same being publickly known in Judea and Galilee. Bp. Pearce.

22. And, behold, there cometh &c.] See notes at Matt. ix. 18—26.

Anno DOMINI 31.

death: I pray thee, come and lay thy hands on her, that she may be healed; and she shall live.

24 And Jesus went with him; and much people followed him, and thronged him.

25 And a certain woman, which had an issue of blood twelve years,

26 And had suffered many things of many physicians, and had spent all that she had, and was nothing bettered, but rather grew worse,

27 When she had heard of Jesus, came in the press behind, and touched his garment.

28 For she said, If I may touch but his clothes, I shall be whole.

29 And straightway the fountain of her blood was dried up; and she felt in her body that she was healed of that plague.

30 And Jesus, immediately knowing in himself that virtue had gone out of him, turned him about in the press, and said, Who touched my clothes?

31 And his disciples said unto him, Thou seest the multitude thronging thee, and sayest thou, Who touched me?

32 And he looked round about to see her that had done this thing.

33 But the woman fearing and trembling, knowing what was done in her, came and fell down before him, and told him all the truth.

34 And he said unto her, Daughter, thy faith hath made thee whole; go in peace, and be whole of thy plague.

35 While he yet spake, there came from the ruler of the synagogue's house certain which said, Thy daughter is dead: why troublest thou the Master any further?

36 As soon as Jesus heard the word that was spoken, he saith unto the ruler of the synagogue, Be not afraid, only believe.

37 And he suffered no man to follow him, save Peter, and James, and John the brother of James.

Anno DOMINI 31.

38 And he cometh to the house of the ruler of the synagogue, and seeth the tumult, and them that wept and wailed greatly.

39 And when he was come in, he saith unto them, Why make ye this ado, and weep? the damsel is not dead, but sleepeth.

40 And they laughed him to scorn. But when he had put them all out, he taketh the father and the mother of the damsel, and them that were with him, and entereth in where the damsel was lying.

41 And he took the damsel by the hand, and said unto her, Talitha cumi; which is, being interpreted, Damsel, I say unto thee, arise.

42 And straightway the damsel arose, and walked; for she was of the age of twelve years. And they were astonished with a great astonishment.

43 And he charged them straitly that no man should know it; and commanded that something should be given her to eat.

CHAP. VI.

1 Christ is contemned of his countrymen. 7 He giveth the twelve power over unclean spirits. 14 Divers opinions of Christ. 18 John Baptist is beheaded, 29 and buried. 30 The apostles return from preaching. 34 The miracle of five loaves and two fishes. 45 Christ walketh on the sea: 53 and healeth all that touch him.

AND [a] he went out from thence, and came into his own country; and his disciples follow him. [a] Matt. 13. 54.

2 And when the sabbath day was come, he began to teach in the synagogue: and many hearing him were astonished, saying, From whence hath this man these things? and what wisdom is this which is given unto him, that even such mighty works are wrought by his hands?

3 Is not this the carpenter, the son of

---

26. —had suffered many things &c.] Had been a patient of many physicians, and had spent all that she had to procure relief; and yet her disease was rather increasing. Bp. Mann.

30. —knowing—that virtue had gone out &c.] It is evident from this, and other similar expressions, Luke vi. 19, that the "virtue," by which Jesus performed these miraculous cures, resided in Himself, which is never said of any of the Apostles or Prophets. The cures wrought by them are ascribed to God, as at Acts xix. 11, 12; but those wrought by Christ, to the divine virtue dwelling in Him; whence He so often declares, that "the Father dwelling in Him did the works," John xiv. 10. Dr. Whitby.

38. —and seeth the tumult,] It is still the custom in the East for multitudes to assemble in a place where a person had lately expired, and to bewail him in a noisy manner, which is deemed an honour to the deceased. Sir J. Chardin says, that the concourse of people on these occasions is sometimes incredible. Harmer.

40. —and them that were with him,] That is, St. Peter, St. James, and St. John, ver. 37. Our Saviour takes with Him as many witnesses as were sufficient to confirm the fact, and no more, lest He should seem to be desirous of vain-glory. Dr. Whitby.

43. —that no man should know it;] See note at Matt. viii. 4. An additional reason for the injunction of secrecy in this instance may have been, to prevent the dead being brought to Him to be restored to life. His miracles were designed principally as proofs of His mission, and were not intended to alter the order of nature, on every request made to Him. Le Clerc.

Chap. VI. ver. 1. —from thence,—into his own country;] That is, from Capernaum to Nazareth. Respecting this transaction, see notes at Matt. xiii. 54—57.

3. Is not this the carpenter, &c.] We should observe here the strict impartiality of the Evangelist; and his consciousness that nothing could derogate from the dignity of his Master. Abp. Newcome.

Anno DOMINI 31.

Mary, the brother of James, and Joses, and of Juda, and Simon? and are not his sisters here with us? And they were offended at him.

[b] John 4. 44.

4 But Jesus said unto them, [b] A prophet is not without honour, but in his own country, and among his own kin, and in his own house.

5 And he could there do no mighty work, save that he laid his hands upon a few sick folk, and healed them.

6 And he marvelled because of their unbelief. [c] And he went round about the villages, teaching.

[c] Matt. 9. 35. Luke 13. 22.

7 ¶ [d] And he called unto him the twelve, and began to send them forth by two and two; and gave them power over unclean spirits;

[d] Matt. 10. 1.

8 And commanded them that they should take nothing for their journey, save a staff only; no scrip, no bread, no ‖ money in their purse:

‖ The word signifieth a piece of brass money, in value somewhat less than a farthing, Matt. 10. 9. but here it is taken in general for money.

9 But be shod with sandals; and not put on two coats.

10 And he said unto them, In what place soever ye enter into an house, there abide till ye depart from that place.

[e] Matt. 10. 14.

11 [e] And whosoever shall not receive you, nor hear you, when ye depart thence, [f] shake off the dust under your feet for a testimony against them. Verily I say unto you, It shall be more tolerable for Sodom and Gomorrha in the day of judgment, than for that city.

[f] Acts 13. 51.

Anno DOMINI 31.

12 And they went out, and preached that men should repent.

13 And they cast out many devils, [g] and anointed with oil many that were sick, and healed them.

[g] James 5. 14.

14 [h] And king Herod heard of him; (for his name was spread abroad:) and he said, That John the Baptist was risen from the dead, and therefore mighty works do shew forth themselves in him.

[h] Matt. 14. 1.

15 Others said, That it is Elias. And others said, That it is a prophet, or as one of the prophets.

16 [i] But when Herod heard thereof, he said, It is John, whom I beheaded: he is risen from the dead.

[i] Luke 3. 19.

17 For Herod himself had sent forth and laid hold upon John, and bound him in prison for Herodias' sake, his brother Philip's wife: for he had married her.

A. D. 30.

18 For John had said unto Herod, [k] It is not lawful for thee to have thy brother's wife.

[k] Lev. 18. 16.

19 Therefore Herodias had ‖ a quarrel against him, and would have killed him; but she could not:

‖ Or, an inward grudge.

20 For Herod feared John, knowing that he was a just man and an holy, and ‖ observed him; and when he heard him, he did many things, and heard him gladly.

‖ Or, kept him, or, saved him.

---

4. —A prophet is not without honour, &c.] This was a familiar proverb with the Jews and other nations, and is to be taken in a comparative sense, and with some limitations, as marking what is apt to take place in the ordinary course of things. Beausobre.

5. —he could there do no mighty work,] They were so prejudiced against Him, that they gave Him no opportunity of working miracles. Bp. Mann. Or rather, they wanted that faith which was the condition on which our Saviour thought fit to vouchsafe His mercies; as it was not suitable to the designs of Providence, that those who were so backward to believe, should have many mighty works done among them. Bp. Pearce, Dr. Whitby.

He could not, with propriety and wisdom, perform any miracles among them, on account of their unworthiness. Abp. Newcome.

—— a few sick folk,] Those who had faith enough to induce Him to heal them. Bp. Pearce.

8. And commanded them &c.] On Christ's first instructions to His Apostles, see notes at Matt. x.

10. —there abide &c.] He enjoins them not to go from one house to another to seek for better entertainment, Luke x. 7, 8, but to be content with what they might find in the first house that would receive them. Bp. Mann.

11. —for a testimony against them.] As a testimony of their unbelief, and as a declaration that they are unworthy of intercourse with you: an act which may lead them to reflection. Abp. Newcome.

13. —anointed with oil] It seems to have been customary with the Jews to anoint sick persons with oil, in order to effect their recovery. See James v. 14, 15. The virtues which attended the use of it in the Apostles must have been supernatural, for the cures were certain and constant. Dr. Whitby.

14. And king Herod heard of him;] On the remaining part of this chapter, see notes at Matt. xiv.

15. —one of the prophets.] "One of the old Prophets," Luke ix. 8, particularly the Prophet Jeremiah, Matt. xvi. 14. Dr. Whitby.

19. —had a quarrel against him,] Bore a constant grudge against him: see the margin. Dr. S. Clarke.

20. For Herod feared John,] Although Herod felt the greatest indignation against John, for the freedom he had used in reproaching him for his licentious conduct; yet at the same time the character of that excellent man, his piety, his sanctity, his integrity, his disinterestedness, nay, even the courage which had so much offended and provoked him, commanded his respect and veneration, and excited his fears. Nor is this all; he not only feared John, but in some degree paid court to him. He frequently sent for him out of prison, and conversed with him, and, as the Evangelist expresses it, "observed" him; that is, listened to him with attention and with pleasure; nay, he went further still; "he did many things" which John exhorted and enjoined him to do. He perhaps shewed more attention to many of his publick duties, more gentleness to his subjects, more compassion to the poor, more equity in his judicial determinations, more regard to publick worship; and vainly hoped, perhaps, like many other audacious sinners, that this partial reformation, this half-way amendment, would avert the judgments with which John probably threatened him. But the main point, the great object of John's reprehension, the incestuous adultery in which he lived—that he would not part with; it was too precious, too favourite a sin to give up; too great a sacrifice to make to conscience and to God. What a picture does this hold out to us of that strange thing called human nature, of that inconsistence, that contradiction, that contrariety, which sometimes take place in the heart of man, unsanctified and unsubdued by the power of divine grace! and what an exalted idea at the same time does it give us of the

Anno DOMINI 32.

21 And when [a] convenient day was come, that Herod on his birthday made a supper to his lords, high captains, and chief estates of Galilee;

22 And when the daughter of the said Herodias came in, and danced, and pleased Herod and them that sat with him, the king said unto the damsel, Ask of me whatsoever thou wilt, and I will give it thee.

23 And he sware unto her, Whatsoever thou shalt ask of me, I will give it thee, unto the half of my kingdom.

24 And she went forth, and said unto her mother, What shall I ask? And she said, The head of John the Baptist.

25 And she came in straightway with haste unto the king, and asked, saying, I will that thou give me by and by in a charger the head of John the Baptist.

26 And the king was exceeding sorry; yet for his oath's sake, and for their sakes which sat with him, he would not reject her.

‖ Or, one of his guard.

27 And immediately the king sent ‖ an executioner, and commanded his head to be brought: and he went and beheaded him in the prison,

28 And brought his head in a charger, and gave it to the damsel: and the damsel gave it to her mother.

29 And when his disciples heard of it, they came and took up his corpse, and laid it in a tomb.

[l] Luke 9. 10.

30 [l] And the apostles gathered themselves together unto Jesus, and told him all things, both what they had done, and what they had taught.

31 And he said unto them, Come ye yourselves apart into a desert place, and rest a while: for there were many coming and going, and they had no leisure so much as to eat.

[m] Matt. 14. 13.

32 And [m] they departed into a desert place by ship privately.

33 And the people saw them departing, and many knew him, and ran afoot thither out of all cities, and outwent them, and came together unto him.

Anno DOMINI 32.

34 [n] And Jesus, when he came out, saw much people, and was moved with compassion toward them, because they were as sheep not having a shepherd: and he began to teach them many things.

[n] Matt. 9. 36.

35 [o] And when the day was now far spent, his disciples came unto him, and said, This is a desert place, and now the time is far passed:

[o] Matt. 14. 15.

36 Send them away, that they may go into the country round about, and into the villages, and buy themselves bread: for they have nothing to eat.

37 He answered and said unto them, Give ye them to eat. And they say unto him, Shall we go and buy two hundred ‖ pennyworth of bread, and give them to eat?

‖ The Roman penny is seven pence halfpenny; as Matt. 18. 28.

38 He saith unto them, How many loaves have ye? go and see. And when they knew, they say, Five, and two fishes.

39 And he commanded them to make all sit down by companies upon the green grass.

40 And they sat down in ranks, by hundreds, and by fifties.

41 And when he had taken the five loaves and the two fishes, he looked up to heaven, and blessed, and brake the loaves, and gave them to his disciples to set before them; and the two fishes divided he among them all.

42 And they did all eat, and were filled.

43 And they took up twelve baskets full of the fragments, and of the fishes.

44 And they that did eat of the loaves were about five thousand men.

45 And straightway he constrained his disciples to get into the ship, and to go to the other side before ‖ unto Bethsaida, while he sent away the people.

‖ Or, over against Bethsaida.

46 And when he had sent them away, he departed into a mountain to pray.

[p] Matt. 14. 23.

47 [p] And when even was come, the ship

---

dignity of a truly religious character, like that of John, which compels even its bitterest enemies to reverence and to fear it; and forces even the most profligate and most powerful of men to pay an unwilling homage to excellence, at the very moment perhaps when they are meditating its destruction. Bp. Porteus.

21.—a convenient day] A day favourable to the designs of Herodias. Grotius.

24.—said unto her mother, What shall I ask?] Most mothers, it is probable, on such an occasion, would have asked for a daughter some situation of high rank or power. But Herodias had a passion to gratify, stronger perhaps than any other, when it takes full possession of the human heart, and that was revenge. She had been mortally injured, as she conceived, by the Baptist, who had attempted to break her present infamous connexion with Herod; and accordingly gave way to all the fury of her resentment. Bp. Porteus.

26.—yet for his oath's sake, &c.] Thus, when a deed of extraordinary wickedness was to be perpetrated, he made religion a cover for it. As if wrong became right, when acted in the name of God; and as if it were more acceptable in His sight to massacre a Prophet, than to repent of a rash oath, made at a drunken entertainment. Bp. Horne.

30.—gathered themselves together &c.] They had been sent forth by "two and two," ver. 7, and now were all returned and consequently gathered together. See Luke ix. 10. Bp. Pearce.

37.—two hundred pennyworth] The worth of two hundred Roman denarii, amounting to about £6. 9*s*. 2*d*. of our money. Bp. Pearce.

Anno DOMINI 32.

was in the midst of the sea, and he alone on the land.

48 And he saw them toiling in rowing; for the wind was contrary unto them: and about the fourth watch of the night he cometh unto them, walking upon the sea, and would have passed by them.

49 But when they saw him walking upon the sea, they supposed it had been a spirit, and cried out:

50 For they all saw him, and were troubled. And immediately he talked with them, and saith unto them, Be of good cheer: it is I; be not afraid.

51 And he went up unto them into the ship; and the wind ceased: and they were sore amazed in themselves beyond measure, and wondered.

52 For they considered not the miracle of the loaves: for their heart was hardened.

[q] Matt. 14. 34. 53 [q] And when they had passed over, they came into the land of Gennesaret, and drew to the shore.

54 And when they were come out of the ship, straightway they knew him,

55 And ran through that whole region round about, and began to carry about in beds those that were sick, where they heard he was.

56 And whithersoever he entered, into villages, or cities, or country, they laid the sick in the streets, and besought him that they might touch if it were but the border of his garment: and as many as touched ‖ him were made whole.

‖ Or, it.

CHAP. VII.

1 The Pharisees find fault at the disciples for eating with unwashen hands. 8 They break the commandment of God by the traditions of men. 14 Meat defileth not the man. 24 He healeth the Syrophenician woman's daughter of an unclean spirit, 31 and one that was deaf, and stammered in his speech.

Anno DOMINI 32.

THEN [a] came together unto him the Pharisees, and certain of the scribes, which came from Jerusalem.

[a] Matt. 15. 1.

2 And when they saw some of his disciples eat bread with ‖ defiled, that is to say, with unwashen, hands, they found fault.

‖ Or, common.

3 For the Pharisees, and all the Jews, except they wash their hands ‖ oft, eat not, holding the tradition of the elders.

‖ Or, diligently: in the original, with the fist: Theophylact, up to the elbow.

4 And when they come from the market, except they wash, they eat not. And many other things there be, which they have received to hold, as the washing of cups, and ‖ pots, brasen vessels, and of ‖ tables.

‖ Sextarius is about a pint and an half.

‖ Or, beds.

5 Then the Pharisees and scribes asked him, Why walk not thy disciples according to the tradition of the elders, but eat bread with unwashen hands?

6 He answered and said unto them, Well hath Esaias prophesied of you hypocrites, as it is written, [b] This people honoureth me with their lips, but their heart is far from me.

[b] Isai. 29. 13. Matt. 15. 8.

7 Howbeit in vain do they worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men.

8 For laying aside the commandment of God, ye hold the tradition of men, as the washing of pots and cups: and many other such like things ye do.

9 And he said unto them, Full well ye ‖ reject the commandment of God, that ye may keep your own tradition.

‖ Or, frustrate.

10 For Moses said, Honour thy father and thy mother; and, Whoso curseth father or mother, let him die the death:

---

48. —and would have passed by them.] See Luke xxiv. 28. Thus He gave His disciples time to view Him distinctly and composedly; and St. Peter particularly an opportunity of addressing Him. Abp. Newcome.

52. For they considered not &c.] Their heart was hardened, not from wilful obstinacy, but from the slowness of their apprehension and capacity. They did not consider, as they ought to have done, that nothing could be difficult to power such as that which had performed the miracle of the loaves. Bp. Mann.

54. —they knew him,] The people of those parts knew Him. Bp. Mann.

Chap. VII. ver. 1. Then came together &c.] Respecting the matters contained in this chapter, see notes at Matt. xv.

3. For the Pharisees, &c.] St. Matthew (chap. xv. 1, 2.) recorded this cavil of the Pharisees against the disciples of Jesus for eating with unclean hands; but he does not detail the customs of the Jews which gave the foundation for it, as St. Mark here does. St. Matthew was not only a Jew himself, but it appears from the whole structure of his Gospel, that he wrote for Jews. This explanation therefore, if given by him, would have been unnatural, as not being required by the readers whom he addressed. But in St. Mark, who intended his narrative for general circulation, and who himself travelled to distant countries in the service of Christianity, the explanation here given was most properly added. Archdeacon Paley.

—— wash their hands oft,] The word in the original, here translated "oft," is rendered in the margin "with the fist," with a handful of water. Bp. Pearce. Up to the wrist. Drs. Hammond and Whitby.

4. —from the market,] Or publick place where people assemble themselves; they imagined that they might in such places have contracted a defilement. Bp. Pearce.

—— and of tables.] More properly "couches," on which they reclined at their meals, Lev. xv. 4. These it was their custom to wash, lest any unclean person might have sat on them. Le Clerc.

9. —Full well ye reject &c.] Ye do not only prefer these impositions of men before the commandments of God, to the great neglect and omission of your duty; but ye even directly transgress, and act plainly in contradiction to the commandments of God, when some tradition happens to be contrary to them. Dr. S. Clarke.

Anno DOMINI 32.

11 But ye say, If a man shall say to his father or mother, It is [c] Corban, that is to say, a gift, by whatsoever thou mightest be profited by me; he shall be free.

[c] Matt. 15. 5.

12 And ye suffer him no more to do ought for his father or his mother;

13 Making the word of God of none effect through your tradition, which ye have delivered: and many such like things do ye.

14 ¶ [d] And when he had called all the people unto him, he said unto them, Hearken unto me every one of you, and understand:

[d] Matt. 15. 10.

15 There is nothing from without a man, that entering into him can defile him: but the things which come out of him, those are they that defile the man.

16 If any man have ears to hear, let him hear.

17 And when he was entered into the house from the people, his disciples asked him concerning the parable.

18 And he saith unto them, Are ye so without understanding also? Do ye not perceive, that whatsoever thing from without entereth into the man, it cannot defile him;

19 Because it entereth not into his heart, but into the belly, and goeth out into the draught, purging all meats?

Anno DOMINI 32.

20 And he said, That which cometh out of the man, that defileth the man.

21 [e] For from within, out of the heart of men, proceed evil thoughts, adulteries, fornications, murders, [e] Gen. 6. 5. & 8. 21. Matt. 15. 19.

22 Thefts, covetousness, wickedness, deceit, lasciviousness, an evil eye, blasphemy, pride, foolishness:

23 All these evil things come from within, and defile the man.

24 ¶ [f] And from thence he arose, and went into the borders of Tyre and Sidon, and entered into an house, and would have no man know it: but he could not be hid.

[f] Matt. 15. 21.

25 For a certain woman, whose young daughter had an unclean spirit, heard of him, and came and fell at his feet:

26 The woman was a ‖ Greek, a Syrophenician by nation; and she besought him that he would cast forth the devil out of her daughter.

‖ Or, Gentile.

27 But Jesus said unto her, Let the children first be filled: for it is not meet to take the children's bread, and to cast it unto the dogs.

28 And she answered and said unto him, Yes, Lord: yet the dogs under the table eat of the children's crumbs.

---

12. — ye suffer him no more &c.] Ye pronounce that he is no more bound to do any thing for his father and mother. Bp. Pearce.

22. — an evil eye, &c.] Denoting envy. Drs. Hammond and Whitby. See note at Matt. vi. 22.

—— foolishness:] Put for all foolish and ungoverned passions. Bp. Mann.

26. — a Greek,] According to the Jewish mode of speaking, all the civilized part of mankind except themselves were Greeks. See Acts xix. 10; xx. 21; Rom. i. 16; ii. 9, 10; iii. 9.

This word describes not her country but her religion. She was an idolatress; bred in the principles of that gross idolatry which consisted in the worship of the images of dead men: and because idolatry in this worst form obtained more among the Greeks than the nations of the East, such idolaters, of whatever country they might be, were, by the Jews of this age, called Greeks. Bp. Horsley.

—— a Syrophenician] A native of that part of Phenicia, which was called Syrian Phenicia. Bp. Pearce. See note at Matt. xv. 22.

27. — it is not meet &c.] Our Lord, stifling the emotions of His pity, and dissembling His merciful intentions, answers the wretched suppliant at His feet, as if He were, upon principle, disinclined to grant her request; lest a miracle, wrought in her favour, should be inconsistent with the distinction due to the chosen family. His words, perhaps, in the sense in which He spake them, were rather descriptive of the different situation of the Jews and the Gentiles, at that time, with respect to the degree of religious knowledge they had for many ages severally enjoyed, than of the different rank they held in God's favour. The family of Israel, which, for the general good, was chosen to be the immediate object of His miraculous discipline, enjoyed the high privilege of possessing the light of revelation, while, among the Gentiles, the light of nature itself, in what regards morals and religion, bright as it may shine in the writings of their philosophers, was, to the general mass of mankind, almost extinguished. It was for this advantage which the one enjoyed, and the others were allowed to want, that they might feel at length the dismal consequences of their defection from the worship of their Maker, that they are called collectively, the Jews, "children;" and the Gentiles, "dogs." Bp. Horsley.

28. — Yes, Lord: yet the dogs &c.] How great was that faith, which, when the great mystery was not yet disclosed, when God's secret purpose of a general redemption was not yet opened, was not startled at the sound of this dreadful distinction!—the Israelites, children; the Gentiles, dogs: how great was the faith which was displayed in the humiliation and the firmness of the woman's reply! First, let us observe her humility, her submission to the arrangements of unerring wisdom and justice. She not only admits the reality of the distinction, so unfavourable as it might seem to her own expectations, so mortifying, as it unquestionably was, to her pride, but she also admits the propriety of it. She does not presume to question the equity and justice of it. She reposes in a general persuasion of God's wisdom and goodness; she takes it for granted that a distinction which proceeded from Him must be founded in wisdom, justice, and benevolence; that, however concealed the end of it might be, it must be in some way conducive to the universal good; that it ought therefore to be submitted to with cheerfulness, even by those on whose side the disadvantage for the present lay. Let us next consider her firmness. Hitherto, she had prayed; her prayers met with no encouragement: she ventures now to argue. The principles and frame of her argument are very extraordinary. She argues, from God's general care of the world, against the inference of neglect in particular instances: such was the confidence of her faith in His goodness, that she argues from that general principle of her belief against the shew of severity in her own case. Nor were the grounds of her argument less extraor-

Anno DOMINI 32.

29 And he said unto her, For this saying go thy way; the devil is gone out of thy daughter.

30 And when she was come to her house, she found the devil gone out, and her daughter laid upon the bed.

31 ¶ And again, departing from the coasts of Tyre and Sidon, he came unto the sea of Galilee, through the midst of the coasts of Decapolis.

32 And they bring unto him one that was deaf, and had an impediment in his speech; and they beseech him to put his hand upon him.

33 And he took him aside from the multitude, and put his fingers into his ears, and he spit, and touched his tongue;

34 And looking up to heaven, he sighed, and saith unto him, Ephphatha, that is, Be opened.

35 And straightway his ears were opened, and the string of his tongue was loosed, and he spake plain.

36 And he charged them that they should tell no man: but the more he charged them, so much the more a great deal they published it;

37 And were beyond measure astonished, saying, He hath done all things well: he maketh both the deaf to hear, and the dumb to speak. Anno DOMINI 32.

CHAP. VIII.

1 Christ feedeth the people miraculously: 10 refuseth to give a sign to the Pharisees: 14 admonisheth his disciples to beware of the leaven of the Pharisees, and of the leaven of Herod: 22 giveth a blind man his sight: 27 acknowledgeth that he is the Christ, who should suffer and rise again: 34 and exhorteth to patience in persecution for the profession of the gospel.

IN those days [a] the multitude being very great, and having nothing to eat, Jesus called his disciples unto him, and saith unto them, [a] Matt. 15 32.

2 I have compassion on the multitude, because they have now been with me three days, and have nothing to eat:

3 And if I send them away fasting to their own houses, they will faint by the way: for divers of them came from far.

4 And his disciples answered him, From whence can a man satisfy these men with bread here in the wilderness?

5 And he asked them, How many loaves have ye? And they said, Seven.

6 And he commanded the people to sit down on the ground: and he took the dinary than the drift of it: she avails herself of the distinction which our Lord had Himself alleged, as it should seem, in bar of her petition, to establish a claim upon His mercy. How rare was this example, in a heathen, of resignation to the will of God, of complacency and satisfaction in the general arrangements of His providence, which he is the best Christian who best imitates. The faithful Canaanite thankfully accepts what God is pleased to give, because He gives it; she is contented to fill the place which He assigns to her, because He assigns it, and repines not that another fills a higher station. Bp. Horsley.

---

32. — had an impediment &c.] He was a stammerer, or tongue-tied; or else, it means that he was totally speechless, as may be collected from the words of the Jews, ver. 37, "He maketh the dumb to speak." Dr. Hammond.

33. — put his fingers into his ears,] Although He could have cured him merely by a word, or without any outward action, yet He chose on this, as on many other occasions, to represent the invisible efficacy of His power by outward signs. Dr. S. Clarke.

There are two instances besides this, (see Mark viii. 23—26; John ix. 1—7,) in which our Saviour, in performing a miracle, made use of a deliberate external application to the part which He intended to cure; and, in all these, the reason for employing it seems to have been one and the same; even to convey to the individuals, on whom the miracles were performed, a clear assurance that Jesus was the person, at whose command and by whose agency the cure was wrought, and to enable them to state to others the grounds of this assurance fully and circumstantially. Dr. Graves.

34. — looking up to heaven,] In order to shew the man that he ought to acknowledge all benefits, as proceeding from thence. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— he sighed,] In earnest mental prayer that the man might be restored. See Rom. viii. 26. Abp. Newcome.

36. — charged them that they should tell no man:] See notes at Matt. viii. 4; Mark i. 44. The probable reasons for our Saviour's giving these injunctions of secrecy were, His wish to avoid, as much as possible, the envy and opposition of the Pharisees, which might have proceeded so far as to cause attempts upon His life, before the purposes for which He came into the world were accomplished, and the scheme ordained by Divine wisdom was fulfilled in every part; and also to prevent any sedition or tumult among the people, arising from their mistaken notions of the Messiah, as a temporal king, and victorious deliverer, John vi. 15; by which means He would have become suspected by the civil government, and His enemies would have obtained the advantage they desired. A further reason may have been, His desire of setting an example of humility, of doing good entirely for its own sake, and without any motives of ostentation. Dean Stanhope.

—— the more — they published it;] They thought, it appears, their obligation to extol the goodness of the Lord so indispensable, that even a peremptory command to the contrary was not sufficient to excuse their omission of it. If they must seem to offend, they chose this as the more pardonable method, and preferred the breach of a particular injunction to that of gratitude in general, which nature dictates to all mankind. This example should render us past all excuse, if we, who lie under no such command, should be wanting in the expression of our warmest thankfulness for the great and various mercies which we daily and hourly receive at the hands of God. Dean Stanhope.

37. — were beyond measure astonished,] The Evangelist does not tax their astonishment with extravagance, but only intimates that it was justly carried to a height which no astonishment could exceed. It was not the astonishment of ignorance, it was an astonishment upon principle and reason. It was not the astonishment of persons who saw a thing done which they thought utterly unaccountable; they knew how to account for it; they knew that the finger of God Himself was the efficient cause of what they saw; and to that cause they, without hesitation, yet not hastily and by surprise, but upon the most solid principles of belief, referred it. Bp. Horsley.

—— He hath done all things well:] He hath done all things in that perfect manner, which we expected beforehand that He should do, who was to come to us in the character of our Messiah. Bp. Horsley.

Anno DOMINI 32.

seven loaves, and gave thanks, and brake, and gave to his disciples to set before them; and they did set them before the people.

7 And they had a few small fishes: and he blessed, and commanded to set them also before them.

8 So they did eat, and were filled: and they took up of the broken meat that was left seven baskets.

9 And they that had eaten were about four thousand: and he sent them away.

10 ¶ And straightway he entered into a ship with his disciples, and came into the parts of Dalmanutha.

[b] Matt. 16. 1.

11 [b] And the Pharisees came forth, and began to question with him, seeking of him a sign from heaven, tempting him.

12 And he sighed deeply in his spirit, and saith, Why doth this generation seek after a sign? verily I say unto you, There shall no sign be given unto this generation.

13 And he left them, and entering into the ship again departed to the other side.

[c] Matt. 16. 5.

14 ¶ [c] Now the disciples had forgotten to take bread, neither had they in the ship with them more than one loaf.

15 And he charged them, saying, Take heed, beware of the leaven of the Pharisees, and of the leaven of Herod.

16 And they reasoned among themselves, saying, It is [d] because we have no bread.

[d] Matt. 16. 7.

17 And when Jesus knew it, he saith unto them, Why reason ye, because ye have no bread? perceive ye not yet, neither understand? have ye your heart yet hardened?

Anno DOMINI 32.

18 Having eyes, see ye not? and having ears, hear ye not? and do ye not remember?

19 When I brake the five loaves among five thousand, how many baskets full of fragments took ye up? They say unto him, Twelve.

20 And when the seven among four thousand, how many baskets full of fragments took ye up? And they said, Seven.

21 And he said unto them, How is it that ye do not understand?

22 ¶ And he cometh to Bethsaida; and they bring a blind man unto him, and besought him to touch him.

23 And he took the blind man by the hand, and led him out of the town; and when he had spit on his eyes, and put his hands upon him, he asked him if he saw ought.

24 And he looked up, and said, I see men as trees, walking.

25 After that he put his hands again upon his eyes, and made him look up: and he was restored, and saw every man clearly.

26 And he sent him away to his house, saying, Neither go into the town, nor tell it to any in the town.

[e] Matt. 16. 13.

27 ¶ [e] And Jesus went out, and his disciples, into the towns of Cesarea Philippi: and by the way he asked his disciples, saying unto them, Whom do men say that I am?

28 And they answered, John the Bap-

Chap. VIII. ver. 8. So they did eat, and were filled:] While we gladly wonder at this miracle of our Saviour in multiplying the loaves, let us well reflect upon our own condition. Whence is it that we obtain our continual provision for our wants? One and the same munificent hand doeth all. If the Israelites were fed with manna in the desert, and with corn in Canaan, both were done by the same power and bounty. If the disciples were fed by the loaves multiplied, and we are fed by grain multiplied in the earth, both are the act of one Omnipotence. What is this, but a perpetual miracle, which Thou, O God, workest for our preservation? Without Thee, there is no more power in the grain to multiply, than in the loaf. It is Thou that givest it a body at Thy pleasure, and to every seed his own body. It is no reason that Thy goodness should be less the subject of our praises, because it is universal. Neither yet, O God and Saviour, is Thy hand closed with the gift of outward blessings. What abundance of heavenly doctrine dost Thou set before us; not according to our meanness, but according to Thy state, are we fed: we are full of Thy goodness; O let our hearts run over with thankfulness. Bp. Hall. See notes at Matt. xiv. 21.

10. — the parts of Dalmanutha.] See the note at Matt. xv. 29.

11. And the Pharisees &c.] Respecting what follows, see further notes at Matt. xvi.

12. And he sighed deeply &c.] He "sighed deeply," from a knowledge of their incurable hypocrisy and malice, and said, What a perverse generation is this, that, after so many miracles wrought amongst them, they will yet believe nothing unless they see a sign from heaven of their own choosing. No such sign shall be granted to satisfy their unreasonable and perverse curiosity. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— no sign be given] No such sign as they now require shall be given to this wicked race of men. Abp. Newcome. See notes at Matt. xii. 38, 39; xvi. 1.

15. — the leaven of Herod. &c.] St. Matthew, at chap. xvi. 6, calls it, "the leaven of the Sadducees:" whence it may be concluded that the party of Herod, or the Herodians, were Sadducees. Bp. Pearce.

17. — Why reason ye, &c.] Why are your minds so full of solicitous thoughts upon your having forgotten to bring bread with you? Will you never be taught, by the great and repeated miracles which I have wrought before your eyes, to understand My power and to rely upon Me? or do you never regard or remember what you see? Dr. S. Clarke.

—— yet hardened?] Or unconvinced by these miracles. Dr. Whitby.

23. — led him out of the town;] Knowing the impenitence and unworthiness of the people of Bethsaida, Matt. xi. 21. Dr. S. Clarke.

24. — I see men as trees, walking.] Implying that he saw them indistinctly, not discerning their form. Abp. Newcome.

26. — the town,] Bethsaida. See note at ver. 23.

27. — the towns of Cesarea Philippi:] The towns or villages, which were round about Cesarea Philippi. Bp. Pearce.

Anno DOMINI 32.

tist: but some say, Elias; and others, One of the prophets.

29 And he saith unto them, But whom say ye that I am? And Peter answereth and saith unto him, Thou art the Christ.

30 And he charged them that they should tell no man of him.

31 And he began to teach them, that the Son of man must suffer many things, and be rejected of the elders, and of the chief priests, and scribes, and be killed, and after three days rise again.

32 And he spake that saying openly. And Peter took him, and began to rebuke him.

33 But when he had turned about and looked on his disciples, he rebuked Peter, saying, Get thee behind me, Satan: for thou savourest not the things that be of God, but the things that be of men.

34 ¶ And when he had called the people unto him with his disciples also, he said unto them, [f] Whosoever will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me.

[f] Matt. 10. 38.

35 For whosoever will save his life shall lose it; but whosoever shall lose his life for my sake and the gospel's, the same shall save it.

36 For what shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?

37 Or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?

[g] Matt. 10. 33.

38 [g] Whosoever therefore shall be ashamed of me and of my words in this adulterous and sinful generation; of him also shall the Son of man be ashamed, when he cometh in the glory of his Father with the holy angels.

CHAP. IX.

2 Jesus is transfigured. 11 He instructeth his disciples concerning the coming of Elias: 14 casteth forth a dumb and deaf spirit: 30 foretelleth his death and resurrection: 33 exhorteth his disciples to humility: 38 bidding them not to prohibit such as be not against them, nor to give offence to any of the faithful.

AND he said unto them, [a] Verily I say unto you, That there be some of them that stand here, which shall not taste of death, till they have seen the kingdom of God come with power.

Anno DOMINI 32.

[a] Matt. 16. 28.

2 ¶ [b] And after six days Jesus taketh with him Peter, and James, and John, and leadeth them up into an high mountain apart by themselves: and he was transfigured before them.

[b] Matt. 17. 1.

3 And his raiment became shining, exceeding white as snow; so as no fuller on earth can white them.

4 And there appeared unto them Elias with Moses: and they were talking with Jesus.

5 And Peter answered and said to Jesus, Master, it is good for us to be here: and let us make three tabernacles; one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias.

6 For he wist not what to say; for they were sore afraid.

7 And there was a cloud that overshadowed them: and a voice came out of the cloud, saying, This is my beloved Son: hear him.

8 And suddenly, when they had looked round about, they saw no man any more, save Jesus only with themselves.

9 And as they came down from the mountain, he charged them that they should tell no man what things they had seen, till the Son of man were risen from the dead.

10 And they kept that saying with themselves, questioning one with another what the rising from the dead should mean.

11 ¶ And they asked him, saying, Why say the scribes that Elias must first come?

12 And he answered and told them, Elias verily cometh first, and restoreth all things; and [c] how it is written of the Son of man, that he must suffer many things, and be set at nought.

[c] Isai. 53. 2, &c.

13 But I say unto you, That Elias is indeed come, and they have done unto him whatsoever they listed, as it is written of him.

32. — he spake that saying openly.] He informed them of this truth plainly and expressly, judging it a fit occasion to acquaint them with His approaching humiliation and sufferings, when they had just declared their belief of His greatness and power, and were full of too great expectations that He would suddenly make some glorious manifestation of it. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— began to rebuke him.] See his words at Matt. xvi. 22.

Chap. IX. ver. 1. And he said unto them, &c.] On the matters contained in this chapter, see further notes at Matt xvi. 28; xvii. 1—8; and other passages referred to in the margin.

—— which shall not taste of death, &c.] Which shall live to see the kingdom of the Messiah begin to be gloriously established, by the terrible destruction of His enemies, and by the wonderful success and propagation of the Gospel, with great and glorious manifestations of the Divine power. Dr. S. Clarke.

6. — he wist not what to say;] He was overcome by the different passions of fear and joy, so that he did not consider the impropriety of what he said. Bp. Mann.

10. — what the rising from the dead should mean.] They questioned not the general resurrection, for that all the Pharisees believed, Acts xxiv. 15; nor could they be ignorant of the meaning of the raising of a particular person from the dead, for they had seen an example of it at the gates of the city Nain; but, being taught out of their law, that "Christ was to abide for ever," John xii. 34, they knew not how to reconcile this with His death and resurrection which He foretold. Dr. Whitby.

Anno DOMINI 32.

14 ¶ [d] And when he came to his disciples, he saw a great multitude about them, and the scribes questioning with them.

[d] Matt. 17. 14.

15 And straightway all the people, when they beheld him, were greatly amazed, and running to him saluted him.

16 And he asked the scribes, What question ye ‖ with them?

‖ Or, among yourselves?

17 And one of the multitude answered and said, Master, I have brought unto thee my son, which hath a dumb spirit;

18 And wheresoever he taketh him, he ‖ teareth him: and he foameth, and gnasheth with his teeth, and pineth away: and I spake to thy disciples that they should cast him out; and they could not.

‖ Or, dasheth him.

19 He answereth him, and saith, O faithless generation, how long shall I be with you? how long shall I suffer you? bring him unto me.

20 And they brought him unto him: and when he saw him, straightway the spirit tare him; and he fell on the ground, and wallowed foaming.

21 And he asked his father, How long is it ago since this came unto him? And he said, Of a child.

22 And ofttimes it hath cast him into the fire, and into the waters, to destroy him: but if thou canst do any thing, have compassion on us, and help us.

23 Jesus said unto him, If thou canst believe, all things are possible to him that believeth.

24 And straightway the father of the child cried out, and said with tears, Lord, I believe; help thou mine unbelief.

25 When Jesus saw that the people came running together, he rebuked the foul spirit, saying unto him, Thou dumb and deaf spirit, I charge thee, come out of him, and enter no more into him.

26 And the spirit cried, and rent him sore, and came out of him: and he was as one dead; insomuch that many said, He is dead.

Anno DOMINI 32.

27 But Jesus took him by the hand, and lifted him up; and he arose.

28 And when he was come into the house, his disciples asked him privately, Why could not we cast him out?

29 And he said unto them, This kind can come forth by nothing, but by prayer and fasting.

30 ¶ [e] And they departed thence, and passed through Galilee; and he would not that any man should know it.

[e] Matt. 17. 22.

31 For he taught his disciples, and said unto them, The Son of man is delivered into the hands of men, and they shall kill him; and after that he is killed, he shall rise the third day.

32 But they understood not that saying, and were afraid to ask him.

33 ¶ [f] And he came to Capernaum: and being in the house he asked them, What was it that ye disputed among yourselves by the way?

[f] Matt. 18. 1.

34 But they held their peace: for by the way they had disputed among themselves, who should be the greatest.

35 And he sat down, and called the twelve, and saith unto them, If any man desire to be first, the same shall be last of all, and servant of all.

36 And he took a child, and set him in the midst of them: and when he had taken him in his arms, he said unto them,

37 Whosoever shall receive one of such children in my name, receiveth me: and whosoever shall receive me, receiveth not me, but him that sent me.

38 ¶ [g] And John answered him, saying, Master, we saw one casting out devils in thy name, and he followeth not us: and we forbad him, because he followeth not us.

[g] Luke 9. 49.

---

15. — were greatly amazed,] Surprised and overjoyed at His quick return. Dr. S. Clarke. Or, perhaps, some remains of the glory remained on His countenance after His transfiguration, as was the case with Moses on descending from mount Sinai, Exod. xxxiv. 29. Bp. Pearce.

17. — which hath a dumb spirit;] He was deaf as well as dumb, ver. 25. At Matt. xvii. 15, he is called a lunatick. Bp. Pearce. See note there.

18. — he teareth him:] Convulses him violently. Dr. S. Clarke.

23. — If thou canst believe,] If thou have but true faith, there is nothing so difficult which God is not able and willing to do, for those who sincerely and heartily believe on Him. Dr. S. Clarke.

24. And straightway the father &c.] This struggle in the father's heart, between solicitude for the preservation of his child, and a kind of involuntary distrust of Christ's power to heal him, is here expressed with an air of reality which could hardly be counterfeited. Archdeacon Paley.

30. — would not that any man should know it.] He chose to conceal Himself from the multitude; for His thoughts and discourse were employed upon His sufferings; and to pursue these reflections and instructions He desired leisure and privacy. Abp. Newcome.

32. — they understood not] Having their minds still intent on worldly prosperity. Dr. S. Clarke.

34. — who should be the greatest.] St. Matthew adds, "in the kingdom of heaven."

38. And John answered &c.] It appears that these three verses, 38, 39, 40, are inserted in the midst of Christ's speech, ver. 37—41. St. Matthew and St. Mark observed a regular order of narration less than the other Evangelists. Le Clerc.

—— one casting out — in thy name,] Perhaps this was one of St. John the Baptist's disciples, to whom the gift of miracles might be granted, in order to prepare the way for the Messiah. Dr. Whitby.

Anno DOMINI 32.

39 But Jesus said, Forbid him not: [h] for there is no man which shall do a miracle in my name, that can lightly speak evil of me.

[h] 1 Cor. 12. 3.

40 For he that is not against us is on our part.

[i] Matt. 10. 42.

41 [i] For whosoever shall give you a cup of water to drink in my name, because ye belong to Christ, verily I say unto you, he shall not lose his reward.

[k] Matt. 18. 6.

42 [k] And whosoever shall offend one of these little ones that believe in me, it is better for him that a milstone were hanged about his neck, and he were cast into the sea.

[l] Matt. 5. 29. & 18. 8. ‖ Or, cause thee to offend.

43 [l] And if thy hand ‖ offend thee, cut it off: it is better for thee to enter into life maimed, than having two hands to go into hell, into the fire that never shall be quenched:

[m] Isai. 66. 24.

44 [m] Where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched.

45 And if thy foot offend thee, cut it off: it is better for thee to enter halt into life, than having two feet to be cast into hell, into the fire that never shall be quenched:

46 Where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched.

‖ Or, cause thee to offend.

47 And if thine eye ‖ offend thee, pluck it out: it is better for thee to enter into the kingdom of God with one eye, than having two eyes to be cast into hell fire:

Anno DOMINI 32.

48 Where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched.

49 For every one shall be salted with fire, [n] and every sacrifice shall be salted with salt.

[n] Lev. 2. 13.

50 [o] Salt is good: but if the salt have lost his saltness, wherewith will ye season it? Have salt in yourselves, and have peace one with another.

[o] Matt. 5. 13.

CHAP. X.

2 Christ disputeth with the Pharisees touching divorcement: 13 blesseth the children that are brought unto him: 17 resolveth a rich man how he may inherit life everlasting: 23 telleth his disciples of the danger of riches: 28 promiseth rewards to them that forsake any thing for the gospel: 32 foretelleth his death and resurrection: 35 biddeth the two ambitious suitors to think rather of suffering with him: 46 and restoreth to Bartimeus his sight.

A.D. 33.

AND [a] he arose from thence, and cometh into the coasts of Judea by the farther side of Jordan: and the people resort unto him again; and, as he was wont, he taught them again.

[a] Matt. 19. 1.

2 ¶ And the Pharisees came to him, and asked him, Is it lawful for a man to put away his wife? tempting him.

3 And he answered and said unto them, What did Moses command you?

39.—Forbid him not: for &c.] Ye ought not to discourage any one whom you find promoting the doctrine of the Gospel: for assuredly he has some respect and honour for Me; it can hardly be, that one who casts out devils in My name, should speak evil of that name by which he performs his miracles. Dr. S. Clarke.

41.—shall give you a cup of water to drink in my name,] In our temperate climate we scarcely understand the full force of this expression of our Saviour; but in hot Eastern climates, a cup of cold water is often a very essential relief and refreshment. In some parts of the East, considerable pains and expense have been bestowed on contrivances to supply travellers with water, and these are always considered as works of peculiar benevolence. It is remarkable, that it is mentioned of the Hindoos in some parts of India, that they sometimes go a considerable distance to fetch water, and bring it to the road side, where travellers are likely to pass, and offer it to them 'in honour of the gods.' It is possible that this charitable work may have been practised by the more pious and humane Jews; which would give peculiar meaning to the expression, that, if they offered it in His name, they should not lose their reward. Harmer.

45.—into the fire that never shall &c.] Into that place of eternal torment, where will be nothing but fruitless remorse and endless punishment. Dr. S. Clarke. Respecting hell or Gehenna, see notes at Isai. xxx. 33; lxvi. 24.

46.—their worm dieth not, &c.] Allusion seems here to be made to the worms which preyed upon the unconsumed carcases in the valley of Hinnom. From these sensible images our Saviour described hell, as from the sensible image of reclining on Abraham's bosom, &c. He described heaven. By the expression "that dieth not," He sufficiently marks the duration of the punishment of the wicked. Bp. Lowth.

49. For every one shall be salted &c.] This passage is confessedly difficult. For, in the present state of things, he that will offer himself to the service of God must expect to fall a sacrifice to the fire of persecution. As, therefore, every sacrifice is first prepared with salt, before it is consumed by fire; so ye must first hold yourselves prepared by the salt of a spiritual life, to sacrifice all the honours and advantages of the world. Bp. Mann. The afflictions and painful sacrifices, which the practice of piety and the profession of true Christianity cost, are here compared to fire, and to a fire which, with respect to the soul, has the same virtue and use that salt has with respect to meats; namely, the prevention of corruption. This sentence does not refer to the verse immediately preceding, but to the precept (ver. 43, &c.) of cutting off and parting with every thing that is an obstacle to salvation. Beausobre. Or, according to other opinions, the term "every one" refers to the preceding verse, and means every wicked man. Every wicked man shall be salted or seasoned with fire itself, so as to become unconsumable, and shall endure for ever to be tormented. Dr. Lightfoot. Or, every wicked man shall be consumed by fire, as every sacrifice is salted by salt. Dr. S. Clarke.

50. Salt is good:] See notes on Matt. v. 13.

——Have salt in yourselves,] That is, be examples of every virtue, particularly of humility and brotherly love, to those whom ye are to instruct and convert—"and have peace one with another." He seems to refer to the dispute which the Apostles had, ver. 33, 34, respecting which of them should be the greatest. Bp. Pearce.

By salt is meant grace, spiritual wisdom, and virtue; and, if that do but rule and sway in our hearts, we shall then endeavour "to live peaceably with all men." If we have salt in ourselves, that is, if we be wise, we shall then certainly "have peace one with another." Abp. Tillotson.

Chap. X. ver. 1, And he arose from thence, &c.] For further notes on the matters contained in this chapter, see Matt. xix, xx, and other passages referred to in the margin.

2.—tempting him.] Trying to ensnare Him with captious questions. Dr. S. Clarke.

Anno DOMINI 33.

4 And they said, Moses suffered to write a bill of divorcement, and to put her away.

5 And Jesus answered and said unto them, For the hardness of your heart he wrote you this precept.

6 But from the beginning of the creation God made them male and female.

7 For this cause shall a man leave his father and mother, and cleave to his wife;

8 And they twain shall be one flesh: so then they are no more twain, but one flesh.

9 What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder.

10 And in the house his disciples asked him again of the same matter.

[b] Matt. 5. 32. & 19. 9.

11 And he saith unto them, [b] Whosoever shall put away his wife, and marry another, committeth adultery against her.

12 And if a woman shall put away her husband, and be married to another, she committeth adultery.

[c] Matt. 19. 13.

13 ¶ [c] And they brought young children to him, that he should touch them: and his disciples rebuked those that brought them.

14 But when Jesus saw it, he was much displeased, and said unto them, Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not: for of such is the kingdom of God.

15 Verily I say unto you, Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child, he shall not enter therein.

16 And he took them up in his arms, put his hands upon them, and blessed them.

[d] Matt. 19. 16.

17 ¶ [d] And when he was gone forth into the way, there came one running, and kneeled to him, and asked him, Good Master, what shall I do that I may inherit eternal life?

18 And Jesus said unto him, Why callest thou me good? there is none good but one, that is, God.

Anno DOMINI 33.

19 Thou knowest the commandments, Do not commit adultery, Do not kill, Do not steal, Do not bear false witness, Defraud not, Honour thy father and mother.

20 And he answered and said unto him, Master, all these have I observed from my youth.

21 Then Jesus beholding him loved him, and said unto him, One thing thou lackest: go thy way, sell whatsoever thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven: and come, take up the cross, and follow me.

22 And he was sad at that saying, and went away grieved: for he had great possessions.

23 ¶ And Jesus looked round about, and saith unto his disciples, How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God!

24 And the disciples were astonished at his words. But Jesus answereth again, and saith unto them, Children, how hard is it for them that trust in riches to enter into the kingdom of God!

25 It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God.

26 And they were astonished out of measure, saying among themselves, Who then can be saved?

27 And Jesus looking upon them saith, With men it is impossible, but not with God: for with God all things are possible.

[e] Matt. 19. 27.

28 ¶ [e] Then Peter began to say unto

---

11. — shall put away his wife,] It is remarkable, that St. Mark here, and St. Luke at chap. xvi. 18, mention no exception made to this precept; and St. Paul, at 1 Cor. vii. 10, 11, seems to do the same; whereas St. Matthew, both in chap. v. 32, and in xix. 9, has added, "except it be for fornication," which in a wife is adultery. This difference is very important; but, as St. Matthew is generally more exact and precise in material points than the other Evangelists, it is probable that the exception, which he has inserted, is to be understood, though not expressed, in these corresponding passages of St. Mark and St. Luke. Bp. Pearce.

12. — if a woman shall put away her husband,] The practice of divorcing the husband, unwarranted by the law, had been, as Josephus informs us, introduced by Salome, sister of Herod the Great, who sent a bill of divorce to her husband; which example was afterwards followed by others. By law it was the husband's prerogative to dissolve the marriage; and the bill of divorce, which he was enjoined to give her, was to serve as an evidence that she had not deserted her husband, but that she was dismissed by him, and was consequently free. Dr. Campbell.

13. — his disciples rebuked those that brought them.] The disciples probably thought, that, as their Master came into the world to instruct men in the most momentous concerns, to explain and improve the law, to call sinners to repentance, to shew forth His power by working miracles, it could not be proper for so great a Prophet, the Messiah, the Son of God, to condescend to spend His valuable time in laying hands on young children. Dr. Jortin.

14. — of such is the kingdom &c.] That is, whoever will be My disciple, must embrace My doctrine with the purity and simplicity of a child. Bp. Mann. The kingdom of God here means the Church of Christ, into which they who are admitted are entitled, if they observe His precepts, to eternal life in the world to come: to enter into the kingdom of God is to be a true disciple of Jesus Christ. Dr. Jortin.

19. — Defraud not,] The expression here of defrauding seems to refer to the withholding, in any way, from another that which is his due. Bp. Pearce.

21. — loved him,] Approved these gracious beginnings in him. Dr. Hammond. Approved of him with expressions of outward kindness and friendship for his care of his parents and other good deeds. Dr. Lightfoot.

24. — for them that trust in riches] See notes at Matt. xix. 23, &c. These words, given by St. Mark only, and not by the other Evangelists, give a clear interpretation of the whole passage. Abp. Newcome.

Anno DOMINI 33.

him, Lo, we have left all, and have followed thee.

29 And Jesus answered and said, Verily I say unto you, There is no man that hath left house, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my sake, and the gospel's, 30 But he shall receive an hundredfold now in this time, houses, and brethren, and sisters, and mothers, and children, and lands, with persecutions; and in the world to come eternal life.

[f] Matt. 19. 30.

31 [f] But many that are first shall be last; and the last first.

[g] Matt. 20. 17.

32 ¶ [g] And they were in the way going up to Jerusalem; and Jesus went before them: and they were amazed; and as they followed, they were afraid. And he took again the twelve, and began to tell them what things should happen unto him,

33 Saying, Behold, we go up to Jerusalem; and the Son of man shall be delivered unto the chief priests, and unto the scribes; and they shall condemn him to death, and shall deliver him to the Gentiles:

34 And they shall mock him, and shall scourge him, and shall spit upon him, and shall kill him: and the third day he shall rise again.

[h] Matt. 20. 20.

35 ¶ [h] And James and John, the sons of Zebedee, come unto him, saying, Master, we would that thou shouldest do for us whatsoever we shall desire.

36 And he said unto them, What would ye that I should do for you?

37 They said unto him, Grant unto us that we may sit, one on thy right hand, and the other on thy left hand, in thy glory.

38 But Jesus said unto them, Ye know not what ye ask: can ye drink of the cup that I drink of? and be baptized with the baptism that I am baptized with?

39 And they say unto him, We can. And Jesus said unto them, Ye shall indeed drink of the cup that I drink of; and with the baptism that I am baptized withal shall ye be baptized:

Anno DOMINI 33.

40 But to sit on my right hand and on my left hand is not mine to give; but it shall be given to them for whom it is prepared.

41 And when the ten heard it, they began to be much displeased with James and John.

42 But Jesus called them to him, and saith unto them, [i] Ye know that they which ‖ are accounted to rule over the Gentiles exercise lordship over them; and their great ones exercise authority upon them.

[i] Luke 22. 25.
‖ Or, think good.

43 But so shall it not be among you: but whosoever will be great among you, shall be your minister:

44 And whosoever of you will be the chiefest, shall be servant of all.

45 For even the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many.

[k] Matt. 20. 29.

46 ¶ [k] And they came to Jericho: and as he went out of Jericho with his disciples and a great number of people, blind Bartimeus, the son of Timeus, sat by the highway side begging.

47 And when he heard that it was Jesus of Nazareth, he began to cry out, and say, Jesus, thou son of David, have mercy on me.

48 And many charged him that he should hold his peace: but he cried the more a great deal, Thou son of David, have mercy on me.

49 And Jesus stood still, and commanded him to be called. And they call the blind man, saying unto him, Be of good comfort, rise; he calleth thee.

50 And he, casting away his garment, rose, and came to Jesus.

---

30. —he shall receive &c.] He shall possess, even in the midst of persecutions, such comfort and satisfaction of mind, such love and assistance from all good men, and such peace and joy by the continual influence of the Spirit of God, as will, even in the present life, be a hundred times better for him, than all the advantages and possessions from which he is obliged to part. Dr. S. Clarke.

32. —they were amazed;] They were amazed at His voluntarily exposing Himself to danger, which He formerly seemed to decline; the chief priests, &c. resolving to put Him to death, John xi. 53, and having issued orders to have Him apprehended. Dr. Whitby.

35. And James and John, &c.] Their mother spake for them. See note at Matt. xx. 20.

37. —Grant unto us that we may sit, &c.] These two disciples were not so disciplined by their continual conversation with Christ, hearing His heavenly doctrine, seeing His divine behaviour, but that their minds were still roving after temporal honours. Pride is the inmost coat, which we put off last, and put on first. Who can wonder to see some sparks of weak and worldly desires in the most holy of men, when the blessed Apostles were not free from some ambitious thoughts, while they sat at the feet, yea, in the bosom, of their Saviour? Bp. Hall.

39. —Ye shall indeed drink] How wonderful is the mildness of the Son of God! He does not chide the two disciples, either for their ambition in suing, or for their presumption in undertaking; but, leaving the worst, He notices the best part of their answer; and, omitting their errours, He encourages their good intentions. Bp. Hall.

46. —the son of Timeus,] This is an explanation of the name Bartimeus, which means, "son of Timeus" in the Syriack.

50. —casting away his garment,] His cloak or loose upper garment, that he might make the greater haste to come to Jesus. Bp. Pearce.

Anno DOMINI 33.

51 And Jesus answered and said unto him, What wilt thou that I should do unto thee? The blind man said unto him, Lord, that I might receive my sight.

52 And Jesus said unto him, Go thy way; thy faith hath ‖ made thee whole. And immediately he received his sight, and followed Jesus in the way.

‖ Or, saved thee.

CHAP. XI.

1 Christ rideth with triumph into Jerusalem: 12 curseth the fruitless leafy tree: 15 purgeth the temple: 20 exhorteth his disciples to stedfastness of faith, and to forgive their enemies: 27 and defendeth the lawfulness of his actions, by the witness of John, who was a man sent of God.

[a] Matt. 21. 1.

AND [a] when they came nigh to Jerusalem, unto Bethphage and Bethany, at the mount of Olives, he sendeth forth two of his disciples,

2 And saith unto them, Go your way into the village over against you: and as soon as ye be entered into it, ye shall find a colt tied, whereon never man sat; loose him, and bring him.

3 And if any man say unto you, Why do ye this? say ye that the Lord hath need of him; and straightway he will send him hither.

4 And they went their way, and found the colt tied by the door without in a place where two ways met; and they loose him.

5 And certain of them that stood there said unto them, What do ye, loosing the colt?

6 And they said unto them even as Jesus had commanded: and they let them go.

7 And they brought the colt to Jesus, and cast their garments on him; and he sat upon him. Anno DOMINI 33.

8 And many spread their garments in the way: and others cut down branches off the trees, and strawed them in the way.

9 And they that went before, and they that followed, cried, saying, Hosanna; Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord:

10 Blessed be the kingdom of our father David, that cometh in the name of the Lord: Hosanna in the highest.

11 And Jesus entered into Jerusalem, and into the temple: and when he had looked round about upon all things, and now the eventide was come, he went out unto Bethany with the twelve.

12 ¶ And on the morrow, when they were come from Bethany, he was hungry:

13 [b] And seeing a fig tree afar off having leaves, he came, if haply he might find any thing thereon: and when he came to it, he found nothing but leaves; for the time of figs was not yet. [b] Matt. 21. 19.

14 And Jesus answered and said unto it, No man eat fruit of thee hereafter for ever. And his disciples heard it.

15 ¶ [c] And they come to Jerusalem: and Jesus went into the temple, and began to cast out them that sold and bought in the temple, and overthrew the tables of the moneychangers, and the seats of them that sold doves; [c] Matt. 21. 12.

16 And would not suffer that any man should carry any vessel through the temple.

17 And he taught, saying unto them, Is it not written, My house shall be called of Chap. XI. ver. 1. And when they came nigh &c.] For further notes, see the passages of Matt. xxi. referred to in the margin.

---

2. — whereon never man sat;] This circumstance was not mentioned in St. Matthew's account, Matt. xxi. 1, 2.

6. — they let them go.] The ass and the colt. "And they brought the colt," ver. 7, together with the ass, Matt. xxi. 7. Bp. Pearce.

10. Blessed be the kingdom &c.] That is, May the kingdom be happily begun and flourish, which God is to erect, according to His promise made to our father David; let prosperity be from heaven to the king Messiah, and to His kingdom. Dr. Whitby.

13. — a fig tree — having leaves.] The fig tree, in climates favourable to it, produces generally its fruit twice a year. In Judea, the early fig is ripe about June; the second regular crop is seldom ripe before August; besides this, there appears also sometimes a third crop, or the winter fig, which hangs to ripen on the tree after the leaves are shed; and if the winter proves mild, is gathered in the spring. The time at which this transaction took place was in the month Nisan, three days before the passover, answering to our March or April. As the fruit of this tree precedes the leaves, it appears that our Saviour, on seeing this in full vigour and covered with leaves, might justly look for fruit; either a few ripe figs of the early crop some weeks before the proper season, or else some winter figs remaining on the tree. Dr. Shaw.

— for the time of figs was not yet.] The time of gathering figs was not yet come.

14. — No man eat fruit of thee hereafter for ever.] The moral of this action of our Saviour cannot easily be mistaken. The tree, which seemed to be in a flourishing condition, and to promise fruit, and yet had nothing besides leaves, was an exact figure of the Jews. They had a Divine revelation to guide them, by which they were distinguished from all nations, they had the publick worship of God established amongst them, they had the appearance of sanctity and religion, but all was outside shew, hypocrisy and dissimulation, without any solid and substantial goodness: they had nothing besides leaves, and therefore, by a just judgment, that which they had was to be taken from them. As the deceitful tree, at the rebuke of Christ, sickened, and drooped, and withered, and died away; so their national distinction and privilege, their temple, their publick legal worship, of which they made so poor a use, were to be no longer continued to them; their city also was to be destroyed, their country made desolate, and themselves either cut off in a miserable manner, or driven and dispersed over the face of the earth. Dr. Jortin.

16. — any vessel through the temple.] See Lev. xix. 30; Deut. xii. 5.

17. — My house shall be called &c.] There is a reverence due to God's house for the owner's sake, for the service's sake: secular all nations the house of prayer? but ye have made it a den of thieves.

Anno DOMINI 33.

18 And the scribes and chief priests heard it, and sought how they might destroy him: for they feared him, because all the people was astonished at his doctrine.

19 And when even was come, he went out of the city.

[a] Matt. 21. 19. 20 ¶ [d] And in the morning, as they passed by, they saw the fig tree dried up from the roots.

21 And Peter calling to remembrance saith unto him, Master, behold, the fig tree which thou cursedst is withered away.

22 And Jesus answering saith unto them, ‖ Have faith in God.

‖ Or, Have the faith of God.

23 For verily I say unto you, That whosoever shall say unto this mountain, Be thou removed, and be thou cast into the sea; and shall not doubt in his heart, but shall believe that those things which he saith shall come to pass; he shall have whatsoever he saith.

[c] Matt. 7. 7. 24 Therefore I say unto you, [e] What things soever ye desire, when ye pray, believe that ye receive them, and ye shall have them.

[f] Matt. 6. 14. 25 And when ye stand praying, [f] forgive, if ye have ought against any: that your Father also which is in heaven may forgive you your trespasses.

26 But if ye do not forgive, neither will your Father which is in heaven forgive your trespasses.

27 ¶ And they come again to Jerusalem: [g] Matt. 21. 23. [g] and as he was walking in the temple, there come to him the chief priests, and the scribes, and the elders,

28 And say unto him, By what authority doest thou these things? and who gave thee this authority to do these things?

29 And Jesus answered and said unto them, I will also ask of you one ‖ question, and answer me, and I will tell you by what authority I do these things.

Anno DOMINI 33.

‖ Or, thing.

30 The baptism of John, was it from heaven, or of men? answer me.

31 And they reasoned with themselves, saying, If we shall say, From heaven; he will say, Why then did ye not believe him?

32 But if we shall say, Of men; they feared the people: for all men counted John, that he was a prophet indeed.

33 And they answered and said unto Jesus, We cannot tell. And Jesus answering saith unto them, Neither do I tell you by what authority I do these things.

CHAP. XII.

1 In a parable of the vineyard let out to unthankful husbandmen, Christ foretelleth the reprobation of the Jews, and the calling of the Gentiles. 13 He avoideth the snare of the Pharisees and Herodians about paying tribute to Cesar: 18 convinceth the error of the Sadducees, who denied the resurrection: 28 resolveth the scribe, who questioned of the first commandment: 35 refuteth the opinion that the scribes held of Christ: 38 bidding the people to beware of their ambition and hypocrisy: 41 and commendeth the poor widow for her two mites, above all.

AND [a] he began to speak unto them by parables. A certain man planted a vineyard, and set an hedge about it, and digged a place for the wine fat, and built a tower, and let it out to husbandmen, and went into a far country.

[a] Matt. 21. 33.

2 And at the season he sent to the husbandmen a servant, that he might receive from the husbandmen of the fruit of the vineyard.

3 And they caught him, and beat him, and sent him away empty.

4 And again he sent unto them another servant; and at him they cast stones, and and profane actions are not fit for that sacred roof. What but holiness can become that place which is the beauty of holiness? Bp. Hall. See Isai. lvi. 7.

---

18. — sought how they might destroy him:] St. Luke adds, chap. xix. 48, "but could not find what they might do:" "for," as is here added, "they feared Him;" they were afraid of seizing Him in publick, because of the people. Bp. Pearce.

22, 23. — Have faith in God. For verily I say unto you, &c.] Among the reasons which may be assigned for Christ's requiring this high degree of faith from His followers, are these. The Apostles were to be employed in preaching the Gospel, and confirming it by wonderful works. If such persons had discovered a distrust concerning God's assistance, it would have been a disgrace to themselves and to their sacred cause, and have raised suspicions in others that there was something dishonest at the bottom. Also, the employment to which the Apostles were appointed was as dangerous as it was honourable. They were to encounter all sorts of difficulties and perils. In such circumstances and trials, as a man's faith is, so will his courage and resolution be. If the first be weak and wavering, the second will have the same defects. Nothing good and great, no bold attempt, no suffering for the sake of truth, is to be expected from a person who is inconstant and irresolute. Dr. Jortin.

23. — whosoever shall say unto this mountain, &c.] He says, I have given that power to you, that if any of you in the fear of God, with full confidence of faith, without any mixture of doubting, shall attempt even the greatest difficulty, and assuredly believe that through the power of God in Christ it shall be done, he shall do whatsoever he will: but this is to be undertaken by you, (ver. 24,) not upon confidence of your own strength, but by humble prayer to God; and whatsoever ye thus pray for, believing that I will according to My promise grant it to you, ye shall undoubtedly receive from Me. Dr. Hammond.

25. — forgive, if ye have ought] Our Saviour had given the same injunction at Matt. vi. 14, 15. He implies, that whenever the Christian prays, he must not only have a steadfast faith in the power, wisdom, and goodness of God, but his heart must likewise be full of tenderness, compassion, and forgiveness, towards his fellow-creatures. Bp. Mann.

Chap. XII. ver. 1. And he began to speak &c.] Respecting this chapter, see the notes on the passages of Matt. xxi. and xxii, referred to in the margin.

Anno DOMINI 33.

wounded him in the head, and sent him away shamefully handled.

5 And again he sent another; and him they killed, and many others; beating some, and killing some.

6 Having yet therefore one son, his wellbeloved, he sent him also last unto them, saying, They will reverence my son.

7 But those husbandmen said among themselves, This is the heir; come, let us kill him, and the inheritance shall be our's.

8 And they took him, and killed him, and cast him out of the vineyard.

9 What shall therefore the lord of the vineyard do? he will come and destroy the husbandmen, and will give the vineyard unto others.

10 And have ye not read this scripture;

[b] Ps. 118. 22. [b] The stone which the builders rejected is become the head of the corner:

11 This was the Lord's doing, and it is marvellous in our eyes?

12 And they sought to lay hold on him, but feared the people: for they knew that he had spoken the parable against them: and they left him, and went their way.

[c] Matt. 22. 15. 13 ¶ [c] And they send unto him certain of the Pharisees and of the Herodians, to catch him in his words.

14 And when they were come, they say unto him, Master, we know that thou art true, and carest for no man: for thou regardest not the person of men, but teachest the way of God in truth: Is it lawful to give tribute to Cesar, or not?

15 Shall we give, or shall we not give? But he, knowing their hypocrisy, said unto them, Why tempt ye me? bring me ‖ a penny, that I may see it.

‖ Valuing of our money sevenpence halfpenny, as Matt. 18. 28.

16 And they brought it. And he saith unto them, Whose is this image and superscription? And they said unto him, Cesar's.

17 And Jesus answering said unto them, Render to Cesar the things that are Cesar's, and to God the things that are God's. And they marvelled at him.

[d] Matt. 22. 23. 18 ¶ [d] Then come unto him the Sadducees, which say there is no resurrection; and they asked him, saying,

19 Master, Moses wrote unto us, If a man's brother die, and leave his wife behind him, and leave no children, that his brother should take his wife, and raise up seed unto his brother.

Anno DOMINI 33.

20 Now there were seven brethren: and the first took a wife, and dying left no seed.

21 And the second took her, and died, neither left he any seed: and the third likewise.

22 And the seven had her, and left no seed: last of all the woman died also.

23 In the resurrection therefore, when they shall rise, whose wife shall she be of them? for the seven had her to wife.

24 And Jesus answering said unto them, Do ye not therefore err, because ye know not the scriptures, neither the power of God?

25 For when they shall rise from the dead, they neither marry, nor are given in marriage; but are as the angels which are in heaven.

26 And as touching the dead, that they rise: have ye not read in the book of Moses, how in the bush God spake unto him, saying, I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob?

27 He is not the God of the dead, but the God of the living: ye therefore do greatly err.

[e] Matt. 22. 35. 28 ¶ [e] And one of the scribes came, and having heard them reasoning together, and perceiving that he had answered them well, asked him, Which is the first commandment of all?

29 And Jesus answered him, The first of all the commandments is, Hear, O Israel; The Lord our God is one Lord:

30 And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength: this is the first commandment.

31 And the second is like, namely this, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself. There is none other commandment greater than these.

32 And the scribe said unto him, Well, Master, thou hast said the truth: for there is one God; and there is none other but he:

33 And to love him with all the heart, and with all the understanding, and with all the soul, and with all the strength, and to love his neighbour as himself, is more than all whole burnt offerings and sacrifices.

34 And when Jesus saw that he answered discreetly, he said unto him, Thou art

28. — the first] The principal, "the great," Matt. xxii. 36.

31. — There is none other commandment greater than these.] That is, there is nothing in religion of a higher obligation than these two precepts. All the duties of religion must be governed by these two principles. Beyond them there is nothing greater, nothing to limit or restrain them: but by them must every thing else be limited and restrained. Bp. Sherlock.

Anno DOMINI 33.

not far from the kingdom of God. And no man after that durst ask him any question.

[f] Matt. 22. 41.

35 ¶ [f] And Jesus answered and said, while he taught in the temple, How say the scribes that Christ is the son of David?

36 For David himself said by the Holy Ghost, The LORD said to my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand, till I make thine enemies thy footstool.

37 David therefore himself calleth him Lord; and whence is he then his son? And the common people heard him gladly.

[g] Matt. 23. 5.

38 ¶ And he said unto them in his doctrine, [g] Beware of the scribes, which love to go in long clothing, and love salutations in the marketplaces,

39 And the chief seats in the synagogues, and the uppermost rooms at feasts:

[h] Matt. 23. 14.

40 [h] Which devour widows' houses, and for a pretence make long prayers: these shall receive greater damnation.

[i] Luke 21. 1.

41 ¶ [i] And Jesus sat over against the treasury, and beheld how the people cast ‖ money into the treasury: and many that were rich cast in much.

‖ A piece of brass money: See Matt. 10. 9.

42 And there came a certain poor widow, and she threw in two ‖ mites, which make a farthing.

‖ It is the seventh part of one piece of that brass money.

43 And he called unto him his disciples, and saith unto them, Verily I say unto you, That this poor widow hath cast more in, than all they which have cast into the treasury:

44 For all they did cast in of their abundance; but she of her want did cast in all that she had, even all her living.

CHAP. XIII.

Anno DOMINI 33.

1 Christ foretelleth the destruction of the temple: 9 the persecutions for the gospel: 10 that the gospel must be preached to all nations: 14 that great calamities shall happen to the Jews: 24 and the manner of his coming to judgment: 32 the hour whereof being known to none, every man is to watch and pray, that we be not found unprovided, when he cometh to each one particularly by death.

AND [a] as he went out of the temple, one of his disciples saith unto him, Master, see what manner of stones and what buildings are here!

[a] Matt. 24. 1.

2 And Jesus answering said unto him, Seest thou these great buildings? there shall not be left one stone upon another, that shall not be thrown down.

3 And as he sat upon the mount of Olives over against the temple, Peter and James and John and Andrew asked him privately,

[b] Matt. 24. 3.

4 [b] Tell us, when shall these things be? and what shall be the sign when all these things shall be fulfilled?

5 And Jesus answering them began to say, Take heed lest any man deceive you:

6 For many shall come in my name, saying, I am Christ; and shall deceive many.

7 And when ye shall hear of wars and rumours of wars, be ye not troubled: for such things must needs be; but the end shall not be yet.

8 For nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom: and there shall be earthquakes in divers places, and there shall be famines and troubles: these are the beginnings of ‖ sorrows.

‖ The word in the original importeth the pains of a woman in travail.

9 ¶ But take heed to yourselves: for they shall deliver you up to councils; and in the

---

36. — said by the Holy Ghost,] Here is a most clear and express proof that David wrote the Psalms under the influence of the Holy Ghost. Dr. Whitby.

From this passage also, compared with Luke i. 68, 70, it appears that the Holy Ghost is "the Lord God of Israel." For from Luke i. 68, 70, we find that the Lord God of Israel "spake by the mouth of His holy Prophets." But here we read, that David spake "by the Holy Ghost;" therefore the Holy Ghost is the Lord God of Israel.

38. — love to go in long clothing,] They "enlarged the borders of their garments," Matt. xxiii. 5, by which their clothing was longer. Bp. Pearce. That which is expressed in these three verses, 38, 39, 40, is set forth at large in the whole twenty-third chapter of St. Matthew.

40. — for a pretence] For the sake of outward appearance, and not with sincere piety. Abp. Newcome.

41. — the treasury,] The chest where the treasure arising from the offerings was kept. It appears from 2 Kings xii. 18, that this chest was placed in the temple, (that is, in one of the apartments of it, John viii. 20,) to receive the gifts of the worshippers for the repairs, the charge of sacrifices, and other uses of the temple and its service. Bp. Pearce.

42. — two mites,] This was the lowest denomination of Hebrew money.

44. — even all her living.] Her whole stock; all her means of living for that day. Dr. Whitby. Thus God judges of men's actions, not by the measure of the outward work, but by the inward disposition and affection of the heart. Dr. S. Clarke. Thus our offerings to God, and our alms of charity to the poor, are not rated by the largeness of the gift, but by the good intention of the giver. Bp. Mann.

Chap. XIII. ver. 1. And as he went out &c.] Respecting this chapter, see further notes at Matt. xxiv.

3. — Peter and James &c.] St. Matthew mentions in general terms that "the disciples" came to Him, Matt. xxiv. 3.

4. — when shall these things be?] It is clear that these words refer to the destruction of the temple, of which Jesus had just been discoursing. St. Matthew, chap. xxiv. 3, gives the expression, "What shall be the sign of Thy coming?" which has a parallel sense; and hence is derived an incontrovertible proof, that "the coming of Christ" in these passages has a distinct reference to the destruction of the Jewish temple and nation. Dr. Hammond.

5. — Take heed lest any man &c.] The account of this discourse, as given by St. Matthew, is larger and more regular, as to the order of it, than that here given by St. Mark. Bp. Pearce.

Anno DOMINI 33.

synagogues ye shall be beaten: and ye shall be brought before rulers and kings for my sake, for a testimony against them.

10 And the gospel must first be published among all nations.

[c] Matt. 10. 19.

11 [c] But when they shall lead you, and deliver you up, take no thought beforehand what ye shall speak, neither do ye premeditate: but whatsoever shall be given you in that hour, that speak ye: for it is not ye that speak, but the Holy Ghost.

12 Now the brother shall betray the brother to death, and the father the son; and children shall rise up against their parents, and shall cause them to be put to death.

13 And ye shall be hated of all men for my name's sake: but he that shall endure unto the end, the same shall be saved.

[d] Matt. 24. 15.

14 ¶ [d] But when ye shall see the abomination of desolation, spoken of by Daniel the prophet, standing where it ought not, (let him that readeth understand,) then let them that be in Judea flee to the mountains:

15 And let him that is on the housetop not go down into the house, neither enter therein, to take any thing out of his house:

16 And let him that is in the field not turn back again for to take up his garment.

17 But woe to them that are with child, and to them that give suck in those days!

18 And pray ye that your flight be not in the winter.

19 For in those days shall be affliction, such as was not from the beginning of the creation which God created unto this time, neither shall be.

20 And except that the Lord had shortened those days, no flesh should be saved: but for the elect's sake, whom he hath chosen, he hath shortened the days.

[e] Matt. 24. 23.

21 [e] And then if any man shall say to you, Lo, here is Christ; or, lo, he is there; believe him not:

Anno DOMINI 33.

22 For false Christs and false prophets shall rise, and shall shew signs and wonders, to seduce, if it were possible, even the elect.

23 But take ye heed: behold, I have foretold you all things.

[f] Matt. 24. 29.

24 ¶ [f] But in those days, after that tribulation, the sun shall be darkened, and the moon shall not give her light,

25 And the stars of heaven shall fall, and the powers that are in heaven shall be shaken.

26 And then shall they see the Son of man coming in the clouds with great power and glory.

27 And then shall he send his angels, and shall gather together his elect from the four winds, from the uttermost part of the earth to the uttermost part of heaven.

28 Now learn a parable of the fig tree; When her branch is yet tender, and putteth forth leaves, ye know that summer is near:

29 So ye in like manner, when ye shall see these things come to pass, know that it is nigh, even at the doors.

30 Verily I say unto you, that this generation shall not pass, till all these things be done.

31 Heaven and earth shall pass away: but my words shall not pass away.

32 ¶ But of that day and that hour knoweth no man, no, not the angels which are in heaven, neither the Son, but the Father.

[g] Matt. 24. 42.

33 [g] Take ye heed, watch and pray: for ye know not when the time is.

34 For the Son of man is as a man taking a far journey, who left his house, and gave authority to his servants, and to every man his work, and commanded the porter to watch.

35 Watch ye therefore: for ye know not when the master of the house cometh, at even, or at midnight, or at the cockcrowing, or in the morning:

---

11. — take no thought beforehand] See notes at Matt. x. 19.

32. — of that day and that hour] Of the precise time when the destruction now foretold was to happen. Dr. Lightfoot.

—— knoweth no man, — not the angels — neither the Son,] For the explanation of this, see what our blessed Saviour says at Acts i. 7: this was one of the times and the seasons which the Father put into His own power, and it formed no part of the revelation which the Son was to reveal unto the world. Bp. Mann. Our Saviour is pleased to tell them this, in order to preclude the curiosity of men, and to engage their vigilance. Dr. Hammond.

—— neither the Son,] That is, the Son of man, the Messiah, considered as the Servant and Messenger of the Father, and as receiving commands and authority from Him. The knowledge of Jesus, considered in His human capacity, was not infinite; and it appears from Luke ii. 52, that He "increased" in wisdom as in stature. Dr. Lightfoot, Beausobre.

Christ here speaks of Himself as the Son of man, who, as such, was ignorant of many things, and received by degrees all necessary knowledge. As it was after His resurrection that all power was given unto Him, so it was then that all knowledge was imparted to Him. Rosenmüller.

33. Take ye heed,] Take heed that ye be not surprised and overtaken by that time, which is ever most uncertain. Abp. Tillotson.

34. — gave authority to his servants,] Gave to the chief and most trusty of his slaves power over the rest. Abp. Newcome.

35. — at even or at midnight, &c.] As the Jews in our Saviour's time divided the night into four periods or watches, allusion is made to these, in the expressions here used by our Saviour; the evening watch, or nine o'clock; midnight; three o'clock in the morning; and six in the morning. Bp. Pearce.

Anno DOMINI 33.

36 Lest coming suddenly he find you sleeping.

37 And what I say unto you I say unto all, Watch.

CHAP. XIV.

1 A conspiracy against Christ. 3 Precious ointment is poured on his head by a woman. 10 Judas selleth his Master for money. 12 Christ himself foretelleth how he shall be betrayed of one of his disciples: 22 after the passover prepared, and eaten, instituteth his supper: 26 declareth aforehand the flight of all his disciples, and Peter's denial. 43 Judas betrayeth him with a kiss. 46 He is apprehended in the garden, 53 falsely accused, and impiously condemned of the Jews' council: 65 shamefully abused by them: 66 and thrice denied of Peter.

[a] Matt. 26. 2.

AFTER [a] two days was the feast of the passover, and of unleavened bread: and the chief priests and the scribes sought how they might take him by craft, and put him to death.

2 But they said, Not on the feast day, lest there be an uproar of the people.

[b] Matt. 26. 6.

3 ¶ [b] And being in Bethany in the house of Simon the leper, as he sat at meat, there came a woman having an alabaster box of ointment of ‖ spikenard very precious; and she brake the box, and poured it on his head.

‖ Or, pure nard, or, liquid nard.

4 And there were some that had indignation within themselves, and said, Why was this waste of the ointment made?

5 For it might have been sold for more than three hundred ‖ pence, and have been given to the poor. And they murmured against her.

‖ See Matt. 18. 28.

6 And Jesus said, Let her alone; why trouble ye her? she hath wrought a good work on me.

7 For ye have the poor with you always, and whensoever ye will ye may do them good: but me ye have not always.

8 She hath done what she could: she is come aforehand to anoint my body to the burying.

9 Verily I say unto you, Wheresoever this gospel shall be preached throughout the whole world, this also that she hath done shall be spoken of for a memorial of her.

[c] Matt. 26. 14.

10 ¶ [c] And Judas Iscariot, one of the twelve, went unto the chief priests, to betray him unto them.

Anno DOMINI 33.

11 And when they heard it, they were glad, and promised to give him money. And he sought how he might conveniently betray him.

[d] Matt. 26. 17.

12 ¶ [d] And the first day of unleavened bread, when they ‖ killed the passover, his disciples said unto him, Where wilt thou that we go and prepare that thou mayest eat the passover?

‖ Or, sacrificed.

13 And he sendeth forth two of his disciples, and saith unto them, Go ye into the city, and there shall meet you a man bearing a pitcher of water: follow him.

14 And wheresoever he shall go in, say ye to the goodman of the house, The Master saith, Where is the guestchamber, where I shall eat the passover with my disciples?

15 And he will shew you a large upper room furnished and prepared: there make ready for us.

16 And his disciples went forth, and came into the city, and found as he had said unto them: and they made ready the passover.

17 And in the evening he cometh with the twelve.

[e] Matt. 26. 20.

18 [e] And as they sat and did eat, Jesus said, Verily I say unto you, One of you which eateth with me shall betray me.

19 And they began to be sorrowful, and to say unto him one by one, Is it I? and another said, Is it I?

20 And he answered and said unto them, It is one of the twelve, that dippeth with me in the dish.

21 The Son of man indeed goeth, as it is written of him: but woe to that man by whom the Son of man is betrayed! good were it for that man if he had never been born.

[f] Matt. 26. 26.

22 ¶ [f] And as they did eat, Jesus took bread, and blessed, and brake it, and gave to them, and said, Take, eat: this is my body.

23 And he took the cup, and when he had given thanks, he gave it to them: and they all drank of it.

24 And he said unto them, This is my blood of the new testament, which is shed for many.

25 Verily I say unto you, I will drink

Chap. XIV. ver. 1. After two days &c.] Respecting this chapter, see notes at Matt. xxvi.

3. — ointment of spikenard] Respecting spikenard, see note at Cant. i. 12.

—— she brake the box,] It is probably meant, that she brake the cement with which the box was closed up. It is still usual in the East to send wine, rosewater, &c. to great distances, in bottles stopped with cotton and closed with wax. Sir J. Chardin.

5. — three hundred pence,] About £9. 13*s.* 9d. of our money. Bp. Pearce.

15. — furnished] The word thus translated seems probably to mean, having couches round the table spread with carpets or other coverings, for the reception of the guests. Dr. Lightfoot.

Anno DOMINI 33.

no more of the fruit of the vine, until that day that I drink it new in the kingdom of God.

‖ Or, psalm.

26 ¶ And when they had sung an ‖ hymn, they went out into the mount of Olives.

[g] Matt. 26. 31.

27 [g] And Jesus saith unto them, All ye shall be offended because of me this night: for it is written, I will smite the shepherd, and the sheep shall be scattered.

28 But after that I am risen, I will go before you into Galilee.

[h] Matt. 26. 33.

29 [h] But Peter said unto him, Although all shall be offended, yet will not I.

30 And Jesus saith unto him, Verily I say unto thee, That this day, even in this night, before the cock crow twice, thou shalt deny me thrice.

31 But he spake the more vehemently, If I should die with thee, I will not deny thee in any wise. Likewise also said they all.

[i] Matt. 26. 36.

32 [i] And they came to a place which was named Gethsemane: and he saith to his disciples, Sit ye here, while I shall pray.

33 And he taketh with him Peter and James and John, and began to be sore amazed, and to be very heavy;

34 And saith unto them, My soul is exceeding sorrowful unto death: tarry ye here, and watch.

35 And he went forward a little, and fell on the ground, and prayed that, if it were possible, the hour might pass from him.

36 And he said, Abba, Father, all things are possible unto thee; take away this cup from me: nevertheless not what I will, but what thou wilt.

37 And he cometh, and findeth them sleeping, and saith unto Peter, Simon, sleepest thou? couldest not thou watch one hour?

38 Watch ye and pray, lest ye enter into temptation. The spirit truly is ready, but the flesh is weak.

39 And again he went away, and prayed, and spake the same words.

40 And when he returned, he found them asleep again, (for their eyes were heavy,) neither wist they what to answer him.

Anno DOMINI 33.

41 And he cometh the third time, and saith unto them, Sleep on now, and take your rest: it is enough, the hour is come; behold, the Son of man is betrayed into the hands of sinners.

42 Rise up, let us go; lo, he that betrayeth me is at hand.

[k] Matt. 26. 47.

43 ¶ [k] And immediately, while he yet spake, cometh Judas, one of the twelve, and with him a great multitude with swords and staves, from the chief priests and the scribes and the elders.

44 And he that betrayed him had given them a token, saying, Whomsoever I shall kiss, that same is he; take him, and lead him away safely.

45 And as soon as he was come, he goeth straightway to him, and saith, Master, master; and kissed him.

46 ¶ And they laid their hands on him, and took him.

47 And one of them that stood by drew a sword, and smote a servant of the high priest, and cut off his ear.

48 And Jesus answered and said unto them, Are ye come out, as against a thief, with swords and with staves to take me?

49 I was daily with you in the temple teaching, and ye took me not: but the scriptures must be fulfilled.

50 And they all forsook him, and fled.

51 And there followed him a certain young man, having a linen cloth cast about his naked body; and the young men laid hold on him:

52 And he left the linen cloth, and fled from them naked.

[l] Matt. 26. 57.

53 ¶ [l] And they led Jesus away to the high priest: and with him were assembled all the chief priests and the elders and the scribes.

54 And Peter followed him afar off, even into the palace of the high priest: and he sat with the servants, and warmed himself at the fire.

---

30. —before the cock crow twice,] See the note at Matthew xxvi. 34.

33. —to be sore amazed,] To be in great consternation and anguish of mind. Dr. S. Clarke.

36. —Abba, Father,] "Abba" is the Chaldee for father. The word "Father" seems here added to explain the meaning of Abba. Dr. Lightfoot.

41. —it is enough,] Meaning, I give you your acquittance; you need do no more; the hour is come when I am to be betrayed. Dr. Hammond.

51. —a certain young man, having &c.] This circumstance seems to be recorded to shew the consternation of our Lord's disciples; the young man choosing to quit his only covering in cold weather, rather than be detained by those officers. Bp. Mann.

——a linen cloth cast about his naked body;] Bp. Pococke, describing the dresses of the people in Egypt, relates, that the Arabs in some parts wore nothing but a large blanket or sheet wrapped round them, especially young persons of the poorer sort. And other travellers remark the same of parts of Palestine. The young man here mentioned is described as being clothed in this manner. Harmer.

Or this may have been a thin upper garment. Abp. Newcome.

Anno DOMINI 33.

55 [m] And the chief priests and all the council sought for witness against Jesus to put him to death; and found none.

[m] Matt. 26. 59.

56 For many bare false witness against him, but their witness agreed not together.

57 And there arose certain, and bare false witness against him, saying,

58 We heard him say, I will destroy this temple that is made with hands, and within three days I will build another made without hands.

59 But neither so did their witness agree together.

60 And the high priest stood up in the midst, and asked Jesus, saying, Answerest thou nothing? what is it which these witness against thee?

61 But he held his peace, and answered nothing. Again the high priest asked him, and said unto him, Art thou the Christ, the Son of the Blessed?

[n] Matt. 24. 30.

62 And Jesus said, I am: [n] and ye shall see the Son of man sitting on the right hand of power, and coming in the clouds of heaven.

63 Then the high priest rent his clothes, and saith, What need we any further witnesses?

64 Ye have heard the blasphemy: what think ye? And they all condemned him to be guilty of death.

65 And some began to spit on him, and to cover his face, and to buffet him, and to say unto him, Prophesy: and the servants did strike him with the palms of their hands.

Anno DOMINI 33.

66 ¶ [o] And as Peter was beneath in the palace, there cometh one of the maids of the high priest:

[o] Matt. 26. 69.

67 And when she saw Peter warming himself, she looked upon him, and said, And thou also wast with Jesus of Nazareth.

68 But he denied, saying, I know not, neither understand I what thou sayest. And he went out into the porch; and the cock crew.

69 And a maid saw him again, and began to say to them that stood by, This is one of them.

70 And he denied it again. And a little after, they that stood by said again to Peter, Surely thou art one of them: for thou art a Galilean, and thy speech agreeth thereto.

71 But he began to curse and to swear, saying, I know not this man of whom ye speak.

72 [p] And the second time the cock crew. And Peter called to mind the word that Jesus said unto him, Before the cock crow twice, thou shalt deny me thrice. And ‖ when he thought thereon, he wept.

[p] Matt. 26. 75.

‖ Or, he wept abundantly, or, he began to weep.

---

56. —agreed not together.] Were not sufficient for the purpose of capital conviction. Abp. Newcome.

58. —made with hands,] That is, the work of man. "Made without hands," the work of God.

61. —Son of the Blessed?] Son of the most high God. Dr. S. Clarke. The Jews, when they named God, generally added "Blessed for ever;" hence the title here used is that of God the Father. Dr. Hammond.

62. —I am:] I am He. At Matt. xxvi. 64, "Thou hast said." These two phrases have the same meaning in the Hebrew idiom. Dr. Whitby.

66. —beneath in the palace,] Below in the hall. See ver. 54. Bp. Pearce.

67. —warming himself,] See note at John xviii. 18.

72. —And when he thought thereon, he wept.] St. Peter, who was not only an Apostle, but one amongst them who was singled out as a companion of our Lord's privacies, admitted to the honour of His most intimate friendship, and who, on all occasions before this period, had expressed his sense of these uncommon favours, by all possible instances of gratitude, love, and more than ordinary zeal, now disowned and denied his Master; repeated that denial thrice; repeated it after sufficient space for recollection; and, at last, bound the lie upon his soul with solemn oaths and dreadful imprecations. Ah, where was now that gallant faith, which made so glorious a confession of this Jesus being the "Christ, the Son of the living God?" Where that eager courage, that did not fear to meet his Lord walking upon the sea? Where that bold promise, that though "all should be offended" and leave their dear Lord in His distress, yet would "he never be offended?" Where that becoming resolution, "Though I should die with Thee, yet will I not deny Thee in any wise?" Where all that fire and intrepidity, which but a very little while ago had singly engaged a whole band of armed men, in hope to rescue the Lord he now abjures?

What two men ever differed more from one another, than this man in an hour or two differed from himself; from what himself had oft been proved, and had been all along, till that very hour or two; from what he hoped, and believed he should, and no doubt intended fully to continue to the last moment of his life? But this fall of St. Peter, as it ought to be applied for a necessary mortification of our vanity, so may it likewise serve us for a support under our frailties and temptations. For, as his fault was sudden and surprising, so was his recovery speedy and effectual. Long it was not, before he was awakened into recollection, by a pitying look of his injured Master, and the crowing of the cock. Immediately upon the reflection he forsook the guilty scene of his foul offence, sought a convenient place for retired thoughts, melted away in tears for the horrour of his crime, and from thenceforward became again the same faithful, affectionate, undaunted St. Peter, he had been before. The book of the Acts informs us at large what noble reparations he afterwards made for this breach of faith: how vigorous and bold he was in preaching, how forward and even joyful in suffering for the Gospel of his once denied Lord. And the same Jesus, who foretold by what means he should offend, did shortly after let him understand "by what death he should glorify God." All which are testimonies of greater value, because these were the long and constant practice of a settled faith, the course of many years, the habit and the sense of the man: whereas his crime, though exceeding great, was however of short continuance, the effect of fear and infirmity in great measure, and not so much the act of the man, as the effect of violent passions and temptations, which had then almost unmanned him.

The same methods must we be sure to follow, when it shall

CHAP. XV.

Anno DOMINI 33.

1 Jesus brought bound, and accused before Pilate. 15 Upon the clamour of the common people, the murderer Barabbas is loosed, and Jesus delivered up to be crucified. 17 He is crowned with thorns, 19 spit on, and mocked: 21 fainteth in bearing his cross: 27 hangeth between two thieves: 29 suffereth the triumphing reproaches of the Jews: 39 but confessed by the centurion to be the Son of God: 43 and is honourably buried by Joseph.

[a] Matt. 27. 1. AND [a] straightway in the morning the chief priests held a consultation with the elders and scribes and the whole council, and bound Jesus, and carried him away, and delivered him to Pilate.

2 And Pilate asked him, Art thou the King of the Jews? And he answering said unto him, Thou sayest it.

3 And the chief priests accused him of many things: but he answered nothing.

[b] Matt. 27. 13. 4 [b] And Pilate asked him again, saying, Answerest thou nothing? behold how many things they witness against thee.

5 But Jesus yet answered nothing; so that Pilate marvelled.

6 Now at that feast he released unto them one prisoner, whomsoever they desired.

7 And there was one named Barabbas, which lay bound with them that had made insurrection with him, who had committed murder in the insurrection.

8 And the multitude crying aloud began to desire him to do as he had ever done unto them.

9 But Pilate answered them, saying, Will ye that I release unto you the King of the Jews?

10 For he knew that the chief priests had delivered him for envy.

11 But the chief priests moved the people, that he should rather release Barabbas unto them.

12 And Pilate answered and said again unto them, What will ye then that I shall do unto him whom ye call the King of the Jews?

13 And they cried out again, Crucify him. Anno DOMINI 33.

14 Then Pilate said unto them, Why, what evil hath he done? And they cried out the more exceedingly, Crucify him.

15 ¶ And so Pilate, willing to content the people, released Barabbas unto them, and delivered Jesus, when he had scourged him, to be crucified.

16 And the soldiers led him away into the hall, called Pretorium; and they call together the whole band.

17 And they clothed him with purple, and platted a crown of thorns, and put it about his head,

18 And began to salute him, Hail, King of the Jews!

19 And they smote him on the head with a reed, and did spit upon him, and bowing their knees worshipped him.

20 And when they had mocked him, they took off the purple from him, and put his own clothes on him, and led him out to crucify him.

[c] Matt. 27. 32. 21 [c] And they compel one Simon a Cyrenian, who passed by, coming out of the country, the father of Alexander and Rufus, to bear his cross.

22 And they bring him unto the place Golgotha, which is, being interpreted, The place of a scull.

23 And they gave him to drink wine mingled with myrrh: but he received it not.

24 And when they had crucified him, they parted his garments, casting lots upon them, what every man should take.

25 And it was the third hour, and they crucified him.

26 And the superscription of his accusation was written over, THE KING OF THE JEWS.

27 And with him they crucify two thieves; the one on his right hand, and the other on his left.

---

please God to suffer any grievous temptation to overtake us. We must, upon the first sense of our fault, burst through and break our snare; afflict our souls with a sorrow that may carry some proportion to the sad occasion of it: nor tarry a moment in the way of temptation; never look back upon our misdemeanors without a just abhorrence; and, above all, use our utmost diligence to bring honour to virtue and religion by our future practice. It is true, indeed, we cannot do all or any part of this, without the assistance of Divine Grace. It is that alone can strengthen them that stand; it is that alone must raise up them that fall. But the same Jesus, who turned upon St. Peter, and brought him back to himself, will not leave us to perish in our folly, but will find out some happy, some awakening dispensation: and, provided we be as careful as St. Peter was, to observe, to strike in with, to improve, it He will convert even our temptations and past sins to His glory and our own profit. The same powerful Intercessor prays for every sincere though feeble servant, that his faith fail not: but they that are sincere, should remember they are feeble too; and should not, with this Apostle, sleep in the hour of danger; but watch and pray; watch constantly, pray fervently, that they enter not into temptation. As knowing by this example, and feeling by their own experience, that the willingness of the spirit is not preservative sufficient against the weakness of the flesh. Dean Stanhope.

Chap. XV. ver. 1. And straightway &c.] For further notes on this chapter, see Matt. xxvii.

21. —father of Alexander and Rufus,] These persons were then probably living at Rome, as St. Paul salutes Rufus there. Grotius. We may suppose they were persons well known at the time when the Gospel was written.

25. —it was the third hour,] See note at John xix. 14.

Anno DOMINI 33.

28 And the scripture was fulfilled, which saith, [a] And he was numbered with the transgressors.

[a] Isai. 53. 12.

29 And they that passed by railed on him, wagging their heads, and saying, Ah, thou that destroyest the temple, and buildest it in three days,

30 Save thyself, and come down from the cross.

31 Likewise also the chief priests mocking said among themselves with the scribes, He saved others; himself he cannot save.

32 Let Christ the King of Israel descend now from the cross, that we may see and believe. And they that were crucified with him reviled him.

33 And when the sixth hour was come, there was darkness over the whole land until the ninth hour.

Anno DOMINI 33.

34 And at the ninth hour Jesus cried with a loud voice, saying, [c] Eloi, Eloi, lama sabachthani? which is, being interpreted, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?

[c] Matt. 27. 46.

35 And some of them that stood by, when they heard it, said, Behold, he calleth Elias.

36 And one ran and filled a spunge full of vinegar, and put it on a reed, and gave him to drink, saying, Let alone; let us see whether Elias will come to take him down.

37 And Jesus cried with a loud voice, and gave up the ghost.

32.—that we may see and believe.] This they said, not that they either desired or would have yielded to further conviction, but merely for the purpose of insulting Him. Dr. S. Clarke.

The rejection of Christianity by the great bulk of the Jewish nation, assuredly forms no valid objection to the connexion and consistency of the Law and the Gospel. This rejection was not obscurely intimated by the Prophets, Isai. xlix. 16; liii. 1—9; was expressly predicted by our Lord, Matt. xvi. 21; xxvi. 2; and was the natural consequence of that national ambition, that carnal and worldly temper, which induced the great bulk of the Jewish nation to misunderstand and misinterpret the prophecies; by directing their attention exclusively to those predictions which speak of the supremacy and extent of the Messiah's kingdom, and which they understood of a temporal instead of a spiritual reign, by which the Jewish nation, as they vainly imagined, was to be rescued from the Roman yoke, and exalted to the dominion of the world; while they wilfully overlooked the equally clear predictions of the same Messiah's humiliation and sufferings, and the express declarations, that the new dispensation should not be confined to one chosen people, like the old; but should embrace, without distinction, all nations, who, according to the original promise of God to the great Patriarch Abraham, were to "be blessed in his seed." But the true interpretation and application of the prophecies is not obscured, or the proof of Divine foreknowledge and co-operation in the establishment of the Gospel arising from them subverted, by the errours or the obstinacy of the Jews. The prophecies are open to our inspection as well as theirs: and, when by combining the temporal humiliation with the spiritual dominion of the Messiah, both which the Gospel attests, we perceive all the predictions respecting Him accomplished, however apparently opposite; the proof hence resulting is the more decisive, as it was more difficult for mere human sagacity to anticipate, or mere human agency to produce, so extraordinary a coincidence. Dr. Graves.

34.—Eloi, Eloi,] St. Matthew gives the words Eli, Eli, in the Hebrew, exactly the same as they occur at Ps. xxii. 1. St. Mark gives them according to the Syro-chaldaick dialect; which was in common use at the time of our Saviour. Dr. Lightfoot.

We should observe what calmness of mind is conspicuous in the unimpassioned but not unfeeling manner, in which the Evangelists relate the cruel sufferings of their Divine Lord, as well as the obstinacy, the perverseness, the insatiable malignity of His enemies; in all their narration, not one opprobrious epithet, not one severe expression escapes them. How completely does this distinguish them from fanaticks, whose fury and hatred generally burst forth, when roused by opposition of any kind, much more when such opposition inflicts the severest personal injuries, and pursues, with contempt and persecution, the most sacred objects of religious reverence. Calmness such as this, which is rarely attained by philosophick wisdom, is surely most inconsistent with every possible suspicion of fanaticism. Dr. Graves.

If we compare the particular predictions with the historical passages of our Lord's sufferings, if we join the Prophets and Evangelists together, it will most manifestly appear that the Messiah was to suffer nothing which Christ has not suffered. If Zechariah say, Zech. xi. 12, "they weighed for My price thirty pieces of silver," St. Matthew will shew, Matt. xxvi. 15, that Judas sold Jesus at the same rate; for the chief priests "covenanted with him for thirty pieces of silver." If Isaiah say, Isai. liii. 5, that "He was wounded;" if Zechariah, Zech. xii. 10, "they shall look upon Me whom they have pierced;" if the Prophet David yet more particularly, Ps. xxii. 16, "they pierced My hands and My feet;" the Evangelists will shew how He was fastened to the cross; and Jesus Himself, John xx. 25, "the print of the nails." If the Psalmist tells us, Ps. xxii. 7, 8, they should "laugh Him to scorn, and shake their heads, saying, He trusted on the Lord that He would deliver Him: let Him deliver Him, seeing He delighted in Him;" St. Matthew will describe the same action and the same expressions: for, Matt. xxvii. 39, 43, "they that passed by reviled Him, wagging their heads;" the chief priests, &c. said, "He trusted in God, let Him deliver Him now, if He will have Him: for He said, I am the Son of God!" Let David say, Ps. xxii. 1, "My God, My God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?" and the Son of David will shew in whose person the words were spoken, "Eli, Eli, lama sabachthani?" Let Isaiah foretell, Isai. liii. 12, "He was numbered with the transgressors," and you shall find Him, Mark xv. 27, crucified between two thieves, "one on His right hand, and the other on His left." Read in the Psalmist, Ps. lxix. 21, "in My thirst they gave Me vinegar to drink;" and you shall find in the Evangelists, John xix. 28, 29, and Matt. xxvii. 48, "Jesus, that the Scripture might be fulfilled, saith, I thirst; and they took a spunge, and filled it with vinegar, and put it on a reed, and gave Him to drink!" Read farther yet, Ps. xxii. 18, "they part My garments among them, and cast lots upon My vesture;" and, to fulfil the prediction, the soldiers shall make good the distinction, John xix. 23, 24, who "took His garments, and made four parts, to every soldier a part; and also His coat: now the coat was without seam, woven from the top throughout. They said therefore among themselves, Let us not rend it, but cast lots for it, whose it shall be." Lastly, let the Prophets teach us, Isai. liii. 7, 8, that He shall be "brought as a lamb to the slaughter, and be cut off out of the land of the living;" all the Evangelists will declare how like a lamb He suffered, and the very Jews will acknowledge that He was cut off. Bp. Pearson.

36.—saying.] The rest saying, &c. See Matt. xxvii. 49.

37.—and gave up the ghost.] Our Lord appeared as great in His sufferings as in His actions, in His death as in His life; and exhibited a wonderful example of forgiveness and composure, of magnanimity and conscious dignity, of filial love and pious resignation, in the midst of the most horrible tortures which human nature is capable of sustaining. Abp. Newcome.

Anno DOMINI 33.

38 And the veil of the temple was rent in twain from the top to the bottom.

39 ¶ And when the centurion, which stood over against him, saw that he so cried out, and gave up the ghost, he said, Truly this man was the Son of God.

40 There were also women looking on afar off: among whom was Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James the less and of Joses, and Salome;

41 (Who also, when he was in Galilee, [f] followed him, and ministered unto him;) and many other women which came up with him unto Jerusalem.

[f] Luke 8. 3.

[g] Matt. 27. 57.

42 ¶ [g] And now when the even was come, because it was the preparation, that is, the day before the sabbath,

43 Joseph of Arimathea, an honourable counseller, which also waited for the kingdom of God, came, and went in boldly unto Pilate, and craved the body of Jesus.

44 And Pilate marvelled if he were already dead: and calling unto him the centurion, he asked him whether he had been any while dead.

45 And when he knew it of the centurion, he gave the body to Joseph.

46 And he bought fine linen, and took him down, and wrapped him in the linen, and laid him in a sepulchre which was hewn out of a rock, and rolled a stone unto the door of the sepulchre.

47 And Mary Magdalene and Mary the mother of Joses beheld where he was laid.

CHAP. XVI.

1 An angel declareth the resurrection of Christ to three women. 9 Christ himself appeareth to Mary Magdalene: 12 to two going into the country: 14 then to the apostles, 15 whom he sendeth forth to preach the gospel: 19 and ascendeth into heaven.

AND when the sabbath was past, Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James, and Salome, had bought sweet spices, that they might come and anoint him. Anno DOMINI 33.

2 [a] And very early in the morning the first day of the week, they came unto the sepulchre at the rising of the sun. [a] Luke 24. 1. John 20. 1.

3 And they said among themselves, Who shall roll us away the stone from the door of the sepulchre?

4 And when they looked, they saw that the stone was rolled away: for it was very great.

5 [b] And entering into the sepulchre, they saw a young man sitting on the right side, clothed in a long white garment; and they were affrighted. [b] John 20. 11.

6 And he saith unto them, Be not affrighted: Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified: he is risen; he is not here: behold the place where they laid him.

7 But go your way, tell his disciples and Peter that he goeth before you into Galilee: there shall ye see him, [c] as he said unto you. [c] Matt. 26. 32.

8 And they went out quickly, and fled from the sepulchre; for they trembled and were amazed: neither said they any thing to any man; for they were afraid.

9 ¶ Now when Jesus was risen early the first day of the week, [d] he appeared first to Mary Magdalene, [e] out of whom he had cast seven devils. [d] John 20. 14. [e] Luke 8. 2.

10 And she went and told them that had been with him, as they mourned and wept.

11 And they, when they had heard that he was alive, and had been seen of her, believed not.

---

39. And when the centurion, &c.] What a marvellous concurrence was here of strong and irrefragable proofs! Meekness in suffering, prayer for His murderers, a faithful resignation of His soul into the hands of His heavenly Father, the sun eclipsed, the heavens darkened, the earth trembling, the graves open, the rocks rent, the vail of the temple torn! Who could say less than this, Truly this was the Son of God! He suffers patiently; this is through the power of grace; many good men have done so through His enabling: the frame of nature suffers with Him, this is proper to the God of nature, the Son of God. We wonder not that this centurion so confessed; we rather wonder that any spectator confessed it not. These proofs were sufficient to bring all the world upon their knees, and to make all mankind converts. But all hearts are not alike; no means can work on the wilfully obdurate. Bp. Hall.

42. — the day before the sabbath,] This explanation of the term "the preparation" is added by St. Mark, for the information of the Gentiles, for whom principally he wrote. Grotius.

Chap. XVI. ver. 1. And when the sabbath &c.] Respecting this chapter, see further notes at Matt. xxviii, and other passages referred to in the margin.

—— had bought sweet spices,] They had prepared their spices before, as is more fully related by St. Luke, and rested on the sabbath day. See Luke xxiii. 56, &c.

4. — for it was very great.] This is an elliptical form of expression: they were solicitous about removing the stone, and rejoiced to find it removed, "for it was very great." Grotius.

5. — a young man] An angel (Matt. xxviii. 2.), in the shape of a young man. Dr. S. Clarke.

7. — and Peter] It has been thought that St. Peter is thus particularly mentioned, in order to give him consolation, and to shew that he had not forfeited his title to be one of Christ's disciples after his denial of Him. Dr. Whitby.

8. — neither said they any thing] They spake not to any one whom they met by the way, as they were going to tell the disciples. Bp. Mann.

9. — first to Mary Magdalene,] And to the other women before mentioned, as they went to tell the disciples what the angel had given them in charge. See Matt. xxviii. 9. It is probable that Mary Magdalene was the first who saw Him. Dr. Wells, Bp. Pearce.

10. — them that had been with him,] That is, the eleven Apostles.

Anno DOMINI 33.

12 ¶ After that he appeared in another form [f] unto two of them, as they walked, and went into the country.

[f] Luke 24. 13.

13 And they went and told it unto the residue: neither believed they them.

[g] Luke 24. 36. John 20. 19.

14 ¶ [g] Afterward he appeared unto the eleven as they sat ‖ at meat, and upbraided them with their unbelief and hardness of heart, because they believed not them which had seen them after he was risen.

‖ Or, together.

[h] Matt. 28. 19.

15 [h] And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature.

16 He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; [i] but he that believeth not shall be damned.

Anno DOMINI 33.

[i] John 12. 48.

17 And these signs shall follow them that believe; [k] In my name shall they cast out devils; [l] they shall speak with new tongues;

[k] Acts 16. 18.

[l] Acts 2. 4.

18 [m] They shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them; [n] they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover.

[m] Acts 28. 5.

[n] Acts 28. 8.

19 ¶ So then after the Lord had spoken unto them, he was [o] received up into heaven, and sat on the right hand of God.

[o] Luke 24. 51.

12. — in another form] In another dress, different from that in which the disciples had been used to see Him before His crucifixion. Bp. Pearce. This appearance to the two disciples going to Emmaus is more fully related by St. Luke, chap. xxiv. 13, &c.

14. — appeared unto the eleven] Of this appearance, St. Luke gives many further particulars, Luke xxiv. 36.

—— their unbelief and hardness of heart,] Their unbelief in not crediting those who had already seen Him after His resurrection, and their dulness in not remembering the promise which He had in His lifetime so often made to them, of rising again. Dr. S. Clarke.

15. — to every creature.] To all nations, to all men, Gentiles as well as Jews. See Matt. xxviii. 29; Luke xxiv. 47. Dr. Whitby.

16. He that believeth &c.] He that embraces My religion, and by baptism enters into an obligation to obey it, and lives accordingly, shall be saved; but he that rejects the Gospel, either by obstinate unbelief or impenitent disobedience, shall be condemned. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— shall be saved;] Shall be put in the way of salvation, by being a Christian. On the contrary, he that will not attend to the evidence of Christianity, but wilfully rejects it, renders himself unworthy of the Divine mercy. Bp. Mann.

By comparing together the accounts given by the different Evangelists, of the last instructions delivered by our Lord to His Apostles, it sufficiently appears that by the expression "believing and being baptized," St. Mark means, believing, repenting, and obeying the Gospel; all which there was no need to express at length, because it was perfectly well understood, in the customary acceptation of these words among Christians, that the part was always supposed to be put, in a brief way of speaking, for the whole. To believe, therefore, and to be baptized, is to believe the Gospel, and to enter into a solemn obligation to obey it. And as, under the Law, to him that transgressed the Law, his circumcision, as the Apostle says, was no circumcision; so, under the Gospel, to him that obeys not the Gospel, his baptism is no baptism to any effectual purpose. So, on the other side, the unbelief of those, who in Scripture are condemned for not believing, is not the bare negative unbelief of what men do not clearly know, or have not sufficient means of knowing; but it always means either an obstinate rejecting of what is distinctly proposed to them, and, through the love of vice, refusing to consider what is sufficiently proved to them, or else the disobedience of those who hypocritically profess to be believers. In either of these senses, "he that believeth not," saith our Saviour, "shall be damned." The full meaning therefore of these words is this: He that believes the doctrine of the Gospel when preached to him, and by baptism enters into an obligation to live suitably to that belief, and verifies that obligation by practice answering to it, the same shall be saved: but he that rejects the doctrine of the Gospel when duly and reasonably proposed to him, or, pretending to embrace it, yet obeys it not, the same shall be condemned. Dr. S. Clarke.

The chief ground, on which the necessity of faith is so much pressed in Scripture, appears to be this; namely, because it comprehends in it the great motives of action; it is the principle of life. "The just shall live by faith," saith the Apostle at the conclusion of the tenth chapter of the Epistle to the Hebrews: and whoever will at his leisure peruse the eleventh chapter, will there find a history of the great and wonderful works wrought by holy men in old time, from Abel downwards, through the power of this principle. In us, to whom more has been revealed than was revealed to them, it should not be less operative and effectual than it was in them. We shall constantly perceive the vigour of our practice to be proportionable to the steadiness and liveliness of our faith: what revives one will always quicken the other. From every doctrine in the Creed issues a commandment; and the doctrine stirs us up to keep the commandment.

When, by reciting the Creed, we declare our belief in God, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost, with all that each has done for us; we should love "the Father" for His tender love, adore the "Almighty" for His infinite power, and commit our souls to Him in welldoing as to a faithful "Creator."

From "Jesus" we should seek salvation; from "Christ" the anointed, as a Prophet, instruction; as a Priest, atonement; as a King, protection; as the "only-begotten Son," the adoption of children. As "our Lord" we should serve Him, for His "conception," in faith; for His "nativity," in humility; for His "sufferings," in patience; for His "cross," in crucifying sin; for His "death," in mortifying the flesh; for His "burial," in burying the old man with his evil desires; for His "descent," in meditating on the other world; for His "resurrection," in newness of life; for His "ascension and inthronization," in setting our affection on things above, on the pleasures at God's right hand; for His "return," in awe of His second coming; for His "judgment," in judging ourselves, before we come to be judged by Him.

From the "Spirit" we should seek the breath of saving grace; that so in the "Church" we may partake of a high and heavenly calling; in the "Holy Church," of sanctification; in the "Catholick Church," of communion with our brethren in prayers and sacraments; and all this in order to a firm persuasion of "the remission of our sins," as well as a confident hope of "resurrection" and translation to "life eternal." Thus is the Creed at once a profession of faith, a manual of devotions, and a directory of practice: "The just shall live by faith." Bp. Horne.

17. And these signs shall follow &c.] For the more speedy and effectual propagation of the Gospel against all opposition, ye shall be endued with such great and extraordinary gifts of the Holy Ghost, as will enable you to work all kinds of miracles for the conviction of unbelievers, and for the establishment of the truth. Dr. S. Clarke.

18. They shall take up serpents; &c.] For instances of the completion of this promise, see the passages of the Acts, referred to in the margin.

19. So then after the Lord had &c.] Our Lord's ascension did not take place immediately after what has been just related; for He ascended from Bethany, near Jerusalem; so that at least a sufficient time must have intervened, to enable the eleven Apostles to come to that place from Galilee. Bp. Pearce. See Luke xxiv. 50, 51; Acts i. 4.

—— he was received up into heaven, &c.] What tongue of the

Anno DOMINI 33.

20 And they went forth, and preached every where, the Lord working with them, [p] and confirming the word with signs following. Amen.

Anno DOMINI 33.

[p] Heb. 2. 4.

highest archangel of heaven can express the welcome of the King of Glory into those blessed regions of immortality! Certainly, if, when God brought His only begotten Son into the world, He said, "Let all the angels worship Him;" much more now, that He ascends on high, and hath led captivity captive, hath He given Him a name above all names, that at the name of Jesus all knees should bow. And, if the holy angels did so carol at His birth, in the very entrance into that estate of humiliation and infirmity, with what triumph did they receive Him, now returning from the perfect achievement of man's redemption! But how should our weakness have ever hoped to ascend into heaven, if our Saviour had not gone before, and made a way for us? It is for us that He the forerunner hath entered in. May He teach us to follow Him in the roughest ways of obedience, that we may at last overtake Him in those high steps of immortality! Bp. Hall.

20. — the Lord working with them, &c.] We have here an account of the means by which the preaching of the Apostles became so wonderfully operative and successful. It was not from any mighty talent of persuasion, any extraordinary faculty of reasoning with which they were endued; it was not merely by those intrinsick evidences of truth which the distinguishing doctrines they preached carried with them; nor by any other method purely human and natural; but by a Divine power and assistance which accompanied them in every step they took, and miraculously blessed their endeavours! Bp. Atterbury.

—— with signs following.] Miracles were the evidences of the Christian revelation, as they had before been of the Jewish. The proof of the Christian faith, built on these, is sound and satisfactory. Let us adhere then steadily to it, and devoutly adore the Divine wisdom and goodness which contrived it for our sakes. Let us not be moved by the little cavils and exceptions with which perverse and unreasonable men are too apt to assail it; but let us remember that, in this state of imperfection, there is scarcely any truth so bright and clear, but that one who industriously stirs up doubts, may do something towards clouding and darkening it. Let us not "walk in the counsel of those ungodly," who studiously undermine principles, and delight to affront the common sense of mankind; who set up for a repute by disbelieving every thing, and are resolved to pay regard to nothing, but their own deep penetration and sagacity. Let us preserve ourselves free from that sort of caution and reserve, which, lest it should be imposed upon by false grounds of belief, will close with none; and, for very fear of being deceived, takes the unavoidable course to be deceived, by equally suspecting every thing. For, far better were it to entertain some falsehood together with truth, than to be wise to such a degree as to esteem every thing a falsehood. Bp. Atterbury.

Whether we consider the number, the means of information, or the veracity of the witnesses, no testimony can surpass, in its degree of credibility, that which was borne by the Apostles to the fact of our Lord's resurrection. And it is a singular circumstance in this testimony, that it is such as no length of time can diminish. It is founded on the universal principles of human nature, upon maxims which are the same in all ages, and operate with equal strength on all mankind, under all the varieties of temper and habit of constitution. So long as it shall be contrary to the first principles of the human mind to delight in falsehood for its own sake; so long as it shall be true that no man willingly propagates a falsehood to his own detriment and to no purpose; so long it will be certain that the Apostles were serious and sincere in the assertion of our Lord's resurrection. So long as it shall be absurd to suppose that twelve men could all be deceived in the person of a friend with whom they had all lived three years; so long it will be certain that the Apostles were competent to judge of the truth and reality of the fact which they asserted. So long as it shall belong to the nature of man to prefer his own interest to that of another; so long it will be an absurdity to suppose that twelve men should persevere for years in the joint attestation of a falsehood, to the great detriment of every individual of the conspiracy, and without any joint or separate advantage; and so long will it be incredible, that the history of our Lord's resurrection was a fiction which the twelve men (to mention no greater number) conspired to support, with unparalleled fortitude, and with equal folly. So long, therefore, as the Evangelical history shall be preserved entire; that is, so long as the historical books of the New Testament shall be extant in the world, so long the credibility of the Apostles' testimony will remain whole and unimpaired. This preservation of the form and integrity of the Apostolick evidence argues, in the original propagation of the Gospel, that contrivance and forecast in the plan, that power in the execution, which are far beyond the natural abilities of the human mind, and declare that the whole work and counsel was of God.

It has sometimes been considered as an important objection to Christianity, that our Lord should have shewn Himself after His resurrection, not to the publick at large, but only "to witnesses chosen before of God," Acts x. 41. But the fact itself is not to be admitted without some limitation. St. Paul, in his first Epistle to the Corinthians, (chap. xv. 6,) tells us of an appearance of our Lord to more than five hundred brethren at once; and, as this is a larger company than, it is probable, could have been assembled in a house, or would have met by accident, we must suppose that they were called together for some express purpose; perhaps that of beholding with their own eyes, their crucified Lord restored to life; and this, probably, in some publick situation, from which those who were not "brethren," were not excluded. Still it is certain that our Lord's appearance after His resurrection was not publick, compared with what it had been during His ministry; and that He did not then maintain a familiar conversation with the world. This circumstance, however, is of no real weight, as an objection to the truth of our Lord's resurrection. The reality of any fact is always to be measured by the positive proof which we possess, on one side or on the other. If no proof is found but what is imperfect in itself, as when the witnesses seem to be few, or their reports contradictory, the fact is questionable. But, if any proof exists in itself unexceptionable, the thing is not to be questioned for the mere want of other proofs, which persons, living at a distance from the time and scene of the business, may imagine it might have had. Men are very apt to lose sight of this principle, which is of great importance in its application to the proofs of our Lord's resurrection. Again, the required proof would in this instance have afforded no addition to the evidence of the fact. For, to have seen our Lord ever so often after His resurrection, would have qualified no one to be a witness of the fact, who had not such a previous knowledge of His person, as might enable him to perceive and to attest its identity. As therefore it is probable they were not many, besides His constant followers, who knew Him previously well enough to identify His person, they were the only persons who could give a credible attestation to the fact of His resurrection. Thus the evidence of this fact, which we actually have, in the testimony of chosen witnesses, is the greatest of which the fact is naturally capable. No other could have been transmitted as original testimony to posterity, no other could have been satisfactory to the publick at the time. Bp. Horsley.

The following Chapters from St. Mark are appointed as Gospels on Sundays and Holydays:

CHAP. VII. ver. 31—37, 12th Sunday after Trinity,....Gospel.
VIII. — 1— 9, 7th Sunday after Trinity,..... ditto.
XIV. — 1—72, Monday before Easter,..... ditto.
CHAP. XV. ver. 1—39, Tuesday before Easter,.....Gospel.
XVI. — 14—20, Ascension-day,..... ditto.

THE GOSPEL

ACCORDING TO

ST. LUKE.

INTRODUCTION.

THE New Testament informs us of very few particulars respecting St. Luke, the writer of this Gospel. He is not once named in any of the Gospels. In the Acts of the Apostles, which were written by him, (see the Introduction to the Acts,) he uses the first person plural, when he is relating some of the travels of St. Paul; and thence it is inferred, that at those times he was himself with that Apostle. The first instance of this kind is in the eleventh verse of the sixteenth chapter; he there says, "Loosing from Troas, we came with a straight course to Samothracia." Thus we learn, that St. Luke accompanied St. Paul in this his first voyage to Macedonia. From Samothracia they went to Neapolis, and thence to Philippi. At this last place we conclude that St. Paul and St. Luke separated, because, in continuing the history of St. Paul, after he left Philippi, St. Luke uses the third person, saying, "Now when they had passed through Amphipolis," chap. xvii. 1, and he does not resume the first person till St. Paul was in Greece the second time. We have no account of St. Luke during this interval; it only appears that he was not with St. Paul. When St. Paul was about to go to Jerusalem from Greece, after his second visit into that country, St. Luke, mentioning certain persons, says, "These going before tarried for us at Troas; and we sailed away from Philippi," chap. xx. 5, 6. Thus again we learn, that St. Luke accompanied St. Paul out of Greece, through Macedonia to Troas; and the sequel of St. Paul's history in the Acts, and some passages in his Epistles, (2 Tim. iv. 11; Col. iv. 14; Philem. ver. 24,) written while he was a prisoner at Rome, inform us that St. Luke continued from that time with him, till he was released from his confinement at Rome, which was a space of about five years, and included a very interesting part of St. Paul's life. See the last nine chapters of the Acts. Here ends the certain account of St. Luke. It seems probable however, that he went from Rome into Achaia; and some authors have asserted that he afterwards preached the Gospel in Africa. None of the most ancient Fathers having mentioned that St. Luke suffered martyrdom, we may suppose that he died a natural death; but at what time, or in what place, is not known.

It is probable that St. Luke was by birth a Jew, and a native of Antioch in Syria; and there seems no reason to doubt that "Luke the beloved physician," mentioned in the Epistle to the Colossians, chap. iv. 14, was Luke the Evangelist. In the introduction to his Gospel, chap. i. 1, &c. St. Luke appears to intimate, that he was not himself an eyewitness of the things he was about to relate: however, some have thought that he was one of the seventy disciples; but there is no authority in the Scriptures for that opinion, and there are now no means of ascertaining whether he was or was not, unless the above-mentioned passage may be considered as conclusive against it.

There was among the ancients a difference of opinion respecting the priority of the two Gospels of St. Mark and St Luke; and it must be acknowledged to be a very doubtful point. Upon the whole, we may be inclined to think that St. Luke wrote before St. Mark, and to place the publication of St. Luke's Gospel in the year 63, soon after St. Paul's release from imprisonment at Rome. There is also great doubt respecting the place where the Gospel was published. It seems, on the whole, most probable, that it was published in Greece, and for the use of Gentile converts. It has been observed, that the Evangelist has inserted many explanations, particularly concerning the Scribes and Pharisees, which he would have omitted if he had been writing for those who were acquainted with the customs and sects of the Jews.

We must conclude that the histories of our Saviour, referred to in the preface to this Gospel, were inaccurate and defective, or St. Luke would not have undertaken this work. It does not, however, appear that they were written with any bad design, but being merely human compositions, and perhaps put together in great haste, they were full of errours. They are now entirely lost, and the names of their authors are not known. When the four authentick Gospels were published, and came into general use, all other histories of our Divine Master were quickly disregarded and forgotten.

We have seen that St. Luke was for several years the companion of St. Paul, and many ancient writers consider this Gospel as having the sanction of St. Paul, in the same manner as St. Mark's had that of St. Peter. Whoever will examine the Evangelist's and the Apostle's account of the Eucharist in their respective original works, will observe a great coincidence of expression. Compare Luke xxii. 19, 20, with 1 Cor. xi. 23—25.

St. Luke seems to have had more learning than any other of the Evangelists, and his language is more various, copious, and pure. This superiority in style may perhaps be owing to his longer residence in Greece, and greater acquaintance with Gentiles of good education, than fell to the lot of the writers of the other three Gospels.

This Gospel contains many things which are not found in the other Gospels; among which are the following: the birth of John the Baptist; the Roman census in Judea; the circumstances attending Christ's birth at Bethlehem; the vision granted to the shepherds; the early testimony of Simeon and Anna; Christ's conversation with the doctors in the temple when He was twelve years old; the parables of the good Samaritan, of the prodigal son, of the rich man and Lazarus, of the wicked judge, and of the publican and Pharisee; the miraculous cure of the woman who had been bowed down by illness eighteen years; the cleansing of the ten lepers, and the restoring to life of the son of a widow at Nain; the account of Zaccheus, and of the penitent thief; and the particulars of the journey to Emmaus. Bp. Tomline.

CHAP. I.

1 The preface of Luke to his whole gospel. 5 The conception of John the Baptist, 26 and of Christ. 39 The prophecy of Elisabeth, and of Mary, concerning Christ. 57 The nativity and circumcision of John. 67 The prophecy of Zacharias, both of Christ, 76 and of John.

FORASMUCH as many have taken in hand to set forth in order a declaration of those things which are most surely believed among us,

2 Even as they delivered them unto us, which from the beginning were eyewitnesses, and ministers of the word;

3 It seemed good to me also, having had perfect understanding of all things from the very first, to write unto thee in order, most excellent Theophilus,

4 That thou mightest know the certainty of those things, wherein thou hast been instructed.

Before the Common Account called Anno Domini the sixth Year.

5 ¶ THERE was in the days of Herod, the king of Judea, a certain priest named Zacharias, of the course of Abia: and his wife was of the daughters of Aaron, and her name was Elisabeth.

6 And they were both righteous before God, walking in all the commandments and ordinances of the Lord blameless.

7 And they had no child, because that Elisabeth was barren, and they both were now well stricken in years.

Before the Account called Anno Domini the sixth Year.

8 And it came to pass, that while he executed the priest's office before God in the order of his course,

9 According to the custom of the priest's office, his lot was to burn incense when he went into the temple of the Lord.

10 [a] And the whole multitude of the people were praying without at the time of incense.

[a] Exod. 30. 7. Lev. 16. 17.

11 And there appeared unto him an angel of the Lord standing on the right side of the altar of incense.

12 And when Zacharias saw him, he was troubled, and fear fell upon him.

13 But the angel said unto him, Fear not, Zacharias: for thy prayer is heard; and thy wife Elisabeth shall bare thee a son, and thou shalt call his name John.

14 And thou shalt have joy and gladness; and many shall rejoice at his birth.

15 For he shall be great in the sight of the Lord, and shall drink neither wine nor strong drink; and he shall be filled with the Holy Ghost, even from his mother's womb.

16 [b] And many of the children of Israel shall he turn to the Lord their God.

[b] Mal. 4. 6.

17 And he shall go before him in the Chap. I. ver. 1. Forasmuch as many &c.] It appears from these words, that before St. Luke wrote his Gospel, there had been many accounts of Jesus published, which were agreeable to the information received by the first Christians, from "the eyewitnesses, and ministers of the word," ver. 2. Bp. Pearce.

3. — having had perfect understanding] The literal translation of the words in the original is, "Having diligently traced out all things from the beginning;" that is, having gotten from eyewitnesses an exact account of all those things which happened, &c. Bp. Pearce.

—— in order,] We must refer this expression to all the main circumstances of the history, the conception, birth, circumcision, death, resurrection, &c.; all which he truly details "in order." Dr. Whitby.

—— most excellent Theophilus,] Who this Theophilus was, to whom St. Luke addresses his Gospel, is wholly unknown.

4. — wherein thou hast been instructed.] The words may be more properly translated, "wherein thou hast been catechized;" which implies, that St. Luke's Gospel is an historical exposition of the catechism which Theophilus had learned when he was first made a Christian. We have more, then, than the mere testimony of St. Luke for the facts which he relates; we have the express information from him that these facts formed the catechetical instructions which were learnt by the early converts to Christianity. Bp. Horsley.

5. — Herod, the king of Judea,] Herod the Great. See note at Matt. ii. 1.

—— of the course of Abia:] Respecting the twenty courses of the priests appointed by David, see note at 1 Chron. xxiv. 1. Abia or Abijah is mentioned there, ver. 10, as the eighth in course.

—— of the daughters of Aaron,] It was lawful for a priest to marry into any of the tribes of Israel; see Ezra ii. 61; 2 Chron. xxii. 11; but more commendable to take one of the line of the priests. Dr. Lightfoot.

6. — righteous before God,] Eminent for their singular piety and integrity. Dr. S. Clarke.

9. — his lot was to burn incense] See note at 1 Chron. xxiv. 1, where it is stated that the priests in each course had their particular part in the temple service assigned to them by lot.

—— into the temple of the Lord.] Into the sanctuary where was the altar of incense, and where the law required that the priests should burn incense morning and evening, Exod. xxx. 6—8. When the priests went into the sanctuary to offer incense, notice was given by the sound of a small bell that it was the time of prayer, and then every one present offered up his prayers to God in silence. Dr. Whitby.

13. — thy prayer is heard;] Thy prayer for the delivery of thy people, for the coming of the Messiah, and the consolation of Israel and the remission of their sins, is now so graciously heard, that from thy very loins shall come the forerunner "to prepare His way." Dr. Whitby.

—— his name John.] This name signifies in Hebrew "the grace or mercy of God," and is used to express joy and rejoicing. The words which follow in the next verse have manifestly a reference to the peculiar import of this name. Grotius.

15. For he shall be great &c.] He shall be a very eminent person, abstaining from meats and drinks after the manner of the Nazarites; and the power of the Holy Ghost shall be discerned upon him very early. Dr. Hammond.

By a thorough mortification of the flesh, St. John gained a complete victory over the world; and herein consisted that greatness of his character foretold by the angel. Bp. Horne.

16. And many &c.] And being a preacher of repentance to the Jews, he shall work upon many of them, and bring them to repentance and a change of life. Dr. Hammond.

17. And he shall go before him &c.] "In the spirit and power of Elias," foretold by Malachi, chap. iv. 5, resembling that illustrious Prophet in his power of conversion and spirit of reproof:

Before the Account called Anno Domini the sixth Year.

spirit and power of Elias, to turn the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the disobedient ‖ to the wisdom of the just; to make ready a people prepared for the Lord.

‖ Or, by.

18 And Zacharias said unto the angel, Whereby shall I know this? for I am an old man, and my wife well stricken in years.

19 And the angel answering said unto him, I am Gabriel, that stand in the presence of God; and am sent to speak unto thee, and to shew thee these glad tidings.

20 And, behold, thou shalt be dumb, and not able to speak, until the day that these things shall be performed, because thou believest not my words, which shall be fulfilled in their season.

21 And the people waited for Zacharias, and marvelled that he tarried so long in the temple.

22 And when he came out, he could not speak unto them: and they perceived that he had seen a vision in the temple: for he beckoned unto them, and remained speechless.

23 And it came to pass, that, as soon as the days of his ministration were accomplished, he departed to his own house.

24 And after those days his wife Elisabeth conceived, and hid herself five months, saying,

25 Thus hath the Lord dealt with me in the days wherein he looked on me, to take away my reproach among men.

Before the Account called Anno Domini the sixth Year.

26 And in the sixth month the angel Gabriel was sent from God unto a city of Galilee, named Nazareth,

27 To a virgin espoused to a man whose name was Joseph, of the house of David; and the virgin's name was Mary.

28 And the angel came in unto her, and said, Hail, thou that art ‖highly favoured, the Lord is with thee: blessed art thou among women.

‖ Or, graciously accepted, or, much graced: see ver. 30.

29 And when she saw him, she was troubled at his saying, and cast in her mind what manner of salutation this should be.

30 And the angel said unto her, Fear not, Mary: for thou hast found favour with God.

31 [c] And, behold, thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and bring forth a son, and shalt call his name JESUS.

[c] Isai. 7. 14. Matt. 1. 21.

32 He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest: and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David:

33 [d] And he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end.

[d] Dan. 7. 14. Mic. 4. 7.

34 Then said Mary unto the angel, How shall this be, seeing I know not a man?

35 And the angel answered and said unto her, The Holy Ghost shall come upon

---

"to turn the hearts of the fathers," &c. by promoting peace and harmony among his countrymen, and "make ready a people" prepared for the reception of the Gospel. Dr. Hales.

—— to turn the hearts &c.] See note at Malachi iv. 6. The meaning seems to be, either, that men of every age and every disposition should be united in truth and charity; or, as some learned expositors understand the passage, that St. John should bring many of the Jews to have the same heart and mind which their fathers and progenitors had, who feared God, and believed His promises; that so their fathers might, as it were, rejoice in them, and own them again for their children; in other words, that he should convert them to the faith of that Christ in whom their fathers hoped, and for whom they looked; lest, all continuing obstinate in their unbelief, till the day when a rejected Saviour should visit an apostate people, the curse should be universal. Bp. Horne.

20. — thou shalt be dumb,] This temporary dumbness is an admonitory punishment to him for his unbelief; but it seems to have been intended also as a sign, and indeed was admirably calculated, by its continuance and publick remission, to fix the attention of the Jews on the Divine character of the promised child. Grotius.

22. — they perceived] By his not being able to speak, and probably by the effect which the vision had on his appearance. Bp. Pearce.

23. — the days of his ministration] The seven days, during which the ministration of each course continued.

24. — hid herself five months,] Lived retired, from devotion to God for so singular and unexpected a mercy. Dr. Whitby.

25. — to take away my reproach] Barrenness was esteemed a reproach among the Jews. See Gen. xxx. 23. Bp. Pearce. The hope of giving birth to the Messiah rendered the Jewish women extremely anxious for children, and made them, from the earliest time, consider barrenness as a sign of God's judgment or displeasure. Dr. Lightfoot.

26. — in the sixth month] The sixth month after Elisabeth's conception. Dr. Hammond.

—— the angel Gabriel] It is remarkable that this annunciation is made by the same archangel Gabriel, who had formerly appeared to the Prophet Daniel, chap. viii. 16; ix. 21; and probably to the Prophet Zechariah, chap. ii. 1—4, and described to both so circumstantially the coming of Christ, His rejection by the Jews, and the final establishment of His kingdom. Dr. Hales.

28. — Hail, thou that art highly favoured,] That is, who hast found favour from God, ver. 30. Dr. Whitby.

—— blessed art thou among women.] This whole expression is a form of salutation, denoting kindness, and not reverence; and no argument can be drawn from this passage for any religious worship paid to the Virgin Mary. Bp. Mann.

31. — his name JESUS.] See note at Matt. i. 21.

32. He shall be great, &c.] He shall be a great and glorious Person, even the expected Messiah, the Son of the Most High God; and God shall give Him an eternal and spiritual kingdom, of which that short and temporal one of David was but a type and representation. Dr. S. Clarke.

34. — How shall this be,] A question not arising from disbelief, but from wonder, and a desire to be satisfied how events so strange should be brought to pass. Dean Stanhope.

35. — The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee, &c.] It was necessary to the scheme of redemption, by the Redeemer's offering Himself up as an expiatory sacrifice, that the manner of our Lord's conception should be such that He should in no degree partake of the natural pollution of the fallen race, for whose guilt He came to atone, nor be included in the general condemnation thee, and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee: therefore also that holy thing which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God.

Before the Account called Anno Domini the sixth Year.

36 And, behold, thy cousin Elisabeth, she hath also conceived a son in her old age: and this is the sixth month with her, who was called barren.

37 For with God nothing shall be impossible.

38 And Mary said, Behold the handmaid of the Lord; be it unto me according to thy word. And the angel departed from her.

39 And Mary arose in those days, and went into the hill country with haste, into a city of Juda;

40 And entered into the house of Zacharias, and saluted Elisabeth.

41 And it came to pass, that, when Elisabeth heard the salutation of Mary, the babe leaped in her womb; and Elisabeth was filled with the Holy Ghost:

Before the Account called Anno Domini the sixth Year.

42 And she spake out with a loud voice, and said, Blessed art thou among women, and blessed is the fruit of thy womb.

43 And whence is this to me, that the mother of my Lord should come to me?

44 For, lo, as soon as the voice of thy salutation sounded in mine ears, the babe leaped in my womb for joy.

45 And blessed is she ‖ that believed: for there shall be a performance of those things which were told her from the Lord.

‖ Or, which believed that there.

46 And Mary said, My soul doth magnify the Lord,

47 And my spirit hath rejoiced in God my Saviour.

48 For he hath regarded the low estate of his handmaiden: for, behold, from of Adam's progeny. In order to reverse the universal sentence passed upon mankind, and to purge their universal corruption, a Redeemer was to be found, pure of every stain of inbred and contracted guilt. And, since every person, produced in the ordinary course of generation, could not but be of this contaminated race; the purity, requisite to the efficacy of the Redeemer's atonement, made it necessary that the manner of His conception should be supernatural. Thus the miraculous conception has a natural connexion with the other articles of our faith. Without it, it could not have been true, as St. John asserts, that "the Word was made flesh," John i. 14, and the atonement of the Redeemer would have been inadequate and ineffectual. Bp. Horsley.

---

——therefore also that holy thing — shall be called the Son of God.] The glorious truth which is covered under this vail of words, is not, it must be acknowledged, clearly understood by us. Men have been styled the sons of God, as being the work of His hands, and being formed in His image. Spirits, superiour to man, have also been called the sons of God, and even His first-born, for the same reasons, and because they were in being before us. But Jesus is the Son of God in a sense very different from all these; derived from the Supreme Father, in a superiour and more immediate manner, and not only among many brethren the first-born, but, among them all, the only-begotten. Dr. Ogden.

The reason why "that holy thing" was to be called the Son of God is clear; namely, because the Holy Ghost is God: for, were He a creature, and not God Himself, by whom our Saviour was thus born of a virgin, He must have been the Son of a creature, not of God. Bp. Pearson.

36. And, behold, thy cousin &c.] To remove every doubt respecting the sure fulfilment of that which was now promised, the angel desires her to behold her cousin Elisabeth, who had been made to conceive a son when past the age of child-bearing, by the miraculous power of God. Dr. S. Clarke.

38. —Behold the handmaid &c.] In these words, Mary expresses her consent, her humility, her faith, and her rejoicing, in the gracious purpose of God. Dean Stanhope.

39. —into the hill country, — into a city of Juda;] The city here spoken of, it is supposed, is Hebron, this being one of the cities given to the priests in the tribe of Judah, Josh. xxi. 10, 13; and also said expressly to lie in the mountains or hills, Josh. xi. 21; xv. 48, 54: these hills, running across the middle of Judea from south to north, gave to the tract, along which they run, the name of the hill country. Dr. Wells.

41. —was filled with the Holy Ghost:] By this heavenly inspiration she knew that her cousin Mary had conceived; that the child conceived was to be her Lord, ver. 43; and that Mary had believed the angel who appeared to her; see ver. 45. Bp. Pearce.

43. And whence is this to me,] She says, And herein am I also greatly honoured, that I am visited by the mother of our Lord. Dr. S. Clarke.

46. —My soul doth &c.] On the decisive evidence now afforded to her, Mary gives full expression to all her mingled emotions of joy, gratitude, humility, and reliance on God's mercies, not only for herself, but for all those that fear Him, from generation to generation, or to the remotest ages, in this admirable hymn, which so strongly resembles, and furnishes the finest commentary on the hymn of Hannah, 1 Sam. ii. 1—10, in which the Blessed Seed was first celebrated, and by a woman, under the title of the Messiah, Christ (anointed) or King of Israel. Dr. Hales.

This hymn of the Blessed Virgin is appointed to be used in our Church service after the first lesson at evening prayer. It is called the Magnificat from the word with which it begins in Latin. It is the first hymn recorded in the New Testament; and, from its ancient use among the primitive Christians, has been continued in the offices of the Church in other countries as well as in ours. For, as the holy Virgin, when she reflected on the promises of the Old Testament, now about to be fulfilled in the mysterious conception and happy birth, of which God had designed her to be the instrument, expressed her joy in this form; so we, when we hear in the lessons like examples of His mercy, and are told of those prophecies and promises which were then fulfilled, may not improperly rejoice with her in the same words, as having a proportionable share of interest in the same blessings. Wheatley.

Most fitly has our Church appointed sacred hymns to be used, after the reading of the lessons from the Holy Scriptures. For who is there, that, hearing God speak from heaven to him for his soul's health, can do less than rise up and praise Him? And what hymns can be fitter to praise God with for our salvation, than those which formed the earliest gratulation, with which the advent of our Saviour to the world was hailed? Bp. Sparrow.

46—48. — My soul doth magnify &c.] All honour, glory, thanksgiving, and praise, be unto God, who is the Author of all blessings, and who has now filled my heart with exceeding great joy. For, though I was of low condition, and had no reason to expect that any extraordinary person would arise in my family; yet hath God, out of His infinite bounty, vouchsafed to exalt me to the highest dignity, and to make me the instrument of bringing the Messiah into the world, on whose account the generations of men through all ages to the end of the world shall call me blessed. Dr. S. Clarke.

Before the Account called Anno Domini the sixth Year.

henceforth all generations shall call me blessed.

49 For he that is mighty hath done to me great things; and holy is his name.

50 And his mercy is on them that fear him from generation to generation.

[e] Isai. 51. 9. 51 [e] He hath shewed strength with his [f] Ps. 33. 10. arm; [f] he hath scattered the proud in the imagination of their hearts.

[g] 1 Sam. 2. 6. 52 [g] He hath put down the mighty from their seats, and exalted them of low degree.

[h] Ps. 34. 10. 53 [h] He hath filled the hungry with good things; and the rich he hath sent empty away.

[i] Jer. 31. 3, 20. 54 He hath holpen his servant Israel, [i] in remembrance of his mercy;

[k] Ps. 132. 11. Gen. 17. 19. 55 [k] As he spake to our fathers, to Abraham, and to his seed for ever.

56 And Mary abode with her about three months, and returned to her own house.

57 Now Elisabeth's full time came that she should be delivered; and she brought forth a son.

58 And her neighbours and her cousins heard how the Lord had shewed great mercy upon her; and they rejoiced with her.

Before the Account called Anno Domini the sixth Year.

59 And it came to pass, that on the eighth day they came to circumcise the child; and they called him Zacharias, after the name of his father.

60 And his mother answered and said, Not so; but he shall be called John.

61 And they said unto her, There is none of thy kindred that is called by this name.

62 And they made signs to his father, how he would have him called.

63 And he asked for a writing table, and wrote, saying, His name is John. And they marvelled all.

64 And his mouth was opened immediately, and his tongue loosed, and he spake, and praised God.

65 And fear came on all that dwelt round about them: and all these ‖ sayings were noised abroad throughout all the hill country of Judea. ‖ Or, things.

66 And all they that heard them laid them up in their hearts, saying, What manner of child shall this be! And the hand of the Lord was with him.

67 And his father Zacharias was filled with the Holy Ghost, and prophesied, saying,

---

48. —all generations shall call me blessed.] Because in her was to be accomplished the ancient prophecy, that "a virgin should conceive and bare a Son," Isai. vii. 14; of her was to be born the Redeemer of Israel, the Saviour of the world, the Holy One, the mighty God, the Prince of Peace. Well therefore might all ages "call her blessed;" well might they celebrate her memory, the fruit of whose womb was the Author of eternal salvation; well might they admire her as a pattern of true meekness, and piety, and purity of manners: but farther than this we dare not go. To invoke her as the queen of heaven, to pray to her and worship her, as one having Divine power, is the height of profaneness and impiety; and a direct breach of the first and great commandment. How must her meek and humble spirit have been offended and shocked, could she have foreseen the idolatrous adoration of the Church of Rome, which not only "calls her blessed," but places her upon an equality with the blessed Lord of heaven and earth; nay, in some sense makes her superiour to our Saviour, by beseeching her to 'command her Son' to grant their requests. Waldo.

51. He hath shewed strength &c.] Thus, she proceeds, in old time God has frequently given remarkable instances of His power and wisdom, in confounding and bringing to nought the devices of proud and designing men, and turning things, beyond all expectation, to the advantage of the modest and humble. Dr. S. Clarke.

54, 55. He hath holpen his servant &c.] In particular, He hath all along preserved and blessed His peculiar people, the Jews, in an especial manner; in old time, by leading them through the greatest dangers, and delivering them from their most powerful enemies; and now, by sending to them the Messiah, their Saviour; according to the gracious promise which He made to our forefathers, and the rest of the Patriarchs, that He would shew extraordinary mercy to them and their posterity through all generations. Dr. S. Clarke.

57. —and she brought forth a son.] It is observable, that the Baptist's nativity is the only one (that of Christ excepted) which the Christian Church has thought proper to celebrate. The days appointed for the commemoration of other saints are generally those on which they respectively ceased from their labours, and entered into their everlasting rest; the day of a good man's death being indeed the day of his birth, and this world no more than the womb in which he is formed and matured for his admission where there is neither sorrow or pain. But the nativity of St. John being designed, by the remarkable incidents that accompanied it, to turn the eyes of men towards One that was far greater; One, the latchet of whose shoes he confessed himself not worthy to unloose; the Church keeps a day sacred to it, and directs us to begin our meditations by considering, as all Judea did when it happened, "what manner of child" that should be, which was so wonderfully born. Bp. Horne.

59. —on the eighth day] See Lev. xii. 1—3. They gave the name to the child at the time of the circumcision, the name of Abram having been changed at the first institution of this rite, Gen. xvii. 5, 10. Dr. Lightfoot.

62. —they made signs to his father,] This seems to shew that Zacharias was deaf, as well as dumb. Bp. Pearce.

63. —they marvelled all.] For the reason, at ver. 60, 61.

66. —And the hand of the Lord was with him.] The child grew and appeared to be blessed in a peculiar manner by the continual care of Divine Providence. Dr. S. Clarke.

67. —and prophesied,] Meaning, that, by Divine inspiration, he composed the following hymn, (Dr. S. Clarke,) in which he prophetically describes what will be done by his son, and the Messiah hereafter. Dr. Whitby.

The occasion on which the following hymn was composed was the birth of St. John; the subject of it is the covenant of grace in Jesus Christ; the speaker is a priest and a Prophet, "filled with the Holy Ghost." During a tedious interval of silence, Zacharias had beheld the accomplishment of the Divine promise to himself; and he likewise knew that the Saviour of mankind would soon be born of his relation, the Virgin Mary. We may judge, therefore, what pain and grief he felt, while restrained from uttering that

Before the Account called Anno Domini the sixth Year.

68 Blessed be the Lord God of Israel; for he hath visited and redeemed his people,

69 [l] And hath raised up an horn of salvation for us in the house of his servant David;

[l] Ps. 132. 17.

[m] Jer. 23. 5. & 30. 9.

70 [m] As he spake by the mouth of his holy prophets, which have been since the world began:

71 That we should be saved from our enemies, and from the hand of all that hate us;

72 To perform the mercy promised to our fathers, and to remember his holy covenant;

[n] Gen. 22. 16.

73 [n] The oath which he sware to our father Abraham,

74 That he would grant unto us, that we being delivered out of the hand of our enemies might serve him without fear,

Before the Account called Anno Domini the sixth Year.

75 In holiness and righteousness before him, all the days of our life.

76 And thou, child, shalt be called the prophet of the Highest: for thou shalt go before the face of the Lord to prepare his ways;

77 To give knowledge of salvation unto his people ‖ by the remission of their sins,

‖ Or, for.

78 Through the ‖ tender mercy of our God; whereby the ‖ dayspring from on high hath visited us,

‖ Or, bowels of the mercy.

‖ Or, sunrising, or, branch, Zech. 3. 8. Isai. 11. 1. Mal. 4. 2. Numb. 24. 17.

79 To give light to them that sit in darkness and in the shadow of death, to guide our feet into the way of peace.

80 And the child grew, and waxed

"good matter," of which his heart was so full, that, when at length God saw fit to grant His permission, it burst forth at once in an impetuous and irresistible torrent of thanksgiving. Bp. Horne.

This hymn of Zacharias, containing a thanksgiving to God for the incarnation of our Saviour, and for those unspeakable mercies, which were soon afterwards the subject of the Church's praises, is one of those appointed to be used in our Church service after the second lesson at the morning service. The second lesson is always taken either from the Gospels or the Acts, which contain an historical account of the great work of our redemption: and therefore, as the angel that first published the glad tidings of salvation was joined by a multitude of the heavenly host, who all brake forth in praises to God; so, when the same tidings are rehearsed by the priest, it is most proper that both he and the people should unite in mutual gratulations, and in praising and blessing the name of God in the expressions of this Divine hymn. Wheatley.

68. — hath visited] Hath visited in mercy. So Ruth i. 6; Ps. lxxx. 14. Dr. Whitby.

It was no new thing for the God of Israel to visit and redeem His people. He had often done it when they were in captivity and affliction. But so to visit and redeem was not all that He intended to do for His chosen. Through things temporal He was desirous that they should look at things eternal, and carry on their views from a bodily to a spiritual redemption, in which all His counsels terminated; a redemption to be effected by His visiting mankind, dwelling among them in a tabernacle of flesh, and in that tabernacle offering up the true propitiatory sacrifice; a redemption that should extend to Gentiles as well as Jews, and of both make one people, a new Israel, of which He should be the Lord God for evermore. Bp. Horne.

69. — an horn of salvation] Meaning a great deliverance. Dr. S. Clarke. A strength and power sufficient to save us. Bp. Pearce. See note at 1 Sam. ii. 1.

70—72. As he spake &c.] According to the many gracious promises which He made and declared by the ancient Prophets; that He would send salvation to His people, and deliver them from the power of their greatest enemies; that He would certainly perform the covenant made with the Patriarchs our forefathers, and extend His mercy to their posterity in all ages. Dr. S. Clarke.

70. — since the world began:] All the Prophets from Adam downwards spake of the salvation and deliverance from the power of Satan, to be accomplished by Christ, as foretold at Gen. iii. 15. Dr. Lightfoot.

73—75. The oath which he sware] And according to the oath which He sware to our forefather Abraham; that his posterity, being delivered from all the enemies of their religion and happiness, should worship God cheerfully and safely; and under the instruction of the Messiah, should live in sincere righteousness and holiness of heart and life, through all generations. Dr. S. Clarke.

76. — shalt be called &c.] Shalt be, in a peculiar and extraordinary manner, His Prophet and forerunner. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— the Highest: — the Lord] John is here said to be the Prophet of "the Highest," and to go before the face of "the Lord." But it was Christ, before whose face he was sent as a messenger, and whose Prophet he was. Therefore Christ is "the Highest," and "the Lord." Jones of Nayland.

77. To give knowledge &c.] To preach to the people repentance, as the condition, which the infinite mercy of God is pleased to offer them, of reconciliation and salvation. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— by the remission of their sins,] Remission of sins is the doctrine in which the Christian religion justly glorieth, as that most necessary and fundamental point in which every other religion fails. The heathen here confesses himself to be in the dark. The blood of bulls and goats cannot wash away the sins of the Jew; and his oblations, since the truth is come which they were intended to prefigure, are preposterous and impious. The doctrine of salvation by the remission of sins, through faith in a Redeemer, was, from the beginning, the sum and substance of true religion, which subsisted in promise, prophecy, and figure, till John preached their accomplishment in the person of Jesus. Bp. Horne.

78, 79. Through the tender mercy &c.] By that unspeakable compassion of God, who hath sent His Son from heaven, that, like the sun, He should disperse the darkness of ignorance and misery, and enlighten the minds of a blind world, to find the paths of knowledge and salvation. Dean Stanhope.

St. John was the morning star, that preceded the Sun of righteousness at His rising; an event, the glory of which is due to the tender mercy of God, since towards the production of it man can do no more, than he can do towards causing the natural sun to rise upon the earth. The blessed effects of the dayspring, which then dawned from on high, and gradually increased more and more unto the perfect day, were, the dispersion of ignorance, which is the darkness of the intellectual world; the awakening of men from sin, which is the sleep of the soul; and the conversion and direction of their hearts and inclinations into "the way of peace;" that is, of reconciliation to God by the blood of Christ, to themselves by the answer of a conscience cleansed from sin, and to one another by mutual love. Bp. Horne.

79. — the shadow of death,] Meaning, in a spiritual sense, a state of ignorance and sin, under the want of light and grace; the state of mankind, till Christ imparted to them salvation and light. Dr. Hammond.

Before the Account called Anno Domini the sixth Year.

strong in spirit, and was in the deserts till the day of his shewing unto Israel.

CHAP. II.

1 Augustus taxeth all the Roman empire. 6 The nativity of Christ. 8 One angel relateth it to the shepherds: 13 many sing praises to God for it. 21 Christ is circumcised. 22 Mary purified. 28 Simeon and Anna prophesy of Christ: 40 who increaseth in wisdom, 46 questioneth in the temple with the doctors, 51 and is obedient to his parents.

Before the Account called Anno Domini the fifth Year.

AND it came to pass in those days, that there went out a decree from Cesar Augustus, that all the world should be ‖ taxed.

‖ Or, enrolled.

2 (And this taxing was first made when Cyrenius was governor of Syria.)

3 And all went to be taxed, every one into his own city.

4 And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth, into Judea, unto [a] the city of David, which is called Bethlehem; (because he was of the house and lineage of David:)

Before the Account called Anno Domini the fifth Year.

[a] John 7. 42.

5 To be taxed with Mary his espoused wife, being great with child.

6 And so it was, that, while they were there, the days were accomplished that she should be delivered.

7 And she brought forth her firstborn son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn.

8 And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping ‖ watch over their flock by night.

‖ Or, the night-watches.

9 And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord

---

80. — waxed strong in spirit,] Advanced in spiritual as well as natural accomplishments. Dean Stanhope.

—— was in the deserts] In the desert, apart from the world, and under the tuition of Heaven, St. John was instructed in the principles of Divine wisdom, initiated into the mystery of a holy life, and perfected in the discipline of selfdenial. Bp. Horne.

It is worthy of observation, that we have, for the proof of the very important doctrine of the miraculous conception, the express testimony of two out of the four Evangelists; of St. Matthew, whose Gospel was published in Judea within a few years of our Lord's ascension; and of St. Luke, whose narrative was composed, as may be collected from the author's short preface, to correct what was erroneous in some pretended histories of our Saviour's life, which had been antecedently published. It is very remarkable, that the fact of the miraculous conception should be found in the first of the four Gospels; written at a time when many of the near relations of the Holy Family must have been living, by whom the story, had it been false, would have been easily confuted; that it should be found again in St. Luke's Gospel, written for the peculiar use of the converted Gentiles, and for the express purpose of furnishing a summary of authentick facts, and of suppressing spurious narrations. It seems to have been ordered by some peculiar providence of God, that the two great branches of the primitive Church, the Hebrew congregations, for whom St. Matthew wrote, and the Greek congregations, for whom St. Luke wrote, should find an express record of the miraculous conception, each in their proper Gospel. Bp. Horsley.

Chap. II. ver. 1. — that all the world should be taxed.] That all persons in the Roman empire should have their names and conditions of life set down in court rolls, according to their families. The Roman empire was proudly called "the world;" and Augustus the emperour ordered the people to be registered, as is here stated, probably for the purpose of knowing what taxes he might raise. Bp. Mann, Drs. Campbell and Hammond.

2. — was first made when Cyrenius &c.] A difficulty has arisen respecting these words, from the circumstance of its appearing from other historical records, that Cyrenius was not made governour of Syria till ten or twelve years after the birth of Christ; and that at the beginning of his government an assessment was made in Judea. In order to meet this difficulty, it is to be stated that the words in the original admit of being translated, "This was the first assessment (or enrolment) of Cyrenius, the governor of Syria." Thus we may suppose that the assessment now spoken of was made under the superintendence of Cyrenius, who was afterwards governour of Syria; and that, as he was subsequently well known by this title of "governor of Syria," he is here by anticipation called by that title. It should be observed, that the assessment mentioned here is expressly said to be that "first made;" an expression which clearly has a reference to a second assessment; that is, to the assessment mentioned in history about twelve years afterwards, when Cyrenius was actual governour. An important confirmation of this mode of explaining the difficulty is, that Josephus mentions the fact of the whole Jewish nation having taken an oath to be faithful to Cesar, about the time of Christ's birth; and this may be the occasion of the very assessment, or enrolment, of which we read in this verse. Archdeacon Paley, Dean Prideaux, Dr. Hammond.

3. — every one into his own city.] By the wary policy of the Romans, to prevent insurrections, and to expedite the business, all were required to repair to their own cities. Even in Italy, the consular edict commanded the Latin citizens not to be enrolled at Rome, but all in their own cities. And this precaution was still more necessary in turbulent provinces, like Judea and Galilee. Dr. Hales.

4. — unto the city of David,] How admirable was the providence of God, in so ordering the course of events, that this enrolment should take place at the very time of the birth of our Saviour, and that thus the prophecy of Micah (chap. v. 2.) respecting his being born at Bethlehem, should be fulfilled. Dr. Whitby.

Thus did "the fierceness of man turn to the praise of God," and to the fulfilment of prophecy, that Christ should be born at Bethlehem, so far from His mother's residence. Dr. Hales.

7. — in a manger;] The word in the original seems to mean, not literally what we call a manger, but a stable, or place where cattle stand. Dr. Hammond.

The Eastern people have no mangers for their horses, such as we have in England; but in their stables they have stone troughs, in which they lay their fodder. Dr. Russell.

How can we sufficiently wonder at the humility of the Son of God! He, for whom heaven is too narrow, whom the heaven of heavens cannot contain, is not allowed, when He comes into the world, even the room of an inn. The many mansions of heaven were at His disposal; the earth was His, and the fulness of it; yet He suffered Himself to be destitute of a mean cottage, and did not complain. How should we learn to want and to abound, from Him, who, abounding with the glories and riches of heaven, wanted a lodging on His first welcome to the earth. Bp. Hall.

9. — the glory of the Lord] Such a glorious splendour as was wont to represent the presence of God. Dr. Whitby. The same glorious light which attended the Divine Presence on several solemn occasions; which conducted the Israelites through the shone round about them: and they were sore afraid.

Before the Account called Anno Domini the fifth Year.

10 And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people.

11 For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.

12 And this shall be a sign unto you; ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger.

13 And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying,

14 Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men.

15 And it came to pass, as the angels were gone away from them into heaven, the shepherds said one to another, Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known unto us.

16 And they came with haste, and found Mary, and Joseph, and the babe lying in a manger.

Before the Account called Anno Domini the fifth Year.

17 And when they had seen it, they made known abroad the saying which was told them concerning this child.

18 And all they that heard it wondered at those things which were told them by the shepherds.

19 But Mary kept all these things, and pondered them in her heart.

20 And the shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all the things that they had heard and seen, as it was told unto them.

Before the Account called Anno Domini the fourth Year.

21 [b] And when eight days were accomplished for the circumcising of the child, his name was called [c] JESUS, which was so named of the angel before he was conceived in the womb.

[b] Gen. 17. 12.
[c] Matt. 1. 21.

22 And when the days of her purification according to the law of Moses were accomplished, they brought him to Jerusalem, to present him to the Lord; wilderness; which shone round about our Lord when He was transfigured; and which struck St. Paul to the earth at his conversion. Bp. Mann.

---

10. — good tidings of great joy, &c.] The good tidings thus brought by the angel were of importance most universal and unlimited, reaching through all successions of time, and all extensions of place, filling all ages and all regions of the world with matter and with obligation of joy. In these tidings we are all concerned, and it is our duty to listen to them with reverent attention, seriously to weigh the purport of them, and diligently to contemplate the reasons of that great joy which should be effectually produced in us by them, as their proper and due result. Dr. I. Barrow.

13. — a multitude of the heavenly host praising God,] If the heavenly host so glorified God for the birth of the Redeemer of the world, what cause have men to adore the infinite love and mercy thus displayed towards them! It was for them that God gave His only begotten Son: He gave Him not for the angels, who therefore have no advantage from it, except that in this glorious event, as in a mirror, they behold this infinite love of God. How much more then should we rejoice that Almighty God hath borne such love to us; that He hath so loved us, His sinful creatures on earth, that He gave for our salvation His only begotten Son! Bp. Beveridge.

No less than a whole chorus of angels are worthy to sing the hymn of "Glory to God" for the incarnation of His Son. What joy is enough for us whose nature He took, and whom He came to restore to salvation. If we had the tongues of angels, we could not raise this note high enough to the praise of our glorious Redeemer. Bp. Hall.

14. Glory to God &c.] Great glory and honour be unto God in heaven, and great peace and happiness to man on earth, since, by the mercy of God, a Saviour is now sent unto them, by whom they may be instructed both to preserve peace among themselves, and to obtain reconciliation with God. Dr. S. Clarke.

Glory to God for this gracious dispensation of Divine love or goodwill to mankind; in which God's mercy and His truth or justice met together in unison by the all-sufficient atonement of Christ, "becoming flesh" to die for our sakes, and in our stead; a mystery worthy to be celebrated by the tongues of angels and men, in and throughout the universe. Dr. Hales.

—— on earth peace,] It is worthy of observation, that this mode of celebrating the birth of our Redeemer was most remarkably adapted to the character of the Messiah, and the nature of the commission with which He was charged. The Friend and Saviour of mankind was introduced into the world with declarations of universal peace and good will. And in this the angels only speak the constant language of Scripture in describing the Messiah. They speak of Him in a manner in which He loves to speak of Himself, in which the Prophets spake of Him before, and the Apostles after Him. See, among many other passages, John xvi. 33; Isai. ix. 6, 7; Rom. xiv. 17. Bp. Porteus.

Our blessed Lord brought "peace on earth," not only in a spiritual sense, by reconciling man to his offended Maker, and thus imparting to him true content and peace and satisfaction of mind, but also in a temporal sense. That benevolence of disposition, and gentleness of behaviour, which He so constantly and so warmly recommended, both by His doctrine and by His example, were entirely calculated to promote the peace and harmony of mankind, and to knit them together in one common bond of love and affection. If ever peace was made visible in outward form, it was in the person of our blessed Lord. His whole life and conversation was one uniform representation of it, insomuch that it might, even in this sense, be affirmed of Him, that "of His peace there was no end." Bp. Porteus.

20. — glorifying and praising God &c.] Full of gratitude to God, and rejoicing at the exact agreement which they found between what the angel had told them, and what themselves had seen. Dean Stanhope.

21. — for the circumcising of the child,] It was necessary that Jesus should be circumcised, that He might be "made under the law," to fulfil the promise of the Messiah, and "to redeem them that were under the law," Gal. iv. 4, 5. Dr. Whitby.

22. — when the days of her purification] That is, on the fortieth day after her delivery. See Lev. xii. 2, 4.

—— they brought him — to present him to the Lord;] The blessed Virgin had received a greater favour than ever was received by the daughters of Adam; and knowing from whence, and for whose glory she had received it, she returns the holy Jesus as a gift to God again; for she had nothing, the world had nothing, so precious as Himself, of which to make an oblation. Never was there before an act of adoration proportionable to the honour and majesty of the great God. But now there was; and it was made at the presentation of the child Jesus in the temple. Bp. Jer. Taylor.

We should ever bear in mind that He who was thus offered in the temple, afterwards offered, and still continues to present Himself, to appear in the presence of God for us. He it is, whose

Before the Account called Anno Domini the fourth Year.

23 (As it is written in the law of the Lord, [d] Every male that openeth the womb shall be called holy to the Lord;)

24 And to offer a sacrifice according to [e] that which is said in the law of the Lord, A pair of turtledoves, or two young pigeons.

25 And, behold, there was a man in Jerusalem, whose name was Simeon; and the same man was just and devout, waiting for the consolation of Israel: and the Holy Ghost was upon him.

26 And it was revealed unto him by the Holy Ghost, that he should not see death, before he had seen the Lord's Christ.

27 And he came by the Spirit into the temple: and when the parents brought in the child Jesus, to do for him after the custom of the law,

28 Then took he him up in his arms, and blessed God, and said,

29 Lord, now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace, according to thy word:

30 For mine eyes have seen thy salvation,

31 Which thou hast prepared before the face of all people;

32 A light to lighten the Gentiles, and the glory of thy people Israel.

33 And Joseph and his mother marvelled at those things which were spoken of him.

34 And Simeon blessed them, and said unto Mary his mother, Behold, this child is set for the [f] fall and rising again of many in Israel; and for a sign which shall be spoken against;

35 (Yea, a sword shall pierce through

Before the Account called Anno Domini the fourth Year.

[d] Exod. 13. 2. Numb. 18. 15.
[e] Lev. 12. 2, 6.
[f] Isai. 8. 14. Rom. 9. 32.

---

infinite merits, whose prevailing satisfaction, the Church in her prayers presents daily to God, and through whom alone ourselves and all our oblations are accepted in the heavenly places. Bp. Horne.

24. — a pair of turtledoves,] This was the offering appointed for the poor; those who could afford the expense were to offer a lamb, Levit. xii. 8. Our Lord was born of poor parents, and was poor on earth, that He might advance the poor to the riches of His kingdom, and in the meantime render their condition here supportable, at least, if not pleasing, when they reflected that their Saviour was once as poor as they. Bp. Horne.

25. — waiting for the consolation of Israel:] Expecting the Messiah to appear about that time, who was to be the consolation, because the redemption, of Israel. Bp. Pearce. Simeon looked forward, while he lived on earth, to the life of heaven, and desired nothing more than that, before he died, he might behold Him, whom the Jews and all the world did look for, the promised Messiah, the consolation of afflicted Israel. Bp. Horne.

27. — came by the Spirit] By the guidance and direction of the Spirit. Dr. Hammond.

—— to do for him after the custom] In acknowledgment that God is the author and proprietor of life, and probably, likewise, in memory of the destruction of the firstborn in Egypt; the law required an offering to be made for the firstborn, Exod. xiii. 12, &c. In obedience to this law, Christ was presented in the temple. Bp. Mann.

29. Lord, now lettest thou &c.] Simeon truly departed in peace; for never from the creation was a more glorious event than the birth of the Son of God and the Redeemer of mankind. Well might he be content to close his eyes after having seen this salvation of God. Dr. Jortin.

God had performed His promise, had shewn him the Messiah, and filled his heart with joy, and made his old age honourable. Simeon had now gazed upon the Sun, and thenceforth became blind to the beauties of this lower world. Earth had no further charms for him; he desired to depart. Thus will it be with the just and devout Christian, whose heart is set upon the Lord's Christ, and the consolation of Israel; who is led by the Spirit into the temple, there to find, to behold, to embrace Him, by faith, in His holy ordinances. Bp. Horne.

This song of Simeon, called the Nunc Dimittis, from the words with which it begins in the Latin service, is appointed by our Church to be recited after the second lesson at evening service. The occasion of Simeon's uttering it was his meeting Christ in the temple, when He came to be there presented: at which time God fulfilled His promise to him, that he should not die till he had seen the Lord's Christ; and it is most proper to be used by us, who cannot indeed behold our Lord with our bodily eyes as Simeon did, but still may have Him daily presented to the eyes of our faith, in the writings of the Apostles. This hymn has been used in the services of all churches, Greek, Roman, and Reformed, and was formerly very frequently sung by saints and martyrs, before their deaths. Wheatley.

30. — thy salvation,] Salvation here means a Saviour: I have seen Him whom Thou hast sent, the Redeemer, who is to be the author of salvation: meaning, of a deliverance from the burden of the law, and the impositions of false teachers; from ignorance and errour, from sin and Satan, from death and the grave. Dr. Jortin.

31, 32. Which thou hast prepared &c.] Whom Thou hast sent into the world to be the great Deliverer and Saviour of mankind, both of Jews and Gentiles; of the Jews, whom He will more immediately honour with His presence and conversation; and of the Gentiles, whom He will convert by the efficacious spreading of His doctrine, from the darkness of ignorance, errour, and superstition, to the knowledge and worship of the true God. Dr. S. Clarke.

34, 35. — Behold, this child is set &c.] Behold, this Child is set for the fall of many through infidelity, and for the rising up of many in Israel through faith in Him, and for a sign that shall be spoken against by the Scribes and Pharisees, and rulers of the people, who will blaspheme His person, contradict His doctrine, and set Him up as their mark to shoot at; (yea, a sword of affliction shall pierce through thy own soul also.) And this opposition to the Messiah God in His wisdom will permit, that the inward tempers and dispositions of many may be revealed. Dr. Whitby.

Simeon here foretells the ill usage which Christ should receive, and the sufferings which He should endure, in His own person, and in that of His friends and followers. He was set for a sign that should be spoken against; He should be exposed to contradiction and reproach, to censure and calumny, to malice and cruelty. For, though the design for which He came into the world was, that the world by Him might be saved; and though He did actually save multitudes, and cause them to rise, yet was He the innocent occasion that many should fall, should be scandalized at His person and doctrine, and prefer darkness to light, and sin to righteousness, unbelief to faith, and obstinacy to repentance. Dr. Jortin.

35. (Yea, a sword shall pierce through &c.] Some have inferred from this text, that the mother of our Lord suffered martyrdom and perished with the sword: but the sentence probably alludes to excessive grief, which pierces like a sword, and which she especially endured when she stood by the cross and beheld her dying Son. Dr. Jortin.

Before the Account called Anno Domini the fourth Year.

thy own soul also,) that the thoughts of many hearts may be revealed.

36 And there was one Anna, a prophetess, the daughter of Phanuel, of the tribe of Aser: she was of a great age, and had lived with an husband seven years from her virginity;

37 And she was a widow of about fourscore and four years, which departed not from the temple, but served God with fastings and prayers night and day.

38 And she coming in that instant gave thanks likewise unto the Lord, and spake of him to all them that looked for redemption in ‖ Jerusalem.

‖ Or, Israel.

39 And when they had performed all things according to the law of the Lord, they returned into Galilee, to their own city Nazareth.

40 And the child grew, and waxed strong in spirit, filled with wisdom: and the grace of God was upon him.

41 Now his parents went to Jerusalem

ᵍ Deut. 16. 1.

ᵍ every year at the feast of the passover.

42 And when he was twelve years old, they went up to Jerusalem after the custom of the feast.

Anno DOMINI 8.

43 And when they had fulfilled the days, as they returned, the child Jesus tarried behind in Jerusalem; and Joseph and his mother knew not of it.

44 But they, supposing him to have been in the company, went a day's journey; and they sought him among their kinsfolk and acquaintance.

45 And when they found him not, they turned back again to Jerusalem, seeking him.

46 And it came to pass, that after three days they found him in the temple, sitting in the midst of the doctors, both hearing them, and asking them questions.

47 And all that heard him were astonished at his understanding and answers.

48 And when they saw him, they were amazed: and his mother said unto him, Son, why hast thou thus dealt with us? behold, thy father and I have sought thee sorrowing.

---

36. — with an husband seven years] She had lived seven years in a married state, and had been a widow so long that she was now eighty-four years old. Bp. Pearce.

37. — which departed not from the temple,] Who continually attended the service of the temple with great devotion, fasting constantly at the accustomed season, and never failing to be present, early or late, at the time of prayer. Dr. S. Clarke.

38. — and spake of him to all them &c.] Declared Him to be the Messiah, and spake of Him to many then in Jerusalem, who were pious and devout persons, prepared for the acknowledgment or the truth, and expecters of the kingdom of the Messiah. Dr. S. Clarke.

On this history of Anna we may observe, that a life regularly and uniformly conducted, according to the discipline of religion and the ordinances of the Church, attracts the notice of heaven, and is thought worthy of being recorded by the Spirit of truth; that the returns of prayer and the blessings of piety, though not perhaps vouchsafed at the time we expect them, yet at the last will come and crown all our wishes with a sight of the Redeemer, and a participation of His joy. From this example of Anna we are taught what returns we should make to heaven for the knowledge of salvation communicated to us: we should glorify God and edify our neighbour, hoping at the end of our days to behold in the true temple the Lord's Christ, the consolation of Israel, the light and the glory of the Church universal. Bp. Horne.

41. Now his parents went to Jerusalem &c.] His parents diligently observed that law which expressly required the attendance of all the males at Jerusalem, to celebrate every year the three solemn festivals, of which the passover was one. See Exod. xxiii. 15, 17; Levit. xxiii; Deut. xvi. On which occasions the females, though not commanded, frequently attended; as did also the children, when capable of understanding the intent of those festivals. Dean Stanhope.

42. And when he was twelve years &c.] Mary and Joseph, in their punctual compliance with the ordinances of their religion, and in their bringing up their child Jesus to the same, have set an excellent example to parents of all ages and places. An example, which, grounded on the express command of God, should make them sensible of how great importance it is, that they who govern families should be conscientious in frequenting God's publick worship themselves; that they should season the tender years of their children with early notions of good and evil, and bring them to a right knowledge of religion by such methods and in such degrees as their years will bear. Particularly, that they should turn their childish curiosity to profit, by explaining to them the occasion of the Christian festivals, begetting in them an early reverence for the glorious mysteries of Christianity, and a becoming value for the inestimable benefits of our redemption. In short, that they should, from the first, make their children their companions in the service of God, and imprint upon their minds such strong and lasting characters of His majesty and goodness, such an habitual awe and love of Him and His commands, as may lay the foundation of a wise and holy life; may preserve their riper years from the contagion of irreligion and vice, direct their choice and secure their perseverance, by habits of goodness, and exemplary improvements in religious prudence, still aspiring nearer unto perfection, to the end of their days. Dean Stanhope.

43. — fulfilled the days,] The eight days, the day of the passover feast, and the seven following days of unleavened bread. Bp. Pearce.

44. — in the company,] The company must have been very great, as the males from every part of the country were required to appear at Jerusalem at the three great festivals. Bp. Mann.

They were accustomed, on these occasions, for their greater security against robbers on the road, to travel in large companies, carrying necessaries with them, and tents for their lodging by night. This account of their manner of travelling furnishes a ready answer to the question, How could Joseph and Mary make a day's journey without discovering before night that Jesus was not in the company? In the daytime, we may reasonably suppose that the travellers would, as occasion or inclination led them, mingle with different parties of their friends or acquaintance; but that, in the evening, when they were about to encamp, every one would join the family to which he belonged. As Jesus did not appear when it was growing late, they first sought Him where it was most probable He would be found, amongst His relations and acquaintance; and not finding Him, they returned to Jerusalem. Dr. Campbell.

46. — sitting in the midst of the doctors,] It was both lawful and customary for the disciples, or any who were present, publickly to enquire either of the doctor who was then reading, or indeed of all who were assembled in the synagogue, respecting any doubtful matter, in which he was not well satisfied. Dr. Lightfoot.

Anno DOMINI 8.

49 And he said unto them, How is it that ye sought me? wist ye not that I must be about my Father's business?

50 And they understood not the saying which he spake unto them.

51 And he went down with them, and came to Nazareth, and was subject unto them: but his mother kept all these sayings in her heart.

52 And Jesus increased in wisdom and ‖ stature, and in favour with God and man.

‖ Or, age.

CHAP. III.

1 The preaching and baptism of John: 15 his testimony of Christ. 20 Herod imprisoneth John. 21 Christ baptized, receiveth testimony from heaven. 23 The age, and genealogy of Christ from Joseph upwards.

A. D. 26. NOW in the fifteenth year of the reign of Tiberius Cesar, Pontius Pilate being governor of Judea, and Herod being tetrarch of Galilee, and his brother Philip tetrarch of Iturea and of the region of Trachonitis, and Lysanias the tetrarch of Abilene,

Anno DOMINI 26.

2 Annas and Caiaphas being the high priests, the word of God came unto John the son of Zacharias in the wilderness.

3 [a] And he came into all the country about Jordan, preaching the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins;

[a] Matt. 3. 1.

4 As it is written in the book of the words of Esaias the prophet, saying, [b] The voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight.

[b] Isai. 40. 3.

5 Every valley shall be filled, and every mountain and hill shall be brought low; and the crooked shall be made straight, and the rough ways shall be made smooth;

6 And all flesh shall see the salvation of God.

7 Then said he to the multitude that

---

49. — wist ye not] Did ye not know, or consider? Bp. Mann.

—— about my Father's business?] The words in the original admit of being translated, "in My Father's house," meaning, in the temple, the house of God, My proper home. Drs. Hammond and Whitby. He answers, Why should you be solicitous about Me? Where should I rather be, than in My Father's temple, and about the business for which I was sent by Him into the world? Dr. S. Clarke.

51. — and was subject unto them:] What a pattern has our Saviour set in this to all children, of humility, and submission, and reverence to their parents! How indispensable does it represent the dutifulness of children in general; how inexcusable their stubbornness and disobedience, when He, who was God as well as man, thought it became Him to submit to parental government; and in all His deportment was full of respect to them, whose Son He was in one capacity, while in another He was their Father, their Lord, their King, their Creator! How sacred must be the obligation of duty towards a natural parent, when even the name and character alone is deserving of respect, though the relation be wanting! for such our Lord has proved it, by that obedience paid, not to her only, of whose substance He was made flesh, but likewise to him who was no otherwise His father, than by reputation and acceptance. And most wisely did the inspired writer insert this passage in the history of our meek Redeemer's life, as a singular ornament and grace to it; an early but remarkable instance of His marvellous condescension, and such a motive to profound reverence and humble duty to parents, as no laboured arguments can supply. Dean Stanhope.

52. — increased in wisdom and stature,] Grew to maturity of judgment in the faculties of His mind, as in His body to the full proportion of a man; and became remarkably endued with those excellent qualifications which made Him acceptable to God, and beloved of men. Dean Stanhope, Dr. S. Clarke.

Chap. III. ver. 1. — of Tiberius Cesar,] The Roman emperour, who succeeded Cesar Augustus, chap. ii. 1, in whose reign our Saviour was born.

—— Herod being tetrarch — and — Philip] See notes at Matt. ii. 1; xiv. 1.

—— Iturea — Trachonitis, — Abilene,] See the position of these countries laid down in the map of Judea adapted to the time of our Saviour.

2. Annas and Caiaphas being the high priests,] By the law of Moses, there was only one high priest among the Jews, whose office continued for life; but, since the conquest of Judea by the Romans, it appears that they appointed the high priest at their pleasure. It has been the subject of very considerable discussion, in what sense Annas and Caiaphas are here both called high priests. Annas, (who was the father in law of Caiaphas, John xviii. 13,) it appears from Josephus, had exercised the office during eleven years, but had been deposed by the Roman governour before the time here spoken of by St. Luke; and it is expressly stated that Caiaphas was the actual high priest at the time when our Saviour was crucified. See Matt. xxvi. 57; John xi. 49; xviii. 13. It has been variously conjectured that Annas is here called high priest together with Caiaphas, either because, having been deposed from the office by a heathen governour, he was still considered as high priest by the Jews; or because he was at this time the Sagan or deputy of the high priest; or, lastly, because he was the Nasi or chief of the Sanhedrim, thence called at Acts xxiii. 5, "ruler of thy people." Drs. Hammond and Whitby, Bp. Pearce.

The truth is, there is an indeterminateness in the use of the title of high priest in the Gospels; sometimes it is applied exclusively to the person who held the office at the time; sometimes to one or two more, who probably shared with him some of the powers or functions of the office; and sometimes to such of the priests as were eminent by their station and character, Mark xiv. 53. And the same indeterminateness is found in Josephus, who on one occasion mentions two high priests, Jonathan and Ananias; a case precisely similar to this of Annas and Caiaphas. Archdeacon Paley.

3. And he came &c.] For further notes on St. John's preaching and baptism, see Matt. iii.

—— into all the country about Jordan,] The towns on the banks of it, as Bethabara and Enon, John i. 28; iii. 23.

5. Every valley &c.] See notes at Isai. xl. 3.

It is observable that St. Luke, who wrote his Gospel for the instruction of the Gentile converts, quotes here no less than three verses out of Isaiah; whereas the other Evangelists, St. Matthew and St. Mark, (Matt. iii. 3; Mark i. 3,) quote only the first of them. But it was necessary for St. Luke's purpose that he should thus extend the quotation, in order to assure the Gentiles, for whom he wrote, that they were destined to be partakers of the privileges of the Gospel, and to "see the salvation of God." Dr. H. Owen.

6. And all flesh shall see &c.] These words are cited from Isai. lii. 10, in which chapter the ancient Jews allow that the Prophet is speaking of the Messiah. Dr. Whitby.

7. — to the multitude &c.] St. Matthew, at chap. iii. 7, states that what St. John here said, to ver. 10, was addressed to the came forth to be baptized of him, [e] O generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come?

Anno DOMINI 26.

[e] Matt. 3. 7.

8 Bring forth therefore fruits ‖ worthy of repentance, and begin not to say within yourselves, We have Abraham to our father: for I say unto you, That God is able of these stones to raise up children unto Abraham.

‖ Or, meet for.

9 And now also the ax is laid unto the root of the trees: every tree therefore which bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down, and cast into the fire.

10 And the people asked him, saying, What shall we do then?

11 He answereth and saith unto them, [d] He that hath two coats, let him impart to him that hath none; and he that hath meat, let him do likewise.

[d] James 2. 15. 1 John 3. 17.

12 Then came also publicans to be baptized, and said unto him, Master, what shall we do?

13 And he said unto them, Exact no more than that which is appointed you.

14 And the soldiers likewise demanded of him, saying, And what shall we do? And he said unto them, ‖ Do violence to no man, neither accuse any falsely; and be content with your ‖ wages.

‖ Or, Put no man in fear. ‖ Or, allowance.

15 And as the people were ‖ in expectation, and all men ‖ mused in their hearts of John, whether he were the Christ, or not;

‖ Or, in suspence. ‖ Or, reasoned, or, debated.

16 John answered, saying unto them all, [e] I indeed baptize you with water; but one mightier than I cometh, the latchet of whose shoes I am not worthy to unloose: he shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost and with fire:

[e] Matt. 3. 11.

17 Whose fan is in his hand, and he will throughly purge his floor, and will gather the wheat into his garner; but the chaff he will burn with fire unquenchable.

18 And many other things in his exhortation preached he unto the people.

19 [f] But Herod the tetrarch, being reproved by him for Herodias his brother Philip's wife, and for all the evils which Herod had done,

A. D. 30. [f] Matt. 14. 3.

20 Added yet this above all, that he shut up John in prison.

21 Now when all the people were baptized, [g] it came to pass, that Jesus also being baptized, and praying, the heaven was opened,

A. D. 27. [g] Matt. 3. 13.

22 And the Holy Ghost descended in a bodily shape like a dove upon him, and a voice came from heaven, which said, Thou art my beloved Son; in thee I am well pleased.

Pharisees and Sadducees. It was spoken probably to them mixed with the multitude, and it was directed principally to them. Dr. Whitby.

10. — saying, What shall we do then?] With fear and trembling they applied to him with this question. The discourse they had heard occasioned great searchings in their hearts. They found all the vain opinions and presumptions, on which they had been so accustomed to rely, suddenly taken from them, and nothing left to them, but forthwith to place themselves under the direction of so holy and heavenly a preacher. Bp. Horne.

11. — let him impart &c.] That is, be merciful, kind and charitable to the needy and distressed. Bp. Mann. The Baptist here calls the Jews from a dependence on outward ceremonies to the practice of real virtues, of which the chief is mutual benevolence and charity. Dr. Lightfoot.

In his answer, he enjoins not legal but evangelical sacrifices; exhorting his converts to shew the sincerity of their conversion by loving their neighbours, and relieving their necessities, as God had loved and relieved them. Bp. Horne.

13. — Exact no more &c.] Be not unjust or vexatious in the exercise of your office: take no more tribute or custom than is due by law. Bp. Mann.

A wise preacher, like St. John, should distinguish the abuses of any state or condition of life from the condition itself; he should be so far from disturbing either the peace of private consciences, or the publick repose, by condemning necessary employments, that he ought carefully to promote both, by contenting himself with only retrenching the disorders and injustice of those who exercise them. To be exact in not permitting any abuses in employments of this nature, is to serve the state; and those loose casuists, who allow and authorize them, are pernicious to governments, by rendering these employments odious to the people, and thereby giving occasion for discontents. Bp. Horne.

—— Do violence to no man,] St. John, here regulating the conduct of military persons, shews that no condition is excluded from salvation. The business of war is not of itself unlawful, since there have been soldiers, who have not only been good Christians, but even great saints and generous martyrs. If all war had been contrary to the Gospel, St. John would not have allowed those who presented themselves before him to continue in that state. However, it is a state certainly full of difficulties and temptations. Bp. Horne.

—— neither accuse any falsely;] From the advice here given to the Roman soldiers and publicans, we learn what crimes of violence and extortion were usually committed by them: and it may be well for those who live in other times and countries, to compare their own condition with that of the Jews, who were exposed to all this injustice and wickedness, in order that they may fully know the value of an equal and just government, where the military power is subject to the law of the land, and is employed not for oppression, but for protection and security. Bp. Mann.

19, 20. But Herod the tetrarch,] This imprisonment of St. John happened some time after his beginning to preach repentance and to baptize; but St. Luke introduces the subject here, because he was speaking about St. John. Thus these two verses occur in a parenthesis, and the sense of ver. 18 is to be connected with that of ver. 21. Bp. Pearce.

21. — Jesus also being baptized,] He who knew no sin, but was to take away the sins of all other men, presented Himself in the crowd of sinners, as one of them, and solicited the "baptism of repentance;" not that water might sanctify Him, but that He might "sanctify water to the mystical washing away of sin." Bp. Horne.

22. — in a bodily shape] With a bodily appearance. It is not meant that the shape was like that of a dove, but that the light or glory, by which the Holy Spirit manifested Himself, had a bodily appearance, and descended upon Jesus, in the same manner as a dove descends to the earth. Dr. Whitby, Bp. Pearce.

Anno DOMINI 26.

23 And Jesus himself began to be about thirty years of age, being (as was supposed) the son of Joseph, which was the son of Heli,

24 Which was the son of Matthat, which was the son of Levi, which was the son of Melchi, which was the son of Janna, which was the son of Joseph,

25 Which was the son of Mattathias, which was the son of Amos, which was the son of Naum, which was the son of Esli, which was the son of Nagge,

26 Which was the son of Maath, which was the son of Mattathias, which was the son of Semei, which was the son of Joseph, which was the son of Juda,

27 Which was the son of Joanna, which was the son of Rhesa, which was the son of Zorobabel, which was the son of Salathiel, which was the son of Neri,

28 Which was the son of Melchi, which was the son of Addi, which was the son of Cosam, which was the son of Elmodam, which was the son of Er,

29 Which was the son of Jose, which was the son of Eliezer, which was the son of Jorim, which was the son of Matthat, which was the son of Levi,

30 Which was the son of Simeon, which was the son of Juda, which was the son of Joseph, which was the son of Jonan, which was the son of Eliakim,

31 Which was the son of Melea, which was the son of Menan, which was the son of Mattatha, which was the son of Nathan, which was the son of David,

32 Which was the son of Jesse, which was the son of Obed, which was the son of Booz, which was the son of Salmon, which was the son of Naasson, Anno DOMINI 26.

33 Which was the son of Aminadab, which was the son of Aram, which was the son of Esrom, which was the son of Phares, which was the son of Juda,

34 Which was the son of Jacob, which was the son of Isaac, which was the son of Abraham, which was the son of Thara, which was the son of Nachor,

35 Which was the son of Saruch, which was the son of Ragau, which was the son of Phalec, which was the son of Heber, which was the son of Sala,

36 Which was the son of Cainan, which was the son of Arphaxad, which was the son of Sem, which was the son of Noe, which was the son of Lamech,

37 Which was the son of Mathusala, which was the son of Enoch, which was the son of Jared, which was the son of Maleleel, which was the son of Cainan, 38 Which was the son of Enos, which was the son of Seth, which was the son of Adam, which was the son of God.

CHAP. IV.

1 The temptation and fasting of Christ. 13 He overcometh the devil: 14 beginneth to preach. 16 The people of Nazareth admire his gracious words. 33 He cureth one possessed of a devil, 38 Peter's mother in law, 40 and divers other sick persons. 41 The devils acknowledge Christ, and are reproved for it. 43 He preacheth through the cities.

AND [a] Jesus being full of the Holy Ghost returned from Jordan, and was led by the Spirit into the wilderness, [a] Matt. 4. 1.

---

23. — began to be about &c.] This expression does not necessarily imply that He was entering on His thirtieth year, but that He was about thirty years old. Bp. Pearce, Dr. Hammond. The Jewish priests were required to be thirty years old, before they were allowed to officiate in their ministry. Bp. Pearce.

—— being (as was supposed) the son of Joseph, which was the son of Heli, &c.] It is seen that the genealogy of our Saviour, here given by St. Luke, is entirely different, as far as David, from that given by St. Matthew, chap. i. Among the various methods of explaining this, which have been proposed, the most probable is, that whereas St. Matthew traced the genealogy through Joseph the husband of His mother, so St. Luke here traces it through Mary His mother. It is certain that Heli was not the natural father of Joseph, for St. Matthew expressly tells us, that "Jacob begat Joseph:" it is therefore inferred that Heli was the father of Mary, and only father in law of Joseph. But it was never usual with the Jews to mention the names of females in their genealogies; on this account, Mary is not mentioned here by St. Luke, but is only intimated or included, when the line is commenced from her father Heli. The true purport of this genealogy becomes more evident, if we consider, as seems to be intended, the word Jesus to be understood at every step. Thus it is to be supplied, Jesus, as was supposed, the son of Joseph, Jesus the son of Heli, Jesus the son of Matthat, &c.—Jesus the son of Seth, Jesus the son of Adam, Jesus the son of God. A style of genealogy precisely similar to this is used by Moses at Gen. xxxvi. 2, "Aholibamah the daughter of Anah, the daughter of Zibeon," &c. where, as Anah is the name of a man, the meaning must be "Aholibamah the daughter of Anah, Aholibamah the daughter of Zibeon," &c.

Thus it appears that St. Luke, composing his Gospel for the use of the Gentiles, and intending to prove that Christ was the Seed of the woman, necessarily reckons by the line of His mother, Mary the daughter of Heli. St. Matthew, on the other hand, intending to deduce His legal descent from David and Abraham, reckons by the line of Joseph the espoused husband of Mary, through whom the legal descent was to be carried. Dr. Lightfoot.

—— (as was supposed)] For Jesus was not really the son of Joseph, as St. Luke had before explained in his account of the miraculous conception. Dr. Campbell.

38. — which was the son of Adam,] St. Matthew had contented himself with shewing Jesus to be the son of Abraham, from whom the Scriptures had taught the Jews to expect that the Messiah would spring. St. Luke, on the contrary, traces this lineage up to Adam; and thus signifies, among other important truths, that He is the Seed of the woman promised to our first parents, as the common Saviour of them and of all their posterity, without distinction of Greek or Jew, bond or free; and that, "as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive." Dr. Townson.

Chap. IV. ver. 1. — full of the Holy Ghost — was led by the Spirit] He retired into the wilderness, by the direction of the

Anno DOMINI 26.

2 Being forty days tempted of the devil. And in those days he did eat nothing: and when they were ended, he afterward hungered.

3 And the devil said unto him, If thou be the Son of God, command this stone that it be made bread.

4 And Jesus answered him, saying, It is written, That man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word of God.

5 And the devil, taking him up into an high mountain, shewed unto him all the kingdoms of the world in a moment of time.

6 And the devil said unto him, All this power will I give thee, and the glory of them: for that is delivered unto me; and to whomsoever I will I give it.

‖ Or, fall down before me.

7 If thou therefore wilt ‖ worship me, all shall be thine.

8 And Jesus answered and said unto him, Get thee behind me, Satan: for it is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve.

9 And he brought him to Jerusalem, and set him on a pinnacle of the temple, and said unto him, If thou be the Son of God, cast thyself down from hence: Anno DOMINI 26.

10 For it is written, He shall give his angels charge over thee, to keep thee:

11 And in their hands they shall bear thee up, lest at any time thou dash thy foot against a stone.

12 And Jesus answering said unto him, It is said, Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God.

13 And when the devil had ended all the temptation, he departed from him for a season.

14 ¶ And Jesus returned in the power of the Spirit into Galilee: and there went out a fame of him through all the region round about. A. D. 30.

15 And he taught in their synagogues, being glorified of all.

16 ¶ And he came to [b] Nazareth, where he had been brought up: and, as his custom was, he went into the synagogue on the sabbath day, and stood up for to read. A. D. 31. [b] Matt. 13. 54.

17 And there was delivered unto him the book of the prophet Esaias. And when he had opened the book, he found the place where it was written,

---

Spirit of God, which dwelt in Him fully and beyond measure. Dr. S. Clarke.

"Being full of the Holy Ghost," which came upon Him at His baptism. We here see the power of baptism and the blessings annexed to it, to which all are entitled who partake in the baptism of Christ. He was only born and baptized for our sakes, who, through faith, are heirs together with Him of the promises of God. Bp. Sherlock. On our Lord's temptation, see further notes at Matt. iv. 1—11.

2. Being forty days tempted &c.] Perhaps, during the course of these forty days, Satan tempted Him invisibly, by presenting evil suggestions to His mind; and, after these failed in their effect, the tempter came to Him in an apparent and visible form. Drs. Lightfoot and Whitby.

Thus, for the space of forty days, was our Lord exposed to the art and cunning of the tempter, sifted in every part, exposed to the horrours of the desert, the necessities of hunger! But neither the necessities of hunger, nor the horrours of darkness, nor the forty days' temptation, could move Him from His steadfast confidence and trust in God. And who was it that was exposed to these cruel trials and temptations? Was it not He whom God, but just before, had, by a voice from heaven, declared to be "His beloved Son." And can we still think that our temptations are any sign that God has forsaken us, that He has at once withdrawn His Spirit and His love from us? Can we think the continuance of our temptations any just ground for despair, when Christ Himself was tempted forty days? Do then any amongst us complain that our life is full of anxious care and trouble, that every day brings its trial with it, and every night its temptation? Do we fear that God has withdrawn His Holy Spirit from us, and no longer regards us with the watchful eye of a tender Father, but has given us up to uncertain fears, to anguish and despair in this world, and to inevitable ruin in the next? Let us call to mind that, through all these dangers and difficulties, Christ has led the way; that He, like us, nay, more than us, was tempted and exposed; and then we must blush at our complaints, and, with confusion of face, confess that we have charged God foolishly, and say with the holy Psalmist, It is mine own infirmity. Bp. Sherlock.

13. — departed from him for a season.] A short time before our Saviour's crucifixion, Satan renewed his attempts upon Him; for he entered into Judas, and put it into his heart to betray Him, chap. xxii. 3; and when Jesus said, at John xiv. 30, "the prince of this world cometh," He seems to have meant that the devil was then about to tempt Him, by laying sufferings upon Him. Bp. Pearce. If this enemy of the human race omitted no opportunities of tempting Christ, what strong reason have we to believe that he will omit no convenient season for tempting us! Dr. Whitby.

From what is here recorded, that the devil departed from Him for a season only, we should observe, that, though at the first entrance into the course of a religious life, the greatest difficulties and temptations are generally to be expected; and, when once those are clearly overcome, the ways of virtue usually become pleasant; yet men ought never to look upon themselves as secure from the returns of temptation; for the evil one may again assault them under different forms and temptations, perhaps even assailing them by the very security which they possess. Wherefore "we ought to give the more earnest heed, lest at any time we should slip." Dr. S. Clarke.

14. — in the power of the Spirit] Under the powerful guidance of the Holy Spirit. Dr. S. Clarke.

15. — being glorified of all.] Such was the excellency of the doctrine which He taught, and such the greatness of the works by which He confirmed it, that all men were struck with admiration, and looked upon Him as an extraordinary Prophet. Dr. S. Clarke.

16. — and stood up for to read.] It was customary, when any grave person went to the synagogue, to invite him to read a portion of Scripture and expound it. See Acts xiii. 15. Bp. Mann.

A part of the synagogue service was the expounding of the Scriptures, and preaching them to the people. The first was performed at the time when they were read, and the other, after the reading both of the Law and the Prophets was concluded. On this occasion, Christ was called out, as a member of the synagogue at Nazareth, His own city, to read the section or lesson out of the Prophets appointed for that day; and, when He had stood up and read it, He sat down and expounded it, ver. 20. Dean Prideaux.

17. — opened the book,] Literally, "unrolled the book;" as the books of that day consisted of pieces of parchment rolled up.

Anno DOMINI 31.

18 [c] The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor; he hath sent me to heal the brokenhearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised,

[c] Isai. 61. 1.

19 To preach the acceptable year of the Lord.

20 And he closed the book, and he gave it again to the minister, and sat down. And the eyes of all them that were in the synagogue were fastened on him.

21 And he began to say unto them, This day is this scripture fulfilled in your ears.

Anno DOMINI 31.

22 And all bare him witness, and wondered at the gracious words which proceeded out of his mouth. And they said, Is not this Joseph's son?

23 And he said unto them, Ye will surely say unto me this proverb, Physician, heal thyself: whatsoever we have heard done in Capernaum, do also here in thy country.

24 And he said, Verily I say unto you, No [d] prophet is accepted in his own country.

[d] Matt. 13. 57.

Dr. Hammond. See note at Isai. viii. 1. It seems that each book of Scripture was in a separate roll, as it is stated in the next verse that they gave Him "the book of the Prophet Esaias." Bp. Pearce.

18. — to the poor;] See note at Matt. xi. 5. That in the exposition of these prophecies the figurative sense of the expression is not to exclude the literal, is evident from this consideration, that the discoveries of the Christian revelation are in fact emphatically glad tidings to the poor, in the literal acceptation of the word, to those who are destitute of worldly riches. To those, who from their present condition might be likely to think themselves forsaken of their Maker, to doubt whether they existed for any other purpose than to minister to the superfluous enjoyments of the higher ranks of society, by the severity of their own toil; to persons in this low condition, and under these gloomy apprehensions, was it not glad tidings to be told that they had a hope, beyond the infidel's expectation, of a perpetual cessation of sorrow in the grave?—hope of a day, when all shall rise, to meet before the common Lord, high and low, rich and poor, one with another!—when, without regard to the distinctions of this transitory life, each man shall receive his proper portion of honour or shame, enjoyment or misery, according to the degree of his moral and religious worth!—that he, whose humble station excluded him, in this life, from the society and the pleasures of the great, (now fallen from their greatness,) shall become the companion and the fellow of angels and of glorified saints! shall stand for ever in the presence of his Redeemer and his God, and partake of the pleasures which are at God's right hand! Bp. Horsley.

——to heal the brokenhearted,] The brokenhearted are sinners, not hardened in their sins, but desponding under a sense of guilt, without hope of expiation. These broken hearts the Redeemer healed, by making atonement for them, and by declaring the means and the terms of salvation. "The captives" are they who were in bondage to the law of sin, domineering in their members, and overpowering reason and conscience. Bp. Horsley.

We, who have no such prejudices and passions as the Jews had to mislead our judgment, know that our Lord most completely verified the words of the Prophet, both in their literal and their spiritual meaning. He preached the Gospel to the poor in fortune, the poor in spirit, and the poor in religious knowledge. He healed the brokenhearted; He raised and comforted those that were oppressed with calamity, disease, and sin. He gave sight also to the blind; He removed the film from the mental as well as the corporeal eye; and to those that sat in darkness He disclosed at once the cheerful light of day, and the still more glorious light of Divine truth. To the captives, to them that were bruised, He preached deliverance: He preached a doctrine, which not only released from spiritual bondage those that had been led captive by their sins, but so softened and subdued the most ferocious minds, and diffused throughout the earth such a spirit of mildness, gentleness, mercy, and humanity, that the heavy chains of personal slavery were gradually broken in most parts of the Christian world; and they, that had been for so many ages bruised by the cruel and oppressive hand of Pagan masters, were at length set free. Bp. Porteus.

——recovering of sight to the blind,] In the Hebrew it is written, "And freedom to those bound in prison." The Greek version renders it as in this passage of the Gospel. The two renderings are closely connected, both conveying the idea of extreme misery; for in the East it was the custom to put out the eyes of prisoners, as of Samson, Judg. xvi. 21; and Zedekiah, 2 Kings xxv. 7. Dr. Lightfoot.

——are bruised,] Meaning the Jews, bruised in their consciences by the galling fetters of a religion of external ordinances, whom our Lord released by the promulgation of His perfect law of liberty. Bp. Horsley.

19. To preach the acceptable year &c.] Alluding literally to the year of jubilee, when liberty was proclaimed throughout the land to all the inhabitants, Lev. xxv. 8, &c. debts being remitted, possessions restored, and slaves set free; which was typical of the spiritual redemption to be effected by Christ, and which the Jews themselves understood in that light. Dr. Whitby.

20. —to the minister,] To the person whose office it was to carry the book, as he was directed by the ruler of the synagogue. Bp. Pearce.

——and sat down.] The Jewish doctors, to shew their reverence for the Scriptures, always stood while they read them; but when they taught the people, they sat down. See Matt. xxiii. 2. Thus we here find our Lord sitting down in the synagogue to preach, after He had read the passage in the Prophet, which He made the subject of His discourse. The custom of preaching from a text of Scripture, which now prevails throughout all the Christian churches, seems to have derived its origin from the authority of this example. Dr. Macknight.

21. And he began to say &c.] That is, He began by saying what is here expressed: this being but the preface to "the gracious words," (ver. 22,) by which He explained and applied that passage of the Prophet. Bp. Mann.

——This day — fulfilled in your ears.] "This day," with reference to the whole time of our Lord's appearance in the flesh, or at least to the whole season of His publick ministry. "Your ears," addressed to all the inhabitants of Judea and Galilee, who then heard His doctrines and saw His miracles. Our Lord affirms, that, in His works, and in His daily preaching, His countrymen might discern the full completion of this prophetick text, inasmuch as He was the Person on whom the Spirit of Jehovah rested, whom Jehovah had anointed "to preach the Gospel to the poor," &c. Bp. Horsley.

22. —and wondered at the gracious words &c.] Were amazed at the power and wisdom with which Jesus spake, and wondered whence He obtained such excellencies; but, because they knew He was Joseph's reputed son, one brought up in an ordinary condition, they did not believe on Him. Dr. Hammond.

23. And he said unto them, &c.] Jesus therefore said unto them, I know ye are prejudiced against Me; and, though ye are convinced in your own consciences of the goodness and excellency of My doctrine, yet ye will pretend ye cannot believe Me, unless I work more miracles to satisfy your curiosity; and ye will say to Me, Surely, what You have done in Capernaum and other places, much more ought You to do here, in Your own country, for the satisfaction of Your relations and friends. Dr. S. Clarke.

24. —No prophet is accepted &c.] His meaning is, Though I should work more miracles among you, yet would you not

Anno DOMINI 31.

25 But I tell you of a truth, [e] many widows were in Israel in the days of Elias, when the heaven was shut up three years and six months, when great famine was throughout all the land;

[e] 1 Kings 17. 9.

26 But unto none of them was Elias sent, save unto Sarepta, a city of Sidon, unto a woman that was a widow.

[f] 2 Kings 5. 14.

27 [f] And many lepers were in Israel in the time of Eliseus the prophet; and none of them was cleansed, saving Naaman the Syrian.

28 And all they in the synagogue, when they heard these things, were filled with wrath,

29 And rose up, and thrust him out of the city, and led him unto the ‖ brow of the hill whereon their city was built, that they might cast him down headlong.

‖ Or, edge.

30 But he passing through the midst of them went his way,

31 And came down to Capernaum, a city of Galilee, and taught them on the sabbath days.

32 And they were astonished at his doctrine: [g] for his word was with power.

[g] Matt. 7. 29.

33 ¶ [h] And in the synagogue there was a man, which had a spirit of an unclean devil, and cried out with a loud voice,

[h] Mark 1. 23.

34 Saying, ‖ Let us alone; what have we to do with thee, thou Jesus of Nazareth? art thou come to destroy us? I know thee who thou art; the Holy One of God.

‖ Or, Away.

35 And Jesus rebuked him, saying, Hold thy peace, and come out of him. And when the devil had thrown him in the midst, he came out of him, and hurt him not.

36 And they were all amazed, and spake among themselves, saying, What a word is this! for with authority and power he commandeth the unclean spirits, and they come out.

Anno DOMINI 31.

37 And the fame of him went out into every place of the country round about.

38 ¶ [i] And he arose out of the synagogue, and entered into Simon's house. And Simon's wife's mother was taken with a great fever; and they besought him for her.

[i] Matt. 8. 14.

39 And he stood over her, and rebuked the fever; and it left her: and immediately she arose and ministered unto them.

40 ¶ Now when the sun was setting, all they that had any sick with divers diseases brought them unto him; and he laid his hands on every one of them, and healed them.

41 [k] And devils also came out of many, crying out, and saying, Thou art Christ the Son of God. And he rebuking them suffered them not ‖ to speak: for they knew that he was Christ.

[k] Mark 1. 34.

‖ Or, to say that they knew him to be Christ.

42 And when it was day, he departed and went into a desert place: and the people sought him, and came unto him, and stayed him, that he should not depart from them.

43 And he said unto them, I must preach the kingdom of God to other cities also: for therefore am I sent.

44 And he preached in the synagogues of Galilee.

CHAP. V.

1 Christ teacheth the people out of Peter's ship: 4 in a miraculous taking of fishes, sheweth how he will make him and his partners fishers of men: 12 cleanseth the leper: 16 prayeth in the wilderness: 18 healeth one sick of the palsy: 27 calleth Matthew the publican: 29 eateth with sinners, as being the physician of souls: 34 foretelleth the fastings and afflictions of the apostles after his ascension: 36 and likeneth fainthearted and weak disciples to old bottles and worn garments.

---

believe Me: for, so long as ye will judge of things by outward and temporal considerations, no conviction can be strong enough to conquer your unreasonable prejudices. Dr. S. Clarke.

25. — many widows were in Israel &c.] These instances are quoted by our Lord, in order to prove that they who are nearest to the means of grace, and opportunities of conviction, are often least inclined to profit by them; on which account they are justly granted to others of a more humble and teachable disposition. The application to the people of Nazareth was so obvious and undeniable, that "they were filled with wrath," (ver. 28,) and prepared to destroy Him whom, just before, they had regarded with admiration; by which they sufficiently discovered their own unworthiness. Bp. Mann.

27. — Eliseus] The Greek mode of pronouncing Elisha.

28. — were filled with wrath,] When they heard Christ declaring them unworthy of those miracles which He had wrought at Capernaum, and plainly intimating, by the instances He had just brought, that His Gospel should be chiefly received among the Gentiles. Dr. Whitby.

29. — the brow of the hill] They still shew this precipice at the distance of about half a league from the modern Nazareth, and even pretend to point out a stone at the brink of the precipice, as the very spot from which our Lord was to have been thrown. Dr. Wells.

30. — passing through the midst of them] Without being hurt by them. Dr. Hammond.

32. — for his word was with power.] He spake with authority, Matt. vii. 29; and added miracles also to confirm the truth of what He said. Dr. Hammond. See notes at Matt. vii. 28, 29.

38. — into Simon's house.] Simon Peter's house: see Matt. viii. 14.

41. — rebuking them suffered them not to speak:] Commanded them to hold their peace, and not to declare who He was. Dr. S. Clarke.

42. — stayed him,] Used all means to prevail with Him. Dr. Hammond.

43. — I must preach &c.] Ye are intent, Jesus says to them, on the cures which ye see Me work, and desire to detain Me for the sake of these temporal advantages: but the business for which I am sent into the world, is, to preach the Gospel, and declare the will of God to men; and this I must do, in other cities as well as yours. Dr. S. Clarke.

Anno DOMINI 31.

AND [a] it came to pass, that, as the people pressed upon him to hear the word of God, he stood by the lake of Gennesaret,

[a] Matt. 4. 18.

2 And saw two ships standing by the lake: but the fishermen were gone out of them, and were washing their nets.

3 And he entered into one of the ships, which was Simon's, and prayed him that he would thrust out a little from the land. And he sat down, and taught the people out of the ship.

4 Now when he had left speaking, he said unto Simon, Launch out into the deep, and let down your nets for a draught.

5 And Simon answering said unto him, Master, we have toiled all the night, and have taken nothing: nevertheless at thy word I will let down the net.

6 And when they had this done, they inclosed a great multitude of fishes: and their net brake.

7 And they beckoned unto their partners, which were in the other ship, that they should come and help them. And they came, and filled both the ships, so that they began to sink.

8 When Simon Peter saw it, he fell down at Jesus' knees, saying, Depart from me; for I am a sinful man, O Lord.

9 For he was astonished, and all that were with him, at the draught of the fishes which they had taken:

Anno DOMINI 31.

10 And so was also James, and John, the sons of Zebedee, which were partners with Simon. And Jesus said unto Simon, Fear not; from henceforth thou shalt catch men.

11 And when they had brought their ships to land, they forsook all, and followed him.

12 ¶ [b] And it came to pass, when he was in a certain city, behold a man full of leprosy: who seeing Jesus fell on his face, and besought him, saying, Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean.

[b] Matt. 8. 2.

13 And he put forth his hand, and touched him, saying, I will: be thou clean. And immediately the leprosy departed from him.

14 And he charged him to tell no man: but go, and shew thyself to the priest, and offer for thy cleansing, according as Moses commanded, for a testimony unto them.

15 But so much the more went there a fame abroad of him: and great multitudes came together to hear, and to be healed by him of their infirmities.

16 ¶ And he withdrew himself into the wilderness, and prayed.

Chap. V. ver. 2. — but the fishermen were gone out of them, &c.] There are some minute differences between the account here given by St. Luke, and the accounts of the same transaction given by St. Matthew and St. Mark, Matt. iv. 18; Mark i. 16. But, in all passages of this nature, it is reasonable and necessary to make allowances for a slight variation of circumstances, as related by an historian who makes it his business to recount matters distinctly and at large, and another whose intention it is only to declare facts in general, without entering into the series and order of each action. And this is the case in the present instance. St. Matthew and St. Mark designed to give nothing more than a summary account of the call of the Apostles here mentioned, and of their compliance with it. But St. Luke, who purposes to shew the manner and whole process of this call, records the miracle at length, and mentions several circumstances of the four Apostles receiving such astonishing and convincing evidences of Christ's power, as disposed them with eminent readiness and zeal to devote themselves ever afterwards to His service. Dean Stanhope. See further notes at Matt. iv. 18—22.

5. — nevertheless at thy word &c.] They were not discouraged by the weariness of a whole night's fruitless labour, but willingly renewed their toil at the instance of our Lord. A seasonable warning this to every servant of His, not to despond upon any unsuccessful trials in his Master's business; nor to sink his spirits for any disappointments in the way of his ordinary calling; when he contemplates this eminent example of such a blessing upon a mind ready to labour at His word, and so large amends made at once for so many fruitless experiments before. Dean Stanhope.

6. — their net brake.] Their net was breaking; was so near it, that, without help, it would have been broken. Bp. Pearce. This was a draught which nothing could have caused but the commanding power of Him, who has all creatures at His disposal, and calls them together at such seasons and places, as He sees fit. It was a significant emblem of the indefatigable industry and most amazing successes of these Apostles in after-times, when they became fishers of men. Dean Stanhope.

8. — I am a sinful man, O Lord.] And therefore unworthy of the presence of so Divine a Person as I perceive Thou art. Dr. Whitby. How strongly do these words express an awful acknowledgment of His Divine power and Person; a mixture of humility, surprise, and dread! Peter looked up first to the almighty Author of so signal a favour, and then reflected on himself, as altogether unworthy of it. All which behaviour seems to have proceeded from a notion so often inculcated by Moses, that "no man shall see God and live." Dean Stanhope.

10. — thou shalt catch men.] Thus our Saviour plainly gives him to understand what this miracle portended; that it was the figure of a richer and more plentiful prey; that he should be taken from that mean employment and exalted to one more high and honourable; that his net should enclose the minds of reasonable creatures, and bring them into captivity to the Gospel; that these should be caught, not to their destruction, but therefore caught, that they might live. O blessed captivity to the Gospel, which is the only instrument, the indispensable condition, of our happiness! Dean Stanhope.

12. — when he was in a certain city,] It was when He came down from the mount, Matt. viii. 1, and was about to enter into Capernaum. Dr. Whitby. See notes at Matt. viii. 2—4.

16. — withdrew himself — and prayed.] We should observe what a deep, fixed, and constant piety was displayed by Christ. Nor was He content to nourish such a feeling in His soul, but He thought fit, at sundry times, to draw it forth in actual prayer, to clothe it in words, to betake Himself to visible devotion, to retire to a mountain or wilderness for this express purpose. Let all who feel their hearts impregnated with religious fervour remember this example; remember that this disposition of the heart ought to vent itself in actual prayer; let them not be either ashamed or afraid, nor suffer any person, or any thing, to keep

Anno DOMINI 31.

17 And it came to pass on a certain day, as he was teaching, that there were Pharisees and doctors of the law sitting by, which were come out of every town of Galilee, and Judea, and Jerusalem: and the power of the Lord was present to heal them.

[c] Matt. 9. 2.

18 ¶ [c] And, behold, men brought in a bed a man which was taken with a palsy: and they sought means to bring him in, and to lay him him before him.

19 And when they could not find by what way they might bring him in because of the multitude, they went upon the house-top, and let him down through the tiling with his couch into the midst before Jesus.

20 And when he saw their faith, he said unto him, Man, thy sins are forgiven thee.

21 And the scribes and the Pharisees began to reason, saying, Who is this which speaketh blasphemies? Who can forgive sins, but God alone?

22 But when Jesus perceived their thoughts, he answering said unto them, What reason ye in your hearts?

23 Whether is easier, to say, Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say, Rise up and walk?

24 But that ye may know that the Son of man hath power upon earth to forgive sins, (he said unto the sick of the palsy,) I say unto thee, Arise, and take up thy couch, and go unto thine house.

25 And immediately he rose up before them, and took up that whereon he lay, and departed to his own house, glorifying God.

26 And they were all amazed, and they glorified God, and were filled with fear, saying, We have seen strange things to day.

[d] Matt. 9. 9.

27 ¶ [d] And after these things he went forth, and saw a publican, named Levi, sitting at the receipt of custom: and he said unto him, Follow me.

Anno DOMINI 31.

28 And he left all, rose up, and followed him.

29 And Levi made him a great feast in his own house: and there was a great company of publicans and of others that sat down with them.

30 But their scribes and Pharisees murmured against his disciples, saying, Why do ye eat and drink with publicans and sinners?

31 And Jesus answering said unto them, They that are whole need not a physician; but they that are sick.

32 I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance.

[e] Matt. 9. 14.

33 ¶ And they said unto him, [e] Why do the disciples of John fast often, and make prayers, and likewise the disciples of the Pharisees; but thine eat and drink?

34 And he said unto them, Can ye make the children of the bridechamber fast, while the bridegroom is with them?

35 But the days will come, when the bridegroom shall be taken away from them, and then shall they fast in those days.

36 ¶ And he spake also a parable unto them; No man putteth a piece of a new garment upon an old; if otherwise, then both the new maketh a rent, and the piece that was taken out of the new agreeth not with the old.

37 And no man putteth new wine into old bottles; else the new wine will burst the bottles, and be spilled, and the bottles shall perish.

38 But new wine must be put into new bottles; and both are preserved.

39 No man also having drunk old wine straightway desireth new: for he saith, The old is better.

---

them from this holy exercise. They will find the devout dispositions of their souls strengthened, gratified, confirmed. If any one should think that outward expressions of piety are superfluous, it is enough to answer, that our blessed Lord did not so think. He had all the fulness of devotion in His soul: nevertheless, He thought it not superfluous to utter and pronounce audible prayer to God; and not only so, but to retire and withdraw Himself from other engagements; nay, even from His most intimate and favoured companions, expressly for this purpose. Archdeacon Paley.

17. And it came to pass] This was at Capernaum, in the house where He used to sojourn, Matt. ix. 1; Mark ii. 1. Bp. Pearce.

—— and the power of the Lord was present to heal them.] That is, Jesus confirmed His doctrine, and proved His Divine power, before all these witnesses, by many signal miracles of healing. Dr. S. Clarke.

18. And, behold, &c.] For the remainder of this chapter, see further notes at Matt. ix. 2—17.

20. — thy sins are forgiven thee. &c.] See notes at Matt. ix. 2, 5.

24. — the Son of man hath power — to forgive sins,] Our Lord was guilty of no blasphemy, when, either to this poor paralytick, or to that contrite woman, who washed His feet with her tears, He vouchsafed to pronounce these comfortable words, "Thy sins are forgiven." He was Himself vested with His Father's authority, was Himself God as well as man, the Maker and Governour of the world, John i. 3. Dr. Ogden.

27. — named Levi,] Called also Matthew, the Evangelist. See Matt. ix. 9.

30. — their scribes and Pharisees] That is, the scribes or lawyers of the Jews, who inhabited that place. Dr. Hammond.

39. No man also having drunk &c.] These words of our Saviour are recorded by St. Luke only. His meaning is, that at the setting up of a new institution, nothing burdensome or unnecessary ought by any means to be imposed, but with the greatest gentleness and moderation, that men may by degrees be prevailed upon to change their customs and amend their lives. Dr. S. Clarke.

CHAP. VI.

Anno DOMINI 31.

1 Christ reproveth the Pharisees' blindness about the observation of the sabbath, by scripture, reason, and miracle: 13 chooseth twelve apostles: 17 healeth the diseased: 20 preacheth to his disciples before the people of blessings and curses: 27 how we must love our enemies: 46 and join the obedience of good works to the hearing of the word: lest in the evil day of temptation we fall like an house built upon the face of the earth, without any foundation.

[a] Matt. 12. 1.

AND [a] it came to pass on the second sabbath after the first, that he went through the corn fields; and his disciples plucked the ears of corn, and did eat, rubbing them in their hands.

2 And certain of the Pharisees said unto them, Why do ye that which is not lawful to do on the sabbath days?

3 And Jesus answering them said, Have ye not read so much as this, what David did, when himself was an hungred, and they which were with him;

4 How he went into the house of God, and did take and eat the shewbread, and gave also to them that were with him; which it is not lawful to eat but for the priests alone?

5 And he said unto them, That the Son of man is Lord also of the sabbath.

[b] Matt. 12. 9.

6 [b] And it came to pass also on another sabbath, that he entered into the synagogue and taught: and there was a man whose right hand was withered.

7 And the scribes and Pharisees watched him, whether he would heal on the sabbath day; that they might find an accusation against him.

8 But he knew their thoughts, and said to the man which had the withered hand, Rise up, and stand forth in the midst. And he arose and stood forth.

Anno DOMINI 31.

9 Then said Jesus unto them, I will ask you one thing; Is it lawful on the sabbath days to do good, or to do evil? to save life, or to destroy it?

10 And looking round about upon them all, he said unto the man, Stretch forth thy hand. And he did so: and his hand was restored whole as the other.

11 And they were filled with madness; and communed one with another what they might do to Jesus.

12 And it came to pass in those days, that he went out into a mountain to pray, and continued all night in prayer to God.

13 ¶ And when it was day, he called unto him his disciples: [c] and of them he chose twelve, whom also he named apostles;

[c] Matt. 10. 1.

14 Simon, (whom he also named Peter,) and Andrew his brother, James and John, Philip and Bartholomew,

15 Matthew and Thomas, James the son of Alpheus, and Simon called Zelotes,

16 And Judas [d] the brother of James, and Judas Iscariot, which also was the traitor.

[d] Jude 1.

17 ¶ And he came down with them, and stood in the plain, and the company of his disciples, and a great multitude of people out of all Judea and Jerusalem, and from the sea coast of Tyre and Sidon, which came to hear him, and to be healed of their diseases;

18 And they that were vexed with unclean spirits: and they were healed.

Chap. VI. ver. 1. And it came to pass] For this chapter, see further notes at the passages of St. Matthew, pointed out in the margin.

—— the second sabbath after the first,] Considerable doubts have arisen respecting the meaning of the expression thus translated. In the original, it is literally "on the second-first sabbath." Perhaps the best supported opinion is that which supposes it to mean the sabbath day in the week of the passover. On the second day of the passover week took place the offering of the sheaf or of the firstfruits of harvest. Lev. xxiii. 10—16: and from this day they reckoned seven sabbaths, or fifty days, to the feast of Pentecost. Hence "the second-first sabbath" is the first sabbath from this second day of the passover feast; and so the sabbaths were probably reckoned in succession till the feast of Pentecost. Drs. Lightfoot and Whitby. Lamy. Macknight.

12. — and continued all night in prayer to God.] Our Saviour seems to have passed this night in prayer, preparatory to the office which He was about to execute, of appointing His Apostles: and surely an important office it was, important to Him, important to His religion, important to the whole world. Here then we have an example given us, which we both can imitate and ought to imitate. Nothing of singular importance, nothing of extraordinary moment, either to ourselves or others, ought to be resolved upon or undertaken, without prayer to God, without previous devotion. It is a natural operation of piety to carry the mind to God, whenever any thing presses and weighs upon it: they, who feel not this tendency, have reason to accuse and suspect themselves of a want of piety. Moreover, we have, as in this instance, the direct example for it of our Lord Himself; it may be added, we have the example and the practice of good men in all ages of the world. Archdeacon Paley. See notes on chap. v. 16, and Matt. xxvi. 39.

13. — and of them he chose twelve, &c.] See notes at Matt. x. 1, &c. Our Saviour, on entering on His ministry, chose for companions and disciples men who seem to have been in the main of an honest, sober, and inoffensive conversation, but who were of mean abilities and low stations, having neither worldly wisdom, nor eloquence, nor wealth, nor interest, nor friends amongst the great. And for this proceeding two reasons may be assigned: First, That the power of God might the more eminently appear in establishing a pure and holy religion by instruments so mean, and, as to all appearance, so utterly unqualified for the purpose. Secondly, That He might avoid giving any just offence to the civil government, and convince the publick that He was influenced by no temporal motives, and had no selfish ends to serve by the assistance of men who were few in number, and who could neither plead for Him nor fight for Him. Dr. Jortin.

15. — Simon called Zelotes,] See note at Matt. x. 4.

Anno DOMINI 31.

19 And the whole multitude sought to touch him: for there went virtue out of him, and healed them all.

20 ¶ And he lifted up his eyes on his disciples, and said, [c] Blessed be ye poor: for your's is the kingdom of God.

[c] Matt. 5. 3.

21 Blessed are ye that hunger now: for ye shall be filled. Blessed are ye that weep now: for ye shall laugh.

22 Blessed are ye, when men shall hate you, and when they shall separate you from their company, and shall reproach you, and cast out your name as evil, for the Son of man's sake.

23 Rejoice ye in that day, and leap for joy: for, behold, your reward is great in heaven: for in the like manner did their fathers unto the prophets.

[f] Amos 6. 1.

24 [f] But woe unto you that are rich! for ye have received your consolation.

[g] Isai. 65. 13.

25 [g] Woe unto you that are full! for ye shall hunger. Woe unto you that laugh now! for ye shall mourn and weep.

26 Woe unto you, when all men shall speak well of you! for so did their fathers to the false prophets.

[h] Matt. 5. 44.

27 ¶ [h] But I say unto you which hear, Love your enemies, do good to them which hate you,

28 Bless them that curse you, and pray for them which despitefully use you.

[i] Matt. 5. 39.

29 [i] And unto him that smiteth thee on the one cheek offer also the other; [k] and him that taketh away thy cloke forbid not to take thy coat also.

Anno DOMINI 31.

[k] 1 Cor. 6. 7.

30 Give to every man that asketh of thee; and of him that taketh away thy goods ask them not again.

31 [l] And as ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise.

[l] Matt. 7. 12. Tobit 4. 15.

32 [m] For if ye love them which love you, what thank have ye? for sinners also love those that love them.

[m] Matt. 5. 46.

33 And if ye do good to them which do good to you, what thank have ye? for sinners also do even the same.

34 [n] And if ye lend to them of whom ye hope to receive, what thank have ye? for sinners also lend to sinners, to receive as much again.

[n] Matt. 5. 42.

35 But love ye your enemies, and do good, and lend, hoping for nothing again; and your reward shall be great, and ye shall be the children of the Highest: for he is kind unto the unthankful and to the evil.

36 Be ye therefore merciful, as your Father also is merciful.

37 [o] Judge not, and ye shall not be judged: condemn not, and ye shall not be condemned: forgive, and ye shall be forgiven:

[o] Matt. 7. 1.

38 Give, and it shall be given unto you; good measure, pressed down, and shaken together, and running over, shall men give

---

20.—ye poor:] In spirit. See note at Matt. v. 3.

21.—Blessed are ye that weep now: &c.] Blessed are ye who lament seriously your sins and follies, and endure patiently, on account of religion, the afflictions and troubles of this mortal state; for the time will come when the present scene of things will be changed, when your pious desires will be fully satisfied, and all your sorrows turned into joy. Dr. S. Clarke.

22.—shall separate you] Shall excommunicate you, or cut you off from being members of their synagogues. See note at John ix. 22. Bp. Pearce.

——cast out your name as evil,] Your name as My disciples. The names which they bore of Nazarenes and Christians were accounted names of reproach in the mouths of their enemies. See James ii. 7; Acts xxiv. 5; xviii. 2; 1 Pet. iv. 4. Bp. Pearce.

23.—in that day,] When these things come upon you. Dr. S. Clarke. See Matt. v. 12.

24.—woe unto you] Our Saviour speaks here, not in the character of a Judge, pronouncing sentence on the guilty, but in the character of a Prophet or Teacher, divinely enlightened as to the consequences of men's actions, and impelled by His zeal for their good to give them warning. Dr. Campbell.

——woe unto you that are rich!] Who, having received your portion of good things in this life, live in voluptuousness, and place all your happiness in the enjoyments of the present world. So, in the next verse, "you that are full,—that laugh:" you who live in pleasure and jollity here, and never think of what is to come hereafter. Dr. S. Clarke.

26. Woe unto you, when all men shall speak well &c.] When, by propagating such doctrines as flatter and encourage men in their sins, ye gain the applause of the generality of men; for thus, in old time, false prophets and deceivers, who accommodated their doctrines to the lusts and passions of men, were more entered and better received than the true Prophets of God. Dr. S. Clarke. He says to them, If you falsely represent the nature of My religion, and countenance men in their wickedness, ye may gain their favour and good word, but ye will incur the displeasure of Almighty God. Bp. Mann.

30.—of him that taketh away thy goods &c.] Of him, whose necessities oblige him to borrow thy goods, be not rigorous to exact them again. Dr. S. Clarke.

35.—hoping for nothing again;] That is, "Do good," not only to those from whom you expect a temporal recompense, but to those also who will never return you any kindness, as your enemies, and those especially who never can make any recompense, as the poor and needy. Dr. S. Clarke.

36. Be ye therefore merciful &c.] What degree and description of mercy is required of us by Christianity, is sufficiently explained by what is laid down here, and in the parallel passage of St. Matthew. It is that which does not restrain our affections and good offices to persons from whom we either have received, or reasonably may expect, the like: it is that which forgives our very enemies, forgives so as to love them, loves so as to do them good, liberally and cheerfully: it is that which conforms our practice to the example of that Father in heaven, who grudges not the daily returns of sun and rain, the blessings and conveniences of life, to those who daily provoke Him to anger, and forfeit all claim to those numberless benefits which are yet perpetually flowing from the fountain of all goodness. It is that mercy; in short, which renders us in this respect "perfect, even as our Father which is in heaven is perfect." Dean Stanhope.

38.—good measure,—and running over, &c.] That is, God will return the blessing upon you abundantly, and with great increase: for in what measure soever ye deal with others, in the same proportion will the Divine justice deal with you. Dr. S. Clarke.

Anno DOMINI 31.

into your bosom. For with the same measure that ye mete withal it shall be measured to you again.

39 And he spake a parable unto them, [p] Can the blind lead the blind? shall they not both fall into the ditch?

[p] Matt. 15. 14.

40 [q] The disciple is not above his master: but every one ‖ that is perfect shall be as his master.

[q] Matt. 10. 24.

‖ Or, shall be perfected as his master.

41 [r] And why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but perceivest not the beam that is in thine own eye?

[r] Matt. 7. 3.

42 Either how canst thou say to thy brother, Brother, let me pull out the mote that is in thine eye, when thou thyself beholdest not the beam that is in thine own eye? Thou hypocrite, cast out first the beam out of thine own eye, and then shalt thou see clearly to pull out the mote that is in thy brother's eye.

43 [s] For a good tree bringeth not forth corrupt fruit; neither doth a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit.

[s] Matt. 7. 16.

44 For every tree is known by his own fruit. For of thorns men do not gather figs, nor of a bramble bush gather they grapes.

45 A good man out of the good treasure of his heart bringeth forth that which is good; and an evil man out of the evil treasure of his heart bringeth forth that which is evil: for of the abundance of the heart his mouth speaketh.

46 ¶ [t] And why call ye me Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say?

[t] Matt. 7. 21.

47 Whosoever cometh to me, and heareth my sayings, and doeth them, I will shew you to whom he is like:

48 He is like a man which built an house, and digged deep, and laid the foundation on a rock: and when the flood arose, the stream beat vehemently upon that house, and could not shake it: for it was founded upon a rock.

49 But he that heareth, and doeth not, is like a man that without a foundation built an house upon the earth; against which the stream did beat vehemently, and immediately it fell; and the ruin of that house was great.

Anno DOMINI 31.

CHAP. VII.

1 Christ findeth a greater faith in the centurion a Gentile, than in any of the Jews: 10 healeth his servant being absent: 11 raiseth from death the widow's son at Nain: 19 answereth John's messengers with the declaration of his miracles: 24 testifieth to the people what opinion he held of John: 30 inveigheth against the Jews, who with neither the manners of John nor of Jesus could be won: 36 and sheweth by occasion of Mary Magdalene, how he is a friend to sinners, not to maintain them in sins, but to forgive them their sins, upon their faith and repentance.

NOW when he had ended all his sayings in the audience of the people, [a] he entered into Capernaum.

[a] Matt. 8. 5.

2 And a certain centurion's servant, who was dear unto him, was sick, and ready to die.

3 And when he heard of Jesus, he sent unto him the elders of the Jews, beseeching him that he would come and heal his servant.

4 And when they came to Jesus, they besought him instantly, saying, That he was worthy for whom he should do this:

5 For he loveth our nation, and he hath built us a synagogue.

6 Then Jesus went with them. And when he was now not far from the house, the centurion sent friends to him, saying unto him, Lord, trouble not thyself: for I am not worthy that thou shouldest enter under my roof:

7 Wherefore neither thought I myself worthy to come unto thee: but say in a word, and my servant shall be healed.

8 For I also am a man set under authority, having under me soldiers, and I say unto one, Go, and he goeth; and to another, Come, and he cometh; and to my servant, Do this, and he doeth it.

9 When Jesus heard these things, he marvelled at him, and turned him about, and said unto the people that followed him, ——your bosom.] See notes at Ps. lxxix. 12.

39. — Can the blind lead the blind?] By this parable or proverb, our Lord takes occasion to teach His disciples the necessity of carefully attending to the true nature of His religion, in order that they may rightly instruct others in it, and may set an example in their own practice of all those virtues which it is their duty to inculcate. Bp. Mann.

40. The disciple is not above &c.] If any of these My commandments seem harsh to you, remember that I your Master have submitted to them before you. Dean Stanhope.

48. — and when the flood arose,] The rains in Judea being often extremely violent, and the country very hilly, considerable inundations frequently occur, which are dangerous to buildings that happen to be placed within their reach, by washing away the soil from under them, and thus occasioning their fall. Harmer.

Chap. VII. ver. 2. And a certain centurion's servant, &c.] Respecting this transaction with the centurion, see notes at Matt. viii. 5—13.

3. — he sent unto him the elders of the Jews,] Meaning probably the elders of the synagogue, which the centurion had built (ver. 5.) at Capernaum. Bp. Pearce. It is stated by St. Matthew, chap. viii. 5, that the centurion came to Jesus; but it is a very usual and common form of expression, to represent a person as doing that himself which he does by means of others. See similar instances, Exod. xviii. 6; 1 Kings v. 7; Mark x. 35, compared with Matt. xx. 20. Dr. Whitby.

Anno DOMINI 31.

I say unto you, I have not found so great faith, no, not in Israel.

10 And they that were sent, returning to the house, found the servant whole that had been sick.

11 ¶ And it came to pass the day after, that he went into a city called Nain; and many of his disciples went with him, and much people.

12 Now when he came nigh to the gate of the city, behold, there was a dead man carried out, the only son of his mother, and she was a widow: and much people of the city was with her.

13 And when the Lord saw her, he had compassion on her, and said unto her, Weep not.

‖ Or, coffin.

14 And he came and touched the ‖ bier: and they that bare him stood still. And he said, Young man, I say unto thee, Arise.

15 And he that was dead sat up, and began to speak. And he delivered him to his mother.

16 And there came a fear on all: and they glorified God, saying, That a great prophet is risen up among us; and, That God hath visited his people.

17 And this rumour of him went forth throughout all Judea, and throughout all the region round about.

[b] Matt. 11. 2.

18 [b] And the disciples of John shewed him of all these things.

19 ¶ And John calling unto him two of his disciples sent them to Jesus, saying, Art thou he that should come? or look we for another?

20 When the men were come unto him, they said, John Baptist hath sent us unto thee, saying, Art thou he that should come? or look we for another?

Anno DOMINI 31.

21 And in the same hour he cured many of their infirmities and plagues, and of evil spirits; and unto many that were blind he gave sight.

22 Then Jesus answering said unto them, Go your way, and tell John what things ye have seen and heard; how that the blind see, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead are raised, to the poor the gospel is preached.

23 And blessed is he, whosoever shall not be offended in me.

24 ¶ And when the messengers of John were departed, he began to speak unto the people concerning John, What went ye out into the wilderness for to see? A reed shaken with the wind?

25 But what went ye out for to see? A man clothed in soft raiment? Behold, they which are gorgeously apparelled, and live delicately, are in king's courts.

26 But what went ye out for to see? A prophet? Yea, I say unto you, and much more than a prophet.

27 This is he, of whom it is written, Behold, I send my messenger before thy face, which shall prepare thy way before thee.

28 For I say unto you, Among those that are born of women there is not a greater prophet than John the Baptist: but he that is least in the kingdom of God is greater than he.

29 And all the people that heard him, and the publicans, justified God, being baptized with the baptism of John.

---

11. — a city called Nain;] Situated in Galilee, not far from mount Tabor. Dr. Wells.

12. — carried out,] Carried out of the city. As all dead bodies were unclean by the law of the Jews, they were not permitted to bury their dead within their cities.

14. — I say unto thee, Arise.] Here our Lord spake by that Divine power which He had over all things, animate and inanimate. Dr. Whitby.

15. — And he delivered him to his mother.] As the miracles of our blessed Lord were generally works of mercy and compassion, so this was of that description in an eminent degree: as there are few, if any, instances which the Evangelists have represented in circumstances more fitted to move compassion. Here was a woman in a state of widowhood, a state friendless and forlorn, and frequently therefore mentioned in Scripture, as one which God receives under His special protection: the young man was her only son, no remnant being left, when he was gone, to mitigate or supply the loss; and at a time of life when, beginning to shew forth the promises of youth, he was about to repay his mother's past tenderness and trouble, by becoming the stay and support of her age and infirmities. Her quiver was empty, her arrows broken or spent, and she stood naked and childless, without any help or sanctuary, except in that kind and tender God, who is a never-failing friend to the unfriended. This complication of miseries the merciful Jesus saw, and felt, and relieved, by turning her tears into joy; and in an instant, by one commanding word, delivered the young man, both healthful and strong, to his mother. Dean Stanhope.

16. — That God hath visited his people.] That God hath now indeed sent His Messiah. See Luke i. 68. Dean Stanhope.

18. And the disciples of John &c.] For further notes on what follows, see Matt. xi. 3—19.

21. And in the same hour he cured &c.] Thus the messengers themselves were eyewitnesses of His powers and gifts and mighty works; and to this evidence He refers them, and a more decisive or dignified answer could not possibly have been given. He neither says that He was, nor that He was not, the person they inquired after, but bids them take notice and tell John of what they saw, and draw their own conclusion from it. Archdeacon Paley.

29. And all the people that heard him, &c.] Our Saviour proceeds to say, All the common people that heard him, publicans and sinners, men of humble dispositions and sensible of the greatness of their sins, were convinced by his preaching, and brought to repentance; thankfully accepting that condition of pardon and mercy, which God graciously offered them, and being gladly baptized by John. Dr. S. Clarke.

——justified God,] Approved the wisdom and justice of His counsel, in calling them by the Baptist to repentance. Dr. Whitby.

Anno DOMINI 31.

30 But the Pharisees and lawyers ‖ rejected the counsel of God ‖ against themselves, being not baptized of him.

‖ Or, frustrated.

31 ¶ And the Lord said, ‖ Whereunto then shall I liken the men of this generation? and to what are they like?

‖ Or, within themselves.

32 They are like unto children sitting in the marketplace, and calling one to another, and saying, We have piped unto you, and ye have not danced; we have mourned to you, and ye have not wept.

[a] Matt. 11. 16.

33 For John the Baptist came neither eating bread nor drinking wine; and ye say, He hath a devil.

34 The Son of man is come eating and drinking; and ye say, Behold a gluttonous man, and a winebibber, a friend of publicans and sinners!

35 But wisdom is justified of all her children.

[d] Mark 14. 3.

36 ¶ [d] And one of the Pharisees desired him that he would eat with him. And he went into the Pharisee's house, and sat down to meat.

37 And, behold, a woman in the city, which was a sinner, when she knew that Jesus sat at meat in the Pharisee's house, brought an alabaster box of ointment,

38 And stood at his feet behind him weeping, and began to wash his feet with tears, and did wipe them with the hairs of her head, and kissed his feet, and anointed them with the ointment.

Anno DOMINI 31.

39 Now when the Pharisee which had bidden him saw it, he spake within himself, saying, This man, if he were a prophet, would have known who and what manner of woman this is that toucheth him: for she is a sinner.

40 And Jesus answering said unto him, Simon, I have somewhat to say unto thee. And he saith, Master, say on.

41 There was a certain creditor which had two debtors: the one owed five hundred ‖ pence, and the other fifty.

‖ See Matt. 18. 28.

42 And when they had nothing to pay, he frankly forgave them both. Tell me therefore, which of them will love him most?

43 Simon answered and said, I suppose that he, to whom he forgave most. And he said unto him, Thou hast rightly judged.

44 And he turned to the woman, and said unto Simon, Seest thou this woman? I entered into thine house, thou gavest me no water for my feet: but she hath washed my feet with tears, and wiped them with the hairs of her head.

---

30. — rejected the counsel of God &c.] Neglected those gracious offers of mercy, which God made to them by him, and rejected his preaching. Dr. S. Clarke. It is observable, that, in rejecting the baptism of St. John, they are said to reject the counsel of God towards them; that is, His gracious design of calling them to Him by that repentance, which alone could exempt them from the wrath to come; and by that refusal declared they approved not of His counsel, as just and righteous. Dr. Whitby.

31. And the Lord said,] After He had ended the former discourse, He said further, as follows. Bp. Pearce.

36. — one of the Pharisees] Whose name was Simon, ver. 40.

37. And, behold, a woman &c.] A narrative, similar in many particulars to this, is given by St. Matthew, chap. xxvi. 7, and St. Mark, chap. xiv. 3; but it seems probable, from a difference in some of the circumstances related, and from other considerations, that the history here given by St. Luke is not the same with that given by the other Evangelists. Dr. Whitby.

—— in the city,] Probably Nain or Capernaum, the only cities which have been mentioned here. Dr. Whitby.

—— which was a sinner,] One who had lived in a sinful course. Dr. Hammond.

She was a sinner, now she is not; her very appearing in our Lord's presence argues she is not. Had she continued in her evil courses, she would not have endured the sight of Christ. Bp. Hall.

38. — stood at his feet behind him] The Jews did not sit on chairs at their meals, but lay on their side on couches, their feet either resting on the couch, or hanging down a little beyond the edge of it: and in either of these positions, a person standing behind, and leaning a little forward, might easily handle them. See John xiii. 23. Bp. Mann.

The expression in our translation, being accommodated to the modern custom of sitting at meals, instead of reclining or lying down, as did the ancients, is not very intelligible, because it is impossible that Jesus could have sat at meat, and that the woman could have stood at His feet behind Him. The account however is perfectly clear, from knowing the custom that then subsisted of reclining during meals with the feet drawn back on the couch. Fragments to Calmet.

—— to wash his feet with tears,] It was customary for the Jews to wash the feet after they had been walking, and before they went to their meals. They wore no stockings; and before they reclined on their couches, they put off their sandals or shoes which had no upper leather. Bp. Pearce.

Together with shame and bashfulness arising from the consciousness of her former wickedness, this woman exhibits sorrow; a sorrow testified by tears, and tears in such abundance, that she washes our Lord's feet with those streams of penitence. Bp. Hall.

39. — who and what manner of woman &c.] The Pharisee judged of her, according to the notions of his sect, not by her present humility and contrition, but by her past character. Dr. S. Clarke.

40. And Jesus answering said] The Pharisee had only spoken within himself; but Jesus answers him. Thus it is that, when we speak to our hearts, we speak to God who knoweth our hearts. He, who hears our thoughts, judges of them as if they were clothed with words. Bp. Hall.

43. — he, to whom he forgave most.] God is our creditor, our sins our debts; we are all debtors, but some more deeply than others. No man can pay his debt; remission alone can discharge it. God in mercy forgives as well the greatest as the least sins: our love to God is proportional to our sense of His forgiveness. Thus the Pharisee cannot but confess that, the more and greater the sin is, the greater mercy in the forgiveness; and the greater mercy in the forgiver, the greater sense of obligation in him who is forgiven. Bp. Hall.

44. — gavest me no water for my feet:] Which was a customary mark of respect to a stranger. This custom yet remains in the East among the Arabs, where the master of the family presents himself to welcome a stranger, and to wash his feet. Dr. Shaw.

Anno DOMINI 31.

45 Thou gavest me no kiss: but this woman since the time I came in hath not ceased to kiss my feet.

46 My head with oil thou didst not anoint: but this woman hath anointed my feet with ointment.

47 Wherefore I say unto thee, Her sins, which are many, are forgiven; for she loved much: but to whom little is forgiven, the same loveth little.

48 And he said unto her, Thy sins are forgiven.

49 And they that sat at meat with him began to say within themselves, Who is this that forgiveth sins also?

50 And he said to the woman, Thy faith hath saved thee; go in peace.

CHAP. VIII.

1 Women minister unto Christ of their substance. 4 Christ, after he had preached from place to place, attended with his apostles, propoundeth the parable of the sower, 16 and of the candle: 21 declareth who are his mother, and brethren: 22 rebuketh the winds: 26 casteth the legion of devils out of the man into the herd of swine: 37 is rejected of the Gadarenes: 43 healeth the woman of her bloody issue, 49 and raiseth from death Jairus' daughter.

AND it came to pass afterward, that he went throughout every city and village, preaching and shewing the glad tidings of the kingdom of God: and the twelve were with him,

2 And certain women, which had been healed of evil spirits and infirmities, Mary called Magdalene, [a] out of whom went seven devils,

[a] Mark 16. 9.

3 And Joanna the wife of Chuza Herod's steward, and Susanna, and many others, which ministered unto him of their substance.

[b] Matt. 13. 2

4 ¶ [b] And when much people were gathered together, and were come to him out of every city, he spake by a parable:

Anno DOMINI 31.

5 A sower went out to sow his seed: and as he sowed, some fell by the way side; and it was trodden down, and the fowls of the air devoured it.

6 And some fell upon a rock; and as soon as it was sprung up, it withered away, because it lacked moisture.

7 And some fell among thorns; and the thorns sprang up with it, and choked it.

8 And other fell on good ground, and sprang up, and bare fruit an hundredfold. And when he had said these things, he cried, He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.

9 And his disciples asked him, saying, What might this parable be?

10 And he said, Unto you it is given to know the mysteries of the kingdom of God: but to others in parables; that seeing they might not see, and hearing they might not understand.

11 [c] Now the parable is this: The seed is the word of God.

[c] Matt. 13. 18.

12 Those by the way side are they that hear; then cometh the devil, and taketh away the word out of their hearts, lest they should believe and be saved.

13 They on the rock are they, which, when they hear, receive the word with joy; and these have no root, which for a while believe, and in time of temptation fall away.

14 And that which fell among thorns are they, which, when they have heard, go forth, and are choked with cares and riches and pleasures of this life, and bring no fruit to perfection.

15 But that on the good ground are they, which in an honest and good heart,

---

45. —gavest me no kiss:] Which was the ordinary salutation and expression of kindness. Dr. S. Clarke. See note at Matt. xxvi. 48.

47. Wherefore I say unto thee, &c.] Assuredly therefore I tell thee, so far is this woman from being unworthy to come near Me by reason of her sins, which are indeed great and many, that, on the contrary, God having forgiven her those many and great sins on her sincere repentance, the sense of that mercy hath filled her heart with such ardent love and gratitude, as expresses itself in far more signal instances of humble and devout thankfulness, than thou, who thinkest thou hast but little forgiven thee, dost or canst express, or than she, if less had been forgiven her, would have testified. And this renders her more worthy of My company, than those who think themselves so holy as to need no forgiveness. Dr. S. Clarke.

50. —Thy faith hath saved thee;] Thy great faith hath procured for thee proportionably great mercy and pardon: go and enjoy that peace and satisfaction of mind, which the sense of the love and favour of God will continually afford thee. Dr. S. Clarke.

——go in peace.] What can be wished by any mortal creature, but remission, safety, faith, peace? Yet all these are here met to make a contrite soul happy; remission, the ground of her safety; faith, the ground of her peace; safety and salvation, the issue of her remission; peace, the blessed fruit of her faith. Bp. Hall.

Chap. VIII. ver. 1. —every city and village,] Literally, in the original, "through town and village."

5. A sower went out &c.] Respecting the parable of the sower, and other matters contained in this chapter, see notes at Matt. xiii. 3—23, and at other passages pointed out in the margin.

10. —Unto you it is given &c.] As a reward of your diligence, and desire to be informed, these things shall be explained unto you; but the rest shall be left in darkness, and shall have their voluntary ignorance punished with judicial ignorance. See Matt. xiii. 11—15; Mark iv. 11, 12. Dean Stanhope.

15. —in an honest and good heart,] From this expression we learn, not to vilify or defame human nature in the gross, as bad, totally degenerate, and altogether devilish, as is done by some gloomy sectaries. Though unhappily "the heart of man is—desperately wicked" (Jer. xvii. 9.) in too many instances, yet He who knew it best, kindly and consolingly admits that "an honest and good heart" may still be found amongst the lost sheep of the having heard the word, keep it, and bring forth fruit with patience.

Anno DOMINI 31.

16 ¶ [d] No man, when he hath lighted a candle, covereth it with a vessel, or putteth it under a bed; but setteth it on a candlestick, that they which enter in may see the light.

17 [e] For nothing is secret, that shall not be made manifest; neither any thing hid, that shall not be known and come abroad.

18 Take heed therefore how ye hear: [f] for whosoever hath, to him shall be given; and whosoever hath not, from him shall be taken even that which he ‖ seemeth to have.

19 ¶ [g] Then came to him his mother and his brethren, and could not come at him for the press.

20 And it was told him by certain which said, Thy mother and thy brethren stand without, desiring to see thee.

21 And he answered and said unto them, My mother and my brethren are these which hear the word of God, and do it.

22 ¶ [h] Now it came to pass on a certain day, that he went into a ship with his disciples: and he said unto them, Let us go over unto the other side of the lake. And they launched forth.

23 But as they sailed he fell asleep: and there came down a storm of wind on the lake; and they were filled with water, and were in jeopardy.

24 And they came to him, and awoke him, saying, Master, master, we perish. Then he arose, and rebuked the wind and the raging of the water: and they ceased, and there was a calm.

25 And he said unto them, Where is your faith? And they being afraid wondered, saying one to another, What manner of man is this! for he commandeth even the winds and water, and they obey him.

Anno DOMINI 31.

26 ¶ [i] And they arrived at the country of the Gadarenes, which is over against Galilee.

27 And when he went forth to land, there met him out of the city a certain man, which had devils long time, and ware no clothes, neither abode in any house, but in the tombs.

28 When he saw Jesus, he cried out, and fell down before him, and with a loud voice said, What have I to do with thee, Jesus, thou Son of God most high? I beseech thee, torment me not.

29 (For he had commanded the unclean spirit to come out of the man. For oftentimes it had caught him: and he was kept bound with chains and in fetters; and he brake the bands, and was driven of the devil into the wilderness.)

30 And Jesus asked him, saying, What is thy name? And he said, Legion: because many devils were entered into him.

31 And they besought him that he would not command them to go out into the deep.

32 And there was there an herd of many swine feeding on the mountain: and they besought him that he would suffer them to enter into them. And he suffered them.

33 Then went the devils out of the man, and entered into the swine: and the herd ran violently down a steep place into the lake, and were choked.

[d] Matt. 5. 15.

[e] Matt. 10. 26.

[f] Matt. 13. 12.

‖ Or, thinketh that he hath.

[g] Matt. 12. 46.

[h] Matt. 8. 23.

[i] Matt. 8. 28.

house of Israel, amidst the prevailing errours and corruptions of the world. Dr. Hales.

——bring forth fruit with patience.] By constancy in suffering, and perseverance in doing well. Dean Stanhope.

As the result of this instructive parable, all Christians should learn, that they should endeavour to fix the important truths of religion on their minds by serious application of thought, careful remembrance, and frequent reflection. They should therefore come to the publick worship of God, and all other hearing and reading of His blessed word, with due reverence and earnest attention. They should bear in mind that this word ought to influence all the powers of their souls, and bring them forth into action; that it is therefore called the seed, because it is the first and common principle whence all our virtue springs; that the end of it therefore is never answered, but by bringing forth fruit, and that fruit is no other than a holy conversation. If all men were deeply impressed with these considerations, especially at seasons of devotion and publick instruction, they would learn to check all loose wanderings, to awaken all their faculties, and so to fix what they hear firmly in their hearts, as to rise to the character of those who keep the word in an honest and good heart, and bring forth fruit with patience. Dean Stanhope.

16. No man, when he hath lighted &c.] Meaning, that every thing is to be put to its proper use. The use of hearing and reading the word of God, is to improve by what we learn; and, if our hearts and lives be not improved thereby, we shall be condemned for neglecting the opportunities which God is pleased to afford us for that purpose. Bp. Mann.

17. For nothing is secret, &c.] See note at Matt. x. 26. The meaning here seems, There is nothing which I teach you secretly, which shall not in due time be published openly to all the world; and nothing which I now speak obscurely and in parables, that shall not in time be declared plainly, and with all freedom to all men. Dr. S. Clarke.

18. Take heed therefore how ye hear:] If it was needful for Him who spake as never man did, who confirmed His discourses by miracles, and adorned both by a life of perfect holiness, to bid His Apostles themselves "take heed" how they heard; much more ought the ministers of His Gospel in succeeding times to convey to all Christians the same caution, and no less are they bound to observe it; for to them, as well as to the Apostles, the following words are addressed, "whosoever hath, to him shall be given," &c. implying, that God will bless with further improvements those who are careful to improve by the instructions they receive, but will leave in His just judgment to grow worse and worse, those who are not so disposed. Abp. Secker.

——whosoever hath] See note at Matt. xiii. 12.

23. —they were filled with water,] The ship was filled with water, Matt. viii. 24.

27. —out of the city a certain man,] A certain man belonging to the city, or an inhabitant of it, though now dwelling among the tombs. Grotius.

Anno DOMINI 31.

34 When they that fed them saw what was done, they fled, and went and told it in the city and in the country.

35 Then they went out to see what was done; and came to Jesus, and found the man, out of whom the devils were departed, sitting at the feet of Jesus, clothed, and in his right mind: and they were afraid.

36 They also which saw it told them by what means he that was possessed of the devils was healed.

37 ¶ Then the whole multitude of the country of the Gadarenes round about besought him to depart from them; for they were taken with great fear: and he went up into the ship, and returned back again.

38 Now the man out of whom the devils were departed besought him that he might be with him: but Jesus sent him away, saying,

39 Return to thine own house, and shew how great things God hath done unto thee. And he went his way, and published throughout the whole city how great things Jesus had done unto him.

40 And it came to pass, that, when Jesus was returned, the people gladly received him: for they were all waiting for him.

[k] Matt. 9. 18.

41 ¶ [k] And, behold, there came a man named Jairus, and he was a ruler of the synagogue: and he fell down at Jesus' feet, and besought him that he would come into his house:

42 For he had one only daughter, about twelve years of age, and she lay a dying. But as he went the people thronged him.

43 ¶ And a woman having an issue of blood twelve years, which had spent all her living upon physicians, neither could be healed of any,

44 Came behind him, and touched the border of his garment: and immediately her issue of blood stanched.

45 And Jesus said, Who touched me? When all denied, Peter and they that were with him said, Master, the multitude throng thee and press thee, and sayest thou, Who touched me?

46 And Jesus said, Somebody hath touched me: for I perceive that virtue is gone out of me.

47 And when the woman saw that she was not hid, she came trembling, and falling down before him, she declared unto him before all the people for what cause she had touched him, and how she was healed immediately.

Anno DOMINI 31.

48 And he said unto her, Daughter, be of good comfort: thy faith hath made thee whole; go in peace.

49 ¶ While he yet spake, there cometh one from the ruler of the synagogue's house, saying to him, Thy daughter is dead; trouble not the Master.

50 But when Jesus heard it, he answered him, saying, Fear not: believe only, and she shall be made whole.

51 And when he came into the house, he suffered no man to go in, save Peter, and James, and John, and the father and the mother of the maiden.

52 And all wept, and bewailed her: but he said, Weep not; she is not dead, but sleepeth.

53 And they laughed him to scorn, knowing that she was dead.

54 And he put them all out, and took her by the hand, and called, saying, Maid, arise.

55 And her spirit came again, and she arose straightway: and he commanded to give her meat.

56 And her parents were astonished: but he charged them that they should tell no man what was done.

CHAP. IX.

1 Christ sendeth his apostles to work miracles, and to preach. 7 Herod desired to see Christ. 17 Christ feedeth five thousand: 18 enquireth what opinion the world had of him: foretelleth his passion: 23 proposeth to all the pattern of his patience. 28 The transfiguration. 37 He healeth the lunatick: 43 again forewarneth his disciples of his passion: 46 commendeth humility: 51 biddeth them to shew mildness towards all, without desire of revenge. 57 Divers would follow him, but upon conditions.

THEN [a] he called his twelve disciples together, and gave them power and authority over all devils, and to cure diseases.

[a] Matt. 10. 1.

2 And he sent them to preach the kingdom of God, and to heal the sick.

3 And he said unto them, Take nothing for your journey, neither staves, nor scrip, neither bread, neither money; neither have two coats apiece.

4 And whatsoever house ye enter into, there abide, and thence depart.

5 And whosoever will not receive you, when ye go out of that city, shake off the

40. — was returned,] To Capernaum, Matt. ix. 1.

Chap. IX. ver. 1. Then he called &c.] For further notes on this chapter, see the passages of St. Matthew and St. Mark pointed out in the margin.

4. — there abide, &c.] That is, abide in that house till ye depart from the city. See the note at Mark vi. 10.

Anno DOMINI 31.

very dust from your feet for a testimony against them.

6 And they departed, and went through the towns, preaching the gospel, and healing every where.

A.D. 32.

7 ¶ [b] Now Herod the tetrarch heard of all that was done by him: and he was perplexed, because that it was said of some, that John was risen from the dead;

[b] Matt. 14. 1.

8 And of some, that Elias had appeared; and of others, that one of the old prophets was risen again.

9 And Herod said, John have I beheaded: but who is this, of whom I hear such things? And he desired to see him.

10 ¶ And the apostles, when they were returned, told him all that they had done.

[c] Matt. 14. 13.

[c] And he took them, and went aside privately into a desert place belonging to the city called Bethsaida.

11 And the people, when they knew it, followed him: and he received them, and spake unto them of the kingdom of God, and healed them that had need of healing.

[d] Matt. 14. 15.

12 [d] And when the day began to wear away, then came the twelve, and said unto him, Send the multitude away, that they may go into the towns and country round about, and lodge, and get victuals: for we are here in a desert place.

13 But he said unto them, Give ye them to eat. And they said, We have no more but five loaves and two fishes; except we should go and buy meat for all this people.

14 For they were about five thousand men. And he said to his disciples, Make them sit down by fifties in a company.

15 And they did so, and made them all sit down.

16 Then he took the five loaves and the two fishes, and looking up to heaven, he blessed them, and brake, and gave to the disciples to set before the multitude.

17 And they did eat, and were all filled: and there was taken up of fragments that remained to them twelve baskets.

18 ¶ [e] And it came to pass, as he was alone praying, his disciples were with him: and he asked them, saying, Whom say the people that I am?

Anno DOMINI 32.

[e] Matt. 16. 13.

19 They answering said, John the Baptist; but some say, Elias; and others say, that one of the old prophets is risen again.

20 He said unto them, But whom say ye that I am? Peter answering said, The Christ of God.

21 And he straitly charged them, and commanded them to tell no man that thing;

22 Saying, [f] The Son of man must suffer many things, and be rejected of the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be slain, and be raised the third day.

[f] Matt. 17. 22.

23 ¶ [g] And he said to them all, If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me.

[g] Matt. 10. 38.

24 For whosoever will save his life shall lose it: but whosoever will lose his life for my sake, the same shall save it.

25 [h] For what is a man advantaged, if he gain the whole world, and lose himself, or be cast away?

[h] Matt. 16. 26. Mark 8. 36.

26 [i] For whosoever shall be ashamed of me and of my words, of him shall the Son of man be ashamed, when he shall come in his own glory, and in his Father's, and of the holy angels.

[i] Matt. 10. 33.

27 [k] But I tell you of a truth, there be some standing here, which shall not taste of death, till they see the kingdom of God.

[k] Matt. 16. 28.

28 ¶ [l] And it came to pass about an eight days after these ‖ sayings, he took Peter and John and James, and went up into a mountain to pray.

[l] Matt. 17. 1.

‖ Or, things.

29 And as he prayed, the fashion of his countenance was altered, and his raiment was white and glistering.

30 And, behold, there talked with him two men, which were Moses and Elias:

31 Who appeared in glory, and spake of his decease which he should accomplish at Jerusalem.

---

5. — for a testimony against them.] Thereby signifying and declaring, that, since God has by you offered to them the gracious means of salvation, and they have wilfully rejected it, and judged themselves unworthy of it, ye can have nothing more to do with them, but must leave them to His just judgments. Dr. S. Clarke.

18. — as he was alone praying, &c.] When He was apart from the multitude, and attended only by His disciples; or else it is meant, that He prayed alone, and that His disciples afterwards joined Him. Dr. Whitby.

23. — take up his cross] See note at Matt. x. 38. In the parallel passage at Matt. xvi. 22, it is related that St. Peter "began to rebuke Him;" which led to these remarks of our Lord.

28. — went up into a mountain to pray.] Behold how our Lord entered on all His great works with prayer in His mouth! When He was to enter on that great work of His humiliation in His passion, He went into the garden to pray: when He was to enter on this great work of His exaltation in His transfiguration, He went up into the mountain to pray. He was taken up from His knees to both. What a noble example is this to us of piety and devotion! Bp. Hall.

31. — in glory,] In a glorious form. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— and spake of his decease &c.] Talked with Jesus concerning the sufferings and death which He was to undergo at Jerusalem; and concerning the strange and glorious effects which the wisdom of God designed to bring about, by that great and wonderful dispensation. Dr. S. Clarke.

Anno DOMINI 32.

32 But Peter and they that were with him were heavy with sleep: and when they were awake, they saw his glory, and the two men that stood with him.

33 And it came to pass, as they departed from him, Peter said unto Jesus, Master, it is good for us to be here: and let us make three tabernacles; one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias: not knowing what he said.

34 While he thus spake, there came a cloud, and overshadowed them: and they feared as they entered into the cloud.

35 And there came a voice out of the cloud, saying, This is my beloved Son: hear him.

36 And when the voice was past, Jesus was found alone. And they kept it close, and told no man in those days any of those things which they had seen.

[m] Matt. 17. 14.

37 ¶ [m] And it came to pass, that on the next day, when they were come down from the hill, much people met him.

38 And, behold, a man of the company cried out, saying, Master, I beseech thee, look upon my son: for he is mine only child.

39 And, lo, a spirit taketh him, and he suddenly crieth out; and it teareth him that he foameth again, and bruising him hardly departeth from him.

40 And I besought thy disciples to cast him out; and they could not.

41 And Jesus answering said, O faithless and perverse generation, how long shall I be with you, and suffer you? Bring thy son hither.

42 And as he was yet a coming, the devil threw him down, and tare him. And Jesus rebuked the unclean spirit, and healed the child, and delivered him again to his father.

Anno DOMINI 32.

43 ¶ And they were all amazed at the mighty power of God. But while they wondered every one at all things which Jesus did, he said unto his disciples,

[n] Matt. 17. 22.

44 [n] Let these sayings sink down into your ears: for the Son of man shall be delivered into the hands of men.

45 But they understood not this saying, and it was hid from them, that they perceived it not: and they feared to ask him of that saying.

[o] Matt. 18. 1. Mark 9. 34.

46 ¶ [o] Then there arose a reasoning among them, which of them should be greatest.

47 And Jesus, perceiving the thought of their heart, took a child, and set him by him,

48 And said unto them, Whosoever shall receive this child in my name receiveth me: and whosoever shall receive me receiveth him that sent me: for he that is least among you all, the same shall be great.

[p] Mark 9. 38.

49 ¶ [p] And John answered and said, Master, we saw one casting out devils in thy name; and we forbad him, because he followeth not with us.

50 And Jesus said unto him, Forbid him not: for he that is not against us is for us.

51 ¶ And it came to pass, when the time was come that he should be received up, he stedfastly set his face to go to Jerusalem, 52 And sent messengers before his face: and they went, and entered into a village of the Samaritans, to make ready for him.

53 And they did not receive him, because his face was as though he would go to Jerusalem.

54 And when his disciples James and John saw this, they said, Lord, wilt thou that we command fire to come down from

---

44. Let these sayings sink down &c.] Jesus continued repeatedly to charge His disciples not to suffer themselves to be elated with expectations of power and glory, but frequently to call to mind and meditate upon what He now forewarned them, to the end that they might be duly prepared for so severe a trial, and not be surprised and terrified at the time of His suffering. Dr. S. Clarke.

45. — they understood not this saying, &c.] They understood the words, but knew not how to reconcile them with their own traditions, that the Messiah should live for ever; or with the great things, in a temporal view, which they expected from Him. Dr. Whitby.

51. — when the time was come &c.] When the time was drawing near, at which, having fulfilled His prophetical office, He was to finish His ministry and to leave this world; He positively resolved, notwithstanding the known malice of His enemies, to go up to Jerusalem; this being absolutely necessary, in order to fulfil the other great purposes for which He came into the world. Dr. S. Clarke.

53. — they did not receive him, because his face was &c.] It by no means appears that the inhabitants of Samaria were thus inhospitable at all times, and to all Jews: but it seems more probable that there was on the present occasion something peculiar in the circumstances, which disposed them to this conduct. Our Saviour was now removing from those parts of Galilee which for more than two years had been the chief scene of His miracles and preaching, into Judea, with the intent of employing there the remainder of His life before His passion. This journey is the same with that mentioned at John vii, when He followed His relations privately to the feast of tabernacles. But the Samaritans had also their solemn feasts in opposition to those held at Jerusalem. To travel therefore into Judea, with the declared purpose of there solemnizing this festival, was held to be an affront to the Samaritan modes of worship, and argued our Lord's judgment to be, that Jerusalem was the only place where these feasts should be celebrated. And it must have been especially a matter of great importance, that a person so eminent as Jesus should declare against them. Dean Stanhope.

54. — wilt thou that we command fire &c.] The disciples here acted under an impulse which bespoke the highest veneration for heaven, and consume them, even as [q] Elias did?

Anno DOMINI 32.

[q] 2 Kings 1. 10.

55 But he turned, and rebuked them, and said, Ye know not what manner of spirit ye are of.

56 For the Son of man is not come to destroy men's lives, but to save them. And they went to another village.

[r] Matt. 8. 19.

57 ¶ [r] And it came to pass, that, as they went in the way, a certain man said unto him, Lord, I will follow thee whithersoever thou goest.

58 And Jesus said unto him, Foxes have holes, and birds of the air have nests; but the Son of man hath not where to lay his head.

[s] Matt. 8. 21.

59 [s] And he said unto another, Follow me. But he said, Lord, suffer me first to go and bury my father.

60 Jesus said unto him, Let the dead bury their dead: but go thou and preach the kingdom of God.

Anno DOMINI 32.

61 And another also said, Lord, I will follow thee; but let me first go bid them farewell, which are at home at my house.

62 And Jesus said unto him, No man, having put his hand to the plough, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God.

CHAP. X.

1 Christ sendeth out at once seventy disciples to work miracles, and to preach: 17 admonisheth them to be humble, and wherein to rejoice: 21 thanketh his Father for his grace: 23 magnifieth the happy estate of his church: 25 teacheth the lawyer how to attain eternal life, and to take every one for his neighbour that needeth his mercy: 41 reprehendeth Martha, and commendeth Mary her sister.

AFTER [a] these things the Lord appointed other seventy also, and sent their Master, and zeal for His interest. In the instance of Elijah indeed, 2 Kings i. 10, the safety of his person was attempted; but, though this was not the case with our Saviour here, yet His dignity was so far superiour, that, they conceived, the persons who were guilty of similar insolence towards Him, might justly be exposed to Divine punishment, equally severe and miraculous: they concluded that God, who was so careful to vindicate His servant Elijah, would be much more jealous of the honour of His Son; that Son, to whom they had so lately seen that very servant pay homage, at His transfiguration in the mount. Still, in their well-meant zeal, they did not presume to make their petition to God, till they had first consulted our Lord respecting the fitness of it; and, on His forbidding it, they immediately acquiesced, and patiently took the rebuke of their ignorance and rash resentment. Dean Stanhope.

[a] Matt. 10. 1.

55. — Ye know not what manner &c.] That is, Ye own yourselves to be My disciples; but do ye consider what spirit now actuates and governs you; not that, surely, to which My doctrines design to mould and fashion you; which is not a furious, persecuting, and destructive spirit, but mild, gentle, and saving; tender of the lives and interests of men, even of those who are our greatest enemies; ye ought to consider that ye are not now under the hard and severe dispensation of the Law, but the calm and peaceable institution of the Gospel. Under it He commands universal love and peace and goodwill: and now no difference of religion, no pretence of zeal for God and Christ, can warrant and justify this passionate, vindictive, and exterminating spirit. Abp. Tillotson.

Our Saviour's rebuke completely repels the feeling under which the Apostles acted. As the Gospel is a dispensation of compassion and love; an institution good to mankind in all their interests and capacities; to promote this Gospel by methods of vigour and revenge, would be to employ means most unsuited to the end. In uncommon emergencies, it is true, God has not been wanting to exert His vindictive power, (Acts v. 1—11; xiii. 6—12.) But these are very rare and peculiar cases; not to be drawn into consequence and practice, because it is scarcely possible that the same occasions should occur again, or that the same assurances should be obtained, of acting in them by the dictate of the Holy Spirit. The governours therefore of the Church, in the ordinary course of their ministry, and private Christians in their demeanour towards each other, are to follow those great standing rules, which He, who best understood the temper and design, the interest and honour, of His religion, has exemplified in His practice, and inculcated in His doctrine. Dean Stanhope.

He says to them, You think yourselves actuated by a religious zeal for God and for your Master: but you are much mistaken. Yours is a zeal without knowledge and without discretion, a mere human passion carried to excess. I am not sent for such deeds, nor are My character and kingdom to be thus supported and defended. I am not come to distress men or to shorten their days, but to spread among them blessings of every description. Thus we evidently see, in the words and the behaviour of Christ, a direct condemnation of all violence and persecution on account of difference in religious opinion. Dr. Jortin.

56. — is not come to destroy men's lives, &c.] When we look upon the sacred acts and monuments of our Saviour's life, we find many a life which He preserved from perishing; some that had perished, by Him recalled; never any by Him destroyed. Only one poor fig tree, as the real emblem of His severity to the unfruitful, was blasted and withered by His curse. But to man, how was He ever favourable and indulgent! So repelled, as He was, so persecuted, reviled, betrayed, condemned, crucified; yet not one did He strike dead for these heinous indignities. How can we enough love and praise Thy mercy, O Thou preserver of men! How should we imitate Thy saving and beneficent disposition towards mankind; as knowing that, the more we can help and save our fellow-creatures, the nearer we come to Thee, who camest to save all mankind! Bp. Hall.

62. — No man, having put his hand &c.] As no man is fit to manage a plough who is not intent on his work, so no man must think of taking upon himself the profession of the Gospel, who allows worldly considerations to be uppermost in his mind. Bp. Mann.

The ancient ploughs, being much more rude and simple than those in modern use, required peculiar attention in the person who had the guidance of them, in order to make them penetrate the ground and to direct them straight. Fragments to Calmet.

The first member of this sentence is a proverbial expression for the character of a person, who, when he is engaged in a work of importance, allows his attention to be distracted by things foreign to his business. Dr. Campbell.

Chap. X. ver. 1. After these things &c.] It appears that Jesus was still on His journey towards Jerusalem, but made short stages, preaching in many places as He went. Bp. Pearce. For further notes on this chapter, see the marginal references to St. Matthew's Gospel.

——other seventy also,] Seventy, other than the Apostles whom He had before sent. This appointment of the seventy disciples is not mentioned by the three other Evangelists. Bp. Pearce.

These seventy, having the charge committed to them of preaching the Gospel, were of higher authority than private disciples, but were still inferiour to the Apostles in authority. As our them two and two before his face into every city and place, whither he himself would come.

Anno DOMINI 32.

[b] Matt. 9. 37.

2 Therefore said he unto them, [b] The harvest truly is great, but the labourers are few: pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he would send forth labourers into his harvest.

[c] Matt. 10. 16.

3 Go your ways: [c] behold, I send you forth as lambs among wolves.

4 Carry neither purse, nor scrip, nor shoes: and salute no man by the way.

[d] Matt. 10. 11.

5 [d] And into whatsoever house ye enter, first say, Peace be to this house.

6 And if the son of peace be there, your peace shall rest upon it: if not, it shall turn to you again.

7 And in the same house remain, eating and drinking such things as they give: for the labourer is worthy of his hire. Go not from house to house.

8 And into whatsoever city ye enter, and they receive you, eat such things as are set before you:

9 And heal the sick that are therein, and say unto them, The kingdom of God is come nigh unto you.

10 But into whatsoever city ye enter, and they receive you not, go your ways out into the streets of the same, and say,

11 Even the very dust of your city, which cleaveth on us, we do wipe off against you: notwithstanding be ye sure of this, that the kingdom of God is come nigh unto you.

12 But I say unto you, that it shall be more tolerable in that day for Sodom, than for that city.

Anno DOMINI 32.

[e] Matt. 11. 21.

13 [e] Woe unto thee, Chorazin! woe unto thee, Bethsaida! for if the mighty works had been done in Tyre and Sidon, which have been done in you, they had a great while ago repented, sitting in sackcloth and ashes.

14 But it shall be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon at the judgment, than for you.

15 And thou, Capernaum, which art exalted to heaven, shalt be thrust down to hell.

[f] Matt. 10. 40.

16 [f] He that heareth you heareth me; and he that despiseth you despiseth me; and he that despiseth me despiseth him that sent me.

17 ¶ And the seventy returned again with joy, saying, Lord, even the devils are subject unto us through thy name.

18 And he said unto them, I beheld Satan as lightning fall from heaven.

19 Behold, I give unto you power to tread on serpents and scorpions, and over all the power of the enemy: and nothing shall by any means hurt you.

20 Notwithstanding in this rejoice not, that the spirits are subject unto you; but rather rejoice, because your names are written in heaven.

21 ¶ In that hour Jesus rejoiced in spirit, and said, I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, that thou hast

---

Lord seems to have chosen the number of His Apostles, corresponding to the twelve patriarchs, so He may have appointed these seventy, with reference to the seventy elders of Israel, Exod. xxiv. 9. Beausobre.

——two and two] They were thus sent for mutual assistance, and the more certain testimony of their miracles. Thus two disciples were sent by the Baptist to Christ, and thus Barnabas and Paul were sent by the Church. Grotius. Our Saviour sent them "before His face," that they might prepare beforehand for the reception of His doctrines the minds of the people in the several cities through which He was to pass. Dr. S. Clarke. He sent them as His immediate harbingers to proclaim His approach to the several cities and places which He intended to visit. Dr. Hales.

4. —salute no man] Let not matters of mere compliment detain you. Dr. Campbell. See note at 2 Kings iv. 29, respecting ceremonious salutations of passengers in the East.

6. —if the son of peace be there,] If the persons in the house be pious and well-disposed, unprejudiced, and prepared to receive whatever truths God shall please to discover to them, God in answer to your prayers will accordingly bless and prosper them. Dr. S. Clarke. "Son of peace;" a Hebrew phrase, which means a person, disposed to receive the blessing of the Gospel. So Judas is called "the son of perdition," John xvii. 12. Dr. Hammond, Bp. Pearce.

17. —through thy name.] There was this constant and evident distinction between the miracles of Christ and those of His disciples; that Christ wrought them by His own intrinsick power; the disciples "in the name" and by the power of Christ. As therefore demons were ejected in the name of the God of Israel, so they were now cast out in the name of Jesus. Grotius.

18. —I beheld Satan &c.] Wonder not, our Lord says, that the evil spirits are subject to you: for God has already begun to destroy their power; and I now behold the kingdom of Satan diminishing, and the doctrine of truth and righteousness spreading in its stead, over the world, with incredible swiftness. Dr. S. Clarke. Our Lord in this expression anticipates the future triumph of the Gospel over the powers of darkness. Dr. Hales.

19. —to tread on serpents &c.] See Acts xxviii. 5.

20. —because your names are written in heaven.] That ye are the children and heirs of God, set in that right way, the continuance in which will lead to everlasting life. Dr. Hammond.

The disciples returned, ver. 17, rejoicing that "the devils were subject unto them;" inasmuch as that tended to promote the glory of God and the establishment of the Gospel; but because, to be worthy of salvation by God, and, through faith in Christ, to have a present claim to an inheritance in heaven, was a blessing peculiar to the saints, tending to the eternal welfare of their souls, therefore Christ bids them rejoice the "rather," (or the more,) on that account. Dr. Whitby.

Allusion is made to the custom of writing in a register the names of the inhabitants of a district or city. See Exod. xxx. 12; Dan. xii. 1; Phil. iv. 3. Beausobre.

Anno DOMINI 32.

hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes: even so, Father; for so it seemed good in thy sight.

Many ancient copies add these words, And turning to his disciples, he said.

22 || All things are delivered to me of my Father: and no man knoweth who the Son is, but the Father; and who the Father is, but the Son, and he to whom the Son will reveal him.

23 ¶ And he turned him unto his disciples, and said privately, [g] Blessed are the eyes which see the things that ye see:

[g] Matt. 13. 16.

24 For I tell you, that many prophets and kings have desired to see those things which ye see, and have not seen them; and to hear those things which ye hear, and have not heard them.

25 ¶ And, behold, a certain lawyer stood up, and tempted him, saying, [h] Master, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?

[h] Matt. 22. 35.

26 He said unto him, What is written in the law? how readest thou?

Anno DOMINI 32.

27 And he answering said, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbour as thyself.

28 And he said unto him, Thou hast answered right: this do, and thou shalt live.

29 But he, willing to justify himself, said unto Jesus, And who is my neighbour?

30 And Jesus answering said, A certain man went down from Jerusalem to Jericho, and fell among thieves, which stripped him of his raiment, and wounded him, and departed, leaving him half dead.

31 And by chance there came down a certain priest that way: and when he saw him, he passed by on the other side.

---

23. —Blessed are the eyes &c.] It is remarkable, that our blessed Lord broke forth into the same rapturous expression of praise and thanksgiving to God, on the former occasion also of the return of the twelve Apostles from executing their commission, Matt. xi. 25—27. And well may Christians of the present day, "blessed" with the glorious light of the Gospel, who "have not seen, but yet have believed" in Christ, as their "Lord and their God," express their exultation and gratitude to God and Christ in similar language of exultation. Dr. Hales.

28. —thou shalt live.] Thou shalt "inherit eternal life," ver. 25. Bp. Pearce.

29. —willing to justify himself,] That is, to represent himself a just and righteous man. Bp. Pearce. He probably expected that Christ would describe his neighbour according to the Jewish idea of those of His own religion, and thus that he could justify himself by replying, that he had always conducted himself with charity towards them. See Levit. xix. 15—18, 33, 36. Le Clerc.

——And who is my neighbour?] This person well knew how this precept, in particular, of loving our neighbours, had been loaded with exceptions and limitations by the Jewish doctors; and that he himself had never esteemed any one to be his neighbour, who was not of the same blood, and who did not profess the same religion with himself; for which reason he hated many who, according to the letter, were his neighbours, as the Samaritans were, who dwelt very near, but were held in aversion by every Jew, being esteemed the corrupters of the faith and true religion. Since therefore eternal life depended on his obedience to the law, as he had heard from our Saviour, in order to his own justification he very properly puts the question, "And who is my neighbour?" for, as this question should be resolved, he would be found either to have fulfilled or transgressed the commandment. Bp. Sherlock.

30. —A certain man &c.] Our Lord's first design, in relating this parable, was to prove to the person with whom He was discoursing, that true charity required more than he imagined. His other and main intention was, to teach all persons the nature and extent of benevolence and brotherly love. In this, as in some other of our Lord's occasional discourses, may be observed a wonderful art of persuasion, and a masterly way of gaining a controverted point, by setting examples and facts before prejudiced or doubting persons, and making them draw the conclusion themselves. By this method a person is surprised into concessions, which at first he did not intend to make. Dr. Jortin.

Our Lord, wishing to convince him of his errour, chose, instead of giving a direct and severe reproof, to do it in a mild insinuating manner. He was fully sensible that this mistake of the Jew was a very pernicious mistake, most destructive of common charity, most opposite to human nature, to true religion, and to the mild spirit of the Gospel; yet it was necessary to temper zeal with discretion; and since the Jews would not bear a plain and open reproof from Him, He conveys His precept by a parable, and forces them to condemn themselves. Abp. Herring.

——from Jerusalem to Jericho,] Jericho was a considerable place in the days of our Saviour. The road to it from Jerusalem was much frequented, as it was the high road over Jordan to Perea; also for purposes of traffick, and on account of the changes of the courses of the priests ministering in the temple; for a large number of priests appear to have lived at Jericho. From the latter circumstance appears the peculiar propriety of mentioning the priest and Levite as passing on this road. The road was principally through a wild and rocky country, and much infested with robbers, and from the frequency of the murders committed there was called 'the bloody way.' Dr. Lightfoot.

It has been thought by some judicious commentators, that what is here related, was not mere fiction, but real history. If this was the case, the instruction conveyed by it must have come with additional force, when no imaginary character was presented, adorned with fictitious embellishments, but a faithful portrait drawn from the life, with the real behaviour of a real person. Dr. Jortin.

——leaving him half dead.] Our Saviour purposely describes, in the most affecting terms, the distress of this poor man, that He might inspire the Jews with a greater abhorrence of that vile principle which could so far change the natural tempers of men, as to make them void of compassion towards an object so completely miserable. A more striking case could hardly be imagined; and, if their notions were such as could steel their hearts and shut up their bowels of compassion, when so much misery called for their relief, there needed no other argument to expose their baseness and inhumanity. Abp. Herring.

31. —a certain priest] The priest, and the Levite, ver. 32, should have acted suitably to their education, station, and character, and should have thought it their duty to distinguish themselves above others in piety and humanity on this pressing occasion, especially towards a Jew. Dr. Jortin.

——he passed by] Strange corruption of human nature! that an excellent precept, given by God Himself, to maintain and keep alive mutual affection and benevolence amongst men, should prove the very means of stifling it; that the effect of God's commanding His people to love their neighbours as themselves, should be, in the first instance, confining it absurdly to their own kindred and nation, and at last, in their practice, denying it even there. Abp. Herring.

Anno DOMINI 32.

32 And likewise a Levite, when he was at the place, came and looked on him, and passed by on the other side.

33 But a certain Samaritan, as he journeyed, came where he was: and when he saw him, he had compassion on him,

34 And went to him, and bound up his wounds, pouring in oil and wine, and set him on his own beast, and brought him to an inn, and took care of him.

35 And on the morrow when he departed, he took out two ‖ pence, and gave them to the host, and said unto him, Take care of him; and whatsoever thou spendest more, when I come again, I will repay thee.

‖ See Matt. 20. 2.

36 Which now of these three, thinkest thou, was neighbour unto him that fell among the thieves?

37 And he said, He that shewed mercy on him. Then said Jesus unto him, Go, and do thou likewise.

Anno DOMINI 32.

38 ¶ Now it came to pass, as they went, that he entered into a certain village: and a certain woman named Martha received him into her house.

39 And she had a sister called Mary, which also sat at Jesus' feet, and heard his word.

40 But Martha was cumbered about much serving, and came to him, and said, Lord, dost thou not care that my sister hath left me to serve alone? bid her therefore that she help me.

41 And Jesus answered and said unto her, Martha, Martha, thou art careful and troubled about many things:

42 But one thing is needful: and Mary hath chosen that good part, which shall not be taken away from her.

---

33. But a certain Samaritan, &c.] Observe how our Lord sometimes makes His parables a vehicle for reproof, but with Divine gentleness, where charity could hope that offenders might be so reclaimed. Thus He here reproves the narrowminded antipathy which the Jews bore to strangers, not by direct censure and publick accusation of their behaviour, but by opposing to it an example of humanity and mercy, which, by gaining their admiration, might excite them to imitate; an example the more noble and affecting, as "the Jews have no dealings with the Samaritans," John iv. 9. Dr. Townson.

The wounded traveller was indeed an object proper to excite compassion; but he was a Jew, an enemy to the Samaritan, one who perhaps would not have done him a good office, had he been in the like condition, and from whom he had little reason to expect so much as bare thanks. But the Samaritan, not moved by fear, or self-interest, or resentment, or misguided zeal, came immediately to his relief, and bestowed his time, his money, and his labour, in performing charitable offices towards him. Dr. Jortin.

34. — pouring in oil and wine,] The Samaritan supplied these from the stores which he carried with him in travelling. It was the constant custom in the East to carry provisions on a journey. See Judg. xix. 19; Matt. xv. 32. The inn here mentioned seems to have been a place where nothing was provided but room and shelter. Dr. Macknight.

35. — two pence,] Two Roman pence, or denarii; a sum equal to about 15½*d.* of our money, and which would probably go much farther in that country than in ours. Bp. Pearce.

37. — Go, and do thou likewise.] That is, Since thou commendest the Samaritan for acting like a neighbour to the Jew, do thou learn to act like a neighbour towards the Samaritans, and all thy fellow-creatures who have need of thy assistance. Bp. Sherlock.

We learn from hence, that we ought to account every man our neighbour, though a stranger, an enemy, a sinner, or one of a different sect and persuasion. Let him be what he will, he is a human creature; and, as such, he is entitled to humanity and courtesy in common intercourse, to direction and instruction if he asks it and stands in need of it, and to relief and assistance if he is in distress. Dr. Jortin.

From this admirable parable we learn the true, enlarged, and Christian import of the word "neighbour;" any person with whom we have any concern or dealings in the usual intercourse of society, however different he may be from country or tribe, religion or sect. Dr. Hales.

Our Lord extorts the frank confession even from a Jew, that the Samaritans, though of a different country and religion, and though for the most part hated by the Jews, were nevertheless to be considered as neighbours, whenever there should be occasion or room for any good offices between them. Thus we are to learn, that no difference of nation or religion, no distinction of party, nor division of interest or affections, should ever restrain us from owning one as our neighbour, whom we are capable of serving in a neighbourly way, by any kind offices whatsoever. Dr. Waterland.

39. — sat at Jesus' feet,] As was customary for disciples. See notes at Deut. xxxiii. 3; Ezek. viii. 1.

40. — was cumbered about much serving,] Was wearied and fatigued with preparing for Christ's entertainment. Bp. Mann.

42. But one thing is needful:] Absolutely needful to make men truly, perfectly, and eternally happy. This "one thing needful," He here gives us to understand, is true piety and holiness, which is so absolutely needful to salvation, that no man ever was or can be saved without it; whereas they who attain to true holiness cannot but be saved, God Himself having engaged that they shall. Bp. Beveridge.

—— Mary hath chosen that good part, which &c.] That is, She has chosen to take care of her salvation, which is infinitely more valuable than any thing else. Our Saviour does not altogether blame Martha for her respectful care of Him, but commends her sister for her greater care of her soul, which made her either wholly to forget, or unwilling to mind, other things at that time. So that, on the whole, He highly approves her wise choice in preferring an attentive regard to His doctrine, even before that which might be thought a necessary civility to His person. Abp. Tillotson.

Martha, like many others engaged in the bustle of active life, was so overwhelmed with family cares and embarrassments, and so immoderately anxious to provide an entertainment worthy of her illustrious guest, that she fancied every thing else ought to give way to it, and that her sister Mary was most miserably wasting her time by sitting at the feet of Jesus, and listening to His heavenly discourses. How astonished then and mortified must she have been, when, on calling to her sister to help her, she received from our Lord the reproof here related, mingled however with the most affectionate and salutary advice to her, and to all those who happen to entertain similar sentiments, and to be in similar circumstances with herself. The "one thing needful" is an earnest desire of spiritual instruction and improvement; or, in other words, a serious and constant regard to our everlasting welfare. But how few are there among all Christians, who uniformly act with a view to this needful thing; and what multitudes, so entangled in the various occupations of a busy and tumultuous life, that, like Martha, they are more disposed to call in the help of others to their worldly employments, than to take away any portion of their attention from them, to bestow them on the concerns of another life. Bp. Porteus.

Anno DOMINI 33.

CHAP. XI.

1 Christ teacheth to pray, and that instantly: 11 assuring that God so will give us good things. 14 He, casting out a dumb devil, rebuketh the blasphemous Pharisees: 28 and sheweth who are blessed: 29 preacheth to the people, 37 and reprehendeth the outward shew of holiness in the Pharisees, scribes, and lawyers.

A. D. 33. AND it came to pass, that, as he was praying in a certain place, when he ceased, one of his disciples said unto him, Lord, teach us to pray, as John also taught his disciples.

2 And he said unto them, When ye pray, [a] say, [a] Our Father which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come.

[a] Matt. 6. 9.

Thy will be done, as in heaven, so in earth.

3 Give us ‖ day by day our daily bread.

‖ Or, for the day.

4 And forgive us our sins; for we also forgive every one that is indebted to us. And lead us not into temptation; but deliver us from evil.

5 And he said unto them, Which of you shall have a friend, and shall go unto him at midnight, and say unto him, Friend, lend me three loaves;

‖ Or, out of his way.

6 For a friend of mine ‖ in his journey is come to me, and I have nothing to set before him?

Anno DOMINI 33.

7 And he from within shall answer and say, Trouble me not: the door is now shut, and my children are with me in bed; I cannot rise and give thee.

8 I say unto you, Though he will not rise and give him, because he is his friend, yet because of his importunity he will rise and give him as many as he needeth.

9 [b] And I say unto you, Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you.

[b] Matt. 7. 7.

10 For every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened.

11 [c] If a son shall ask bread of any of you that is a father, will he give him a stone? or if he ask a fish, will he for a fish give him a serpent?

[c] Matt. 7. 9.

12 Or if he shall ask an egg, will he offer him a scorpion?

13 If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children: how much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask him?

Chap. XI. ver. 1. — Lord, teach us to pray,] Of all the requests made to our Saviour, which are recorded in the New Testament, this may be accounted among the most just and judicious. The imperfection of the best, and the ignorance of the wisest, is such, that, if left to themselves, they would be uncertain concerning the things to be asked, and the effects to be expected, from their petitions. Therefore this disciple is greatly to be commended, who neglected not the opportunity of obtaining instruction in so important a point, from the mouth of Divine Wisdom itself. Dr. Jortin. For the explanation of the Lord's Prayer, and other matters contained in this chapter, see notes at Matt. vi. 9—13, and at other passages pointed out in the margin.

2. — When ye pray, &c.] This passage affords an indisputable authority for praying by a set form, and for using the same words on different occasions, private and publick; since this form, which our Saviour gives at the particular request of one disciple, is the same with that which He delivered to the multitude in His sermon on the mount. See Matt. vi. 9. Bp. Mann.

As the ten commandments are a sum of all duty, or what is to be done, so this prayer is a sum of all things to be desired. As the ten commandments contain our duty towards God and towards our neighbour, so in this prayer are petitions for God's honour, for ourselves, and for others. He gave both the commandments and the prayer that we might see our duty, and pray for ability to perform it. The ten commandments were twice rehearsed, and so this prayer was twice delivered, first in the sermon on the mount, and afterwards, in this text, about a year later. Dr. Lightfoot.

4. — that is indebted to us.] That commits an offence against us. Dr. Whitby.

—— but deliver us from evil.] The doxology, "For thine is the kingdom," &c. is here omitted, because our Lord at this time gave them only a petitionary form of prayer; and for this reason also, the Amen is omitted, which was usually preceded, even in prayers of supplication, by a sentence of praise or benediction. See Ps. xli, lxxii, &c. Dr. Lightfoot.

5. — shall go unto him at midnight,] In the East, journeys are very frequently performed in the night, on account of the heat; and this is the time when caravans generally travel. Thus the arrival of a friend at midnight, as here described, was not an improbable circumstance. Harmer.

7. — my children are with me in bed;] It is usual in the East, among persons in the lower ranks of life, for the whole family to sleep in the same room, on separate beds or mattresses laid on the ground. Harmer. But, as has been shewn by many writers, the original expression may simply mean, that his children, as well as himself, were gone to bed. Dr. Campbell.

8. — yet because of his importunity &c.] Our Saviour, having before warned His disciples against a multiplicity of words and vain repetitions in prayer, which are often the effect of hypocrisy, instructs them by this parable that they ought to be frequent and importunate in their prayers, which is an evidence of a pious and devout mind, and will much prevail with God. Dr. S. Clarke.

12. — will he offer him a scorpion?] Bochart tells us, that the body of a white scorpion is like an egg: and in Judea the size is not very different from that of an egg, as the scorpions about Jerusalem, and indeed throughout all Syria, are particularly large. Bp. Pearce.

13. — shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit &c.] It is true, that, in a primary sense, this was a peculiar promise of the Holy Ghost to the Apostles and Christians of the first ages, which is not now to be expected, conveying an extraordinary and miraculous power; but yet the Spirit of God does still concur with the Gospel, and work upon the minds of men, to excite and assist them to that which is good. And though this operation be secret, so that we cannot give an account of the manner of its operation, yet the effects are very sensible, and this influence of God's Holy Spirit is common to all Christians in all ages of the world. Abp. Tillotson.

—— the Holy Spirit] That is, the continual presence and influence of it to all the purposes of guidance and direction, of grace and assistance, of comfort and support, in our Christian course. Abp. Tillotson.

This promise implies, that God is ever ready to forward our progress and continuance in well-doing, through the powerful, though invisible, operation of His Spirit. If we cherish our good dispositions, and feel a sincere desire to be virtuous, we may rest assured that He will, by the communication of His grace, help our infirmities, invigorate our resolutions, and supply our defects. Bp. Tomline.

Anno DOMINI 33.

14 ¶ And he was casting out a devil, and it was dumb. And it came to pass, when the devil was gone out, the dumb spake; and the people wondered.

[d] Matt. 9. 34. & 12. 24.

15 But some of them said, [d] He casteth out devils through Beelzebub the chief of the devils.

16 And others, tempting him, sought of him a sign from heaven.

17 But he, knowing their thoughts, said unto them, Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation; and a house divided against a house falleth.

18 If Satan also be divided against himself, how shall his kingdom stand? because ye say that I cast out devils through Beelzebub.

19 And if I by Beelzebub cast out devils, by whom do your sons cast them out? therefore shall they be your judges.

20 But if I with the finger of God cast out devils, no doubt the kingdom of God is come upon you.

21 When a strong man armed keepeth his palace, his goods are in peace:

22 But when a stronger than he shall come upon him, and overcome him, he taketh from him all his armour wherein he trusted, and divideth his spoils.

23 He that is not with me is against me: and he that gathereth not with me scattereth.

[e] Matt. 12. 43.

24 [e] When the unclean spirit is gone out of a man, he walketh through dry places, seeking rest; and finding none, he saith, I will return unto my house whence I came out.

25 And when he cometh, he findeth it swept and garnished.

Anno DOMINI 33.

26 Then goeth he, and taketh to him seven other spirits more wicked than himself; and they enter in, and dwell there: and the last state of that man is worse than the first.

27 ¶ And it came to pass, as he spake these things, a certain woman of the company lifted up her voice, and said unto him, Blessed is the womb that bare thee, and the paps which thou hast sucked.

28 But he said, Yea, rather, blessed are they that hear the word of God, and keep it.

[f] Matt. 12. 38.

29 ¶ [f] And when the people were gathered thick together, he began to say, This is an evil generation: they seek a sign; and there shall no sign be given it, but the sign of Jonas the prophet.

30 For as Jonas was a sign unto the Ninevites, so shall also the Son of man be to this generation.

31 The queen of the south shall rise up in the judgment with the men of this generation, and condemn them: for she came from the utmost parts of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon; and, behold, a greater than Solomon is here.

32 The men of Nineve shall rise up in the judgment with this generation, and shall condemn it: for they repented at the preaching of Jonas; and, behold, a greater than Jonas is here.

[g] Matt. 5. 15.

33 [g] No man, when he hath lighted a candle, putteth it in a secret place, neither under a ‖ bushel, but on a candlestick, that they which come in may see the light.

‖ See Matt. 5. 15.

[h] Matt. 6. 22.

34 [h] The light of the body is the eye: therefore when thine eye is single, thy whole body also is full of light; but when

17. But he, knowing their thoughts, &c.] Jesus proceeds here to answer the first objection, ver. 15. To the other (ver. 16.) He replies at ver. 29. Dean Stanhope.

20. — with the finger of God] By the power (and Spirit, Matt. xii. 28,) of God. Dr. Hammond.

26. — and the last state &c.] See notes at Matt. xii. 43—45, &c.

27. — a certain woman — lifted up her voice,) So full and convincing were our Saviour's arguments, so just and striking the judgments He passed on those obstinate wretches, that, though we are not told of any great impression made on their hearts, yet one of the standers by, who heard them without prejudice, and considered the weight and power of what had been said, was impelled to exclaim with rapture and admiration, "Blessed is the" &c. Dean Stanhope.

28. — Yea rather, blessed &c.] It was no doubt a distinguished favour to be the mother of our Lord; but, though this could be the lot of only one person, yet, as our Saviour here declares, there is a far superiour happiness, even that of heaven, open to every one that will attend to obey the will of God. Bp. Mann.

Our Saviour denies not the blessedness of her who bare Him, but informs us, that even this is low and little, when compared with the blessedness which flows from obedience to the commands of God. By hearing the word of God is meant, no doubt, all that reverence and attention of mind, all that teachable disposition of the will, which prepares and inclines men to receive it effectually. And, by keeping this word, is meant the continuance in what we have heard, and the making it the rule and standard of our lives; the believing all those mysterious truths, and the observing, and profiting from, those most holy precepts, which He has taught us in His Gospel. And this our Lord declares to be a happy state indeed; a privilege, infinitely exceeding any of the prerogatives of this present world, in which one man excels another. Dean Stanhope.

29. — they seek a sign;] A sign from heaven. This is an answer to the request made to Him, as related at ver. 16. Bp. Pearce.

30. For as Jonas was a sign &c.] As the preaching of Jonah to Nineveh, accompanied by the miracle of his being three days in the whale's belly, and then cast upon the shore, was an assurance to them that without repentance they would speedily be destroyed: so shall the preaching of Christ to the men of this age, accompanied with His death and resurrection after three days, be a certain forerunner of destruction to those that believe not. Dr. Hammond.

Anno DOMINI 33.

thine eye is evil, thy body also is full of darkness.

35 Take heed therefore that the light which is in thee be not darkness.

36 If thy whole body therefore be full of light, having no part dark, the whole shall be full of light, as when the bright shining of a candle doth give thee light.

37 ¶ And as he spake, a certain Pharisee besought him to dine with him: and he went in, and sat down to meat.

38 And when the Pharisee saw it, he marvelled that he had not first washed before dinner.

[i] Matt. 23. 25.

39 [i] And the Lord said unto him, Now do ye Pharisees make clean the outside of the cup and the platter; but your inward part is full of ravening and wickedness.

40 Ye fools, did not he that made that which is without make that which is within also?

[l] Or, as you are able.

41 But rather give alms ‖ of such things as ye have; and, behold, all things are clean unto you.

42 But woe unto you, Pharisees! for ye tithe mint and rue and all manner of herbs, and pass over judgment and the love of God: these ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone.

[k] Matt. 23. 6.

43 [k] Woe unto you, Pharisees! for ye love the uppermost seats in the synagogues, and greetings in the markets.

44 Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye are as graves which appear not, and the men that walk over them are not aware of them.

45 ¶ Then answered one of the lawyers, and said unto him, Master, thus saying thou reproachest us also.

Anno DOMINI 33.

46 [l] And he said, Woe unto you also, ye lawyers! for ye lade men with burdens grievous to be borne, and ye yourselves touch not the burdens with one of your fingers.

[l] Matt. 23. 4.

47 [m] Woe unto you! for ye build the sepulchres of the prophets, and your fathers killed them.

[m] Matt. 23. 29.

48 Truly ye bear witness that ye allow the deeds of your fathers: for they indeed killed them, and ye build their sepulchres.

49 Therefore also said the wisdom of God, I will send them prophets and apostles, and some of them they shall slay and persecute:

50 That the blood of all the prophets, which was shed from the foundation of the world, may be required of this generation;

51 [n] From the blood of Abel unto the blood of Zacharias, which perished between the altar and the temple: verily I say unto you, It shall be required of this generation.

[n] Gen. 4. 8.

52 [o] Woe unto you, lawyers! for ye have taken away the key of knowledge: ye enter not in yourselves, and them that were entering in ye ‖ hindered.

[o] Matt. 23. 13.

[l] Or, forbad.

53 And as he said these things unto them, the scribes and the Pharisees began to urge him vehemently, and to provoke him to speak of many things:

54 Laying wait for him, and seeking to catch something out of his mouth, that they might accuse him.

---

35. Take heed — that the light which is in thee &c.] That is, Let every man above all things consider and take care, that the moral judgment of his mind and understanding be not corrupted with blind unreasonable prejudices, and with vicious and wilfully indulged affections; for, in that case, his very guide becomes his seducer, and his light itself is darkness. Dr. S. Clarke.

37. — to dine with him:] The word here used in the original signifies the first meal in the day. The Jews were accustomed to have only two meals; the breakfast, (or dinner,) which was the slightest, about twelve o'clock; and the supper, which was the principal meal, after the heat of the day was past. Bp. Pearce.

40. — did not he that made &c.] And ought ye not therefore to be as careful to keep clean "that which is within," as ye do the outward man by frequent washings. Dr. Whitby.

41. But rather give alms &c.] If ye would be really holy and religious, be careful in the first place to be exact and conscientious in the performance of those duties, which are of moral and eternal obligation, and ye need be less solicitous about outward and ritual observances, which do not really make a man clean or unclean, holy or unholy, in the sight of God. Dr. S. Clarke.

45. — one of the lawyers,] The lawyers (called, in Matt. xxiii. 13, "Scribes and Pharisees") were they who undertook to instruct the people in their duty according to the law of Moses, as divines do now according to the law of Christ. Bp. Mann.

49. Therefore also said the wisdom of God, &c.] Therefore God, in the all-wise dispensations of His providence, determined to send, &c. Dr. S. Clarke.

52. — ye have taken away the key of knowledge: &c.] By which the kingdom of God should be opened to men, and they be enabled to enter into it. Ye obscure and hide, by your traditions and false interpretations, those Scriptures which relate to the Messiah; pretending that other men, for want of knowledge of the law, are not able to judge of these matters, but must be guided by your judgment, John vii. 48, 49. Thus you believe not the Messiah yourselves, nor enter into the kingdom of God, which is now come to you and preached among you, and have obstructed the faith of those who otherwise would have believed and entered into it. Dr. Whitby.

This metaphor of the key of knowledge is undoubtedly an allusion to the custom among the Jews in the admission of their doctors: for those, to whom they gave authority to interpret the Law and the Prophets, were solemnly admitted into that office by delivering to them a key and a table book. So that by the key of knowledge is here meant the interpretation and understanding of the Scriptures; and by taking away the key of knowledge is meant, not only that they arrogated to themselves alone the true understanding of the Scriptures, but likewise that they had conveyed away this key of knowledge, and, as it were, hid it out of the way, neither using it themselves, as they ought, nor suffering others to make use of it. Abp. Tillotson.

Anno DOMINI 33.

CHAP. XII.

1 Christ preacheth to his disciples to avoid hypocrisy, and fearfulness in publishing his doctrine: 13 warneth the people to beware of covetousness, by the parable of the rich man who set up greater barns. 22 We must not be over careful of earthly things, 33 give alms, 36 be ready at a knock to open to our Lord whensoever he cometh. 41 Christ's ministers are to see to their charge, 49 and look for persecution. 54 The people must take this time of grace, 58 because it is a fearful thing to die without reconciliation.

[a] Matt. 16. 6. IN [a] the mean time, when there were gathered together an innumerable multitude of people, insomuch that they trode one upon another, he began to say unto his disciples first of all, Beware ye of the leaven of the Pharisees, which is hypocrisy.

[b] Matt. 10. 26. 2 [b] For there is nothing covered, that shall not be revealed; neither hid, that shall not be known.

3 Therefore whatsoever ye have spoken in darkness shall be heard in the light; and that which ye have spoken in the ear in closets shall be proclaimed upon the housetops.

[c] Matt. 10. 28. 4 [c] And I say unto you my friends, Be not afraid of them that kill the body, and after that have no more that they can do.

5 But I will forewarn you whom ye shall fear: Fear him, which after he hath killed hath power to cast into hell; yea, I say unto you, Fear him.

6 Are not five sparrows sold for two [‖] farthings, and not one of them is forgotten before God?

[‖] See Matt. 10. 29.

7 But even the very hairs of your head are all numbered. Fear not therefore: ye are of more value than many sparrows.

Anno DOMINI 33.

8 [d] Also I say unto you, Whosoever shall confess me before men, him shall the Son of man also confess before the angels of God:

[d] Matt. 10. 32. 2 Tim. 2. 12.

9 But he that denieth me before men shall be denied before the angels of God.

10 And whosoever shall speak a word against the Son of man, it shall be forgiven him: but unto him that blasphemeth against the Holy Ghost it shall not be forgiven.

[e] Matt. 10. 19. 11 [e] And when they bring you unto the synagogues, and unto magistrates, and powers, take ye no thought how or what thing ye shall answer, or what ye shall say:

12 For the Holy Ghost shall teach you in the same hour what ye ought to say.

13 ¶ And one of the company said unto him, Master, speak to my brother, that he divide the inheritance with me.

14 And he said unto him, Man, who made me a judge or a divider over you?

15 And he said unto them, Take heed, and beware of covetousness: for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth.

16 And he spake a parable unto them, saying, The ground of a certain rich man brought forth plentifully:

Chap. XII. ver. 1. In the mean time, when &c.] For further notes on this chapter, see the passages of St. Matthew's Gospel referred to in the margin.

3. Therefore whatsoever ye have &c.] Our Lord here commands them, when they are teaching others, to speak not for the applause of men, to conceal none of the things in which they were instructed, whether acceptable to men or not, but with courage and constancy to proclaim His doctrine; and to preach from henceforward in the most publick places, and proclaim openly to all the world what they had hitherto learned and discoursed only privately among themselves. Dr. S. Clarke. "In darkness;" that is, in private: "In the light;" that is, in publick. Bp. Pearce.

4. — Be not afraid of them that kill the body, &c.] The expression has a comparative sense; Fear not men so much as God; fear Him infinitely more. It is very lawful for us to fear men, and to stand in awe of their power: but, when the power of man comes in competition with Omnipotency, and when what man can do to the body in this world is compared with what God can do to the body and soul in the other, there is no comparison between the terrour of the one and the other. Abp. Tillotson.

He commands His disciples to subdue the slavish fear of mortal men, which they are too apt to entertain, by opposing to it a stronger and a juster fear, a fear of that all-seeing and almighty Being, from whose presence we cannot flee, and from whose power even the grave cannot shelter us, and who can make death be to us, not the end, but the beginning of woe. Dr. Jortin.

6. — five sparrows &c.] It is thought that sparrows were the birds used in the temple for cleansing the lepers, Lev. xiv. 4; and therefore sold for that purpose. Dr. Lightfoot.

—— not one of them is forgotten before God?] If the meanest and most inconsiderable creatures be thus under the Divine protection, let us hence observe, that every act of cruelty towards any of them, and more especially towards such animals as are serviceable to man, must be highly displeasing to the Almighty, who formed both us and them from the dust of the earth. Bp. Mann.

8. — shall confess me] Shall persevere resolutely in the profession and practice of the truth, notwithstanding the terrours of persecution. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— before the angels of God:] When He shall come to judgment, attended by the holy angels, Mark viii. 38. Bp. Mann.

14. — who made me a judge or a divider &c.] His meaning is, I was sent as a teacher of truth; I have no authority (not being a judge or magistrate) to decide quarrels, which is the office of those legally appointed to it.

15. And he said unto them, Take heed, &c.] From the incident just related, our Saviour takes occasion to warn His disciples and all the people of the evil of covetousness: Take heed that ye set not your heart on riches, as your principal source of happiness; for they are so far from being really such, that, on the contrary, the true enjoyment and comfort of life does not at all depend on a man's having many and great possessions. For the illustration of this truth, He addressed to them the parable which follows. Dr. S. Clarke.

16. — The ground of a certain rich man &c.] The purport of this parable is to shew that wealth is no security to its possessors; that it is folly to pretend to arm ourselves against the accidents or casualties of life by heaping up treasures, for nothing can protect us against them, but the good providence and care of our heavenly Father. In this point all the circumstances of the parable meet; the rich man is represented as flowing in plenty; this plenty made him forget God, and vainly imagine that he had

Anno DOMINI 33.

17 And he thought within himself, saying, What shall I do, because I have no room where to bestow my fruits?

18 And he said, This will I do: I will pull down my barns, and build greater; and there will I bestow all my fruits and my goods.

19 And I will say to my soul, Soul, thou hast much goods laid up for many years; take thine ease, eat, drink, and be merry.

20 But God said unto him, Thou fool, this night ‖ thy soul shall be required of thee: then whose shall those things be, which thou hast provided?

‖ Or, do they require thy soul.

21 So is he that layeth up treasure for himself, and is not rich toward God.

22 ¶ And he said unto his disciples, Therefore I say unto you, [f] Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat; neither for the body, what ye shall put on.

[f] Matt. 6. 25.

23 The life is more than meat, and the body is more than raiment.

24 Consider the ravens: for they neither sow nor reap; which neither have storehouse nor barn; and God feedeth them: how much more are ye better than the fowls?

25 And which of you with taking thought can add to his stature one cubit?

26 If ye then be not able to do that thing which is least, why take ye thought for the rest?

27 Consider the lilies how they grow: they toil not, they spin not; and yet I say unto you, that Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these.

Anno DOMINI 33.

28 If then God so clothe the grass, which is to day in the field, and to morrow is cast into the oven; how much more will he clothe you, O ye of little faith?

29 And seek not ye what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink, ‖ neither be ye of doubtful mind.

‖ Or, live not in careful suspense.

30 For all these things do the nations of the world seek after: and your Father knoweth that ye have need of these things.

31 ¶ But rather seek ye the kingdom of God; and all these things shall be added unto you.

32 Fear not, little flock; for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom.

33 Sell that ye have, and give alms; [g] provide yourselves bags which wax not old, a treasure in the heavens that faileth not, where no thief approacheth, neither moth corrupteth.

[g] Matt. 6. 20.

34 For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also.

35 [h] Let your loins be girded about, and your lights burning;

[h] 1 Pet. 1. 13.

36 And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding; that when he cometh and knocketh, they may open unto him immediately.

---

a security in his own hands against all the calamities of life. His riches made him promise himself many happy days and years, but God reproves him for his folly, and checks him in his presumptuous security. Bp. Sherlock.

20. But God said unto him, &c.] But now, said Jesus, mark the event, and observe the extreme folly of this man, and how fatally he deceived himself. For at the very instant that he was applauding himself in his own mind, promising himself much pleasure, and calling himself a happy man, God suddenly struck him with a mortal disease, and all his contrivances perished in a moment. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— Thou fool, this night &c.] The truth suggested by these words lies level to every capacity; that the impenitent sinner is liable to be surprised by death every day, every hour, every moment, and in a thousand different ways. And then what becomes of this unhappy man? If under a danger of this nature he can be easy, careless, cheerful, in good humour, and given up to mirth and joy, what name can be bestowed on this indolent security? None will suit it, except folly or frenzy. Dr. Jortin.

21. So is he &c.] This is directly the case of every man who never thinks of employing the plenty which he possesses to the relief of the poor, or otherwise to the service of God. Dr. Hammond. See Prov. xix. 17. Who is anxious about the things of this life, and neglects to provide for eternity. Bp. Mann.

22. — Take no thought] Be not anxious. See note at Matt. vi. 25.

29. — neither be ye of doubtful mind.] Indulge not an anxious unsettled temper. Bp. Mann. The expression seems to denote a distracting unstable fluctuation of the mind about provision for the body; which Christ would remove from the children of God, as being well assured that His wisdom knoweth, and His fatherly care will provide, what is needful for them. Dr. Whitby.

32. Fear not, little flock; for &c.] "Little flock;" an expression of tenderness. Dr. Campbell. Blessed and thrice happy are that little flock, that have such a Father, who will give them such a kingdom as is here promised, an everlasting kingdom in the heavens. What need they fear, if all the kingdoms of the earth be destroyed? Their almighty Father hath promised that He will give them this eternal kingdom, and therefore they may be certain that nothing can keep them from it, nothing can happen that will not help to bring them nearer to it. And what are all the kingdoms of the world, compared to that? Bp. Beveridge.

33. Sell that ye have, &c.] That is, Be ever ready so to do, when God calls, and the exigencies of Christ's members require it. Dr. Whitby.

—— bags which wax not old,] With what satisfaction does the good man look over into the other world, where he has provided for himself "bags which wax not old!" For, though our wealth will not follow us beyond the grave, our good works will; works of mercy and charity will comfort us at the hour of death, and plead for us at the day of judgment, and procure for us, through the merits of our Redeemer, at the hands of God, a glorious recompense at the resurrection of the just. Abp. Tillotson.

35. Let your loins be girded about,] The Jews wore loose garments, which they were obliged to gird about them when they were preparing for any business. Our blessed Lord means, that we should be prepared and ready to receive Him at His coming to judgment; as diligent servants are when they wait to receive their master, at whatsoever hour he may come. Bp. Mann.

Anno DOMINI 33.

37 Blessed are those servants, whom the lord when he cometh shall find watching: verily I say unto you, that he shall gird himself, and make them to sit down to meat, and will come forth and serve them.

38 And if he shall come in the second watch, or come in the third watch, and find them so, blessed are those servants.

[i] Matt. 24. 43.

39 And [i] this know, that if the goodman of the house had known what hour the thief would come, he would have watched, and not have suffered his house to be broken through.

40 Be ye therefore ready also: for the Son of man cometh at an hour when ye think not.

41 ¶ Then Peter said unto him, Lord, speakest thou this parable unto us, or even to all?

42 And the Lord said, Who then is that faithful and wise steward, whom his lord shall make ruler over his houshold, to give them their portion of meat in due season?

43 Blessed is that servant, whom his lord when he cometh shall find so doing.

44 Of a truth I say unto you, that he will make him ruler over all that he hath.

45 But and if that servant say in his heart, My lord delayeth his coming; and shall begin to beat the menservants and maidens, and to eat and drink, and to be drunken;

46 The lord of that servant will come in a day when he looketh not for him, and at an hour when he is not aware, and will ‖ cut him in sunder, and will appoint him his portion with the unbelievers.

Anno DOMINI 33.

47 And that servant, which knew his lord's will, and prepared not himself, neither did according to his will, shall be beaten with many stripes.

[l] Or, cut him off.

48 But he that knew not, and did commit things worthy of stripes, shall be beaten with few stripes. For unto whomsoever much is given, of him shall be much required: and to whom men have committed much, of him they will ask the more.

49 ¶ I am come to send fire on the earth; and what will I, if it be already kindled?

50 But I have a baptism to be baptized with; and how am I ‖ straitened till it be accomplished!

[l] Or, pained.

51 [k] Suppose ye that I am come to give peace on earth? I tell you, Nay; but rather division:

[k] Matt. 10. 34.

52 For from henceforth there shall be five in one house divided, three against two, and two against three.

53 The father shall be divided against the son, and the son against the father; the mother against the daughter, and the daughter against the mother; the mother in law against her daughter in law, and the daughter in law against her mother in law.

54 ¶ And he said also to the people, [l] When ye see a cloud rise out of the west, straightway ye say, There cometh a shower; and so it is.

[l] Matt. 16. 2.

---

37. Blessed are those servants, &c.] Assuredly, I tell you, as an earthly master rewards such faithful and diligent servants with great honour and preferment in his family, so Christ shall reward the watchfulness of those disciples with a peculiar share of His own honour and glory in His kingdom, whom He shall find at all times prepared to receive Him when He comes. Dr. S. Clarke.

Vigilance is most frequently enjoined upon Christians, and comprehends under it the whole care of a Christian life; all that watchfulness and preparation which we ought to use, that we be not surprised by that terrible day of judgment; that we be not found in the condition of slothful and negligent servants, when their lord comes suddenly upon them, and finds all things in confusion and disorder. Abp. Tillotson.

—— shall gird himself, &c.] The expression alludes to the honours paid to guests at a marriage feast, and implies, that, as a reward to the diligence of the servants, the bridegroom will entertain them, place them at his table, and wait on them himself. Dr. Hammond.

38. — in the second — or — third watch,] At midnight, or at three in the morning.

39. — the goodman of the house] The master of the house. See note at Prov. vii. 19.

42. — Who then is that faithful &c.] Our Saviour answers, I speak to every faithful and wise servant, who wishes to recommend himself to his master's favour. Bp. Mann.

—— to give them their portion of meat] The highest office in the family was to distribute to the other servants their respective daily allowance. Bp. Mann.

46. — cut him in sunder,] See note at Matt. xxiv. 51.

47, 48. And that servant, which knew &c.] Our Saviour here affirms, that, according to the degree of knowledge which God has afforded to men, so will their crimes receive aggravation of guilt, and be visited with increase of punishment. And the more light and grace He bestows on any, the greater and more perfect Christian performances He will require of them. Dr. Hammond.

48. — unto whomsoever much is given, of him &c.] When we come into the other world, no consideration will sting us more than this, that we did wickedly, when we understood to do better; that we chose to make ourselves miserable, when we knew so well the way to make ourselves happy. Abp. Tillotson.

49. I am come to send fire &c.] See Matt. x. 34. I am come to publish that doctrine which will kindle great contentions in the world; yet so profitable is it to the world, that I wish it had already taken place, although attended with this disagreeable consequence. "What will I, if it be;" a phrase that signifies, I wish that it were, &c. Dr. Whitby, Bp. Pearce.

The fire of persecution, He says, will first break out at My destruction: and, seeing that the will of God and the salvation of men can no otherwise be accomplished, great is My desire that this fire were already kindled. Bp. Mann.

50. — I have a baptism] See note at Matt. xx. 22. I Myself must undergo the first effects of the persecution which will ensue, in suffering a cruel and ignominious death: and I am uneasy and straitened in My own mind with an earnest desire of having this great work finished. Dr. S. Clarke.

Anno DOMINI 33.

55 And when ye see the south wind blow, ye say, There will be heat; and it cometh to pass.

56 Ye hypocrites, ye can discern the face of the sky and of the earth; but how is it that ye do not discern this time?

57 Yea, and why even of yourselves judge ye not what is right?

[m] Matt. 5. 25. 58 ¶ [m] When thou goest with thine adversary to the magistrate, as thou art in the way, give diligence that thou mayest be delivered from him; lest he hale thee to the judge, and the judge deliver thee to the officer, and the officer cast thee into prison.

59 I tell thee, thou shalt not depart thence, till thou hast paid the very last

[l] See Mark 12. 42. || mite.

CHAP. XIII.

1 Christ preacheth repentance upon the punishment of the Galileans, and others. 6 The fruitless fig tree may not stand. 11 He healeth the crooked woman: 18 sheweth the powerful working of the word in the hearts of his chosen, by the parable of the grain of mustard seed, and of leaven: 24 exhorteth to enter in at the strait gate, 31 and reproveth Herod and Jerusalem.

Anno DOMINI 33.

THERE were present at that season some that told him of the Galileans, whose blood Pilate had mingled with their sacrifices.

2 And Jesus answering said unto them, Suppose ye that these Galileans were sinners above all the Galileans, because they suffered such things?

3 I tell you, Nay: but, except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish.

4 Or those eighteen, upon whom the tower in Siloam fell, and slew them, think ye that they were || sinners above all men that dwelt in Jerusalem?

[l] Or, debtors.

5 I tell you, Nay: but, except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish.

6 ¶ He spake also this parable; A certain man had a fig tree planted in his vineyard; and he came and sought fruit thereon, and found none.

7 Then said he unto the dresser of his vineyard, Behold, these three years I come

---

56.—ye do not discern this time?] Ye do not, from the predictions of the ancient Prophets, and from the present circumstances of things compared together, know the times and Person of the Messiah? Dr. S. Clarke.

57. Yea, and why even of yourselves &c.] Nay, though ye had none of these tokens to assist and direct you, why can ye not, even from your own consciences, and by the reason and equity of things, learn to judge what is fit and right? Dr. S. Clarke.

58. When thou goest with thine &c.] As when you see a legal action coming against you, in which you will certainly be cast, you set yourselves presently to reconcile the adversary; so now endeavour to make your peace with God by repentance, and to escape the danger of His wrath? Dr. Hammond.

59. I tell thee, thou shalt not depart &c.] As it is too late for a man to escape punishment when sentence is passed upon him, so will it be with those who die in a state of impenitence. Sentence will then be past, and it will be impossible to escape. Trust not then to the deceitful inventions of those who pretend to have power to control and set aside the just judgment of God; but repent in time, as the only way to avoid the Divine wrath. Bp. Mann.

Chap. XIII. ver. 1.—of the Galileans, whose blood &c.] Who these Galileans were, is uncertain. It may be inferred from the expressions, that Pilate surprised them as they were offering sacrifices, fell upon them suddenly, and slew them. It is probable that they were the followers of Judas of Galilee, (Acts v. 37,) who taught the people that they were to acknowledge the Lord only as their king, and were not to pay tribute to Cesar, and thus spread sedition against the Roman government. Drs. Whitby, Hammond, and S. Clarke.

It seems that the slaughter of these Galileans, while they were performing the solemn offices of their religion, was thought to have the appearance of something extraordinary, different from common providences, and so gave occasion to a suspicion that the dreadful usage they had experienced was a judgment of God upon them for some great impieties. But our blessed Lord, having more humanity as well as a more true and exact judgment of things, took occasion to reprove their uncharitableness, and to correct their gross mistakes. He does not indeed deny that the Galileans were sinners, or that their sufferings were brought upon them for their sins: but He condemns those that censured them, yet more hardly for their groundless and ill-natured conclusion, that the suffering Galileans had been sinners above all the Galileans: and He further tacitly reproves their fond and partial conceits in their own favour, as if they were comparatively innocent and righteous, only because no such calamity had as yet befallen them. Dr. Waterland.

2.—Suppose ye that these Galileans &c.] Our Saviour here instructs His hearers not to judge harshly of those who suffer by the common accidents and misfortunes of life; but to let such examples teach them to amend their own lives, knowing how fearful a thing it is to die in their sins, and to fall into the hands of the living God. Bp. Mann.

3. I tell you, Nay: &c.] The wisdom of Providence doomed these men to perish, for an example to others, altogether as great sinners as they, to bring them to repentance: and assuredly, unless you do repent, you shall all, even your whole nation, be destroyed by as sore a calamity, and by as dreadful a slaughter, as these men were. Dr. S. Clarke.

4.—the tower in Siloam] A tower in the wall of Jerusalem, (Neh. iii. 15,) near a pool of the same name, John v. 2; ix. 7. See the plan of Jerusalem.

5.—ye shall all likewise perish.] It has been considered that our Lord had here probably a very particular reference to those temporal calamities which were to come upon the Jewish nation; and so were spoken by Him in the way of prediction, foretelling the fate of the Jews who should continue impenitent; that they should "all likewise perish." And thus indeed the event occurred about forty years after. Dr. Waterland.

6.—A certain man had &c.] In this parable are represented in a striking manner the longsuffering and forbearance of Almighty God. Let it teach us, not only to reverence and glorify the Divine mercy, but to imitate it, by shewing compassion and tenderness, on every occasion, to each other. Bp. Mann.

—— and found none.] Thus God chose the nation of the Jews to be His peculiar people, expecting that they should serve and obey Him with fidelity; but they revolted from Him, and degenerated into a wicked and impenitent people: thus likewise individuals, when God expects from them the fruits of virtue and righteousness, bring forth, on the contrary, sin and folly. Dr. S. Clarke.

Anno DOMINI 33.

seeking fruit on this fig tree, and find none: cut it down; why cumbereth it the ground?

8 And he answering said unto him, Lord, let it alone this year also, till I shall dig about it, and dung it:

9 And if it bear fruit, well: and if not, then after that thou shalt cut it down.

10 And he was teaching in one of the synagogues on the sabbath.

11 ¶ And, behold, there was a woman which had a spirit of infirmity eighteen years, and was bowed together, and could in no wise lift up herself.

12 And when Jesus saw her, he called her to him, and said unto her, Woman, thou art loosed from thine infirmity.

13 And he laid his hands on her: and immediately she was made straight, and glorified God.

14 And the ruler of the synagogue answered with indignation, because that Jesus had healed on the sabbath day, and said unto the people, There are six days in which men ought to work: in them therefore come and be healed, and not on the sabbath day.

15 The Lord then answered him, and said, Thou hypocrite, doth not each one of you on the sabbath loose his ox or his ass from the stall, and lead him away to watering?

16 And ought not this woman, being a daughter of Abraham, whom Satan hath bound, lo, these eighteen years, be loosed from this bond on the sabbath day?

Anno DOMINI 33.

17 And when he had said these things, all his adversaries were ashamed: and all the people rejoiced for all the glorious things that were done by him.

18 ¶ [a] Then said he, Unto what is the kingdom of God like? and whereunto shall I resemble it? [a] Matt. 13. 31.

19 It is like a grain of mustard seed, which a man took, and cast into his garden; and it grew, and waxed a great tree; and the fowls of the air lodged in the branches of it.

20 And again he said, Whereunto shall I liken the kingdom of God?

21 It is like leaven, which a woman took and hid in three ‖ measures of meal, till the whole was leavened. ‖ See Matt. 13. 33.

22 [b] And he went through the cities and villages, teaching, and journeying toward Jerusalem. [b] Matt. 9. 35.

23 Then said one unto him, Lord, are there few that be saved? And he said unto them, 24 ¶ [c] Strive to enter in at the strait gate: for many, I say unto you, will seek to enter in, and shall not be able. [c] Matt. 7. 13.

25 When once the master of the house is risen up, and hath shut to the door, and ye begin to stand without, and to knock at the door, saying, Lord, Lord, open unto us; and he shall answer and say unto you, I know you not whence ye are:

---

8. — Lord, let it alone &c.] Thus God, by sending Christ and His Apostles to preach the Gospel to the Jews, made them one offer of mercy more; and gave them one further space for repentance: after which, if they rejected it, He irreversibly determined to destroy them without mercy. And thus, likewise, to every obstinate sinner God offers means and time for repentance; but at last, if he continue impenitent, cuts him off and destroys him irrecoverably. Dr. S. Clarke.

11. — a spirit of infirmity] A sore disease inflicted on her by the power of Satan (ver. 16.) for eighteen years. Dr. Hammond. It is sufficiently clear from several parts of Scripture history, that many diseases were by Divine permission brought upon men by evil spirits, sometimes concurring with natural causes, and sometimes, perhaps, acting without them. Dr. Whitby.

15. — Thou hypocrite,] He so calls him, as pretending a regard for religion which he did not feel.

16. — being a daughter of Abraham,] A title which the Jews highly valued, Matt. iii. 9; Luke iii. 8; John viii. 33; Acts xiii. 26. Grotius.

19. It is like a grain &c.] See notes at Matt. xiii. 31—33.

23. — are there few that be saved?] This question seems to be propounded agreeably to the opinion of the Jews, that all Israelites should have their portion in the world to come. This matter was much disputed among their doctors; so that perhaps the question was not captiously proposed, but for the real satisfaction of the inquirer. Drs. Whitby and Lightfoot.

—— And he said unto them,] Our Lord reproves the inquisitiveness of the person who asked the question, by a silence towards him personally, that expressed at once dignity and mildness, and addresses Himself to all who are present, acquainting them with all which it was necessary for them to know and remember, in relation to the subject. Abp. Secker.

24. Strive to enter in &c.] Christ here shews, that the number of those who may be saved is not defined by any decree of God; but that all may obtain salvation who display constancy, diligence, and courage, in conflicting with the world, the flesh, and the devil. Dr. Whitby.

He cautions us too, in this answer, against unnecessary curiosity about the salvation of others; but teaches us to be careful in working out our own "with fear and trembling," (Phil. ii. 12;) that is, with diligence and humility, not trusting to our own merits, but to God's mercy. Bp. Mann. He signifies, that it was not the business of mankind to pry into what God has hid, but to mind what He has revealed, and to master another difficulty, that of fulfilling His commands; that multitudes, indeed, who professed His religion, would finally appear to have professed it in vain; but that all this was not to be matter of idle speculation amongst men: they are each to take care and practise their own duties; whatever number may be saved, great or small, they knew the way, and but one way there was, to become part of that number. Abp. Secker. For further notes on the remainder of this chapter, see the passages of St. Matthew referred to in the margin.

—— and shall not be able.] It is not meant that any Christian will ever sincerely do his best to enter into life eternal, and fail in it; but that many imagine God has marked out other ways to happiness than obeying His laws; and many too, who are fully sensible there is no other way, use so little diligence in following this, that their progress is insufficient to make them arrive at eternal felicity. Abp. Secker.

Anno DOMINI 33.

26 Then shall ye begin to say, We have eaten and drunk in thy presence, and thou hast taught in our streets.

[d] Matt. 7. 23.

27 [d] But he shall say, I tell you, I know you not whence ye are; depart from me, all ye workers of iniquity.

28 There shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth, when ye shall see Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, and all the prophets, in the kingdom of God, and you yourselves thrust out.

29 And they shall come from the east, and from the west, and from the north, and from the south, and shall sit down in the kingdom of God.

[e] Matt. 19. 30.

30 [e] And, behold, there are last which shall be first, and there are first which shall be last.

31 ¶ The same day there came certain of the Pharisees, saying unto him, Get thee out, and depart hence: for Herod will kill thee.

32 And he said unto them, Go ye, and tell that fox, Behold, I cast out devils, and I do cures to day and to morrow, and the third day I shall be perfected.

33 Nevertheless I must walk to day, and to morrow, and the day following: for it cannot be that a prophet perish out of Jerusalem.

[f] Matt. 23. 37.

34 [f] O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, which killest the prophets, and stonest them that are sent unto thee; how often would I have gathered thy children together, as a hen doth gather her brood under her wings, and ye would not!

Anno DOMINI 33.

35 Behold, your house is left unto you desolate: and verily I say unto you, Ye shall not see me, until the time come when ye shall say, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord.

CHAP. XIV.

2 Christ healeth the dropsy on the sabbath: 7 teacheth humility: 12 to feast the poor: 15 under the parable of the great supper, sheweth how worldly minded men, who contemn the word of God, shall be shut out of heaven. 25 Those who will be his disciples, to bear their cross must make their accounts aforehand, lest with shame they revolt from him afterward, 34 and become altogether unprofitable, like salt that hath lost his savour.

AND it came to pass, as he went into the house of one of the chief Pharisees to eat bread on the sabbath day, that they watched him.

2 And, behold, there was a certain man before him which had the dropsy.

3 And Jesus answering spake unto the lawyers and Pharisees, saying, Is it lawful to heal on the sabbath day?

4 And they held their peace. And he took him, and healed him, and let him go;

5 And answered them, saying, Which of you shall have an ass or an ox fallen into a pit, and will not straightway pull him out on the sabbath day?

6 And they could not answer him again to these things.

---

26. — We have eaten and drunk &c.] Thus the means of grace, which God is pleased to vouchsafe to us, will prove our condemnation, unless we make a right use of them. Bp. Mann.

29. — they shall come from the east, &c.] Many others, just and righteous persons, shall come from all parts of the world, from remote nations, strangers to the law and covenant, of which you boast, and shall be received into the kingdom of God. Dr. S. Clarke.

30. — there are last which shall be first,] The Gentiles, who now enjoy the fewest advantages, will be most distinguished; whereas the Jews, by not making a right use of the benefits they enjoy, will be left far behind. Bp. Mann.

31. — depart hence: for Herod will kill thee.] Depart from Galilee, over which the jurisdiction of Herod extends. It seems probable that the Pharisees suggested this danger with the design of terrifying Christ, being unwilling that the people should further see His miracles, and learn His doctrines, from the fear of the effect which they might have upon their minds. Dr. Hammond.

32, 33. — Go ye, and tell that fox, &c.] Tell that crafty and wicked prince, that I am employed in the business for which I was sent by God into the world: and that, when I have finished this business, and the time appointed by Divine Wisdom is come, I shall indeed at last be perfected by suffering death. But that, (ver. 33.) in the mean time, till the season (determined by God Himself only) shall come, I must continue preaching and working miracles; the power of Herod cannot hinder Me, neither can I suffer at any other time, or in any other place, than that which the wisdom of God has from the beginning appointed. Dr. S. Clarke.

32. — I shall be perfected.] By suffering death, Heb. ii. 10. Dr. S. Clarke.

33. — it cannot be that a prophet &c.] Because, as appears from the Jewish writings, a Prophet was only to be judged by the great Sanhedrim; and they were only to pass judgment on him at Jerusalem. Drs. Whitby and Lightfoot.

35. — until the time come &c.] Until your calamities shall oblige you to acknowledge that I act by the authority of God. Bp. Mann.

Chap. XIV. ver. 1. — one of the chief Pharisees] One of the rulers, who was of the sect of the Pharisees. Dr. Whitby.

—— they watched him.] To see whether He would heal on the sabbath day, that they might have a ground of accusation against Him, Mark iii. 2. Dr. Whitby.

2. — there was a certain man before him &c.] From the circumstances in which our Saviour was now placed, arose this difficulty; that, either by forbearing to heal at that time, He would betray His fear, and strengthen their superstition as to ritual observances; or else, by doing it, He must incur the censure of being a sabbathbreaker, and contemner of the law. But He, who was well aware what spies He had upon Him, adopted that prudent management, that He accomplished His purpose, without giving any opening to His enemies to blame His conduct. Dean Stanhope.

5. — an ass or an ox] These were the most useful animals in Judea. Our Lord implies, that they were sufficiently ready to dispense with their scruples when their interests were concerned.

Anno DOMINI 33.

7 ¶ And he put forth a parable to those which were bidden, when he marked how they chose out the chief rooms; saying unto them,

8 When thou art bidden of any man to a wedding, sit not down in the highest room; lest a more honourable man than thou be bidden of him;

9 And he that bade thee and him come and say to thee, Give this man place; and thou begin with shame to take the lowest room.

[a] Prov. 25. 6, 7.

10 [a] But when thou art bidden, go and sit down in the lowest room; that when he that bade thee cometh, he may say unto thee, Friend, go up higher: then shalt thou have worship in the presence of them that sit at meat with thee.

[b] Matt. 23. 12.

11 [b] For whosoever exalteth himself shall be abased; and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted.

12 ¶ Then said he also to him that bade him, When thou makest a dinner or a supper, call not thy friends, nor thy brethren, neither thy kinsmen, nor thy rich neighbours; lest they also bid thee again, and a recompence be made thee.

13 But when thou makest a feast, call

[c] Tobit 4. 7.

[c] the poor, the maimed, the lame, the blind:

14 And thou shalt be blessed; for they cannot recompense thee: for thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just.

Anno DOMINI 33.

15 ¶ And when one of them that sat at meat with him heard these things, he said unto him, [d] Blessed is he that shall eat bread in the kingdom of God.

[d] Rev. 19. 9.

16 [e] Then said he unto him, A certain man made a great supper, and bade many:

[e] Matt. 22. 2.

17 And sent his servant at supper time to say to them that were bidden, Come; for all things are now ready.

18 And they all with one consent began to make excuse. The first said unto him, I have bought a piece of ground, and I must needs go and see it: I pray thee have me excused.

19 And another said, I have bought five yoke of oxen, and I go to prove them: I pray thee have me excused.

20 And another said, I have married a wife, and therefore I cannot come.

21 So that servant came, and shewed his lord these things. Then the master of the house being angry said to his servant, Go out quickly into the streets and lanes of the city, and bring in hither the poor, and the maimed, and the halt, and the blind.

22 And the servant said, Lord, it is done as thou hast commanded, and yet there is room.

23 And the lord said unto the servant, Go out into the highways and hedges, and

---

7—10. — the chief rooms;] See notes at Matt. xxiii. 6. We are here instructed that Christian humility ought to extend to the most ordinary occasions. Bp. Mann.

10. — shalt thou have worship] Thou shalt have respect and reverence shewn to thee. Bp. Pearce.

12. — When thou makest a dinner &c.] It is not to be supposed that Christ here forbids His disciples to invite their kinsfolk and friends in participation of mutual charity and friendship: He only forbids them to do so from the prospect of a compensation, and instructs them to prefer the exercise of charity towards those, from whom no recompense can be expected. Dr. Whitby. The expressions here are to be understood in a comparative, not an absolute, sense. The rich are not forbidden to make entertainments on proper occasions, suited to their rank and circumstances; but they are cautioned against acting from motives of vanity and ostentation, or self-interest; and are exhorted, on the contrary, to take pity on the poor, and relieve their wants. Bp. Mann.

13. — when thou makest a feast, call the poor, &c.] Allusion may here be made to the religious feasts which the Jews were in the habit of giving on the sabbath day. The sense will then be, When thou makest a religious feast, let it be of a truly religious character; ask not the rich as to a common entertainment, but the poor, who cannot repay thee. Michaelis.

14. — shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just.] Shalt receive the recompense of thy charity, at the great and general resurrection, with all other holy, and just, and charitable men, in the eternal kingdom of God. Dr. S. Clarke.

15. — Blessed is he that shall &c.] That shall partake of the pleasures and enjoyments of the kingdom of the Messiah. Dr. Whitby.

16. — A certain man made &c.] See the notes on the parable at Matt. xxii. 2, &c. which has a close affinity with this. The Gospel dispensation, as ministering true plenty and pleasure, all that men can want, all that they can wish, to render them perfectly happy, is compared to a supper. The first bidding denotes all the previous notices of the Messiah, by which the Law and the Prophets were intended to prepare the Jews for receiving Him and His doctrine. The second bidding, when all things were ready, seems to import all that Jesus did and taught, and suffered, for their conversion and salvation; and all the testimonies and importunate exhortations of His Apostles and Disciples to the same purpose. The excuses sent for their absence, are those prejudices and passions and worldly interests, which did not only hinder those Jews from coming into the faith, but disposed them to treat all attempts to win them over with the most inflexible obstinacy and utmost contempt. The guests brought in from abroad to supply their places, are the Gentile world, to whom, after the Jews had thrust it from them, the subsequent tender of this grace and salvation was made. And the declaring, "that none of those men which were bidden should taste of this supper," implies the giving those Jews over to a reprobate sense, and leaving them under that infidelity and perverseness, in which they continue hardened to this very day. Dean Stanhope.

18. — they all — began to make excuse.] This always was, still is, and, it may be feared, ever will be, the practice of the world. Though men be invited to the greatest feast that can be made up of all the joys and pleasures that heaven can afford, they all slight it on some frivolous pretence or other. These have their ambition, those their covetousness, a third sort their revenge, a fourth their luxury, to gratify and indulge. They have the cares of this life upon their hands, and in their hearts too; with which they are so occupied, that there is no room left for the thoughts of another life to come. Bp. Beveridge.

23. — the highways and hedges,] It is common in the East compel them to come in, that my house may be filled.

Anno DOMINI 33.

24 For I say unto you, That none of those men which were bidden shall taste of my supper.

25 ¶ And there went great multitudes with him: and he turned, and said unto them,

[f] Matt. 10. 37.

26 [f] If any man come to me, and hate not his father, and mother, and wife, and children, and brethren, and sisters, yea, and his own life also, he cannot be my disciple.

27 And whosoever doth not bear his cross, and come after me, cannot be my disciple.

28 For which of you, intending to build a tower, sitteth not down first, and counteth the cost, whether he have sufficient to finish it?

29 Lest haply, after he hath laid the foundation, and is not able to finish it, all that behold it begin to mock him,

30 Saying, This man began to build, and was not able to finish.

31 Or what king, going to make war against another king, sitteth not down first, and consulteth whether he be able with ten thousand to meet him that cometh against him with twenty thousand?

32 Or else, while the other is yet a great way off, he sendeth an ambassage, and desireth conditions of peace.

33 So likewise, whosoever he be of you that forsaketh not all that he hath, he cannot be my disciple.

Anno DOMINI 33.

34 ¶ [g] Salt is good: but if the salt have lost his savour, wherewith shall it be seasoned?

[g] Matt. 5. 13.

35 It is neither fit for the land, nor yet for the dunghil; but men cast it out. He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.

CHAP. XV.

1 The parable of the lost sheep: 8 of the piece of silver: 11 of the prodigal son.

THEN drew near unto him all the publicans and sinners for to hear him.

2 And the Pharisees and scribes murmured, saying, This man receiveth sinners, and eateth with them.

3 ¶ And he spake this parable unto them, saying,

4 [a] What man of you, having an hundred sheep, if he lose one of them, doth not leave the ninety and nine in the wilderness, and go after that which is lost, until he find it?

[a] Matt. 18. 12.

5 And when he hath found it, he layeth it on his shoulders, rejoicing.

6 And when he cometh home, he calleth together his friends and neighbours, saying unto them, Rejoice with me; for I have found my sheep which was lost.

---

for travellers, who do not intend to stay long in a place, to refresh themselves under a hedge, by the road side; and it was such as these that were here invited. Bp. Mann.

—— compel them to come in,] Press and urge them to come in. Dr. S. Clarke. Invite them, entreat them, persuade, press, be importunate to them. The "compelling" here spoken of was an act of kindness, not of rigour, towards those who had no reason to expect so great a favour from the lord. Dr. Jortin. This expression cannot be understood to signify any thing more than the use of such pressing invitations as could scarcely be refused. So the word "constrained" is used, chap. xxiv. 29, in a similar sense. This passage therefore gives no countenance to persecution in the cause of religion. Bp. Mann.

26. — and hate not his father, &c.] St. Matthew, at chap. x. 37, expresses the true meaning, when he says, "Loveth father or mother more than Me." Bp. Pearce. Our Saviour's meaning is to be extended no further than to a readiness and willingness, whenever God shall call us to it, to quit all our temporal interests and enjoyments, and even life itself, the dearest of all other things to us, and to submit to any temporal inconvenience and suffering for His sake. Abp. Tillotson.

If any man be not willing to hazard the loss of his father and mother, &c. that is, postpone not the consideration of them, love them not in a less degree than the favour of God, and the interests of My religion; let him not be one of My followers, who must benefit others by their instructions and example, and who, if they fall away in the approaching time of trial, will fall away to perdition. Abp. Newcome.

27. — whosoever doth not] See note at Matt. x. 38.

28—32. For which of you, &c.] By these similitudes, Christ cautioned those whom He addressed seriously to weigh and consider matters beforehand, to form the most steady resolutions of perseverance, and to arm themselves with fortitude and patience against persecution, that so they might not be induced to swerve from their Christian course. Dr. Whitby.

28. — intending to build a tower,] Probably alluding to the elegant turrets often erected in the gardens of the East, where persons of rank and fortune spend a considerable portion of their time. Harmer.

34. — if the salt have lost his savour,] See notes at Matt. v. 13. As salt, when it has lost its savour, becomes of no use, so the Christian professor, who lives not according to the precepts of the Gospel, can do no good to himself or to others. Dr. Whitby.

Chap. XV. ver. 2. — the Pharisees and scribes murmured, &c.] It appears that the Pharisees and scribes deemed publicans, gross sinners, and heathens, unfit to be conversed with, even if it were for the purpose of reforming them from their evil courses, as they thought that God had cast off all care of them, and had no design of granting them repentance unto life. Dr. Whitby.

3. And he spake this parable] Our Lord proceeds to vindicate His conduct in this particular, by the two following parables. The design of which is to shew, that the conversion of sinners is highly acceptable to God, and therefore that the embracing of every opportunity for effecting this important purpose ought not to be displeasing to men. Dean Stanhope.

6. — for I have found my sheep which was lost.] As men are more sensibly affected with joy on the recovery of any possession which had been lost, than in the continued enjoyment of what is incomparably more valuable; therefore the Scripture makes use

Anno DOMINI 33.

7 I say unto you, that likewise joy shall be in heaven over one sinner that repenteth, more than over ninety and nine just persons, which need no repentance.

8 ¶ Either what woman having ten ‖ pieces of silver, if she lose one piece, doth not light a candle, and sweep the house, and seek diligently till she find it?

‖ Drachma, here translated a piece of silver, is the eighth part of an ounce, which cometh to seven pence half-penny, and is equal to the Roman penny, Matt. 18. 28.

9 And when she hath found it, she calleth her friends and her neighbours together, saying, Rejoice with me; for I have found the piece which I had lost.

10 Likewise, I say unto you, there is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth.

11 ¶ And he said, A certain man had two sons:

12 And the younger of them said to his father, Father, give me the portion of goods that falleth to me. And he divided unto them his living.

Anno DOMINI 33.

13 And not many days after the younger son gathered all together, and took his journey into a far country, and there wasted his substance with riotous living.

14 And when he had spent all, there arose a mighty famine in that land; and he began to be in want.

15 And he went and joined himself to a citizen of that country; and he sent him into his fields to feed swine.

16 And he would fain have filled his belly with the husks that the swine did eat: and no man gave unto him.

---

of this comparison to give comfort and encouragement to sinners, who, however vile in their own eyes, may be sure of reconciliation and favour with God on true repentance. Bp. Mann.

7.—likewise joy shall be in heaven &c.] See note at Matt. xviii. 13. This expression is not to be understood too rigorously, but as spoken after the manner of men. Sickness, pain, and danger, give a more lively relish for safety, ease, and health. The surprise of an escape which we did not expect, and the regaining of a treasure which we supposed to be lost, are entertained with transport and rapture; because they seem to make a new accession to our fortunes. And such, in the sight of God, is the case of men immersed in a dissolute and abandoned life; it is an ample subject of satisfaction, and even of wonder, when they are recovered from the snare of the devil, who have long been used to be taken captive at his will. This is a new conquest, an enlarging of Christ's dominion, an addition made to the number of the blessed, and an example of noble influence for encouraging others to shake off the dominion of their sins. Dean Stanhope.

A person who has followed righteousness from his youth, is not lost to God because he has always been in His ways; but he who has never been in the ways of God, and has always wandered from them, is as yet lost to God; he is lost in Adam and in himself; in both is lost to God. When therefore such an one as this repents and turns into the ways of God, how well pleased is that merciful Being to see such a conversion! Not but that He values the soul of a just person, as much as that of the penitent. But the greater the danger of the penitent was, so much the more, to speak after the manner of men, is God pleased with his deliverance, by which His grace and word are more gloriously magnified. Dr. Lightfoot.

What an argument and encouragement to repentance is here held out, even to the greatest of sinners! Though, like the prodigal son, they have deserted their Father, and wasted their estate in lewd and riotous courses; yet, whenever they are willing to return to Him, to acknowledge their folly and to repent of it, He is ready to receive them, and to embrace them with as much kindness as if they never had offended. To this degree does the great God condescend to encourage our repentance; representing Himself, and all the blessed company of heaven, as transported with joy at the conversion of a sinner, and almost setting a greater value on true repentance, than on innocence itself. And, if our heavenly Father, who has been so infinitely offended, and so highly provoked by us, be so ready, so forward, so glad, to receive us; is it possible that we can be such enemies to ourselves, as to be backward to our own happiness? All of us, the best of us, have too much cause for repentance, and too many of us stand in need of that repentance which is intended by our Saviour in this text, consisting in the entire change and amendment of our lives. Abp. Tillotson.

——which need no repentance.] It is certain that there are no persons in the world, who, in the strict sense of the word, need no repentance; for there never was a person, besides our Saviour, who did righteousness, and sinned not. It should be observed therefore, that the repentance here meant is not that godly sorrow for particular failings and infirmities, committed through surprise and sudden temptations, which is necessary for the best of men in this state of imperfection; but that entire change of the whole course of life, from the service of sin to the service of God, which is required in confirmed sinners: and in this sense it is, that the righteous person is said to need no repentance. Dr. Whitby.

11.—A certain man had two sons:] This parable of the prodigal son is remarkably beautiful, even in the letter of it, for the variety of its incidents, and the affecting manner in which they are related. Bp. Horne. In this parable the elder son represents the Jews, who murmured and were angry that the Gentiles, who before were far off from God, Ephes. ii. 13, were under the Christian covenant brought nigh unto Him, and made partakers of the same privileges with themselves. The younger son represents the Gentiles, who depraved, by gross idolatries, the knowledge they had received from tradition of the true God, serving them which by nature were no gods, and giving themselves to all uncleanness; but now had through Christ access unto the Father, being adorned with the garment of faith and the robe of righteousness, and invited to become partakers of the banquet prepared for all. Dr. Whitby.

In this parable, as in some others, our Lord vails the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven with a certain degree of present obscurity. The prodigal son represents not only a repenting individual, but the Gentile world converted and reconciled to God. They had long strayed from their heavenly Father, and wasted what He had distributed to them, reason, conscience, and the primitive religion of mankind, by spiritual fornication and sensual impurities; but at length would come to themselves, be humbled before Him, pardoned by Him, and restored to the same degree of favour as the elder brother, the Israelite. This was an event, the notion of which that elder brother (representing the Jewish nation) was then too much blinded with prejudice to endure. It was therefore vailed in a parable, but in a parable of immediate use and edification. Though in the book of grace, as in the book of nature, are treasures of wisdom imperfectly known till the appointed time of disclosing them; yet enough of both is plain and legible at sight, to declare the glory of the great Author: as in this parable His goodness and mercy to sinful man are openly proclaimed, as well as mystically predicted. Dr. Townson.

15.—to feed swine.] An employment which must, in the notions of a Jew, have been peculiarly degrading. Bp. Pearce.

16. And he would fain have filled &c.] He is represented as receiving from his employers so scanty a payment, that, in the time of famine, it would not provide him with food. Dr. Macknight.

——with the husks] The word in the original seems to mean the pod or fruit of the carob tree, which in southern countries is

Anno DOMINI 33.

17 And when he came to himself, he said, How many hired servants of my father's have bread enough and to spare, and I perish with hunger!

18 I will arise and go to my father, and will say unto him, Father, I have sinned against heaven, and before thee,

19 And am no more worthy to be called thy son: make me as one of thy hired servants.

20 And he arose, and came to his father. But when he was yet a great way off, his father saw him, and had compassion, and ran, and fell on his neck, and kissed him.

21 And the son said unto him, Father, I have sinned against heaven, and in thy sight, and am no more worthy to be called thy son.

22 But the father said to his servants, Bring forth the best robe, and put it on him; and put a ring on his hand, and shoes on his feet:

23 And bring hither the fatted calf, and kill it; and let us eat, and be merry:

24 For this my son was dead, and is alive again; he was lost, and is found. And they began to be merry.

Anno DOMINI 33.

25 Now his elder son was in the field: and as he came and drew nigh to the house, he heard musick and dancing.

26 And he called one of the servants, and asked what these things meant.

27 And he said unto him, Thy brother is come; and thy father hath killed the fatted calf, because he hath received him safe and sound.

28 And he was angry, and would not go in: therefore came his father out, and intreated him.

29 And he answering said to his father, Lo, these many years do I serve thee, neither transgressed I at any time thy commandment: and yet thou never gavest me a kid, that I might make merry with my friends:

30 But as soon as this thy son was come, which hath devoured thy living with harlots, thou hast killed for him the fatted calf.

31 And he said unto him, Son, thou art ever with me, and all that I have is thine.

---

still used for the feeding of swine, and is eaten by the poorer sort of people. It is called St. John's bread, from the opinion that the Baptist used it in the wilderness. Dr. Campbell. "And no man gave unto him." He had fallen so low, that even this miserable supply was refused to his necessity.

17. — when he came to himself,] It was when he was ready to perish with hunger that he came to himself. So, when men approach the goal of life, they will think of their ways with sufficient trouble and vexation: and how glad would they then be if they had time to consider and reform them. But, too probably, while they are wishing for more time, eternity will swallow them up. Abp. Tillotson. A sense of sin is the beginning of repentance, and a sense of misery begets a sense of sin. Bp. Horne.

18. I will arise and go to my father, &c.] This beautiful parable sets before us a lively image of a sinner; first, in his wilful and ungrateful degeneracy and revolt from God, his Father both by creation and preservation, in departing from his known duty to comply with his vicious affections; then, in the disappointment and dissatisfaction which he found in his evil courses, and in the treachery of a deceitful and wicked world; thirdly, in the strong conviction of his faults and follies, which struck him to the heart on sober consideration; and lastly, in the resolution he takes up to delay his repentance and his return no longer, to arise instantly and go to his Father, and humble himself before Him. Dr. Jortin.

—— and will say unto him, Father, I have sinned, &c.] It is most necessary indeed for every offender against God to perform the good resolution here set by the returning prodigal. The sooner this is done the better, and God has promised to concur with us in the undertaking. If we arise and go to Him, He, like the father in the parable, will come forth to meet us. Our Father worketh, and we work; and with such a helper nothing need be despaired of. If once a right resolution is formed to be serious and vigorous, earnest and active, temptations grow weak by being baffled, the task becomes easy, virtue appears amiable, and vice detestable: and the soul feels by experience, that one day employed in the service of God gives more satisfaction than a thousand spent in the gay follies and the vile practices of a wicked world. Dr. Jortin.

20. — his father — had compassion, &c.] What shall we say of the tenderness and compassion of God towards penitent sinners? It cannot be set forth more pathetically and affectionately than in this parable. On the one hand, we have the description of a graceless youth, unthankful, stubborn, disobedient, wilful, who had no cause for complaint, and would have had none to blame but himself, if he had been left to perish. But, as soon as he repented, and turned his face homewards, we see, on the other hand, the affectionate father, who could not contain himself so much as to stay at home, and wait there for his son's submission; but, while he was yet afar off, ran to meet him, and fell upon his neck, and kissed him. What conceptions ought we to have of God's compassion to penitent sinners answerable to this description! Dr. Jortin.

Here let all sinners, and sinners we all are, behold the loving-kindness of our heavenly Father, to those who truly repent and turn to Him, as it was displayed towards the Gentiles on their conversion. The bowels of His mercy yearned towards them in their lost estate; and He longed for their return, as a father for that of his child gone from him. Bp. Horne.

22. — a ring on his hand,] A peculiar mark of distinction. See Gen. xli. 42. Grotius.

25. — he heard musick and dancing.] It is still the custom in the East, on occasions of great rejoicing, to hire not only bands of musick, but also bands of dancers, as a token of joy, and for the entertainment of those present. Fragments to Calmet.

28. And he was angry, &c.] This is a striking image, and an exact representation of the perverse behaviour of the Jews, when the mystery of the calling of the Gentiles began to be revealed, and the Gospel to be preached to them. The unbelieving Jews were incensed at it beyond measure, and became on this very account the more hardened and averse from Christianity; and they hated St. Paul implacably, because he was more particularly the patron of the Gentiles, and, as they supposed, the adversary of the law. Dr. Jortin.

Our Lord here finely reproves the unjust anger of the Jews against the Gentiles, on account of their admission to the same privileges with themselves under the Christian covenant. Abp. Newcome.

31. — Son, thou art ever with me,] He tells him that he was sensible of his constant duty and obedience, which were most

Anno DOMINI 33.

32 It was meet that we should make merry, and be glad: for this thy brother was dead, and is alive again; and was lost, and is found.

CHAP. XVI.

1 The parable of the unjust steward. 14 Christ reproveth the hypocrisy of the covetous Pharisees. 19 The rich glutton, and Lazarus the beggar.

AND he said also unto his disciples, There was a certain rich man, which had a steward; and the same was accused unto him that he had wasted his goods.

2 And he called him, and said unto him, How is it that I hear this of thee? give an account of thy stewardship; for thou mayest be no longer steward.

3 Then the steward said within himself, What shall I do? for my lord taketh away from me the stewardship: I cannot dig; to beg I am ashamed.

Anno DOMINI 33.

4 I am resolved what to do, that, when I am put out of the stewardship, they may receive me into their houses.

5 So he called every one of his lord's debtors unto him, and said unto the first, How much owest thou unto my lord?

6 And he said, An hundred ‖ measures of oil. And he said unto him, Take thy bill, and sit down quickly, and write fifty.

‖ The word Batus in the original containeth nine gallons three quarts.

7 Then said he to another, And how much owest thou? And he said, An hundred ‖ measures of wheat. And he said unto him, Take thy bill, and write fourscore.

‖ The word here interpreted a measure in the original containeth about fourteen bushels and a pottle.

8 And the lord commended the unjust steward, because he had done wisely: for acceptable to him, and which could not lose their reward: but the return of his other son, after he had given over all hopes of him, and looked upon his case as desperate, was indeed a marvellous surprise, and a happiness beyond expectation, and therefore a most natural cause of joy and gladness, on which it was very meet to make merry and be glad. Abp. Tillotson.

---

It were a great mistake to suppose that a constant obedience is not to be preferred even to the most sincere and active repentance, and that God will more love and reward the latter than the former. The contrary to this is clearly implied in the parable; "Son, thou art ever with me, and all that I have is thine." The father, who rejoiced so greatly at the return of the prodigal, yet in his sedate judgment makes a wide difference between the penitent and the innocent son. The greater the obedience, the greater will be the reward with God; the more has been done and suffered for the sake of God, the more honour will be the consequence. The penitent son will then find rest and peace to his soul, and receive his reward, but not a reward equal to that of the son who never departed from his father. Dr. Jortin.

32. —for this thy brother] The elder son had spoken of his brother to the father in the angry language of "this thy son," at ver. 30; the father here endeavours to raise the most tender sensations in him, by changing it into "this thy brother." Abp. Newcome.

——was dead,] Was as if he had been dead. So Scripture represents one who was desperately engaged in a wicked course. Dr. Hammond.

The ungodly and impenitent, if they be disposed to hear and attend, may learn a most comfortable lesson from the doctrine of this text; namely this, that though they are for the present, through their own default, shut out from the kingdom of heaven, yet a door stands open for repentance, whensoever they shall think it their duty and their interest to look up to heaven and to return to God. For their further encouragement, our Lord has been pleased to hint, that the angels themselves stand, in a manner, waiting for their conversion, (ver. 7, 10,) and will not only be content, but even joyful to receive them, when they shake off their evil habits, and become new men, thoroughly reclaimed both in heart and life. In the mean time, they are considered as lost and undone, dead in trespasses and sins; and that is the very reason given why the joy in heaven will be greater on their recovery, if ever they shall recover, because it is doubtful and almost desperate. "Thy brother was dead," says the kind father in the parable, "and is alive again; and was lost, and is found." He therefore judged it meet to make a solemn rejoicing for a recovery of so extraordinary a nature, somewhat resembling even a resurrection from the grave. Dr. Waterland.

Beholding the sad consequences of departing from our Father's house, let us take up the resolution of the holy Psalmist, "I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever." Let the sinner, whom the chastising hand of God has brought to himself, whose eyes have been opened by affliction to behold his real state and condition; who has felt the truth which he refused to believe, that the world is vanity, and sin folly; let such an one listen to the admonitions of conscience, and cherish the first dawnings of Divine grace in his heart; that so the Sun of righteousness, there arising, may disperse every cloud, and cause every shadow to flee away. For, however darkness may at present cover the transgressor, and gross darkness overwhelm his soul, as it once did the Gentile world, yet let him know, to his great and endless comfort, that, upon his sincere repentance, the Lord shall arise likewise upon him, and His glory shall be seen upon him. Let him only follow the example of the returning prodigal, and he will not fail of his reward, even reconciliation, and peace, and love, and joy, and rejoicing, in the house of his heavenly Father. Bp. Horne.

Chap. XVI. ver. 5. —his lord's debtors] Meaning probably his tenants, who paid their rent not in money, but in kind; being a certain proportion of the produce of their lands. See ver. 6, 7. Bp. Mann.

8. And the lord commended &c.] The very lord, at whose expense this fraudulent project took effect, could not but acknowledge the wisdom of him who projected it. The steward is called "unjust," which is a direct reprehension of his dishonest conduct: but as that part of his character did not fall within our Lord's design in propounding the parable, He passes it without further notice. Accordingly, He dwells upon the foresight and worldly wisdom of this steward, as a just reproach to the inconsideration and remissness, of which even they who profess to be earnestly seeking the blessings of eternity, are too often guilty, in the pursuit of them. Dean Stanhope.

The steward is not only expressly called "unjust," but his injustice was branded by his dismission. What his master praised was his wisdom and foresight, his subtle and ingenious management in securing to himself friends. He punished his dishonesty, but acknowledged his art and cunning. Abp. Newcome.

——because he had done wisely:] That is, discreetly, according to the wisdom of the men of this world, whose concern is only for the good things of the present life. He commends him, not absolutely, as an example fit to be followed, in his injustice, fraud, and waste of his master's goods; but comparatively, as being so far worthy to be imitated by "the children of light," that they ought to make it their principal concern here, to provide for their reception into everlasting habitations, when they shall be by death removed from their stewardships. Dr. Whitby.

A parable like this seemed to require an explanation, as many the children of this world are in their generation wiser than the children of light.

Anno DOMINI 33.

9 And I say unto you, Make to yourselves friends of the ‖ mammon of unrighteousness; that, when ye fail, they may receive you into everlasting habitations.

‖ Or, riches.

10 He that is faithful in that which is least is faithful also in much: and he that is unjust in the least is unjust also in much.

11 If therefore ye have not been faithful in the unrighteous ‖ mammon, who will commit to your trust the true riches?

‖ Or, riches.

12 And if ye have not been faithful in that which is another man's, who shall give you that which is your own?

13 ¶ [a] No servant can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon.

Anno DOMINI 33.

[a] Matt. 6. 24.

14 And the Pharisees also, who were covetous, heard all these things: and they derided him.

15 And he said unto them, Ye are they which justify yourselves before men; but God knoweth your hearts: for that which is highly esteemed among men is abomination in the sight of God.

16 [b] The law and the prophets were until John: since that time the kingdom of

[b] Matt. 11. 12.

---

of the hearers might have drawn improper inferences from it: our Lord therefore did not leave it in obscurity as He did some other parables delivered to the multitude, but immediately pointed out Himself the uses and observations which were to be made from it. Dr. Jortin. Indeed, He is unusually large in explaining the uses of this parable, and guarding it from misconstruction. Abp. Newcome.

——for the children of this world &c.] Our Saviour, applying the parable to His disciples, says, Ye see how provident and industrious are the men of the world, to secure to themselves a portion in the fading and uncertain enjoyments of this life. If pious and good men would shew any approach to the same diligence in obtaining the happiness of eternity, which worldly men exert in providing present possessions, they could not possibly miss their reward. Dr. S. Clarke. Our Saviour's observation here is a mournful one, founded on a thorough knowledge of human nature, and verified by constant experience; but it is very useful and important, a lesson of humility and caution to the good, of reproof and terrour to the wicked, whose wisdom serves only to make them the greatest fools, and the greatest sufferers. By "the children of this world," are meant they who mind earthly things, and steadily pursue them, disregarding religion and religious concerns: by "the children of light," those who acknowledge that future happiness is the great end of man, and obedience to God the only way to attain it; who live under this persuasion, and act suitably to it. The point in which these two sorts of persons are compared, is prudence or wisdom, and the preference is given to the children of this world, as pursuing their worldly interest with more dexterity and steadiness, than the others usually exert in securing the end and the recompense they have in view. The children of this world have, for the most part, a steady regard to the end which they pursue, be it wealth, or power, or honours, or pleasure; they are wise in choosing proper means, and finding out the nearest way to compass their end; they are vigilant and active, constant and resolute in their pursuits. On the other hand, the children of light sometimes quite overlook and forget their great concern, have intervals of remissness and indifference, are easily deterred and unsettled, and drawn aside by every impediment and discouragement. Dr. Jortin.

9. —Make to yourselves friends &c.] Imitate this steward's wisdom in so managing the perishing possessions of this world, that they may secure to you a future subsistence when your present trust shall end. The steward was aware that his life was not to end with his stewardship, and that therefore, when that source of livelihood failed, some other means must be devised. Our case in this respect is the same as his. Death deprives us of all further use of our worldly advantages; but death itself does not close our existence. There is a future and eternal state, for which we are reserved; to which it is our greatest prudence to direct our aims at present, to the end that all which we now have, and all which we now do, may then tend to our blessing. How this is to be done, the Scriptures abundantly inform us. Our wealth is not to be wasted in pomp and vanity, in luxury and excess, but to be expended in works of piety, charity, and publick good. Our talents and learning are to be employed in promoting virtue, religion, and truth; in practices, examples, and persuasions, proportioned to the measure of these advantages. They who use the blessings of this life faithfully for the service of their Lord, will hereafter, according as He has promised, enter into His joys. Dean Stanhope. Our Saviour means to say, Learn from the unjust steward this wisdom at least, the wisdom of consideration and forecast, and of providing for a time of necessity: what he was, that you all are, in one respect; you are in an office of trust. Every man is a steward; he has talents, knowledge, power, worldly possessions, entrusted to his care by the great Lord and Householder. Make to yourselves friends of deceitful riches, that when ye depart hence, ye may be received into everlasting habitations. As the steward in the parable so employed the revenues committed to his care as to purchase friends and protectors, do you the same in an honest way. Use your possessions in such a manner as to acquire to yourselves friends both in heaven and in earth; promote the honour and the service of God here below, and do good to your fellow-creatures, and thus you will secure the prayers and blessings of those whom you oblige, and the favour and approbation of good angels in heaven, of the Holy Spirit, of Jesus Christ, and of the God and Father of all. Dr. Jortin.

——the mammon of unrighteousness;] Not meaning riches unjustly gotten, but riches in general, the false, uncertain, transitory riches of the present world. Dr. S. Clarke.

10. —he that is unjust in the least &c.] He that is an unjust steward in the management of a thing so vile as earthly wealth, is not fit to be entrusted with true riches.

11. If therefore ye have not been &c.] If ye employ not the transitory and fading riches of this world to those purposes for which God committed them to your charge; ye can never expect that God should bestow upon you a greater and more lasting treasure. Dr. S. Clarke.

——the unrighteous mammon,] See note at ver. 9; the false riches of this world, as placed in opposition to the true riches of the next. Bp. Mann.

12. —who shall give you that which is your own?] The meaning of this verse is, You will never obtain the true riches which are to be expected in the next world, unless you make a right use of those advantages with which you are now entrusted: it is your behaviour here that will determine what your state shall be hereafter. Bp. Mann.

13. No servant &c.] See notes at Matt. vi. 24.

15. —which justify yourselves &c.] Which endeavour to approve yourselves to men, and expect to be owned by them, as righteous persons: but God knoweth the falsehood of your hearts: for that fair outside, which is highly esteemed among men, who see no farther, is an abomination in the sight of God, who seeth the hypocrisy of your hearts. Dr. Whitby.

16. —since that time &c.] Since the preaching of John, another state of religion is begun, and the Gospel covenant, on the terms of repentance, is offered to all men, without the distinction of Jew or Gentile. Bp. Mann.

Anno DOMINI 33.

God is preached, and every man presseth into it.

[c] Matt. 5. 18.

17 [c] And it is easier for heaven and earth to pass, than one tittle of the law to fail.

[d] Matt. 5. 32.

18 [d] Whosoever putteth away his wife, and marrieth another, committeth adultery: and whosoever marrieth her that is put away from her husband committeth adultery.

19 ¶ There was a certain rich man, which was clothed in purple and fine linen, and fared sumptuously every day:

20 And there was a certain beggar named Lazarus, which was laid at his gate, full of sores,

21 And desiring to be fed with the crumbs which fell from the rich man's table: moreover the dogs came and licked his sores.

Anno DOMINI 33.

22 And it came to pass, that the beggar died, and was carried by the angels into Abraham's bosom: the rich man also died, and was buried;

23 And in hell he lift up his eyes, being in torments, and seeth Abraham afar off, and Lazarus in his bosom.

24 And he cried and said, Father Abraham, have mercy on me, and send Lazarus, that he may dip the tip of his finger in water, and cool my tongue; for I am tormented in this flame.

25 But Abraham said, Son, remember

---

18. Whosoever putteth away &c.] See note at Matt. v. 31.

19. There was a certain rich man, &c.] Jesus, having rebuked the Pharisees for their hypocrisy and covetousness, returns to His discourse concerning the true use of riches, and the great evil of a worldly and voluptuous life. To which purpose He adds the following parable. Dr. S. Clarke.

As this person was rich, he had leisure hours to spend in the study of religious truths, and of the duties incumbent on a person of his high rank; he had pressing motives to gratitude towards God, had power and opportunity of doing great service to his fellow creatures, of relieving the distressed, of rewarding the meritorious, of encouraging virtue by his example. What use did he make of these advantages? He lived entirely to himself, and did no good to others; his heart was set on worldly objects, and he removed religion far from his thoughts. Dr. Jortin.

—— which was clothed in purple, and fine linen, &c.] Observe, that the rich man is not censured by our Saviour for enjoying what he had, for wearing rich apparel, and keeping a great table: his fault was this, that he made every thing subservient to his sensuality and luxury, without any consideration of the wants and necessities of others. Abp. Tillotson.

20. — a certain beggar named Lazarus,] As if our Saviour had said, For instance, poor Lazarus, whom ye all knew. He would not name any rich man, because that would have been invidious, and would have given provocation. Abp. Tillotson.

—— was laid at his gate, &c.] Here are mentioned three circumstances which aggravate the rich man's uncharitableness; the object was presented to him at his very gate; such an object as would have moved any one's pity, a fellow-creature reduced to extreme misery and necessity; and a very little relief would have contented him. Abp. Tillotson.

22. — was carried by the angels into Abraham's bosom:] This is expressed according to the Jewish mode of thinking and speaking; and the meaning is in general, that he was received into a state of happiness, and admitted to a place of peculiar honour. The phrase of lying in Abraham's bosom bears allusion to the custom at Jewish feasts of several guests lying on one couch, the head of one being placed near the bosom of another. See John xiii. 25; and note at chap. vii. 38. Bp. Pearce. The Jews had deservedly a great veneration for Abraham on account of his eminent faith and obedience, and they assigned to him the first place in the state of the blessed. Abp. Tillotson.

23. — in hell he lift up his eyes,] As if he had never once considered or bethought himself till that time. But alas! it was then too late for him to consider, and so will it be for us when we are surprised by death: consideration will then do us no good; it will serve no other purpose than to aggravate our misery, and to multiply our stings, and to give new life and rage to those vultures that will perpetually prey upon our hearts. But how much wiser a course would it be to consider these things in time, in order to our eternal peace and comfort; to think of them while we may redress them, and avoid the dismal consequences of them, rather than to delay when our case is desperate and past all remedy. Abp. Tillotson.

He who before dwelt at his ease is delivered over to remorse, sorrow, and pain. The remembrance of his former happiness makes his present state more wretched; and his misery is aggravated by the bitter reflection, that he had brought himself into this sad state entirely by his own fault. Dr. Jortin.

—— seeth Abraham afar off,] Our Saviour here conforms to the popular notion of the Jews, that the places where the good were to remain in happiness, and the wicked in torment, were adjoining to each other. Le Clerc.

—— and Lazarus in his bosom.] Since the rich man is here described as seeing Lazarus in Abraham's bosom, we are taught that the wicked will in the next world be so far informed of the state of the good, as to perceive and bewail, with unutterable anguish and regret, their own sad fate in being refused and rejected; when, had they acted differently, they would have been admitted to it. This is, strictly speaking, losing a man's soul; it is losing that happiness which his soul might have attained, and for which it was made. Archdeacon Paley.

24. — for I am tormented in this flame.] The torments of wicked men in hell are usually described to us in Scripture by one of the sharpest and quickest pains with which human nature is acquainted; namely, that of burning. All that we need infer from these descriptions is, that the sufferings of wicked men will be as great and severe, and probably greater than can possibly be described to us by any thing we know: for who knows the power of God's anger, and the utmost of what Omnipotent justice can do to sinners? Abp. Tillotson.

25. — remember that thou in thy lifetime receivedst thy good things,] These things last only with our life, and how short is that! Did men seriously lay this to heart, they would not set such a price on any of the transient enjoyments of life, as for the sake of them to neglect the great concernments of another world. We are apt to be dazzled with the present glitterings of worldly glory and prosperity; but, if we would look upon these things as certainly soon to be gone from us, how little would they signify! The rich man here, no doubt, thought himself a much happier man than poor Lazarus at his door; and yet, after a very little while, how glad would he have been to change conditions with this poor man: when he was in torments, then no doubt he wished that he had suffered all the misery and want in this world which Lazarus did, provided he might have been comforted as he was, and "carried by angels into Abraham's bosom." Abp. Tillotson.

From this and other parts of the parable it is plain that our Lord's principal view in this whole discourse was, to warn men of the danger of that worldly-mindedness, of that heedlessness respecting matters of religion, of that total intentness on present pleasure and profit, which is not so much itself a particular vice, as the foundation of all vices. It is this which makes men regardless of futurity, and without God in all their thoughts.

Anno DOMINI 33.

that thou in thy lifetime receivedst thy good things, and likewise Lazarus evil things: but now he is comforted, and thou art tormented.

26 And beside all this, between us and you there is a great gulph fixed: so that they which would pass from hence to you cannot; neither can they pass to us, that would come from thence.

27 Then he said, I pray thee therefore, father, that thou wouldest send him to my father's house:

28 For I have five brethren; that he may testify unto them, lest they also come into this place of torment.

29 Abraham saith unto him, They have Moses and the prophets; let them hear them.

30 And he said, Nay, father Abraham: but if one went unto them from the dead, they will repeat.

31 And he said unto him, If they hear not Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded, though one rose from the dead.

CHAP. XVII.

Anno DOMINI 33.

1 Christ teacheth to avoid occasions of offence. 3 One to forgive another. 6 The power of faith. 7 How we are bound to God, and not he to us. 11 He healeth ten lepers. 22 Of the kingdom of God, and the coming of the Son of man.

THEN said he unto the disciples, [a] It is impossible but that offences will come: but woe unto him, through whom they come!

[a] Matt. 18. 7.

2 It were better for him that a milstone were hanged about his neck, and he cast into the sea, than that he should offend one of these little ones.

3 ¶ Take heed to yourselves: [b] If thy brother trespass against thee, rebuke him; and if he repent, forgive him.

[b] Matt. 18. 21.

4 And if he trespass against thee seven times in a day, and seven times in a day turn again to thee, saying, I repent; thou shalt forgive him.

5 And the Apostles said unto the Lord, Increase our faith.

It is this deceitfulness of riches, and the care of other things, of ambition and voluptuousness, which, our Lord tells us in another parable, "chokes the word;" that is, stifles all notions of religion, "and it becomes unfruitful." It is this which exposes men to temptations of every kind, and makes them continually sacrifice the interests of truth and virtue whenever they come in competition with the good things of this life, on which alone their heart is set. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— receivedst thy good things,] This is brought to the rich man's remembrance, that he might recollect and see and justify God's providence in all His dispensations, and that he might see how little cause he had for complaint, when even so bad a man as he was had shared so largely in the Divine bounty. Dean Stanhope.

—— thy good things,] That is, such as thou didst esteem good, and prefer to all other. Dean Stanhope.

26 — there is a great gulph fixed:] God has determined your state by an irreversible sentence; and, however earnestly we might desire it, yet it is absolutely impossible for us to relieve you. Dr. S. Clarke.

Through the whole of this parable, the invisible state after death is described by images borrowed from the present life, and from the objects of our senses, and should not be taken according to the letter. We are to infer from it in general, as from every part of Scripture, the doctrine of a future state of rewards and punishments; but we must not draw any certain consequences from particular circumstances mentioned in it, which perhaps are entirely ornamental. Dr. Jortin.

29. — They have Moses and the prophets; let them hear them.] They have Moses and the Prophets, Abraham says, whom God, for my sake, and in virtue of the covenant made with me and my seed, sent to their forefathers, and by whom He reveals His own will, and their duty, in a more ample manner than it had been declared to any of my descendants before them. This standing revelation, which they, and which none but they, and the rest of my seed enjoy, was attested in the most solemn, authentick, and credible manner; and is sufficient to influence their faith and practice, if they do but attend to it. Bp. Atterbury.

31. — If they hear not Moses &c.] His answer is, God has already given them all the means of conviction, which it is reasonable either for Him to give, or for them to expect. If they be not blinded by an unreasonable perverseness of mind, and an habitual love of sin, they cannot avoid being influenced by the Law and the Prophets. But, if they lie under these prejudices, then no other means, how extraordinary soever, will probably have any lasting or effectual influence upon them. And the unbelieving Jews themselves became a signal instance of this; who withstood all the miracles of Christ, and even that greatest of all, His resurrection from the dead, no less than they had done the ordinary preaching of the Prophets. Dr. S. Clarke.

"They have Moses and the Prophets." They have the books of Moses and the Prophets, written by men divinely inspired: these sufficiently declare to them the will of God and their duty: and it is unreasonable to demand or expect that God should do more for their conviction and satisfaction. Abp. Tillotson.

The rich man in torment could think of no better expedient to rescue his brethren from the danger they were in, of coming into the same condition with himself, than sending one from the dead to admonish them, and to give them a faithful account how matters stood there, and how it fared with him. To this Abraham answers, that they had already sufficient evidence of these things; that they wanted no means of knowledge, if they would make use of those they had. For, where unbelief proceeds, as frequently it does, from a vitiated and corrupted mind, which hates to be reformed; which rejects the evidence because it will not admit the doctrine; in such a case, all proofs will be alike, and it will be lost labour to afford new evidence, since it is not the want of evidence that causes the unbelief. Bp. Sherlock.

They who are not induced to live and believe as they ought to do, by those discoveries which God has made, and those commands which He has given to them in Scripture, would stand out against any evidence, any application whatsoever; even that of a messenger, sent expressly from the other world to reform and reclaim them. Bp. Atterbury.

Chap. XVII. ver. 1. — It is impossible but that offences &c.] See the occasion of these words of Christ at Matt. xviii. 6, 7. And for further notes on this chapter, see the passages of St. Matthew referred to in the margin.

3. — If thy brother trespass] See Matt. xviii. 21.

5. — Increase our faith.] We find the disciples frequently confessing their want of faith: by which they mean, not want of faith to believe any article of religion, but want of a due reliance on the power of God, to enable them to perform miracles, for the great work of converting men to the Christian religion. This seems to be their meaning, from our Saviour's answer in the next verse. Bp. Mann.

Anno DOMINI 33.

6 [c] And the Lord said, If ye had faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye might say unto this sycamine tree, Be thou plucked up by the root, and be thou planted in the sea; and it should obey you.

[c] Matt. 17. 20.

7 But which of you, having a servant plowing or feeding cattle, will say unto him by and by, when he is come from the field, Go and sit down to meat?

8 And will not rather say unto him, Make ready wherewith I may sup, and gird thyself, and serve me, till I have eaten and drunken; and afterward thou shalt eat and drink?

9 Doth he thank that servant because he did the things that were commanded him? I trow not.

10 So likewise ye, when ye shall have done all those things which are commanded you, say, We are unprofitable servants: we have done that which was our duty to do.

11 ¶ And it came to pass, as he went to Jerusalem, that he passed through the midst of Samaria and Galilee.

Anno DOMINI 33.

12 And as he entered into a certain village, there met him ten men that were lepers, which stood afar off:

13 And they lifted up their voices, and said, Jesus, Master, have mercy on us.

14 And when he saw them, he said unto them, [d] Go shew yourselves unto the priests. And it came to pass, that, as they went, they were cleansed.

[d] Lev. 14. 2.

15 And one of them, when he saw that he was healed, turned back, and with a loud voice glorified God,

16 And fell down on his face at his feet, giving him thanks: and he was a Samaritan.

17 And Jesus answering said, Were there not ten cleansed? but where are the nine?

18 There are not found that returned to give glory to God, save this stranger.

---

6. — sycamine tree,] Undoubtedly Christ meant the sycomore of the ancients, called by the Egyptians Pharaoh's fig tree. This tree is now found in Judea, and in Galilee, where He then was. Hasselquist.

9. — I trow not.] I think not.

10. — say, We are unprofitable servants:] Whereas the performance of the greatest things which I your Master require, may seem to you a very eminent piece of service; know that in obeying all My precepts, you only do the office of good and faithful servants, obeying the commands of your great Master, as ye ought to do, and so must look on the reward promised, as not of debt, but of grace. Dr. Whitby.

So far are we from being able to exceed what is required for our salvation, as is implied in the doctrine of works of supererogation maintained in the Romish Church, that the Gospel here assures us, after our utmost care and best endeavours, we shall still fall short of our whole duty, and our deficiencies must be supplied by the abundant merits of our blessed Redeemer. Bp. Tomline.

—— unprofitable servants:] That is, creatures who can make no beneficial returns, no proper requitals to their Creator; who can neither will nor do any thing without the aids of Divine grace; who, instead of meriting a reward, or claiming it as a debt, cannot so much as claim impunity, or glory in God's sight, but must be content to sue to Him in the humblest manner for reward, for grace, and even for impunity; referring all to God's mercy and goodness, purchased by the sole merits of Christ Jesus. Dr. Waterland.

While we freely confess that our very best services are unprofitable with regard to God, we should study by all means to render them as profitable as we can to our neighbours and to ourselves. Thus we shall act the consistent, the pious, the charitable, the Christian part: thus we shall render to all their dues; humility to God the Father, gratitude and love to His eternal Son, our only Redeemer, and obedience to the dictates and suggestions of the Holy Spirit, our Sanctifier and Comforter. Dean Tucker.

If the utmost which any man can do is no more than what his duty obliges him to, the best have no merit to plead for themselves, much less to transfer to others; and the Romish doctrine of supererogation, which implies that one man can make up for the deficiencies of another in virtue and religion, must fall to the ground. Bp. Mann.

11. — through the midst of Samaria and Galilee.] Through the confines of Samaria and Galilee. Christ was journeying from Galilee, and His way lay through Samaria. Dr. Whitby.

12. — lepers,] See note at Lev. xiii. 2.

—— which stood afar off:] These men, being by the laws respecting leprosy (see Lev. xiii, xiv.) separated from the society of any of their brethren, durst not approach our Saviour. Dean Stanhope.

14. — shew yourselves unto the priests.] As is directed at Lev. xiii. 2, &c.; xiv. 2, &c.

16. — fell down — at his feet,] Being conscious of the cure of his leprosy, he now ventured to come near our Saviour. Dean Stanhope.

18. — save this stranger.] The Samaritans were considered as heathens by the Jews. Dr. Hammond.

We should well reflect on the conduct of the persons on whom this signal benefit was conferred. Their complaint was common as well as their calamity; but they, who were unanimously loud in their request, and seemed equally sensible of their affliction, were far from being equally affected by their deliverance. Nine out of the ten no sooner received the mercy than they forgot it: and only one poor Samaritan out of the number had the grace to come back, and with becoming humility and zeal, to pay the acknowledgments due for so sudden, so signal a mercy. This passage is the very picture of mankind, and holds out to us a glass, in which almost every soul may see its own disposition but too exactly represented, too strongly reflected. How closely do the generality of the world resemble these lepers; extremely importunate in their complaints, impatient of sorrow and distress; and when those cries for ease and deliverance have prevailed, equally hardened and ungrateful. How often, in seasons of publick or private calamity, in concern for themselves, or for some very dear to them, do they pour out their hearts before God, and shew Him all their trouble; promising that, if He would vouchsafe the blessing, or pardon the sin which wounded their hearts, they would never forget the mighty mercy. And yet how suddenly, how scandalously, have His gracious condescensions, and their most solemn vows, slipt out of their minds. All of us, when we read this passage, stand perhaps astonished at the stupidity of these base unthankful lepers. And yet, if we descend into our own breasts, we must be conscious that they might say to each of us, as Nathan did to David, "Thou art the man:" nay, thou art worse than the worst of those men, whom thou blamest for forgetting one mercy; for thou hast received numberless and most signal proofs of the Divine goodness, and no day passes without refreshing thy memory with new demonstrations of it. Dean Stanhope.

Anno DOMINI 33.

19 And he said unto him, Arise, go thy way: thy faith hath made thee whole.

20 ¶ And when he was demanded of the Pharisees, when the kingdom of God should come, he answered them and said, The kingdom of God cometh not ‖ with observation:

‖ Or, with outward shew.

21 Neither shall they say, Lo here! or, lo there! for, behold, the kingdom of God is ‖ within you.

‖ Or, among you.

22 And he said unto the disciples, The days will come, when ye shall desire to see one of the days of the Son of man, and ye shall not see it.

e Matt. 24. 23.

23 e And they shall say to you, See here; or, see there: go not after them, nor follow them.

24 For as the lightning, that lighteneth out of the one part under heaven, shineth unto the other part under heaven; so shall also the Son of man be in his day.

25 But first must he suffer many things, and be rejected of this generation.

f Gen. 7.

26 f And as it was in the days of Noe, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of man.

27 They did eat, they drank, they married wives, they were given in marriage, until the day that Noe entered into the ark, and the flood came, and destroyed them all.

g Gen. 19.

28 g Likewise also as it was in the days of Lot; they did eat, they drank, they bought, they sold, they planted, they builded;

29 But the same day that Lot went out of Sodom it rained fire and brimstone from heaven, and destroyed them all.

30 Even thus shall it be in the day when the Son of man is revealed.

31 In that day, he which shall be upon the housetop, and his stuff in the house, let him not come down to take it away: and he that is in the field, let him likewise not return back.

Anno DOMINI 33.

32 h Remember Lot's wife.

h Gen. 19. 26.

33 i Whosoever shall seek to save his life shall lose it; and whosoever shall lose his life shall preserve it.

i Matt. 16. 25.

34 k I tell you, in that night there shall be two men in one bed; the one shall be taken, and the other shall be left.

k Matt. 24. 40.

35 Two women shall be grinding together; the one shall be taken, and the other left.

36 ‖ Two men shall be in the field; the one shall be taken, and the other left.

‖ This 36th verse is wanting in most of the Greek copies.

37 And they answered and said unto him, l Where, Lord? And he said unto them, Wheresoever the body is, thither will the eagles be gathered together.

l Matt. 24. 28.

CHAP. XVIII.

1 Of the importunate widow. 9 Of the Pharisee and the publican. 15 Children brought to Christ. 18 A ruler that would follow Christ, but is hindered by his riches. 28 the reward of them that leave all for his sake. 31 He foreshoweth his death, 35 and restoreth a blind man to his sight.

AND he spake a parable unto them to this end, that men ought a always to pray, and not to faint;

a 1 Thess. 5. 17.

2 Saying, There was in a city a judge, which feared not God, neither regarded man:

3 And there was a widow in that city; and she came unto him, saying, Avenge me of mine adversary.

4 And he would not for a while: but afterward he said within himself, Though I fear not God, nor regard man;

5 Yet because this widow troubleth me,

---

19. — thy faith] Thy belief that I could do this. Bp. Mann.

20. — when the kingdom of God should come,] The Pharisees ask, When is this kingdom, of which You speak so much, to come? His answer is, It cometh not with outward marks of splendour and triumph, but is of a moral and spiritual nature, ruling over the affections of the soul to reform and purify them. It is therefore in your hearts and lives that you must look for it, where, by My preaching, it ought long since to have been established. Bp. Mann.

—— with observation:] With the pomp and splendour visible in earthly kingdoms. Dr. Whitby.

22. — The days will come, &c.] When the impending calamities shall fall on the nation of the Jews, ye will wish, in the time of your distress, for the comfortable enjoyment of My presence again, which then ye cannot have. Dr. S. Clarke.

24. — in his day.] In the day when He shall come to judgment, and His power shall be manifested in the destruction of Jerusalem. Bp. Mann.

31. — upon the housetop,] See note at Matt. xxiv. 17.

32. Remember Lot's wife.] Remember, by the example of Lot's wife, the folly of looking back at small and temporal things, when your life and happiness, your greatest and most lasting concerns, are at stake. Dr. S. Clarke.

Chap. XVIII. ver. 1. — always to pray, and not to faint;] To be constant and diligent in the performance of the duty of prayer; and not to cease from it because their petitions are not presently granted. Drs. Whitby and Hammond.

We are not to suppose that mere importunity can prevail with God to give us those things which He is otherwise unwilling to grant; but that it becomes us to be earnest and fervent, to testify our faith and confidence in His goodness, and the deep sense which we have of our own weakness, wants, and unworthiness; also to shew that we set a true value on His blessings and favours, as worth all the earnestness and importunity we can use: and in this decent and sober sense the success of our prayers may be truly said to depend on our importunity, not that God is to be moved to grant our requests, but that it becomes us to have these dispositions, in order that we may be more fitly qualified for the grace and mercy which God is willing to bestow upon us. Abp. Tillotson.

3. — Avenge me of mine adversary.] Administer justice to me against my adversary. Dr. Whitby.

5. — because this widow troubleth me, I will avenge her,] It is very far from our Lord's intention, when He describes the unjust conduct of this judge, to recommend his behaviour to the imita-

Anno DOMINI 33.

I will avenge her, lest by her continual coming she weary me.

6 And the Lord said, Hear what the unjust judge saith.

7 And shall not God avenge his own elect, which cry day and night unto him, though he bear long with them?

8 I tell you that he will avenge them speedily. Nevertheless when the Son of man cometh, shall he find faith on the earth?

9 And he spake this parable unto certain which trusted in themselves || that they were righteous, and despised others:

|| Or, as being righteous.

10 Two men went up into the temple to pray; the one a Pharisee, and the other a publican.

Anno DOMINI 33.

11 The Pharisee stood and prayed thus with himself, God, I thank thee, that I am not as other men are, extortioners, unjust, adulterers, or even as this publican.

12 I fast twice in the week, I give tithes of all that I possess.

13 And the publican, standing afar off, would not lift up so much as his eyes unto heaven, but smote upon his breast, saying, God be merciful to me a sinner.

14 I tell you, this man went down to his house justified rather than the other: [b] for every one that exalteth himself shall be

[b] Matt. 23. 12.

---

tion of His followers, or to imply that they should be overcome by mere importunity; but the moral of the parable was, that men should "always pray, and not faint;" because prayer in the end will prevail. Abp. Newcome.

6, 7. And the Lord said, Hear &c.] Jesus said, (applying the parable,) If an unjust and unmerciful man could not forbear being prevailed upon by the importunity of a poor despised woman, to do justice, contrary to his inclinations and passions; how much more will the just and merciful God, the righteous Judge of the world, certainly be moved by the earnest and continual prayers of His faithful and beloved servants, to vindicate them from the unjust oppressions and cruelty of their adversaries, though perhaps He does not answer their petitions immediately. Dr. S. Clarke.

7. —his own elect,] Christians chosen out of the world through faith in Christ, to be the Church and people of God. Dr. Whitby.

8. —shall he find faith on the earth?] How few will He find, who, by faith and patience, and perseverance in well doing, will appear worthy to be rescued and delivered by Him! Dr. S. Clarke. Or, shall He find a belief that He will come and execute vengeance on the Jews? The Christians, pressed with continual sufferings, began to grow weary in their minds, insomuch that many parts of the Epistles addressed to them, are manifestly intended to keep them steadfast in the faith. Dr. Whitby.

11. The Pharisee stood and prayed] The Jews used to pray standing. See note at Matt. vi. 5. Under the term praying they included thanksgiving. The Pharisee probably stood in the court of the Israelites, the publican in that of the Gentiles. Grotius.

—— God, I thank thee, that I am not &c.] How insolent and boasting is this style: even the thanks, which he would seem to offer up, bespeak sufficiency and self-satisfaction, and do not so much render praise to God, as they proclaim his own merit. Dean Stanhope.

—— or even as this publican.] What right had he to come before God with accusations in his mouth against other men; perhaps injurious and false, most certainly foreign and impertinent? The sins or failings of other men were no concern of his in his prayers: but self-accusation, or self-humiliation, should rather have come from him in addressing an offended God. He dwelt only on his own imaginary perfections, and threw a vail over his sins. His self-flattery prompted him to magnify his own services, taking a false estimate of himself from an illnatured comparison, which could serve only to deceive him, not in the least to justify him. For, what if others were really worse than he, in some respects; how would it follow that he was better than they upon the whole; still less, that he had any just pretence for boasting before God? Dr. Waterland.

12. I fast twice] The Jewish days of fasting in every week were the second and fifth days of the week, answering to our Monday and Thursday. Bp. Pearce. He says, I observe the law in its utmost rigour; nay, I even go beyond it; keeping two fasts in the week, for which I have only tradition, and paying tithe even of mint, anise, and cummin, (Matt. xxiii. 23,) the claim upon which was doubted. Dean Stanhope.

13. And the publican, standing afar off, &c.] The publican, in all his expressions, in all his deportment, speaks nothing but shame and confusion, the most tender contrition, and most profound humility. He "stands afar off," keeping at a distance from the proud Pharisee, who would have thought himself polluted by his touch. He lifts not up so much as his eyes to heaven, but by the guilt and melancholy of his countenance takes to himself the ignominious titles so liberally bestowed by his scornful companion. He smites upon his breast, as conscious of the pollutions which lodged there; looks not abroad, but confines his thoughts to his own misery; alleges nothing in his own behalf; feels no refuge, and seeks no comfort, except in the mercy of a forgiving God; brings no motive to incline that mercy, but a sorrowful sense of his own unworthiness, and a humble hope in God's unbounded goodness. He casts himself entirely on this saving, this only supporting, attribute, and says, "God be merciful to me a sinner." Dean Stanhope.

14. —justified] Pardoned and approved by God. Dr. Whitby. More acceptable in the sight of God. Dr. Hammond.

The publican's humility before God and man, though joined with an irregular life, was what gave him the preference in our Lord's esteem; not that he could be justified in a loose course of life, but he was in a nearer way to the favour of God than the proud Pharisee, because nearer to repentance and reformation. This person durst not presume so much as to look up towards heaven, conscious of his own vileness: there was modesty; there was remorse and profound reverence to God, whom he had offended: he had no claims to make, no services to boast of, at least not before God, yet he cast not away all hopes of favour, while he smote upon his breast, and said, "God be merciful to me a sinner;" merciful, first, to give him grace to amend his life, and next to pardon all his offences duly repented of. Dr. Waterland.

—— for every one that exalteth himself &c.] The true instruction to be derived from this parable is, that, however men may mistake themselves or one another, God always has respect unto the lowly, but beholds the proud afar off; that no past offences, however heinous, however numerous, however inveterate and habitual, will shut out from His pardon any sinner, who humbly bewails and heartily forsakes them: that it behoves us to take especial heed lest even the most solemn duties of religion be abused by us and turned against us; and that he only attends on these as he ought, who really mortifies his vanity and his passions, and brings himself to be more humble, more charitable, more sensible of his own failings, and less severe upon those of others: lastly, that the proper method of the sinner's applying for mercy and grace (and all of us are sinners) is, not arrogantly to thank God that we are not as other men are; but, as our Church has directed us, meekly to acknowledge our vileness, and truly to repent us of our faults. Dean Stanhope.

Every one that exalteth himself will be abased by his own vanity, which blinds those whom it infects, and draws them into many errours and indiscretions pernicious to their worldly interest. He will be abased by men, who detest overbearing insolence, and seldom miss any fair opportunity of humbling such abased; and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted.

Anno DOMINI 33.

15 And they brought unto him also infants, that he would touch them: but when his disciples saw it, they rebuked them.

16 But Jesus called them unto him, and said, Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not: for of such is the kingdom of God.

17 Verily I say unto you, Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child shall in no wise enter therein.

[c] Matt. 19. 16.

18 [c] And a certain ruler asked him, saying, Good Master, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?

19 And Jesus said unto him, Why callest thou me good? none is good, save one, that is, God.

20 Thou knowest the commandments, Do not commit adultery, Do not kill, Do not steal, Do not bear false witness, Honour thy father and thy mother.

21 And he said, All these have I kept from my youth up.

22 Now when Jesus heard these things, he said unto him, Yet lackest thou one thing: sell all that thou hast, and distribute unto the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven: and come, follow me.

23 And when he heard this, he was very sorrowful: for he was very rich.

24 And when Jesus saw that he was very sorrowful, he said, How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God!

25 For it is easier for a camel to go through a needle's eye, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God.

26 And they that heard it said, Who then can be saved?

27 And he said, The things which are impossible with men are possible with God.

[d] Matt. 19. 27.

28 [d] Then Peter said, Lo, we have left all, and followed thee.

29 And he said unto them, Verily I say unto you, There is no man that hath left house, or parents, or brethren, or wife, or children, for the kingdom of God's sake,

30 Who shall not receive manifold more in this present time, and in the world to come life everlasting.

31 ¶ [e] Then he took unto him the twelve, and said unto them, Behold, we go up to Jerusalem, and all things that are written by the prophets concerning the Son of man shall be accomplished.

Anno DOMINI 33.

[e] Matt. 20. 17.

32 For he shall be delivered unto the Gentiles, and shall be mocked, and spitefully entreated, and spitted on:

33 And they shall scourge him, and put him to death: and the third day he shall rise again.

34 And they understood none of these things: and this saying was hid from them, neither knew they the things which were spoken.

35 ¶ [f] And it came to pass, that as he was come nigh unto Jericho, a certain blind man sat by the way side begging:

[f] Matt. 20. 29.

36 And hearing the multitude pass by, he asked what it meant.

37 And they told him, that Jesus of Nazareth passeth by.

38 And he cried, saying, Jesus, thou son of David, have mercy on me.

39 And they which went before rebuked him, that he should hold his peace: but he cried so much the more, Thou son of David, have mercy on me.

40 And Jesus stood, and commanded him to be brought unto him: and when he was come near, he asked him, 41 Saying, What wilt thou that I shall do unto thee? And he said, Lord, that I may receive my sight.

42 And Jesus said unto him, Receive thy sight: thy faith hath saved thee.

43 And immediately he received his sight, and followed him, glorifying God: and all the people, when they saw it, gave praise unto God.

CHAP. XIX.

1 Of Zaccheus a publican. 11 The ten pieces of money. 28 Christ rideth into Jerusalem with triumph: 41 weepeth over it: 45 driveth the buyers and sellers out of the temple: 47 teaching daily in it. The rulers would have destroyed him, but for fear of the people.

AND Jesus entered and passed through Jericho.

2 And, behold, there was a man named Zaccheus, which was the chief among the publicans, and he was rich.

vain-glorious persons. He will be abased in the sight of God, who is constantly represented in Scripture as abhorring the proud; for pride of every kind is a direct offence against God: it is to forget, or practically to deny, that we receive every thing from Him; all the advantages of body, mind, birth, reputation, and fortunes, which we possess. Dr. Jortin.

18. And a certain ruler &c.] Respecting this transaction, see notes at Matt. xix. 16—22.

30. — manifold more in this present time,] From the joys of a good conscience, the comforts of the Holy Spirit, the sense of God's favour, the affection of other pious Christians, and the hope of everlasting treasures in heaven. Dr. Whitby.

32. For he shall be delivered &c.] See notes at Matt. xx. 19.

34. — they understood none of these things:] They knew not how to reconcile what He said with their apprehensions of His temporal kingdom, and their traditions that the Messiah should not die, John xii. 34. Dr. Whitby.

35. — a certain blind man] See notes at Matt. xx. 30; Mark x. 46.

Anno DOMINI 33.

3 And he sought to see Jesus who he was; and could not for the press, because he was little of stature.

4 And he ran before, and climbed up into a sycomore tree to see him: for he was to pass that way.

5 And when Jesus came to the place, he looked up, and saw him, and said unto him, Zaccheus, make haste, and come down; for to day I must abide at thy house.

6 And he made haste, and came down, and received him joyfully.

7 And when they saw it, they all murmured, saying, That he was gone to be guest with a man that is a sinner.

8 And Zaccheus stood, and said unto the Lord; Behold, Lord, the half of my goods I give to the poor; and if I have taken any thing from any man by false accusation, I restore him fourfold.

9 And Jesus said unto him, This day is salvation come to this house, forsomuch as he also is a son of Abraham.

Anno DOMINI 33.

10 [a] For the Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost.

[a] Matt. 18. 11.

11 And as they heard these things, he added and spake a parable, because he was nigh to Jerusalem, and because they thought that the kingdom of God should immediately appear.

12 [b] He said therefore, A certain nobleman went into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom, and to return.

[b] Matt. 25. 14.

13 And he called his ten servants, and delivered them ten || pounds, and said unto them, Occupy till I come.

|| Mina, here translated a pound, is twelve ounces and an half: which according to five shillings the ounce is three pounds two shillings and sixpence.

14 But his citizens hated him, and sent a message after him, saying, We will not have this man to reign over us.

15 And it came to pass, that when he was returned, having received the kingdom, then he commanded these servants to be

---

Chap. XIX. ver. 4. — a sycomore tree] See note at 1 Kings x. 27.

6. And he made haste,] By the great joy and eagerness which he displayed, he shewed what high esteem he had for that holy Jesus, whom the Scribes and Pharisees despised. Dr. Whitby.

8. — the half of my goods I give to the poor;] I now resolve to give to the poor, &c. He shews the sincerity of his reformation and conversion, by devoting so large a portion of his possessions to charitable purposes, and by his readiness to repair any injury he had done to others by oppression or false accusation. Dr. Whitby.

He says in effect, I perceive, Lord, that the people who attend Thee are very much offended at Thy coming to my house, who am a sinner. I confess I am so, a great sinner indeed; but I beseech Thee not to disdain to remain my guest on that account; for, whatsoever sins I have hitherto committed, I now heartily repent of them, and resolve and promise before Thee and them, that I will never commit them any more. And, to testify my sincerity herein, I will now relieve the poor as much as I ever oppressed them; for I will give them half my goods; and for whatever I have wrongfully taken from any man, I will restore four times the value. Bp. Beveridge.

—— by false accusation,] By giving wrong information against him in respect to the duties payable to the government.

—— fourfold.] Not by adding a fifth part, which the law required in case of theft, when the thing stolen was voluntarily restored, Numb. v. 7, nor by restoring double, as when what was taken was found in the trespasser's hands, Exod. xxii. 4; but by restoring for money and goods what the rigour of the law only required when an ox or a sheep was killed after being stolen. Dr. Whitby.

One particular and eminent fruit of true repentance is the making satisfaction and restitution to those whom we have injured. To God, indeed, we can never make compensation for the injuries we have done to Him by our sins; all that we can do is, to confess our sins to Him, to make acknowledgment of our miscarriages, to be heartily troubled for what we have done, and not to do the like again. But for injuries done to men we may, in many cases, make reparation and satisfaction. And this, as it is one of the best signs and proofs of a true repentance, so is it one of the most proper and genuine effects of it: for this is, as much as in us lies, to undo what we have done, and to unsin our sins. Abp. Tillotson.

9. — This day is salvation &c.] This day is this family received into the gracious covenant of mercy and salvation, and to a share in all the promises made by God to His peculiar people. For this man, by repentance, faith, and renewed obedience, is become truly and properly a son of Abraham, to all the purposes of religion and happiness. It is probable that Zaccheus was originally a Jew, yet all publicans in general were considered and ranked as Gentiles by the Jews, on account of the odious nature of their office, and the general badness of their character. Dr. S. Clarke, Grotius.

—— is a son of Abraham.] Acts like a true son of Abraham, and ought to be regarded as one of God's chosen servants. Bp. Mann.

10. For the Son of man &c.] For a principal design of My coming into the world is to reclaim such persons as these from the ways of sin and misery, to repentance and obedience, and the hopes of eternal life. Dr. S. Clarke.

11. — because he was nigh to Jerusalem,] Being now not far from Jerusalem, the royal city of the Jews, His disciples thought that He would immediately take upon Him the regal authority, chap. xvii. 20. Dr. Hammond.

12. — A certain nobleman &c.] The nobleman here represents Christ the Son of God, who, leaving heaven, travels "to a far country," this world, in order to receive a spiritual kingdom from His Father; and then, after His resurrection, to return to heaven. The "ten servants," among whom He distributed the sum of money to be put out to interest against His return, represent the Apostles and preachers of the Gospel. "His citizens, who hated Him" and rejected Him for their King, are the Jewish and other apostate nations. On His second appearance in glory He will reward or punish His servants according to their deserts, and will destroy His enemies. This awful prophecy, which was necessarily vailed in a parable, not then to be understood, began to be fulfilled at the destruction of Jerusalem by the Romans, and will be concluded in "the days of vengeance," destined to precede His next approaching appearance. Dr. Hales.

—— to receive for himself a kingdom,] It appears that our Saviour took the foundation of this parable from the custom, which was familiar in those days, that the kings of Judea, and other countries subject to the Roman power, usually went to Rome to have the kingdom confirmed to them by the Roman emperour, without whose permission and appointment they dared not take the government into their hands. This had occurred, in regard to Judea, in the case of Herod the Great, and of his son Archelaus. Dr. Whitby.

13. — Occupy till I come.] Trade with it till I return. Dr. S. Clarke.

Anno DOMINI 33.

called unto him, to whom he had given the money, that he might know how much every man had gained by trading.

16 Then came the first, saying, Lord, thy pound hath gained ten pounds.

17 And he said unto him, Well, thou good servant: because thou hast been faithful in a very little, have thou authority over ten cities.

18 And the second came, saying, Lord, thy pound hath gained five pounds.

19 And he said likewise to him, Be thou also over five cities.

20 And another came, saying, Lord, behold, here is thy pound, which I have kept laid up in a napkin:

21 For I feared thee, because thou art an austere man: thou takest up that thou layedst not down, and reapest that thou didst not sow.

22 And he saith unto him, Out of thine own mouth will I judge thee, thou wicked servant. Thou knewest that I was an austere man, taking up that I laid not down, and reaping that I did not sow:

23 Wherefore then gavest not thou my money into the bank, that at my coming I might have required mine own with usury?

24 And he said unto them that stood by, Take from him the pound, and give it to him that hath ten pounds.

25 (And they said unto him, Lord, he hath ten pounds.)

[c] Matt. 13. 12.

26 For I say unto you, [c] That unto every one which hath shall be given; and from him that hath not, even that he hath shall be taken away from him.

Anno DOMINI 33.

27 But those mine enemies, which would not that I should reign over them, bring hither, and slay them before me.

28 ¶ And when he had thus spoken, he went before, ascending up to Jerusalem.

29 [d] And it came to pass, when he was come nigh to Bethphage and Bethany, at the mount called the mount of Olives, he sent two of his disciples,

[d] Matt. 21. 1.

30 Saying, Go ye into the village over against you; in the which at your entering ye shall find a colt tied, whereon yet never man sat: loose him, and bring him hither.

31 And if any man ask you, Why do ye loose him? thus shall ye say unto him, Because the Lord hath need of him.

32 And they that were sent went their way, and found even as he had said unto them.

33 And as they were loosing the colt, the owners thereof said unto them, Why loose ye the colt?

34 And they said, The Lord hath need of him.

35 And they brought him to Jesus: and they cast their garments upon the colt, and they set Jesus thereon.

36 And as they went, they spread their clothes in the way.

37 And when he was come nigh, even now at the descent of the mount of Olives, the whole multitude of the disciples began to rejoice and praise God with a loud voice for all the mighty works that they had seen;

38 Saying, Blessed be the King that

---

17. —over ten cities.] Of his new kingdom.

21. For I feared thee, &c.] Thus wicked men who abuse, or at least make no good use of those abilities which God has given them, deem it a hardship that they should be required by Him to take pains to improve His gifts, and to employ and use them for the good of the world. Dr. S. Clarke.

23. Wherefore then gavest not thou my money into the bank, &c.] From hence we learn what reception those persons are likely to meet with from their Supreme Judge, who can plead nothing beyond a negative merit, the merit of doing neither good nor harm. It is not enough merely that we abstain from great crimes, or that we enjoy ourselves in an indolent harmless tranquillity, and divide matters so nicely as to avoid equally the inconveniences of vice and the fatigues of virtue; praising religion in words, loving it perhaps in speculation, but leaving the trouble of practising it to others. This languor and inactivity is a kind of lethargy in the soul, which renders it utterly insensible to the life and spirit of religion. Indifference in any good cause is blamable. In religion, in the Christian religion, it is insupportable. It does violence to the first and fundamental principle of that religion, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart." Christianity is throughout an active religion; it consists not only in abstaining from evil, but in being "ready to every good work," Titus iii. 1; and, if we stop short at the first, we leave half of our business undone. Christ Himself went about doing good, and He has prescribed a variety of positive and practical duties to His disciples, as the condition of their salvation; and has pressed the performance of these duties upon them with an earnestness and a force of expression, that may well alarm the thoughtless, and make them reflect with seriousness on the extreme danger of their situation. Bp. Porteus.

26. —unto every one which hath &c.] Thus Christ, to those who improve His gifts, does in this present time add continually more and more assistance, and will finally reward them with eternal life: but from those who improve not His grace and assistance, He in this present time withdraws even what He had already given, and will finally condemn them to everlasting punishment. Dr. S. Clarke. See further notes at Matt. xiii. 12.

27. But those mine enemies, &c.] In the same manner, as He intimates, He will destroy the rebellious nation of the Jews, who opposed His Gospel and the establishment of His kingdom, with a most severe and exemplary temporal vengeance; and at the day of judgment He will likewise condemn all His open enemies, who have wilfully rejected and opposed His Gospel, as well as His wicked servants, who have neglected and disobeyed it, to eternal death and misery. Dr. S. Clarke.

28. —went before,] Before His Apostles and disciples. See Mark x. 32. Respecting what follows, see notes at Matt. xxi. 1—9, &c.

Anno DOMINI 33.

cometh in the name of the Lord: peace in heaven, and glory in the highest.

39 And some of the Pharisees from among the multitude said unto him, Master, rebuke thy disciples.

40 And he answered and said unto them, I tell you that, if these should hold their peace, the stones would immediately cry out.

41 ¶ And when he was come near, he beheld the city, and wept over it,

42 Saying, If thou hadst known, even thou, at least in this thy day, the things which belong unto thy peace! but now they are hid from thine eyes.

43 For the days shall come upon thee, that thine enemies shall cast a trench about thee, and compass thee round, and keep thee in on every side, 44 And shall lay thee even with the ground, and thy children within thee; and they shall not leave in thee one stone upon another; because thou knewest not the time of thy visitation.

[c] Matt. 21. 12.

45 [c] And he went into the temple, and began to cast out them that sold therein, and them that bought;

46 Saying unto them, It is written, My house is the house of prayer: but ye have made it a den of thieves.

47 And he taught daily in the temple. But the chief priests and the scribes and the chief of the people sought to destroy him, 48 And could not find what they might do: for all the people ‖ were very attentive to hear him.

‖ Or, hanged on him.

CHAP. XX.

1 Christ avoucheth his authority by a question of John's baptism. 9 The parable of the vineyard. 19 Of giving tribute to Cesar. 27 He convinceth the Sadducees that denied the resurrection. 41 How Christ is the son of David. 45 He warneth his disciples to beware of the scribes.

Anno DOMINI 33.

AND [a] it came to pass, that on one of those days, as he taught the people in the temple, and preached the gospel, the chief priests and the scribes came upon him with the elders,

[a] Matt. 21. 23.

2 And spake unto him, saying, Tell us, by what authority doest thou these things? or who is he that gave thee this authority?

3 And he answered and said unto them, I will also ask you one thing; and answer me:

4 The baptism of John, was it from heaven, or of men?

5 And they reasoned with themselves, saying, If we shall say, From heaven; he will say, Why then believed ye him not?

6 But and if we say, Of men; all the people will stone us: for they be persuaded that John was a prophet.

7 And they answered, that they could not tell whence it was.

8 And Jesus said unto them, Neither tell I you by what authority I do these things.

9 Then began he to speak to the people this parable; [b] A certain man planted a vineyard, and let it forth to husbandmen, and went into a far country for a long time.

[b] Matt. 21. 33.

10 And at the season he sent a servant to the husbandmen, that they should give him of the fruit of the vineyard: but the husbandmen beat him, and sent him away empty.

11 And again he sent another servant: and they beat him also, and entreated him shamefully, and sent him away empty.

---

38. — peace in heaven, &c.] Peace and forgiveness is secured for us through Christ in heaven: glory therefore be to God most high. See Matt. xxi. 9. Bp. Mann.

40. — the stones would immediately &c.] A strong figurative expression, signifying that God would even work a miracle to raise up others to glorify His name, rather than silence should be kept on so extraordinary an occasion. Dr. S. Clarke. See Hab. ii. 11.

41. — and wept over it,] It is thrice recorded of our Blessed Saviour, that He wept; on this occasion, of His prophetick foresight of the destruction impending over Jerusalem; at the death of Lazarus, John xi. 35; and once again, when His own sufferings were the cause, Heb. v. 7. Abp. Newcome.

42. — If thou hadst known,] O that "thou hadst known." It is the expression of a wish, as in chap. xii. 49. Bp. Pearce. Happy had it been for thee if thou hadst known, in this day of thy visitation by the Messiah, (chap. i. 68,) the things which belong to thy peace and welfare: but now, through thy infidelity, they are hid from thine eyes. Dr. Whitby. "Hid from thine eyes:" not by any of the signs of the Messiah being suppressed by God, (every proof on the contrary having been afforded to the Jews,) but by their own wilful blindness and prejudices. Grotius.

43. — shall cast a trench — and compass thee round,] It is related by Josephus, that this prophecy of our Saviour was very remarkably fulfilled at the destruction of Jerusalem by the Romans. Titus, the Roman commander, in order to reduce the city the sooner, surrounded it with a trench and rampart of thirty-nine furlongs in length, with thirteen castles or forts, for the purpose of preventing the escape of the inhabitants. The utmost distress and misery arose from the famine which ensued. Dr. Hammond.

44. — not leave in thee one stone &c.] See note at Matt. xxiv. 2.

—— the time of thy visitation.] The time when God had visited and redeemed His people, by sending the promised Messiah, Luke i. 68. Bp. Mann.

48. And could not find &c.] They could not resolve on any course which they could safely pursue, because the people in general were so zealous in His favour. Dr. Hammond.

Chap. XX. ver. 1. And it came to pass, &c.] See notes at Matt. xxi. 23—27.

6. — the people will stone us:] They had themselves accustomed the people to this violence; for, when they could not legally convict their enemies, they incited the multitude to stone them. See John x. 31; Acts xiv. 19. Grotius.

9. — A certain man &c.] Respecting the parable, see notes at Matt. xxi. 33—41.

10. — at the season] "When the time of fruit drew near," Matt. xxi. 34.

Anno DOMINI 33.

12 And again he sent a third: and they wounded him also, and cast him out.

13 Then said the lord of the vineyard, What shall I do? I will send my beloved son: it may be they will reverence him when they see him.

14 But when the husbandmen saw him, they reasoned among themselves, saying, This is the heir: come, let us kill him, that the inheritance may be our's.

15 So they cast him out of the vineyard, and killed him. What therefore shall the lord of the vineyard do unto them?

16 He shall come and destroy these husbandmen, and shall give the vineyard to others. And when they heard it, they said, God forbid.

17 And he beheld them, and said, What [c] Ps. 118. 22. is this then that is written, [c] The stone which the builders rejected, the same is become the head of the corner?

18 Whosoever shall fall upon that stone shall be broken; but on whomsoever it shall fall, it will grind him to powder.

19 ¶ And the chief priests and the scribes the same hour sought to lay hands on him; and they feared the people: for they perceived that he had spoken this parable against them.

20 And they watched him, and sent forth spies, which should feign themselves just men, that they might take hold of his words, that so they might deliver him unto the power and authority of the governor.

[d] Matt. 22. 16. 21 And they asked him, saying, [d] Master, we know that thou sayest and teachest rightly, neither acceptest thou the person of any, but teachest the way of God ‖ truly:

‖ Or, of a truth. 22 Is it lawful for us to give tribute unto Cesar, or no?

23 But he perceived their craftiness, and said unto them, Why tempt ye me?

Anno DOMINI 33.

24 Shew me a ‖ penny. Whose image and superscription hath it? They answered and said, Cesar's.

‖ See Matt. 18. 28.

25 And he said unto them, Render therefore unto Cesar the things which be Cesar's, and unto God the things which be God's.

26 And they could not take hold of his words before the people: and they marvelled at his answer, and held their peace.

27 ¶ [e] Then came to him certain of the Sadducees, which deny that there is any resurrection; and they asked him,

[e] Matt. 22. 23.

28 Saying, Master, Moses wrote unto us, If any man's brother die, having a wife, and he die without children, that his brother should take his wife, and raise up seed unto his brother.

29 There were therefore seven brethren: and the first took a wife, and died without children.

30 And the second took her to wife, and he died childless.

31 And the third took her; and in like manner the seven also: and they left no children, and died.

32 Last of all the woman died also.

33 Therefore in the resurrection whose wife of them is she? for seven had her to wife.

34 And Jesus answering said unto them, The children of this world marry, and are given in marriage:

35 But they which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world, and the resurrection from the dead, neither marry, nor are given in marriage:

36 Neither can they die any more: for they are equal unto the angels; and are

---

14. — the inheritance may be our's.] Not by right, but by seizure, Matt. xxi. 38.

16. He shall come and destroy &c.] The chief priests and elders answer thus, (see Matt. xxi. 41,) not readily perceiving the tendency of the parable; but, presently after, finding that they themselves were the persons whom Jesus represented under the similitude of the husbandmen, they began to recall their words, and said, "God forbid." Dr. S. Clarke.

20. — which should feign themselves just men,] Might pretend to ask His opinion from conscientious motives; but in reality with the intent to ensnare Him. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— of the governor.] Of the Roman governour. On this account they put the question to Christ respecting the payment of tribute to Cesar, in the hope that He would deny the lawfulness of it, and so furnish a ground of accusation against Him, as an enemy to Cesar. Dr. Whitby.

21. And they asked him, saying,] For the remainder of this chapter, see further notes at the passages of St. Matthew, referred to in the margin.

34. — The children of this world &c.] Our blessed Lord corrects their fond mistake in judging of the life to come by the life that now is, when circumstances would be widely different. In this world, where mankind go off and die daily, there is a necessity of a constant and regular succession to supply the decays of mortality; but, in the world to come, where none die any more, there is no necessity for such supplies. Dr. Waterland.

35. — the resurrection from the dead,] Our Lord, agreeably to the Jewish style of that period, calls that only "a resurrection," which is a resurrection to glory. Dr. Campbell.

36. Neither can they die any more:] They shall no longer be subject to the changes and accidents of this mortal state: but they shall all be like the angels of God, glorious, unchangeable, and immortal; and shall continue in the presence of God in a state of perfect bliss, and in the eternal enjoyment of unalterable happiness. Dr. S. Clarke.

——for they are equal unto the angels;] The highest angels in heaven are God's ministers and messengers, and are glorious and happy in their obedience: and the very meanest of the sons of men, if not wanting in the duties of their present station, whatever it be, will be advanced to the same likeness. The lowest offices in God's service become the steps of our highest advancement. Dr. Ogden.

—— are the children of God,] Good men are now the children of God, because they resemble Him in the holy disposition of their minds; but then they will be like Him in the participation

Anno DOMINI 33.

the children of God, being the children of the resurrection.

[f] Exod. 3. 6.

37 Now that the dead are raised, [f] even Moses shewed at the bush, when he calleth the Lord the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob.

38 For he is not a God of the dead, but of the living: for all live unto him.

39 ¶ Then certain of the scribes answering said, Master, thou hast well said.

40 And after that they durst not ask him any question at all.

[g] Matt. 22. 42.

41 And he said unto them, [g] How say they that Christ is David's son?

42 And David himself saith in the book of Psalms, The LORD said unto my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand, 43 Till I make thine enemies thy footstool.

44 David therefore calleth him Lord, how is he then his son?

45 ¶ Then in the audience of all the people he said unto his disciples,

[h] Matt. 23. 5.

46 [h] Beware of the scribes, which desire to walk in long robes, and love greetings in the markets, and the highest seats in the synagogues, and the chief rooms at feasts;

47 Which devour widows' houses, and for a shew make long prayers: the same shall receive greater damnation.

CHAP. XXI.

1 Christ commendeth the poor widow. 5 He foretelleth the destruction of the temple, and of the city Jerusalem: 25 the signs also which shall be before the last day. 34 He exhorteth them to be watchful.

[a] Mark 12. 41.

AND he looked up, [a] and saw the rich men casting their gifts into the treasury.

[‖] See Mark 12. 42.

2 And he saw also a certain poor widow casting in thither two ‖ mites.

3 And he said, Of a truth I say unto you, that this poor widow hath cast in more than they all:

Anno DOMINI 33.

4 For all these have of their abundance cast in unto the offerings of God: but she of her penury hath cast in all the living that she had.

[b] Matt. 24. 1.

5 ¶ [b] And as some spake of the temple, how it was adorned with goodly stones and gifts, he said,

6 As for these things which ye behold, the days will come, in the which there shall not be left one stone upon another, that shall not be thrown down.

7 And they asked him, saying, Master, but when shall these things be? and what sign will there be when these things shall come to pass?

8 And he said, Take heed that ye be not deceived: for many shall come in my name, saying, I am Christ; and the time draweth near: go ye not therefore after them.

9 But when ye shall hear of wars and commotions, be not terrified: for these things must first come to pass; but the end is not by and by.

[c] Matt. 24. 7.

10 [c] Then said he unto them, Nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom:

11 And great earthquakes shall be in divers places, and famines, and pestilences; and fearful sights and great signs shall there be from heaven.

12 But before all these, they shall lay their hands on you, and persecute you, delivering you up to the synagogues, and into prisons, being brought before kings and rulers for my name's sake.

13 And it shall turn to you for a testimony.

---

of His happiness, so far as finite and created beings are capable; the whole man, body as well as soul, shall be partaker of immortality. Abp. Tillotson.

——children of the resurrection.] That is, partakers of the resurrection, and of the eternal life which will follow it. Beausobre.

37.—even Moses shewed] As the Sadducees had formed their objection (ver. 28.) from the books of Moses, our Saviour thinks proper to confute them out of the writings of Moses, although there were passages in other parts of the Old Testament, which might seem more plain and express to His purpose of confuting the Sadducees. Dr. Waterland.

38.—is not a God of the dead, but of the living:] The words are "I am," not "I was;" therefore God was then the God of those three patriarchs, the latest of whom had been dead above 1700 years; still He continued to be their God; therefore those patriarchs were still living and endowed with intelligence, somewhere or other, when God declared He was still their God; that is, they were alive as to their better parts, their souls. Thus the Sadducees, who denied the separate subsistence of souls or spirits, were confuted at once, and that by a very clear and plain text, produced even from the books of Moses. Dr. Waterland.

——for all live unto him.] The souls of the just are already in the hands of God, and it is certain that their bodies will be raised and again united to them by His almighty power. Dr. Hammond.

Chap. XXI. ver. 1. And he looked up, &c.] See notes at Mark xii. 42—44.

4.—the offerings of God:] The treasure designed for the use of His temple. Dr. Whitby.

5. And as some spake &c.] Respecting what follows, see further notes at Matt. xxiv.

9.—is not by and by.] Is not immediately. Bp. Pearce. St. Matthew expresses it, "is not yet," Matt. xxiv. 6.

11.—fearful sights and great signs] Josephus has given a very particular account of the prodigies which preceded the destruction of Jerusalem. Among other things, he speaks of a flaming sword seen over the city; also of a light which for the space of half an hour shone so bright in the night about the altar and the temple, that it seemed as if it was noonday. He adds other similar prodigies, which were so generally known, that they are related by Tacitus the Roman historian. Bp. Pearce.

13.—it shall turn to you for a testimony.] The providence of God will turn all this to your advantage and to His own glory. For, by these means, your innocence and sincerity, and their malice, will be made manifest; the doctrine of the Gospel will be

Anno DOMINI 33

14 [d] Settle it therefore in your hearts, not to meditate before what ye shall answer:

[d] Matt. 10. 19.

15 For I will give you a mouth and wisdom, which all your adversaries shall not be able to gainsay nor resist.

16 And ye shall be betrayed both by parents, and brethren, and kinsfolks, and friends; and some of you shall they cause to be put to death.

17 And ye shall be hated of all men for my name's sake.

[e] Matt. 10. 30.

18 [e] But there shall not an hair of your head perish.

19 In your patience possess ye your souls.

[f] Matt. 24 15.

20 [f] And when ye shall see Jerusalem compassed with armies, then know that the desolation thereof is nigh.

21 Then let them which are in Judea flee to the mountains; and let them which are in the midst of it depart out; and let not them that are in the countries enter thereinto.

22 For these be the days of vengeance, that all things which are written may be fulfilled.

23 But woe unto them that are with child, and to them that give suck, in those days! for there shall be great distress in the land, and wrath upon this people.

24 And they shall fall by the edge of the sword, and shall be led away captive into all nations: and Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled.

Anno DOMINI 33.

25 ¶ [g] And there shall be signs in the sun, and in the moon, and in the stars; and upon the earth distress of nations, with perplexity; the sea and the waves roaring;

[g] Matt. 24. 29.

26 Men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth: for the powers of heaven shall be shaken.

27 And then shall they see the Son of man coming in a cloud with power and great glory.

28 And when these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh.

29 And he spake to them a parable; Behold the fig tree, and all the trees;

30 When they now shoot forth, ye see and know of your own selves that summer is now nigh at hand.

31 So likewise ye, when ye see these things come to pass, know ye that the kingdom of God is nigh at hand.

32 Verily I say unto you, This generation shall not pass away, till all be fulfilled.

33 Heaven and earth shall pass away: but my words shall not pass away.

34 ¶ And take heed to yourselves, lest at any time your hearts be overcharged with surfeiting, and drunkenness, and cares of this life, and so that day come upon you unawares.

35 For as a snare shall it come on all them that dwell on the face of the whole earth.

---

more inquired into, and more effectually published to the world, and the truth of it more firmly established. Dr. S. Clarke.

15. — I will give you a mouth and wisdom,] I will furnish you with those answers and those means of convincing your adversaries, which they shall not be able to resist. Dr. Hammond. See note at Matt. x. 19.

18. — there shall not an hair of your head perish.] When this unbelieving city shall be destroyed, ye that are faithful and endure to the end, shall be safe, Matt. x. 22: for, if it be the good pleasure of God, He can preserve you in the most imminent danger from even the smallest hurt. Bp. Mann.

19. In your patience possess ye your souls.] Persevere with constancy, and fall not off from your profession; and this will furnish the most certain means of your escaping from the general destruction. See Matt. x. 39; Mark xiii. 13. Dr. Hammond.

24. — captive into all nations:] The number of those who perished at the siege and capture of Jerusalem, by sword and famine, is stated by Josephus to have been not less than 1,100,000. The number of those that were made captive was 97,000, who were subjected to every kind of cruel treatment, being either sold, or dispersed through the provinces of the Roman empire, to be torn to pieces by wild beasts. Dr. Hammond.

—— until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled.] The interpretations of this text have been extremely various. "Till the Gentiles have done all which God decreed that they should do;" (Bp. Pearce;) or, "till the times of the Gentiles," that is, the times appointed for their full conversion to Christianity "be fulfilled." Abp. Newcome.

25. — signs in the sun, — the sea and the waves roaring;] See note at Matt. xxiv. 29. These are all figurative expressions, signifying, primarily, the destruction of the Jewish state.

27. And then shall they see &c.] They shall be forced to acknowledge the power and glory of Jesus, the true Messiah, when He comes to execute vengeance on them; and this remarkable manifestation of His authority and dominion shall be an apt type and representation of His future coming to final judgment. Dr. S. Clarke.

28. And when these things — come &c.] When ye see all these things, that I have foretold you, begin to come to pass, then take comfort, and expect with confidence that the time of your deliverance and of the firm and universal establishment of My Church draweth nigh. Dr. S. Clarke.

34, 35. And take heed to yourselves, &c.] Our Saviour here exhorts the believing Christians to use the greatest vigilance, lest they should miscarry in that dreadful season, by indulging in luxurious excesses, which might render them unmindful of it, or by too great concern for their temporal interests. He exhorts them also to add to this vigilance constant prayer to God, that they might be found worthy to escape these tremendous judgments, and might stand safely and boldly before the Son of man, when He comes to execute them on the unbelieving Jews. Hence it is to be observed, that the promise of deliverance to the Christians, at that time, was only conditional; depending on the care they took to avoid sin, and to display those Christian virtues and graces, by which they would be rendered worthy to escape the impending judgments. And from this we should draw the

Anno DOMINI 33.

36 Watch ye therefore, and pray always, that ye may be accounted worthy to escape all these things that shall come to pass, and to stand before the Son of man.

37 And in the day time he was teaching in the temple; and at night he went out, and abode in the mount that is called the mount of Olives.

38 And all the people came early in the morning to him in the temple, for to hear him.

CHAP. XXII.

1 The Jews conspire against Christ. 3 Satan prepareth Judas to betray him. 7 The apostles prepare the passover. 19 Christ instituteth his holy supper, 21 covertly foretelleth of the traitor, 24 dehorteth the rest of his apostles from ambition, 31 assureth Peter his faith should not fail: 34 and yet he should deny him thrice. 39 He prayeth in the mount, and sweateth blood, 47 is betrayed with a kiss: 50 he healeth Malchus' ear, 54 he is thrice denied of Peter, 63 shamefully abused, 66 and confesseth himself to be the Son of God.

[a] Matt. 26. 2.

NOW [a] the feast of unleavened bread drew nigh, which is called the Passover.

2 And the chief priests and scribes sought how they might kill him; for they feared the people.

[b] Matt. 26. 14.

3 ¶ [b] Then entered Satan into Judas surnamed Iscariot, being of the number of the twelve.

4 And he went his way, and communed with the chief priests and captains, how he might betray him unto them.

5 And they were glad, and covenanted to give him money.

6 And he promised, and sought opportunity to betray him unto them ‖ in the absence of the multitude.

‖ Or, without tumult.

7 ¶ [c] Then came the day of unleavened bread, when the passover must be killed.

Anno DOMINI 33.

8 And he sent Peter and John, saying, Go and prepare us the passover, that we may eat.

[c] Matt. 26. 17.

9 And they said unto him, Where wilt thou that we prepare?

10 And he said unto them, Behold, when ye are entered into the city, there shall a man meet you, bearing a pitcher of water; follow him into the house where he entereth in.

11 And ye shall say unto the goodman of the house, The Master saith unto thee, Where is the guestchamber, where I shall eat the passover with my disciples?

12 And he shall shew you a large upper room furnished: there make ready.

13 And they went, and found as he had said unto them: and they made ready the passover.

14 [d] And when the hour was come, he sat down, and the twelve apostles with him.

[d] Matt. 26. 20.

15 And he said unto them, ‖ With desire I have desired to eat this passover with you before I suffer:

‖ Or, I have heartily desired.

16 For I say unto you, I will not any more eat thereof, until it be fulfilled in the kingdom of God.

17 And he took the cup, and gave thanks, and said, Take this, and divide it among yourselves:

18 For I say unto you, I will not drink of the fruit of the vine, until the kingdom of God shall come.

19 ¶ [e] And he took bread, and gave thanks, and brake it, and gave unto them, saying, This is my body which is given for you: this do in remembrance of me.

[e] Matt. 26. 26.

---

general inference, that there must be a concurrence of human endeavours with the Divine assistance, and providence, for our protection; and that we must never expect deliverance at the hands of God, without a due use of those means, which He has given us for the purpose of effecting it. Dr. Whitby.

Chap. XXII. ver. 1. Now the feast of unleavened bread &c.] For further notes on this chapter, see the passages of St. Matthew referred to in the margin.

3. Then entered &c.] This was two days before the passover. See John xiii. 1, 29. The supper at which this happened, John xiii. 27, was prior to the passover feast, as Judas's consultation with the chief priests is here related to have occurred before the days of unleavened bread. Dr. Whitby.

4. —and captains,] Captains of the temple; meaning probably those among the priests who had the superintendence of the guards of the temple. Bp. Pearce.

7. —the passover] The paschal lamb.

15. —with desire I have desired] See the margin. This is a Hebrew phrase, signifying, I have very much desired. Bp. Pearce. The reason of His anxiety may probably have been His wish to institute the ceremony of the Lord's supper. Grotius.

16. —I will not any more eat thereof, &c.] He says to them, This is the last that I shall ever eat with you in the present world; I Myself, who am the true Paschal Lamb, being now ready to be offered for you upon the cross: and all types and shadows shall henceforth be swallowed up in the real accomplishment of the things which were typified. Dr. S. Clarke.

19. —this do in remembrance of me.] This is the particular charge which our Lord gave when He was going to lay down His life for us. Men commonly observe religiously the charge of a dying friend; and, unless it be very difficult and unreasonable, they pay to it implicit obedience. But this is the charge of our best friend, nay of the greatest benefactor and friend of all mankind, when He was preparing to die in our stead, and to offer up Himself a sacrifice for us. And can we deny any thing to Him who was about to do so much for us? Can we refuse to comply with this His command, so little grievous and burdensome in itself, so infinitely beneficial to us. Had such a friend, in such circumstances, bid us do some great thing, should we not have done it? How much more when He has only said, Do this in remembrance of Me; when He has only commended to us one of the most natural and delightful actions, as a fit memorial of His won-

Anno DOMINI 33.

20 Likewise also the cup after supper, saying, This cup is the new testament in my blood, which is shed for you.

[f] Matt. 26. 21.

21 ¶ [f] But, behold, the hand of him that betrayeth me is with me on the table.

22 And truly the Son of man goeth, as it was determined: but woe unto that man by whom he is betrayed!

23 And they began to enquire among themselves, which of them it was that should do this thing.

24 ¶ And there was also a strife among them, which of them should be accounted the greatest.

[g] Matt. 20. 25.

25 [g] And he said unto them, The kings of the Gentiles exercise lordship over them; and they that exercise authority upon them are called benefactors.

Anno DOMINI 33.

26 But ye shall not be so: but he that is greatest among you, let him be as the younger; and he that is chief, as he that doth serve.

27 For whether is greater, he that sitteth at meat, or he that serveth? is not he that sitteth at meat? but I am among you as he that serveth.

28 Ye are they which have continued with me in my temptations.

29 And I appoint unto you a kingdom, as my Father hath appointed unto me;

---

derful love to us, and His cruel sufferings for our sakes; when He has only enjoined us, in a thankful commemoration of His goodness, to meet at His table and to remember what He hath done for us, to look upon Him whom we have pierced, and to resolve to grieve and wound Him no more? Can we, without the most horrible ingratitude, neglect this dying charge of our Sovereign and our Saviour, the great friend and lover of souls? a command so reasonable, so easy, so full of blessings and benefits to the faithful observers of it. Abp. Tillotson.

These words, enforcing upon us the use and necessity of frequent communion, imply something far more significant than that, by celebrating the holy sacrament, we preserve a memorial of a deceased benefactor; they imply, that we thereby continue to receive His benefactions, which are conveyed to us from time to time, as often as we "shew the Lord's death till He come." So true is the account given of this sacred rite in the Articles of our Church, that it is not only the badge or token of a Christian man's profession, but rather a certain and sure witness and effectual sign of grace and God's good will towards us; by which He doth work invisibly in us, and doth not only quicken but also strengthen and confirm our faith in Him. Bp. Warburton.

The commemoration of Christ's death, as the ground of our hope of everlasting life, cannot but suggest to our minds a lively sense of Christ's love to mankind, and our obligation of mutual kindness to each other, John xiii. 34, 35; xv. 13, 14. We are all called upon jointly to commemorate the love of Christ, as the servants of one Master and the members of one body; that, while our hearts are warmed with religious gratitude and devout affection to our heavenly benefactor, the very act of uniting in the celebration of this holy and important right, may produce in us feelings of kindness and benevolence towards those whom we see partaking of the same covenant of grace, and rejoicing in the same hope of everlasting happiness. But the death of Christ was not merely a proof of His love to mankind; it was also an expiatory sacrifice for the sins of the whole world; and, therefore, the Lord's supper, which commemorates that sacrifice, may justly be called, in the language of our Articles, "a sacrament of our redemption." Bp. Tomline.

20. — This cup is the new testament] This cup (meaning the wine contained in it) is the memorial of the New Testament, or covenant ratified in My blood, which is shed for you for the remission of your sins, Matt. xxvi. 28. Dr. Whitby. St. Luke (as also St. Paul) reports the words of our Saviour, on giving the cup, differently from St. Matthew and St. Mark, and it is probable that He spake them both; that He first said, "This is My blood," (Matt. xxvi. 28,) and then added, as a clearer explanation, "This cup is the New Testament in My blood." The latter was a more familiar expression to the Jews. They knew that the blood of the lamb was sprinkled, and by their so doing, they entered into a covenant with God; in remembrance of this, they drank at the passover the cup of blessing and salvation, and rejoiced before the Lord. So that they necessarily understood our Saviour, that the cup so blessed was to be to them the assurance of a New Testament or covenant, which was to be established by the blood of Christ; in the place of which, they were to drink, according to His present institution, this cup of blessing and praise. Bp. Burnet.

22. — the Son of man goeth, &c.] See note at Matt. xxvi. 24. "As it was determined." God foresees and permits wickedness, such as the treason of Judas; but He does not cause it. Dr. Whitby.

24. And there was also a strife among them, &c.] When the twelve Apostles thus unseasonably contended for superiority on the night of the paschal supper, our Lord shewed the greatest kindness in His manner of correcting their false ideas. Having observed the difference between His kingdom and worldly ones, exaltation among His followers depending on their humility, He proposes to them His own example during His intercourse with them, turns their views to future greatness in His spiritual kingdom, and enforces His gracious words by a most eminent act of humility in washing their feet, (John xiii. 1—15;) an office of condescension which He exhorts them to imitate in their general conduct towards each other. Abp. Newcome.

—— the greatest.] In Christ's kingdom. See Matt. xx. 21.

25. — The kings of the Gentiles &c.] See note at Matt. xx. 25, 26.

—— are called benefactors.] It was the vanity of many princes in those times to affect the title of Euergetes or Benefactor. Grotius.

27. — I am among you as he that serveth.] Take example, He says, from Me. Ye see how far I, who am your Lord and Master, am from assuming to Myself any worldly power or greatness, and that I even behave Myself as your inferiour in the offices of condescension and service. (See John xiii. 4, and 14.) Learn ye, therefore, in imitation of Me, to assist one another, and condescend to one another with all humility, meekness, and charity. Dr. S. Clarke.

28. Ye are they &c.] By recalling to their minds the trials they had gone through with Him, and by pointing out to them their reward, ver. 29, Jesus designs further to check their vain ambition, and their fondness for worldly advantages and honours. Dean Stanhope.

—— in my temptations.] In My trials and sufferings. Bp. Mann. By the Apostles continuing with Him in His temptations are undoubtedly meant the several instances of their fidelity; their adhering steadfastly to Him, notwithstanding difficulties and discouragements; their relinquishing the world for His sake; and willingly undergoing the same painful labours, the same poverty and hard fare, the same malice and persecution, the same derision and contempt which He did. Dean Stanhope.

29. — I appoint unto you a kingdom, &c.] By this expression we are not to understand an equality of promotion for the Apostles, to that which Christ Himself had, but only a similar promotion. God gave to Jesus a name above every name; so that none could approach to His degree of exaltation. But, as He exalted the Son for His voluntary humiliation and sufferings, so

Anno DOMINI 33.

30 That ye may eat and drink at my table in my kingdom, [h] and sit on thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel.

[h] Matt. 19. 28.

31 ¶ And the Lord said, Simon, Simon, behold, [i] Satan hath desired to have you, that he may sift you as wheat:

[i] 1 Pet. 5. 8.

32 But I have prayed for thee, that thy faith fail not: and when thou art converted, strengthen thy brethren.

33 And he said unto him, Lord, I am ready to go with thee, both into prison, and to death.

[k] Matt. 26. 34.

34 [k] And he said, I tell thee, Peter, the cock shall not crow this day, before that thou shalt thrice deny that thou knowest me.

[l] Matt. 10. 9.

35 [l] And he said unto them, When I sent you without purse, and scrip, and shoes, lacked ye any thing? And they said, Nothing.

36 Then said he unto them, But now, he that hath a purse, let him take it, and likewise his scrip: and he that hath no sword, let him sell his garment, and buy one.

37 For I say unto you, that this that is written must yet be accomplished in me, [m] And he was reckoned among the transgressors: for the things concerning me have an end.

Anno DOMINI 33.

[m] Isai. 53. 12.

38 And they said, Lord, behold, here are two swords. And he said unto them, It is enough.

39 ¶ [n] And he came out, and went, as he was wont, to the mount of Olives; and his disciples also followed him.

[n] Matt. 26. 36.

40 [o] And when he was at the place, he said unto them, Pray that ye enter not into temptation.

[o] Matt. 26. 41.

41 And he was withdrawn from them about a stone's cast, and kneeled down, and prayed,

42 Saying, Father, if thou be willing, remove this cup from me: nevertheless not my will, but thine, be done.

43 And there appeared an angel unto him from heaven, strengthening him.

44 And being in an agony he prayed more earnestly: and his sweat was as it

---

He decreed that all, who suffered with Him, should also reign with Him; that they should partake of His glories, who had partaken of His hardships, and receive an exaltation, proportional to what they had done for His sake. Dean Stanhope.

30. That ye may eat and drink] Spiritual blessings are here represented by what is generally supposed to constitute earthly happiness. Bp. Pearce.

—— sit on thrones] See note at Matt. xix. 28.

31. — Satan hath desired to have you,] This relates to all the Apostles, as "you" is in the plural number. There is now, He says, immediately coming upon you, My Apostles and followers, a time of very great affliction and extreme distress; in which Satan will strongly tempt you all, on the occasion of My agony and approaching death, to forsake and deny Me. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— that he may sift you as wheat:] That he may toss and shake you with temptations, as wheat is shaken in the sieve. Dr. Whitby.

32. But I have prayed &c.] But I have prayed for thee, Simon, in particular, that God would deliver thee from that great temptation into which thou especially wilt fall: and, when thou hast escaped thyself, remember and use thy utmost endeavours to comfort, encourage, and strengthen thy brethren. Dr. S. Clarke.

36. — he that hath no sword,] He warns them, generally, that the time of danger and distress was now approaching, and that due care must prudently be taken to provide against it. Bp. Mann.

37. — this that is written &c.] Whatever is prophesied concerning Me is now going to be fulfilled; My end is near at hand. Bp. Mann.

38. — Lord, behold, here are two swords.] The disciples, understanding their Master to mean literally that they should arm themselves for their defence, said to Him, "Here are two swords:" but Jesus, who really meant only to signify to them the greatness of their approaching distress and temptations, and to warn them against surprise, replied, "It is enough;" ye need not trouble yourselves for any more weapons of this nature for your defence. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— it is enough.] This He said, as no use was to be made of them. Bp. Pearce.

40. — at the place,] The garden of Gethsemane.

41. — kneeled down,] This marked the greater earnestness: the Jews usually stood when they prayed. Grotius.

44. And being in an agony] What was it, what could it be, that lay thus heavy on the soul of the Saviour of the world? Was it the fear of death? Was it the pain, shame, and torment, felt beforehand, of His ensuing crucifixion? Such a thought were poor and base: thousands of His blessed martyrs have welcomed tortures, not less than His, with smiles and gratulations. If their weakness was thus prevalent and undaunted, how great must have been His strength! No, it was the sad weight of the sins of mankind, it was the heavy burden of His Father's wrath for those sins, which thus pressed down His soul, and wrung from Him these bitter expressions of sorrow. If every human sin deserve eternal death, what was it for His soul, in this short time of His bitter passion, to answer those millions of eternal deaths, which all the sins of all mankind had deserved! Dr. Hales.

Our Saviour was to undergo not only the utmost load that human malice could impose, of ignominious disgrace and grievous pain, but was to feel dismal agonies of spirit, and those unknown sufferings, which God alone could inflict, God alone could sustain. He was to labour with pangs of charity, and through His heart to be pierced with deepest commiseration of our wretched state. He was to bend under the burden of all the sins, the numberless most heinous sins and abominations, ever committed by mankind. He was to pass through the hottest furnace of Divine vengeance, and by His blood to quench the wrath of Heaven, flaming out against iniquity. He was to bear the hiding of God's face, and an eclipse of that favourable aspect, in which all bliss does reside. These things with the clearest apprehension He saw coming upon Him, and no wonder that His human nature started at such a sight, or that human instinct should dictate that petition, "Father, if Thou be willing, let this cup pass from Me;" words implying His most real participation of our infirmities; words denoting the height of those sad evils which encompassed Him; words informing us how we should entertain God's chastisements, and whence we must seek relief of our pressure; that we should receive them not with a scornful neglect or sullen insensibility, but with a meek contrition of soul; that we should entirely depend on God's pleasure for support under them, or a release from them: words which in conjunction with those that follow, shew how were great drops of blood falling down to the ground.

Anno DOMINI 33.

45 And when he rose up from prayer, and was come to his disciples, he found them sleeping for sorrow,

46 And said unto them, Why sleep ye? rise and pray, lest ye enter into temptation.

[p] Matt. 26. 47. 47 ¶ And while he yet spake, [p] behold a multitude, and he that was called Judas, one of the twelve, went before them, and drew near unto Jesus to kiss him.

48 But Jesus said unto him, Judas, betrayest thou the Son of man with a kiss?

49 When they which were about him saw what would follow, they said unto him, Lord, shall we smite with the sword?

50 ¶ And one of them smote the servant of the high priest, and cut off his right ear.

51 And Jesus answered and said, Suffer ye thus far. And he touched his ear, and healed him.

52 Then Jesus said unto the chief priests, and captains of the temple, and the elders, which were come to him, Be ye come out, as against a thief, with swords and staves?

53 When I was daily with you in the temple, ye stretched forth no hands against me: but this is your hour, and the power of darkness.

[q] Matt. 26. 57. 54 ¶ [q] Then took they him, and led him, and brought him into the high priest's house. And Peter followed afar off.

[r] Matt. 26. 69. 55 [r] And when they had kindled a fire in the midst of the hall, and were set down together, Peter sat down among them.

56 But a certain maid beheld him as he sat by the fire, and earnestly looked upon him, and said, This man was also with him.

57 And he denied him, saying, Woman, I know him not.

Anno DOMINI 33.

58 And after a little while another saw him, and said, Thou art also of them. And Peter said, Man, I am not.

59 And about the space of one hour after another confidently affirmed, saying, Of a truth this fellow also was with him: for he is a Galilean.

60 And Peter said, Man, I know not what thou sayest. And immediately, while he yet spake, the cock crew.

61 And the Lord turned, and looked upon Peter. And Peter remembered the word of the Lord, how he had said unto him, Before the cock crow, thou shalt deny me thrice.

62 And Peter went out, and wept bitterly.

63 ¶ And the men that held Jesus mocked him, and smote him.

64 And when they had blindfolded him, they struck him on the face, and asked him, saying, Prophesy, who is it that smote thee?

65 And many other things blasphemously spake they against him.

[s] Matt. 27. 1. 66 ¶ [s] And as soon as it was day, the elders of the people and the chief priests and the scribes came together, and led him into their council, saying,

67 Art thou the Christ? tell us. And he said unto them, If I tell you, ye will not believe:

68 And if I also ask you, ye will not answer me, nor let me go.

69 Hereafter shall the Son of man sit on the right hand of the power of God.

70 Then said they all, Art thou then the Son of God? And he said unto them, [t] Ye say that I am.

[t] Mark 14. 62.

71 And they said, What need we any further witness? for we ourselves have heard of his own mouth.

---

instantly we should quash and overrule any insurrection of natural desire against the command or providence of God. Dr. I. Barrow.

—— as it were great drops of blood] Drops large and thick as drops of blood. Dr. Hammond.

45. — for sorrow,] Their great sorrow had dispirited them, and rendered them sleepy. Dr. Whitby.

48. — betrayest thou &c.] Canst thou thus basely and ungratefully betray Me with a treacherous token of peace and friendship? Dr. S. Clarke. Our Lord bestows on Judas no upbraiding appellation; but simply declares His knowledge, that this seeming token of affection was used for the purpose of marking Him out to those whom His relentless enemies sent to apprehend Him. Abp. Newcome.

50. — one of them] St. Peter. See note at Matt. xxvi. 51.

51. — Suffer ye thus far.] Jesus seems to have addressed this to the soldiers who came to apprehend Him; 'Excuse this injury done by one of My Apostles, which I will presently repair:' for it is related, immediately after, that He healed him. He seems to have intended to shew by this action, that He who had power thus miraculously to heal, must have been taken willingly, and not for want of power to preserve Himself. Dr. Whitby.

52. — captains of the temple,] See note at ver. 4.

53. — but this is your hour, &c.] He says this, with some allusion to the hour of the night; the season most favourable to deeds of darkness. This is the time in which it is permitted to you to exercise your malice, and execute your bloody designs against Me; and in which Satan is permitted to assail Me with the most furious temptations. Dr. Whitby.

55. — when they had kindled a fire] See the note at John xviii. 18.

61. And the Lord turned, and looked upon Peter.] What effect that look must have had on the heart and on the countenance of St. Peter, every one may perhaps in some degree conceive; but it is utterly impossible for any words to describe, or, I believe, even for the pencil to express. Bp. Porteus.

70. — Ye say that I am.] It is as ye say; I am.

71. — we ourselves have heard of his own mouth.] That He styles Himself the Son of God, and so blasphemes, by making Himself equal with God, John v. 18; x. 33. Dr. Whitby.

Anno DOMINI 33.

CHAP. XXIII.

1 Jesus is accused before Pilate, and sent to Herod. 8 Herod mocketh him. 12 Herod and Pilate are made friends. 13 Barabbas is desired of the people, and is loosed by Pilate, and Jesus is given to be crucified. 27 He telleth the women, that lament him, the destruction of Jerusalem: 34 prayeth for his enemies. 39 Two evildoers are crucified with him. 46 His death. 50 His burial.

AND the whole multitude of them arose, and led him unto Pilate.

2 And they began to accuse him, saying, We found this fellow perverting the nation, and forbidding to give tribute to Cesar, saying, that he himself is Christ a King.

[a] Matt. 27. 11.

3 [a] And Pilate asked him, saying, Art thou the King of the Jews? And he answered him and said, Thou sayest it.

4 Then said Pilate to the chief priests and to the people, I find no fault in this man.

5 And they were the more fierce, saying, He stirreth up the people, teaching throughout all Jewry, beginning from Galilee to this place.

6 When Pilate heard of Galilee, he asked whether the man were a Galilean.

7 And as soon as he knew that he belonged unto Herod's jurisdiction, he sent him to Herod, who himself also was at Jerusalem at that time.

8 ¶ And when Herod saw Jesus, he was exceeding glad: for he was desirous to see him of a long season, because he had heard many things of him; and he hoped to have seen some miracle done by him.

9 Then he questioned with him in many words; but he answered him nothing.

10 And the chief priests and scribes stood and vehemently accused him.

Anno DOMINI 33.

11 And Herod with his men of war set him at nought, and mocked him, and arrayed him in a gorgeous robe, and sent him again to Pilate.

12 ¶ And the same day Pilate and Herod were made friends together: for before they were at enmity between themselves.

[b] Matt. 27. 23.

13 ¶ [b] And Pilate, when he had called together the chief priests and the rulers and the people,

14 Said unto them, Ye have brought this man unto me, as one that perverteth the people: and, behold, I, having examined him before you, have found no fault in this man touching those things whereof ye accuse him:

15 No, nor yet Herod: for I sent you to him; and, lo, nothing worthy of death is done unto him.

16 I will therefore chastise him, and release him.

17 (For of necessity he must release one unto them at the feast.)

18 And they cried out all at once, saying, Away with this man, and release unto us Barabbas:

19 (Who for a certain sedition made in the city, and for murder, was cast into prison.)

20 Pilate therefore, willing to release Jesus, spake again to them.

21 But they cried, saying, Crucify him, crucify him.

22 And he said unto them the third time,

Chap. XXIII. ver. 1. And the whole multitude] It seems probable, that the priests, elders, scribes, and captains of the temple, with their servants and dependents, made up the multitude here spoken of. The common people were for the most part favourers of Jesus, and for this reason the Jewish rulers caused Him to be seized in the night, and "in the absence of the multitude," chap. xxii. 6. Bp. Pearce. For further notes on this chapter, see Matt. xxvii.

2. — forbidding to give tribute to Cesar,] They here affirm what was completely false, as appears from Matt. xxii. 21. But their falsehood was covered, it is probable, under two specious pretences: 1st, that He professed Himself King of the Jews, of which these hypocrites take advantage to render Him odious to the people, although they themselves gave this title to the Messiah whom they expected. 2nd, that He was a Galilean, and therefore likely to embrace the opinion of Judas Gaulonites, who held it was not lawful to pay tribute to Cesar. See ver. 6. Dr. Whitby.

4. — I find no fault in this man.] This was not said (according to John xviii. 36, 38) till after Jesus had declared to Pilate, that "His kingdom was not of this world;" and probably not till after Pilate had found, on examining witnesses, (ver. 14 of this chap.) that all their evidence amounted to no proof of His having set Himself up for a temporal king. Bp. Pearce.

7. — he sent him to Herod,] To Herod Antipas, the same who had beheaded John. See the note on Matt. ii. 1. On discovering that Jesus belonged to the district of Galilee, which formed part of Herod's government, and on considering probably that Herod, from his acquaintance with the Jewish religion, was better qualified to take cognizance of this case, Pilate referred the hearing of it to him. Herod, it is probable, was at this time at Jerusalem on account of the passover feast. Dr. Hammond.

9. — but he answered him nothing.] Before Herod, our Lord conducted Himself with the same majesty, the same patient endurance of wrongs, which became His peculiar situation; refusing to gratify the idle curiosity of the tetrarch by working a miracle, and to give him that account of His life and ministry which might have been credited on the authority of others. Abp. Newcome.

11. — with his men of war] His military officers, or attendants. Dr. Hammond.

—— in a gorgeous robe,] Exhibiting Him as a mock king. Dr. Whitby.

12. — before they were at enmity] Dissensions were extremely frequent between the different kings and governours throughout the Roman empire. Grotius.

16. I will therefore chastise him,] It is probable that Pilate proposed this as a lesser punishment, by which the people might be satisfied, and so disposed to acquiesce in His release. Dr. Hammond.

Anno DOMINI 33.

Why, what evil hath he done? I have found no cause of death in him: I will therefore chastise him, and let him go.

23 And they were instant with loud voices, requiring that he might be crucified. And the voices of them and of the chief priests prevailed.

‖ Or, assented.

24 And Pilate ‖ gave sentence that it should be as they required.

25 And he released unto them him that for sedition and murder was cast into prison, whom they had desired; but he delivered Jesus to their will.

[c] Matt. 27. 32.

26 [c] And as they led him away, they laid hold upon one Simon, a Cyrenian, coming out of the country, and on him they laid the cross, that he might bear it after Jesus.

27 ¶ And there followed him a great company of people, and of women, which also bewailed and lamented him.

28 But Jesus turning unto them said, Daughters of Jerusalem, weep not for me, but weep for yourselves, and for your children.

Anno DOMINI 33.

29 For, behold, the days are coming, in the which they shall say, Blessed are the barren, and the wombs that never bare, and the paps which never gave suck.

[d] Isai. 2. 19. Hos. 10. 8. Rev. 6. 16.

30 [d] Then shall they begin to say to the mountains, Fall on us; and to the hills, Cover us.

[e] 1 Pet. 4. 17.

31 [e] For if they do these things in a green tree, what shall be done in the dry?

[f] Matt. 27. 38.

32 [f] And there were also two other, malefactors, led with him to be put to death.

‖ Or, the place of a scull.

33 And when they were come to the place, which is called ‖ Calvary, there they crucified him, and the malefactors, one on the right hand, and the other on the left.

34 ¶ Then said Jesus, Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do. And they parted his raiment, and cast lots.

35 And the people stood beholding. And the rulers also with them derided him, saying, He saved others; let him save himself, if he be Christ, the chosen of God.

---

26. And as they led him away,] "Bearing His cross," John xix. 17; afterwards, on finding Him weak, and not well able to sustain it, "they laid hold upon one Simon," &c. Dr. Whitby.

29. For, behold, the days are coming, &c.] So great and terrible will be the afflictions and calamities that shall fall upon this people, when God comes to execute His just vengeance on them for their sins, (which will speedily come to pass,) that wicked men, in the utmost distress and anguish of despair, shall wish they had never been born; or that they had quickly perished by some untimely death. Dr. S. Clarke. This they undoubtedly experienced at the siege of Jerusalem, when misery of every kind pressed upon them; and, amongst other things, so severe a famine, that in an instance related by Josephus, a mother was induced to eat her sucking child. Dr. Whitby.

30. — to say to the mountains, &c.] This is a strong expression, signifying the greatness of the calamities which were to overtake them, Hos. x. 8; Rev. vi. 16; Isai. ii. 19. Bp. Pearce.

31. — if they do these things in a green tree,] That is, If they do these things to Me, a righteous person, Ezek. xx. 47; xxi. 2, 3; "what shall be done in the dry?" that is, to those wicked persons, who, like the dry tree, are fit to be burned in the fire. Dr. Whitby. If a green and fruitful tree be thus rooted up and destroyed, how much more shall the barren and decayed? If God in His holy providence thinks fit to suffer the righteous and meritorious to be thus cut off, what have the ungodly and sinners to expect, but the severest of the Divine judgments, which are ready to fall on this impenitent nation? Bp. Mann. The expression, it is probable, was a proverbial one, well understood by those to whom it was spoken, although to most of us it wants explanation. It is a frequent figure in Scripture to compare good men to green and flourishing trees, and bad men to barren and withered trees. See Ps. i. 3, 4. Dr. Jortin.

33. — Calvary,] See note at Matt. xxvii. 33.

34. — Father, forgive them;] How conspicuous here is our Saviour's charity! He not only prays for men who had persecuted Him to death, and prefaced that death with every insult that unrelenting malice could devise; but He even does so, at the very instant when He is expiring under inconceivable torture and anguish, and in the most degrading manner bleeding out His innocent soul. He prays for merciless wretches, hardened murderers, who were even then insulting over His last agonies, and triumphing in their own wicked barbarity. So far above the power of pain, and wrong, and exasperating malice, was the firmness and meekness of His holy mind. And what a pattern have we here set before our eyes; we who are so soon provoked, so implacably incensed, at slender injuries; so hard to forgive, even when we feel no smart, and the damage is imaginary! O, how far short is this of His perfection! How unlike to His true greatness of soul, who, in His patience and charity more especially, left us an example that we should follow His steps! Dean Stanhope.

——for they know not what they do.] They might indeed, and ought to have known; but the Scriptures bear them witness, that, if they had known Him, "they would not have crucified the Lord of glory," 1 Cor. ii. 8; Acts iii. 17. This ignorance is all the extenuation of which the horrour of their crime was capable. And some it always is, though in proportion less, as the means of knowledge are greater. Thus our Lord does not only wish their pardon, but He even pleads and turns advocate for the vilest of miscreants. A noble warning this to all His disciples, that they too, when injuriously treated, should make all possible allowances, and put the most favourable construction on the wrongs they suffer; that they should let ignorance and infirmities, passions and surprises, be heard in mitigation of their resentments; and thus become disposed themselves to pardon, and to implore the pardon of God for, the very worst of enemies. Dean Stanhope.

The last declaration which our Saviour made was of love to His enemies; the last legacy which He bequeathed was an earnest request to God for the forgiveness of His murderers and persecutors. So that, if any example ought to be dear to us, and effectually to engage us to the imitation of it, this of our blessed Saviour ought; since the injuries which He suffered have saved us from suffering, and the greatest blessing and happiness that ever befell mankind is due to this excellent example. And then with what confidence, nay, with what conscience can we pretend to share in the benefits of this example, without imitating the virtues of it? Can we seriously contemplate the excessive kindness and charity of the Son of God to the sinful sons of men, after all our bitterest enmity towards Him, and most cruel and injurious usage of Him, and all this charity exercised towards us, whilst He was actually under the sense and suffering of these things, and yet not be provoked by an example so admirable in itself, and of such mighty example to us, to "go and do likewise?" Abp. Tillotson.

Anno DOMINI 33.

36 And the soldiers also mocked him, coming to him, and offering him vinegar,

37 And saying, If thou be the king of the Jews, save thyself.

38 And a superscription also was written over him in letters of Greek, and Latin, and Hebrew, THIS IS THE KING OF THE JEWS.

39 ¶ And one of the malefactors which were hanged railed on him, saying, If thou be Christ, save thyself and us.

40 But the other answering rebuked him, Saying, Dost not thou fear God, seeing thou art in the same condemnation?

Anno DOMINI 33.

41 And we indeed justly; for we receive the due reward of our deeds: but this man hath done nothing amiss.

42 And he said unto Jesus, Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom.

43 And Jesus said unto him, Verily I say unto thee, To day shalt thou be with me in paradise.

---

36. — offering him vinegar,] It appears that vinegar was the customary drink of the Roman soldiers. Another cup had been given to Him before He was nailed to the cross, as the Jews were accustomed to do to persons condemned to capital punishments. See note at Matt. xxvii. 34.

39. — one of the malefactors — railed on him,] St. Matthew and St. Mark (using, as is often done, the plural for the singular) say, generally, that "the thieves," or "they that were crucified with Him," reviled Him. St. Luke, whose account here is more particular, explains, that one of them reviled Him, and was rebuked by the other. What different effects the judgments of God have upon the minds of men, is strikingly shewn by these examples. Here were two malefactors brought by the providence of God to suffer in the company of His own Son, whose blood was shed for the sins of the whole world. But mark their end. One died reproaching and blaspheming Christ, and breathed out his soul in the agonies of guilt and despair; the other saw, acknowledged, and openly confessed his Redeemer. How adorable is the wisdom of God, who has thus instructed us; and, by setting the examples of His justice and mercy so near together, has taught us to fear without despair, and to trust without presumption! Who would not tremble for himself when he sees a man perish in his sins, who died by his Saviour's side, within reach of that blood which was poured out for his redemption, but wanting faith to stretch out his hand and be saved? Bp. Sherlock.

42. — Lord, remember me &c.] Perhaps this man had never seen or heard of Christ before; or, if he had, it is yet more strange that he, who had till this time stood out in unbelief, should now acknowledge Him as the Messiah. Now, when His enemies were insulting over Him, when His own disciples and the companions of His preaching and miracles had forsaken Him, when they, who once trusted it had been He who should have redeemed Israel, despaired of Him; when the companion of his wickedness was at this very time reproaching and blaspheming Him: that he should, in this lowest ebb of misery and shame and scorn, to which the Son of God did or could stoop, throw himself upon His protection, acknowledge His kingdom, believe Him Lord of a future and better state, and the disposer of rewards and happiness after death; and all this, upon so surprising a conviction, and in answer to the very first calls of grace: this argues so ingenuous a temper, so noble and so bold a faith, as never was outdone, as never can in all respects be equalled, except the same Jesus were again to be crucified; because no other man's conversion ever had or can have, upon other terms, the same disadvantages and discouragements, which this man laboured under and so generously overcame. Dean Stanhope.

His was a great faith which could discover a Christ, a Saviour, under such a poor, scorned, despised, crucified Jesus, and call Him Lord; which, when Jesus hung struggling for His own life, and no deliverer was near, yet saw reason to cast himself upon Him for his everlasting condition, and pray to Him, "Lord, remember me:" which could see Christ's kingdom through His cross and grave and death, and where there was so little sign of a kingdom, and pray to be remembered in that kingdom. Dr. Lightfoot.

—— comest into thy kingdom.] The circumstance of his mentioning Christ's kingdom, now when He hung expiring on the cross, seems to shew that he had a true notion of the sense in which Christ was King of Israel. Dr. Lightfoot: No one but himself, of the whole Jewish nation, (the Apostles themselves not excepted,) appear to have had at this time any other notion than that of a temporal Messiah. His discernment therefore of the Messiah's real character was the more wonderful under such unpromising circumstances, and his faith the more heroick. Dean Tucker.

43. — To day shalt thou be with me] This promise of our Saviour to the penitent thief is certainly a monument of mercy, a standing comfort to all who truly repent, though at their last hour; an anchor of hope to sorrowful sinners, and a plain proof that sincere amendment never comes too late. For even they, who have long lain in the snares of the devil, shall, like the reclaimed thief, be rescued, accepted, rewarded, provided they, like him, return to God, and improve to the best advantage their portion of time, however small. But the fatal delusion too often is, that few consider what it is to be converted like him. They look at the event, but forget the circumstances. For widely different indeed from the case of the penitent thief is the case of those late penitents, who frequently presume to take sanctuary under this example, who, while they live under the ministry of the Gospel, and enjoy both the outward calls of God's word and the inward solicitations of His spirit, turn a deaf ear continually to both: who profess to believe a risen and glorified Redeemer, to expect Him as their Judge, and call Him Lord and King; but pay Him no degree of that respect which this stranger did, when He had made Himself of no reputation, and appeared in the guise of the vilest malefactor. This difference is so striking, that, when duly considered, it must convince all wilful delayers of repentance, that they have no precedent, on which they can safely rely, in the instance now before us. Dean Stanhope.

With hearty repentance and true faith this malefactor now sought admittance into his Master's spiritual kingdom, and was graciously accepted by Him, who exercised an act of sovereignty, even on the cross; in all the fulness of assurance promising him an immediate reward, even admittance, on that very day, with Himself, into paradise, or the region appropriated to good souls. Dr. Hales.

Who would not love the King of mercies, that forgot His own tortures to remember a poor petitioner, and minded not the racking of His own cross, to take care of another soul's deliverance? Who would be ashamed of, nay, who would not triumph in, a crucified Jesus, that exhibits such power of salvation in His very crucifixion: He, who in the deepest of His shame, and in the highest of His pain and greatest of His weakness, shews such pity, such strength, such deliverance, towards a poor wretch, when there was but a span between him and destruction? The great Deliverer came at the very point of time; and, in the midst of all His weakness and anguish, wrung the lamb out of the jaws of the devourer. Dr. Lightfoot.

We cannot possibly infer from the example of this malefactor, whether a late, a sudden, or a death-bed repentance, will avail for any other Christians, or not; for the circumstances in which he was placed were quite peculiar, and different from those in which any others can stand. Much less can any Christians pretend to exult in an absolute certainty of forgiveness, or boast of

Anno DOMINI 33.

44 And it was about the sixth hour, and there was a darkness over all the ‖ earth until the ninth hour.

‖ Or, land.

45 And the sun was darkened, and the veil of the temple was rent in the midst.

46 ¶ And when Jesus had cried with a loud voice, he said, [g] Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit: and having said thus, he gave up the ghost.

[g] Ps. 31. 5.

47 Now when the centurion saw what was done, he glorified God, saying, Certainly this was a righteous man.

48 And all the people that came together to that sight, beholding the things which were done, smote their breasts, and returned.

49 And all his acquaintance, and the women that followed him from Galilee, stood afar off, beholding these things.

[h] Matt. 27. 57.

50 ¶ [h] And, behold, there was a man named Joseph, a counseller; and he was a good man, and a just:

51 (The same had not consented to the counsel and deed of them;) he was of Arimathea, a city of the Jews: who also himself waited for the kingdom of God.

52 This man went unto Pilate, and begged the body of Jesus.

53 And he took it down, and wrapped it in linen, and laid it in a sepulchre that was hewn in stone, wherein never man before was laid.

Anno DOMINI 33.

54 And that day was the preparation, and the sabbath drew on.

55 And the women also, which came with him from Galilee, followed after, and beheld the sepulchre, and how his body was laid.

56 And they returned, and prepared spices and ointments; and rested the sabbath day according to the commandment.

CHAP. XXIV.

1 Christ's resurrection is declared by two angels to the women that come to the sepulchre. 9 These report it to others. 13 Christ himself appeareth to the two disciples that went to Emmaus: 36 afterwards he appeareth to the apostles, and reproveth their unbelief: 47 giveth them a charge: 49 promiseth the Holy Ghost: 51 and so ascendeth into heaven.

NOW [a] upon the first day of the week, very early in the morning, they came unto the sepulchre, bringing the spices which they had prepared, and certain others with them.

[a] Matt. 28. 1.

2 And they found the stone rolled away from the sepulchre.

---

having received an earnest and foretaste of everlasting peace. But, if his example is at all to be propounded for our imitation, it should be in this; that, though his faith excelled the faith of all the sons of men then existing, yet he presumed not to utter any other request than this modest petition, this humble prayer, fervent in hope, though mixed with some diffidence, "Lord, remember me when Thou comest into Thy kingdom." To imitate him thus far, will answer all the ends of solid piety, and of a just reliance on the promises of God. Dean Tucker.

This history of the penitent thief is very remarkable and very affecting; and there are two religious and practical inferences to be made from it. The first is the encouragement it affords, even after great misdemeanors, to repenting sinners, who, if they will sincerely perform all that is in their power, ought by no means to think it a lost labour, and to give themselves up to despair, but to entertain honourable sentiments and humble hope of God's placability and mercy. The second use of the text, which ought always to be joined with the first, is to dissuade men from habitual vice, and a delay of reformation, by shewing them how little reason such offenders have to expect that they shall ever so qualify themselves as to become fit to obtain the favour which was extended to this man. Dr. Jortin.

The mercies of God are never recorded in Scripture for man's presumption, and the failings of men never for imitation. Here is the memorial of a singular mercy of God in saving this sinner: and a failing of this man, that he never sought salvation till this very instant. And we make an evil application of this example, if we resolve to imitate his failing, and yet hope to succeed as he did, to whom an unparalleled mercy was vouchsafed, and whom God would set up for a monument to all generations; not that men might presume upon God's mercy, from this signal instance of mercy, nor imitate the delay of repentance in this man, but rather that, by witnessing the mercies of God, we might be the more effectually stirred to repentance. Dr. Lightfoot.

—— in paradise.] Our Saviour must have used this word in the sense in which the Jews understood it, the place of happiness, into which pious souls, when separated from the body, are immediately received. Dr. Whitby.

46. — into thy hands I commend my spirit:] He means His soul, which He had in His human nature, together with the body, united to the Divine nature. Hence we derive an additional proof that the human soul is distinct from the body, that it lives after it, in a state separate from it, and such a state as is susceptible of happiness and misery. For why is the spirit here the object of our Lord's care, and commended to God, but because there is a place of safety from danger, where souls shall not only survive, but live also in a manner very different from that in which they lived here; where no temptation shall be able to assault, no sin to pollute, no affliction to discompose them? From these considerations, every Christian may draw such inferences, as will turn to the best account, by supporting him under the trials of the present life; by arming him against immoderate fears of death; and by quickening him to those virtues and graces which are necessary to justify his hopes of exchanging this present life for a state infinitely better. Dean Stanhope.

47. — glorified God,] Acknowledged these convulsions of nature, to be an evidence of Divine interposition. Dr. Hammond.

48. And all the people — smote their breasts,] In token of their grief, and remorse for their guilt, and the imprecations they had uttered, and with a melancholy presage of their punishment. Dr. Hales.

51. — waited for the kingdom of God.] Expected at this time the appearing of the Messiah, and secretly in his heart believed that Jesus was He. Dr. S. Clarke.

54. — the sabbath drew on.] Literally, began to dawn. Meaning that daylight began to appear on the morning of Saturday, (the sabbath;) although, properly speaking, the sabbath began on the preceding evening. Bp. Pearce.

56. — the commandment.] That in the Law of Moses, of doing no work on the sabbath day. Dr. Hammond.

Chap. XXIV. ver. 1. Now upon the first day &c.] For this chapter, see further notes at Matt. xxviii; Mark xvi.

Anno DOMINI 33.

3 And they entered in, and found not the body of the Lord Jesus.

4 And it came to pass, as they were much perplexed thereabout, behold, two men stood by them in shining garments:

5 And as they were afraid, and bowed down their faces to the earth, they said unto them, Why seek ye ‖ the living among the dead?

‖ Or, him that liveth.

[b] Matt. 17. 23.

6 He is not here, but is risen: [b] remember how he spake unto you when he was yet in Galilee,

7 Saying, The Son of man must be delivered into the hands of sinful men, and be crucified, and the third day rise again.

8 And they remembered his words,

9 And returned from the sepulchre, and told all these things unto the eleven, and to all the rest.

10 It was Mary Magdalene, and Joanna, and Mary the mother of James, and other women that were with them, which told these things unto the apostles.

11 And their words seemed to them as idle tales, and they believed them not.

[c] John 20. 6.

12 [c] Then arose Peter, and ran unto the sepulchre; and stooping down, he beheld the linen clothes laid by themselves, and departed, wondering in himself at that which was come to pass.

[d] Mark 16. 12.

13 ¶ [d] And, behold, two of them went that same day to a village called Emmaus, which was from Jerusalem about threescore furlongs.

14 And they talked together of all these things which had happened.

15 And it came to pass, that, while they communed together and reasoned, Jesus himself drew near, and went with them.

Anno DOMINI 33.

16 But their eyes were holden that they should not know him.

17 And he said unto them, What manner of communications are these that ye have one to another, as ye walk, and are sad?

18 And the one of them, whose name was Cleopas, answering said unto him, Art thou only a stranger in Jerusalem, and hast not known the things which are come to pass there in these days?

19 And he said unto them, What things? And they said unto him, Concerning Jesus of Nazareth, which was a prophet mighty in deed and word before God and all the people:

20 And how the chief priests and our rulers delivered him to be condemned to death, and have crucified him.

21 But we trusted that it had been he which should have redeemed Israel: and beside all this, to day is the third day since these things were done.

22 Yea, and certain women also of our company made us astonished, which were early at the sepulchre;

23 And when they found not his body, they came, saying, that they had also seen a vision of angels, which said that he was alive.

24 And certain of them which were with us went to the sepulchre, and found it even so as the women had said: but him they saw not.

25 Then he said unto them, O fools, and slow of heart to believe all that the prophets have spoken:

---

5. — Why seek ye the living among the dead?] Why search ye here at the sepulchre of the dead, for one who is alive? Dr. S. Clarke.

6. — how he spake] See the marginal reference.

11. — seemed to them as idle tales,] The resurrection was in itself so strange a thing, and the minds of the disciples were so weighed down with sorrow, and prejudiced by the disappointments they had met with, that, though Jesus had expressly foretold He should rise again, yet they hardly hoped for it, and could not believe the women when they acquainted them with the intimations they had received of it. Dr. S. Clarke.

13. — two of them] Cleopas was one of the two, ver. 18; but neither of the two was an Apostle, as appears from ver. 33. Bp. Pearce.

—— a village called Emmaus,] Lying westward from Jerusalem, about seven or eight miles. This village was afterwards made a city and a Roman colony, and called Nicopolis. Dr. Wells.

16. — their eyes were holden] That is, through God's will so disposing it, they knew not that it was Jesus. Dr. Hammond.

21. — should have redeemed Israel:] Should have proved the Messiah our deliverer. Dr. S. Clarke.

If we contemplate the situation and conduct of the Apostles at this important crisis, it will sufficiently appear that enthusiasm must have been wholly excluded from their minds. They had followed our Saviour as a temporal Messiah, who would prove by miracles His claim to the throne of David, and rescue the thousands of Israel from a foreign yoke. But the event exhibited a sad reverse of all that they expected. In the death and burial of their Master, every fond hope seemed to be for ever blasted, every ambitious thought was crushed, every prejudice of their religion and education was outraged. What delusion could have withstood such a shock as this, what credulity could have blinded, what enthusiasm could longer have possessed them? How disappointed, how dejected, how alarmed, must the coolest and the steadiest minds have been at such a scene! How slow and unwilling must they have been to engage again in a cause, thus plainly desperate! And exactly conformable to this is the artless description which the Evangelists record of the feelings and conduct of their brethren. When the two disciples (in this passage) relate the crucifixion of their Lord, how full of perplexity and despondence is their narrative! When they were assembled together, it was with doors shut, for fear of the Jews, John xx. 19. But this state of doubt and dismay was soon changed to triumphant faith, and these very men became witnesses of the resurrection of their crucified Lord. Dr. Graves.

Anno DOMINI 33.

26 Ought not Christ to have suffered these things, and to enter into his glory?

27 And beginning at Moses and all the prophets, he expounded unto them in all the scriptures the things concerning himself.

28 And they drew nigh unto the village, whither they went: and he made as though he would have gone further.

29 But they constrained him, saying, Abide with us: for it is toward evening, and the day is far spent. And he went in to tarry with them.

30 And it came to pass, as he sat at meat with them, he took bread, and blessed it, and brake, and gave to them.

31 And their eyes were opened, and they knew him; and he ‖ vanished out of their sight.

‖ Or, ceased to be seen of them.

32 And they said one to another, Did not our heart burn within us, while he talked with us by the way, and while he opened to us the scriptures?

33 And they rose up the same hour, and returned to Jerusalem, and found the eleven gathered together, and them that were with them, 34 Saying, The Lord is risen indeed, and hath appeared to Simon.

Anno DOMINI 33.

35 And they told what things were done in the way, and how he was known of them in breaking of bread.

36 ¶ [e] And as they thus spake, Jesus himself stood in the midst of them, and saith unto them, Peace be unto you.

[e] Mark 16.

37 But they were terrified and affrighted, and supposed that they had seen a spirit.

38 And he said unto them, Why are ye troubled? and why do thoughts arise in your hearts?

39 Behold my hands and my feet, that it is I myself: handle me, and see; for a spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye see me have.

40 And when he had thus spoken, he shewed them his hands and his feet.

41 And while they yet believed not for joy, and wondered, he said unto them, Have ye here any meat?

42 And they gave him a piece of a broiled fish, and of an honeycomb.

43 And he took it, and did eat before them.

---

26. Ought not Christ &c.] Is it not by those Prophets foretold to be decreed by God, that the Messiah should be insulted and murdered by them, Isai. liii. 8, before He should enter into His kingdom? Dr. Hammond.

27. And beginning at Moses &c. — he expounded unto them &c.] The design of Christ, in entering into so particular an exposition of the Prophets, while "their eyes were holden," ver. 16, was to shew, that, by making a proper use of their understanding, they might, from those very Scriptures whose authority they allowed, have been convinced that the Messiah ought to have suffered as they had seen Him suffer, and to rise from the dead the third day. That is, Christ chose rather to convince them by reason than by sense; or, at least, so to prepare their minds that their assenting afterwards to the testimony of their senses should be with the concurrence of their reason. This proceeding, at once so becoming the Lord of righteousness and of truth, and the freedom of man as a reasonable being, must have been prevented, had Christ discovered Himself to them at His first appearing. Wonder and astonishment would then have taken place of reason, and left them perhaps, when the first strong impression had a little worn away, in doubt and scepticism. West.

31. And their eyes were opened,] The manner, undoubtedly, of His breaking bread, and probably the form of words in the thanksgiving were peculiar to our Saviour; and these latter were probably the very same made use of by Him at the last supper. This being the case, how strongly were the Apostles called upon by this action to remember their Lord, who had instituted that very form in remembrance of His death; and how properly did it accompany that discovery of Himself which He now thought fit to make to them! West.

32. — Did not our heart burn within us,] Was there not an unusual warmth of affection and passion in our hearts, during all the time that He talked with us? Dr. Hammond.

34. Saying, The Lord is risen] This was said by the eleven Apostles and their company; and then these two disciples related how Jesus had joined them on the road. Bp. Mann.

——hath appeared to Simon.] Observe the kindness of our Lord to Simon Peter. He did not shew Himself apart, after His resurrection, to John, His beloved disciple; but to him who had thrice denied Him, who had bitterly bewailed his crime, and whose mind required to be soothed and strengthened. Abp. Newcome.

39. Behold my hands and my feet,] Which had the print of the nails in them, John xx. 25.

The certainty of our Lord's resurrection did not rest on a transient glance or a single interview with His Apostles; He conversed with them for forty days, which precluded every sort of illusion or mistake: nor did it depend upon the sole testimony of those chosen ministers of the Gospel, for He was seen by various other persons, and particularly by five hundred disciples at once; He ate and drank with many to whom He was known before His crucifixion; and He made St. Thomas feel the print of the nails by which He had been fastened to the cross, and of the spear with which His side had been pierced, to convince him that He was the same Jesus who had been crucified, that He had flesh and bones, and was not a spirit. Also, on this occasion, He desires the eleven Apostles, when assembled together, immediately before His ascension, to behold His hands and His feet, and to handle Him. Thus the identity of His person was incontrovertibly ascertained, and all suspicion of His being a spirit was entirely removed. These numerous witnesses of a plain matter of fact, of which every one was a competent judge, constitute a species of proof which may justly be called infallible. Bp. Tomline.

43. — and did eat before them.] This act of eating was a further proof that He was a real living man. Bp. Mann. So much compassion did our Lord shew for their infirmities, and so much care did He take, that not even a shadow of a scruple should remain in their minds, upon a point of the utmost importance to the great business on which He was employed. West. From knowing that our Saviour possessed the real human nature after His resurrection, we are taught to expect the resurrection of the body. The light of reason has been able to induce men to look for another life after death, but never encouraged them to extend their hopes to the resurrection of the body. They only trusted that they should not perish wholly, and that their souls might survive the dissolution of this earthly frame. We now see that the body also will be partaker of the life to come. The exquisite knot, which unites soul and body, will again be tied, never more to be dissolved. Dr. Ogden.

Anno DOMINI 33.

44 And he said unto them, These are the words which I spake unto you, while I was yet with you, that all things must be fulfilled, which were written in the law of Moses, and in the prophets, and in the psalms, concerning me.

45 Then opened he their understanding, that they might understand the scriptures,

46 And said unto them, Thus it is written, and thus it behoved Christ to suffer, and to rise from the dead the third day:

47 And that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in his name among all nations, beginning at Jerusalem.

48 And ye are witnesses of these things.

Anno DOMINI 33.

49 ¶ [f] And, behold, I send the promise of my Father upon you: but tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem, until ye be endued with power from on high.

[f] John 15. 26. Acts 1. 4.

50 ¶ And he led them out as far as to Bethany, and he lifted up his hands, and blessed them.

51 [g] And it came to pass, while he blessed them, he was parted from them, and carried up into heaven.

[g] Mark 16. 19. Acts 1. 9.

52 And they worshipped him, and returned to Jerusalem with great joy:

53 And were continually in the temple, praising and blessing God. Amen.

---

45. Then opened he their understanding,] By a special operation of His Spirit, He gave them understanding of the Scriptures, especially in those things which concerned the Messiah. Dr. Hammond.

47. And that repentance and remission of sins &c.] That by these means was to be established a new and gracious covenant of repentance and forgiveness of sins, which should be preached in His name, first to the Jews, and afterward to the Gentiles, in all the nations of the world. Dr. S. Clarke.

49. — but tarry ye in the city &c.] Continue in Jerusalem till ye receive the plentiful and miraculous effusion of the Holy Spirit, which I will send you, according to My Father's promise, Joel ii. 28, in order to qualify you with great and extraordinary gifts for so great an undertaking.

51. — and carried up into heaven.] Thus was the ascension of our Saviour visibly performed in the presence and sight of the Apostles, for the confirmation of the reality and certainty of that event. They did not actually see Him when He rose from the dead, because an eyewitness was not necessary for the act of the resurrection: it was sufficient that Christ shewed Himself to the Apostles alive after His passion; for whatever was a proof of His life after death, was a demonstration of His resurrection. But since the Apostles were not to see Him actually abiding in heaven, it was necessary that they should be eyewitnesses of the act of the ascension, as they were not to be eyewitnesses of the effect. The knowledge of our Saviour's ascension is very availing for the confirmation of our hopes. He is our forerunner into the regions of bliss; and thither we may hope to follow, as being of the same human nature with which He ascended, members of the same body, branches of the same vine. He has gone thither before us as the firstfruits of those that follow, and we hope to follow Him as coming late to the same perfection. Bp. Pearson.

There is a spot at the top of one of the hills on mount Olivet, still shewn as the place from which our Lord ascended; here was anciently a large church built in honour of that glorious triumph. Maundrell.

52. And they worshipped him,] We have here an instance of religious worship paid to Christ, after He was taken out of the sight of His disciples, and had ascended up into heaven. Bp. Mann.

The following Chapters from St. Luke are appointed as Proper Lessons, or as Gospels, on Sundays and Holydays:

CHAP. I.	ver. 26—38,	The Annunciation,	Gospel.
—— I.	— 57—80,	St. John Baptist,	ditto.
—— II.	— 1—14,	Nativity of Christ,	Morning.
—— II.	— 15—21,	Circumcision of Christ,	Gospel.
—— II.	— 22—40,	The Purification,	ditto.
—— II.	— 41—52,	1st Sunday after Epiphany,	ditto.
—— III.	— 1—22,	Epiphany,	Morning.
—— V.	— 1—11,	5th Sunday after Trinity,	Gospel.
—— VI.	— 36—42,	4th Sunday after Trinity,	ditto.
—— VII.	— 11—17,	16th Sunday after Trinity,	ditto.
—— VIII.	— 4—15,	Sexagesima Sunday,	ditto.
—— IX.	— 51—56,	Gunpowder Treason,	ditto.
—— X.	— 1—7,	St. Luke the Evangelist,	ditto.
—— X.	— 23—37,	13th Sunday after Trinity,	ditto.
—— XI.	— 14—28,	3d Sunday in Lent,	ditto.
—— XIV.	— 1—11,	17th Sunday after Trinity,	ditto.
—— XIV.	— 16—24,	2d Sunday after Trinity,	ditto.
CHAP. XV.	ver. 1—10,	3d Sunday after Trinity,	Gospel.
—— XVI.	— 1—9,	9th Sunday after Trinity,	ditto.
—— XVI.	— 19—31,	1st Sunday after Trinity,	ditto.
—— XVII.	— 11—19,	14th Sunday after Trinity,	ditto.
—— XVIII.	— 9—14,	11th Sunday after Trinity,	ditto.
—— XVIII.	— 31—43,	Quinquagesima Sunday,	ditto.
—— XIX.	— 41—47,	10th Sunday after Trinity,	ditto.
—— XXI.	— 25—33,	2d Sunday in Advent,	ditto.
—— XXII.	— 1—71,	Wednesday before Easter,	ditto.
—— XXII.	— 24—30,	St. Bartholomew,	ditto.
—— XXIII.	— 1—49,	Thursday before Easter,	ditto.
—— XXIII.	— 50—56,	Easter Even,	Morning.
—— XXIV.	— 1—12,	Tuesday in Easter-week,	ditto.
—— XXIV.	— 13—35,	Monday in Easter-week,	Gospel.
—— XXIV.	— 36—48,	Tuesday in Easter-week,	ditto.
—— XXIV.	— 44—53,	Ascension-Day,	Morning.

THE GOSPEL

ACCORDING TO

ST. JOHN.

INTRODUCTION.

ST. JOHN, the writer of this Gospel, was the son of Zebedee and Salome, and younger brother of James the Great, with whom he was brought up as a fisherman, and with whom he was called to be a Disciple and Apostle of Christ. St. John has not recorded the circumstances of his own call; but we learn from the other three Evangelists, Matt. iv. 21; Mark i. 19; Luke v. 10, that it took place when he and his brother were fishing upon the sea of Galilee, and early in our Saviour's ministry. St. Mark, in enumerating the twelve Apostles, informs us that our Saviour surnamed these two brothers Boanerges, Mark iii. 17, that is, sons of thunder, which title we may understand as a prophetick declaration of the zeal and resolution with which they would hereafter bear testimony to the great truths of the Gospel. St. John was one of the four Apostles to whom our Lord delivered His predictions relative to the destruction of Jerusalem, and the approaching calamities of the Jewish nation, Mark xiii. 3. St. Peter, and St. James, and St. John, were chosen to accompany our Saviour upon several occasions, when the other Apostles were not permitted to be present. When Christ restored the daughter of Jairus to life, Mark v. 37; when He was transfigured on the mount, Matt. xvii. 1, 2; Mark ix. 2; Luke ix. 28; and when He endured His agony in the garden, Matt. xxvi. 36, 37; Mark xiv. 32, 33; St. Peter, and St. James, and St. John, were His only attendants. St. Peter and St. John were entrusted to make preparations for our Saviour's eating the last passover, Mark xiv. 13; Luke xxii. 8; but St. John alone had the distinction of leaning upon his Master's bosom, and of being called the beloved disciple of the Saviour of mankind, John xxi. 20; xiii. 23. That he was treated by Christ with greater familiarity than the other Apostles, is evident from St. Peter desiring him to ask Christ who should betray Him, when he himself did not dare to propose the question, John xiii. 24. He seems to have been the only Apostle present at the crucifixion, and to him Jesus, just as He was expiring on the cross, gave the strongest proof of His confidence and regard, by consigning to him the care of His mother, John xix. 26, 27. As St. John had been witness to the death of our Saviour, by seeing the blood and water issue from His side, which a soldier had pierced, John xix. 34, 35; so he was one of the first who were made acquainted with His resurrection. He believed without any hesitation this great event; though "as yet he knew not the Scripture, that Christ was to rise again from the dead," John xx. 9. He was one of those to whom our Saviour appeared at the sea of Galilee, and he was afterwards, with the other ten Apostles, a witness of His ascension into heaven, Mark xvi. 19; Luke xxiv. 51. St. John continued to preach the Gospel for some time at Jerusalem: he was imprisoned by the Sanhedrim, first with St. Peter only, Acts iv. 1, &c., and afterwards with the other Apostles, Acts v. 17, 18. Some time after this, St. John and St. Peter were sent by the other Apostles to the Samaritans, whom Philip the deacon had converted to the Gospel, that through them "they might receive the Holy Ghost," Acts viii. 14, 15. With this journey the Scripture history of St. John ends, except that he informs us in the Revelation, that he was banished to Patmos, Rev. i. 9, an island in the Ægean sea.

It is not known at what time St. John went into Asia Minor; but it is certain that he lived there the latter part of his life, and principally at Ephesus. He planted churches at Smyrna, Pergamos, Laodicea, and many other places; and by his activity and success in propagating the Gospel, he is supposed to have incurred the displeasure of Domitian, who banished him to Patmos at the end of his reign. He himself tells us, that he "was in the isle that is called Patmos, for the word of God, and for the testimony of Jesus Christ;" and Irenæus, speaking of the vision which he had there, says, "It is not very long ago that it was seen, being but a little before our time, at the latter end of Domitian's reign." Upon Nerva's succeeding to the empire in the year 96, St. John returned to Ephesus, and died there at an advanced age, in the third year of Trajan's reign, in the year of our Lord 100. It is generally believed that St. John was the youngest of the twelve Apostles, and that he survived all the rest. An opinion has prevailed that he was, by order of Domitian, thrown into a caldron of boiling oil at Rome, before the gate called Porta Latina, and that he came out unhurt; but in examining into the foundation of this account, we find that it rests almost entirely upon the authority of Tertullian; and since it is not mentioned by Irenæus, Origen, and others, who have related the sufferings of the Apostles, it seems to deserve but little credit.

It is universally agreed, that St. John published his Gospel in Asia; and that, when he wrote it, he had seen the other three Gospels; it is therefore not only valuable in itself, but also as a tacit confirmation of the other three, with none of which it disagrees in any material point. The learned are much divided concerning the time of the publication of this Gospel, some placing it rather before, and others considerably after, the destruction of Jerusalem. I am inclined to accede to the opinion of those who contend for the year 97; and my reason is, that this late date, exclusive of the authorities which support it, is favoured by the contents and design of the Gospel itself. It is evident that the Evangelist considers those, to whom he addresses his Gospel, to be but little acquainted with Jewish customs and names; for in relating the first miracle of our Saviour, performed at Cana in Galilee, he says, "and there were set there six waterpots of stone, after the manner of the purifying of the Jews," John ii. 6. He twice calls the passover, "the passover of the Jews," John ii. 13; xi. 55; and in giving an account of our Saviour's interview with the Samaritan woman, he adds, "for the Jews have no dealings with the Samaritans," John iv. 9. He tells his readers that Rabbi signifies, "Master," John i. 38; and Messiah, "Christ," John i. 41. Explanations of this kind were observed in the Gospels of St. Mark and St. Luke; but in this they are more marked, and occur much more frequently; the reason of which may be, that when St. John wrote, many more Gentiles, and of more distant countries, had been converted to Christianity; and it was now become necessary to explain to the Christian Church, thus extended, many circumstances which needed no explanation, whilst its members belonged only to the neighbourhood of Judea, and while the Jewish polity was still in existence. It is reasonable to suppose, that the feasts and other peculiarities of the Jews would be but little understood by the Gentiles of Asia Minor, thirty years after the destruction of Jerusalem.

INTRODUCTION.

The immediate design of St. John in writing his Gospel, as we are assured by Irenæus, St. Jerome, and others, was to refute the Gnosticks, Cerinthians, Ebionites, and other hereticks; whose tenets, though they branched out into a variety of subjects, all originated from erroneous opinions concerning the person of Christ, and the creation of the world. These points had been scarcely touched upon by the other Evangelists, though they had faithfully recorded all the leading facts of our Saviour's life, and His admirable precepts for the regulation of our moral conduct. St. John therefore undertook, at the request of the true believers in Asia, to write what Clement of Alexandria called a spiritual Gospel; and accordingly we find in it more of doctrine, and less of historical narrative, than in any of the others. He chiefly confines himself to those occurrences, which had been omitted by his predecessors, and which suited his design; and if at any time he relates what had been mentioned by them, it is generally with a view to introduce some important discourse of our Saviour, or because it was particularly connected with the main scope of his Gospel. Of this last description are the crucifixion and resurrection, in which, as related by St. John, a discerning reader will find several circumstances not noticed by the other Evangelists. Let it be remembered, that this book, which contains so much additional information relative to the doctrines of Christianity, and which may be considered as a standard of faith for all ages, was written by that Apostle, who is known to have enjoyed, in a greater degree than the rest, the affection and confidence of the Divine Author of our religion, and to whom was given a special revelation concerning the state of the Christian Church in all succeeding generations. The other Gospels, having been written before any divisions arose among Christians, appear to have the evidences of Christianity for their principal object, and chiefly state the leading facts of our Lord's ministry, and the general instructions which He delivered, without any reference to heretical opinions. The acknowledged prevalence of the Gnostick and other heresies, at the time this Gospel was written, is itself a strong argument in favour of the date which has been assigned to it.

It has been remarked, that St. John has recorded more instances of the attempts of the Jews against our Saviour's life than any other Evangelist; and that the events, mentioned in this Gospel only, took place chiefly in the early part of Christ's ministry. St. John has expressly mentioned three passovers, chap. ii. 13; vi. 4; xi. 55: and in another place he says, "After this there was a feast of the Jews," chap. v. 1. Some authors think that this feast was also a passover; but, as in the other instances St. John tells us, that the feasts were passovers, and in this does not, the inference seems to be, that this was some other feast.

St. John's style argues a great want of those advantages which result from a learned education; but this defect is amply compensated by the unexampled simplicity with which he expresses the sublimest truths, and by the affection, zeal, and veneration for his Divine Master, so conspicuous in every page of his Gospel. Bp. Tomline.

Against the heresy of Cerinthus, who considered our Saviour to be no more than a real man, the Son of Joseph and Mary, and produced in the common mode of generation, did the aged and venerable St. John peculiarly write his Gospel. "St. John, the disciple of our Lord," as Irenæus tells us, "was willing, by the publication of his Gospel, to take away the errour which Cerinthus had disseminated amongst men." We accordingly see one feature in the complexion of infant Christianity, one circumstance in the history of our rising religion, which has been little noticed, but is very striking in itself, and results entirely from this. The venerable Founder of our faith, and the dignified preachers of it to the world, as late as St. John himself, do never propose the doctrine of Christ's divinity as a new article of belief; as one that had been hitherto unknown to the Church of God, and that was now brought to light by the Gospel. They do not lay it before their hearers or their readers in formal propositions. They bring it not forward to their understandings with a solemnity of introduction, that should shew their own sense of its surprising nature, and prepare the minds of their people for the first reception of it. On the contrary, they pass imperceptibly into the subject. They insinuate rather than proclaim it. They speak of it in such a manner, as proves it to have been familiar to their own minds, and to the minds of their countrymen. Whenever they notice it, they notice it as a doctrine, which had always been professed by the Church of God, had always been believed by its members, and now wanted only to be applied to the person of Jesus. This remark, which is so necessary to the right understanding of the Scriptures, is additionally demonstrated to be true, by the evident contrast which appears in the writings of St. John, compared with all the other writings of the New Testament, concerning this doctrine. In his time the doctrine having been doubted, denied, and opposed by Cerinthus and Ebion, this last of the Apostles, whose life seems to have been continued for the very purpose, set himself to mention the doctrine in a very different manner. He no longer notes it in the easy and transient mode of his predecessors; but asserts it in peremptory terms, and dwells upon it in circumstantial language: and this too at the very commencement of his Gospel; in order to impress the doctrine upon the minds and spirits of his readers for ever. Dr. Whittaker.

CHAP. I.

1 The divinity, humanity, and office of Jesus Christ. 15 The testimony of John. 39 The calling of Andrew, Peter, &c.

IN the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God.

Chap. I. ver. 1. In the beginning was the Word, &c.] In the beginning of the world before all time, before any thing was created, the Son of God had a subsistence, and that subsistence with the Father of whom He was begotten from all eternity, and was Himself eternal God, being by His Father in His eternal purpose designed to be the Messiah, who was known among the Jews by the title of the Word of God. Dr. Hammond.

In contemplating the character of man's Redeemer, it is hard to say, whether our admiration be most excited by the natural dignity or the voluntary abasement of His person. To form suitable ideas of either, it is expedient to take a view of both; and they appear to the utmost advantage in this opening of St. John's Gospel, where he sets himself to publish, first, the divinity, and then the incarnation of his most adorable and beloved Master. He mentions, in due order and in regular gradation, the glory which the Word had with the Father before man, or the world which he inhabits, had a being, ver. 1; His glory with respect to the creatures, the works of His hands, ver. 3; His glory as the sole Author of life and immortality, ver. 4; His glory, with respect to man in general, as fallen into a state of ignorance and sensuality, ver. 5; His glory, with respect to the Jews, to whom He first manifested Himself, ver. 11; His glory, with respect to Christians, to whom He gave "power to become the sons of God," ver. 12; in order to effect which, He Himself became the Son of man, "the Word was made flesh," ver. 14. Bp. Horne.

"In the beginning" is here used in the same sense as at Gen. i. 1. For the Evangelist proposes to himself to shew, that, by "the Word," by whom the creation was perfected, the redemption of mankind was also perfected; that the Second Person in the Holy Trinity became, in the fulness of time, our Redeemer, as, in the beginning of time, He had been our Maker. Dr. Lightfoot. In the language of the Jews, this phrase "in the begin-

[a] Gen. 1. 1. 2 [a] The same was in the beginning with God.

[b] Col. 1. 16. 3 [b] All things were made by him; and without him was not any thing made that was made.

4 In him was life; and the life was the light of men.

5 And the light shineth in darkness; and the darkness comprehended it not.

A. D. 26. [c] Matt. 3. 1. 6 ¶ [c] There was a man sent from God, whose name was John.

7 The same came for a witness, to bear witness of the Light, that all men through him might believe. Anno DOMINI 26.

8 He was not that Light, but was sent to bear witness of that Light.

9 That was the true Light, which lighteth every man that cometh into the world.

10 He was in the world, and [d] the world was made by him, and the world knew him not. [d] Heb. 11. 3.

11 He came unto his own, and his own received him not.

---

ning" frequently signifies eternity. Thus in Habakkuk i. 12, "Art Thou not from everlasting, O Lord?" the Hebrew is literally, Art Thou not from the beginning? And thus, in Prov. viii. 23, "I was set up from everlasting, from the beginning, or ever the earth was." Thus also, Micah v. 2, "Whose goings forth have been from of old, (Heb. from the beginning,) from everlasting." Thus, its being here said, that the Son or the Word of God was "in the beginning," plainly leads to this meaning, that He was from eternity. Dr. Clagett.

Nothing can be more clearly written to prove the eternal existence and the divinity of our Saviour than this passage of St. John, (ver. 1—3,) which seems purposely designed with a singular brevity to take off all objections to that important truth. As St. John's purpose was to teach that our Lord made the world, and as His title of Jesus was given Him at His circumcision, and the title of Christ belonged to His office, which He had not exercised many years; therefore He produces a new name of His, as yet unknown to the world, or not much noticed, though in frequent use among the Jews, which belonged to Him before He was made man. Under that title, "the Word," he shews that He had a being "in the beginning:" when all things were to be created, and consequently were not yet, then "in the beginning was the Word," and so was not created. This is the first step; the Word was not created when the world was made. The next is, that the same Word, which then had existence, "was with God," when He made all things. And therefore we may well conceive it is He to whom God said, Gen. i. 26, "Let Us make man." After this, lest any should conceive the creation of the world too great and divine a work to be attributed to the Word, he adds, that the Word, as He was "with God," so was He also "God." Again, lest any should hence derive a false opinion respecting different Gods, he returns to the second assertion and joins it with the first, "The same was in the beginning with God:" and then delivers that, which at the first seemed strange, but now after those three propositions might well be received, "All things were made by Him, &c." Bp. Pearson.

——the Word] Or, the Logos, the Son of God, the Second Person in the Blessed Trinity. This title is given to the Son of God from the Scriptures of the Old Testament, and from the subsequent style of the ancient Jews, in conformity thereto. The Divine Person, who has accomplished the salvation of mankind, is called the Word, and the Word of God, not only because God at first created, and still governs all things by Him; but because, as men discover their sentiments and designs to one another by the intervention of words, speech or discourse, so God by His Son discovers His gracious designs to men in the fullest and clearest manner: all the various manifestations, which He makes of Himself, whether in the works of creation, providence, or redemption, all the revelations He has been pleased to give of His will, are conveyed to us through Him; and therefore He is, by way of eminence, styled "the Word of God." Bp. Tomline.

Although St. John only of the writers of the New Testament mentions this title of our Lord, yet it was not new; since, by the Chaldee paraphrases, written before our Saviour's birth, it abundantly appears, that, in many places of the Old Testament, which mention the Word of God, the Jews did thereby understand a Divine Person, and that Person by whom the promised redemption was to be wrought. So that St. John, declaring the eternal pre-existence of the Son of God, "In the beginning was the Word," did not declare a point to which the Jews had been wholly strangers before the revelation of the Gospel. Dr. Clagett.

——was God.] That is, although the Word was a distinct Person from the Father, yet He had not a distinct nature from Him, but was truly God. Dr. Clagett.

2. The same was in the beginning with God.] This, though the sense of it was before expressed in that clause, "the Word was with God," is by no means a vain tautology, but a strong and emphatical repetition. He is said to be Himself God, and is again said to be "with God," to shew His real Godhead, and yet His distinct personality from the Father. Dr. Trapp.

3. All things] Not only the visible world, which Moses particularly mentions, but the invisible world also, not expressly mentioned by Moses, was made by Him. See Coloss. i. 15, &c. Dr. Clagett.

All things were made by him;] We read in Gen. i. that God created every thing by His Word. Now, that we are to understand not only a powerful command, but that Divine Person who is called "the Word," is clear from Heb. xi. 2, "Through faith we understand that the worlds were framed by the Word of God," compared with Heb. i. 2; where it is expressly said, that God by the Son made the worlds. Dr. Clagett.

4. In him was life;] In Him was eternal life, as He first brought it to light through the Gospel, 2 Tim. i. 10; promised it to those who believe in Him, John vi. 40; purchased it by His death, Rom. v. 21; and as He will be the dispenser of it. Dr. Whitby.

The Evangelist proceeds from the creation, by "the Word," to the redemption of the world by the same Word. He had declared at ver. 3, that He had given to all creatures their first being; he now shews that He restored "life" to man when he lay dead in trespasses and sins. Dr. Lightfoot.

——and the life was the light of men.] And the doctrine of that life which He taught was the means designed by God to enlighten all mankind and instruct them in their duty. Dr. Hammond.

5. —the light shineth in darkness; &c.] The light is communicated to an ignorant and wicked world; but their minds are so darkened with prejudice and passion, that they refuse it, and are not benefited by it. Dean Stanhope.

7. The same came for a witness,] He was sent by God on purpose to bear witness that Christ was the Messiah, the true teacher sent from heaven, that so, by means of this testimony, all men might believe on Him. Dr. Hammond.

9. That was the true Light,] That person to whom John bare witness "was the true Light," &c. was the real author and fountain of all true wisdom, the original discoverer of all the Divine knowledge, which men in former ages ever had, or shall have in those which are to come. Dr. S. Clarke.

The light of the Law shone only upon the Jews; but this Light spreads itself wider, even over all the world. Dr. Lightfoot.

10. —knew him not.] Owned Him not either as their Maker or Redeemer. Dr. Whitby.

11. He came unto his own,] To the Jewish nation, to whom He was promised, and to whom only He was personally sent,

Anno DOMINI 26.

12 But as many as received him, to them gave he ‖ power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name:

‖ Or, the right, or, privilege.

13 Which were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God.

[e] Matt. 1. 16.

14 [e] And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, (and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father,) full of grace and truth.

15 ¶ John bare witness of him, and cried, saying, This was he of whom I spake, He that cometh after me is preferred before me: for he was before me.

Anno DOMINI 26.

16 And of his [f] fulness have all we received, and grace for grace.

[f] Col. 1. 19.

17 For the law was given by Moses, but grace and truth came by Jesus Christ.

18 [g] No man hath seen God at any time; the only begotten Son, which is in the bosom of the Father, he hath declared him.

[g] 1 John 4. 12. 1 Tim. 6. 16.

19 ¶ And this is the record of John, A.D. 30.

---

being therefore styled, Rom. xv. 8, "a minister of the circumcision for the truth of God;" "and they received Him not," that is, they would not generally own Him as their Messiah and their Saviour. Dr. Whitby.

That the eternal Son of God should condescend to visit, in human form, His people, as their Saviour and Redeemer, is an event which may well be allowed to excite our admiration. But how greatly does our astonishment rise, when we are informed that His people refused to receive so gracious a visitant. Bp. Horne.

—— his own] All the nations of the world were His own by creation and absolute dominion; but the Jews were peculiarly His, as being selected by God from amidst all other nations, to be the depositaries of His sacred oracles, and the preservers of His true worship; and from the eternal Son of God condescending to derive His humanity from their stock. Dr. South.

12. —them gave he power] He gave them the privilege, the liberty, the dignity, "to become" &c. Dr. Lightfoot.

—— to become the sons of God,] Sons of God, not by a natural, but a spiritual birth; not as the Jews, who claimed the special favour of God, by being descended from Abraham, John viii. 33; but in consequence of their taking on themselves the Gospel covenant, which is called, in this verse, believing on the name of Christ. Bp. Mann.

Christ was not rejected by all; for many have believed, and do believe, His promises, and obey His laws; and on these, of what nation soever they be, He hath conferred the high privilege of being the children of God, and of adoption to an everlasting inheritance. For the children of God are the children of the resurrection, who will rise to life and happiness, and die no more. Dr. Clagett.

13. Which were born, not of blood, &c.] Our Lord describes the Christian birth negatively, saying, that it was not of blood, as the birth of nature, nor did it proceed from human appointment as adopted sonships do, but that it was from God. Dr. Twells.

14. And the Word was made flesh, &c.] To the end that mortal man might attain everlasting life, this eternal Word was born in human flesh, assumed our nature, and in this flesh of ours, as in a tabernacle, appeared amongst us most gloriously, in such a manner as was not possible for any, but the one true eternal Son of God. Dr. Hammond.

He "was made flesh" by taking upon Him the likeness, the fashion, the form and nature of man: He became man as well as God, having now the Divine nature as well as the human, not blending or confounding the two, but so uniting them in Himself as to form one person. Bp. Beveridge.

Flesh, which is a part of our nature, stands here for the whole. Our High Priest was incarnate, that He might have something to offer more valuable than the blood of bulls and calves. The nature that sinned was, according to the rules of justice, to suffer for sin; and the Word was made flesh for the same reason that, when so made, He was baptized by John; namely, "to fulfil all righteousness." Bp. Horne.

—— dwelt among us,] The word in the original properly signifies "tabernacled amongst us:" and has an affinity to the Hebrew word used to express God's dwelling by the Shechinah or glorious symbol of His presence. This Shechinah was wanting in the second temple, and the defect was now repaired by the habitation of the Divine nature in the temple of Christ's body. Dr. Whitby.

—— and we beheld his glory,] We have seen the glory, or the Divinity of the Word, conspicuous in the miracles wrought by Him, such as none but "the only begotten Son" of God could perform. Dr. Whitby.

—— full of grace and truth.] Full of "grace" to procure that pardon of sin, and that justification which the law could not give; and of "truth" in opposition to those types and shadows of spiritual blessings and good things to come, of which Christ exhibited the substance and the truth. Dr. Whitby.

As "the Word" dwelt among us full of grace and truth, so by Him only grace and truth came into the world. By Him we may obtain grace to repent truly of our sins, be absolved from all our past offences, be reconciled to our heavenly Father, and accounted righteous in His sight. By Him we may be continually enlightened, influenced, assisted in our whole duty through His Holy Spirit. By Him we may be preserved from all evil during our present life, and when we die, by Him may go to heaven, and there live for ever with Him and His holy angels. Bp. Beveridge.

15. — He that cometh after me &c.] He that follows me, whose forerunner I am, has been, and must always be, infinitely preferred before me: for, though He appears after me among you in respect of His birth and of His entering on His office, yet He had a being long before me, for He existed before the creation of the world, ver. 2, 3; Col. i. 17. Dr. Hammond.

16. And of his fulness have all we &c.] He, being full of graces, excellencies, perfections, hath communicated them to us in that degree which is necessary for us, and in proportion to His abundant charity and goodness towards us. Dr. Hammond.

—— grace for grace.] The grace of God in the new covenant, instead of the grace of God in the old. Beza. For grace conferred, new grace superadded; that is, Christianity for Judaism. Bengelius. Or the meaning may be, "grace upon grace;" that is, most copious and abundant grace. Dathius.

17. —grace and truth] The "grace" of the Gospel, as opposed to the rigour and severity of the Law; and "truth" as opposed to its shadows and ceremonies. Dr. Hammond. To Moses and the Prophets God gave His Spirit in a certain degree of proportion, but to Christ without bounds or measure, chap. iii. 35. And, instead of the limited dispensation of Moses, which, gracious as it was, was but a type and shadow of the Christian revelation, He now gives us that which is the true and real substance of religion, and deserves to be distinguished by the name of grace in the most eminent and superlative sense. Bp. Mann.

18. No man hath seen God &c.] Such an ample manifestation of Himself as this, God never made to mankind before. These things were reserved to be discovered by Him, who alone, being in the bosom of His Father, knew before all ages the secret counsels of God, concerning the redemption and salvation of man. And whatever is yet known concerning them, is only by this revelation of the only-begotten Son of God. Dr. S. Clarke.

19. And this is the record &c.] That which is now to be when the Jews sent priests and Levites from Jerusalem to ask him, Who art thou?

Anno DOMINI 30.

20 And he confessed, and denied not; but confessed, I am not the Christ.

21 And they asked him, What then? Art thou Elias? And he saith, I am not. Art thou ‖ that prophet? And he answered, No.

‖ Or, a prophet.

22 Then said they unto him, Who art thou? that we may give an answer to them that sent us. What sayest thou of thyself?

[h] Matt. 3. 3.

23 [h] He said, I am the voice of one crying in the wilderness, Make straight the way of the Lord, as said the prophet Esaias.

24 And they which were sent were of the Pharisees.

25 And they asked him, and said unto him, Why baptizest thou then, if thou be not that Christ, nor Elias, neither that prophet?

Anno DOMINI 30.

26 John answered them, saying, I baptize with water: but there standeth one among you, whom ye know not;

27 [i] He it is, who coming after me is preferred before me, whose shoe's latchet I am not worthy to unloose.

[i] Matt. 3. 11. Acts 19. 4.

28 These things were done in Bethabara beyond Jordan, where John was baptizing.

29 ¶ The next day John seeth Jesus coming unto him, and saith, Behold the Lamb of God, which ‖ taketh away the sin of the world.

‖ Or, beareth.

---

related seems to have happened after Jesus had been baptized by John, and had been forty days in the wilderness. See ver. 29, 35, 43, and Matt. iii. 7. Bp. Pearce.

The Evangelist, after what has been premised, proceeds to speak of three particular testimonies which John the Baptist gave respecting Jesus, on three successive days. See ver. 29, 35, and 43. Dr. Clagett.

—— the Jews] The Sanhedrim or publick council of the Jews. Dr. Whitby.

20. — confessed, and denied not;] A mode of expression not uncommon, which strengthens the affirmation. See similar expressions at 2 Kings xviii. 36; Isai. xxxviii. 1.

21. — Art thou Elias?] Art thou Elias, whom we expect to appear again in the world, before the coming of Christ, or another of the Prophets restored to life? Bp. Mann. See note at Matt. xvii. 10.

—— that prophet?] Meaning perhaps Jeremiah, of whose return to life there was great expectation among the Jews, Matt. xvi. 14. Grotius. Or generally, Art thou one of the Prophets raised from the dead, which some of us think will be done before Christ comes? Dr. Clagett.

23. — I am the voice &c.] I am the person whom Isaiah thus describes, "The voice," &c. Abp. Newcome. Though I am not Elias in person, yet I have the very same office, as it is described by Isaiah, chap. xl. 3. Bp. Mann.

24. — were of the Pharisees.] The greater part of the Sanhedrim were of this sect. Deeming themselves most exact in the observation of all religious rules and rites, they doubted concerning this new rite of baptism by way of preparation for the Messiah, respecting which their traditions were wholly silent. Dr. Whitby.

26. — I baptize with water: &c.] I baptize, not to establish my own authority, but to make disciples for the Messiah, who will very soon appear, and who is infinitely superiour to me, more so than the greatest among human beings is to the meanest person in his family. Bp. Mann.

In this passage John the Baptist hath set us an excellent example of true humility. The testimony which he bears to our blessed Lord is conceived in terms so respectful and magnificent, that no one could be encouraged to draw the least comparison between Jesus and him. What was strictly due to himself, he very sparingly and modestly delivers; but that which declares the preference due to that eminent Person, whose forerunner he was, bespeaks a reverence as profound, a distance as great, as any words can possibly express. Dean Stanhope.

St. John's reply shews his own humility, and at the same time bears testimony to the dignity of Jesus. "I indeed baptize with water;" my baptism, like my preaching, is preparatory only, leading to another baptism of the Spirit, which shall cleanse the souls of penitents from every thing that defileth, through faith in the Messiah and His heavenly doctrine. And this Messiah is not far off, as ye imagine Him to be: "there standeth One among you, whom ye know not;" He appears like other men, lowly, unattended, undistinguished; He doth not as yet think proper to manifest His power and glory; but hereafter ye will find Him to be far other than He seems. As to myself, of whom some are pleased to entertain an high opinion, I am nothing; He who cometh after me is preferred before me, as much as the greatest master is preferred before the meanest of his servants, who is deemed unworthy to perform the least office about his person. This testimony did St. John give to the Saviour of the world, in the presence of the priests, Levites, and people. Intent upon humbling himself, that his great Lord and Master might be exalted, he declared himself a messenger only, sent to prepare His ways; and every thing in him, and about him, spake the same language. Bp. Horne.

28. — in Bethabara beyond Jordan,] The word Bethabara means 'a place of passage,' and it is supposed that this village was situated on Jordan, over against Jericho, at the place where the Israelites under Joshua passed that river, Josh. iii. 16. Dr. Wells.

29. The next day] The day after the return of the Pharisees. Dr. Hammond.

—— Behold the Lamb of God, &c.] Behold the Person sent from God, as a lamb prepared for slaughter, (in whom are fulfilled all the Mosaical ordinances respecting the paschal and other sacrifices,) who shall thereby obtain pardon from God for the sins of the world, provided they reform and repent at His coming. Dr. Hammond.

He thus points out Jesus as the expiatory sacrifice, as the grand atonement for the sins of mankind foretold by the Prophet Isaiah, chap. liii; as applied by our Lord to Himself, Luke xxii. 37; and by the Holy Spirit, Acts viii. 32—35: for He was the true paschal Lamb, typified in the mysterious institution of the Passover, who was to be "slain from the foundation of the world." Dr. Hales.

Behold here, says the Baptist, Him of whom I spake to you, the Lamb without spot or blemish, the perfect emblem of innocence and patience; "the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world;" the Lamb typified by all the legal sacrifices, and especially that of the Passover. Yea, behold the Lamb of God, a Lamb not of an earthly but Divine extraction, the Lamb of God's own choosing and appointment, the Lamb offered up by God Himself unto Himself; the Lamb that taketh away sin, not some particular sin, but sin in general, the strength as well as the guilt of sin, our inclinations to it, as well as our obligations to punishment for it; the sin not only of some particular persons, but of the whole world, the sin not only of Abraham's, but of Adam's posterity, the sin of the Gentiles as well as of the Jews: for "He is the propitiation for our sins: and not for our's only, but also for the sins of the whole world," 1 John ii. 2. Bp. Beveridge.

—— of the world.] Not of one nation only, like the legal sacrifices, but of the whole world. Abp. Newcome.

Anno DOMINI 30.

30 This is he of whom I said, After me cometh a man which is preferred before me: for he was before me.

31 And I knew him not: but that he should be made manifest to Israel, therefore am I come baptizing with water.

[k] Matt. 3. 16.

32 [k] And John bare record, saying, I saw the Spirit descending from heaven like a dove, and it abode upon him.

33 And I knew him not: but he that sent me to baptize with water, the same said unto me, Upon whom thou shalt see the Spirit descending, and remaining on him, the same is he which baptizeth with the Holy Ghost.

34 And I saw, and bare record that this is the Son of God.

35 ¶ Again the next day after John stood, and two of his disciples;

36 And looking upon Jesus as he walked, he saith, Behold the Lamb of God!

37 And the two disciples heard him speak, and they followed Jesus.

38 Then Jesus turned, and saw them following, and saith unto them, What seek ye? They said unto him, Rabbi, (which is to say, being interpreted, Master,) where || dwellest thou?

|| Or, abidest.

39 He saith unto them, Come and see. They came and saw where he dwelt, and abode with him that day: for it was || about the tenth hour.

|| That was two hours before night.

40 One of the two which heard John speak, and followed him, was Andrew, Simon Peter's brother.

Anno DOMINI 30.

41 He first findeth his own brother Simon, and saith unto him, We have found the Messias, which is, being interpreted, || the Christ.

|| Or, the anointed.

42 And he brought him to Jesus. And when Jesus beheld him, he said, Thou art Simon the son of Jona: thou shalt be called Cephas, which is by interpretation, || A stone.

|| Or, Peter.

43 ¶ The day following Jesus would go forth into Galilee, and findeth Philip, and saith unto him, Follow me.

44 Now Philip was of Bethsaida, the city of Andrew and Peter.

45 Philip findeth Nathanael, and saith unto him, We have found him, of whom [l] Moses in the law, and the [m] prophets, did write, Jesus of Nazareth, the son of Joseph.

[l] Gen. 49. 10. Deut. 18. 18.
[m] Isai. 4. 2.

46 And Nathanael said unto him, Can there any good thing come out of Nazareth? Philip saith unto him, Come and see.

47 Jesus saw Nathanael coming to him, and saith of him, Behold an Israelite indeed, in whom is no guile!

48 Nathanael saith unto him, Whence knowest thou me? Jesus answered and said unto him, Before that Philip called thee,

---

31. And I knew him not:] Though I knew that the Messiah was about to appear, yet I had not a perfect knowledge that Jesus was He, until, ver. 33, it was revealed to me that He should be declared by the descent of the Spirit. See Matt. iii. 24. Bp. Mann.

33. — baptizeth with the Holy Ghost.] See Acts ii. 4.

35. — and two of his disciples;] One of the two was Andrew, ver. 40. The other is thought to have been St. John the Evangelist himself, who usually conceals his name. Dr. Whitby.

36. — Behold the Lamb of God!] Behold that blessed Person prefigured in the Law and foretold by the Prophets; one that is all meekness and innocence, patience and resignation, without offence in His mouth, without guile or malice in His heart, without spot or blemish in soul or body; the Lamb, which Abraham told his son Isaac, that God would in time provide; the Lamb, by the sprinkling of whose blood, true Israelites are preserved from the destroyer; the sacrifice on which are laid the iniquities of us all; the Saviour, who, by expiating, taketh away the sin of the world, and conferreth righteousness on them that will believe in Him, and accept it from Him, being conformed to His example of lowliness and meekness. Bp. Horne.

39. — about the tenth hour.] About two hours before sunset, according to the Jewish reckoning.

41. — We have found the Messias,] This expression implies, that their minds had long been filled with an expectation and desire of the coming of the Messiah. Dr. Clagett.

—— the Messias, which &c.] The promised Messiah, or, as He is in Greek called, "the Christ," that is, God's anointed, sent by Him with a special commission from heaven, whom we have long expected as the Redeemer of Israel. Dr. Hammond.

—— the Christ.] As the title Jesus marks the person of our Lord, so does that of Christ denote His office. It is applied to Him to shew, that as formerly by the ceremony of anointing, God consecrated those whom He called to some certain offices, so was this Jesus to be separated, though not by a visible unction, yet by the invisible power and grace of the Holy Spirit, for all those offices to which men were anointed by God's special appointment; namely, the offices of a Prophet, a Priest, and a King. Thus, Acts x. 38, "God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Ghost and with power." See Matt. iii. 16, 17; John iii. 34. Abp. Wake.

42. — A stone.] Or a rock, upon whose preaching the foundation of My church shall be laid. Dr. Whitby. See note at Matt. xvi. 18.

44. Now Philip was &c.] The Evangelist here gives the reason of the readiness of Philip to become the disciple of Jesus; namely, that he and Andrew and Peter, being all neighbours of the same city, had often conversed together about the Messiah, and kindled in one another earnest desires of His appearance. Dr. Clagett.

45. — findeth Nathanael,] It is thought by many that this Nathanael was the same as Bartholomew; and, therefore, one of our Lord's Apostles. Dr. Clagett.

46. — Can there any good thing come out of Nazareth?] Nathanael, knowing from the prophecies that Christ was to be born at Bethlehem, and being moreover prejudiced with an opinion that Nazareth, where he concluded that Jesus was born, was a wicked place, replied, Is it possible that any great Prophet should arise out of Nazareth; how much less the Messiah? Dr. S. Clarke.

47. — Behold an Israelite indeed,] Of that simplicity and integrity which is much valued by God, of the temper described in Jacob, Gen. xxv. 27. Dr. Hammond.

Anno DOMINI 30.

when thou wast under the fig tree, I saw thee.

49 Nathanael answered and saith unto him, Rabbi, thou art the Son of God; thou art the King of Israel.

50 Jesus answered and said unto him, Because I said unto thee, I saw thee under the fig tree, believest thou? thou shalt see greater things than these.

51 And he saith unto him, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Hereafter ye shall see heaven open, and the angels of God ascending and descending upon the Son of man.

CHAP. II.

1 Christ turneth water into wine, 12 departeth into Capernaum, and to Jerusalem, 14 where he purgeth the temple of buyers and sellers. 19 He foretelleth his death and resurrection. 23 Many believed because of his miracles, but he would not trust himself with them.

AND the third day there was a marriage in Cana of Galilee; and the mother of Jesus was there:

2 And both Jesus was called, and his disciples, to the marriage.

3 And when they wanted wine, the mother of Jesus saith unto him, They have no wine.

Anno DOMINI 30.

4 Jesus saith unto her, Woman, what have I to do with thee? mine hour is not yet come.

5 His mother saith unto the servants, Whatsoever he saith unto you, do it.

6 And there were set there six waterpots of stone, after the manner of the purifying of the Jews, containing two or three firkins apiece.

7 Jesus saith unto them, Fill the waterpots with water. And they filled them up to the brim.

8 And he saith unto them, Draw out now, and bear unto the governor of the feast. And they bare it.

9 When the ruler of the feast had tasted the water that was made wine, and knew not whence it was: (but the servants which drew the water knew;) the governor of the feast called the bridegroom,

10 And saith unto him, Every man at the beginning doth set forth good wine; and when men have well drunk, then that which is worse: but thou hast kept the good wine until now.

11 This beginning of miracles did Jesus in Cana of Galilee, and manifested forth his glory; and his disciples believed on him.

---

48. — when thou wast under the fig tree, I saw thee.] He had probably there sequestered himself from the view of men, for prayer, meditation, or some religious performance. Dr. Lightfoot.

49. Nathanael answered &c.] The proof of a Divine Spirit, just displayed by Jesus, so perfectly overruled Nathanael's objections, that he at once acknowledged Him to be the Son of God and the King of Israel. Dr. Clagett.

—— the King of Israel.] The expected Messiah, the King and Saviour of God's people. Dr. S. Clarke.

50. — thou shalt see greater things] Thou shalt have stronger and more convincing proofs than these, to confirm thy faith in Me, as the Messiah. Dr. Whitby.

51. — Hereafter ye shall see &c.] Christ seems to allude to the vision of Jacob, Gen. xxviii. 12, 13; and His meaning is, that the miracles which His disciples would see performed by Him, would declare the Divine Majesty present with Him, and giving Him those commands which He was to execute by His prophetical office, no less clearly than if they had seen the angels of God ascending and descending on Him. Dr. Whitby.

Chap. II. ver. 1. And the third day] Perhaps the third day from Simon's coming to Christ, chap. i. 42. Dr. Whitby.

—— Cana of Galilee;] Called "of Galilee" to distinguish it from another town of the same name, mentioned at Josh. xix. 28; it lay in the tribe of Zebulun, not far from Nazareth. Dr. Wells.

2. And both Jesus was called,] On this occasion, as on many others, our Lord shewed that His religion was not morose and unsocial; and He discountenanced by His example that course of rigid abstinence and mortification, by which some, who would be thought His most perfect disciples, have disgraced the Gospel. Abp. Newcome.

—— to the marriage.] To the marriage feast.

4. — Woman, what have I to do with thee?] The expression of "woman," in the ancient languages, conveys no idea of disrespect, but is used to females of the first rank. Our Saviour replies to her, This is an affair in which you are no way concerned; leave it therefore to Me, and I will choose a proper time for it. Bp. Mann. He signifies that this was not a matter proper for her authority to interpose in; and that miracles were not to be wrought for gratifying the requests of friends, but had their proper seasons, of which He was the best judge. Dean Stanhope. The expression, rendered "what have I to do with thee?" was no more than a common expression of some gentle rebuke for intermeddling in another's province, 2 Sam. xix. 22; xvi. 10; 2 Kings iii. 13. Bp. Law.

When our Lord had given this gentle rebuke, with the authority of a Prophet sent from God, and with a design to prevent a similar interference in future, He suffered her request to sway with Him; and seems to have made the first display of His glorious power partly in deference to her. Abp. Newcome.

—— mine hour is not yet come.] My time for manifesting My glory by My miracles is not yet come. Dr. Whitby.

5. His mother saith unto the servants,] This shews that she did not consider His word as an absolute denial, but only as an intimation that He would reserve Himself for the proper opportunity. Dean Stanhope.

6. — after the manner of the purifying &c.] The waterpots were placed there, that the guests might wash their hands before they made their meal, which is still the constant practice of the Jews. The Syrian firkin, (or metretes, as it is called in Bp. Cumberland's tables,) held somewhat more than seven pints of our measure. Bp. Mann.

8. — the governor of the feast.] It was usual for the governour of the feast to bless what was prepared in the cup, and, having drunk of it thus blessed, to send it about to the whole company; on which account it is that our Saviour desires the servants to bear to the governour of the feast. Dr. Whitby. This governour was a person, whose business it was to see the entertainment managed in an orderly manner. Dean Stanhope.

10. — when men have well drunk,] Towards the end of the feast, when the guests have drunk a good deal. Dr. S. Clarke.

11. This beginning of miracles &c.] This was the first instance which Jesus gave of His Divine power; and it produced its intended effect, by confirming the faith of those disciples who had

Anno DOMINI 30.

12 ¶ After this he went down to Capernaum, he, and his mother, and his brethren, and his disciples: and they continued there not many days.

13 ¶ And the Jews' passover was at hand, and Jesus went up to Jerusalem,

14 And found in the temple those that sold oxen and sheep and doves, and the changers of money sitting:

15 And when he had made a scourge of small cords, he drove them all out of the temple, and the sheep, and the oxen; and poured out the changers' money, and overthrew the tables;

16 And said unto them that sold doves, Take these things hence; make not my Father's house an house of merchandise.

17 And his disciples remembered that it [a] was written, [a] The zeal of thine house hath eaten me up.

[a] Ps. 69. 9.

18 ¶ Then answered the Jews and said unto him, What sign shewest thou unto us, seeing that thou doest these things?

Anno DOMINI 30.

19 Jesus answered and said unto them, [b] Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up.

[b] Matt. 26. 61.

20 Then said the Jews, Forty and six years was this temple in building, and wilt thou rear it up in three days?

21 But he spake of the temple of his body.

22 When therefore he was risen from the dead, his disciples remembered that he had said this unto them; and they believed the scripture, and the word which Jesus had said.

23 ¶ Now when he was in Jerusalem at the passover, in the feast day, many believed in his name, when they saw the miracles which he did.

lately come to Him, chap. i. By the expression, "manifested forth His glory," we are to understand that Christ, by the miracle which He performed, plainly proved His power to be Divine. And who indeed less than God could have the creatures of this lower world so absolutely at His disposal, as to make them start from their fixed laws of being, and change their natures and qualities in an instant? He only could repeal the laws of nature, who made them. He only could alter their forms who at first appointed them. And, when this was done without invoking the aid of any higher power, it shewed that the authority by which He did it was supreme, as well as that the creatures, on which the authority was exercised, were entirely His own. Dean Stanhope.

As our Lord's conversation was on all occasions free and familiar, open and undisguised, sober and rational, His carriage free from all rigid and unnatural severity, so His miraculous works were no less evident signs of mercy, goodness, generosity, than of power; and equally adapted to convince men's understandings and engage their affections, as to remove their maladies or relieve their wants. This His first publick miracle was nothing more than a becoming act of kindness and humanity, in preventing the confusion of a poor relation, by a very seasonable supply of what was wanting in his entertainment; which want perhaps could not have been otherwise supplied, and was probably occasioned by the extraordinary concourse He Himself drew thither: and His last miracle (Luke xxii. 51.) was nothing less than an instance of the highest and most undeserved compassion in healing the wound of one who came to take away His life. Bp. Law.

13. — the Jews' passover] As St. John was writing for the use of the Gentile converts, he calls it the passover of the Jews. Grotius.

—— and Jesus went up to Jerusalem,] In obedience to the Law of Moses, which enjoined that every male should appear before the Lord at this season, Exod. xxiii. 17; Deut. xvi. 16. Dr. Doddridge.

14. And found in the temple &c.] It appears that Christ twice drove the buyers from the temple; once at the beginning, and once again, Matt. xxi. 12, towards the close, of His ministry. The other three Evangelists say nothing of this present incident. It is related by St. John chiefly as giving occasion to the words respecting the destroying of the temple, ver. 19, which were afterwards brought as matter of accusation against Him; and it therefore throws much light on the history of His passion, Matt. xxvi. 61; xxvii. 40. Grotius.

16. — my Father's house] Thus indirectly calling Himself the Son of God, or the Messiah. Abp. Newcome.

17. And his disciples remembered &c.] They called to mind the words of the Psalmist at Ps. lxix. 9, which mean, I am as tender of any dishonour done to Thy house or to Thee, as if it were done to myself, (Rom. xv. 3,) and so am stirred with zeal to vindicate it. Dr. Hammond.

18. — What sign shewest thou &c.] What evidence dost Thou bring, or what miracles dost Thou perform, to shew that Thou art really invested with such authority as these Thine acts pretend to? Dr. Hammond.

There had been no miracle performed in Israel, nor had any Prophet appeared for 400 years, from the time when the Holy Spirit had departed from that nation, and the prophecies had ceased. It is therefore not to be wondered that the Jews were suspicious of Christ's assuming the prophetical office, and that they required a sign. Dr. Lightfoot.

19. — Destroy this temple, &c.] Meaning that, whereas they would shortly destroy His body, (a more holy Temple than that which they had then profaned,) He, by His Divine power, would within three days raise it up again. Dr. S. Clarke. The sign which He here gives is the same as "the sign of the Prophet Jonas," at Matt. xii. 39, 40.

20. — Forty and six years &c.] They speak of the temple, as it was repaired or new built by Herod. Josephus relates, that Herod began this work in the eighteenth year of his reign, which was about sixteen years before the birth of Christ. And, as Christ was at this time thirty years of age, they rightly state that it had been forty and six years in building. Herod, it appears, finished it so as to be fit for use in about nine years, and it continued long after, increasing in splendour and magnificence, through the pious donations of the people, till the time of Nero. Drs. Lightfoot and Whitby.

22. When therefore he was risen &c.] Though this prediction was for the present dark and hard to be understood; yet afterwards, when the accomplishment made it clear in the event, it proved a great confirmation of the disciples' faith. Dr. S. Clarke.

This verse seems to be added by the Evangelist, on purpose to shew that this answer of our Lord, although at the time obscure, was no unprofitable or lost saying. Dr. Clagett.

23. — in the feast day,] Rather, 'at the time of the feast.' Dr. Whitby.

—— many believed — when they saw the miracles which he did.] Thus the faith of our Lord's followers was originally founded, not on blind credulity, but on rational conviction; not on internal persuasion alone, but on clear and stupendous miracles; proofs submitted to their senses and approved by their reason, which enthusiasm could not have counterfeited, and never would have required; and, at every step of its progress, as their faith was called to signalize itself by new exertions, and to sustain new trials, it was fortified by new proofs. Dr. Graves.

Anno DOMINI 30.

24 But Jesus did not commit himself unto them, because he knew all men,

25 And needed not that any should testify of man: for he knew what was in man.

CHAP. III.

1 Christ teacheth Nicodemus the necessity of regeneration. 14 Of faith in his death. 16 The great love of God towards the world. 18 Condemnation for unbelief. 23 The baptism, witness, and doctrine of John concerning Christ.

THERE was a man of the Pharisees, named Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews:

2 The same came to Jesus by night, and said unto him, Rabbi, we know that thou art a teacher come from God: for no man can do these miracles that thou doest, except God be with him.

Anno DOMINI 30.

3 Jesus answered and said unto him, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born ‖ again, he cannot see the kingdom of God.

‖ Or, from above.

4 Nicodemus saith unto him, How can a man be born when he is old? can he enter the second time into his mother's womb, and be born?

5 Jesus answered, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God.

---

24. — did not commit himself unto them,] Did not confide in them, as His sincere disciples, because He knew the hearts of all men. This is an ample proof of the Divinity of Christ, since the knowledge of the secrets of men's hearts is declared to be the property of God alone, 1 Kings viii. 39; Ps. xxxiii. 15. Dr. Whitby.

25. And needed not that any should testify] He needed no information what men were, either from themselves or others, since He immediately knew the very hearts and thoughts of all men. Dr. Clagett.

Chap. III. ver. 1. There was — a ruler of the Jews:] There was at Jerusalem "a ruler of the Jews;" meaning, a member of the great council, the Sanhedrim, Luke viii. 41; xviii. 18; John vii. 50. Beausobre.

2. — came to Jesus by night,] He believed in private, but did not care to offend the other Pharisees and rulers; on which account he came by night to confer privately with Jesus. Dean Stanhope.

In the beginning of this chapter we have the mystery of the Holy Trinity presented to our contemplation. In this verse, express and distinct mention is made of God the Father, by whose power and immediate presence with Jesus, the miracles were wrought. There is also mention of the Son, ver. 13, who declares Himself to have come down from heaven, and even to be in heaven at the instant of His conversing with Nicodemus on earth; and of that Holy Spirit, ver. 5, 6, whose prolifick operation upon the waters of baptism effects the new and spiritual, as of old it did the natural, creation, when moving on the face of the yet unformed deep; and whose sanctifying graces (ver. 7, 8) act powerfully, though often undiscernibly, in changing the minds of men. Dean Stanhope.

—— we know that thou art &c.] He thus begins with an ingenuous acknowledgment, that the miracles which Jesus wrought were a sufficient evidence to him of His Divine authority and mission. Dean Stanhope. By using the term "we," Nicodemus seems to speak not only for himself, but for some others who agreed with him in opinion. Beausobre.

Here we remark, that a ruler of the Jews, a teacher in Israel, a person who was eminent for rank, learning, and influence in the Jewish state, acknowledged, not only that Jesus wrought miracles, but that miracles were a proof of a Divine mission. Whence is it then that some amongst ourselves have contended, that Jesus wrought no miracles; and that, if He had wrought them, they would not have been a proof that He was sent from God? Bp. Watson.

3. Jesus answered and said &c.] In this interesting conversation with Nicodemus, our Lord communicates to him the fundamental doctrines of the Christian faith. 1st, The necessity of new birth or regeneration by baptism and the Holy Spirit to salvation, ver. 3—11. 2nd, The redemption of mankind by the death of Christ, through faith; of which death the brasen serpent was a type, ver. 12—15. 3rd, The original cause of this mode of redemption, the love of God, ver. 16—18. Dr. Hales.

Jesus, observing that Nicodemus said nothing of the excellency and power of His doctrine, to change the hearts and reform the lives of men, but only of the miracles, by which it was confirmed, says to him, This acknowledgment of thine will not be sufficient to render thee a member of My kingdom: except a man be born again, that is, renewed in his mind, will, and affections by the operations of the Holy Spirit, and so become a new creature, 2 Cor. v. 17, he cannot enjoy the blessings of the kingdom of God. Dr. Whitby.

5. — Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, &c.] Our Saviour corrects his misapprehension, by acquainting him, that the birth, of which He spake, was effected by the washing of water upon the outward man, and the sanctification of the Holy Ghost in the inward man. For (ver. 6.) all births answer to the principle that causes them; as therefore carnal births proceed from the flesh, so a spiritual birth proceeds from the Spirit, as its vital principle. Dean Stanhope.

Baptism, our Lord tells him in this answer, is the ordinance of God, by which all mankind are to be admitted into the kingdom of God, or the Gospel state: a baptism which is to be distinguished from Pharisaical and legal ablutions; the value of it not consisting, like theirs, so much in the outward rite, as in the attendant and inward efficacy of the Spirit. Dr. Lightfoot.

—— of water and of the Spirit,] That our Lord here speaks of baptismal regeneration, the whole Christian church from its earliest times has invariably taught. Dr. Whitby.

That we may be thus born of the Spirit, we must be born also of water; not as if there was any virtue in water, whereby it could regenerate us, but because this is the rite or ordinance appointed by Christ, wherein He regenerates us by His Holy Spirit: our regeneration is wholly the act of the Spirit of Christ. But there must be something done on our part in order to it, and something that is instituted and ordained by Divine authority, which in the Old Testament was circumcision; in the new, baptism or washing with water; the easiest that could be invented, and the most proper to signify His cleansing and regenerating us by His Holy Spirit. And, since this is instituted by Christ Himself, as we cannot be born of water without the Spirit, so neither can we, in an ordinary way, be born of the Spirit without water, used or applied in obedience and conformity to His institution. Christ has joined them together, and it is not in our power to separate them. He that would be born of the Spirit must be born of water also. Bp. Beveridge.

Baptism is a new birth, by which we enter into the new world, the new creation, the blessings and spiritualities of the kingdom. And this is the expression which our Lord Himself uses to Nicodemus, "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit:" it is called also by St. Paul, the laver of regeneration. For now we begin to be reckoned in a new account; God is become our Father, Christ our elder brother, the Spirit the earnest of our inheritance, the Church our mother, our food is the body and blood of our Lord, faith is our learning, religion our employment, our whole life is spiritual, heaven the object of our hopes, and the mighty prize of our high calling. Bp. Taylor.

Anno DOMINI 30.

6 That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit.

7 Marvel not that I said unto thee, Ye must be born ‖ again.

‖ Or, from above.

8 The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth: so is every one that is born of the Spirit.

9 Nicodemus answered and said unto him, How can these things be?

10 Jesus answered and said unto him, Art thou a master of Israel, and knowest not these things?

11 Verily, verily, I say unto thee, We speak that we do know, and testify that we have seen; and ye receive not our witness.

12 If I have told you earthly things, and ye believe not, how shall ye believe, if I tell you of heavenly things?

Anno DOMINI 30.

13 And no man hath ascended up to heaven, but he that came down from heaven, even the Son of man which is in heaven.

14 ¶ [a] And as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of man be lifted up:

[a] Numb. 21. 9.

15 That whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life.

16 ¶ [b] For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.

[b] 1 John 4. 9.

17 [c] For God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved.

[c] Chap. 12. 47.

---

8. The wind bloweth where it listeth, &c.] By this comparison our Lord implies, that, as in nature there are things imperceptible to our senses, the effects, however, of which are very obvious; so much more is this the case in spiritual things. Beausobre.

Our Saviour intimates, that the effects of God's Holy Spirit in the regeneration of men are perceptible, though the manner and degrees of His operation on their souls are so various that we can give no account of them. Abp. Tillotson.

——so is every one that is born of the Spirit.] The effects produced in him by the Holy Spirit are plainly discernible, although the operations of the Spirit which produce the change are not perceptible, and the renewed person cannot distinguish them from the inward workings of his own mind. Dr. Whitby.

10.—Art thou a master of Israel,] What is there in all that I have yet said, which an ordinary Jew, much more one of the great council, might not well understand? Do not you yourself make proselytes by washing them with water, and count them newborn persons? and, as for that inward purity of which I speak, have not the Prophets foretold that God will plentifully communicate His Spirit in the days of the Messiah for that purpose? See Jer. xxxii. 39; Ezek. xxxvi. 26, 27. Dr. Clagett.

11.—We speak that we do know, &c.] I deliver to you what I know to be certainly true; but "ye receive not our witness;" ye do not believe and own the truth which is confirmed by My miracles. Dr. Whitby.

12.—of heavenly things?] Of My descent from heaven, and My abiding there still. Dr. Whitby.

13.—but he that came down &c.] In this verse the Son is said to have come down from heaven, in respect of the union of His Divinity with the human nature, and His special residence in it here below; and yet He is said to be still in heaven, in respect of His Divinity, by which He is every where present. Abp. Tillotson.

14. And as Moses lifted up &c.] Great as this Son of man is, He must die for the sins of the world; and being lifted up upon the cross, must fulfil what was typified by Moses's lifting up the brasen serpent; and by these means will bring to everlasting life all that believe in Him, as all that looked on the brasen serpent were cured of their diseases. Dr. Hammond.

16.—God so loved the world,] God loved the world, the whole race of mankind, in such an extraordinary and wonderful manner, that He gave for their salvation His own and only Son, to whom He had communicated from all eternity His own unbegotten essence. How great a gift was this! What could He give more, what could He give greater? In this the infinity of His love shines forth as gloriously, as His infinite power and wisdom do in the creation and government of the world. Bp. Beveridge.

How glorious an effect is it of God's wonderful love to man, that He should give His only begotten Son, of the same Divine nature and perfections with Himself; give Him up to a painful and ignominious death, and that for those who daily and hourly commit the heaviest offences against Him! Dean Stanhope.

The highest instance and testimony of God's love to us is our redemption from sin and eternal death, by the blood of His only Son; and, as the most effectual way to raise and cherish a suitable return of love towards Him in our hearts, we should frequently commemorate our redemption by attending the holy Sacrament. For, in this sacred rite, the love of God to us is set before us in so sensible and affecting a manner, as cannot fail to engage all those to a proper return of love and obedience, who, by often repeating this memorial of His mercy and goodness, keep up in their hearts a lively sense of their unspeakable obligations towards Him. Bp. Gibson.

——the world,] The end of Christ's coming was to give light unto the world, to call sinners to repentance, to cast out the prince of this world, to reconcile us in the body of His flesh, to dissolve the works of the devil; to become a propitiation for our sins, and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world. Church Homilies.

He came into the world, that, dying once and offering Himself for all, He might, so much as pertained to Him, take all men's sins upon Himself. Abp. Cranmer.

He was sent to make a sacrifice and oblation upon the cross, which was a full redemption, and propitiation for the sins of the whole world. Bp. Ridley.

In this and many other passages of the New Testament, relating to the motive and design of Christ's advent, God's love for the world is declared in general terms: and these texts are most irreconcileable with the opinion, that God selected out of mankind a certain number whom He ordained to save, and that He left the rest of mankind to perish everlastingly. For how could God be said to love those to whom He denies the means of salvation; whom He destines by an irrevocable decree to eternal misery? Bp. Tomline.

What did Jesus mean by that expression "the world?" Not, surely, what Nicodemus probably believed Him to mean—the Jewish nation as distinguished from the people of the Gentiles: not, it is humbly apprehended, what from the age of St. Austin to the present time many have understood Him to mean; the regenerated, the justified, the elected, the predestinated few, as distinguished from the reprobated many: No, the world which God so greatly loved as to send His only-begotten for its salvation, is the whole race of mankind propagated from Adam, and in consequence of his transgression, subjected to everlasting death. Bp. Watson.

17. For God sent not his Son &c.] Notwithstanding the wickedness of the world, God sent not His Son to take vengeance on mankind for their sin; but for quite a different purpose, that of saving them from it. Dr. Clagett.

Anno DOMINI 30.

18 ¶ He that believeth on him is not condemned: but he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God.

[d] Chap. 1. 4.

19 And this is the condemnation, [d] that light is come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil.

20 For every one that doeth evil hateth the light, neither cometh to the light, lest his deeds should be ‖ reproved.

‖ Or, discovered.

21 But he that doeth truth cometh to the light, that his deeds may be made manifest, that they are wrought in God.

22 ¶ After these things came Jesus and his disciples into the land of Judea; and there he tarried with them, [e] and baptized.

[e] Chap. 4. 2.

23 ¶ And John also was baptizing in Ænon near to Salim, because there was much water there: and they came, and were baptized.

Anno DOMINI 30.

24 For John was not yet cast into prison.

25 ¶ Then there arose a question between some of John's disciples and the Jews about purifying.

26 And they came unto John, and said unto him, Rabbi, he that was with thee beyond Jordan, [f] to whom thou barest witness, behold, the same baptizeth, and all men come to him.

[f] Chap. 1. 7, 34.

27 John answered and said, [g] A man can ‖ receive nothing, except it be given him from heaven.

[g] Heb. 5. 4. ‖ Or, take unto himself.

28 Ye yourselves bear me witness, that I said, [h] I am not the Christ, but that I am sent before him.

[h] Chap. 1. 20.

---

18. He that believeth &c.] He that believeth on the Son of God, embracing His doctrine and obeying His commands, shall certainly escape the punishment of sin, and obtain the reward of everlasting life; but, on the contrary, whosoever wilfully and finally rejects this great salvation, abusing the mercy of God, and despising His proffered means of grace, will incur condemnation without remedy and without excuse, because he obstinately withstands the greatest evidences of truth, and the most gracious terms of salvation. Dr. S. Clarke.

19. And this is the condemnation, &c.] The aggravation of the crime, and the justice of the punishment, of those who believe not, appears in this, that they stand out against the clearest evidence, and refuse their own manifest advantage, from that prepossession of mind which their own sins and lusts have brought upon them. Dean Stanhope.

"This is the condemnation," this very thing condemns them, and argues the height of their folly and guilt, that, when "light is come into the world," they prefer darkness before it. Abp. Tillotson.

——light is come into the world,] That is, the Son of God is come, bringing the doctrine and knowledge of salvation to the world. Abp. Tillotson.

The light here meant can be no other than that Divine one of revelation, which brought life and immortality along with it. The Christian dispensation is constantly and uniformly described in holy writ under this figure, from the time that the first faint glimmering of it appeared at a distance, till it shone forth in its full lustre and glory. It is of the same use to the spiritual, that the light of the sun is to the natural world. It gives life, health, and vigour to God's new creation; it makes the day of salvation to dawn upon us, it opens to us the prospect of another and a better life, and guides us in the way to happiness and glory. Bp. Porteus.

——men loved darkness rather than light,] Thus too often men of dissolute lives cry down religion, because they are unwilling to submit to its restraints: they are loth to be tied up by the strict law and rules of it: it is their interest more than any reason they have against it, which makes them despise it; they hate it because they are reproved by it. Abp. Tillotson.

——because their deeds were evil.] What can be the reason that some men still persist in rejecting the light of the Gospel? They will tell us perhaps, that it is because the Gospel is full of incredible mysteries; but our Saviour tells us, and He tells us more truly, that it is, "because their deeds are evil." The mysteries and difficulties of the Gospel can be no real objection to any man that considers what mysteries occur, and what insuperable objections may be started, in almost every branch of human knowledge. If we can admit no religion that is not free from mystery, we must be content without any religion at all. Even the religion of nature itself, the whole constitution both of the natural and of the moral world, is full of mystery. It is not then because the Gospel has too little light for these men that they reject it, but because it has too much. "For every one that doeth evil hateth the light,—lest his deeds should be reproved." For sinners, the light of the Gospel is much too prying and inquisitive. It reveals certain things which they would wish to conceal from all the world, and, if possible, from themselves. Nay, what is more, it not only reveals, but it reproves them. It strikes them with an evidence which they cannot bear; an evidence not only of its own truth, but of their unworthy conduct. The Gospel does indeed offend them; but it is not their understanding, it is their conscience, that is shocked; they could easily credit what it requires them to believe, but they cannot, or rather they will not, practise what it commands them to do. Bp. Porteus.

23. —Ænon near to Salim,] These two places are commonly supposed to be in Galilee near the river Jordan. Beausobre.

——and were baptized.] It appears from chap. iv. 2, that it was not Jesus Himself, but His disciples that baptized. Bp. Mann.

24. For John was not yet &c.] This, among other passages, seems to shew that St. John wrote his Gospel to supply the omissions of the other Gospels; for he does not describe the circumstances of the death of John the Baptist, but alludes to his imprisonment as a fact well known. Dr. Doddridge.

25. —about purifying.] The dispute was probably about the nature and use of St. John's baptism. Bp. Mann.

27. John answered and said, &c.] By the part of St. John's character and conduct here displayed, in his repressing the jealousy of his followers, and asserting the superiority and glory of Christ, in how pleasing a manner are the ministers of Christ instructed, that they are to bear testimony to Him, not to themselves; to seek His glory, not their own; that they should take pleasure in the success of their brethren's labours, by which the cause of their common Master is promoted; that the rising lights of the Church should do honour to those who have gone before them, and the setting ones rejoice to be outshone by those who are coming after them; that envy and jealousy, in short, ought to have no place among the disciples of the Lamb of God, on whom descended and abode the celestial Dove! Bp. Horne.

——A man can receive nothing, &c.] One who by Divine authority is entrusted with any commission, cannot exceed that commission: since therefore God has only made me the forerunner of the Messiah, I cannot pretend to be equal with Him. Dr. Whitby.

28. Ye yourselves bear me witness,] See ver. 26, and chap. i. 20.

——but that I am sent before him.] As His messenger and minister, not to assemble disciples in mine own name, but to prepare men for Him, and direct men to Him. Bp. Horne.

Anno DOMINI 30.

29 He that hath the bride is the bridegroom: but the friend of the bridegroom, which standeth and heareth him, rejoiceth greatly because of the bridegroom's voice: this my joy therefore is fulfilled.

30 He must increase, but I must decrease.

31 He that cometh from above is above all: he that is of the earth is earthly, and speaketh of the earth: he that cometh from heaven is above all.

32 And what he hath seen and heard, that he testifieth; and no man receiveth his testimony.

33 He that hath received his testimony [i] hath set to his seal that God is true.

34 For he whom God hath sent speaketh the words of God: for God giveth not the Spirit by measure unto him.

35 [k] The Father loveth the Son, and hath given all things into his hand.

36 [l] He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life: and he that believeth not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him.

[i] Rom. 3. 4.

[k] Matt. 11. 27.

[l] Hab. 2. 4. 1 John 5. 10.

Anno DOMINI 30.

CHAP. IV.

1 Christ talketh with a woman of Samaria, and revealeth himself unto her. 27 His disciples marvel. 31 He declareth to them his zeal to God's glory. 39 Many Samaritans believe on him. 43 He departeth into Galilee, and healeth the ruler's son that lay sick at Capernaum.

WHEN therefore the Lord knew how the Pharisees had heard that Jesus made and baptized more disciples than John,

2 (Though Jesus himself baptized not, but his disciples,)

3 He left Judea, and departed again into Galilee.

4 And he must needs go through Samaria.

5 Then cometh he to a city of Samaria, which is called Sychar, near to the parcel of ground [a] that Jacob gave to his son Joseph.

6 Now Jacob's well was there. Jesus

[a] Gen. 33. 19. & 48. 22. Josh. 24. 32.

29. He that hath the bride &c.] As if he had said, Jesus is like unto a bridegroom, and I am only as one of His friends; but, as such, I rejoice in His success: I rejoice to hear that He baptizes more than I, and that all men come unto Him. Bp. Pearce.

30. —I must decrease.] I, His forerunner, whose office ceases when He comes, "must decrease" in reputation, number of disciples, and authority.

31. He that cometh from above] Not only by mission, but by His Divine original. Dr. Whitby. He that cometh from above in that manner in which Christ only came, ver. 13, is greater than I, or any of the Prophets, not excepting even Moses himself. Dr. S. Clarke.

32, 33. And what he hath seen and heard, &c.] That which He teaches, He knows to be true, having received it from the Father; but the world believe not that He comes from God. Still, he that does receive His testimony, does no more than acknowledge the veracity of God, since to suppose Christ to be a deceiver, is to suppose that God Himself can lie. Dr. Hammond.

33. —hath set to his seal that God is true.] Hath declared his firm persuasion that God is faithful and true, and will not impose delusions upon men. Dr. S. Clarke.

34. —for God giveth not the Spirit by measure unto him.] "By measure," that is, with limitation either of time or quantity. It is meant, that He who has the Spirit ever abiding in Him without stint or measure, must always speak the will of God. Dr. Whitby.

This passage is evidently designed to prove the superiority of Christ to the ancient Prophets, who spake by the Holy Spirit. It is an allusion to the fact which John the Baptist had before declared, that he saw the Spirit of God descend and remain upon Jesus to distinguish Him as the Messiah, the Son of God, from the Prophets who were only occasionally favoured by His influence. Bp. Tomline.

35. —hath given all things] See note at Matt. xi. 27. Hath given Him the fulness of Divine power and authority, to save and condemn everlastingly. Dr. Clagett.

——hath given all things into his hand.] Dispensing glory, honour, and immortality to mankind, through Him alone. Bp. Horne.

36. He that believeth &c.] He that believes on the Son of God, embracing His doctrine and obeying His commands, shall inherit eternal life: but he that obstinately rejects, or impenitently disobeys that great and standing revelation of the Divine will, and those last gracious offers of mercy and salvation, on the easy conditions of faith and repentance, which God makes to mankind by His Son, and which He enables them to perform by His Spirit, will fall under the final and eternal wrath of God. Dr. S. Clarke.

Chap. IV. ver. 2. (Though Jesus himself baptized not,] Among the reasons which may be assigned for Jesus not baptizing Himself, are these; that the business of establishing the Gospel was of far greater importance than that of admitting men into it by the outward form of baptism; and that, had Jesus occasionally baptized Himself, jealousies would undoubtedly have arisen among the early converts, some having received the rite from the Master, and others from the disciples only. Beausobre.

3. —left Judea,] Where the power of the Sanhedrim, among the members of which were many Pharisees, prevailed; and departed into Galilee, which was under Herod's jurisdiction. Dr. Whitby.

4. —must needs go through Samaria.] Samaria lying between Judea and Galilee.

5. —which is called Sychar,] The description here given of Sychar puts it beyond all doubt that it is the same with Sychem, (or Shechem; see Note at Deut. xxvii. 12, 13,) the difference between the two names proceeding probably from a corrupt way of pronouncing. This city is called at present Naplosa, (or Napolose,) and stands in a narrow valley between mount Gerizim on the south, and Ebal on the north, being built at the foot of the former. At present, the place bears but a mean appearance, consisting chiefly of two streets, lying parallel under mount Gerizim. Dr. Wells.

6. Now Jacob's well was there.] "The principal object of veneration in this part of the country is Jacob's well, over which a church was formerly erected. It is situated at a small distance from the town of Napolose, (anciently Sychem,) in the road to Jerusalem, and has been visited by pilgrims of all ages; but particularly since the Christian era, as the place where our Saviour revealed Himself to the woman of Samaria. This spot is so distinctly marked by the Evangelist, and so little liable to uncertainty, from the description of the well, and the features of the country, that, if no tradition existed for its identity, the site of it could hardly be mistaken." Dr. E. D. Clarke.

Anno DOMINI 30.

therefore, being wearied with his journey, sat thus on the well: and it was about the sixth hour.

7 There cometh a woman of Samaria to draw water: Jesus saith unto her, Give me to drink.

8 (For his disciples were gone away unto the city to buy meat.)

9 Then saith the woman of Samaria unto him, How is it that thou, being a Jew, askest drink of me, which am a woman of Samaria? for the Jews have no dealings with the Samaritans.

10 Jesus answered and said unto her, If thou knewest the gift of God, and who it is that saith to thee, Give me to drink; thou wouldest have asked of him, and he would have given thee living water.

11 The woman saith unto him, Sir, thou hast nothing to draw with, and the well is deep: from whence then hast thou that living water?

12 Art thou greater than our father Jacob, which gave us the well, and drank thereof himself, and his children, and his cattle?

13 Jesus answered and said unto her, Whosoever drinketh of this water shall thirst again:

14 But whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst; but the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life.

Anno DOMINI 30.

15 The woman saith unto him, Sir, give me this water, that I thirst not, neither come hither to draw.

16 Jesus saith unto her, Go, call thy husband, and come hither.

17 The woman answered and said, I have no husband. Jesus said unto her, Thou hast well said, I have no husband:

18 For thou hast had five husbands; and he whom thou now hast is not thy husband: in that saidst thou truly.

19 The woman saith unto him, Sir, I perceive that thou art a prophet.

20 Our fathers worshipped in this mountain; and ye say, that in [b] Jerusalem is the place where men ought to worship.

[b] Deut. 12. 5.

21 Jesus saith unto her, Woman, believe me, the hour cometh, when ye shall neither in this mountain, nor yet at Jerusalem, worship the Father.

22 Ye worship ye know not what: we know what we worship: for salvation is of the Jews.

23 But the hour cometh, and now is, when the true worshippers shall worship —— about the sixth hour.] That is, about noon, according to the Jewish reckoning from sunrise; and therefore in the full heat of the day.

7. — a woman of Samaria] Belonging to this town of Sychar, ver. 28.

9. — for the Jews have no dealings &c.] The animosity between the two nations began on the separation of the ten tribes, and the idolatrous worship set up at Dan and Beth-el. It increased on the opposition of the Samaritans, (or Cutheans, 2 Kings xvii. 24,) to the building of the temple, Ezra iv. 1, 4. And it was brought to the greatest height on the erection of a temple on mount Gerizim by Manasseh, when driven from Jerusalem by Nehemiah, chap. xiii. 28, and in which religious worship was maintained, in opposition to the temple at Jerusalem. This rival temple became afterwards an asylum for all who violated the Jewish law by sabbath-breaking, eating forbidden meats, &c. Dr. Lightfoot.

It appears from the Talmud, that, according to the traditions, it was held lawful for the Jews to make purchases of the Samaritans, ver. 8, but not to receive kindness from them, or to drink of their water, or eat of their morsels. But Christ here shews, that He despised all such traditions as had no foundation in the law of God or in equity and tended to impair the dictates of common friendship or humanity. Dr. Whitby. We here see the melancholy effects of religious differences, which stop the common intercourse of courtesy and humanity amongst men. Bp. Mann.

10. — If thou knewest the gift of God,] The great mercy and bounty which God now designs to thee. Dr. Hammond.

—— would have given thee living water.] Meaning, by an easy figure taken from their discoursing together at the well, the doctrine of salvation contained in the Gospel, which more truly refreshes a well-disposed soul, than water does a dry and thirsty body. Dr. S. Clarke.

12. Art thou greater than &c.] Understanding Him to speak of living water in a literal sense, she means, If Thou canst procure water without the trouble of drawing it out of the well, or if Thou knowest of any other well here, containing better water, Thou canst do more than Jacob did. Bp. Pearce.

14. — shall be in him a well of water &c.] Shall be a never failing fountain of comfort and satisfaction, and shall preserve and exalt him to everlasting life. Thus Jesus unfolds to her by degrees, that He meant by living water the spiritual doctrine of life and salvation. Dr. S. Clarke.

16. Jesus saith unto her, Go, call &c.] He was willing to prepare her to receive His doctrine, by convincing her previously that He was a Prophet. Dr. Whitby.

20. Our fathers worshipped in this mountain;] Mount Gerizim, which was close to Sychar. Perceiving Jesus to be a Prophet, she now desires Him to resolve the great question disputed between the Jews and the Samaritans, the Jews maintaining that Jerusalem was the only lawful place of worship, and the Samaritans contending for the lawfulness of the worship offered in their temple at mount Gerizim. Dr. S. Clarke.

21. — the hour cometh, when &c.] He tells her that the subject of their disputes will shortly be removed; for the sacrifices will cease to be offered both at Jerusalem and at Gerizim; the temples themselves will be destroyed, and so the privileges, about which they contend, will be taken from them both. Dr. Clagett.

22. Ye worship ye know not what:] It appears from this censure of our Saviour on the Samaritans, that they had very imperfect notions of the nature of the Deity they served; and were but ill instructed in the true spirit of the service which they paid to Him. Bp. Horsley.

—— for salvation is of the Jews.] Meaning, the Saviour or Messiah must be of that nation. Dr. Campbell.

23. — the hour cometh, and now is, &c.] The time is at hand, and is now actually come; (Bp. Mann;) when they only shall be accounted true worshippers who give their hearts and souls to God to love and obey Him in all things: for that is the worship which is always most acceptable to the Father. Dr. S. Clarke.

Anno DOMINI 30.

the Father in spirit and in truth: for the Father seeketh such to worship him.

[c] 2 Cor. 3. 17.

24 [c] God is a Spirit: and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth.

25 The woman saith unto him, I know that Messias cometh, which is called Christ: when he is come, he will tell us all things.

26 Jesus saith unto her, I that speak unto thee am he.

27 ¶ And upon this came his disciples, and marvelled that he talked with the woman: yet no man said, What seekest thou? or, Why talkest thou with her?

28 The woman then left her waterpot, and went her way into the city, and saith to the men,

29 Come, see a man, which told me all things that ever I did: is not this the Christ?

30 Then they went out of the city, and came unto him.

31 ¶ In the mean while his disciples prayed him, saying, Master, eat.

Anno DOMINI 30.

32 But he said unto them, I have meat to eat that ye know not of.

33 Therefore said the disciples one to another, Hath any man brought him ought to eat?

34 Jesus saith unto them, My meat is to do the will of him that sent me, and to finish his work.

35 Say not ye, There are yet four months, and then cometh harvest? behold, I say unto you, Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; [d] for they are white already to harvest.

[d] Matt. 9. 37.

36 And he that reapeth receiveth wages, and gathereth fruit unto life eternal: that both he that soweth and he that reapeth may rejoice together.

37 And herein is that saying true, One soweth, and another reapeth.

38 I sent you to reap that whereon ye

---

24. God is a Spirit:] There is no other passage in Scripture besides this, where it is expressly declared that God is a Spirit; yet throughout the whole of Scripture we are led to infer that He is so, and our duty to Him is every where founded on the belief and knowledge of this attribute of His nature. When we affirm God to be a Spirit, we not only distinguish Him from all bodily substance, but, in the same manner as the soul greatly excels the body in the superiour powers of life, understanding, knowledge, activity; so we must conceive of God as of a Being excelling in an infinitely higher proportion not only the souls of men, but also all other intellectual natures or spirits whatsoever. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— in spirit and in truth.] Agreeably to His spiritual nature, by giving up their hearts and souls to Him; and according to His will, by observing all the precepts of His Gospel. Dr. Whitby.

25. — he will tell us all things.] Will reveal to us the will of God clearly and plainly. Dr. S. Clarke.

It is probable that the notions which she here expresses respecting the Messiah were the common notions of her country. It would appear, therefore, that the Samaritans of this age well knew both that the time for the appearance of the Messiah was come, and that this Messiah was to teach men true religion as a means of effecting their salvation. Great and innumerable are the mysteries of godliness. The Samaritans, who knew not what they worshipped, had more true notions of the Messiah's office, and of the nature and extent of the deliverance He was to effect, than the Jews had, who for many ages had been the chosen depositaries of the oracles of God. Bp. Horsley.

26. — I that speak unto thee am he.] It has by some been thought difficult to explain why our Lord declared Himself so explicitly on this occasion, when at other early periods of His ministry He shewed great reserve. The solution, however, may be found in what appears at ver. 42, of the true and correct notions which the Samaritans at this time maintained respecting the Messiah's character and office. Now, as we are taught in general to believe that Divine favours are dispensed to different individuals in proportion to the inclination and ability to profit by them, which the Searcher of hearts discerns in each; we need not be surprised that Christ should declare Himself thus openly to these honest Sycharites, whose hearts and understandings were prepared to receive such a deliverer as Jesus, to acknowledge the Christ, the Son of God; or that He should make this discovery first to a weak woman, if He discovered in her heart a soil in which His holy doctrine might take root and flourish. Bp. Horsley.

Besides this, our Lord may have declared Himself with more freedom to the Samaritans, because among them there was no fear of sedition or of improper efforts to make Him a King. Le Clerc.

27. — and marvelled] Because she was a Samaritan; as she had wondered, ver. 10, on the same account, at Jesus's asking a favour of her. Bp. Mann.

28. — left her waterpot,] Her mind being wholly taken up with the things she had just heard, she forgot the business on which she came. Dr. Clagett.

29. — which told me all things that ever I did:] That is, the most secret passages of my life, ver. 18. Dr. Clagett.

32. — I have meat to eat] Alluding to the conversion of so many Samaritans, which, they knew not, was now at hand. Dr. Clagett.

34. — My meat is to do the will &c.] I esteem it My meat and drink, the most necessary work of My life, and the greatest pleasure and satisfaction of My mind, even a much greater pleasure than satisfying the natural appetites and wants of the body, to do the will for which I was sent into the world; that is, to teach men that it is My Father's will that, by faith in Me, and by sincere repentance, they should be brought to salvation. Dr. S. Clarke.

35. Say not ye, There are yet &c.] Now is one season of pursuing this end, which I can no more omit, than the husbandman can neglect his harvest time, in the hope of which he supported himself under the labour of ploughing and sowing four months before. You know what a cheerful sight it is to him to see the corn white for harvest. Behold now and look towards the city; there you see a better harvest ready to be reaped, (ver. 30,) a multitude of Samaritans prepared by honest minds to hear the doctrine of salvation. Dr. Clagett.

36. And he that reapeth &c.] And for labouring in this work ye shall be largely rewarded by the Lord of the harvest, not only in the wages ye shall receive for yourselves, but in that inexpressible satisfaction of having gathered so many men into the kingdom of heaven, Matt. xiii. 30. Dr. Clagett.

—— that both he that soweth &c.] That both he that laboureth to prepare men for the faith, and he that brings them to it, may rejoice together in the fruit of their labours. Dr. Whitby.

37. And herein is that saying &c.] Since others before you have been greatly instrumental in making way for the success of your labours, by preparing the world to receive the doctrine of salvation; "herein is that saying" &c. Dr. Clagett.

Anno DOMINI 30.

bestowed no labour: other men laboured, and ye are entered into their labours.

39 ¶ And many of the Samaritans of that city believed on him for the saying of the woman, which testified, He told me all that ever I did.

40 So when the Samaritans were come unto him, they besought him that he would tarry with them: and he abode there two days.

41 And many more believed because of his own word;

42 And said unto the woman, Now we believe, not because of thy saying: for we have heard him ourselves, and know that this is indeed the Christ, the Saviour of the world.

43 ¶ Now after two days he departed thence, and went into Galilee.

[e] Matt. 13. 57.

44 For [e] Jesus himself testified, that a prophet hath no honour in his own country.

45 Then when he was come into Galilee, the Galileans received him, having seen all the things that he did at Jerusalem at the feast: for they also went unto the feast.

46 So Jesus came again into Cana of Galilee, [f] where he made the water wine. And there was a certain ‖ nobleman, whose son was sick at Capernaum.

Anno DOMINI 30.

[f] Chap. 2. 1.

‖ Or, courtier, or, ruler.

47 When he heard that Jesus was come out of Judea into Galilee, he went unto him, and besought him that he would come down, and heal his son: for he was at the point of death.

48 Then said Jesus unto him, Except ye see signs and wonders, ye will not believe.

49 The nobleman saith unto him, Sir, come down ere my child die.

50 Jesus saith unto him, Go thy way; thy son liveth. And the man believed the word that Jesus had spoken unto him, and he went his way.

51 And as he was now going down, his servants met him, and told him, saying, Thy son liveth.

52 Then enquired he of them the hour when he began to amend. And they said unto him, Yesterday at the seventh hour the fever left him.

53 So the father knew that it was at the same hour, in the which Jesus said unto him, Thy son liveth: and himself believed, and his whole house.

---

38. — other men laboured, &c.] The Prophets, by foretelling the Messiah; the Baptist, by calling men to repentance that they might be prepared to receive Him; "and ye are entered into their labours," having only to perfect that which they have begun. Dr. Whitby.

41. — because of his own word;] Being convinced by the excellency of His doctrines and precepts, and interpretation of the prophecies concerning Himself. Dr. Clagett.

42. — Now we believe, — for we have heard him ourselves,] They say to her, We give entire credit to your report; but your assertion is no longer the ground of our belief. We believe it because we ourselves have heard Him, and can maintain, each of us on his own proper knowledge and conviction, that this person is indeed the Christ, the Saviour of the world. How greatly it were to be wished that all, who now name the name of Christ, were like to these Samaritans; that they all were animated with that full-grown confidence of faith, which, in a visit of two days, our great Master's preaching had raised to such strength and maturity in the honest hearts of these Samaritans. These persons heard the doctrines of this Divine teacher for the short space of two days: we, in the writings of the Evangelists, have a complete summary of His whole ministry: joined to the detail of His numerous miracles, we have the delineation of His admirable character, His piety, His fortitude, His patience, His resignation. In the figured language of the Apostles, we ourselves have heard Him preach; we have seen Him crucified, we have seen Him rise again: we experience His present power in the providential preservation of His church, and support of His doctrine. The Samaritans were convinced by a preaching of two days: how then shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation? Bp. Horsley.

44. For Jesus himself testified, &c.] This was said by our Saviour when at length He went to Nazareth, (Matt. xiii. 57,) but is here mentioned by the Evangelist, as the reason why indeed He chose to manifest Himself to the other Galileans, by His doctrine and miracles, before He came to Nazareth, where He knew the humility of His education and the meanness of His kindred would prove a prejudice to Him. Dr. Clagett.

45. — at the feast:] The feast of the passover.

46. — a certain nobleman,] An officer in the court of Herod the tetrarch. Dean Stanhope.

47. — that he would come down,] The expression of His "coming down" to Capernaum is singularly illustrated by the present features of the country: for, in fact, the whole route from Cana, according to the position of the place now so called, is a continued descent towards Capernaum. Dr. E. D. Clarke. The distance from Cana to Capernaum was about twenty-three miles. Dr. Hales.

48. — Except ye see signs &c.] He seems to have said this, as contrasting the behaviour of these heathens with the ready belief of the Galileans. Grotius. Or perhaps He intends to reprove in this person a weak and slow and too scrupulous faith; and, though His words are general, yet they may have pointed at him in particular, as a person whom no evidence of doctrine, or credible testimony, or any thing less than miracles, brought home to his own senses and his own benefit, could convince. Dean Stanhope.

52. — at the seventh hour] About one o'clock.

53. — himself believed, and his whole house.] By his own believing we are to understand that a consideration of the power and goodness of Christ, in raising his son from that languishing and hopeless condition, disposed him to attend to His doctrine, to acknowledge His Divine authority, and to become His disciple, upon a reasonable and full persuasion of the truth of both. By his whole house believing is meant that he did not content himself with those improvements of the Divine mercy made singly in his own person, but took pains to propagate all possible effects of this miracle, and to press the natural consequences of it upon as many as came under his influence and authority. In both these respects he is, and ought to be, our example. We do not, God be thanked, need the former part, of being brought to the confession of Christ and His Gospel; but we in too many

Anno DOMINI 30.

54 This is again the second miracle that Jesus did, when he was come out of Judea into Galilee.

CHAP. V.

1 Jesus on the sabbath day cureth him that was diseased eight and thirty years. 10 The Jews therefore cavil, and persecute him for it. 17 He answereth for himself, and reproveth them, shewing by the testimony of his Father, 32 of John, 36 of his works, 39 and of the scriptures, who he is.

A. D. 31.
[a] Lev. 23. 2. Deut. 16. 1.

AFTER [a] this there was a feast of the Jews; and Jesus went up to Jerusalem.

2 Now there is at Jerusalem by the sheep [‖] market a pool, which is called in the Hebrew tongue Bethesda, having five porches.

[‖] Or, gate.

3 In these lay a great multitude of impotent folk, of blind, halt, withered, waiting for the moving of the water.

4 For an angel went down at a certain season into the pool, and troubled the water: whosoever then first after the troubling of the water stepped in was made whole of whatsoever disease he had.

5 And a certain man was there, which had an infirmity thirty and eight years.

6 When Jesus saw him lie, and knew that he had been now a long time in that case, he saith unto him, Wilt thou be made whole?

7 The impotent man answered him, Sir, I have no man, when the water is troubled, to put me into the pool: but while I am coming, another steppeth down before me.

Anno DOMINI 31.

8 Jesus saith unto him, Rise, take up thy bed, and walk.

9 And immediately the man was made whole, and took up his bed, and walked: and on the same day was the sabbath.

10 ¶ The Jews therefore said unto him that was cured, It is the sabbath day: [b] it is not lawful for thee to carry thy bed.

[b] Jer. 17. 22.

11 He answered them, He that made me whole, the same said unto me, Take up thy bed, and walk.

12 Then asked they him, What man is that which said unto thee, Take up thy bed, and walk?

13 And he that was healed wist not who it was: for Jesus had conveyed himself away, [‖] a multitude being in that place.

[‖] Or, from the multitude that was.

14 Afterward Jesus findeth him in the temple, and said unto him, Behold, thou art made whole: sin no more, lest a worse thing come unto thee.

15 The man departed, and told the Jews that it was Jesus, which had made him whole.

16 And therefore did the Jews persecute Jesus, and sought to slay him, because instances need to be quickened and confirmed in the faith which we profess, and have too much occasion to use the most strenuous exertion for establishing and advancing others in good principles and practices; and, for doing this, every fresh experience of God's great goodness should minister to us an occasion of encouragement.

---

The conversion of this nobleman and his family is the more remarkable because he is the first person of any quality and station who stands upon record for receiving the faith. Dean Stanhope.

Chap. V. ver. 1.—a feast of the Jews;] It is supposed by many that the feast of the passover is meant; but, respecting this, opinions are divided. Rosenmüller.

2.—by the sheep market] Or, according to some, "by the sheep gate," Nehem. iii. 1. Bp. Pearce. "Market" is not in the original.

——having five porches.] It seems that by the pool there was a building called Bethesda, or 'the house of mercy,' having five porches, or separate divisions for the sick. Dr. Hammond, Bp. Mann.

It seems that these porches were the several entrances by which the unclean went down to the water to be washed, and where they might lay up their clothes. Perhaps there were different entrances, according to the different sort of uncleanness or disease; so that those, who were similarly defiled, might have the same place of descent into the pool. Dr. Lightfoot.

Mr. Maundrell says, that he went to take a view of that which they now call the pool of Bethesda; it was about one hundred and twenty paces long, and forty broad, and at least eight deep, but void of water: at its west end were some old arches, which were shewn as the remains of the five porches here mentioned; but, instead of five, there were only three of them. Dr. Wells.

4. For an angel went down &c.] We need not suppose that an angel visibly descended from heaven; but the miraculous virtue of the water was ascribed to the power of some angel employed by God for that purpose. Bp. Mann.

According to the Jewish way of speaking, every thing that had a Divine effect was said to be done by means of ministering spirits or angels, 2 Kings xix. 35; Matt. xxviii. 2. Bp. Pearce.

We are not informed how long before our Saviour's time this miraculous virtue had belonged to the pool, nor how long afterwards it continued; whether it ceased at the time of our Saviour, or continued some time after, or even to the destruction of Jerusalem. As we have no information whatever on this subject, it is useless to inquire into it. Dr. Lightfoot.

——whosoever then first—stepped in] This circumstance plainly shews that the healing quality of the water was not natural, but one with which it was miraculously endowed. Bp. Pearce.

8.—Rise, take up thy bed,] Rise up, thy disease is removed, and thy strength perfectly restored. And, that the completeness of the cure might be the more evident and undeniable to all that beheld it, He bade him moreover take up his bed and walk. Dr. S. Clarke.

11.—He that made me whole, &c.] He that healed me in an instant and by only speaking a word, must needs be an extraordinary Prophet; and His commandment is sufficient to excuse me in what I do. Dr. S. Clarke.

13.—wist not] Did not know.

14.—findeth him in the temple,] Probably returning thanks for the cure that had been wrought. Dr. Whitby.

——sin no more, lest &c.] Let the cure which has been wrought upon thee oblige thee to a reformation of life, lest thou experience more fearful judgments than this disease. Dr. Hammond.

15.—told the Jews] Not for the purpose of accusing Jesus to them, but probably from gratitude, wishing to acknowledge the author of his cure, and also to excuse himself, as having done what was deemed a breach of the sabbath. Dr. Whitby.

Anno DOMINI 31. he had done these things on the sabbath day.

17 ¶ But Jesus answered them, My Father worketh hitherto, and I work.

18 Therefore the Jews sought the more to kill him, because he not only had broken the sabbath, but said also that God was his Father, making himself equal with God.

19 Then answered Jesus and said unto them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, The Son can do nothing of himself, but what he seeth the Father do: for what things soever he doeth, these also doeth the Son likewise.

20 For the Father loveth the Son, and sheweth him all things that himself doeth: and he will shew him greater works than these, that ye may marvel.

21 For as the Father raiseth up the dead, and quickeneth them; even so the Son quickeneth whom he will.

22 For the Father judgeth no man, but hath committed all judgment unto the Son:

23 That all men should honour the Son, even as they honour the Father. He that honoureth not the Son honoureth not the Father which hath sent him.

24 Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that heareth my word, and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation; but is passed from death unto life. Anno DOMINI 31.

25 Verily, verily, I say unto you, The hour is coming, and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God: and they that hear shall live.

26 For as the Father hath life in himself; so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself;

27 And hath given him authority to execute judgment also, because he is the Son of man.

28 Marvel not at this: for the hour is coming, in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice,

29 And shall come forth; [e] they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation. [e] Matt. 25. 46.

30 I can of mine own self do nothing: as I hear, I judge: and my judgment is just; because I seek not mine own will, but the will of the Father which hath sent me.

31 [d] If I bear witness of myself, my witness is not true. [d] Chap. 8. 14.

---

17. — My Father worketh hitherto, and I work.] He from the beginning of the creation till this present time continues to give and preserve life, and to do good on the sabbath day; and I after His example work that which is good and salutary to mankind on that day. Dr. Whitby.

My Father, the Creator and Governour of the world, ever has done whatsoever He hath pleased, and whensoever He hath pleased; and I, the eternal Son and wisdom of the Father, always work together with Him. Bp. Beveridge.

19. — verily, I say unto you, &c.] The things, which I do and teach, are both agreeable to the nature and will of God, My Father, and also performed by His immediate commission and authority: I do nothing in opposition to His eternal and divine laws; but every thing in imitation of Him, and by His direction and appointment, who is the allwise Preserver, and the most merciful Benefactor of mankind, and hath sent Me into the world for the gracious designs of His mercy and goodness towards men. Dr. S. Clarke.

21. For as the Father raiseth up &c.] For, even in raising the dead, which is far greater than healing the sick, My Father hath communicated His power to Me; and, as My Father raiseth from the grave, so will I raise whomsoever I please. Dr. Hammond.

22. For the Father judgeth no man, &c.] Will judge no man immediately from Himself, but hath appointed the Son to be the sole judge of men, who will finally distribute their everlasting punishments and rewards. Dr. S. Clarke.

So equitably does God deal with us, that we shall be acquitted or condemned by One who was made in all things like unto us, sin only excepted, which would have made Him incapable of being our Judge, because it would have made Him a criminal like ourselves. And therefore the Apostle offers us this as a firm ground of assurance to us, that God will judge the world in righteousness, because this judgment will be administered by a man like ourselves, Acts xvii. 31. Abp. Tillotson.

23. That all men should honour the Son,] That is, should acknowledge Him to be the Son of God, and, as such, adore Him, as they adore the Father, Ps. ii. 11, 12; Phil. ii. 10. Beausobre.

24. — is passed from death unto life.] Shall escape eternal death, and attain eternal life. Dr. Hammond. Shall as certainly obtain everlasting life, as if he were already possessed of it. Dr. Clagett.

25. The hour is coming, and now is, &c.] The time is just at hand, it is now already begun, when, by the preaching of the doctrine of the Son of God, many who, dead in trespasses and sins, were falling into everlasting destruction, shall be called to the inheritance of eternal life: and of this ye shall see a visible and sensible representation in My actually raising the dead to life. Dr. S. Clarke.

26. — to have life in himself;] To have the power of raising whom He will, ver. 21. Dr. Whitby.

27. — because he is the Son of man.] Because, being the Son of God, He condescended to become the Son of man, for the redemption and salvation of men. Dr. S. Clarke.

28, 29. — for the hour is coming, in the which &c.] I will tell you a more wonderful thing than this. Hereafter, all mankind, even all that ever did or shall live, shall hear My voice at once, and be raised out of their graves, and stand before My judgment-seat; and they who have sincerely repented of their sins, and believed and obeyed My Gospel, shall be rewarded by Me with eternal life; and they who, continuing impenitent, have obstinately rejected the Gospel, or wilfully disobeyed it, shall be punished with everlasting destruction. Dr. S. Clarke.

30. — as I hear, I judge:] That is, according to the will of My Father, I pronounce judgment. Dr. Whitby.

Do not think that in this I set up for Myself, and, derogating from the glory of the Father, study Mine own. For, proceeding by this rule, I shall judge exactly according to His judgment, it being His will and therefore Mine that it should be so. Dr. Clagett.

—— and my judgment is just; &c.] My sentence at the general resurrection will be just, because in all things I act according to the Father's will and suggestion. Abp. Newcome.

31. If I bear witness of myself, &c.] If I produced no other evidence than My bare word, I could not expect to be received;

Anno DOMINI 31.

32 ¶ [e] There is another that beareth witness of me; and I know that the witness which he witnesseth of me is true.

[e] Matt. 3. 17.

33 Ye sent unto John, and [f] he bare witness unto the truth.

[f] Chap. 1. 7.

34 But I receive not testimony from man: but these things I say, that ye might be saved.

35 He was a burning and a shining light: and ye were willing for a season to rejoice in his light.

36 ¶ But I have greater witness than that of John: for the works which the Father hath given me to finish, the same works that I do, bear witness of me, that the Father hath sent me.

37 And the Father himself, which hath sent me, [g] hath borne witness of me. Ye have neither heard his voice at any time, [h] nor seen his shape.

[g] Matt. 3. 17. & 17. 5.

[h] Deut. 4. 12.

38 And ye have not his word abiding in you: for whom he hath sent, him ye believe not.

39 ¶ Search the scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life: and they are they which testify of me.

40 And ye will not come to me, that ye might have life.

Anno DOMINI 31.

41 I receive not honour from men.

42 But I know you, that ye have not the love of God in you.

43 I am come in my Father's name, and ye receive me not: if another shall come in his own name, him ye will receive.

44 [i] How can ye believe, which receive honour one of another, and seek not the honour that cometh from God only?

[i] Chap. 12. 43.

45 Do not think that I will accuse you to the Father: there is one that accuseth you, even Moses, in whom ye trust.

46 For had ye believed Moses, ye would have believed me: [k] for he wrote of me.

[k] Gen. 3. 15. Deut. 18. 15.

47 But if ye believe not his writings, how shall ye believe my words?

CHAP. VI.

1 Christ feedeth five thousand men with five loaves and two fishes. 15 Thereupon the people would have made him king. 16 But withdrawing himself, he walked on the sea to his disciples: 26 reproveth the people flocking after him, and all the fleshly hearers of his word: 32 declareth himself to be the bread of life to believers. 66 Many disciples depart from him. 68 Peter confesseth him. 70 Judas is a devil.

---

but I can appeal to the Holy Spirit of God, in the miracles I have performed, that I am come from God, chap. viii. 18. Bp. Mann.

33. — he bare witness unto the truth.] He in the most express terms bore a faithful and honourable testimony to the truth, assuring you that he saw the Spirit in a visible form descend upon Me. Dr. Doddridge.

34. But I receive not &c.] I do not receive the chief testimony, on which I rest the credit of My mission, from man: but these things I say, to lead you to the acknowledgment of that truth which is necessary to your salvation. Drs. Clagett and Doddridge.

35. He was a burning and a shining light:] It was a mode of expression familiar to the Jews, to denote the ministry of the word by lamps or candles, Zech. iv. 2, 3, 14; Rev. i. 12; xi. 4; and they so denominated any person who was distinguished for his knowledge or other good qualities. Dr. Lightfoot.

—— ye were willing for a season &c.] Ye were well pleased to hear him for a season; but, as soon as he testified of Me, then ye rejected him. Dr. Hammond.

36. — the works] Alluding to His miracles, and every thing which He did during His ministry. Beausobre.

37. And the Father himself, &c.] God the Father hath in several ways borne witness of Me. Ye have not indeed seen Him visibly, or heard Him speak, (although the appearance of the Holy Ghost, and the voice from heaven at My baptism, amounts to little less than that.) But in His Law, and in His Prophets, who wrote by the impulse of His Holy Spirit, He hath made many and ample declarations concerning Me. Dr. S. Clarke.

39. Search the scriptures; for &c.] Examine the writings of the Old Testament, whereon ye depend, and by obeying the precepts of which, ye believe ye shall obtain eternal life; and ye will find that all those types and prophecies are fulfilled in Me. Dr. Hammond.

40. And ye will not come to me,] And yet, though these Scriptures testify of Me, ye are not willing to come unto Me, &c. Abp. Newcome.

As if He had said, Ye believe the Scriptures to be given by inspiration of God, to direct you in the way to eternal life, and therefore ye expect to find there how to obtain it; and, if ye search the Scriptures, ye may there see that they testify of Me; that I am the Christ, the Son of God, by whom alone ye can obtain eternal life. Bp. Beveridge.

41. I receive not honour from men.] I do nothing from the desire of their applause: but, as a true Prophet, to promote God's glory. Dr. Lightfoot.

42. But I know you,] Others ye may deceive by your pretended piety; but Me ye cannot, for I know you. Bp. Mann.

43. I am come in my Father's name, &c.] I am come with authority from My Father, as My works shew. Others will come who can give no such proof of their commission, and ye will receive them. They had done so before the coming of Christ, Acts v. 36, 37; and after His death impostors arose who had many followers. Bp. Mann.

44. — which receive honour one of another,] Which seek honour one of another, fearing the reproach of the Pharisees and elders, and being more influenced by this, than the desire of God's approbation. Dr. Whitby. It is very evident, that in this verse there is an opposition between the praise of men and the praise of God; and that the Jews are condemned, as preferring the praise and good will of men to the praise and good will of God. Bp. Sherlock.

45. Do not think that I will accuse you] It will not be necessary that I should accuse you; for, even now, that Moses, in whom ye trust, as your great lawgiver and patron, is, as it were, your accuser before God, and charges you with being regardless of Him as well as of Me. Dr. Doddridge.

—— even Moses, in whom ye trust.] By obeying whose law ye trust that ye shall have life, ver. 39. Dr. Whitby.

46. — for he wrote of me.] See the margin. His predictions and typical representations would have led you to believe in Me, in whom they are all fulfilled. Their pretences for not believing in Christ were these two, their love to God and their reverence for the law of Moses: Christ shews at ver. 42, that they could have no true love to God; and, in this verse, that they had no real faith in Moses; for, if they had, they would have believed on Him. Drs. Whitby and Hammond.

Anno DOMINI 32.

AFTER these things Jesus went over the sea of Galilee, which is the sea of Tiberias.

2 And a great multitude followed him, because they saw his miracles which he did on them that were diseased.

3 And Jesus went up into a mountain, and there he sat with his disciples.

[a] Lev. 23. 5. Deut. 16. 1.

4 [a] And the passover, a feast of the Jews, was nigh.

[b] Matt. 14. 14.

5 ¶ [b] When Jesus then lifted up his eyes, and saw a great company come unto him, he saith unto Philip, Whence shall we buy bread, that these may eat?

6 And this he said to prove him: for he himself knew what he would do.

7 Philip answered him, Two hundred pennyworth of bread is not sufficient for them, that every one of them may take a little.

8 One of his disciples, Andrew, Simon Peter's brother, saith unto him,

9 There is a lad here, which hath five barley loaves, and two small fishes: but what are they among so many?

10 And Jesus said, Make the men sit down. Now there was much grass in the place. So the men sat down, in number about five thousand.

11 And Jesus took the loaves; and when he had given thanks, he distributed to the disciples, and the disciples to them that were set down; and likewise of the fishes as much as they would. Anno DOMINI 32.

12 When they were filled, he said unto his disciples, Gather up the fragments that remain, that nothing be lost.

13 Therefore they gathered them together, and filled twelve baskets with the fragments of the five barley loaves, which remained over and above unto them that had eaten.

14 Then those men, when they had seen the miracle that Jesus did, said, This is of a truth that prophet that should come into the world.

15 ¶ When Jesus therefore perceived that they would come and take him by force, to make him a king, he departed again into a mountain himself alone.

[c] Matt. 14. 23.

16 [c] And when even was now come, his disciples went down unto the sea,

17 And entered into a ship, and went over the sea toward Capernaum. And it was now dark, and Jesus was not come to them.

18 And the sea arose by reason of a great wind that blew.

19 So when they had rowed about five and twenty or thirty furlongs, they see Jesus walking on the sea, and drawing nigh unto the ship: and they were afraid.

Chap. VI. ver. 1. After these things] There is here an omission of many things recorded by the other Evangelists. It is probable that a whole year intervened; the cure at the pool of Bethesda, chap. v. 1, having occurred at one passover, (according to some opinions,) and this miracle of the loaves, ver. 4, at the passover which occurred in the following year. Dr. Lightfoot.

—— the sea of Tiberias.] See note at Matt. iv. 18.

4. And the passover, — was nigh.] This circumstance seems mentioned to explain that the multitude was the more numerous, because the people were going from all parts up to the passover. Dean Stanhope.

The account of the multiplication of the loaves given by St. John is more circumstantial than that given by the other Evangelists; and it is observable, that this is the only miracle which he relates in common with the rest. Dr. Hales. See notes at Matt. xiv. 14—21.

6. — this he said to prove him:] To make trial of his faith; for He before determined in Himself what He was about to do. Bp. Mann.

7. — Two hundred pennyworth] The Roman penny being about sevenpence halfpenny of our money.

8. One of his disciples,] We should observe, that, while the three first Evangelists have related the appointment of the twelve Apostles, and have given a regular catalogue of their names, St. John, without even mentioning the appointment, or giving the catalogue, supposes, through his whole narrative, Christ to be accompanied by a select party of disciples, and the number of these to be twelve; and, whenever he happens to notice any one as of that number, it is one included in the catalogue of the other Evangelists; and the names principally occurring in the course of his history of Christ, are the names extant in their list. This last agreement, which is of considerable moment, runs through every Gospel, and through every chapter of each. Archdeacon Paley.

12. — Gather up the fragments — that nothing be lost.] We should learn from this direction of our Saviour, to avoid all wastefulness of the good things with which Providence has blessed us, to manage our substance on all occasions to the best advantage, and so to approve ourselves charitable and kind, as at the same time not to be profuse and indiscreet. Jesus, by setting His whole store before the multitude, has left us a pattern of beneficence and largeness of heart. Yet this same Jesus would not that even the fragments should be lost; and herein He hath shewed us that charity is very consistent with frugality; indeed, not only that they may, but they ever should, go together. Dean Stanhope.

13. — twelve baskets] Equal in number to the Apostles who ministered. Dr. Lightfoot.

14. — that prophet that should come] The Messiah, that Saviour and deliverer, whom, according to the ancient prophecies, they expected to appear in the world about this time. Dr. S. Clarke. For further remarks on this miracle, see notes at Matt. xiv.

15. — to make him a king,] According to their false notion of a Messiah, who was to be a great temporal prince. Dr. S. Clarke. They were struck with astonishment and respect; and Jesus, who knew the thoughts and designs of men, perceived their intention, and withdrew Himself. Bp. Mann.

So hard was it for our Lord, performing those miracles which were necessary to testify His mission, and which often drew great crowds of people after Him, to keep the headstrong and hasty multitude from such disorder as would have involved Him in it, and have disturbed the course, and cut short the time of His ministry, and drawn on Him the character, and the fate, of a turbulent seditious malefactor; contrary to the design of His coming, which was to be offered up a lamb blameless, and void of offence; His innocence appearing clear to all the world, even to him who delivered Him up to crucifixion. Locke.

19. — they see Jesus] They did not know Him to be Jesus, but took Him for a spirit, Matt. xiv. 26. Respecting this miracle, see notes at Matt. xiv. 24, &c.

Anno DOMINI 32.

20 But he saith unto them, It is I; be not afraid.

21 Then they willingly received him into the ship: and immediately the ship was at the land whither they went.

22 ¶ The day following, when the people which stood on the other side of the sea saw that there was none other boat there, save that one whereinto his disciples were entered, and that Jesus went not with his disciples into the boat, but that his disciples were gone away alone;

23 (Howbeit there came other boats from Tiberias nigh unto the place where they did eat bread, after that the Lord had given thanks:)

24 When the people therefore saw that Jesus was not there, neither his disciples, they also took shipping, and came to Capernaum, seeking for Jesus.

25 And when they had found him on the other side of the sea, they said unto him, Rabbi, when camest thou hither?

26 Jesus answered them and said, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Ye seek me, not because ye saw the miracles, but because ye did eat of the loaves, and were filled.

‖ Or, Work not.

27 ‖ Labour not for the meat which perisheth, but for that meat which endureth unto everlasting life, which the Son of man shall give unto you: [d] for him hath God the Father sealed.

Anno DOMINI 32.

[d] Matt. 3. 17.

28 Then said they unto him, What shall we do, that we might work the works of God?

29 Jesus answered and said unto them, [e] This is the work of God, that ye believe on him whom he hath sent.

[e] 1 John 3. 23.

30 They said therefore unto him, What sign shewest thou then, that we may see, and believe thee? what dost thou work?

31 [f] Our fathers did eat manna in the desert; as it is written, [g] He gave them bread from heaven to eat.

[f] Exod. 16. 15. Numb. 11. 7.

[g] Ps. 78. 25.

32 Then Jesus said unto them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Moses gave you not that bread from heaven; but my Father giveth you the true bread from heaven.

33 For the bread of God is he which cometh down from heaven, and giveth life unto the world.

34 Then said they unto him, Lord, evermore give us this bread.

35 And Jesus said unto them, I am the bread of life: he that cometh to me shall never hunger; and he that believeth on me shall never thirst.

36 But I said unto you, That ye also have seen me, and believe not.

---

24. — took shipping,] Embarked in those other boats which had come from Tiberias. Beausobre.

26. — Ye seek me, not because ye saw the miracles,] Ye follow Me, not for the true end of the miracles which I work, which is, that ye might believe in Me and have everlasting life, but merely for the present benefit which ye hope to receive by them. Dr. Clagett.

27. Labour not for the meat which perisheth, &c.] Our blessed Saviour's meaning is not, to discourage that labour and industry which the providence of God has made necessary for men in their respective stations, and the neglect of which is therefore sinful; but He recommends, as comparatively of far higher importance than any concerns of this world, a careful preparation for the next, Matt. vi. 33. Bp. Mann.

The metaphor which Christ uses through much of this chapter, of expressing spiritual food by meat and drink, is familiar to Eastern nations, and occurs frequently in Scripture, as in other writings. See Prov. ix. 5; Isai. lv. 2; Ecclus. xxiv. 21. Dr. Whitby.

—— that meat which endureth unto everlasting life,] This is meat worth labouring for, indeed; happy are they that after all their labour can attain it; they will live in perfect health and strength and vigour, both of body and mind; they will live in joy and bliss and glory, the highest that can be imagined; they will live with the holy angels, with Christ, with God Himself, and enjoy all the pleasures that are at His right hand, and that too, not for some few years or ages only, but for evermore. Bp. Beveridge.

—— for him hath God — sealed.] The miracles, which the Son of man performs, are as it were the seal of His authority from God the Father, to give eternal life to such as believe and obey Him. Bp. Mann.

28. — What shall we do, &c.] "What shall we do," what course wilt Thou prescribe to us, that we may do that which Thou commandest us, (ver. 27,) that we may be always employed in God's works, so as to be acceptable to Him? Dr. Hammond.

29. — This is the work of God,] Take care to embrace the Gospel covenant: this is the work that God requires of you. Bp. Mann.

30, 31. — What sign shewest thou then, &c.] Not satisfied with the miracles they had seen, not even with that of the loaves by which they were fed, they still demand, as a further proof, a sign from heaven, Matt. xvi. 1. Moses brought food from heaven for their fathers; they ask whether He could do the like. Bp. Mann.

32. — gave you not that bread from heaven;] Not the bread from heaven properly so called, the manna being only material food sent by the immediate power of God; "but My Father giveth you the true bread from heaven," Jesus himself and His doctrine being that true bread, "which giveth life unto the world," ver. 33. Dr. Wells.

33. — life unto the world.] Not, as the manna did, temporal, but eternal, life; not to one nation, but to the whole world. Bp. Mann, Dr. Whitby.

34. — evermore give us this bread.] Which will preserve our lives. They still supposed Him to speak of corporeal food. Dr. Whitby.

35. — he that cometh to me shall never &c.] Meaning, in the literal sense, Whosoever believes on Me, and embraces My doctrine, and obeys My instructions, shall never want any thing necessary to his eternal happiness: since He possesses the means which will assuredly support him unto everlasting life, more than meat and drink maintain and nourish the body in this mortal state. Dr. S. Clarke.

36. But I said unto you,] I told you before, ver. 26, that signs and wonders will not work true faith in you, so long as ye follow Me for temporal benefits; and have not learned to prefer spiritual good things, and everlasting life, above meat and drink, and all the enjoyments of this life. Dr. Clagett.

Anno DOMINI 32.

37 All that the Father giveth me shall come to me; and him that cometh to me I will in no wise cast out.

38 For I came down from heaven, not to do mine own will, but the will of him that sent me.

39 And this is the Father's will which hath sent me, that of all which he hath given me I should lose nothing, but should raise it up again at the last day.

40 And this is the will of him that sent me, that every one which seeth the Son, and believeth on him, may have everlasting life: and I will raise him up at the last day.

41 The Jews then murmured at him, because he said, I am the bread which came down from heaven.

[h] Matt. 13. 55.

42 And they said, [h] Is not this Jesus, the son of Joseph, whose father and mother we know? how is it then that he saith, I came down from heaven?

Anno DOMINI 32.

43 Jesus therefore answered and said unto them, Murmur not among yourselves.

44 No man can come to me, except the Father which hath sent me draw him: and I will raise him up at the last day.

45 [i] It is written in the prophets, And they shall be all taught of God. Every man therefore that hath heard, and hath learned of the Father, cometh unto me.

[i] Isai. 54. 13. Jer. 31. 34.

46 Not that any man hath seen the Father, [k] save he which is of God, he hath seen the Father.

[k] Matt. 11. 27.

47 Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me hath everlasting life.

48 I am that bread of life.

---

37. All that the Father giveth me] All whom My Father disposes to be My disciples. Bp. Pearce.

The Father gives those only to Christ, who are prepared by an honest heart, and willingness to learn. Dr. Clagett.

All who make a right use of God's preventing grace, so as to exercise an honest, humble, teachable, disposition, and rightly to weigh My doctrines and miracles. Dr. Wells.

It is impossible that this expression can signify that any are absolutely chosen by the Father to eternal life, for then the Jews could not with any reason be blamed for not coming to Christ, and believing on Him; nor could Christ have invited them to come to Him, much less would He have told them that this was the work which God required them to do, if their ability to do this had depended, not on their own disposition, but on the choice and election of God. Dr. Whitby.

Our Lord seems to have foreseen that this passage might be mistaken by men of corrupt minds; and, accordingly, He was graciously pleased to explain it Himself at the same time, by His words at ver. 44. The Father therefore "gives" them by drawing them unto the Son; He draws them not with force and violence, but as men, as reasonable and free agents, in compliance with, not in opposition to, their will. Bp. Beveridge. See note at chap. xvii. 12.

—— shall come to me;] Shall come to Me as their Saviour; shall believe and trust in Me for their salvation, and for all things necessary in order to it. Bp. Beveridge.

—— I will in no wise cast out.] Hereby giving the fullest possible assurance that He will not refuse or reject any that come to Him, but will receive them into His flock, that they may not be lost and perish. Bp. Beveridge.

39. — that of all which he hath given me &c.] That I should be careful to preserve all who with an honest heart shall thus come and believe on Me, and give to every one who thus comes, besides many excellent privileges here, eternal life hereafter. Dr. Hammond.

40. — which seeth the Son,] That is, considers and discerns Him as the Son of God, as the Messiah. Dr. Trapp. That discerneth Him to be a Prophet sent from God. Dr. Whitby. That acknowledgeth all the testimonies of a Divine authority that are discernible in Him. Dr. Clagett.

42. — how is it then that he saith, &c.] How could He come down from heaven, who was born into this world, as other men are, and in the meanest circumstances? Dr. Clagett.

44. No man can come to me, &c.] Our Saviour is here speaking of those who, in consequence of embracing His religion, shall inherit eternal life; and He declares that no one can attain this saving faith without the directing influence of the Holy Spirit; and that every one who has had an opportunity of becoming acquainted with the evidences of the Gospel, and has duly profited by the instruction and assistance which his heavenly Father has afforded him, will partake of a blessed resurrection. Bp. Tomline.

—— except the Father — draw him:] Incline his heart to come to Me. Bp. Pearce. Prepare him by instilling those good thoughts and affections which may be improved by the person himself. Abp. Newcome. "Draw him," not by force, but by His powerful, though resistible, grace, which is given only to the teachable and well disposed, not to the perversely prejudiced. Dr. Trapp. The expression "to be drawn of God" cannot possibly signify the being moved by any irresistible impulse from God; but must signify the being persuaded and prevailed on by the mighty works which God vouchsafed, to testify that Christ was the true Messiah. To these Christ appeals, as Divine testimonies concerning Himself, chap. x. 25; by the consideration of these, He persuades others to believe on Him, chap. xiv. 11; and, on account of these, He represents the unbelieving Jews as wholly inexcusable, chap. xv. 22, 24. Dr. Whitby.

Many understand these words in a wrong sense, as if God required no more in a reasonable man than in a block or a stone; they mark not the words which follow, "Every man that hath heard and hath learned of the Father cometh unto Me." God draweth with His word, and by the Holy Ghost; but man's duty is to hear and learn; that is to say, to receive the grace offered, to consent to the promise, and not to oppose the God that calleth him. Bp. Hooper.

This text, among many others, sufficiently proves that we all stand in need both of a preventing and a co-operating grace; or, in the words of one of our Articles, that "we have no power to do good works, pleasant and acceptable unto God, without the grace of God by Christ preventing us, that we may have a good will, and working with us when we have that good will." Bp. Tomline.

45. — they shall be all taught of God.] Isai. liv. 13. See the notes there. The sum of what I say to you has been obscurely delivered to you by the Prophets of old. For they, speaking of these times, have foretold, that God will prepare and dispose the hearts of many men to embrace the Gospel of the Messiah. Therefore it was that I said, every humble and honest heart, every disciple of My Father, that hath not resisted His guidance, doth certainly come unto Me and believe on Me. Dr. Hammond.

48—50. I am that bread of life.] On the whole, therefore, as I have before said, I Myself am the true bread of life, of which I have been speaking; whom God hath sent into the world, to direct and bring you up in the way of everlasting life. With this bread of life, the manna, of which you boast that your fathers ate in the wilderness, is by no means to be compared. For the manna which they ate could not preserve them from temporal death.

Anno DOMINI 32.

49 Your fathers did eat manna in the wilderness, and are dead.

50 This is the bread which cometh down from heaven, that a man may eat thereof, and not die.

51 I am the living bread which came down from heaven: if any man eat of this bread, he shall live for ever: and the bread that I will give is my flesh, which I will give for the life of the world.

52 The Jews therefore strove among themselves, saying, How can this man give us his flesh to eat?

53 Then Jesus said unto them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of man, and drink his blood, ye have no life in you. Anno DOMINI 32.

54 Whoso eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, hath eternal life; and I will raise him up at the last day.

55 For my flesh is meat indeed, and my blood is drink indeed.

56 He that eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, dwelleth in me, and I in him.

57 As the living Father hath sent me, and I live by the Father: so he that eateth me, even he shall live by me.

58 This is that bread which came down from heaven: not as your fathers did eat manna, and are dead: he that eateth of this bread shall live for ever.

But whosoever eateth of this bread, by believing in Me, embracing My doctrine, and persevering in obedience to My commands, shall thereby be preserved and nourished unto everlasting life. Dr. S. Clarke.

51. — he shall live for ever:] He shall be prepared for immortality, by eating of the bread of life; that is, by receiving and digesting the heavenly doctrine of Christ. Bp. Mann.

—— and the bread that I will give &c.] He speaks in mysterious terms of the death which He was to suffer for the redemption of mankind. Beausobre.

53. — Except ye eat the flesh &c.] This figurative mode of speech was naturally suggested by the occasion. The multitude had followed Christ for the sake of the loaves, expecting to be fed again, as they had been the day preceding; and being disappointed, they affect to despise the miracles, and extol Moses for having wrought a greater, in bringing bread from heaven. Our blessed Lord then takes occasion to assert His own superiority, invites them to eat, not such temporary perishable food as the manna which their forefathers had in the wilderness, but the true living, that is, everlasting, bread from heaven; describing under that name belief in Him, and obedience to His doctrine, as being spiritual food and nourishment to the soul. And this is the meaning of this strong figure, which is continued through this whole discourse: but the conceptions of the Jews were too gross to understand it in its true sense. Bp. Mann.

Although these expressions may not be to be understood directly of the holy Sacrament, yet, because they signify those things which are signified in the Sacrament, they may be aptly applied to it, especially in exhortations to devotion; nay, there are also some cases in which a person may argue from one to the other; and this may very well be, and yet it may by no means follow, that the words are to be understood in a primary sense of the Eucharist. Dr. Clagett.

54. Whoso eateth my flesh, &c.] He means to say, He that, instead of rejecting Me on account of the death which I shall suffer, receives that Divine instruction which that event affords, and turns it into spiritual nourishment, by learning the high displeasure of God against sin; he shall find My death a means of that eternal life, to which I will raise him at the last day. Dr. Clagett.

It is a point which has been much disputed, whether this passage of St. John's Gospel relates to the Lord's supper. It probably does so, as a prophetick intimation: something seems to be intended by our Saviour in the words which He uses, which is not expressed with perfect clearness. Dr. Hey.

Those persons who heard our Saviour could not understand Him with a reference to the Sacrament, unless they were then instructed as to His death and passion; but it sufficiently appears that they then knew and expected nothing of that event. Much less could they understand Him with reference to advantages merely earthly and sensual. But to partake of the Messiah truly, is to partake of Himself, His pure nature, His righteousness, His spirit; and to live and grow and receive nourishment from that participation of Him; all which He expresses in a lively and comprehensive manner, by the phrase of eating His flesh and drinking His blood. Dr. Lightfoot.

Those who come duly prepared to the holy Sacrament, and receive it rightly and worthily, are spiritually partakers of Christ's body and blood; they become one with Christ, and Christ with them; they really and truly partake of the benefits of His passion, as living members of His body. As He is "the bread of life," they are then nourished, strengthened, and supported by Him; they receive Him by faith; by faith they feed upon Him; and the Divine life, which is thus begun in their souls, is in a spiritual manner upheld and carried on in them. Bp. Tomline.

55. — is meat indeed,] He means, the eating and drinking of My flesh and blood, the being united to Me by a hearty belief of My doctrine, and a constant obedience to My commands, is, in a more true and excellent sense, the food and nourishment of the soul unto everlasting life, than natural meat and drink is nourishment to the body, in this frail and mortal state. For (ver. 56.) to eat My flesh and drink My blood, in this sense, is to become spiritually a member of My body, and consequently to be made partaker of My life and immortality. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— indeed,] Really and truly, not literally and materially; really and truly, but in a spiritual sense. Thus our Church, in her Catechism, "verily and indeed taken;" but still in a spiritual, not in a natural, sense. Dr. Trapp.

56. — dwelleth in me, and I in him.] A frequent mode of expressing a close and intimate union, chap. xiv. 10; xvii. 21, 23, 26. Beausobre.

57. As the living Father hath sent me,] As I, that came down from the Father, who is the fountain of life, His Son by eternal generation, derive life from Him; so he that believeth on Me, and has received My precepts to the nourishment of his soul, shall derive everlasting life from Me. Dr. Hammond.

58. — he that eateth of this bread shall live for ever.] All that are saved owe their salvation to the salutary passion of Christ; and their partaking thereof, which is feeding upon His flesh and blood, is their life. Our Lord's general doctrine in this chapter seems to resolve itself into this; that, whether with faith or without, whether in the sacraments or out of the sacraments, whether before Christ or since, whether here or hereafter, no man ever was or will be accepted, but in and through the grand propitiation made by the flesh and blood of Christ. This appears to be the main doctrine taught by our Lord in this chapter, which He delivers so earnestly, and inculcates so strongly. Eating and drinking, by a very common figure, means receiving: and here what is the thing to be received? Christ Himself in His whole person: "I am the bread of life;" "He that eateth me, even he shall live by Me." But, more particularly He is to be considered as giving His body to be broken, and His blood to be shed, for an atonement. And so the fruits of His death are what we are to receive as our spiritual food. "His flesh is meat indeed, and His blood

Anno DOMINI 32.

59 These things said he in the synagogue, as he taught in Capernaum.

60 Many therefore of his disciples, when they had heard this, said, This is an hard saying; who can hear it?

61 When Jesus knew in himself that his disciples murmured at it, he said unto them, Doth this offend you?

[l] Chap. 3. 13.

62 [l] What and if ye shall see the Son of man ascend up where he was before?

63 It is the spirit that quickeneth; the flesh profiteth nothing: the words that I speak unto you, they are spirit, and they are life.

64 But there are some of you that believe not. For Jesus knew from the beginning who they were that believed not, and who should betray him.

65 And he said, Therefore said I unto you, that no man can come unto me, except it were given unto him of my Father.

66 ¶ From that time many of his disciples went back, and walked no more with him.

Anno DOMINI 32.

67 Then said Jesus unto the twelve, Will ye also go away?

68 Then Simon Peter answered him, Lord, to whom shall we go? thou hast the words of eternal life.

69 [m] And we believe and are sure that thou art that Christ, the Son of the living God.

[m] Matt. 16. 16.

70 Jesus answered them, Have not I chosen you twelve, and one of you is a devil?

71 He spake of Judas Iscariot the son of Simon: for he it was that should betray him, being one of the twelve.

CHAP. VII.

1 Jesus reproveth the ambition and boldness of his kinsmen: 10 goeth up from Galilee to the feast of tabernacles: 14 teacheth in the temple. 40 Divers opinions of him among the people. 45 The Pharisees are angry that their officers took him not, and chide with Nicodemus for taking his part.

---

is drink indeed." His passion is our redemption, and by His death we live. It is right to apply the general doctrine of this chapter to the particular case of the Lord's supper, considered as worthily received, because the spiritual feeding here mentioned is the thing signified and effected in the Lord's supper. After we have sufficiently proved by the Scriptures, that, in and by the holy Sacrament, ordinarily, such spiritual food is conveyed; it is then right to apply all that our Lord says in the general to that particular case: but such application does not amount to interpreting this chapter of the holy Sacrament. For example, the words "Except ye eat the flesh &c.—ye have no life in you," do not mean directly, 'Ye have no life without the Lord's supper,' but 'Ye have no life without participating in our Lord's passion.' Nevertheless, since the Lord's supper is one way of participating in His passion, and a very important one; it is very pertinent and proper to urge the doctrine of this chapter, both for the clearer understanding of the beneficial nature of the Lord's supper, and for the exciting Christians to a frequent and devout reception of it. Such is the use which some of the early Fathers made of this chapter, and which our Church very justly makes of it at this day. Dr. Waterland.

60. — This is an hard saying; &c.] This doctrine of His is very hard and unintelligible, that He should be said really to have come down from heaven, and that His flesh should feed men to eternal life, ver. 51, 53, &c. Dr. Hammond.

61. — Doth this offend you?] That is, prove to you a cause of stumbling, or of falling off from Me. Abp. Newcome.

62. What and if ye shall see &c.] Shall see the Son of man ascend up into heaven, where He was before He came down to earth. Dr. Wells. Are ye surprised and disturbed at what I have now spoken, as if they were strange and unintelligible things? what if hereafter ye shall see Me go up again to the same place, from whence I at first came? When ye see this, ye will learn to understand My words, not in a gross, but in a spiritual and rational sense. Dr. S. Clarke.

63. It is the spirit that quickeneth; &c.] It is the soul, He says, that enliveneth, and not the body; and accordingly it was not the gross carnal eating of His body, of which He spake; but a spiritual feeding on Him which would bring them to eternal life; His doctrine being thus received into their hearts, would quicken them to a spiritual life here, and that would bring them to everlasting life hereafter. Dr. Hammond.

64. — there are some of you that believe not.] That believe not sincerely, and on sound principles, notwithstanding outward professions. Dr. Wells.

—— For Jesus knew from the beginning &c.] For He knew Himself what was in man, being the Searcher of hearts, Acts i. 24; Rev. ii. 23. Dr. Hales.

65. — Therefore said I unto you,] For this reason, that is, because I knew there were among you some who believe not, I told you before that My doctrine could never be heartily embraced by any, but those only who are endued with good and teachable dispositions, willing to learn, desirous of being instructed in the way of eternal life, and prepared to receive any well-attested revelation of God's will. Dr. S. Clarke.

68. — Lord, to whom shall we go? &c.] To whose instruction and discipline shall we submit, if we should once forsake You, whose doctrine is the only true guide to eternal life and happiness? Dr. S. Clarke. In this answer, there are three things expressed or implied, as the ground of their constancy and adherence to Christ. The first is, the miserable condition they should be in, if they did forsake Him, having no other in whom they could trust. The second is, the excellency of His religion, and the certain means it afforded of obtaining that which is the great end of religion, a blessed life after this: "Thou hast the words of eternal life." The third is, the authority and Divine commission of Christ, on which their faith and confidence were built. "We believe, and are sure," that is, have determined for ourselves, from what we have heard and seen, "that Thou art that Christ." Bp. Sherlock.

—— thou hast the words of eternal life.] As if He had said, We do not understand Thee in the gross and absurd sense to which these men have perverted Thy sayings; for we perceive that thou speakest of those doctrines and revelations, by which we are to be guided to eternal life. Dr. Clagett.

69. — are sure that thou art that Christ,] Whereas these men called Thee the Son of Joseph, we assuredly believe that Thou art the Son of that God who giveth life to all, and that Thou wilt give eternal life to all that believe in Thee. Dr. Clagett.

Simon Peter here speaks in the name of all the twelve; upon which our Lord shews His Divine knowledge, by excepting Judas Iscariot, ver. 70. Abp. Newcome.

70. — is a devil?] That is, an adversary to Me and My doctrine. Dr. Whitby. A false treacherous person, who will betray Me. Dr. Hammond.

Anno DOMINI 32.

AFTER these things Jesus walked in Galilee: for he would not walk in Jewry, because the Jews sought to kill him.

[a] Lev. 23. 34.

2 [a] Now the Jews' feast of tabernacles was at hand.

3 His brethren therefore said unto him, Depart hence, and go into Judea, that thy disciples also may see the works that thou doest.

4 For there is no man that doeth any thing in secret, and he himself seeketh to be known openly. If thou do these things, shew thyself to the world.

5 For neither did his brethren believe in him.

6 Then Jesus said unto them, My time is not yet come: but your time is alway ready.

7 The world cannot hate you; but me it hateth, because I testify of it, that the works thereof are evil.

8 Go ye up unto this feast: I go not up

[b] Chap. 8. 20.

yet unto this feast; [b] for my time is not yet full come.

9 When he had said these words unto them, he abode still in Galilee.

Anno DOMINI 32.

10 ¶ But when his brethren were gone up, then went he also up unto the feast, not openly, but as it were in secret.

11 Then the Jews sought him at the feast, and said, Where is he?

12 And there was much murmuring among the people concerning him: for some said, He is a good man: others said, Nay; but he deceiveth the people.

13 Howbeit no man spake openly of him for fear of the Jews.

14 ¶ Now about the midst of the feast Jesus went up into the temple, and taught.

15 And the Jews marvelled, saying, How knoweth this man ‖ letters, having never learned?

‖ Or, learning.

16 Jesus answered them, and said, My doctrine is not mine, but his that sent me.

17 If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself.

Chap. VII. ver. 1. —Jesus walked in Galilee:] Went about preaching in the cities of Galilee, rather than in Judea, because the rulers of the Jews sought for some occasion to put Him to death. He conducted Himself with this prudent caution because His time was not yet come. He instructs us by His example that we should on no occasion run into dangers without necessity, upon presumption of Divine protection, but that we should use all lawful means which God has put into our hands to avoid them. Drs. Whitby and Hammond.

2. —feast of tabernacles] One of the three great feasts (see notes at Lev. xxiii. 34) which occurred on the fifteenth of the seventh month, answering to the end of our September, or the beginning of October; it continued for eight days.

3. His brethren] His kindred. See note at Matt. xiii. 55.

——that thy disciples also may see &c.] That the disciples, which were wont to follow Thee there, may see the miracles that Thou doest. For (ver. 4.) whosoever would gain an authority among the people, must not perform his miracles in private; therefore, whatsoever Thou doest, perform in Judea as publickly as Thou canst. Dr. Hammond. Shew Thyself to the world. Perform Thy miracles in Judea, at Jerusalem, at the time of the approaching feast, that the great men, the Jews, proselytes, and strangers, may all behold them, and be convinced of Thy power. Dr. S. Clarke.

5. —neither did his brethren believe in him.] To what extent His brethren did not believe Him at this time, is uncertain. By their discourse it seems not to have been a total disbelief, but only some partial doubts, arising from their observing that He was not willing to make a publick appearance in Jerusalem. Bp. Pearce. They doubted when they saw that He did not take the means, which they expected from the Messiah, of raising Himself and them. Dr. Lightfoot.

It is probable that the same worldly-minded notions of the temporal power and grandeur of the Messiah's kingdom, which infected even the Apostles, had taken possession of His relations. Hence they endeavoured to check His exertions to instruct the people, which they conceived to be extravagant and enthusiastick. Dr. Hales. The remark here made by the Evangelist illustrates his fidelity, and his confidence in the truth and excellency of his cause. Abp. Newcome.

It was so ordered by Providence, that our blessed Saviour's reputation was very little owing to the interest of His parentage, or brethren, or kindred, or countrymen; or indeed to His Apostles or first followers, during the time that He lived with them. God Almighty chose, and He chose for Himself, that His Gospel should force its way in the world under disadvantageous circumstances, and through the greatest difficulties and oppositions, by the notoriety of the miracles performed, and the purity of the doctrine taught. These His brethren and kinsfolks, as they were persons mean in rank, so also were they among the backward to believe on Him. Dr. Wall.

6. —My time is not yet come:] For going up to the feast; "but your time is alway ready" to go there without molestation from any one. Dr. Whitby. The eighth verse seems clearly to restrain these words to His going up to Jerusalem. Dr. Clagett.

7. The world cannot hate you; &c.] Ye are in no danger of being hated and persecuted by worldly men, whilst ye yourselves are led by worldly principles and affections; but, so long as My doctrine reproves their wicked practices and carnal lusts, they will hate and oppose Me to the utmost of their power. Dr. Clagett.

10. —as it were in secret.] As privately as He could, to avoid the designs of those who sought His life, ver. 19. Dr. Whitby.

It seems probable from ver. 1, 7, 11, that the Jews had formed some treacherous design against Him. Thus, though our Lord determined to go to the feast in obedience to the Divine command, yet He went privately to avoid the danger; shewing in this manner, that He would not use a miraculous power to escape the designs of His enemies, when human prudence would serve. Dr. Clagett.

12. —much murmuring] Much private discourse of one man to another. Dr. Whitby.

——Nay; but he deceiveth the people.] Here again we should observe the great impartiality of the Evangelist. Abp. Newcome.

13. —no man spake openly of him] Those who were most favourable to Him, durst not openly commend Him, for fear of the Jewish rulers. Bp. Mann.

15. —How knoweth this man letters,] Whence comes it, that He understands so well the books of the Law, and the Scriptures; as He was never instructed in the schools of the scribes? Dr. Hammond.

16. —My doctrine is not mine, &c.] My doctrine is not the effect of learning and study; but comes from the source of all knowledge and truth, even from God Himself. Bp. Mann.

17. —he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God,] God

Anno DOMINI 32.

18 He that speaketh of himself seeketh his own glory: but he that seeketh his glory that sent him, the same is true, and no unrighteousness is in him.

c Exod. 24. 3. d Chap. 5. 18.

19 [c] Did not Moses give you the law, and yet none of you keepeth the law? [d] Why go ye about to kill me?

20 The people answered and said, Thou hast a devil: who goeth about to kill thee?

21 Jesus answered and said unto them, I have done one work, and ye all marvel.

e Lev. 12. 3. f Gen. 17. 10.

22 [e] Moses therefore gave unto you circumcision; (not because it is of Moses, [f] but of the fathers;) and ye on the sabbath day circumcise a man.

‖ Or, without breaking the law of Moses.

23 If a man on the sabbath day receive circumcision, ‖ that the law of Moses should not be broken; are ye angry at me, because I have made a man every whit whole on the sabbath day?

g Deut. 1. 16.

24 [g] Judge not according to the appearance, but judge righteous judgement.

25 Then said some of them of Jerusalem, Is not this he, whom they seek to kill?

Anno DOMINI 32.

26 But, lo, he speaketh boldly, and they say nothing unto him. Do the rulers know indeed that this is the very Christ?

27 Howbeit we know this man whence he is: but when Christ cometh, no man knoweth whence he is.

28 Then cried Jesus in the temple as he taught, saying, Ye both know me, and ye know whence I am: and I am not come of myself, but he that sent me is true, whom ye know not.

29 But I know him: for I am from him, and he hath sent me.

30 Then they sought to take him: but no man laid hands on him, because his hour was not yet come.

31 And many of the people believed on him, and said, When Christ cometh, will he do more miracles than these which this man hath done?

---

will enlighten his mind, so that he may form a right judgment of My doctrine. Dr. Hales. This sentence clearly shews us, that they best understand the will of God, who are most careful to practise it: so likewise, that the best way to know what God is, is to transcribe His perfections in our lives and actions; to be holy, and just, and good, and merciful, as He is: also that a hearty desire and endeavour to do the will of God is the best security and preservative against dangerous errours and mistakes in matters of religion. Abp. Tillotson.

These words instruct us, that a sincere desire to know the truth, with an honest disposition to conform our wills to it when known, is the best preservative against errour in religion, and carries with it a well-grounded assurance of the Divine aid to assist persons so disposed, in their inquiries after truth. These words also carry in them this other assertion, that whoever is not first sincerely disposed to do the will of God, will be in great danger of not knowing the doctrine whether it be of God, and of remaining in a state of ignorance and errour. Bp. Gibson.

18. He that speaketh of himself seeketh his own glory:] And therefore speaks not those things which he knows will procure him hatred from men. Dr. Whitby.

——the same is true, &c.] He is worthy of being believed, and there is no guile or deceit in Him. Dr. Hammond.

19. Did not Moses give you the law,] But it is otherwise with you, as being full of hypocrisy and guile: for "did not Moses give you the law," for which you seem so zealous, as to be angry with Me for a supposed violation of it; and yet, after all this pretended zeal, none of you keepeth the law? "Why (else) go ye about to kill Me?" (in violation of the sixth commandment.) Dr. Whitby.

20. —Thou hast a devil:] Thou art possest with a lying spirit. Dr. Whitby.

21. —I have done one work,] It appears (ver. 23.) that the Jews had at this time found fault with Jesus respecting His healing a man on the sabbath day. Perhaps they remembered and reproached Him with having done so, when He was at Jerusalem, about three months before, (chap. v. 9,) or else He had wrought a new miracle on the sabbath, shortly before this discourse between Him and the Jews took place. Bp. Pearce.

——ye all marvel.] Ye wonder that I should do so, and are angry with Me, ver. 23. Dr. Hammond.

22. Moses therefore gave unto you &c.] But with what little reason, judge ye by this case. If the eighth day after the birth of a male child fall on the sabbath, ye do yet circumcise him, notwithstanding the strict observance of the sabbath which the law of Moses requires. And this ye do, because this law, or rather a more ancient law given to Abraham, requires that every male should be circumcised on the eighth day. Dr. Clagett.

23. —because I have made a man—whole] For the law of doing good, and relieving the miserable at all times, is a more ancient and excellent law, than those Mosaical laws, which enjoin the sabbath, or the circumcision on the eighth day. Dr. Clagett.

24. Judge not according to the appearance, &c.] Lay aside your prejudices against My person, and consider these cases attentively and impartially; and then judge whether ye can justly condemn Me as a sabbath-breaker, and acquit yourselves. Dr. Clagett.

25, 26. —Is not this he, &c. —But, lo, he speaketh boldly, &c.] It is not very probable that this man should be afraid of a conspiracy against His life, who is not afraid to talk with this publick freedom in the temple, and is not so much as silenced by the council. One would rather conclude from His teaching in this publick manner, without control, that the rulers themselves had indeed acknowledged Him to be the Christ. Dr. Clagett.

27. Howbeit we know this man whence he is: &c.] But there is no such matter, and we ourselves can tell why He cannot be the Christ; for we know this man's parentage, and whence He came; "but when Christ cometh," &c. Dr. Clagett.

——no man knoweth whence he is.] They spake this from the vain traditions of the rabbies, who owned indeed that their Messiah was to be born in Bethlehem, but imagined that He was soon to be conveyed thence, and concealed till Elias came to anoint Him; (Dr. Whitby;) or perhaps from a mistaken sense of Isai. liii. 8, "who shall declare His generation?" Bp. Pearce. Or from the similitude of Christ to Melchizedek, who was acknowledged to be a type of Him, and is described as being without father or mother, Heb. vii. 3. Bp. Mann.

28. Then cried Jesus—Ye both know me,] In answer to this cavil, Jesus said, Ye know indeed My person, parentage, and country; but this should not prejudice you against My being a Prophet sent from God; for I am not come of Myself, but He that sent Me, and hath given sufficient testimony that He did send Me, is true; whom ye own not, refusing to receive His testimony concerning Me. Dr. Whitby.

29. —for I am from him,] And thus have an original, of which ye know not. Dr. Whitby.

30. —his hour was not yet come.] The time which God had appointed for His death was not yet come. Bp. Mann.

31. —will he do more miracles] The people mention His miracles, because these are the proper means of carrying conviction

Anno DOMINI 32.

32 ¶ The Pharisees heard that the people murmured such things concerning him; and the Pharisees and the chief priests sent officers to take him.

33 Then said Jesus unto them, Yet a little while am I with you, and then I go unto him that sent me.

[h] Chap. 13. 33.

34 [h] Ye shall seek me, and shall not find me: and where I am, thither ye cannot come.

35 Then said the Jews among themselves, Whither will he go, that we shall not find him? will he go unto the dispersed among the ‖ Gentiles, and teach the Gentiles?

‖ Or, Greeks.

36 What manner of saying is this that he said, Ye shall seek me, and shall not find me: and where I am, thither ye cannot come?

[i] Lev. 23. 36.

37 [i] In the last day, that great day of the feast, Jesus stood and cried, saying, If any man thirst, let him come unto me, and drink.

[k] Deut. 18. 15.

38 [k] He that believeth on me, as the scripture hath said, out of his belly shall flow rivers of living water.

Anno DOMINI 32.

39 ([l] But this spake he of the Spirit, which they that believe on him should receive: for the Holy Ghost was not yet given; because that Jesus was not yet glorified.)

[l] Joel 2. 28. Isai. 44. 3.

40 ¶ Many of the people therefore, when they heard this saying, said, Of a truth this is the Prophet.

41 Others said, This is the Christ. But some said, Shall Christ come out of Galilee?

42 [m] Hath not the Scripture said, That Christ cometh of the seed of David, and out of the town of Bethlehem, where David was?

[m] Matt. 2. 5.

43 So there was a division among the people because of him.

44 And some of them would have taken him; but no man laid hands on him.

45 ¶ Then came the officers to the chief priests and Pharisees; and they said unto them, Why have ye not brought him?

---

to common people, who are not so much influenced by the intrinsick excellence of the doctrine, or even by the most popular discourses, as by signs and wonders. Dr. Clagett.

This passage (ver. 21—31.) is very observable. It exhibits the reasoning of different sorts of persons on the occasion of a miracle, which persons of all sorts are represented to have acknowledged as real. One sort of men thought that there was something very extraordinary in all this, but that still Jesus could not be the Christ, because there was a circumstance in His appearance, which militated with an opinion concerning Christ, in which they had been brought up; namely, that "when Christ cometh, no man knoweth whence He is." Another sort were inclined to believe Him to be the Messiah. But even these did not argue as we should; did not consider the miracle as itself decisive of the question, and as excluding, if once allowed, all further debate on the subject: but they founded their opinion on a kind of comparative reasoning. "When Christ cometh, will He do more miracles" than these which this man hath done? Archdeacon Paley.

32. — murmured] Spake privately among themselves. Bp. Mann.

33. — Yet a little while &c.] Your attempts to seize Me are unavailing; I shall remain among you, by the appointments of God, a little while, and then ascend to Him who is in heaven. Grotius.

34, — thither ye cannot come.] I shall then be quite out of your reach, and received into a place where ye cannot follow Me. Dr. Clagett.

35. — the dispersed among the Gentiles,] It has been doubted what is the proper meaning of this expression; the literal translation is, 'the dispersion of the Greeks;' and it probably signifies the different Gentiles who used the Grecian language, as those of Alexandria, Syria, Asia Minor, &c.; or, according to others, the Jews who were dispersed through these different countries, and used the Greek language, being called on that account Hellenized, or Grecian Jews. These Jews were looked upon with a certain contempt by those of Judea. The expression seems spoken by way of reproach. Grotius, Dr. Hammond. I rather understand by the words, the Gentiles amongst whom the Jews were dispersed, not the dispersed Jews themselves. Dr. Clagett.

37. In the last day, that great day of the feast, &c.] The last, or eighth day of the feast. On this day it was the custom to draw water from the pool of Siloam, and to offer it up in the temple with much solemnity, and the sound of various voices and instruments: this was done partly in commemoration of the miraculous relief of water produced from the stony rock by Moses, 1 Cor. x. 4, but principally to solicit the blessing of rain for the approaching seed-time. It is in allusion to this custom that our Saviour says, "If any man thirst, &c.;" taking occasion, as was usual with Him, from the circumstances then before Him, to invite them to come to Him as the true fountain. Drs. Lightfoot and Hammond.

—— let him come unto me, and drink.] From the ceremony now before Him, He takes occasion to compare His doctrine to water, as He had in the foregoing chapter to bread; each being necessary for the support of life. Bp. Mann. I will give Him the spiritual water of wise instructions, and of the doctrine of eternal life, which, to the souls of all who really desire wisdom and happiness, is greater and more real refreshment, than natural water is to a thirsty body. Dr. S. Clarke.

38, 39. He that believeth on me, &c.] Faithfully and sincerely, shall not only be filled with Divine knowledge and wisdom himself, but moreover shall be able, by the overflowing gifts of the Holy Spirit, to derive abundantly to many others that conviction and knowledge, which is necessary to their eternal salvation. This Jesus spake, ver. 39, as of a gift to be bestowed hereafter, because that exceeding abundance of Divine gifts, which He now meant, was not to be poured out presently; but was reserved to be the effect, and the evidence, of His exaltation to the right hand of God. Dr. S. Clarke.

38. — as the scripture hath said,] The effusion of the gifts of the Holy Spirit had not only been foretold in the ancient prophecies, but likewise under this very figure of living water. Thus, among other passages, Isai. xliv. 3, "I will pour water" &c. Dr. Clagett.

39. — the Holy Ghost was not yet given;] The miraculous gifts of the Holy Ghost were not yet given. See Acts xix. 2. Bp. Mann.

40. — the Prophet.] Whom Moses foretold, Deut. xviii. 18. Dr. Whitby. One of the Prophets risen from the dead, to make way for the coming of the Messiah. Dr. Clagett.

41. — the Christ.] The very Messiah.

—— Shall Christ come out of Galilee?] These persons avoided all the evidence of His miracles and doctrine, by listening to that vulgar mistake, that Jesus was born at Nazareth: and they said, Shall any thing ever persuade us that Christ is to come out of Galilee? Dr. Clagett.

42. — where David was?] Where David dwelt with his father Jesse, 1 Sam. xvi. 1, 4. Bp. Mann.

Anno DOMINI 32.

46 The officers answered, Never man spake like this man.

47 Then answered them the Pharisees, Are ye also deceived?

48 Have any of the rulers or of the Pharisees believed on him?

49 But this people who knoweth not the law are cursed.

[n] Chap. 3. 2. 50 Nicodemus saith unto them, ([n] he that came to Jesus by night, being one of them,)

[o] Deut. 17. 8, &c. & 19. 15. 51 [o] Doth our law judge any man, before it hear him, and know what he doeth?

52 They answered and said unto him, Art thou also of Galilee? Search, and look: for out of Galilee ariseth no prophet.

53 And every man went unto his own house.

CHAP. VIII.

1 Christ delivereth the woman taken in adultery. 12 He preacheth himself the light of the world, and justifieth his doctrine: 33 answereth the Jews that boasted of Abraham, 59 and conveyeth himself from their cruelty.

JESUS went unto the mount of Olives. Anno DOMINI 32.

2 And early in the morning he came again into the temple, and all the people came unto him; and he sat down, and taught them.

3 And the scribes and Pharisees brought unto him a woman taken in adultery; and when they had set her in the midst,

4 They say unto him, Master, this woman was taken in adultery, in the very act.

[a] Lev. 20. 10. 5 [a] Now Moses in the law commanded us, that such should be stoned: but what sayest thou?

6 This they said, tempting him, that they might have to accuse him. But Jesus stooped down, and with his finger wrote on the ground, as though he heard them not.

[b] Deut. 17. 7. 7 So when they continued asking him, he lifted up himself, and said unto them, [b] He that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone at her.

---

46. — Never man spake like this man.] They were so affected with the sincerity and authority, and the Divine Spirit with which He spake, the like to which they had never before witnessed, that they could not prevail on themselves to offer Him the least violence. Dr. Clagett.

48. Have any of the rulers &c.] Have any of those who understand the law, and are fit to judge for you in matters of religion, believed on Him? Dr. Whitby.

49. But this people &c.] But these common people, who have never studied the law, are apt to run into all giddiness, and follow any false teacher. Dr. Hammond.

—— are cursed.] Are all under God's curse, having no understanding of the law, Deut. xxvii. 26. Dr. Clagett.

51. Doth our law judge any man, before &c.] This prejudice against Him is too hasty: in all reason you should hear what He has to say for Himself, and what any can witness against Him: our law proceeds not against any person, till we have examined him, and taken cognizance of his case. Dr. Hammond.

52. — Art thou also of Galilee?] This is said scoffingly: Art thou also of that sect or faction, chiefly from Galilee, who believe in this Galilean? Dr. Lightfoot.

—— out of Galilee ariseth no prophet.] Galilee lay under a reproach among the Jews. See chap. i. 46. If they literally mean that no Prophet ever appeared from Galilee, their assertion is not true; for Jonah was of Gath-hepher, a town in the tribe of Zebulun, and consequently in Galilee, 2 Kings xiv. 25; Isai. ix. 1. Dr. Hammond. But probably their meaning is, that the Messiah was not to arise from Galilee, ver. 41. These chief priests and council must have known, by the coming of the wise men from the East, that Christ was born at Bethlehem, Luke ii. 16, &c.: but prejudice had closed their eyes against the clearest truth. Dr. Whitby.

53. And every man went &c.] Finding that controversies were growing among themselves, they determined that nothing more could be done at that time: accordingly, they broke up the council in anger; "and every man went unto his own house." Dr. Clagett.

Chap. VIII. ver. 1. — unto the mount of Olives.] Probably to Bethany, where He afterwards abode. See Matt. xxi. 17; Luke xxi. 37. Bp. Pearce.

5. Now Moses in the law commanded &c.] If the person taken in adultery was a married woman, the law required that she should be put to death, Lev. xx. 10; Deut. xxii. 22: if she was an espoused person, then the law expressly says, that she should be put to death by stoning, Deut. xxii. 23, 24; whence it has been concluded, that this adulteress was only espoused. Dr. Whitby.

6. — tempting him,] To say something in derogation of the law of Moses, that they might have a ground of accusation against Him for contemning or opposing that law. Dr. Whitby.

Their design was to lay a snare for Christ, and they thought they had so laid it, that He must fall into it either way. For, if He contradicted Moses by ordering the woman to be released, they would set Him down for a false prophet; and if, with Moses, He sentenced her to death, He must have acted contrary to His character of a merciful Saviour. Thus these Scribes and Pharisees, while they were clamouring for vengeance against adultery, forgot that there were any such sins as envy, hatred, and malice; and perceived not that they themselves were all the time in the gall of bitterness. The woman had broken one commandment; but these, her accusers, were overturning the foundations of the whole law, mercy, justice, and truth. So easy is it for men, who are not upon their guard, even while they are exerting themselves against some kinds of sins, to run into others; nor indeed can we be greatly surprised that they, who give up their whole attention to the concerns of their neighbours, should sometimes a little neglect their own. Bp. Horne.

—— wrote on the ground,] Seeming not to regard what they said, and to have His attention fixed on other thoughts. Dr. S. Clarke.

7. — He that is without sin among you, &c.] He says to them in this answer, Why do ye urge Me to give a judgment in this matter? I have nothing to say against your executing the law. Only consider that he, who is thus zealous in punishing another, should in all equity be free from guilt himself. Whoever therefore among you has a clear and innocent conscience, let him begin and cast the first stone at the woman. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— first cast a stone] The first stone was thrown by the principal accuser; it was of great bulk and weight, and generally fatal. See Deut. xiii. 9; xvii. 7. Grotius.

His meaning is, I shall not condemn the woman Myself, for it is not My office. You may do it, if you will affirm yourselves to be those righteous men, which you desire to be accounted. But this ye dare not do before Me, who, as ye well know, can prove the contrary, and give the by-standers such a history of what you have been, and what you are, as will make you ashamed to shew yourselves. And therefore it is that I challenge and defy you to proceed.—"He that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone at her." Bp. Horne.

Anno DOMINI 32.

8 And again he stooped down, and wrote on the ground.

9 And they which heard it, being convicted by their own conscience, went out one by one, beginning at the eldest, even unto the last: and Jesus was left alone, and the woman standing in the midst.

10 When Jesus had lifted up himself, and saw none but the woman, he said unto her, Woman, where are those thine accusers? hath no man condemned thee?

11 She said, No man, Lord. And Jesus said unto her, Neither do I condemn thee: go, and sin no more.

12 ¶ Then spake Jesus again unto them, saying, [c] I am the light of the world: he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life.

[c] Chap. 1. 5. & 9. 5.

13 The Pharisees therefore said unto him, Thou bearest record of thyself; thy record is not true.

Anno DOMINI 32.

14 Jesus answered and said unto them, [d] Though I bear record of myself, yet my record is true: for I know whence I came, and whither I go; but ye cannot tell whence I come, and whither I go.

[d] Chap. 5. 31.

15 Ye judge after the flesh; I judge no man.

16 And yet if I judge, my judgment is true: for I am not alone, but I and the Father that sent me.

17 [e] It is also written in your law, that the testimony of two men is true.

[e] Deut. 17. 6. Matt. 18. 16.

18 I am one that bear witness of myself, and the father that sent me beareth witness of me.

19 Then said they unto him, Where is thy Father? Jesus answered, Ye neither know me, nor my Father: if ye had

---

9. — went out one by one,] Never was triumph more complete: these hypocrites were self-convicted, confounded, and disgraced before the multitude. Dr. Hales.

—— left alone,] All the accusers being gone; it is probable that the Apostles were standing by, and also some of the multitude. Grotius.

The criminal alone remains to be seen, all her accusers are fled; and not without sufficient cause. They found there was One ready to accuse them in their turns; they perceived that all things were naked and open before Him with whom they had to do, and they were not disposed that He should lay open their hearts, and read a lecture to them before the people. Their consciences told them what sort of lecture this must needs be, and therefore, rather than He should read it to them, they prudently withdrew, and left Him to condemn or absolve the woman as He thought fit. Bp. Horne.

11. — Neither do I condemn thee:] Neither do I, who have no commission to pass sentence upon thee, take upon Me to condemn thee to die; go, and in fear of the Divine judgments repent, and sin no more. Dr. Whitby. Jesus was no magistrate; which affords a sufficient reason for His forbearing to condemn her, and dismissing her with a warning against the heinousness of the sin, and a charge to amend her life. There is not the slightest reason to conclude that He did not, by His behaviour on this occasion, strongly mark His disapprobation of adultery. He expressly charged the woman to sin no more, and He only avoided interfering in a matter by which it was intended to ensnare Him. Bps. Pearce and Mann.

We are not to suppose that our Lord meant to excuse guilt, or to find fault with the law of Moses, which was the law of God. By that law, adultery was to be punished with death. But the sentence could not be passed without accusers and witnesses, who were all fled. Proper magistrates must pass it; and, had they done so, Christ would not have interposed to hinder the execution of justice. But they not having condemned her, whose proper office it was, no more would Christ, whose office it was not. With respect to the Law, He left all as it was; He neither condemned nor absolved the woman. But, as the Publisher of the Gospel, and the Author of salvation, He directed her how to obtain the pardon of Heaven and eternal life; namely, by so truly repenting of her sin, as never to return to it again. Bp. Horne.

—— go, and sin no more.] Despair not, therefore, thou, whoever thou art, whom temptation has drawn into sin; thou art in the hands of One who desireth not the death of a sinner; of One who died for thy sake, to procure for thee forgiveness, grace, and glory. Return to Him, pray to Him, love Him, and serve Him, all the remaining days of thy life. Let the remembrance of what is past teach thee how bitter are the fruits of sin; fear, sorrow, shame, and confusion; and henceforth learn by experience, (for nothing else can truly inform thee,) how sweet are the fruits of righteousness; peace and hope and joy and holy confidence. So shall thy brethren receive thee, as one alive from the dead, and angels themselves shall join in celebrating that mercy which has been extended towards thee. "There is joy in the presence of the angels of God, over one sinner that repenteth." Bp. Horne.

12. Then spake Jesus again — I am the light of the world:] This business of the adulteress being over, Jesus returns to His first purpose of instructing the people, ver. 2; He here says, I am sent into the world to enlighten all men with such understanding of the truth, that he, who believes and follows My doctrine, shall not remain under any uncertainty concerning the way of salvation, but shall have the knowledge of all things necessary to eternal life. Dr. Clagett.

13. — Thou bearest record of thyself;] Thou bringest no proof of what Thou affirmest, and we are not bound to believe concerning Thyself on Thine own single testimony. Dr. S. Clarke.

14. — for I know whence I came, &c.] I know that I came down from heaven: and I being a Divine Person, and one essential attribute of the Godhead being truth, therefore it necessarily follows that My single testimony of Myself must be true; and this ye would readily acknowledge, but that, by means of your unreasonable prejudices, "ye cannot tell whence I come and whither I go;" that is, ye will not believe Me to come from heaven, and to be a Divine Person. Dr. Wells.

15. — after the flesh;] According to the meanness of My extraction and appearance. Dr. Whitby. After the custom of the world, or according to your mistaken prejudices. Bp. Mann.

—— I judge no man.] I condemn no man, but teach all; My business now being that of a Prophet, not of a judge. Dr. Clagett.

16. — for I am not alone,] My own testimony is not alone, but it inseparably includes that of another which you have no colour to refuse; and that is the testimony of the Father. Dr. Clagett.

17. — is true.] Is valid in causes of the greatest consequence; and this evidence of the truth of My mission ye have; for the Father (ver. 18.) beareth witness of Me. Dr. Whitby.

18. — the Father — beareth witness of me.] God the Father bore witness of Jesus by the miracles which He performed. Our Saviour reasons, that if in ordinary cases the witness of two persons is sufficient, certainly the evidence here must be allowed to be infinitely stronger and more decisive. "If we receive the witness of men, the witness of God is greater," 1 John v. 9. Bp. Mann.

19. — Ye neither know me, nor &c.] Ye will not receive any knowledge concerning Me or My Father. Your acknowledging known me, ye should have known my Father also.

Anno DOMINI 32.

20 These words spake Jesus in the treasury, as he taught in the temple: and no man laid hands on him; for his hour was not yet come.

21 Then said Jesus again unto them, I go my way, and ye shall seek me, and shall die in your sins: whither I go, ye cannot come.

22 Then said the Jews, Will he kill himself? because he saith, Whither I go, ye cannot come.

23 And he said unto them, Ye are from beneath; I am from above: ye are of this world; I am not of this world.

24 I said therefore unto you, that ye shall die in your sins: for if ye believe not that I am he, ye shall die in your sins.

25 Then said they unto him, Who art thou? And Jesus saith unto them, Even the same that I said unto you from the beginning.

26 I have many things to say and to judge of you: but he that sent me is true; and I speak to the world those things which I have heard of him.

27 They understood not that he spake to them of the Father.

28 Then said Jesus unto them, When ye have lifted up the Son of man, then shall ye know that I am he, and that I do nothing of myself; but as my Father hath taught me, I speak these things.

Anno DOMINI 32.

29 And he that sent me is with me: the Father hath not left me alone; for I do always those things that please him.

30 As he spake these words, many believed on him.

31 Then said Jesus to those Jews which believed on him, If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed;

32 And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free.

33 ¶ They answered him, We be Abraham's seed, and were never in bondage to any man: how sayest thou, Ye shall be made free?

34 Jesus answered them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, [f] Whosoever committeth sin is the servant of sin.

[f] Rom. 6. 20. 2 Pet. 2. 19.

35 And the servant abideth not in the house for ever: but the Son abideth ever.

36 If the Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed.

37 I know that ye are Abraham's seed; but ye seek to kill me, because my word hath no place in you.

---

of Me is the only way to bring you to the knowledge of My Father. Dr. Hammond.

20. — the treasury,] The part of the temple where was the chest for receiving the offerings of the worshippers. Bp. Pearce.

—— his hour] The hour of His last suffering in obedience to His Father's will. Dr. Clagett.

21. — I go my way, &c.] I shall depart from hence, and then ye will seek Me to no purpose; and by persisting in a hardened unbelief of Me, ver. 24, ye will bring judgments on yourselves, as taking no warning by the preaching of a Prophet, Ezek. iii. 19: it will then be too late for you to wish to recall this time, for I shall then have departed to a place where ye cannot come to Me. Dr. Hammond.

23. — Ye are from beneath; I am &c.] You and I are of very different originals: your affections, like yourselves, are of an earthly temper and origin; and therefore you imagine such perverse interpretations of My words (as that of ver. 21.) Dr. Hammond.

24. — that I am he,] The Messiah, the Prophet who was to come.

25. — the same that I said unto you &c.] What from the first I said that I was, that I affirm to you still. Dr. S. Clarke.

26. I have many things to say &c.] I could take occasion, from these unreasonable questions of yours, to charge you with several things which you would not care to hear: but I pass them by at present, and desire you to remember this which I say; He that sent Me expects to be believed, and you will find it a terrible thing to gainsay His authority: mark this also, that in all those instructions which I have given to the world, I delivered nothing which He will not justify. Dr. Clagett.

28. — When ye have lifted up the Son of man,] When ye shall have lifted up the Son of man on the cross; see chap. iii. 14; xviii. 32. Bp. Mann.

—— then shall ye know] By the further evidences afforded by My resurrection and ascension; (Dr. Hammond;) and by the effusion of the Holy Ghost. Dr. Whitby.

30. As he spake these words, many believed on him.] Meaning that, upon Jesus's foretelling many things that were to happen to Himself and to the nation of the Jews, many that heard Him were disposed to consider and compare what they had known and heard of Him before; and being persuaded that He was a Person sent from God, they declared that they would become His disciples. Dr. S. Clarke.

32. — shall make you free.] You shall obtain the greatest and most desirable freedom (Dr. S. Clarke) from the yoke of bondage to sin and corruption, ver. 34. Dr. Whitby.

33. — were never in bondage] It hence sufficiently appears how much they gloried in being of the seed of Abraham, and how jealous they were of their freedom. We, they here say, are of the seed of Abraham, of that race who are attached to our liberty and tenacious of it, and, as far as concerns ourselves, were never in bondage to any man. Dr. Lightfoot.

At the very time when they spake this, they were subject to the Roman power, but they preserved this appearance of liberty, that they retained their institutions and were governed by their own laws.

34. — is the servant of sin.] He replies, You misunderstand Me; I speak not of bodily freedom, but of spiritual; of freedom from prejudice and sin. Bp. Mann.

35. — the servant abideth not] Ye think yourselves free, as being descended from Abraham, and living under the law of Moses. But Abraham and Moses were merely servants, and therefore their authority was only for a time; whereas the authority of the Son shall never have an end. Bp. Mann.

36. If the Son therefore &c.] If therefore ye will submit to be made free of God's house by the authority of the Son, ye shall gain a freedom which ye can never lose, if ye will but continue under the doctrine and government of the Son. Dr. Clagett.

37. — my word hath no place in you.] Your corrupt affections will not permit you to embrace it. Dr. Whitby.

Anno DOMINI 32.

38 I speak that which I have seen with my Father: and ye do that which ye have seen with your father.

39 They answered and said unto him, Abraham is our father. Jesus saith unto them, If ye were Abraham's children, ye would do the works of Abraham.

40 But now ye seek to kill me, a man that hath told you the truth, which I have heard of God: this did not Abraham.

41 Ye do the deeds of your father. Then said they to him, We be not born of fornication; we have one Father, even God.

42 Jesus said unto them, If God were your Father, ye would love me: for I proceeded forth and came from God; neither came I of myself, but he sent me.

43 Why do ye not understand my speech? even because ye cannot hear my word.

[g] 1 John 3. 8.

44 [g] Ye are of your father the devil, and the lusts of your father ye will do. He was a murderer from the beginning, and abode not in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he speaketh a lie, he speaketh of his own: for he is a liar, and the father of it.

Anno DOMINI 32.

45 And because I tell you the truth, ye believe me not.

46 Which of you convinceth me of sin? And if I say the truth, why do ye not believe me?

47 [h] He that is of God heareth God's words: ye therefore hear them not, because ye are not of God.

[h] 1 John 4. 6.

48 Then answered the Jews, and said unto him, Say we not well that thou art a Samaritan, and hast a devil?

49 Jesus answered, I have not a devil; but I honour my Father, and ye do dishonour me.

50 And I seek not mine own glory: there is one that seeketh and judgeth.

51 Verily, verily, I say unto you, If a man keep my saying, he shall never see death.

52 Then said the Jews unto him, Now we know that thou hast a devil. Abraham is dead, and the prophets; and thou sayest, If a man keep my saying, he shall never taste of death.

---

38. I speak that which &c.] I speak that which I know to be agreeable to the will of God My Father; but ye do that which is agreeable to the will of your father the devil, ver. 44. Dr. Wells.

39. — ye would do the works of Abraham.] Would be like him in obedience and virtue, as children resemble their natural parents in feature and disposition. Dr. Hammond.

40. — this did not Abraham.] Who was a great example of humility and docility, and readiness to believe and obey all Divine revelations. Dr. S. Clarke.

41. — We be not born of fornication;] We are not born of an idolatrous or adulterous race, but of parents that worship God, and Him only: so neither do we ourselves serve any other besides Him. As therefore Abraham was our earthly father, so God, and God only, is our heavenly Father. Dr. S. Clarke.

43. — because ye cannot hear my word.] Because your prejudices and lusts will not suffer you to attend to My doctrine. Bp. Mann.

44. Ye are of your father &c.] The likeness of your manners and dispositions, and your obstinate inclinations to fulfil the lusts of the devil, plainly shew you to be his children. For, as he sought the death of Adam and his posterity at first, and has been ever since bent on destroying those especially whom God raised up for the benefit of mankind; so are ye now disposed against Me, whom God hath sent to save the world. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— the lusts of your father ye will do.] The lusts of the devil are the wilful and deliberate sins of men, wrought by their own will and choice, agreeable to, in imitation of, and in compliance with, the temptations of the great apostate from God and goodness; works of the devil, not in the natural, but the moral sense, actions in their own nature wicked, impious, diabolical. Thus the guilt of great sins is not diminished, but aggravated, because they are committed from compliance with the temptations of the devil. Profane men are therefore said to be of their father the devil, because his lusts they will do, deliberately, obstinately, and impenitently. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— He was a murderer &c.] The two sins, for which Christ principally reproves the Jews in this passage, are, their attempt to take His life, and their contempt of the truth. By both these, He shews that they resemble, or are under the influence of, the evil spirit. Grotius.

—— a murderer — a liar,] By a lie the devil seduced our first parents, and brought death upon them, with all their posterity, Rom. v. 12; Wisd. ii. 24. Beausobre.

45. — because I tell you the truth,] Because I will not suit My doctrine to your lusts and interests, but tell you the truth. Dr. Clagett.

46. Which of you convinceth me &c.] If I have done any thing that makes Me unworthy of belief, why do not some of you convict Me of it? And, if My doctrine itself be worthy of belief, why do ye not believe Me? Dr. S. Clarke.

47. He that is of God &c.] He who resembles God in holiness and goodness, and is disposed to do His will, is ready to receive the doctrine that comes from Him; and your not receiving His words is an evidence that you do not thus resemble Him, nor bear a filial affection towards Him. Dr. Whitby.

48. — Say we not well that thou art a Samaritan, &c.] Have we not reason to call Thee a separatist, an enemy to our religion, a man possessed of a devil? What can we say too bad of Thee? In the ideas of a Jew, the imputation of being a Samaritan was the most reproachful possible. The term implied, that He was an idolater and schismatick, and included every thing that was odious and despicable. Dean Stanhope.

49. — I have not a devil;] He deigns to notice this part of the imputation, as tending to draw down scandal on His doctrine, and weaken the authority of His preaching; but, at the same time, He is contented simply to clear Himself from their wicked suggestions, with all the mildness that became His character, and the justness of His cause. Dean Stanhope.

50. — I seek not mine own glory:] I do not covet honour, as false prophets do; but there is One who observes how I am treated, and will call you to account. Dean Stanhope.

51. — he shall never see death.] He shall not die eternally; he shall not be subject to the pains of eternal death. Bp. Mann.

52. Then said the Jews — Now we know &c.] The Jews perverted His words, as if He spake of temporal death. Now, they say, it is undeniably plain that Thou art governed by a lying spirit; for Abraham kept the word of God, and so did the Prophets; yet they all are dead. And Thou sayest, "If a man" &c. Dr. Clagett.

Anno DOMINI 32.

53 Art thou greater than our father Abraham, which is dead? and the prophets are dead: whom makest thou thyself?

54 Jesus answered, If I honour myself, my honour is nothing: it is my Father that honoureth me; of whom ye say, that he is your God:

55 Yet ye have not known him; but I know him: and if I should say, I know him not, I shall be a liar like unto you: but I know him, and keep his saying.

56 Your father Abraham rejoiced to see my day: and he saw it, and was glad.

57 Then said the Jews unto him, Thou art not yet fifty years old, and hast thou seen Abraham?

58 Jesus said unto them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Before Abraham was, I am.

59 Then took they up stones to cast at him: but Jesus hid himself, and went out of the temple, going through the midst of them, and so passed by.

CHAP. IX.

Anno DOMINI 32.

1 The man that was born blind restored to sight. 8 He is brought to the Pharisees. 13 They are offended at it, and excommunicate him: 35 but he is received of Jesus, and confesseth him. 39 Who they are whom Christ enlighteneth.

AND as Jesus passed by, he saw a man which was blind from his birth.

2 And his disciples asked him, saying, Master, who did sin, this man, or his parents, that he was born blind?

3 Jesus answered, Neither hath this man sinned, nor his parents: but that the works of God should be made manifest in him.

4 I must work the works of him that sent me, while it is day: the night cometh, when no man can work.

5 As long as I am in the world, [a] I am the light of the world.

[a] Chap. 1. 9.

6 When he had thus spoken, he spat on the ground, and made clay of the spittle, and he ‖ anointed the eyes of the blind man with the clay,

‖ Or, spread the clay upon the eyes of the blind man.

7 And said unto him, Go, wash in the pool of Siloam, (which is by interpretation,

---

54. — If I honour myself, &c.] That I should exalt Myself, were very vain and exceptionable; but My Father, even the God to whom you profess to belong, He honours Me by bearing testimony to My doctrine. Dean Stanhope.

56. — he saw it, and was glad.] He saw by faith My coming into the world, which was then distant, and that prospect was the subject of great gladness to him. Dean Stanhope. See the note on Gen. xxii. 19.

57. — not yet fifty years old,] Our Saviour was at this time scarcely thirty-three years old. They use the term "fifty" as a general or round number. Grotius.

58. — Before Abraham was, I am.] The use of the expression "I am" sufficiently maintains, and the nature of the passage absolutely requires that it should denote, not merely a present being, but a priority of existence, together with a continuation of it to the present time. "Before ever Abraham, of whom ye speak, was born, I had a real being and existence, (by which I was capable of seeing him,) in which I have continued until now." Bp. Pearson.

Ye see Me now a man; but, before Abraham and before all generations, I am the same with Him, of whom Moses told the Israelites, "I AM hath sent me unto you," Exod. iii. 14. Dr. Clagett.

Had the existence of our blessed Saviour been measured by time, as is that of all created beings, He must have said, Before Abraham was, I was; but His words are, "Before Abraham was, I am:" thus using the same expression of Himself, which the eternal God does at Exod. iii. 14; and hereby demonstrating Himself to be the same God who there said, "I AM THAT I AM." Bp. Beveridge.

59. — took they up stones] This was the punishment usual for blasphemy, and sometimes inflicted by zealots without any formal process or sentence of the law. Dean Stanhope.

—— going through the midst of them,] Unseen and untouched by His enemies. Dr. Clagett.

Chap. IX. ver. 1. — as Jesus passed by,] Passed through the streets of Jerusalem, probably on some other day than that on which the foregoing events occurred. Bp. Pearce.

2. — who did sin, this man, or his parents,] It is inferred from this question, that the opinion, propagated by the Grecian philosopher Pythagoras, that the souls of men migrate from one body to another after death, was at this time current among the Jews; since the sins committed by this man, for which he was born blind, could only have been committed by him in some pre-existent state. Thus the meaning of the question seems to be, Was it for some sin of his own when his soul was in another body, or was it some sin of his parents at the time of his conception, which caused this blindness in him? Drs. Hammond and Whitby.

3. — Neither hath this man sinned, &c.] His blindness was not intended for the punishment of any particular sin: but the infinite wisdom of God suffered this man to come into the world in this condition, that I might have an opportunity of working a notable miracle upon him, and of remarkably displaying the Divine power which confirms My doctrine. Dr. S. Clarke.

4, 5. I must work the works &c.] Alluding to the cure which He was about to effect on the blind man, our Saviour says, For this purpose came I down from heaven, that I should be the Light of the world, to give sight to the blind, and to enlighten those that walk in darkness: and, so long as I continue here on earth, I must take all opportunities of benefiting mankind. The period will shortly come when I shall be taken away from them, and then they can have no more the advantage of My personal presence. The time therefore, which I have left, I must wholly employ in this work, on purpose to perform which I was sent into the world. Dr. S. Clarke.

4. — the night cometh,] When I shall be taken away from the world.

5. — I am the light of the world.] Giving spiritual instruction and knowledge to the ignorant. Dr. Wells.

7. And said unto him, Go, wash &c.] When outward means were employed by our Lord, in performing His mighty works, they were not designed to have any operation of themselves; being wholly inadequate to the effect which followed. In the present instance, He probably had a view to try the man's faith, as Elisha did that of Naaman, 2 Kings v. 10. Abp. Newcome. See notes at Mark vii. 33.

—— (which is by interpretation, Sent.)] The name Siloam or Siloa signifies the same as Shiloh, the name by which our Saviour was spoken of in the prophecies. The meaning is, Which by its name may put you in mind of the Messiah, (who is styled Shiloh, the Sent,) by whom the miracle is wrought. Dr. Hammond, Grotius.

Anno DOMINI 32.

Sent.) He went his way therefore, and washed, and came seeing.

8 ¶ The neighbours therefore, and they which before had seen him that he was blind, said, Is not this he that sat and begged?

9 Some said, This is he: others said, He is like him: but he said, I am he.

10 Therefore said they unto him, How were thine eyes opened?

11 He answered and said, A man that is called Jesus made clay, and anointed mine eyes, and said unto me, Go to the pool of Siloam, and wash: and I went and washed, and I received sight.

12 Then said they unto him, Where is he? He said, I know not.

13 ¶ They brought to the Pharisees him that aforetime was blind.

14 And it was the sabbath day when Jesus made the clay, and opened his eyes.

15 Then again the Pharisees also asked him how he had received his sight. He said unto them, He put clay upon mine eyes, and I washed, and do see.

16 Therefore said some of the Pharisees, This man is not of God, because he keepeth not the sabbath day. Others said, How can a man that is a sinner do such miracles? And there was a division among them.

17 They say unto the blind man again, What sayest thou of him, that he hath opened thine eyes? He said, He is a prophet.

18 But the Jews did not believe concerning him, that he had been blind, and received his sight, until they called the parents of him that had received his sight.

19 And they asked them saying, Is this your son, who ye say was born blind? how then doth he now see?

Anno DOMINI 32.

20 His parents answered them and said, We know that this is our son, and that he was born blind:

21 But by what means he now seeth, we know not; or who hath opened his eyes, we know not: he is of age; ask him: he shall speak for himself.

22 These words spake his parents, because they feared the Jews: for the Jews had agreed already, that if any man did confess that he was Christ, he should be put out of the synagogue.

23 Therefore said his parents, He is of age; ask him.

24 Then again called they the man that was blind, and said unto him, Give God the praise: we know that this man is a sinner.

25 He answered and said, Whether he be a sinner or no, I know not: one thing I know, that, whereas I was blind, now I see.

26 Then said they to him again, What did he to thee? how opened he thine eyes?

27 He answered them, I have told you already, and ye did not hear: wherefore would ye hear it again? will ye also be his disciples?

28 Then they reviled him, and said, Thou art his disciple; but we are Moses' disciples.

29 We know that God spake unto Moses: as for this fellow, we know not from whence he is.

30 The man answered and said unto

—— He went his way therefore, and washed, and came seeing.] This account of the cure is remarkable for its energetick brevity. Dr. Hales.

13. — to the Pharisees] To the council of the Jews, which consisted chiefly of that sect, and is therefore frequently by this Evangelist called by the name of the Pharisees, chap. i. 24; iv. 1; viii. 3; xi. 46. The providence of God so ordered on this occasion the course of things, that the members of it might hear from the mouth of the blind man a testimony which would either produce conviction in them, or would render their unbelief without excuse. Dr. Whitby.

14. — it was the sabbath day] We should observe how frequently our Saviour performed His miracles on the sabbath day, in order to cure the Jews of the false and superstitious notions they had respecting it. See chap. v. 17. Bp. Mann.

16. — is not of God,] Is not a Prophet sent from God. Dr. Whitby.

—— How can — a sinner do such miracles?] How can one who is an impostor perform such miracles, which can be wrought only by the hand of God? Dr. Hammond. The word "sinner" occurs in the same sense at ver. 24, 25, &c.

22. — should be put out of the synagogue.] Should be placed under a sentence of excommunication. Dr. Whitby.

The Jews had three different sorts of excommunication. The first is that which is here meant by putting out of the synagogue, and which our Saviour expresses by "separation," Luke vi. 22. The effect of this excommunication was to exclude men from the communion of the church and people of God, and from His service, after which no Jews would hold intercourse with them. The second sort included the first, but extended farther, to the confiscation of goods into the sacred treasury, and devoting them to God. In the third, the person was anathematized, and devoted; and, as some conceive, according to the law, Lev. xxvii. 29, was to be put to death, although others think that it amounted to no more than a final sentence, by which he was left to the judgment of God, to be by Him cut off from the congregation of Israel. Abp. Tillotson.

24. — Give God the praise:] Ascribe the praise of your cure to God, and look not on Jesus with any veneration. Dr. Hammond. Otherwise, Give glory to God, shew your reverence for God, and confess the whole to be an imposture. "We know that this man is a sinner." They pretend to know, from other circumstances, that He was a false pretender to the character of a Divine teacher. Rosenmüller.

27. — ye did not hear:] Ye did not attend.

29. — we know not from whence he is.] We know not of any commission He has from God, nor can we give any account of Him. Dr. Hammond.

Anno DOMINI 32.

them, Why herein is a marvellous thing, that ye know not from whence he is, and yet he hath opened mine eyes.

31 Now we know that God heareth not sinners: but if any man be a worshipper of God, and doeth his will, him he heareth.

32 Since the world began was it not heard that any man opened the eyes of one that was born blind.

33 If this man were not of God, he could do nothing.

34 They answered and said unto him, Thou wast altogether born in sins, and dost thou teach us? And they ‖ cast him out.

‖ Or, excommunicated him.

35 Jesus heard that they had cast him out; and when he had found him, he said unto him, Dost thou believe on the Son of God?

36 He answered and said, Who is he, Lord, that I might believe on him?

37 And Jesus said unto him, Thou hast both seen him, and it is he that talketh with thee.

Anno DOMINI 32.

38 And he said, Lord, I believe. And he worshipped him.

39 ¶ And Jesus said, For judgment I am come into this world, that they which see not might see; and that they which see might be made blind.

40 And some of the Pharisees which were with him heard these words, and said unto him, Are we blind also?

41 Jesus said unto them, If ye were blind, ye should have no sin: but now ye say, We see; therefore your sin remaineth.

CHAP. X.

1 Christ is the door, and the good shepherd. 19 Divers opinions of him. 24 He proveth by his works that he is Christ the Son of God: 39 escapeth the Jews, 40 and went again beyond Jordan, where many believed on him.

VERILY, verily, I say unto you, He that entereth not by the door into the

---

30. — yet he hath opened mine eyes.] Which is a demonstration, that He acts by a power derived from God. Dr. Whitby.

31. — God heareth not sinners: &c.] God doth not enable impostors or false teachers to work such miracles as these; but only those pious and faithful servants who come to do His will. Dr. Hammond.

32. — of one that was born blind.] This was esteemed by the Jews a peculiar sign of the Messiah, and was never known to be wrought by Moses or any other Prophet. Grotius.

33. If this man were not of God, he could do nothing.] Thus, upon the mind of the poor man himself, who was not under the same bias with the rest of the Jews, the miracle had its natural operation, and induced him to own that our Saviour came from God. Archdeacon Paley.

34. — born in sins,] As we know sufficiently from thy being born blind. Dr. Wells.

—— and dost thou teach us?] Such is the reply which authority is sometimes apt to make to argument; the only reply which the Jews were able to make in this instance. Archdeacon Paley. It should be well observed how severe and strict a scrutiny the miracle described in this chapter, of the cure of the blind man, underwent from the enemies of our Lord. This whole passage, indeed, is deserving of particular attention; the striking simplicity of the narrative, the natural conduct of all the parties, and the close scrutiny which the miracle sustained, cannot fail of making a deep impression on every candid mind. Dr. Graves. The miracle is submitted to all the examination which a sceptick could propose. If a modern unbeliever had drawn up the interrogatories, they could scarcely have been more critical or searching. Archdeacon Paley.

—— cast him out.] Ordered him to be excommunicated and declared an apostate. Dr. S. Clarke.

35. — on the Son of God?] On the Messiah sent into the world to be the Saviour of it? Dr. Whitby.

39. — For judgment I am come &c.] For "judgment" in the sense of discrimination; to distinguish between the good and the bad, the wise and the foolish. The Pharisees, who were now present, ver. 40, thought that they alone were wise and good; but at the coming of Christ the contrary appeared. Rosenmüller.

41. — If ye were blind, ye should &c.] If ye were unable to discern who I am, if you had neither the Law nor the Prophets to direct you, nor the light of clear and evident miracles, ye would have no sin of infidelity; but now ye say ye see, and arrogate to yourselves the knowledge of the Law and the Prophets, and are confident ye are guides to the blind, Rom. ii. 19, and yet ye will not receive the light which shineth in your eyes; therefore your sin remaineth inexcusable. Dr. Whitby.

It is worthy of observation in what manner the Jews resisted the force of the miracle related in this chapter, and the conclusion to which it led, after they had failed in discrediting its evidence. If it should be enquired how a turn of thought, so different from what prevails at present, should obtain currency with the ancient Jews, the answer is found in two opinions, which then prevailed. The one was, their expectation of a Messiah, of a kind totally contrary to what the appearance of Jesus bespoke Him to be; the other, their persuasion of the agency of demons in the production of supernatural effects. See Matt. xii. 24. The first put them upon seeking out some excuse to themselves for not receiving Jesus in the character in which He claimed to be received; and the second supplied them with just such an excuse as they wanted. Archdeacon Paley.

Chap. X. ver. 1. Verily, verily, I say unto you,] Jesus observing how much the chief priests and Pharisees grew every day more and more enraged at seeing so many of the people follow Him and embrace His doctrine; and knowing, on the contrary, how ready they would be to encourage the people to follow any such false teachers as would flatter them in their vices, and spread doctrines fitted to promote the worldly designs and temporal grandeur of their rabbies and elders; and how these men themselves, without any regard to the true design of their office, did, with only covetous and ambitious intentions, affect to be looked upon as the guides and leaders, the shepherds and pastors, of the flock of God; He rebuked them for their corruptions, and asserted His own authority, and distinguished Himself from all false teachers, in the manner which follows, framing His discourse, as was usual with Him, with figurative expressions alluding to the present occasion. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— He that entereth not by the door] He says to the Pharisees, who opposed His doctrines and blasphemed His miracles, Whosoever sets himself up for the Messiah, or without regular commission presumes to govern and teach the people, comes to do mischief among the sheep, not to feed and do them good. Dean Stanhope.

Whoever pretends to feed and guide the flock of God, to teach and instruct His people, and yet does not come to them in that way which God has appointed, and following the method which He thinks fit to reveal, but proceeds in a way of his own invent-sheepfold, but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber.

Anno DOMINI 32.

2 But he that entereth in by the door is the shepherd of the sheep.

3 To him the porter openeth; and the sheep hear his voice: and he calleth his own sheep by name, and leadeth them out.

4 And when he putteth forth his own sheep, he goeth before them, and the sheep follow him: for they know his voice.

5 And a stranger will they not follow, but will flee from him: for they know not the voice of strangers.

6 This parable spake Jesus unto them: but they understood not what things they were which he spake unto them.

7 Then said Jesus unto them again, Verily, verily, I say unto you, I am the door of the sheep.

8 All that ever came before me are thieves and robbers: but the sheep did not hear them.

9 I am the door: by me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, and shall go in and out, and find pasture.

10 The thief cometh not, but for to steal, and to kill, and to destroy: I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly.

11 [a] I am the good shepherd: the good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep. Anno DOMINI 32.

12 But he that is an hireling, and not the shepherd, whose own the sheep are not, seeth the wolf coming, and leaveth the sheep, and fleeth: and the wolf catcheth them, and scattereth the sheep.

[a] Isai. 40. 11. Ezek. 34. 23.

13 The hireling fleeth, because he is an hireling, and careth not for the sheep.

14 I am the good shepherd, and know my sheep, and am known of mine.

15 As the Father knoweth me, even so know I the Father: and I lay down my life for the sheep.

16 And other sheep I have, which are not of this fold: them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice; [b] and there shall be one fold, and one shepherd.

[b] Ezek. 37. 22.

17 Therefore doth my Father love me, [c] because I lay down my life, that I might take it again.

[c] Isai. 53. 7, 8.

18 No man taketh it from me, but I lay it down of myself. I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it again. [d] This commandment have I received of my Father.

[d] Acts 2. 24.

19 ¶ There was a division therefore again among the Jews for these sayings.

---

ing, and according to his own fancy or corrupt inclination, is certainly, notwithstanding any pretences of zeal or authority, an enemy and a hinderer of men's salvation. For, undoubtedly, every one that sincerely, and without worldly designs, intends to teach and instruct men in the way of salvation, will only proceed by that method which God shall think fit to appoint, and will submit entirely to His directions. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— the sheepfold,] He alludes to the sheepfolds which were hired by those who brought sheep to sell for sacrifice; and which the porter or keeper of the fold (ver. 3.) would not open to any but the right owner of the sheep, when they were to be led out. Bp. Mann.

2, 3. But he that entereth in &c.] But He that comes by God's appointment is the true shepherd: Him God calls to this office, and His faithful servants obey Him, and He is diligent and conscientious in the discharge of his duty. Dean Stanhope.

4. — and the sheep follow him: &c.] The sheep in Judea, and throughout all the Eastern part of the world, are more familiar and tractable than with us; and, instead of being driven by the shepherd before him, are used to follow him when called, as with us dogs do their master. Bp. Mann.

5. — a stranger] One who has no commission from God, and teacheth not His word. Dr. Whitby.

7. — I am the door of the sheep.] I Myself am the door of God's sheepfold; the way which God hath revealed for the salvation of men; by which alone He hath appointed to bring them to eternal happiness. Dr. S. Clarke.

8. All that ever came before me &c.] Pretending to be the Prophet or Messiah promised to the Jews, and to instruct the people, without having received a Divine commission to that effect. Dr. Whitby. The expression includes all those who came in opposition to our blessed Saviour, and preached any doctrines which hindered men from believing on Him; or supported them in a false expectation of being saved, either without any Messiah at all, or by any other Messiah. Dean Stanhope.

—— but the sheep did not hear them.] Being obedient only to the voice of God, their true Shepherd. Dr. Whitby.

9. — he shall be saved,] Shall be kept safe, as sheep are kept by a careful shepherd. Bp. Mann.

10. The thief cometh not, but for &c.] The false teacher intends nothing but to make a prey of the people: I come for their infinite benefit and advantage, and so approve Myself a true teacher. Dean Stanhope.

11. I am the good shepherd:] Referred to by the Prophets, Isai. xl. 11; Ezek. xxxiv. 23; xxxvii. 24; who am ready, for the sake of My flock, to expose Myself to all dangers and sufferings, and even to lay down My life for their sakes. Dr. S. Clarke.

12. — he that is an hireling,] Who is an intruder, who intends not the good of the flock, but his own profit. Dr. Whitby. Without having any affectionate concern for those who are committed to his care. Dr. S. Clarke.

16. And other sheep I have,] Besides those of God's ancient flock, the Israelites, other well-disposed persons of the Gentiles, scattered through the world, who shall at length hear the sound of My doctrine and become My disciples: these I will bring and unite to the former, and they shall all become one fold under one Shepherd, joined together in one holy fellowship, in the profession and practice of one pure and undefiled religion; and making, without distinction of nations or families, one undivided Church of God, under one head, which is Christ. Dr. S. Clarke.

17. — that I might take it again.] By a glorious resurrection. Dr. Whitby.

18. No man taketh it &c.] It would not be in the power of man to take My life away from Me, if I did not of My own accord lay it down: I can give Myself up to be crucified, and then can rise to life again; to do thus, My Father hath appointed Me; this is a prime part of My commission. Dr. Hammond.

"No man taketh it from Me" by force, against My will, or before the time.

—— I have power] Full and absolute, Divine and peculiar. Dr. Trapp.

Anno DOMINI 32.

20 And many of them said, He hath a devil, and is mad; why hear ye him?

21 Others said, These are not the words of him that hath a devil. Can a devil open the eyes of the blind?

A. D. 33. [e] 1 Mac. 4. 59.

22 ¶ And it was at Jerusalem the [e] feast of the dedication, and it was winter.

23 And Jesus walked in the temple in Solomon's porch.

24 Then came the Jews round about him, and said unto him, How long dost thou ‖ make us to doubt? If thou be the Christ, tell us plainly.

‖ Or, hold us in suspense?

25 Jesus answered them, I told you, and ye believed not: the works that I do in my Father's name, they bear witness of me.

26 But ye believe not, because ye are not of my sheep, as I said unto you.

27 My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me:

28 And I give unto them eternal life; and they shall never perish, neither shall any man pluck them out of my hand.

29 My Father, which gave them me, is greater than all; and no man is able to pluck them out of my Father's hand.

Anno DOMINI 33.

30 I and my Father are one.

31 Then the Jews took up stones again to stone him.

32 Jesus answered them, Many good works have I shewed you from my Father; for which of those works do ye stone me?

33 The Jews answered him, saying, For a good work we stone thee not; but for blasphemy; and because that thou, being a man, makest thyself God.

34 Jesus answered them, [f] Is it not written in your law, I said, Ye are gods? [f] Ps. 82. 6.

35 If he called them gods, unto whom the word of God came, and the scripture cannot be broken;

36 Say ye of him, whom the Father hath sanctified, and sent into the world, Thou blasphemest; because I said, I am the Son of God?

37 If I do not the works of my Father, believe me not.

---

22. — the feast of the dedication,] This feast was instituted by Judas Maccabeus, in memory of the restoration of the altar and temple, which had been profaned by Antiochus Epiphanes, 1 Mac. iv. 59; 2 Mac. x. 8. It was celebrated on the 25th of the month Cisleu, answering to the beginning of our December; when, therefore, as the text expresses, "it was winter." It is to be remarked, from our Saviour's countenancing this festival with His presence, that festivals of mere human institution, in commemoration of publick blessings, may lawfully be appointed by publick authority. Grotius, Dr. Whitby. See the note on 1 Mac. iv. 59.

23. — in Solomon's porch.] In the porch or colonnade built on the place where that of Solomon had stood: it seems that in winter it was customary to walk here for the purpose of shelter. Dr. Whitby.

26. But ye believe not, &c.] Ye persist in unbelief, not through want of evidence of the truth, but "because ye are not of My sheep," ye are not of those who are disposed to attend to, and obey, My doctrine. Dr. Whitby.

28. — neither shall any man pluck them out of my hand.] No force or malice of men or devils shall ever be able to pluck them away from Me. Dr. S. Clarke.

The expressions of this verse have sometimes been understood to imply, that those who are once in a state of grace can never finally fall away, or be effectually seduced by any temptations from the path of piety. But such cannot be the real sense: for, 1st, the frequent cautions and exhortations given in Scripture to Christ's flock, not to fall from grace, but to continue steadfast in the faith, are certain demonstrations that they may so fall away. 2nd, Christ only promises here, that His sheep should never perish through any defect on His part, or by the force of any one plucking them by violence out of His hands. Those persons who, by the allurements of the world, the flesh, and the devil, cease to obey His laws, are not snatched out of His hands, but choose to go from Him. 3rd, The text seems only to speak of those sheep which have already so persevered as to receive the reward of their obedience, eternal life, assuring them that their felicity shall be secure from all interruption. Dr. Whitby.

30. I and my Father are one.] The Father is in Me, and I in Him, and so one with Him. For these words declare, 1st, an identity of nature or essence, or the individual unity by which two persons subsist or are mutually in each other. 2dly, A distinction of persons, because no one is said to be in himself. 3dly, The most intimate and perfect inhabitation of each person in the other. Dr. Trapp.

This expression cannot be so well understood in English, as in the original Greek. "I and the Father are one thing," one substance, one essence; intimating that they are united into one Jehovah or God. Bp. Beveridge.

The plurality of the verb, and the neutrality of the noun "one," with the distinction of the persons, here bespeak a perfect identity of essence. Bp. Pearson.

This passage (ver. 22—30.) affords an admirable description of the good sheep, of their reward, and of their security against all assaults of the devil or man working against them, while under the providential care of God, and of Christ, united for their preservation. Christ's flock hear His voice by faith; He knows or approves them; and they follow Him or keep His commandments. And, in return, He gives them eternal life, as heirs of salvation, and they shall not perish for ever, at the general judgment, if they continue faithful and obedient unto the end; and no one, not even the devil himself, shall rob Him of them, because He is supported by the Father, with whom He is one. Dr. Hales.

31. Then the Jews took up stones &c.] The punishment for blasphemy was stoning. It is plain that the Jews understood Him to mean, by what He had just said, that He was God, one God with the Father; otherwise they would not have accused Him of blasphemy: and to avoid the imputation of such a crime, our Lord would have denied this interpretation of His words, if it had not been the true one. Bp. Beveridge.

34. — Is it not written in your law,] The passage alluded to is at Ps. lxxxii. 6. Thus our Saviour understands by the term Law, the Scriptures in general, as at chap. xii. 34; xv. 25. Beausobre.

35. If he called them gods,] If they are called gods in the Scriptures, (which are of unquestionable truth,) who had the spirit of prophecy, wisdom, and government, more sparingly and only at certain times; say ye of Me, to whom the Father hath given the Spirit without measure, and in whom He abideth essentially, so that by virtue of Him I am in the Father and the Father in Me, "Thou blasphemest," &c. Dr. Trapp.

37. If I do not the works &c.] Thus He appeals again to His miracles, as affording full proof of the intimate union subsisting between Him and His Father. Dr. Hales.

Anno DOMINI 33.

38 But if I do, though ye believe not me, believe the works: that ye may know, and believe, that the Father is in me, and I in him.

39 Therefore they sought again to take him: but he escaped out of their hand,

40 And went away again beyond Jordan into the place where John at first baptized; and there he abode.

41 And many resorted unto him, and said, John did no miracle: but all things that John spake of this man were true.

42 And many believed on him there.

CHAP. XI.

1 Christ raiseth Lazarus, four days buried. 45 Many Jews believe. 47 The high priests and Pharisees gather a council against Christ. 49 Caiaphas prophesieth. 54 Jesus hid himself. 55 At the passover they enquire after him, and lay wait for him.

NOW a certain man was sick, named Lazarus, of Bethany, the town of Mary and her sister Martha.

[a] Matt. 26. 7.

2 ([a] It was that Mary which anointed the Lord with ointment, and wiped his feet with her hair, whose brother Lazarus was sick.)

3 Therefore his sisters sent unto him, saying, Lord, behold, he whom thou lovest is sick.

Anno DOMINI 33.

4 When Jesus heard that, he said, This sickness is not unto death, but for the glory of God, that the Son of God might be glorified thereby.

5 Now Jesus loved Martha, and her sister, and Lazarus.

6 When he had heard therefore that he was sick, he abode two days still in the same place where he was.

7 Then after that saith he to his disciples, Let us go into Judea again.

8 His disciples say unto him, Master, the Jews of late sought to stone thee; and goest thou thither again?

9 Jesus answered, Are there not twelve hours in the day? If any man walk in the day, he stumbleth not, because he seeth the light of this world.

10 But if a man walk in the night, he stumbleth, because there is no light in him.

11 These things said he: and after that he saith unto them, Our friend Lazarus

---

41. — all things that John spake — were true.] Malice itself cannot find reason to suspect a collusion, when prophecies and miracles thus unite their testimony, and proclaim Jesus to be the Messiah. Bp. Horne.

—— that John spake of this man were true.] And, therefore, if we believe the testimony of John, we must own this Person as the Son of God, and a much greater Prophet than he was, John i. 15; iii. 35. Dr. Whitby.

Chap. XI. ver. 1. Now a certain man &c.] It is observable, that this remarkable history of the raising of Lazarus is omitted by the other three Evangelists. A very probable reason for this omission is, that, as Lazarus was living when they wrote their Gospels, (for according to received tradition he lived thirty years after he was raised from the dead,) they were unwilling to point him out in a particular manner, so as to expose him to the malice of the Jews; see chap. xii. 10: and, when he was alive, the event must have been perfectly well known to all, without the necessity of its being recorded. When, however, St. John wrote, as Lazarus was dead, there was no personal risk to him in recording the event, and it was necessary so to do, in order to perpetuate the memory of it for future generations. Grotius, Dr. Whitby.

2. — that Mary which anointed &c.] See chap. xii. 3. Mary had not anointed His feet before this event of the raising of Lazarus; but the Evangelist points her out by this circumstance, as one for which she was generally known. Dr. Whitby.

4. — This sickness is not unto death, &c.] This sickness of Lazarus will not finally prove mortal; but the wisdom of Providence has permitted him to fall into this disease, that I may have an opportunity of manifesting the glory of God, and of working a notable miracle on him, for the proof of My authority, and the confirmation of My doctrine. Dr. S. Clarke.

6. — abode two days still] He did not come to Bethany till Lazarus had been dead four days, ver. 17; to the end that not only might the miracle of his resurrection be the greater, but that all pretence of his not being actually dead might be taken away. Dr. Whitby.

7. — Let us go into Judea again.] The disciples had so little expectation that the revival of Lazarus would be the effect, or that it was indeed the purpose, of His journey, that they would have dissuaded Him from leaving the place of His retirement, conceiving, as it should seem, that the only end of His proposed visit to Bethany would be to gratify the feelings of an useless sympathy, at the hazard of His own safety. The sentiments expressed by the Apostles, on this and similar occasions, afford a clear proof that the disciples were not persons of an over-easy credulity; or such as may, with any colour of probability, be supposed to have been themselves deceived in the wonders which they reported of our Lord. They seem rather to have deserved the reproach which, after His resurrection, He cast upon them, "fools, and slow of heart to believe." They appear to have believed nothing till the testimony of their own senses extorted the belief. They reasoned not from what they had once seen to what might be; they built no probabilities of the future on the past; they formed no general belief concerning the extent of our Lord's power, from the effects of it which they had already witnessed. Bp. Horsley.

9. — Are there not twelve hours] So the Jews divided their day at all times of the year.

9, 10. — If any man walk &c.] His meaning is, As he that goes in the day, having the light of the sun to guide him, is in no danger of stumbling, but only in the night when that light is withdrawn; so, as long as My time of exercising My function here lasteth, there is that Providence over Me which will secure Me from all danger; and, till My time be past, and so that Providence withdrawn, I shall be safe. Dr. Hammond.

He intimates that we must not be deterred by difficulties and dangers from performing, in its proper season, the duty that God has laid upon us; and, when we walk in the way in which He has set us, we need not doubt of His protection, so far as is consistent with the wise ends of His providence, His glory, and our own and the publick good. Bragge.

11. — Our friend Lazarus sleepeth; but I go,] He means, that Lazarus was then dead, and that He intended to go and restore him to life; which, to the Divine power, was as easy a thing as that of raising a man out of his sleep. Dr. S. Clarke. It is usual with the Hebrews to speak of death under the name of sleep, not only with reference to good men, Deut. xxxi. 16; 2 Sam. vii. 12; Ps. xiii. 3; but also to bad men, Ps. lxxvi. 5; Dan. xii. 2. Dr. Whitby.

Anno DOMINI 33.

sleepeth; but I go, that I may awake him out of sleep.

12 Then said his disciples, Lord, if he sleep, he shall do well.

13 Howbeit Jesus spake of his death: but they thought that he had spoken of taking of rest in sleep.

14 Then said Jesus unto them plainly, Lazarus is dead.

15 And I am glad for your sakes that I was not there, to the intent ye may believe; nevertheless let us go unto him.

16 Then said Thomas, which is called Didymus, unto his fellowdisciples, Let us also go, that we may die with him.

17 Then when Jesus came, he found that he had lain in the grave four days already.

18 Now Bethany was nigh unto Jerusalem, ‖ about fifteen furlongs off:

‖ That is, about two miles.

19 And many of the Jews came to Martha and Mary, to comfort them concerning their brother.

20 Then Martha, as soon as she heard that Jesus was coming, went and met him: but Mary sat still in the house.

21 Then said Martha unto Jesus, Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died.

22 But I know, that even now, whatsoever thou wilt ask of God, God will give it thee.

23 Jesus saith unto her, Thy brother shall rise again.

Anno DOMINI 33.

24 Martha saith unto him, [b] I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day.

[b] Luke 14. 14. ch. 5. 29.

25 Jesus said unto her, I am the resurrection, and the [c] life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live:

[c] Chap. 6. 35.

26 And whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die. Believest thou this?

27 She saith unto him, Yea, Lord: I believe that thou art the Christ, the Son of God, which should come into the world.

28 And when she had so said, she went her way, and called Mary her sister secretly, saying, The Master is come, and calleth for thee.

29 As soon as she heard that, she arose quickly, and came unto him.

30 Now Jesus was not yet come into the town, but was in that place where Martha met him.

31 The Jews then which were with her in the house, and comforted her, when they saw Mary, that she rose up hastily and went out, followed her, saying, She goeth unto the grave to weep there.

32 Then when Mary was come where Jesus was, and saw him, she fell down at his feet, saying unto him, Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died.

—— that I may awake him] None can awake Lazarus out of this sleep but He that made him. Who can command the soul to come down and meet the body, or the body to rise up with the soul, but the God that created both? Bp. Hall.

15. — to the intent ye may believe;] To the intent that your faith may be the better confirmed by the miracle which you will see Me perform. Bp. Mann.

16. — Let us also go, that we may die with him.] He probably says this, with reference to the danger which they incurred (ver. 8.) of being stoned by the Jews, and thus dying like Lazarus. Drs. Hammond and Whitby, Bp. Pearce, Grotius.

19. — many of the Jews came] The mourning of the Jews generally lasted seven days, yet in some cases was continued to thirty; during all this time, the friends and relations came to condole with them, which was done with many particular ceremonies. Dr. Lightfoot.

21. — if thou hadst been here, &c.] She presumes not to ask Him to raise her brother; it was a thing too great to be abruptly asked: she indirectly and modestly suggests, that, were Christ to make it His request to God that Lazarus might revive, Christ's request would be granted. Bp. Horsley.

Her words betray at once her strength and her infirmity: strength of faith in ascribing so much power to Christ that His presence could preserve from death; infirmity in supposing the necessity of His presence for that purpose. Bp. Hall.

22. — whatsoever thou wilt ask of God,] Her faith was in some respects weak, because she only believed that Christ could prevail with God, not that all the fulness of the Divine power resided in Him. Grotius.

25. — I am the resurrection, &c.] I am the Author of Life, both present and future. As I have power to raise up all men at last, at the general judgment, so I have also power to raise up at present whomsoever I will. He therefore, who believeth on Me, as he shall not finally continue under the power of death, and perish for ever, so he is at present holden by death, by My permission only, and during My pleasure. Dr. S. Clarke.

The Son of God here ascribes to Himself two important attributes: "I am the resurrection and the life." He is both the one and the other with relation to those that believe in Him: He is the resurrection to those believers who are departed hence, and He is the life to those believers who are still upon earth, and He will finally be the resurrection and the life to them both. Here is, in a few words, the summary of the gifts and blessings promised in the Gospel; here is the Author of those blessings, even Jesus Christ, who is the resurrection and the life; and here is the condition requisite for the obtaining of them, which is called believing, or faith in Christ. The sublimity and majesty of the language which our Saviour here uses is not less remarkable, than the great truth which His words convey. Dr. Jortin.

26. And whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die.] Jesus Christ has not, indeed, abolished temporal death, although He has given it a mortal wound. He leaves it to have dominion in some sort, for a determinate time, till His second coming; and He has made such promises to His servants of a future life, and given them so many consolations against the dread of a dissolution, that it ought no longer to be called by the odious name of death, but rather by the gentler appellation of sleep: and therefore Christ might truly say that His faithful servants shall never die. Dr. Jortin.

27. — the Son of God, which should come] The Messiah, promised by the Prophets, and long expected by the Jews, and now sent into the world for the redemption and salvation of men. Dr. S. Clarke.

31. — followed her,] By this means they all became witnesses of the miracle which Jesus wrought. Dr. S. Clarke.

Anno DOMINI 33.

33 When Jesus therefore saw her weeping, and the Jews also weeping which came with her, he groaned in the spirit, and † was troubled, † Gr. he troubled himself.

34 And said, Where have ye laid him? They said unto him, Lord, come and see.

35 Jesus wept.

36 Then said the Jews, Behold how he loved him!

[d] Chap. 9. 6.

37 And some of them said, Could not this man, [d] which opened the eyes of the blind, have caused that even this man should not have died?

38 Jesus therefore again groaning in himself cometh to the grave. It was a cave, and a stone lay upon it.

39 Jesus said, Take ye away the stone. Martha, the sister of him that was dead, saith unto him, Lord, by this time he stinketh: for he hath been dead four days.

40 Jesus saith unto her, Said I not unto thee, that, if thou wouldest believe, thou shouldest see the glory of God?

41 Then they took away the stone from the place where the dead was laid. And Jesus lifted up his eyes, and said, Father, I thank thee that thou hast heard me. Anno DOMINI 33.

42 And I knew that thou hearest me always: but because of the people which stand by I said it, that they may believe that thou hast sent me.

43 And when he thus had spoken, he cried with a loud voice, Lazarus, come forth.

44 And he that was dead came forth, bound hand and foot with graveclothes: and his face was bound about with a napkin. Jesus saith unto them, Loose him, and let him go.

45 Then many of the Jews which came to Mary, and had seen the things which Jesus did, believed on him.

46 But some of them went their ways to the Pharisees, and told them what things Jesus had done.

47 ¶ Then gathered the chief priests and the Pharisees a council, and said, What do we? for this man doeth many miracles.

48 If we let him thus alone, all men will

---

33. — groaned in the spirit,] Was deeply affected, and in great perturbation of mind; and so far indulged the justice of the mourners' sorrow, as Himself to weep with them. Dr. Hammond.

34. — Where have ye laid him?] He probably asks this question to try the faith of Mary and Martha, and to keep their attention awake, till the great miracle should blaze out in full splendour. Dr. Jortin.

35. Jesus wept.] Nothing is more natural or more innocent than to mourn for the death of a worthy and beloved friend. I will add, that nothing is more commendable than such grief, so long as it is decent, free from frantick irregularities, free from irreligious murmurs against Providence, not lessening the submission and reverence due to God, or neglecting the offices due to ourselves and others. Jesus Christ condemns not the tears of the sisters of Lazarus: He joins His tears to theirs. His authority is sufficient to decide this question. His example is a rule and a law: and the most conclusive proof that an action is innocent, or even commendable, is to shew that He did it. Here it is worthy of observation to consider the sincerity of St. John in relating the circumstances of this affair, a sincerity so edifying, so adapted to establish our faith. An historian who would have drawn up an account of his own invention, to do honour to Christ, would never have represented Him as troubled, as grieved, as weeping at the grave of His friend, or as terrified and cast into an agony at the approach of His own death. The four Evangelists have recorded the glorious and miraculous actions of Christ, because they were true; they have recorded His human weaknesses and infirmities because they were true also. Dr. Jortin.

38. — It was a cave,] As were usually the Jewish sepulchres. See note on Matt. xxvii. 60. The stone lay probably not "upon it," but at the entrance, to close it up.

39. — Take ye away the stone.] How easy had it been for our Saviour to cause the stone itself to give way, without employing the aid of human hands. But He thought best to give this command, either for the more full conviction of those who were present, or for the exercise of our faith, to teach us to trust in Him under unfavourable appearances. The command to remove the stone seemed to argue weakness; but soon this seeming weakness breaks forth in an act of omnipotence. Bp. Hall.

—— Lord, by this time &c.] The putrefaction of dead bodies was extremely rapid in hot countries. Abp. Newcome.

40. — thou shouldest see the glory of God?] Thou shouldest see Me afford a glorious evidence of the power of God residing in Me. Dr. S. Clarke.

41, 42. — I thank thee that thou hast heard me. &c.] I thank Thee that Thou grantest My petition, and enablest Me to perform this mighty work. I know that Thou always grantest My desire, and hast communicated to Me all power, absolutely, and at all times: but this I say now for the sake of those here present, that, I appealing to Thy Almighty power for the attestation of My Divine commission, and Thou immediately answering My request, they may be fully convinced that I am sent by Thee, and that all I do and say here on earth is according to Thy will, and for the manifestation of Thy glory. Dr. S. Clarke.

43. — Lazarus, come forth.] Such is the voice which we shall one day hear, sounding at the bottom of the grave, and which will raise us from the dust. Such the voice which will pierce the rocks, and divide the mountains, and bring up the dead out of the lowest deeps. His word made all, His word will repair all. Let us cast away all diffident fears: He in whom we trust is omnipotent. Bp. Hall.

44. — bound hand and foot &c.] He may have been loosely bound, in such a manner as to have some use of his limbs. Abp. Newcome. His hands and feet being separately bound in the clothes, so as to allow of their motion.

This illustrious miracle of the raising of Lazarus is one of the most convincing proofs which Jesus gave, during His whole life, that He was the Son of God. It serves especially to confirm the doctrine of the resurrection of the dead, and the truth of His own words, "I am the resurrection and the life." Ostervald.

Let us adore and trust in Him, who was armed with so Divine a power as to be able to rescue the prisoners of death, and to recover the trophies of the all-conquering grave. And, as true believers in Him, let us learn to take our part in His triumph, with a joyful assurance, that, though we putrefy in the dust, and, "after the skin worms destroy the body," yet "in our flesh" we shall at length "see God," Job xix. 26. Dr. Doddridge.

47. — What do we?] What shall we do? for it is plain, and cannot be denied, that this Man has indeed wrought many notable miracles. Dr. S. Clarke.

48. — all men will believe — and the Romans &c.] All will believe Him to be the Messiah, and will set Him up for a king;

Anno DOMINI 33.

believe on him: and the Romans shall come and take away both our place and nation.

49 And one of them, named Caiaphas, being the high priest that same year, said unto them, Ye know nothing at all,

[e] Chap. 18. 14.

50 [e] Nor consider that it is expedient for us, that one man should die for the people, and that the whole nation perish not.

51 And this spake he not of himself: but being high priest that year, he prophesied that Jesus should die for that nation;

52 And not for that nation only, but that also he should gather together in one the children of God that were scattered abroad.

53 Then from that day forth they took counsel together for to put him to death.

54 Jesus therefore walked no more openly among the Jews; but went thence unto a country near to the wilderness, into a city called Ephraim, and there continued with his disciples.

55 ¶ And the Jews' passover was nigh at hand: and many went out of the country up to Jerusalem before the passover, to purify themselves.

56 Then sought they for Jesus, and spake among themselves, as they stood in the temple, What think ye, that he will not come to the feast?

Anno DOMINI 33.

57 Now both the chief priests and the Pharisees had given a commandment, that, if any man knew where he were, he should shew it, that they might take him.

CHAP. XII.

1 Jesus excuseth Mary anointing his feet. 9 The people flock to see Lazarus. 10 The high priests consult to kill him. 12 Christ rideth into Jerusalem. 20 Greeks desire to see Jesus. 23 He foretelleth his death. 37 The Jews are generally blinded: 42 yet many chief rulers believe, but do not confess him: 44 therefore Jesus calleth earnestly for confession of faith.

THEN Jesus six days before the passover came to Bethany, where Lazarus was which had been dead, whom he raised from the dead.

2 There they made him a supper; and Martha served: but Lazarus was one of them that sat at the table with him.

3 Then took Mary a pound of ointment of spikenard, very costly, and anointed the feet of Jesus, and wiped his feet with her hair: and the house was filled with the odour of the ointment.

---

and the Romans, under the pretence that we are raising a sedition against them, will deprive us utterly of our religion and remaining liberty. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— our place] Meaning the temple, called the "holy place," Acts vi. 13. Bp. Mann.

For the very reason that Jesus gave such striking evidence of His Divine power, as was sufficient to draw all men to the faith, these Pharisees ought to have owned Him as the true Messiah; but, through the fear of the Romans, and their own perverseness, they were induced rather to cut Him off, and, by this very action, to draw down on their nation the dreadful vengeance executed by the Romans. Such is the usual and the deserved effect of worldly policy, exalting itself against the wisdom and counsel of God. Dr. Whitby.

Where men take sinful means to avoid a calamity, that way very often brings it. Dr. Wall.

49. — high priest that same year,] The high priesthood, by Divine appointment, was to continue in the same person for life; but the Romans changed them at their pleasure, and made the office for the most part annual. Dr. Whitby.

50. — that it is expedient — that one man &c.] That it is better one man should be put to death at a venture, for the preservation of the whole nation, than that the whole nation should be ruined by your needless scrupulousness about the life of one man. Dr. S. Clarke.

51, 52. — this spake he not of himself: &c.] This was spoken by Caiaphas in a politick and worldly sense only; yet, as he was high priest that year, it was so ordered by God's special providence, that his words, in a sense very different from that which he intended, proved an exact prophecy of what soon came to pass; namely, that Jesus should die for the nation of the Jews, and not for that nation only, but for all mankind; that He might gather together out of all the nations of the earth, the dispersed servants of God, into one holy Church, united under one Head, and joined together in one holy communion. Dr. S. Clarke. In these words, we observe him speaking as a Caiaphas, and as a Prophet. As a wretched Caiaphas, counselling the Sanhedrim not to fear or hesitate at the business, but at once to resolve on it, for "it is expedient that one man should die;" and as a Prophet, signifying it was necessary Christ should die for the preservation of that nation and of the whole world. The former he spake and meant with all his heart, to stir them up to destroy Christ: the latter he spake indeed, but meant it not, neither understood what he spake. Dr. Lightfoot.

54. — walked no more openly] Walked no more at that particular time openly. Abp. Newcome.

—— a city called Ephraim,] Situated in the mountainous country, near the wilderness of Judea, at the very edge of the tribe of Ephraim, towards that of Benjamin. Dr. Wells.

55. — to purify themselves.] It was customary for those who had contracted a defilement which was to be purified by a sacrifice, to reserve themselves for one of the great feasts; also for those who had entered into a vow of Nazaritism, to perform it at those seasons. Dr. Whitby. It was required too of those, who had become defiled in any manner, to purify themselves, before they partook of the celebration of the paschal feast. Dr. Lightfoot.

Chap. XII. ver. 1. — six days before the passover] It is probable that six days inclusive are meant; that is, reckoning the day of the passover the last of the six. It seems that Jesus came to Bethany on the first day of the week, answering to our Sunday, and made His publick entry into Jerusalem on the Monday, His crucifixion taking place on the Friday following. Bp. Pearce.

3. Then took Mary &c.] Mary, the sister of Lazarus, chap. xi. 2. It is the opinion more generally received among commentators, that the circumstance here detailed of Mary's anointing Jesus's feet is distinct from that related at Matt. xxvi. 6; Mark xiv. 3. This event was six days before the passover; that, two days, Matt. xxvi. 2: this occurred in the house of Lazarus, that in the house of Simon the leper, Matt. xxvi. 6. In this, Mary anoints the feet of Jesus; in that, a woman, not named, pours ointment on His head, Matt. xxvi. 7. Drs. Lightfoot, Whitby, and Macknight.

Anno DOMINI 33.

4 Then saith one of his disciples, Judas Iscariot, Simon's son, which should betray him,

5 Why was not this ointment sold for three hundred pence, and given to the poor?

6 This he said, not that he cared for the poor; but because he was a thief, and [a] had the bag, and bare what was put therein.

[a] Chap. 13. 29.

7 Then said Jesus, Let her alone: against the day of my burying hath she kept this.

8 For the poor always ye have with you; but me ye have not always.

9 Much people of the Jews therefore knew that he was there: and they came not for Jesus' sake only, but that they might see Lazarus also, whom he had raised from the dead.

10 ¶ But the chief priests consulted that they might put Lazarus also to death;

11 Because that by reason of him many of the Jews went away, and believed on Jesus.

[b] Matt. 21. 8.

12 ¶ [b] On the next day much people that were come to the feast, when they heard that Jesus was coming to Jerusalem,

13 Took branches of palm trees, and went forth to meet him, and cried, Hosanna: Blessed is the King of Israel that cometh in the name of the Lord.

14 And Jesus, when he had found a young ass, sat thereon; as it is written,

[c] Zech. 9. 9.

15 [c] Fear not, daughter of Sion: behold, thy King cometh, sitting on an ass's colt.

16 These things understood not his disciples at the first: but when Jesus was glorified, then remembered they that these things were written of him, and that they had done these things unto him.

Anno DOMINI 33.

17 The people therefore that was with him when he called Lazarus out of his grave, and raised him from the dead, bare record.

18 For this cause the people also met him, for that they heard that he had done this miracle.

19 The Pharisees therefore said among themselves, Perceive ye how ye prevail nothing? behold, the world is gone after him.

20 ¶ And there were certain Greeks among them that came up to worship at the feast:

21 The same came therefore to Philip, which was of Bethsaida of Galilee, and desired him, saying, Sir, we would see Jesus.

22 Philip cometh and telleth Andrew: and again Andrew and Philip tell Jesus.

23 ¶ And Jesus answered them, saying, The hour is come, that the Son of man should be glorified.

24 Verily, verily, I say unto you, Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone: but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit.

25 [d] He that loveth his life shall lose it; and he that hateth his life in this world shall keep it unto life eternal.

[d] Matt. 10. 39.

---

5. —for three hundred pence,] Three hundred Roman pence; between nine and ten pounds of our money.

6. —had the bag,] Was purse-bearer to Jesus and the Apostles. Dr. S. Clarke.

7. —against the day of my burying hath she kept this.] She has performed this as a fit ceremony for My burial, which is near at hand. Dr. Whitby. It was the custom among the Jews to anoint dead bodies with perfumes and spices. See note at Matt. xxvi. 10.

8. For the poor &c.] Ye will have opportunities enough of shewing charity to the poor; but this is the last opportunity she could have had of expressing her kindness to Me; it is therefore a seasonable service in her. Dr. Hammond.

13. Took branches of palm trees, &c.] See notes at Matt. xxi. 1—9.

16. These things understood not &c.] The disciples did not comprehend that in these events there was any completion of prophecies concerning Jesus, till the time when Jesus was advanced to the throne of His glory, and had shed upon them the Spirit of truth, when they not only understood that these things were done according to the words of Zechariah the Prophet, chap. ix. 9; but also that His kingdom was of a spiritual nature, over the hearts and consciences of men. Dr. Whitby.

17. —bare record.] Freely made acknowledgment of that signal miracle at Jerusalem. Dr. Hammond. Or it is meant, generally, they bare record, by their hosannas, that He is the Christ. Dr. Whitby.

20. —certain Greeks] All foreigners, who used the Greek language, (then extensively spoken,) were called Greeks; and those of them, who came to worship at Jerusalem, being converted from idolatry, yet not being circumcised, were not acknowledged as perfect Jews, but were distinguished by the name of "devout men," Acts ii. 5, 10; x. 2; xxii. 12. Bp. Mann. They are supposed to have been "proselytes of the gate," who were permitted to worship in the court of the Gentiles, but not to celebrate the feast. Dr. Hammond.

22. Philip cometh and telleth Andrew:] Christ had forbidden His Apostles to go into the coasts of the Gentiles, Matt. x. 5: on this account, the Apostles seem to have doubted whether such uncircumcised persons might be admitted to converse with Him, and therefore they consult Him before they bring them to Him. Dr. Whitby.

23. —The hour is come, &c.] The time is now approaching, when the power and glory of the Messiah shall begin to be manifested, not only to the Jews, but also to all the nations of the world. Dr. S. Clarke.

24. —Except a corn of wheat &c.] As a grain of wheat does not bring forth fruit, except it be first cast into the earth, and there die; but, if it die, it will bring forth much fruit; in like manner I must first die, and be cast into the earth, and then a mighty harvest of the Gentile world will spring up and be the produce of My death, Isai. xxvi. 19. Dr. Lightfoot.

——it abideth alone:] Abideth without increase. Dr. Whitby.

25. He that loveth his life &c.] As ye see, He continues, that the way by which I Myself must attain to My kingdom is by suffering and death; so ye, and all who intend to be My disciples, must take notice that the way, by which ye likewise must attain eternal life, is the same way of suffering and affliction. Dr. S. Clarke.

——that hateth his life] That loveth it not so well, as to be unwilling to part with it for the sake of Jesus and His Gospel. Bp. Pearce.

Anno DOMINI 33.

26 If any man serve me, let him follow me; and where I am, there shall also my servant be: if any man serve me, him will my Father honour.

27 Now is my soul troubled; and what shall I say? Father, save me from this hour: but for this cause came I unto this hour.

28 Father, glorify thy name. Then came there a voice from heaven, saying, I have both glorified it, and will glorify it again.

29 The people therefore, that stood by, and heard it, said that it thundered: others said, An angel spake to him.

30 Jesus answered and said, This voice came not because of me, but for your sakes.

31 Now is the judgment of this world: now shall the prince of this world be cast out.

32 And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me.

33 This he said, signifying what death he should die.

34 The people answered him, [e] We have heard out of the law that Christ abideth for ever: and how sayest thou, The Son of man must be lifted up? who is this Son of man?

Anno DOMINI 33.

[e] Ps. 110. 4.

35 Then Jesus said unto them, Yet a little while is the light with you. Walk while ye have the light, lest darkness come upon you: for he that walketh in darkness knoweth not whither he goeth.

36 While ye have light, believe in the light, that ye may be the children of light. These things spake Jesus, and departed, and did hide himself from them.

37 ¶ But though he had done so many miracles before them, yet they believed not on him:

38 That the saying of Esaias the prophet might be fulfilled, which he spake, [f] Lord, who hath believed our report? and to whom hath the arm of the Lord been revealed?

[f] Isai. 53. 1. Rom. 10. 16.

39 Therefore they could not believe, because that Esaias said again,

---

27. —Father, save me from this hour:] Nature would prompt Me to prefer this petition; but this I cannot say, since "for this cause came I unto this hour," that I should die for the sins of the world. That it might not be thought by those who were called upon to follow His example, that He had not the same sense of pain and sorrow which other men have, He here shews that He had the same natural feelings as other men, but that they were overruled by the desire of promoting His Father's glory. Dr. Whitby.

——but for this cause came I unto this hour.] Our Lord was born into the world for this end, to suffer and to be put to death; He took up His life, in order thus to lay it down; and was made a living man for this very purpose, to be crucified and slain. Dr. Ogden.

28. Father, glorify thy name.] Father, I resign Myself entirely to Thy all-wise disposal. Glorify Thy name in Me, by what means and in what manner soever Thou thinkest fit. Dr. S. Clarke.

——I have both glorified it, &c.] By the raising of Lazarus, chap. xi. 4, and by all the other miracles which I have given in testimony of Thy Divine mission, chap. ii. 11. "And I will glorify it again" by Thy resurrection and exaltation to the right hand of glory, Acts iii. 13; by the mission of the Holy Ghost upon the Apostles, the witnesses of Thy resurrection, chap. xvi. 14; and by giving Thee a name above every name, Eph. i. 20, 21; Philipp. ii. 9, 10. Dr. Whitby.

30. —not because of me, but &c.] Not to answer or satisfy Me, but convince and confirm you. Dr. Hammond.

31. Now is the judgment &c.] Now is the time when the powers of this present world are about to be called into judgment; and Satan, who still reigns in the children of disobedience, shall be dispossessed of the dominion which he exercises in the world. Dr. S. Clarke.

——the prince of this world] Our Saviour speaks after a mode of expression very familiar among the Jews, when He calls Satan "the prince of this world:" in opposition to him was the Prince, whose kingdom was not of this world, that is, the Prince of "the world to come," Heb. ii. 5. Dr. Lightfoot. Satan is called "the prince of this world," as having maintained his empire both among Jews and Gentiles, leading them captive into sin and perdition. Rosenmüller.

32. And I, if I be lifted up &c.] When I am lifted up upon the cross, I shall cause men of all nations to believe on Me. Dr. Whitby.

34. —We have heard out of the law &c.] Under the term "Law" they included the Prophets and all their Scriptures. That Christ was to abide for ever, they gathered from the passages where His kingdom is represented to be everlasting, as Dan. vii. 14; Ezek. xxxvii. 25; Isai. ix. 7; and from God's promise to David, Psal. lxxxix. 36, 37. But, had they sufficiently attended also to other passages, in which He is represented as a suffering Messiah, Psal. xxii. 18; xl. 6; Isai. liii. 2, 12; Dan. ix. 26, &c. they would have had their scruples removed, and would have believed what He so frequently foretold respecting Himself. Dr. Whitby.

——who is this Son of man?] They ask, What sort of a suffering and mortal Messiah dost Thou profess Thyself? The answer to this question they were not prepared to understand or to relish at present. He therefore only exhorts them in general to believe in the light, during the short time of His continuance among them, that they might become children of light, or heirs of His kingdom. Dr. Hales.

35. —the light with you.] The presence of Christ while on earth. Grotius.

——lest darkness come upon you:] Lest ye be for ever left in an unhappy state of blindness and darkness. Dr. Hammond. Darkness indeed came upon the Jews in a wonderful manner, after the light of the Gospel was taken from them, when they sinned against all laws civil and sacred, and were given up by God to the deserved consequences of their blindness. Dr. Whitby.

37. But though he had done—yet they believed not on him:] The Evangelist does not mean to impute the defect of their belief to any doubt about the miracles, but to their not perceiving, what all now sufficiently perceive, and what they would have perceived, had not their understandings been governed by strong prejudices, the infallible attestation which the works of Jesus bore to the truth of His pretensions. Archdeacon Paley.

38. That the saying—might be] So that the saying was fulfilled. See notes at Matt. i. 22. Dr Whitby.

39. —they could not believe,] It was very difficult for them to believe; they were very unwilling to believe. Abp. Newcome.

It is not meant that they had a will to believe, and could not; but that they set themselves against having such a will. Dr. Wall.

They were not constrained in their infidelity, because Isaiah had said, "He hath blinded their eyes," &c.; but it is meant that those things were true which the Prophet had foretold concerning them. Dr. Lightfoot.

Anno DOMINI 33.

40 [g] He hath blinded their eyes, and hardened their heart; that they should not see with their eyes, nor understand with their heart, and be converted, and I should heal them.

[g] Matt. 13. 14.

41 These things said Esaias, when he saw his glory, and spake of him.

42 ¶ Nevertheless among the chief rulers also many believed on him; but because of the Pharisees they did not confess him, lest they should be put out of the synagogue:

[h] Chap. 5. 44.

43 [h] For they loved the praise of men more than the praise of God.

44 ¶ Jesus cried and said, He that believeth on me, believeth not on me, but on him that sent me.

45 And he that seeth me seeth him that sent me.

[i] Chap. 3. 19.

46 [i] I am come a light into the world, that whosoever believeth on me should not abide in darkness.

[k] Chap. 3. 17.

47 [k] And if any man hear my words, and believe not, I judge him not: for I came not to judge the world, but to save the world.

48 He that rejecteth me, and receiveth not my words, hath one that judgeth him: [l] the word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day.

Anno DOMINI 33.

[l] Mark 16. 16.

49 For I have not spoken of myself; but the Father which sent me, he gave me a commandment, what I should say, and what I should speak.

50 And I know that his commandment is life everlasting: whatsoever I speak therefore, even as the Father said unto me, so I speak.

CHAP. XIII.

1 Jesus washeth the disciples' feet: exhorteth them to humility and charity. 18 He foretelleth, and discovereth to John by a token, that Judas should betray him: 31 commandeth them to love one another, 36 and forewarneth Peter of his denial.

NOW [a] before the feast of the passover, when Jesus knew that his hour was come that he should depart out of this world unto the Father, having loved his own which were in the world, he loved them unto the end.

[a] Matt. 26. 2.

There are many passages in the Gospels similar to this, ver. 38—40; and we are not to understand by them, that the events took place merely for the purpose that the sayings of the ancient Prophets might be fulfilled; or that God, by hardening the hearts and blinding the understandings of the Jews, made it impossible for them to believe. God foresaw that a very large proportion of the Jews would reject the Gospel, and He was pleased to foretell this among other events relative to the advent and ministry of Christ. It was designed that the fulfilment of these various predictions should form a part of the evidence of the Divine authority of the Gospel. What the Prophets had predicted was certain to come to pass; but this certainty by no means caused these events to be determined by the decrees of God. They did not happen because they were foretold, but they were for the wisest purposes foretold because it was foreseen that they would happen. The foreknowledge of God is to be considered as perfectly distinct from His will. He foresees all the actions of men, both those which are conformable to His will, and those which are not; but the fact of His foreseeing them does not affect the free agency of man. Bp. Tomline.

——because that Esaias said again,] Because that which Esaias had said was verified in them. Dr. Whitby.

41.—when he saw his glory,] In this passage is afforded a clear and illustrious proof of the Divinity of Christ. The Evangelist manifestly speaks of Esaias having seen the glory of Christ. But the Prophet says, (chap. vi. 5,) in the passage alluded to, "Mine eyes have seen the King, the Lord of hosts." It follows therefore, by the clearest inference, that Christ is the same with "the Lord of hosts." Dr. Whitby.

42.—many believed on him;] Many of the rulers were inwardly convinced that He was the Messiah, and believed on Him as such; still expecting that He would by some surprising providence be raised to the throne of Israel; but they were afraid at this time to confess the convictions of their hearts concerning Him, on account of the enmity of the Pharisees. Dr. Doddridge.

43. For they loved the praise of men &c.] That is, they chose rather to obtain worldly praise, and to preserve their worldly dignities, than to give glory to God by acknowledging Jesus for the Messiah. Beausobre.

——they loved the praise &c.] They valued their reputation with men, more than the honour of God; and were more concerned for their temporal interest in the present world, than for the satisfaction of a good conscience, in the hope of that which is to come. Dr. S. Clarke.

What strange infatuation was this! that the human mind should be capable of believing that there is a God, and yet of preferring the creatures before Him; and should imagine the vain breath of popular applause, or censure, to be of such consequence, that God ought to be offended in order to please man; that all the honours and rewards of His heavenly presence should be lost to secure a little regard from those who will ere long be themselves the objects of everlasting shame and contempt! Dr. Doddridge.

44.—not on me, but &c.] Not on Me only, but also on "Him that sent Me," and set His seal to My testimony. Dr. Whitby.

45. And he that seeth me &c.] He that seeth My works, (as well as heareth My doctrine,) cannot but perceive plainly My Father's power present in what I do, and the evidence of His authority accompanying what I teach. Dr. S. Clarke.

47.—I judge him not:] While I am here on earth, I pass not sentence on him; for here I perform the office of a Prophet, not of a Judge, chap. viii. 15. Dr. Whitby.

——for I came not &c.] The end of My present coming is not to condemn, but to save: My second coming will be to execute judgment. Bp. Mann.

48.—the same shall judge him in the last day.] We should carefully attend to our Saviour's expressions here, that those who would not hear His word, should be judged by that same word which they rejected. This declaration is made to all to whom the Gospel is preached; and warns Christians in all ages to make a better use than the Jews did of this Divine light, lest darkness overtake them, and lest the Gospel, which is preached to them, become the cause of their condemnation. Ostervald.

50.—his commandment is life everlasting:] That is, to keep His commandments is the only way to everlasting life. Bp. Mann.

Chap. XIII. ver. 1.—before the feast of the passover,] Before the time of the passover feast began. Dr. Lightfoot.

——he loved them unto the end.] Now, before His departure, He, in a more particular and affectionate manner, at His last supper, discovered an earnest concern and exceeding great love towards them. Dr. S. Clarke.

Anno DOMINI 33.

2 And supper being ended, the devil having now put into the heart of Judas Iscariot, Simon's son, to betray him;

3 Jesus knowing that the Father had given all things into his hands, and that he was come from God, and went to God;

4 He riseth from supper, and laid aside his garments; and took a towel, and girded himself.

5 After that he poureth water into a bason, and began to wash the disciples' feet, and to wipe them with the towel wherewith he was girded.

6 Then cometh he to Simon Peter: and Peter said unto him, Lord, dost thou wash my feet?

7 Jesus answered and said unto him, What I do thou knowest not now; but thou shalt know hereafter.

8 Peter saith unto him, Thou shalt never wash my feet. Jesus answered him, If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with me.

9 Simon Peter saith unto him, Lord, not my feet only, but also my hands and my head.

10 Jesus saith to him, He that is washed needeth not save to wash his feet, but is clean every whit: and ye are clean, but not all.

Anno DOMINI 33.

11 For he knew who should betray him; therefore said he, Ye are not all clean.

12 So after he had washed their feet, and had taken his garments, and was set down again, he said unto them, Know ye what I have done to you?

13 Ye call me Master and Lord: and ye say well; for so I am.

14 If I then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet; ye also ought to wash one another's feet.

15 For I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you.

16 [b] Verily, verily, I say unto you, The servant is not greater than his lord; neither he that is sent greater than he that sent him.

[b] Matt. 10. 24. ch. 15. 20.

17 If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them.

18 ¶ I speak not of you all: I know whom I have chosen: but that the scrip-

---

2. — the devil having now put &c.] Judas having now yielded to the temptations of the devil, and the enticements of his own corrupt and covetous inclinations, so as to resolve not only to forsake, but betray his Master. Dr. S. Clarke.

3, 4. Jesus knowing that the Father &c.] Jesus knowing sufficiently the dignity of His person; that He was the eternal Son of God, who had come from God the Father, and was now near His time of returning to Him again, humbled Himself by the striking act of condescension related in the ensuing verses. Dr. Hammond. Hereby setting us a most powerful example of humility and kindness towards each other. Bp. Mann.

4. — his garments;] Properly, 'His upper garment,' "and girded Himself; bound His other garments about Him, as was usual for one who served. Dr. Hammond.

5. — wash the disciples' feet,] By the ceremony of washing His disciples' feet, our Lord signified the efficacy and value of His own precious blood, by which alone they, and all mankind, were to have all their sins purged and washed away for ever. Bp. Hurd.

7. — but thou shalt know hereafter.] After the ceremony is finished, I will tell thee it was intended as an example of that humility which I would have you exhibit in ministering to the meanest Christians, although in station and office you are far superiour to them, ver. 14. Dr. Whitby.

8. — If I wash thee not, thou hast no part] Meaning, by an easy and customary allusion to what was then passing, that, without such holiness and purity of mind as is naturally represented by cleaning and washing the body with water, he could not be a worthy Apostle and preacher of the Gospel. Dr. S. Clarke.

9. — Lord, not my feet only, but &c.] An expression of his earnestness to become a true disciple of Christ.

10. — He that is washed needeth not &c.] Meaning, by the same allusion as before, that he who has once heartily embraced the Gospel, and for some time obeyed its doctrines, must not be supposed ever after to stand in need of any entire change of heart and mind, but only to cleanse himself continually from the unavoidable incursions of daily infirmities. Dr. S. Clarke.

It was the uncleanness of sin, or the filth of an evil conscience, which was to be taken away by this washing. More than a single moral lesson was therefore couched in this act; indeed, the necessity and efficacy of certain means, by which mankind were, in general, to be cleansed from sin, was that which was ultimately and mainly signified by it. Bp. Hurd.

—— ye are clean, but not all.] Hereby clearly intimating Judas's intended perfidy. Abp. Newcome.

14. If I then, your Lord and Master, &c.] If I, whom ye acknowledge to be of infinitely greater dignity and authority than yourselves, have condescended with all humility to do the meanest office of servitude and kindness to you, My inferiours and disciples; how much more ought ye, if ye be sincere in your love and obedience towards Me, with all willingness and cheerfulness to do all acts of kindness, humility, and charity, towards each other; who, in comparison of Me, are all equals and fellow-servants, notwithstanding that seeming superiority which the state of the world, or the order of the Church, may give you over one another. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— to wash one another's feet.] Readily to discharge this humble office, or any similar one, for each other. Abp. Newcome.

16. — neither he that is sent &c.] Neither are you, My Apostles, whom I shall appoint the governours of My Church, greater than I, from whom you derive your commission, and by whom you are appointed. Dr. Hammond.

17. If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them.] As if He had said, This which I have now done is easy to be understood, and so are also all those other Christian graces and virtues, which I have heretofore, by My life and doctrine, recommended to you; but it is not enough to know these things, ye must do them likewise. The end and life of all our knowledge in religion is to put in practice what we know. It is necessary, indeed, that we should know our duty; but mere knowledge of it will never bring us to that happiness of which religion designs to make us partakers, if our knowledge have not its due and proper influence on our lives. Nay, so far will our knowledge be from making us happy, if it be separated from the virtues of a good life, that it will prove one of the heaviest aggravations of our misery; and it is as if our Lord had said, If ye know these things, woe will indeed befall you if ye do them not. Abp. Tillotson.

18. — I know whom I have chosen:] I know that one of you will forsake and betray Me: and I knew from the beginning that so it would be; but it was necessary that I should permit these things so to be; and hereby will that Scripture be fulfilled in Me,

Anno DOMINI 33.

ture may be fulfilled, [c] He that eateth bread with me hath lifted up his heel against me.

[c] Ps. 41. 9.

19 ‖ Now I tell you before it come, that, when it is come to pass, ye may believe that I am he.

‖ Or, From henceforth.

20 [d] Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that receiveth whomsoever I send receiveth me; and he that receiveth me receiveth him that sent me.

[d] Matt. 10. 40.

21 [e] When Jesus had thus said, he was troubled in spirit, and testified, and said, Verily, verily, I say unto you, that one of you shall betray me.

[e] Matt. 26. 21.

22 Then the disciples looked one on another, doubting of whom he spake.

23 Now there was leaning on Jesus' bosom one of his disciples, whom Jesus loved.

24 Simon Peter therefore beckoned to him, that he should ask who it should be of whom he spake.

25 He then lying on Jesus' breast saith unto him, Lord, who is it?

26 Jesus answered, He it is, to whom I shall give a ‖ sop, when I have dipped it. And when he had dipped the sop, he gave it to Judas Iscariot, the son of Simon.

‖ Or, morsel.

Anno DOMINI 33.

27 And after the sop Satan entered into him. Then said Jesus unto him, That thou doest, do quickly.

28 Now no man at the table knew for what intent he spake this unto him.

29 For some of them thought, because Judas had the bag, that Jesus had said unto him, Buy those things that we have need of against the feast; or, that he should give something to the poor.

30 He then having received the sop went immediately out: and it was night.

31 ¶ Therefore, when he was gone out, Jesus said, Now is the Son of man glorified, and God is glorified in him.

32 If God be glorified in him, God shall also glorify him in himself, and shall straightway glorify him.

33 Little children, yet a little while I am with you. Ye shall seek me: [f] and as I said unto the Jews, Whither I go, ye cannot come; so now I say to you.

[f] Chap. 7. 34. [g] Chap. 15. 17. Lev. 19. 18. 1 John 4. 21.

34 [g] A new commandment I give unto as it was in David, Ps. xli. 9. Dr. S. Clarke. As Ahithophel, though he was his familiar friend, betrayed David, who was a type of Me, so will Judas, My familiar friend at My table, betray Me. Dr. Whitby.

---

—— He that eateth bread with me] This was a peculiar aggravation in the East, where the rites of hospitality were very sacred, and are so to this day. Abp. Newcome.

—— hath lifted up his heel] See note at Ps. xli. 9.

20. — He that receiveth &c.] He says this to assure them that they should not want the comfort and the reward of those duties of humility and obedience, which He here enjoins upon them. Dr. Hammond.

21. — was troubled in spirit,] Principally at the thought of the great wickedness of His betrayer. Dr. Whitby.

—— and testified,] That is, spake openly and plainly. Bp. Mann.

23. — leaning on Jesus' bosom] The Roman custom at meals, which prevailed among the Jews in our Saviour's time, was to lie on couches, supporting themselves on the left elbow, so that the head of one was against the bosom of the person who was next above him. See Luke vii. 38. Bp. Mann.

—— one of his disciples, whom Jesus loved.] St. John, the writer of this Gospel.

St. John has five times mentioned himself under the description of "the disciple whom Jesus loved;" see chap. xix. 26; xx. 2; xxi. 7, 20. He has also thrice recorded, that he reclined in the bosom of Jesus, at the last supper, chap. xiii. 23, 25; xxi. 20. Abp. Newcome.

From many circumstances related in the Gospels, it appears that there subsisted between our Saviour and St. John a real, sincere, and tender friendship; and from this we cannot fail to infer, that friendship is perfectly consistent with the spirit of the Gospel, and the practice of every duty which it requires at our hands. But, what is highly important for us to remember, it is in the power of every one of us, though not precisely in the same sense that St. John was, yet in a very significant sense, to be the friend of Christ. We have our Saviour's own words for it. "Ye are My friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you," John xv. 14. Our earthly friends may deceive, may desert us, may be separated from us, may be converted into our bitterest enemies. But our heavenly Friend has declared, and He assuredly may be trusted, that, if we adhere faithfully to Him, He will never forsake us. Bp. Porteus.

St. John was beloved of Him who was Himself beloved of the Father. If we often set the highest price on the favour of an earthly sovereign, a man whose breath is in his nostrils, what ought we not to give to obtain the love of Him who abideth for ever, and who will make us partakers of His own immortality? We are all the disciples of Christ, and candidates for His favour. Let us ever strive to imitate the character and conduct of one who enjoyed so large a share of his Master's love; since, to be like him, is the way to be beloved of our Master as he was. Bp. Horne.

24. — beckoned to him,] Made signs to St. John, who was so placed that he could inquire without being heard by the rest. Bp. Mann.

27. — Satan entered into him.] Entered more forcibly into him than before, hurrying him to a speedy execution of his designs. Dr. Hammond.

28. — no man at the table knew] Not even St. John knew the force of the words, that Judas was to betray Him immediately. Grotius.

29. — against the feast;] For the offerings during the whole of the feast. Abp. Newcome.

31. — Now is the Son of man glorified, &c.] Now is the time come, when, having manifested the glory of God in My life, I shall further manifest it in My death, which will terminate greatly to the honour of God, and in extraordinary demonstrations of My own glory and power. Dr. S. Clarke.

32. — God shall also glorify him in himself,] God will exalt Me to inconceivable glory, and give mighty attestations of His having invested Me with great power in heaven and in earth. Dr. S. Clarke.

34. A new commandment] This commandment of loving one another is by our Lord and Saviour so much enlarged, as to its object, beyond what either the Jews or heathens understood it to be, extending to all mankind, and even to our greatest enemies; so greatly advanced and heightened as to its degree, even to the laying down of our lives for one another; so effectually taught, so mightily encouraged, so very much urged and insisted upon, that it may very well be called "a new commandment:" for, you, That ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another.

Anno DOMINI 33.

35 By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another.

36 ¶ Simon Peter said unto him, Lord, whither goest thou? Jesus answered him, Whither I go, thou canst not follow me now; but thou shalt follow me afterwards.

37 Peter said unto him, Lord, why cannot I follow thee now? I will [h] lay down my life for thy sake.

[h] Matt. 26. 33.

38 Jesus answered him, Wilt thou lay down thy life for my sake? Verily, verily, I say unto thee, The cock shall not crow, till thou hast denied me thrice.

CHAP. XIV.

1 Christ comforteth his disciples with the hope of heaven: 6 professeth himself the way, the truth, and the life, and one with the Father: 13 assureth their prayers in his name to be effectual: 15 requesteth love and obedience, 16 promiseth the Holy Ghost the Comforter, 27 and leaveth his peace with them.

Anno DOMINI 33.

LET not your heart be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in me.

2 In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you.

3 And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also.

4 And whither I go ye know, and the way ye know.

5 Thomas saith unto him, Lord, we know not whither thou goest; and how can we know the way?

6 Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me.

---

though it was not wholly unknown to mankind before, yet it was never so taught, so encouraged; never was such an illustrious example of it given, never so much weight and stress laid upon it, by any rules of philosophy or religion previously existing. Abp. Tillotson.

The commandment was new, because it was generally neglected in the practice of mankind, and because it was for the most part omitted in the lessons of moral teachers of that age; but the novelty of it consisted more particularly in this, that the disciples were required to love one another, after the manner, and, if the frailty of human nature might so aspire, in the degree, in which Christ loved them. "As I have loved you, that ye also love one another." Christians are to adjust their love to one another, to the measure and the example of Christ's love to them. Christ's love was perfect as the principle from which it flowed, the original benevolence of the Divine character. The example of this perfect love in the life of man was a new example; and the injunction of conformity to this new example might well be called a new commandment. Bp. Horsley.

A new commandment I give unto you,] I give this commandment to all My disciples, "that ye love one another" after My example, who have so loved you and all mankind, as to lay down My life for all, even for My enemies, from pure affection to their souls: this is the love which ye are to imitate, in your conduct towards each other. Dr. Whitby.

——That ye love one another;] This benevolent disposition is made the great characteristick of a Christian, the test of his obedience, and the mark by which he is to be distinguished. This love for each other is that charity described at 1 Cor. xiii. 4, containing all the qualities there attributed to it, humility, patience, meekness, and beneficence; without which we must live in perpetual discord, and consequently cannot pay obedience to this commandment by loving one another; a commandment so sublime, so rational, and so beneficial, so wisely calculated to correct the depravity, diminish the wickedness, and abate the miseries of human nature, that, did we universally comply with it, we should soon be relieved from all the inquietudes arising from our own unruly passions, anger, envy, revenge, malice, and ambition, as well as from all those injuries to which we are perpetually exposed, from the indulgence of the same passions in others. S. Jenyns.

36.—thou canst not follow me now; but thou shalt &c.] Meaning, that after many years St. Peter should follow Him in the likeness of His death, and thereby be made partaker also of His glory. Dr. S. Clarke. This accordingly took place; for he was put to death by crucifixion in the reign of the emperour Nero. Dean Stanhope.

38.—The cock shall not crow,] The early time, called the cockcrowing, shall not pass over, till &c. Dr. Lightfoot. See note at Matt. xxvi. 34.

Chap. XIV. ver. 1. Let not &c.] Here our Lord addresses an admirable discourse to His afflicted disciples, breathing consolation, and encouragement to trust in God and in Him also, for protection, support, and final reward. Dr. Hales.

Let not your heart be troubled:] Be not discouraged at My departure, or the troubles consequent upon it: but support your hearts with faith in the Father, and in Me, who am one with the Father, and consequently able to defend you in the execution of My commands. Dean Stanhope.

Our Lord here prescribes the proper remedy against trouble; namely, trust and confidence in God, the great Creator and wise Governour of the world, and likewise in Himself, the blessed Son of God, and the Saviour of the world. Abp. Tillotson.

2.—are many mansions:] In which, after all your labours, ye will find eternal rest; and into which I enter first with the sacrifice effected by My death, in order to prepare a place for you. Dr. Whitby.

The consolations and promises here held out to the Apostles justify the hopes of all Christians who follow their Saviour in meekness and constancy, integrity and piety, though not in the like painful steps which they did, of dying for the testimony of the same truth. The abundance of the reward provided for all such is here illustrated; for those mansions are "many," and furnish room for all who make it their care to seek and be qualified for them, however great the number of such may be; also the exquisite nature of the happiness which will then be attained; since these mansions are in the house of the Father, where is all happiness and perfection, and in whose presence is fulness of joy. Dean Stanhope.

3.—I will come again, &c.] At My second advent, I will receive you into those mansions, that ye may abide with Me for ever, and be made partakers of the happiness I there enjoy. Dr. Whitby.

4.—whither I go ye know, &c.] To what place I am going, ye cannot but know, by what I have just now told you; and the way thither likewise I have intimated with sufficient plainness. Bp. Mann.

6.—I am the way, &c.] I am the guide and director to these heavenly mansions, and so "the way;" I am the teacher of the truth revealed for this purpose, and so "the truth;" I am the author and only source of eternal happiness, and so "the life:" to the enjoyment of this, with My Father, no man can attain, except by obeying and relying on Me. Dean Stanhope.

——no man cometh unto the Father, but by me.] It is by Jesus

Anno DOMINI 33.

7 If ye had known me, ye should have known my Father also: and from henceforth ye know him, and have seen him.

8 Philip saith unto him, Lord, shew us the Father, and it sufficeth us.

9 Jesus saith unto him, Have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known me, Philip? he that hath seen me hath seen the Father; and how sayest thou then, Shew us the Father?

10 Believest thou not that I am in the Father, and the Father in me? the words that I speak unto you I speak not of myself: but the Father that dwelleth in me, he doeth the works.

11 Believe me that I am in the Father, and the Father in me: or else believe me for the very works' sake.

Anno DOMINI 33.

12 Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father.

13 [a] And whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son.

[a] Matt. 7. 7.

14 If ye shall ask any thing in my name, I will do it.

15 ¶ If ye love me, keep my commandments.

16 And I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you for ever;

Christ alone, that we, ignorant and shortsighted beings, come to the knowledge of God; for without Revelation we could never have known Him, as He is in His nature and attributes; but, in a still more proper sense, no man cometh to the favour of God, but by Christ: He is the propitiation of our sins, and through Him alone we are received into the favour of God, and procure the pardon of our sins, to the purposes of final salvation. Bp. Beveridge.

7. — ye should have known my Father also:] Who is in Me, and is made visible by His works done in Me. And, from the time I have been with you, ye have known Him by His word, and have seen Him by His works. Dr. Whitby.

8. — Lord, shew us the Father,] He says this, conceiving grossly of the subject, and alluding perhaps to the manifestations which God was pleased to make of Himself to Moses, Elias, and others. Dean Stanhope.

9. — hast thou not known me,] He implies, that to discern nothing more than human in the Son, is not to know the Son; and to descry the Divine perfections under that vail of humanity, was to see the Father in the Son. Dean Stanhope.

10. — I am in the Father, and the Father in me?] One in substance, and mutually in each other. Dean Stanhope. See notes at chap. x. 30.

12. — and greater works than these shall he do;] By propagating My religion swiftly throughout the world, in opposition to the powers of earth and hell. Dr. Trapp.

13. — whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, &c.] Implying, that nothing which they shall attempt in the execution of their ministry, with the invocation of His name, and the interposition of His power, should be insuperable to them; by means of which the Christian religion should be promoted, and so bring honour to the Father. Dean Stanhope.

14. — I will do it.] In a similar sentence at John xvi. 23, our Lord says, "He (the Father) will give it you." But in this text He seems to mention Himself particularly, to teach us, that we should direct our prayers to Him, as the same God with the Father, to trust on Him for granting what we pray for, and to believe that it is He, or the Father in and through Him, that grants our prayers. Bp. Beveridge.

15. If ye love me, keep my commandments.] What does our great Lord and Master here say to those who profess to love Him? "If ye love Me, keep My commandments;" without which indeed we have no ground to think we love Him, but have all the reason in the world to fear and dread Him. For if, notwithstanding all that He hath done and suffered for us, we shall still continue to break His laws, dishonour His name, and refuse those easy terms which He has offered to us in the Gospel, what can we expect but that He will leave us to the judgment of God, to be punished as our sins deserve? Bp. Beveridge.

16. — I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter,] Meaning the Holy Ghost, "the Spirit of Truth," ver. 17. The Greek word here used is Paraclete, which expresses the several offices performed by the Holy Spirit, of interceding as an advocate, of exhorting, and of comforting. He, our Saviour says, when He cometh, shall not depart, as I do now, but shall abide with you "for ever," as long as ye continue obedient to My precepts, ver. 15. Dr. Hammond.

What a fund of encouragement is here afforded for patience in troubles, and perseverance in every virtue! We see how greatly the Christian is the care of Heaven. The Most Holy Trinity is represented as co-operating to the salvation of believers. Let us, above all things, avoid the sin of not concurring humbly and earnestly with such a helper. Dr. Ogden.

These words present to us, in the shortest compass, what the Scriptures in various parts present to us at large; namely, the three Persons of the Godhead, who concur in the work of man's redemption. Here is the Son interceding, the Father granting, and the Spirit coming, to form the Church, and ever after to sanctify and preserve it.

How pleasing, how comfortable a consideration is it, that we have an Intercessor on high, through whose prayer to the Father, not only the good things of this world, redeemed from the curse by Him who first created them, and made them salutary and holy, are granted to us anew; but we receive also the great, the supreme, the unspeakable gift, the gift of the Divine Spirit, one with the Father and the Son, blessed and glorified for evermore! Bp. Horne.

—— another Comforter,] Besides the several passages in Scripture which speak of three Persons subsisting in the Godhead, there are a great variety of texts which separately prove both the divinity and personality of the Holy Spirit. Thus, in the present text, and at chap. xv. 26, the Comforter is clearly mentioned as a distinct Person from the Father and the Son. St. Peter, in punishing Ananias and Sapphira, uses the expressions "lying to the Holy Ghost," and "lying to God," Acts v. 3, 4, as equivalent; the Holy Ghost is said to be "eternal," Heb. ix. 14; to "teach all things," John xiv. 26; to "guide into all truth," John xvi. 13; to "shew things to come," ibid.; to "search all things, yea, the deep things of God," 1 Cor. ii. 10; to "make intercession for the saints," Rom. viii. 27; to "change us into the same image" with Christ, 2 Cor. iii. 18; to "bring all things to remembrance," John xiv. 26; to "reprove the world of sin, and of righteousness, and of judgment," John xvi. 8; and to have raised Christ from the dead, 1 Pet. iii. 18. St. Paul also attributes to the Holy Spirit the communication of a great variety of qualities and powers, 1 Cor. xii. 4—11. In all these passages, the Holy Ghost is plainly spoken of, not merely as a quality or operation, but as a Person; and the powers attributed to Him are such, that they can belong only to a Divine Person. If therefore the Holy Ghost be God, as well as the Father and the Son, and there be but one God, it follows that, in the language of the Articles of our Church, "the Holy Ghost is of one substance, majesty, and glory, with the Father and the Son, very and eternal God." Bp. Tomline.

Anno DOMINI 33.

17 Even the Spirit of truth; whom the world cannot receive, because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him: but ye know him; for he dwelleth with you, and shall be in you.

‖ Or, orphans.

18 I will not leave you ‖ comfortless: I will come to you.

19 Yet a little while, and the world seeth me no more; but ye see me: because I live, ye shall live also.

20 At that day ye shall know that I am in my Father, and ye in me, and I in you.

21 He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me: and he that loveth me shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him.

22 Judas saith unto him, not Iscariot, Lord, how is it that thou wilt manifest thyself unto us, and not unto the world?

23 Jesus answered and said unto him, If a man love me, he will keep my words: and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him.

24 He that loveth me not keepeth not my sayings: and the word which ye hear is not mine, but the Father's which sent me.

Anno DOMINI 33.

25 These things have I spoken unto you, being yet present with you.

26 But the Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, he shall teach you all things, and bring all things to your remembrance, whatsoever I have said unto you.

27 Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid.

28 Ye have heard how I said unto you, I go away, and come again unto you. If ye loved me, ye would rejoice, because I said, I go unto the Father: for my Father is greater than I.

29 And now I have told you before it come to pass, that, when it is come to pass, ye might believe.

30 Hereafter I will not talk much with you: for the prince of this world cometh, and hath nothing in me.

31 But that the world may know that I love the Father; and as the Father gave —— that he may abide with you for ever;] This He says of the Holy Spirit, in contradistinction to Himself. I go away, but He shall abide. The office graciously sustained by the Spirit, in the scheme of man's redemption, requires His constant abode and superintendence. Of the perpetuity of His influence, we are perfectly assured, to our great and endless comfort. Bp. Horne.

---

17. — whom the world cannot receive,] Which Spirit the sensual and corrupt world cannot receive, having no knowledge of Him, or disposition to be governed by Him; but ye know Him, and are disposed to entertain Him; He is in you already by His secret and invisible efficacy, and will hereafter appear in you, openly, by great and visible manifestations of Himself. Dr. S. Clarke.

19. — but ye see me: because &c.] Ye shall still be sensible of My presence and favour; and, in virtue of My conquest over affliction and death, ye shall conquer them too. Dean Stanhope.

20. — that I am in my Father, &c.] That there is an entire union between My Father and Me, and between Me and all the members of My Church. Dean Stanhope.

—— and ye in me, and I in you.] By this Spirit communicated from Me your Head, to unite you My members to Me. Dr. Whitby.

21. He that hath my commandments, — he it is that loveth me:] The nature of the love of God, a feeling so often and earnestly inculcated in the Gospel, has sometimes been mistaken by illjudging Christians. But in the plain word of God we find it described in all its native purity and simplicity. The marks, by which it is there distinguished, contain nothing enthusiastick or extravagant. The chief test, by which the Gospel orders us to try and measure our love to God, is, as is stated in this verse, the regard we pay to His commandments. Bp. Porteus.

23. — If a man love me, &c.] The manifestation I mean is, that of inward light and grace, which shall never depart from those who are careful to live as I have commanded them. Dean Stanhope.

26. — whom the Father will send in my name,] The Holy Spirit is elsewhere said to be sent by the Son, chap. xv. 26; xvi. 7; and is styled the Spirit, both of the Father and of the Son, Acts ii. 18, 33; Matt. x. 20; Rom. viii. 9; Gal. iv. 6, &c. Dean Stanhope.

—— he shall teach you all things,] He will enable you to understand all those parts of My speeches which are now obscure, and put you in mind of all things which I have now said to you, how they are fulfilled, and what they mean. See Acts ii. 16. Dr. Hammond.

27. Peace I leave with you, &c.] This is a Hebrew form of bidding farewell. He adds, I leave My peace with you, not, as the world does, by empty or ineffectual wishes, but by a sincere and efficacious blessing. See Rom. v. 1; John xvi. 22; Phil. iv. 7. Dr. Whitby.

"Not as the world giveth;" in compliment only, without either meaning or consequence: I speak with authority: I am still that Word by which the worlds were made; My peace is the pardon of your sins, courage and consolation under all troubles, and everlasting salvation. Dr. Ogden.

28. — greater than I.] Christ is the second Person in the blessed Trinity, with reference not to His essence, but His generation; the Father being the original of all power and essence in the Son. Bp. Pearson.

Christ says in one passage, "I and My Father are one;" and here, "My Father is greater than I." These, and many other passages of a similar kind, become perfectly consistent and intelligible, by referring them respectively to the Divine and human natures of Christ. The essential properties of one nature were not communicated to the other: Christ was at once Son of God and Son of man; He was at the same time both mortal and eternal; mortal as the Son of man, in respect of His humanity; eternal as the Son of God, in respect of His Divinity; each kept His respective properties distinct, without the least confusion in their intimate union. Bp. Tomline.

29. — ye might believe.] Your faith might be strengthened by observing the exact agreement between what I have told you beforehand, and the events which have followed. Dean Stanhope.

30. — for the prince of this world &c.] Satan cometh with his wicked instruments, but will find no sin in Me, to give him power over Me. Abp. Newcome.

Anno DOMINI 33.

me commandment, even so I do. Arise, let us go hence.

CHAP. XV.

1 The consolation and mutual love between Christ and his members, under the parable of the vine. 18 A comfort in the hatred and persecution of the world. 26 The office of the Holy Ghost, and of the apostles.

I AM the true vine, and my Father is the husbandman.

[a] Matt. 15. 13.

2 [a] Every branch in me that beareth not fruit he taketh away: and every branch that beareth fruit, he purgeth it, that it may bring forth more fruit.

[b] Chap. 13. 10.

3 [b] Now ye are clean through the word which I have spoken unto you.

4 Abide in me, and I in you. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine; no more can ye, except ye abide in me.

5 I am the vine, ye are the branches: He that abideth in me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit: for ‖ without me ye can do nothing.

Anno DOMINI 33.

‖ Or, severed from me.

6 If a man abide not in me, he is cast forth as a branch, and is withered; and men gather them, and cast them into the fire, and they are burned.

7 If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you.

8 Herein is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit; so shall ye be my disciples.

9 As the Father hath loved me, so have I loved you: continue ye in my love.

10 If ye keep my commandments, ye shall abide in my love; even as I have kept my Father's commandments, and abide in his love.

11 These things have I spoken unto you,

---

31. — Arise, let us go hence.] Hitherto He had discoursed in the house; now He leads them out to the place where He was to be apprehended. The discourse in the two next chapters, and the prayer, chap. xvii, seem to have been spoken as they went along from Jerusalem to the garden on the mount of Olives. Dr. Wall.

Chap. XV. ver. 1. I am the true vine,] Perhaps our Saviour spoke these words on the occasion of their drinking the last cup of wine, according to custom, after the supper; after He had said that He should no more drink of the fruit of the vine, till He should drink it new in the kingdom of God, Matt. xxvi. 29. His discourse here may allude to that expression, or may have arisen out of it. Dr. S. Clarke.

Our Saviour, holding this discourse immediately after the institution of the holy Sacrament, in which He had said, "This cup is the new testament in My blood," adds, "I am the true vine:" so that, for the future, the Church is to be under the administration of a new testament; from henceforward "I am the true vine," into which all the branches of the Church must be engrafted, and not into the Israelitish vine any more. Dr. Lightfoot. The Jewish Church had often been symbolized in the Old Testament by a choice vine planted in the hill country of Judea, by God Himself as the husbandman, Ps. lxxx. 8—11; Isai. v. 1—7; Jer. ii. 21. But, when this highly-favoured vine degenerated, and brought forth "wild grapes," or the Jewish Church became corrupt in faith and practice, it was threatened to be rooted up and to be superseded by the Christian Church, founded in Christ Himself as the true vine, of which His disciples were to be the members or branches. But He warns them that the Christian Church was still subject to the same discipline and culture as the Jewish; for God would cut off every barren branch in Christ, and prune every bearing branch, that it might produce more fruit. Dr. Hales.

He means here in the expression, "I am the vine," Himself, in a complex sense, together with His Church, intimating the close union that subsists between Him and His Church, the stock and the branches. Dean Stanhope.

—— my Father is the husbandman.] Implying the great care of God for the improvement and preservation of His Church; a care extended to every single branch, in that manner which is required by each, and tends to the common good of the whole. Dean Stanhope.

2. — he purgeth it, that &c.] He dresses and prunes it, that it may be fit for bearing. Bp. Mann. God purifies and amends the members of His Church by the various dispensations of His providence; and cuts off, by just judgments, the incorrigibly wicked. Dr. S. Clarke.

3. Now ye are clean &c.] Ye are already sanctified by the operation of My doctrine and Spirit upon you, though ye may need some further discipline and care, in order to a greater degree of fruitfulness. Dr. Hammond.

4. Abide in me, and I in you.] Take care to remain united to Me, as branches are to the stock. Bp. Mann. Christ is said to abide in us by the continual aids and influences of His grace and Holy Spirit; and, if we abide in Him, by resolving to obey His word, His grace and assistance will be continually derived to us, to bring this good resolution to effect, and to enable us to bring forth fruit. Abp. Tillotson.

5, 6. I am the vine, ye are &c.] I am, as it were, the root and stock of a vine, whereof ye are the branches. He that continues to adhere to Me, by constant faith in Me, by imitating My example, and by obeying My commands, shall bring forth much fruit of true holiness and virtue unto everlasting life, even as a branch that continues to grow in the vine, and receives sap and nourishment from it. But he, that does not continue to maintain his relation to Me in this manner, is a false and useless professor of My religion, and shall be cast out from Me and perish for ever; even as a fruitless branch is cut off from the vine, and left to wither and dry, and at last is burnt in the fire. Dr. S. Clarke.

5. — without me ye can do nothing.] Thus Gospel virtues can spring from no other original than Gospel grace; in this the very spirit and life of Christians, as such, consists; it is this that excites, and improves, and maintains, their holiness. Dean Stanhope.

7. — ye shall ask what ye will,] This seems to be meant chiefly of the gift of miracles bestowed on the Apostles, at the first preaching of the Gospel; though it may also, in a limited sense, be understood of the pious prayers of all good Christians. Dr. S. Clarke.

8. Herein is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit;] Your fruitfulness is that which alone brings glory to My Father, and which denominates you truly My disciples. Dr. Hammond.

We learn from these words, that they, who profess themselves the disciples of Christ, ought to bear much fruit, by leading holy and obedient lives; that herein God is glorified; and that they, and they only, who thus bear much fruit, so as to glorify God, are truly His disciples. Which shews how deeply it concerns us all to practise, as well as to profess, that holy religion, which He, our Lord and Master, has taught us. Bp. Beveridge.

10. — ye shall abide in my love;] Shall enjoy the continuance of My love. Dr. Hammond.

Anno DOMINI 33.

that my joy might remain in you, and that your joy might be full.

12 [c] This is my commandment, That ye love one another, as I have loved you.

[c] Chap. 13. 34. 1 Thess. 4. 9. 1 John 3. 11.

13 Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends.

14 Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you.

15 Henceforth I call you not servants; for the servant knoweth not what his lord doeth: but I have called you friends; for all things that I have heard of my Father I have made known unto you.

16 Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you, and [d] ordained you, that ye should go and bring forth fruit, and that your fruit should remain: that whatsoever ye shall ask of the Father in my name, he may give it you.

[d] Matt. 28. 19.

17 These things I command you, that ye love one another.

18 If the world hate you, ye know that it hated me before it hated you.

19 If ye were of the world, the world would love his own: but because ye are not of the world, but I have chosen you out of the world, therefore the world hateth you.

Anno DOMINI 33.

20 Remember the word that I said unto you, [e] The servant is not greater than his lord. If they have persecuted me, they will also persecute you; if they have kept my saying, they will keep your's also.

[e] Chap. 13. 16. Matt. 10. 24.

21 But all these things will they do unto you for my name's sake, because they know not him that sent me.

22 If I had not come and spoken unto them, they had not had sin: but now they have no ‖ cloke for their sin.

‖ Or, excuse.

23 He that hateth me hateth my Father also.

24 If I had not done among them the works which none other man did, they had not had sin: but now have they both seen and hated both me and my Father.

25 But this cometh to pass, that the word might be fulfilled that is written in their law, [f] They hated me without a cause.

[f] Ps. 35. 19.

26 [g] But when the Comforter is come, whom I will send unto you from the Father, even the Spirit of truth, which proceedeth from the Father, he shall testify of me:

[g] Chap. 14. 26. Luke 24. 49.

---

11. —that my joy might remain in you,] That the joy which My presence caused to you, may not be diminished in My absence; or else, that I may always have reason to rejoice in you. Beausobre.

12. —as I have loved you.] We are to imitate the love of Christ to us, as far as the vast distance between God and man enables us to do so; and we are to stir ourselves to mutual charity, by that strong obligation to it which the good will of Christ to us imposes on every considering Christian. Dean Stanhope.

15. —not servants;] To whom the master does not usually make known his counsels, purposes, and intentions. Dr. Hammond. "But I have called you friends;" I have treated you in the most friendly and affectionate manner, instructing you most plainly in all things necessary for your salvation. Bp. Mann.

16. Ye have not chosen me, but I &c.] I made choice of you, without the engagement of any antecedent affection of yours to Me, to be attendants on My person, hearers of My doctrine, witnesses of My miracles, and glorious instruments of planting and establishing a Christian Church, to last till the end of the world. For the success of which great work, whatever shall be needful, God will give it to your prayers put up in My name. Dean Stanhope.

19. If ye were of the world, the world &c.] If ye flattered men in their sins, and taught doctrines consistent with their lusts and passions, without question the world would love and honour you: but, since I have chosen you out of the world, to reprove its vices and to teach the necessity of men's controlling their lusts and amending their lives, it is not to be wondered that the world should persecute and hate you. Dr. S. Clarke.

20. —if they have kept &c.] If they have shewn a good disposition by keeping My words, they will also shew the same disposition by keeping yours. Abp. Newcome.

21, 22. —because they know not him &c.] This their behaviour is the effect of their not attending to the commission with which I come, nor the evidences of it. These have been far superiour to any ever before given to a teacher coming from God, so that their infidelity does not proceed from ignorance, but wilful obstinacy and blindness. Dean Stanhope.

22. —had not had sin:] The peculiar sin of rejecting the Messiah. Dr. Lightfoot.

24. —both seen and hated both me and my Father.] The malice shewn towards Me, who am authorized and have been thus eminently attested by God, does not terminate in My person, but is done to God Himself. Dean Stanhope.

25. —this cometh to pass, that &c.] Meanwhile, that prophetick complaint of David (Ps. lxix. 4.) never was so signally fulfilled as on this occasion. Dean Stanhope.

26. —when the Comforter is come,] See notes at chap. xiv. 16.

——whom I will send unto you from the Father,] Our Lord had before said at chap. xiv. 16, "I will pray the Father, and He shall give you another Comforter." He therefore, who in one capacity prays that the Comforter may be sent, in another is the Person who sends Him, being joined in authority and power with the Father. "I and the Father are one." Many are the passages of this kind in Scripture, which can only be explained and reconciled by that great Christian doctrine which our Church maintains concerning the twofold nature of Christ. The Spirit is called, in some places, the Spirit of the Father, Matt. x. 20; in others, "the Spirit of the Son," Gal. iv. 6; for He proceeded from both. Bp. Horne.

——which proceedeth from the Father,] We are here expressly told that the Holy Spirit proceedeth from the Father: and, as Christ says in this same verse, "I will send the Spirit;" and St. Paul tells the Galatians, (Gal. iv. 6,) that "God hath sent forth the Spirit of His Son into their hearts;" we infer that the Spirit proceeds from the Son also; indeed, the union between the Father and the Son is such, that we cannot conceive how the Spirit can proceed from the one, without at the same time proceeding from the other. Hence the Articles of our Church, and the Nicene Creed, speak of the Holy Ghost as proceeding from the Father and the Son. Bp. Tomline.

This, and many other passages of the New Testament, so plainly and evidently confirm the distinction of the Holy Ghost from the other Persons of the Trinity, that no man can possibly doubt thereof, unless he will blaspheme the everlasting truth of God's word. Church Homilies.

Anno DOMINI 33.

27 And ye also shall bear witness, because ye have been with me from the beginning.

CHAP. XVI.

1 Christ comforteth his disciples against tribulation by the promise of the Holy Ghost, and by his resurrection and ascension: 23 assureth their prayers made in his name to be acceptable to his Father. 33 Peace in Christ, and in the world affliction.

THESE things have I spoken unto you, that ye should not be offended.

2 They shall put you out of the synagogues: yea, the time cometh, that whosoever killeth you will think that he doeth God service.

3 And these things will they do unto you, because they have not known the Father, nor me.

4 But these things have I told you, that when the time shall come, ye may remember that I told you of them. And these things I said not unto you at the beginning, because I was with you.

5 But now I go my way to him that sent me; and none of you asketh me, Whither goest thou?

6 But because I have said these things unto you, sorrow hath filled your heart.

7 Nevertheless I tell you the truth; It is expedient for you that I go away: for if I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you; but if I depart, I will send him unto you.

Anno DOMINI 33.

8 And when he is come, he will ‖ reprove the world of sin, and of righteousness, and of judgment:

‖ Or, convince.

9 Of sin, because they believe not on me;

10 Of righteousness, because I go to my Father, and ye see me no more;

11 Of judgment, because the prince of this world is judged.

12 I have yet many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now.

13 Howbeit when he, the Spirit of truth, is come, he will guide you into all truth: for he shall not speak of himself; but whatsoever he shall hear, that shall he speak: and he will shew you things to come.

14 He shall glorify me: for he shall receive of mine, and shall shew it unto you.

15 All things that the Father hath are mine: therefore said I, that he shall take of mine, and shew it unto you.

16 A little while, and ye shall not see me: and again, a little while, and ye shall see me, because I go to the Father.

17 Then said some of his disciples among

Chap. XVI. ver. 1. — that ye should not be offended.] That ye may not fall off from the faith, or desist from your office of propagating it. Dr. Whitby.

2. They shall put you out of &c.] They will excommunicate you, and treat you like the most wicked of men, and even put you to death; as if, by destroying you, they would recommend themselves to the favour of God. Bp. Mann.

—— he doeth God service.] Performeth as acceptable an act towards Him, as prayer or sacrifice. Abp. Newcome.

3. — because they have not known the Father, nor me.] Violence and persecution can never be pleasing to the Father of mercies, nor consistent with Christ's religion; the principal and distinguishing commandment of which is, to love one another; to save men's lives, not to destroy them. Bp. Mann.

4. — because I was with you.] Because I was in person with you, and supported you by My immediate presence. Dr. S. Clarke.

5, 6. — and none of you asketh me, &c.] Now, when ye understand that I am to be taken from you, ye are overcome with sorrow, and make no inquiry about the state on which I am afterwards to enter. At chap. xiii. 36; xiv. 5, St. Peter and St. Thomas had asked this question; but now, at the time when Jesus was speaking this, none of the Apostles asked this question, because sorrow had filled their hearts. Bps. Mann and Pearce.

7. — It is expedient for you &c.] It is more for your benefit, and the advantage of My Gospel, that I should depart, and that the Comforter should supply My place, because some things to be done by Him are not compatible with My stay among you. Dean Stanhope.

8—11. — he will reprove the world &c.] He will convince the world of the greatness and heinousness of their sin, in disbelieving and rejecting Me; of the holiness and justice of My cause, and the excellency of My doctrine, because the Father will receive Me into glory; and lastly, of My power and authority to execute judgment on My enemies, by the power of Satan and the dominion of sin being mightily destroyed, and the doctrine of true religion propagated in the world with wonderful efficacy and success. Dr. S. Clarke, Bp. Mann.

11. — the prince of this world is judged.] "The prince of this world," Satan, was judged, when our Saviour overcame him by the obedience of His death, Heb. ii. 14; and the first instance of that judgment and victory was, when He arose from the dead; the next was, when He loosed the Gentiles out of the chains and bondage of Satan by the Gospel. See Rev. xx. 1, &c. Dr. Lightfoot.

12. — many things] Such as the abolition of the law, the rejection of the Jews, and the calling of the Gentiles. Abp. Newcome.

—— ye cannot bear them now.] Your prejudices render you at present incapable of that full instruction which ye shall receive hereafter through the Holy Spirit. Bp. Mann.

13. — he, the Spirit of truth,] This mode of expression affords a strong proof that the Holy Spirit is a Person. Dr. Wall.

—— he will guide you into all truth:] Unto all truth necessary to your apostolical office, the instruction of mankind, and the good government of the Church. Dr. Trapp.

14. He shall glorify me:] By enabling you to work miracles, and to foretell future events, and by leading you to all evangelical truths; and by the conversion both of Jews and Gentiles. Abp. Newcome.

16. — ye shall not see me:] Because I shall be taken from you by death; and again, after My resurrection, ye shall see Me, though but for a little while, because I must ascend up into heaven. Dr. Whitby, Dean Stanhope.

He intimates that He should disappear from them at His death, during three days, and again appear to them after His resurrection, at intervals, during forty days, until His ascension, when they should see Him no more on earth. Dr. Hales.

Or our Lord's words may refer to the time of His ascension, as the time when they should not see Him personally any more; but they should afterwards see Him in the influences and gift of His Holy Spirit. Dr. Lightfoot.

Anno DOMINI 33.

themselves, What is this that he saith unto us, A little while, and ye shall not see me: and again, a little while, and ye shall see me: and, Because I go to the Father?

18 They said therefore, What is this that he saith, A little while? we cannot tell what he saith.

19 Now Jesus knew that they were desirous to ask him, and said unto them, Do ye enquire among yourselves of that I said, A little while, and ye shall not see me: and again, a little while, and ye shall see me?

20 Verily, verily, I say unto you, That ye shall weep and lament, but the world shall rejoice: and ye shall be sorrowful, but your sorrow shall be turned into joy.

21 A woman when she is in travail hath sorrow, because her hour is come: but as soon as she is delivered of the child, she remembereth no more the anguish, for joy that a man is born into the world.

22 And ye now therefore have sorrow: but I will see you again, and your heart shall rejoice, and your joy no man taketh from you.

23 And in that day ye shall ask me nothing. [a] Verily, verily, I say unto you, Whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name, he will give it you.

[a] Matt. 7. 7.

24 Hitherto have ye asked nothing in my name: ask, and ye shall receive, that your joy may be full.

Anno DOMINI 33.

25 These things have I spoken unto you in ‖ proverbs: but the time cometh, when I shall no more speak unto you in ‖ proverbs, but I shall shew you plainly of the Father.

‖ Or, parables.

‖ Or, parables.

26 At that day ye shall ask in my name: and I say not unto you, that I will pray the Father for you:

27 For the Father himself loveth you, because ye have loved me, and have believed that I came out from God.

28 I came forth from the Father, and am come into the world: again, I leave the world, and go to the Father.

29 His disciples said unto him, Lo, now speakest thou plainly, and speakest no ‖ proverb.

‖ Or, parable.

30 Now are we sure that thou knowest all things, and needest not that any man should ask thee: by this we believe that thou camest forth from God.

31 Jesus answered them, Do ye now believe?

32 [b] Behold, the hour cometh, yea, is now come, that ye shall be scattered, every man to ‖ his own, and shall leave me alone: and yet I am not alone, because the Father is with me.

[b] Matt. 26. 31.

‖ Or, his own home.

33 These things I have spoken unto you,

---

20. — ye shall weep and lament, &c.] The sufferings and death I am about to undergo shall be matter of extreme sorrow and discomfort to you; but the world will greatly exult and triumph upon that occasion. But your sorrow shall be short, and swallowed up in the joy of beholding Me risen from the dead. Dean Stanhope.

22. — I will see you again,] How reviving was the accomplishment of this promise to His disciples, when, on returning from His empty tomb, they found all their hopes alive again, their faith confirmed, and their courage rendered invincible, in the sight and enjoyment of their Master! But, if the continuance of this for forty days could inspire so just a joy, what raptures and transports must possess all the faithful, when they shall attain the end of their faith; when they shall see, and dwell, and converse, and reign, with their dear Lord for ever; when their bodies shall be glorified, this vail of flesh and frailty drawn away; when faith and hope shall cease, and be swallowed up in fruition, when they shall be drawn into the likeness of God, and see Him as He is! Dean Stanhope.

—— your joy no man taketh from you.] Of the joys of the present life we have but a slippery hold; and, were they more substantial than they really are, yet the pleasure in them must be damped by the melancholy prospect that they will one day forsake us, and we know not how soon they may. But the joys promised by our Lord to His faithful followers, as they are true and solid; so are they eternal, without interruption, without conclusion, liable to no decays of nature, no wastings of time; nothing without to destroy them, nothing within to diminish or impair them; subject only to the will of the Almighty Giver, and given by Him never to be taken back. Dean Stanhope.

23. — in that day ye shall ask me nothing.] "In that day," when that Spirit shall have come, and shall have taught you all things, and satisfied all your doubts, ye will have no more need to ask Me any further questions. Dr. Hammond.

—— in my name,] As mediator between God and man. Dr. Whitby.

24. — that your joy may be full.] That your joy, which will begin at My appearing to you again after My death, may be completed by the wonderful success and efficacy of your own ministry. Dr. S. Clarke.

25. — in proverbs:] In parables and allusions. Bp. Mann. In general and less distinct expressions, as to the nature and extent of My kingdom. Abp. Newcome.

—— the time cometh, &c.] The time draws near, when your prejudices will be removed, and your capacities enlarged; and then I will inform you of the will of God more plainly and perfectly. Bp. Mann.

26. — ye shall ask in my name:] Ye have another motive for prayer in My name, besides the certainty and prevalence of My intercession, the goodness of the Father, which leads Him to love you, "because ye have loved Me," &c. Abp. Newcome.

30. Now are we sure that thou knowest all things,] Inasmuch as Thou knowest our secret whisperings amongst ourselves; and so "needest not that any man should ask Thee;" Thou knowest all that men desire unasked; by this we more firmly "believe that Thou camest forth from God." Dr. Whitby.

32. Behold, the hour cometh, &c.] Be not too confident. Alas! ye know not how soon your strength may be severely tried. Bp. Mann.

—— because the Father is with me.] Though forsaken by all of you, I shall have the support of My heavenly Father's presence. Bp. Mann.

Anno DOMINI 33.

that in me ye might have peace. In the world ye shall have tribulation: but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world.

CHAP. XVII.

1 Christ prayeth to his Father to glorify him, 6 to preserve his apostles, 11 in unity, 17 and truth, 20 to glorify them, and all other believers with him in heaven.

THESE words spake Jesus, and lifted up his eyes to heaven, and said, Father, the hour is come; glorify thy Son, that thy Son also may glorify thee:

[a] Matt. 28. 18.

2 [a] As thou hast given him power over all flesh, that he should give eternal life to as many as thou hast given him.

3 And this is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent.

4 I have glorified thee on the earth: I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do.

Anno DOMINI 33.

5 And now, O Father, glorify thou me with thine own self with the glory which I had with thee before the world was.

6 I have manifested thy name unto the men which thou gavest me out of the world: thine they were, and thou gavest them me; and they have kept thy word.

7 Now they have known that all things whatsoever thou hast given me are of thee.

8 For I have given unto them the words which thou gavest me; and they have received them, [b] and have known surely that I came out from thee, and they have believed that thou didst send me.

[b] Chap. 16. 27.

9 I pray for them: I pray not for the

---

33. — that in me ye might have peace.] That ye might be supplied with matter of consolation and firmness, from the consideration of My having told you before what distresses will befall you, and how they will finally terminate in triumph. Ye must indeed expect to meet with much affliction in this world; but let not this discourage you; I have overcome the world; follow ye My example, and be partakers of My reward. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— I have overcome the world.] By "the world" we must here understand the evil of the world, its wickedness, troubles, and temptations; all in it which we have reason to fear and avoid, for the sake of our safety or our happiness in this life and the next. And these Christ overcame by expiating human sin upon the cross; and enabling the faithful, by the assistance of His grace, to subdue their corrupt passions; by Himself submitting to poverty, sorrow, and even death itself, and by displaying those bright and heavenly virtues which shone in His whole character and conversation. Abp. Tillotson.

Chap. XVII. ver. 1. These words spake Jesus, — and said,] Our blessed Saviour, having forewarned His Apostles what they were to suffer on account of their preaching the Gospel, and likewise informed them of the assistance they should receive from the Holy Spirit, concludes with the fervent and affecting prayer, contained in this chapter, immediately before He went to the place where He knew that He was to be betrayed and apprehended. Bp. Mann.

—— glorify thy Son, that thy Son &c.] Support Me at the approaching time of trial; enable Me to prevail and triumph over death by a glorious resurrection and ascension into heaven; that by these means I may likewise glorify Thee, and cause Thy will, revealed in the Gospel, to be believed and obeyed through all the world, unto the eternal salvation of mankind. Dr. S. Clarke.

2. As thou hast given him power &c.] According to the full intent of that office and power, with which Thou didst originally invest Him, to receive all fitly disposed persons into the covenant of salvation, and to assist and preserve them in it unto everlasting life. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— as many as thou hast given] Whose hearts Thou hast inclined sincerely to come unto Me. Dr. Hammond. Gentiles as well as Jews, who will inherit everlasting life on the conditions of the Gospel covenant. Abp. Newcome.

3. And this is life eternal, &c.] The condition of this covenant of eternal life is, that they believe and obey Thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ as the true Messiah whom Thou hast sent. Dr. S. Clarke. "Whom Thou hast sent" to instruct and save mankind, as "the Apostle and High Priest of our profession," Heb. iii. 1. Dr. Hales. In the knowledge of the only true God and of His Son Jesus Christ our Lord, are comprehended all the necessary principles of natural and revealed religion; and this knowledge our Saviour calls eternal life, because it is fundamentally necessary in order to the attainment of it. Abp. Tillotson.

—— the only true God,] In exclusion of all the false gods which the Gentiles worshipped. Dr. Trapp. These words at ver. 3. have sometimes been brought to prove the Father only to be the true God, in exclusion of the Son. But it is impossible they can rightly be so understood, for several reasons. 1st, Our Lord speaks in this place of the true God, in opposition to false gods, who could not give eternal life; the main comparison, therefore, consists in this particular, and does not regard the relation between the Father and the Son. If they are distinguished in the text, it is only because Christ speaks particularly of Himself as Mediator. So at 1 Tim. ii. 5. The Scripture does not in either place speak of such a Father, as had not an everlasting only Son, but it speaks of Him as the true God, in opposition to false deities: not excluding the Son's participation of the Godhead, but distinguishing His mediatorial office, to which the Divine nature was necessary on many accounts. 2dly, As our Lord declares it to be eternal life to know the Father, so does He say as plainly that they who should know the Father should know the Son also, and that all men should honour the Son as they honour the Father. See John v. 23. 3dly, Such modes of expression as omit one Person of the Blessed Trinity, when another is more especially spoken of, are frequent: and the reason is apparent, because each, as partaker of the Godhead, may be said to be true God, and God alone, when opposed to false gods. See, among other places, 1 Tim. vi. 15. 4thly, We find that what is said of the Father in this text is said in the same terms of the Son at 1 John v. 20; whence it is most plain, that the opposition is not intended to be made between the Father and the Son, but between either of them, as true God, in opposition to false gods and idols. Archdeacon Pott.

5. — glorify thou me with thine own self] By exalting even My human nature to the right hand of glory, and crowning Me with that glory which, as to My Divine nature, I had with Thee before the foundation of the world. See Philipp. ii. 6, 9. Dr. Whitby.

6. — unto the men which thou gavest me &c.] To those disciples whom Thou hast disposed to believe in Me, I have, by imparting My doctrines, and working miracles before their eyes, afforded the clearest prospect of Thy power, wisdom, holiness, and goodness. Dr. Whitby.

7. Now they have known that &c.] They have known by My Divine doctrine, and by the miracles which they have heard and seen, that I have derived both from Thee. Dr. Whitby.

9, 10. I pray for them: I pray not for the world,] I pray not now for the unbelieving and impenitent world, but for those who have embraced that most holy doctrine which Thou hast taught them by My preaching; who have glorified and will glorify My name by their ministry, as I have done Thine by My ministry, world, but for them which thou hast given me; for they are thine.

Anno DOMINI 33.

10 And all mine are thine, and thine are mine; and I am glorified in them.

11 And now I am no more in the world, but these are in the world, and I come to thee. Holy Father, keep through thine own name those whom thou hast given me, that they may be one, as we are.

12 While I was with them in the world, I kept them in thy name: those that thou gavest me I have kept, and none of them is lost, but the son of perdition; [c] that the scripture might be fulfilled.

[c] Ps. 109. 8.

13 And now come I to thee; and these things I speak in the world, that they might have my joy fulfilled in themselves.

14 I have given them thy word; and the world hath hated them, because they are not of the world, even as I am not of the world.

15 I pray not that thou shouldest take them out of the world, but that thou shouldest keep them from the evil.

16 They are not of the world, even as I am not of the world.

17 Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth.

Anno DOMINI 33.

18 As thou hast sent me into the world, even so have I also sent them into the world.

19 And for their sakes I sanctify myself, that they also might be ‖ sanctified through the truth.

‖ Or, truly sanctified.

20 Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word;

21 That they all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us: that the world may believe that thou hast sent me.

22 And the glory which thou gavest me I have given them; that they may be one, even as we are one:

23 I in them, and thou in me, that they may be made perfect in one; and that the world may know that thou hast sent me, and hast loved them, as thou hast loved me.

24 [d] Father, I will that they also, whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am; that they may behold my glory, which

[d] Chap. 12. 26.

---

and who consequently are to be esteemed as Thine own, in common with Me. Dr. S. Clarke.

Our Lord uses not these words, "I pray not for the world," in a general sense, but only with a particular reference to that very prayer which He was then offering up for His Apostles, ver. 12; in which He was praying for those things which could agree to them alone, or to those who were given Him out of the world; that is, for the purpose of being consecrated to their Apostolical function by that Spirit which the world could not receive, that their joy from His presence with them might be full. Thus He made this very prayer, in which He says, "I pray not for the world," out of affection to the world, and with the design that the preaching of the Apostles to them might be more effectual for their conversion and salvation. Dr. Whitby.

11. — keep through thine own name] Keep them, by Thy help, in the worship of Thee and the profession of Thy name. Grotius.

—— that they may be one, as we are.] That they may be united in affection, and all teach the same doctrine, as I have set them the example, by delivering nothing but what was Thy Divine will, to which I have likewise in all things invariably conformed. Bp. Mann.

12. — that thou gavest me] See notes at chap. vi. 37.

It is completely evident that the phrase "which Thou gavest Me," does not denote any action of God upon men, but merely the state and character of the persons described. In this passage it is plain that Judas was originally one of those whom God had given to Christ in the same sense as He gave to Him the rest of His disciples; and yet, that afterwards, by his own fault, by becoming a son of perdition, a wicked and traitorous person, he ceased to be of that number. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— none of them is lost, but the son of perdition;] None of those who undertook My service has fallen off from Me but Judas, that wicked traitor, to whom the prophecy relates, Ps. cix. Dr. Hammond.

—— son of perdition;] One worthy of perdition, 2 Sam. xii. 5; Matt. xxiii. 15; 2 Thess. ii. 3. Dr. Whitby.

13. — that they might have my joy &c.] That they may have the joy which I have promised them (chap. xv. 11.) fulfilled in themselves by the presence of the Spirit, whose fruits are joy and peace. Dr. Whitby. "My joy," the joy of which I am the object, the joy which they will derive from Me. Dr. Campbell.

15. — from the evil.] From the evil men of this world, and from Satan the prince of the world, who will endeavour by persecutions to suppress the truth, and destroy or discourage the preachers of it. Dr. Whitby.

17. Sanctify them through thy truth: &c.] Consecrate and prepare them for the ministry of Thy most true and holy word. Bp. Mann.

19. — for their sakes I sanctify myself,] I devote and offer up My life to Thee for their sakes, that they also may be ready to die for the truth. Bp. Mann.

20, 21. Neither pray I for these alone, &c.] Neither pray I for these My Apostles only, but for all others also, who shall by their preaching be at any time converted to Thy true religion; that, as I am in Thee and Thou in Me, so they shall all be united to Me and to one another, by one holy and indissoluble bond of faith and charity, becoming eminent examples of holiness and piety, so as to convince the world of the excellency of their religion, and force men to acknowledge its truth and Divine authority. Dr. S. Clarke.

21. — that they also may be one] One in affection, and in co-operation for the advancement of truth and goodness. Abp. Newcome.

Let us here observe, that our Saviour not only prays for His Apostles, but also for all such as should believe in Him, and should receive their preaching. Hence we perceive how dear the faithful are to Christ, and how anxiously He desires to make them partakers of that glory which He now enjoys. Ostervald.

22. — the glory] The power of doing mighty works for the confirmation of their doctrine and the manifestation of Thy glory. Drs. S. Clarke and Whitby.

23. — be made perfect in one;] In one spirit, working in them as it did in Me. Dr. Whitby.

24. — I will that they also, &c.] I desire that all those who have heartily embraced and sincerely obeyed the doctrines I have taught, may be made by Thee partakers of the same happiness with Myself, and exalted to behold the incomprehensible glory with which Thou didst invest Me in Thy eternal love before the foundation of the world. Dr. S. Clarke.

Anno DOMINI 33.

thou hast given me: for thou lovedst me before the foundation of the world.

25 O righteous Father, the world hath not known thee: but I have known thee, and these have known that thou hast sent me.

26 And I have declared unto them thy name, and will declare it: that the love wherewith thou hast loved me may be in them, and I in them.

CHAP. XVIII.

1 Judas betrayeth Jesus. 6 The officers fall to the ground. 10 Peter smiteth off Malchus' ear. 12 Jesus is taken, and led unto Annas and Caiaphas. 15 Peter's denial. 19 Jesus examined before Caiaphas. 28 His arraignment before Pilate. 36 His kingdom. 40 The Jews ask Barabbas to be let loose.

WHEN Jesus had spoken these words, [a] he went forth with his disciples over the brook Cedron, where was a garden, into the which he entered, and his disciples.

[a] Matt. 26. 36.

2 And Judas also, which betrayed him, knew the place: for Jesus ofttimes resorted thither with his disciples.

3 [b] Judas then, having received a band of men and officers from the chief priests and Pharisees, cometh thither with lanterns and torches and weapons.

[b] Matt. 26. 47.

4 Jesus therefore, knowing all things that should come upon him, went forth, and said unto them, Whom seek ye?

5 They answered him, Jesus of Nazareth. Jesus saith unto them, I am he. And Judas also, which betrayed him, stood with them.

Anno DOMINI 33.

6 As soon then as he had said unto them, I am he, they went backward, and fell to the ground.

7 Then asked he them again, Whom seek ye? And they said, Jesus of Nazareth.

8 Jesus answered, I have told you that I am he: if therefore ye seek me, let these go their way:

9 That the saying might be fulfilled, which he spake, [c] Of them which thou gavest me have I lost none.

[c] Chap. 17 12.

10 Then Simon Peter having a sword drew it, and smote the high priest's servant, and cut off his right ear. The servant's name was Malchus.

11 Then said Jesus unto Peter, Put up thy sword into the sheath: the cup which my Father hath given me, shall I not drink it?

12 Then the band and the captain and officers of the Jews took Jesus, and bound him,

13 And led him away to Annas first; for he was father in law to Caiaphas, which was the high priest that same year. ‖

‖ And Annas sent Christ bound unto Caiaphas the high priest, ver. 24.

14 [d] Now Caiaphas was he, which gave counsel to the Jews, that it was expedient that one man should die for the people.

[d] Chap. 11. 50.

---

26. —that the love wherewith &c.] That Thou mayest love them as being Thy sons by adoption, so as to make them partakers of an eternal inheritance, Rom. viii. 17; and so as to fill them with Thy Spirit, Gal. iv. 6; and, raising them from the dead, mayest crown them with eternal glory. Dr. Whitby.

Our blessed High Priest fulfilled all righteousness from the beginning to the end of His sacred function, Matt. iii. 15. As Aaron, the first Jewish high priest, was anointed at his consecration, (Exod. xxix. 4—7,) so Christ was consecrated to be the world's High Priest at His baptism, when He was washed in water and anointed with the Holy Spirit, descending from heaven, and resting visibly on His head, Ps. xlv. 7; Heb. i. 9; Acts x. 38. And, as the Jewish high priest, on the day of atonement, was required to make annual intercession for himself, for his household, the priests and Levites, and for the whole nation, (Lev. xvi. 17,) so our all-sufficient High Priest, "once" for all, (Heb. ix. 26; Rom. vi. 10,) on this His great day of atonement, solemnly interceded with God His Father, for Himself, that He might be received into glory, His original glory in heaven; (see ver. 1—5;) for His household, the Apostles and Disciples, that God would preserve them in His name, or in the true religion; giving them a spirit of unity and concord, and protecting them in and from the wicked world, ver. 6—19; and that finally they might partake of His glory in heaven, and also be supported by His love and presence on earth, ver. 24—26; and also for all future believers, through their preaching, that they might be endued with the same spirit of unity and concord; and for the conversion of the whole world, ver. 20—23. This seventeenth chapter unfolds, in a short compass, that grand mystery of the Gospel, the instituted means of the salvation of mankind by the Father and the Son, conjointly with Their love for the world. Abp. Wake.

Chap. XVIII. ver. 1. —he went forth] From the guest-chamber, in which He had partaken of the passover with His disciples. Abp. Newcome. For further notes on this chapter, see Matt. xxvi. and xxvii.

——the brook Cedron,] The name Cedron signifies dark or black; and the brook is thought to have been thus called, either from its running through a dark shady valley, or from the blackness of its water, caused by its receiving all the drains of the city. Calmet.

——where was a garden,] The garden of Gethsemane.

3. —having received a band] Of Roman soldiers. During the passover feast, the governour of Judea used to station a party of soldiers before the temple to prevent disorder. On this occasion, a portion of these were employed to support Judas. Beausobre.

4. —knowing all things that should come upon him,] That is, having a full knowledge of all which was to befall Him. Bp. Mann.

6. —they went backward, and fell &c.] Such was the majesty with which He spake, and so great the Divine power which accompanied His words. Dr. S. Clarke.

8. —let these go their way:] These My disciples. We should well observe our Saviour's love to His disciples: He is anxious for their safety, while He voluntarily exposes His own life to the malice of His enemies. Bp. Mann.

9. That the saying might be fulfilled,] By this means that speech of His at chap. xvii. 12, 15, had another, besides the ordinary, completion, that no one of His disciples was cut off with Him. Dr. Hammond.

11. —the cup] See note at Matt. xx. 22.

13. —to Annas first; &c.] See note at Luke iii. 2.

14. —that one man should die] See the speech of Caiaphas at chap. xi. 50.

Anno DOMINI 33.

15 ¶ [e] And Simon Peter followed Jesus, and so did another disciple: that disciple was known unto the high priest, and went in with Jesus into the palace of the high priest.

[e] Matt. 26. 58.

16 But Peter stood at the door without. Then went out that other disciple, which was known unto the high priest, and spake unto her that kept the door, and brought in Peter.

17 Then saith the damsel that kept the door unto Peter, Art not thou also one of this man's disciples? He saith, I am not.

18 And the servants and officers stood there, who had made a fire of coals; for it was cold: and they warmed themselves: and Peter stood with them, and warmed himself.

19 ¶ The high priest then asked Jesus of his disciples, and of his doctrine.

20 Jesus answered him, I spake openly to the world; I ever taught in the synagogue, and in the temple, whither the Jews always resort; and in secret have I said nothing.

21 Why askest thou me? ask them which heard me, what I have said unto them: behold, they know what I said.

22 And when he had thus spoken, one of the officers which stood by struck Jesus ‖ with the palm of his hand, saying, Answerest thou the high priest so?

‖ Or, with a rod.

23 Jesus answered him, If I have spoken evil, bear witness of the evil: but if well, why smitest thou me?

[f] Matt. 26. 57.

24 [f] Now Annas had sent him bound unto Caiaphas the high priest.

25 And Simon Peter stood and warmed himself. [g] They said therefore unto him, Art not thou also one of his disciples? He denied it, and said I am not.

Anno DOMINI 33.

[g] Matt. 26. 69.

26 One of the servants of the high priest, being his kinsman whose ear Peter cut off, saith, Did not I see thee in the garden with him?

27 Peter then denied again: and immediately the cock crew.

28 ¶ [h] Then led they Jesus from Caiaphas unto ‖ the hall of judgment: and it was early; [i] and they themselves went not into the judgment hall, lest they should be defiled; but that they might eat the passover.

[h] Matt. 27. 2.

‖ Or, Pilate's house.

[i] Acts 10. 28.

29 Pilate then went out unto them, and said, What accusation bring ye against this man?

30 They answered and said unto him, If he were not a malefactor, we would not have delivered him up unto thee.

31 Then said Pilate unto them, Take ye him, and judge him according to your law. The Jews therefore said unto him, It is not lawful for us to put any man to death:

32 [k] That the saying of Jesus might be fulfilled, which he spake, signifying what death he should die.

[k] Matt. 20. 19.

33 [l] Then Pilate entered into the judgment hall again, and called Jesus, and said unto him, Art thou the King of the Jews?

[l] Matt. 27. 11.

34 Jesus answered him, Sayest thou this thing of thyself, or did others tell it thee of me?

35 Pilate answered, Am I a Jew? Thine own nation and the chief priests have delivered thee unto me: what hast thou done?

36 Jesus answered, My kingdom is not

---

15. — so did another disciple:] By some supposed to be St. John himself, (Dr. Hammond,) by others thought rather to be some inhabitant of Jerusalem. Grotius.

16. — her that kept the door,] It was customary with the Hebrews to have female doorkeepers. Grotius.

18. — for it was cold:] Even snow and frost have been known to take place in Judea about the season of the passover. Biddulph, the English traveller, speaks of heavy cold dews which sometimes chilled the air at that season of the year: and it was now the middle of the night. Dr. Lightfoot.

Bp. Pococke also mentions that, in the night of the 8th of May, a time of year much later than the passover, when he was entertained by the Sheikh of Sephourg, a place in Galilee, a fire was made for them to sit by, in a small ruined building. Harmer.

23. — If I have spoken evil,] If there is any evil in the speech which I have now uttered, accuse Me and prove it: but if not, why dost thou smite Me? Dr. Hammond.

28. Then] "When the morning was come," Matt. xxvii. 1; Mark xv. 1. Dr. Trapp.

—— lest they should be defiled;] The prætor's hall was full of Roman soldiers; and a legal pollution was contracted by the Jews, from their presence even among Gentiles, especially on occasions of peculiar purity, as was the passover, Acts x. 28; xi. 3. Dr. Hammond.

They would not go into the hall, lest, by mixing with heathens, they might be defiled and unfit to eat of the paschal sacrifices: they did not reflect how much more they were defiled by the bloody purpose in which they were engaged. Bp. Mann.

31. — It is not lawful for us &c.] It is supposed that the power of life and death was taken from the Jews at the time when, on the banishment of Archelaus, Judea was reduced to a Roman province, and a Roman governour was placed over the inhabitants of Judea, under the title of procurator, subordinate to the government of Syria. Bp. Pearce.

32. — signifying what death he should die.] He had signified, chap. iii. 14; xii. 32, that He should die upon the cross, which was not a Jewish but a Roman punishment. Bp. Mann.

34. — Sayest thou this thing of thyself, &c.] Dost thou make this inquiry of thyself from a desire to know the truth, or did others lay it to My charge as a crime, that I profess Myself the Messiah their King? Dr. Whitby.

35. — Am I a Jew?] That I should think of asking such a question? Meaning the question, whether He was "the King of the Jews," the expected Messiah.

36. — My kingdom is not of this world:] Most true it is that I am a King, but My kingdom is not of this world, and not to be propagated by force of arms. Dr. Whitby.

Anno DOMINI 33.

of this world: if my kingdom were of this world, then would my servants fight, that I should not be delivered to the Jews: but now is my kingdom not from hence.

37 Pilate therefore said unto him, Art thou a king then? Jesus answered, Thou sayest that I am a king. To this end was I born, and for this cause came I into the world, that I should bear witness unto the truth. Every one that is of the truth heareth my voice.

38 Pilate saith unto him, What is truth? And when he had said this, he went out again unto the Jews, and saith unto them, I find in him no fault at all.

[m] Matt. 27. 15. 39 [m] But ye have a custom, that I should release unto you one at the passover: will ye therefore that I release unto you the King of the Jews?

[n] Acts 3. 14. 40 [n] Then cried they all again, saying, Not this man, but Barabbas. Now Barabbas was a robber.

CHAP. XIX.

1 Christ is scourged, crowned with thorns, and beaten. 4 Pilate is desirous to release him, but being overcome with the outrage of the Jews, he delivered him to be crucified. 23 They cast lots for his garments. 26 He commendeth his mother to John. 28 He dieth. 31 His side is pierced. 38 He is buried by Joseph and Nicodemus.

[a] Matt. 27. 26. THEN [a] Pilate therefore took Jesus, and scourged him.

2 And the soldiers platted a crown of thorns, and put it on his head, and they put on him a purple robe, Anno DOMINI 33.

3 And said, Hail, King of the Jews! and they smote him with their hands.

4 Pilate therefore went forth again, and saith unto them, Behold, I bring him forth to you, that ye may know that I find no fault in him.

5 Then came Jesus forth, wearing the crown of thorns, and the purple robe. And Pilate saith unto them, Behold the man!

6 When the chief priests therefore and officers saw him, they cried out, saying, Crucify him, crucify him. Pilate saith unto them, Take ye him, and crucify him: for I find no fault in him.

7 The Jews answered him, We have a law, and by our law he ought to die, because he made himself the Son of God.

8 ¶ When Pilate therefore heard that saying, he was the more afraid;

9 And went again into the judgment hall, and saith unto Jesus, Whence art thou? But Jesus gave him no answer.

10 Then saith Pilate unto him, Speakest thou not unto me? knowest thou not that I have power to crucify thee, and have power to release thee?

11 Jesus answered, Thou couldest have

---

37. — Thou sayest that I am a king.] In the sense that I have told you, I have declared, and do now declare Myself to be a King: for this very end was I born, and for this same purpose came I into the world, that I should bear witness of the truth; and whosoever sincerely loves, and is always ready to embrace, the truth, will hear My testimony and be convinced by it. Dr. S. Clarke. As our Saviour was anointed to the offices of Prophet and High Priest, so He was also anointed to that of "King." While He was yet on earth, He gave laws unto His church for the regulation of the lives and actions of those who should become members of it, Matt. vii. 24, 26. These laws He established with the royal sanction of rewards and punishments, Matt. vii. 19, 21. He settled a ministry for the conduct of His church under Him, John xx. 21—23. He rules in the hearts of the faithful by His Spirit. He has already begun to subdue sin, the devil, and death, and He will hereafter utterly destroy them, 1 Cor. xv. 24—26. He now sits in full power at the right hand of God interceding for us: and, at the end of the world, He will descend from thence with glory, to judge mankind, and so put in execution His promises and threatenings, by infinitely rewarding those who shall be found to have observed His laws, and exceedingly punishing those who shall have broken them, Matt. xxv. 31, &c. Abp. Wake. How worthy of the simplicity of His spirit, and how becoming Himself, was His answer to Pilate on this occasion! I have no kingdom, He says, upon earth, but that which is founded on truth. I am to make no conquest otherwise than by convincing the judgments and consciences of men, and gaining them to the belief of sacred truth, and a submission to it; and every one who is disposed to embrace the truth, will become a subject of My kingdom. Duchal.

38. Pilate saith unto him, What is truth?] What is the truth, of which Thou speakest, ver. 37, that every one that is of the truth heareth Thy voice? Dr. Wall.

—— And when he had said this, he went out &c.] Pilate, satisfied of the innocence of Jesus, waits for no answer to an inquiry, which, in the exercise of his judicial office, did not concern him.

—— I find in him no fault at all.] I cannot find that He has done any thing which is worthy of death. Dr. S. Clarke.

40. — Now Barabbas was a robber.] See note at Matt. xxvii. 16.

Chap. XIX. ver. 1. Then Pilate therefore &c.] See further notes on the contents of this chapter at Matt. xxvii.

6. — Take ye him, and crucify him:] He tells them that, if they were determined to crucify Him, they must do it at their own peril, for that he could not condemn a man without a fault. Dr. Whitby.

7. — by our law he ought to die,] They allude either to the law against false prophets, Deut. xviii. 20, or rather to that against blasphemy, Lev. xxiv. 16. The other Evangelists specially relate that He was charged with blasphemy, for confessing that He was the Son of God. Dr. Whitby.

—— because he made himself the Son of God.] Thus it appears that our Lord suffered death according to the Jewish law, as a blasphemer, because, avowing Himself to be the Son of God, He was clearly understood to represent Himself as equal with God. This sufficiently proves that the Jews understood the title of "the Son of God," in the sense of absolute divinity. Bp. Tomline.

8. — was the more afraid;] Was the more afraid to crucify Him, not knowing who this person might at last appear to be, about whom so many reports were spread, and against whom the Jews argued so inconsistently. Dr. S. Clarke.

11. — Thou couldest have no power &c.] I could easily secure Myself, and thou couldest have no power to hurt Me, were it not My Father's will, that, for great and wise reasons, I should at this time submit to be delivered to you by the envy and malice of the Jews. But, since thus it is, and they urge thee with so much no power at all against me, except it were given thee from above: therefore he that delivered me unto thee hath the greater sin.

Anno DOMINI 33.

12 And from thenceforth Pilate sought to release him: but the Jews cried out, saying, If thou let this man go, thou art not Cesar's friend: whosoever maketh himself a king speaketh against Cesar.

13 ¶ When Pilate therefore heard that saying, he brought Jesus forth, and sat down in the judgment seat in a place that is called the Pavement, but in the Hebrew, Gabbatha.

14 And it was the preparation of the passover, and about the sixth hour: and he saith unto the Jews, Behold your King!

15 But they cried out, Away with him, away with him, crucify him. Pilate saith unto them, Shall I crucify your King? The chief priests answered, We have no king but Cesar.

[b] Matt. 27. 31.

16 [b] Then delivered he him therefore unto them to be crucified. And they took Jesus, and led him away.

17 And he bearing his cross went forth into a place called the place of a skull, which is called in the Hebrew Golgotha:

18 Where they crucified him, and two other with him, on either side one, and Jesus in the midst.

19 ¶ And Pilate wrote a title, and put it on the cross. And the writing was, JESUS OF NAZARETH THE KING OF THE JEWS.

Anno DOMINI 33.

20 This title then read many of the Jews: for the place where Jesus was crucified was nigh to the city: and it was written in Hebrew, and Greek, and Latin.

21 Then said the chief priests of the Jews to Pilate, Write not, The King of the Jews; but that he said, I am King of the Jews.

22 Pilate answered, What I have written I have written.

[c] Matt. 27. 35.

23 ¶ [c] Then the soldiers, when they had crucified Jesus, took his garments, and made four parts, to every soldier a part; and also his coat: now the coat was without seam, ‖ woven from the top throughout.

‖ Or, wrought.

24 They said therefore among themselves, Let us not rend it, but cast lots for it, whose it shall be: that the scripture might be fulfilled, which saith, [d] They parted my raiment among them, and for my vesture they did cast lots. These things therefore the soldiers did.

[d] Ps. 22. 18.

25 ¶ Now there stood by the cross of Jesus his mother, and his mother's sister, Mary the wife of ‖ Cleophas, and Mary Magdalene.

‖ Or, Clopas.

26 When Jesus therefore saw his mother, and the disciple standing by, whom he vehemence to cause Me to be put to death, thy sin in yielding to their importunity is not so great as theirs, who, out of mere malice, and against the greatest means of knowledge, clamour against Me as a malefactor, and urge thee to pass sentence upon Me. Dr. S. Clarke.

---

12. — thou art not Cesar's friend:] This allegation had the greatest effect on Pilate, because, as historians relate, Tiberius Cesar, who was then the Roman emperour, was most jealous of any opposition to his government, and punished with death all political crimes; Pilate therefore durst not venture that any such charge should be laid against him by the Jews. Dr. Whitby.

13. — in the Hebrew, Gabbatha,] In the mixture of Syriack and Chaldee, which was then the common language of the Jews.

14. — the preparation] That is, the day before the sabbath in the passover week, as is explained at Mark xv. 42.

—— and about the sixth hour:] St. Mark, at chap. xv. 25, says, "It was the third hour, and they crucified Him." To explain this seeming difference in the time of the day at which our Lord was crucified, it must be observed, that, amongst the Jews, as the night was divided into four watches, so the day from sunrise to sunset was marked by four principal portions, that of the third, (hour,) the sixth, the ninth, and the twelfth; so that, whatever happened between the third and the sixth hours, however near the conclusion of that division, was reckoned to belong to the third hour. Thus in the case of the crucifixion, St. John mentions that it took place "about the sixth hour," or noon; that is, probably, a short time before it: and this St. Mark calls the third hour, because it was in that portion of the day which was named from the third hour. Bp. Mann, Dr. Hammond.

17. — bearing his cross] See note at Matt. xxvii. 32.

20. — it was written in Hebrew, and Greek, and Latin.] That it was usual about this time to set up publick notices in different languages, is gathered from the account which Josephus gives of an expostulatory message from Titus to the Jews, when the city was almost in his hands, in which he says, Did he not erect pillars with inscriptions on them, in the Greek and in our language? Archdeacon Paley.

21. — Write not, The King of the Jews;] They probably deemed this title an affront to their nation, as it implied that they had such a King. Perhaps Pilate intended it by way of contempt of them, as they had urged him to crucify Jesus, so much against his own inclination. Grotius.

22. — What I have written I have written.] A common mode of expression among the Jews; implying that the thing is done, and cannot be recalled. Dr. Lightfoot.

23. — the soldiers, — took his garments,] The Roman soldiers, being the executioners, had a right to His garments. Grotius.

24. — that the scripture might be &c.] Thus Ps. xxii. 18. was literally fulfilled.

25. — there stood by the cross of Jesus his mother,] She stood in speechless sorrow, paying the last sad duty of natural tenderness to her Divine Son; and now experiencing herself the full accomplishment of Simeon's prediction, delivered in the fulness of joy at His nativity, "Yea, a sword shall pierce through Thy own soul," as it must have done with the keenest edge, when she saw Him set up as a sign or spectacle of publick ignominy, and heard Him spoken against and blasphemed as a false Christ, or false prophet. Dr. Hales.

—— Mary the wife of Cleophas,] The mother of James the Less, Mark xv. 40, whose father was Alpheus or Cleophas, Matt. x. 3. Dr. Whitby.

26. — the disciple — whom he loved,] St. John, the writer of this Gospel.

Anno DOMINI 33.

loved, he saith unto his mother, Woman, behold thy son!

27 Then saith he to the disciple, Behold thy mother! and from that hour that disciple took her unto his own home.

28 ¶ After this, Jesus knowing that all things were now accomplished, [e] that the scripture might be fulfilled, saith, I thirst.

[e] Ps. 69. 21.

29 Now there was set a vessel full of vinegar: and they filled a spunge with vinegar, and put it upon hyssop, and put it to his mouth.

30 When Jesus therefore had received the vinegar, he said, It is finished: and he bowed his head, and gave up the ghost.

31 The Jews therefore, because it was the preparation, that the bodies should not remain upon the cross on the sabbath day, (for that sabbath day was an high day,) besought Pilate that their legs might be broken, and that they might be taken away.

32 Then came the soldiers, and brake the legs of the first, and of the other which was crucified with him.

Anno DOMINI 33.

33 But when they came to Jesus, and saw that he was dead already, they brake not his legs:

34 But one of the soldiers with a spear pierced his side, and forthwith came there-out blood and water.

35 And he that saw it bare record, and his record is true: and he knoweth that he saith true, that ye might believe.

36 For these things were done, [f] that the scripture should be fulfilled, A bone of him shall not be broken.

[f] Numb. 9. 12. Exod. 12. 46. Ps. 34. 20.

37 And again another scripture saith, [g] They shall look on him whom they pierced.

[g] Zech. 12. 10.

38 ¶ [h] And after this Joseph of Arimathea, being a disciple of Jesus, but secretly for fear of the Jews, besought Pilate that he might take away the body of Jesus:

[h] Matt. 27. 57.

—— Woman, behold thy son!] As if He had said, This man, now that thou art deprived of thy Son, shall be to thee instead of a son, and shall cherish and provide for thee. Dr. Lightfoot.

—— behold thy son!] Behold one who will take care of thee as if he were thy son. Dr. Whitby.

27. — Behold thy mother!] These words are few and simple indeed, but full of meaning, easily and equally understood, and obeyed by both; for, from that hour, the disciple took her to his own home, and assuredly treated her with all the respect and tenderness due to such a mother, so recommended. Dr. Hales.

What can be more natural than the incident in the history of the crucifixion here related! Of all the disciples of Jesus, St. John was beloved by Him with a peculiar degree of affection; and, as kindness produces kindness, there can be little doubt that the regard was reciprocal. Whom then should we expect to be attending upon Jesus in His last suffering? Whom but St. John, the friend of His heart? Whom but His mother, whose soul was now pierced through by the sword of sorrow, which Simeon had foretold? Whom but those who had been attached to Him through life, who, having been healed by Him of their infirmities, were impelled by gratitude to minister to Him of their substance, to be attentive to all His wants? These were the persons whom we should have expected to attend His execution; and these were there. To whom would an expiring Son, of the best affections, recommend a poor, and probably a widowed, mother, but to His warmest friend? And this did Jesus. Unmindful of the extremity of His own torture, and anxious to alleviate the burden of her sorrows, and to protect her old age from future want and misery, He said to His beloved disciple, "Behold thy mother!"—and from that hour that disciple took her to his own home. Such instances as these of the conformity of events to our probable expectations, are truly genuine marks of the simplicity and truth of the Gospels, and far outweigh a thousand little objections arising from our ignorance of manners, times, and circumstances, or from our incapacity to comprehend the means used by the Supreme Being, in the moral government of His creatures. Bp. Watson.

28. — knowing that all things were now accomplished,] Considering that all the prophecies, which related to Him, had now been punctually fulfilled, in order to give occasion to the fulfilling of that at Ps. lxix. 21, saith, "I thirst." Dr. Hammond. Thirst always attends continued torture. Abp. Newcome.

29. — put it upon hyssop,] By the word, used by St. Matthew, chap. xxvii. 48, and by St. Mark, chap. xv. 36, and there translated "a reed," the stem of the hyssop seems to be meant. The hyssop is a plant growing on the hills about Jerusalem, with branches spreading on the surface of the ground about a cubit in length. It appears there is a species of it, which grows with a stem or branches not unlike a reed. Rosenmüller.

30. — It is finished:] He says this partly with respect to the prophecies and types, which had all been punctually fulfilled in the person of Him, the true Messiah; but more particularly with reference to the great work of man's redemption, and all that was necessary for reconciling sinners to their offended God, which had been fully and exactly performed by Christ now suffering in their stead. Dean Stanhope. See note at Matt. xxvii. 50.

31. — was an high day,)] Being the sabbath in the passover week. Bp. Mann. It was the day of the offering of the sheaf of firstfruits, and of the people's appearance in the temple, Lev. xxiii. 10, 11; Exod. xxiii. 19. Dr. Lightfoot.

32. — and brake the legs] The punishment of the cross was abolished by Constantine; and, in commending the edict which he published to this effect, a heathen writer notices this very custom of breaking the legs. Archdeacon Paley.

34. — came thereout blood and water.] Among the reasons which induced St. John to assert this fact with so much emphasis, the principal probably was, to shew the reality of Christ's death. For the flowing of the water out of that wound in the side, was an indication of the spear having penetrated the pericardium in which that water was lodged, and on the wounding of which every animal dies immediately. This fact therefore was recorded to obviate the calumnies of the enemies of the truth, who might otherwise pretend that Jesus was taken down from the cross before He was dead, and thence call in question the reality of His resurrection from the dead. West.

35. — he that saw it] St. John, the writer of this Gospel, standing by the cross, ver. 26.

—— that ye might believe.] That all who read this record may be convinced and firmly believe that Jesus really and truly died, and consequently that His rising again was a real and true resurrection from the dead. Dr. S. Clarke.

36, 37. For these things were done, &c.] These circumstances remarkably fulfilled in Him, as the true Paschal Lamb, that which had been expressly commanded in the typical paschal lamb, Exod. xii. 46, that a bone of it should not be broken; and also were an accomplishment of that prophecy of Zechariah, chap. xii. 10, "They shall look on Him whom they have pierced." Dr. S. Clarke. There may also be a reference to the words at Ps. xxxiv. 20. Dr. Lightfoot.

Anno DOMINI 33.

and Pilate gave him leave. He came therefore, and took the body of Jesus.

39 And there came also Nicodemus, which at the first came to Jesus by night, and brought a mixture of myrrh and aloes, about an hundred pound weight.

40 Then took they the body of Jesus, and wound it in linen clothes with the spices, as the manner of the Jews is to bury.

41 Now in the place where he was crucified there was a garden; and in the garden a new sepulchre, wherein was never man yet laid.

42 There laid they Jesus therefore because of the Jews' preparation day; for the sepulchre was nigh at hand.

CHAP. XX.

1 Mary cometh to the sepulchre: 3 so do Peter and John, ignorant of the resurrection. 11 Jesus appeareth to Mary Magdalene, 19 and to his disciples. 24 The incredulity, and confession of Thomas. 30 The scripture is sufficient to salvation.

[a] Matt. 28. 1. Mark 16. 1.

THE [a] first day of the week cometh Mary Magdalene early, when it was yet dark, unto the sepulchre, and seeth the stone taken away from the sepulchre.

2 Then she runneth, and cometh to Simon Peter, and to the [b] other disciple, whom Jesus loved, and saith unto them, They have taken away the Lord out of the sepulchre, and we know not where they have laid him.

[b] Chap. 13. 23. & 21. 20.

3 Peter therefore went forth, and that other disciple, and came to the sepulchre.

4 So they ran both together: and the other disciple did outrun Peter, and came first to the sepulchre.

5 And he stooping down, and looking in, saw the linen clothes lying; yet went he not in.

Anno DOMINI 33.

6 Then cometh Simon Peter following him, and went into the sepulchre, and seeth the linen clothes lie,

7 And the napkin, that was about his head, not lying with the linen clothes, but wrapped together in a place by itself.

8 Then went in also that other disciple, which came first to the sepulchre, and he saw, and believed.

9 For as yet they knew not the scripture, that he must rise again from the dead.

10 Then the disciples went away again unto their own home.

11 ¶ But Mary stood without at the sepulchre weeping: and as she wept, she stooped down, and looked into the sepulchre,

12 And seeth two angels in white sitting, the one at the head, and the other at the feet, where the body of Jesus had lain.

13 And they say unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? She saith unto them, Because they have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid him.

14 And when she had thus said, she turned herself back, and saw Jesus standing, and knew not that it was Jesus.

15 Jesus saith unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? whom seekest thou? She, supposing him to be the gardener, saith unto him, Sir, if thou have borne him hence, tell me where thou hast laid him, and I will take him away.

16 Jesus saith unto her, Mary. She turned herself, and saith unto him, Rabboni; which is to say, Master.

17 Jesus saith unto her, Touch me not;

---

39. — about an hundred pound weight.] According to Josephus, it was the custom of the Jews to employ large quantities of spices for embalming a dead body, when they wished to shew particular respect to the person deceased. Bp. Pearce. Our Lord alludes to this ceremony of His burial at Matt. xxvi. 12. Bp. Mann.

Chap. XX. ver. 1. — cometh Mary Magdalene] With whom were Salome, and Joanna, and Mary the wife of Cleophas. See Matt. xxviii. 1; Mark xvi. 1; Luke xxiv. 10. Bp. Pearce. For this chapter, see further notes at Matt. xxviii; Mark. xvi.

—— the stone taken away] The circumstance of the placing the stone at the door of the sepulchre is not mentioned by St. John, but only by the other Evangelists; which is one among other proofs that he wrote to complete what they had written. Le Clerc.

2. — the other disciple,] St. John.

8. — he saw, and believed.] Believed the report of Mary Magdalene, that the body was taken away, ver. 2. Dr. Campbell. Believed that the body was taken away out of the sepulchre, as Mary Magdalene had said, ver. 2, of which, until then, they doubted. As to His resurrection, ver. 9, they had no expectation of it, although foretold in the Scriptures. Bp. Mann.

9. For as yet they knew not the scripture, &c.] That is, they did not understand from the Prophets, that the Messiah was to rise again from the dead; being, on the contrary, persuaded that these very Prophets had foretold the Messiah should not die, but abide for ever. West.

10. — unto their own home.] To the house where they and the other disciples were used to lodge, or at least to assemble themselves; for, on that evening, Jesus found them assembled together, ver. 19. Bp. Pearce.

11. But Mary stood] Mary Magdalene, to whom, as St. Mark relates, chap. xvi. 9, our Lord first appeared. See ver. 16. Bp. Pearce.

15. — supposing him to be the gardener,] There probably was not sufficient daylight to enable her to see distinctly. Bp. Pearce.

—— I will take him away.] Will carry Him to His grave again, or provide some other buryingplace for Him. Dr. Hammond.

17. — Touch me not; for &c.] Be not solicitous to touch or hold Me now; thou wilt have sufficient time to converse with Me, and be assured of the reality of My resurrection; for I shall not immediately ascend, but shall stay some time with you here on earth. Dr. Whitby. Mary, and the other women who were with her, endeavoured to hold Jesus by the feet, (Matt. xxviii. 9,) fearing probably lest they might lose Him again. But He comforts them by saying, that He should not leave them very soon, but would give them several opportunities of seeing Him before His ascension into heaven. Bp. Mann.

Anno DOMINI 33.

for I am not yet ascended to my Father: but go to my brethren, and say unto them, I ascend unto my Father, and your Father; and to my God, and your God.

18 Mary Magdalene came and told the disciples that she had seen the Lord, and that he had spoken these things unto her.

[e] Mark 16. 14.

19 ¶ [e] Then the same day at evening, being the first day of the week, when the doors were shut where the disciples were assembled for fear of the Jews, came Jesus and stood in the midst, and saith unto them, Peace be unto you.

20 And when he had so said, he shewed unto them his hands and his side. Then were the disciples glad, when they saw the Lord.

21 Then said Jesus to them again, Peace be unto you: as my Father hath sent me, even so send I you.

Anno DOMINI 33.

22 And when he had said this, he breathed on them, and saith unto them, Receive ye the Holy Ghost:

23 [d] Whose soever sins ye remit, they are remitted unto them; and whose soever sins ye retain, they are retained.

[d] Matt. 18. 18.

24 ¶ But Thomas, one of the twelve, called Didymus, was not with them when Jesus came.

25 The other disciples therefore said unto him, We have seen the Lord. But he said unto them, Except I shall see in his hands the print of the nails, and put my ——say unto them, I ascend unto my Father, &c.] These words, "I ascend" &c. plainly refer to a conversation He had with them before He was betrayed, in which He told them He should go to His Father, &c. By these words, therefore, they were not only reminded of another prediction of His, but were called upon to expect the great things which were to be the consequence of His going to the Father; namely, the coming of the Comforter, a power of working miracles, and, what would be an earnest of all these things, the joy of seeing Him again; all which He had promised them in the conversation alluded to in this message, John xiv. West.

Or the words may be considered as relating to our Lord's promise, that He would not leave them comfortless, and that He would send them another Comforter. Mary's mind was perhaps intent on this promise, when she fell at His feet: on which He said, I must first ascend to My Father before I can bestow upon you these things which I have promised; do not therefore now touch Me and detain Me, from any expectation of that kind; but wait rather for My ascension, and go and tell the same things to My brethren for their encouragement. Dr. Lightfoot.

19.—Peace be unto you.] An usual form of salutation.

20.—shewed unto them his hands and his side.] To convince them that it was His very person, and His real human body, which they saw. See Luke xxiv. 37—40. Dean Stanhope.

21.—so send I you.] Not only to preach in My name, as I did in His; but, as He anointed Me to My office by baptizing Me with the Holy Ghost, Luke iv. 18; John x. 36; so will I baptize you also with the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven, Luke xxiv. 49; and thus anoint you to your office, 2 Cor. i. 21, 22; in testimony of this, I now say unto you, ver. 22, "Receive ye the Holy Ghost," and will soon after My ascension send Him more plentifully upon you. Dr. Whitby.

Our Lord here invests the Apostles with as ample powers of preaching the Gospel themselves, and commissioning others so to do, as He Himself had been entrusted with by God the Father. Dr. Nicholl.

When our Lord says that He sends the Apostles "as the Father had sent Him," He must be understood to mean, that He sends them with the same design with which He Himself came, that of doing the work, and seeking the honour of Him that sent Him; that of propagating and establishing the kingdom of the Messiah, by faith in His blessed Gospel: also, that He sends them with the same authority, so far as was necessary for compassing that design; and with the same assurances of love, protection, and gracious assistance, engaging to grant success to their labours and protection to their persons, in the same manner as the Father had done to Him. Dean Stanhope.

The original of the commission by which the ministers of different orders in the Church exercise their office in the Church, is derived from God the Father, by whom our Lord was sent into the world, to mediate between God and man, as Himself also witnesseth. "As Thou hast sent Me into the world," saith He to the Father, "even so have I also sent them into the world," John xvii. 18. And to His Apostles, "As My Father hath sent Me, even so send I you." So that the whole power of erecting the Christian Church, and of governing it since it was erected, is derived from the Father. But the Person, by whom this power is immediately conferred, is the Holy Spirit. He it was, by whose anointing our Lord was invested with the mediatorial office: so that, though Christ as God has the same nature with the Father and the Holy Spirit, yet as man, and Mediator of the New Covenant, He receives His office and power from the Holy Spirit's operation and influence. And the authority and special grace, whereby the Apostles and all Church officers execute their respective functions, are in the same manner ascribed to the Spirit. This is expressed in the very form of the Apostles' ordination here, where the authority to remit and retain sins is made a consequence of their receiving the Holy Ghost. Abp. Potter.

22.—Receive ye the Holy Ghost:] He now gave them the Spirit, though the full effusion of it was reserved for the day of Pentecost. Abp. Newcome.

23. Whose soever sins ye remit, &c.] That is, whosoever embraces your doctrine and truly repents; when ye thereupon, in My name and by My authority, remit his sins, your sentence of absolution shall be ratified and confirmed in heaven; and whosoever either obstinately rejects your doctrine, or disobeys and behaves himself unworthily under it, his sins shall not be forgiven; but the censures ye pass upon him on earth, shall be confirmed in heaven. Dr. S. Clarke.

The ministerial office is of so high a nature that nothing but a Divine commission can qualify any person for the execution of it. The ministers of religion are to publish the laws of God, to pass His pardons, and to preside in His worship. God hath committed to them the keys of the kingdom of heaven; and "whose soever sins they remit, they are remitted; and whose soever sins they retain, they are retained." They are the stewards of the mysteries of God, and the dispensers of His holy word and sacraments; and on their ministration, the assistances of the Holy Spirit and all the graces of a good life depend. All these characters are ascribed to them in Scripture; and consequently do sufficiently demonstrate the dignity of their office, and are a plain argument that none but God Himself can give them their commission. Wheatley.

24.—Thomas,—called Didymus,] Called Thomas among the Hebrews, and Didymus among the Greeks. Dr. Lightfoot.

25.—Except I shall see &c.—I will not believe.] It is no wrong to the virtues of the Apostle St. Thomas, to say that his slowness to believe, in the instance before us, discovered weakness to a very high degree, and a hardness to be persuaded; which, in an Apostle especially, must deserve considerable blame. But, in contemplating his conduct on this occasion, we should consider what benefits are to be derived from the faults and failings of such eminent persons. When the Evangelists so freely transmit to all future ages such blots, as the denial of St. Peter, the unbelief of finger into the print of the nails, and thrust my hand into his side, I will not believe.

Anno DOMINI 33.

26 ¶ And after eight days again his disciples were within, and Thomas with them: then came Jesus, the doors being shut, and stood in the midst, and said, Peace be unto you.

27 Then saith he to Thomas, Reach hither thy finger, and behold my hands; and reach hither thy hand, and thrust it into my side: and be not faithless, but believing.

Anno DOMINI 33.

28 And Thomas answered and said unto him, My Lord and my God.

29 Jesus saith unto him, Thomas, because thou hast seen me, thou hast believed: blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed.

St. Thomas, the fears, cowardice, and heaviness, of all their brethren; we must be fully satisfied that they were men of integrity, that they had not the slightest design of magnifying themselves or imposing on the world, and that their only object was to speak the very truth. Again, while this consideration should impress upon us the general frailty and imperfection of our nature, it should inspire us with great tenderness and caution, how we presume to judge and censure others; above all, how we presume to determine any thing concerning their spiritual and future state, on account of any evil actions which they have committed. If Prophets, if Apostles, if other shining lights, who are now so many suns in the kingdom of heaven, have had these misfortunes; and yet, by the grace of God and their own better consideration, have recovered their station, and come forth, like the morning light, with double lustre, after darkness and errour; who are we that we should set bounds to the grace of God, or despair even of the worst of our brethren? Dean Stanhope.

——I will not believe.] The backwardness of believing, in some of the Apostles and disciples, added to the evidences afforded of our Lord's resurrection, and ministered occasion for several most undeniable proofs. As these disciples were to be the attestors of this event to all the world, it was of great concern to know on what convictions they embraced the truth. And we find, indeed, that they proceeded so warily as to doubt every circumstance; that they were resolved not to believe till there was no pretence left for doubting any longer; and received nothing till it had been most critically inquired into. More than this we cannot have; more we cannot ask in any witness than judgment, care, and integrity; and all these attested by the seal of the Holy Ghost, the gift of miracles from heaven. Thus, upon all accounts, the delays and doubtings of the Apostles were of mighty advantage to this doctrine of the resurrection. They gave occasion for more convincing and sensible proofs of it to themselves; and they rendered them more competent and credible attestors of it to others. Dean Stanhope.

26.—after eight days] Thus the Jews express a week. As our Lord had risen and appeared to the Apostles on the first day of the week, they seem thus early to have devoted that day peculiarly to His solemn worship, Acts xx. 7; 1 Cor. xvi. 2. Dr. Hammond, Grotius.

——the doors being shut,] "For fear of the Jews," as at ver. 19. Dr. Lightfoot.

27.—Reach hither thy finger, &c.] Let us observe and admire the marvellous love and condescension of our blessed Saviour, who thus stooped to the infirmities of the doubting disciple, and would not give him over to his unbelief, though that unbelief was most unreasonable. He had already convinced the other Apostles sufficiently of His resurrection; and their testimony ought to have convinced St. Thomas, as in aftertimes his testimony convinced those who believed through his preaching. It is a most unreasonable demand to have the senses satisfied in every article of faith; and therefore there was sufficient cause to deny St. Thomas that satisfaction which he requested. But yet we see this good Shepherd sought and found His lost and wandering sheep, and by so doing He hath assured us that it is not His will that any of His little ones should perish. Dean Stanhope.

28.—My Lord and my God.] I acknowledge that Thou art my very Lord and Master; and that this is an evidence to me, that Thou art the Almighty God of heaven. Dr. Hammond.

It should be observed, that our Saviour does not censure St. Thomas, when he, on being convinced of His resurrection, exclaims, "My Lord and my God." By allowing Himself, therefore, to be called God, He admits that the name was justly applied to Him. Bp. Tomline.

The means employed by our Lord to remove the unbelief of St. Thomas, drew from him this noble confession; in which he not only acknowledged Jesus to be the Messiah, the very same Lord to whom he had been a servant and companion during His ministry, but he moreover owned His Divine nature, and drew the consequence to himself, which St. Paul did afterwards to the Romans, (Rom. i. 4,) that the resurrection of Jesus from the dead, and the power He exerted in it, did abundantly declare Him to be the very Son of God. So mighty a change do we find in this Apostle, that he now adores and admires as the almighty and everliving God, Him whom he could not be prevailed upon, so lately, to believe to be any other than a deceased and merely human being. Dean Stanhope.

This is the most signal and important confession of faith in Christ to be found in the Gospels. It clearly and distinctly recognizes His proper sovereignty and Divinity, as our immediate Lord or Governour, Ps. xxii. 28; and our future Judge or mighty God. Dr. Hales.

29.—because thou hast seen me,] Thy faith would have been more excellent, if, without such demonstrative evidence, thou hadst believed; and such is their faith, who have believed without it. Dr. Hammond.

Jesus, in whom dignity and mildness were mixed in the most accurate proportion, spares His convert the additional confusion of a reproof; but gives him instruction, suitable to the occasion, necessary for himself, and useful to all the world ever after; that no great virtue could be shewn by the mere admission of evidence which could scarcely be resisted, and consequently that no great recompense could be expected for it; but that the preserving a mind, open to embrace, and careful to seek after, such lower degrees of evidence, and less obvious kinds of it as our heavenly Father may think fit to bestow, is giving a valuable proof of upright intention, and making a considerable step towards the attainment of distinguished happiness hereafter. Abp. Secker.

——blessed are they that have not seen, and yet &c.] These words are plainly comparative, expressing the greater blessedness of those who with less light find the way of truth, and with fewer helps and assistances do what is right. Yet it is very evident this is to be understood only of those who in all other respects are in like circumstances, and of whom are required the like instances of duty. It is not meant, that all who have believed without seeing, have on the whole the advantage over those who have believed on the evidence of sight; but, so far only as their circumstances are in other respects equal, is the blessedness greater of those who have believed without seeing. Dr. S. Clarke. The Divine wisdom saw it expedient to suffer the Apostles to doubt, for the greater confirmation of the faith. And He managed those doubts so, that no circumstance should be wanting at last to prove His resurrection. Though He let them in to those proofs by degrees as they were able to bear them, yet He did it so artificially that every fresh instance confirmed, and added something to, those that went before. The empty sepulchre confirmed the women's report; Christ's appearance to Mary Magdalene shewed He was alive; that to the disciples at Emmaus proved that it was at least the Spirit of Christ, by expounding the prophecies and breaking of bread; that to the eleven shewed the reality of His body; the conviction given to St. Thomas, proved it the selfsame body that had been crucified; and that miracle of the fishes,

Anno DOMINI 33.

30 ¶ [e] And many other signs truly did Jesus in the presence of his disciples, which are not written in this book:

[e] Chap. 21. 25.

31 But these are written, that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God; and that believing ye might have life through his name.

CHAP. XXI.

1 Christ appearing again to his disciples was known of them by the great draught of fishes. 12 He dineth with them: 15 earnestly commandeth Peter to feed his lambs and sheep: 18 foretelleth him of his death: 22 rebuketh his curiosity touching John. 25 The conclusion.

AFTER these things Jesus shewed himself again to the disciples at the sea of Tiberias; and on this wise shewed he himself.

2 There were together Simon Peter, and Thomas called Didymus, and Nathanael of Cana in Galilee, and the sons of Zebedee, and two other of his disciples.

3 Simon Peter saith unto them, I go a fishing. They say unto him, We also go with thee. They went forth, and entered into a ship immediately; and that night they caught nothing.

4 But when the morning was now come, Jesus stood on the shore: but the disciples knew not that it was Jesus.

‖ Or, Sirs.

5 Then Jesus saith unto them, ‖ Children, have ye any meat? They answered him, No.

6 And he said unto them, Cast the net on the right side of the ship, and ye shall find. They cast therefore, and now they were not able to draw it for the multitude of fishes.

Anno DOMINI 33.

7 Therefore that disciple whom Jesus loved saith unto Peter, It is the Lord. Now when Simon Peter heard that it was the Lord, he girt his fisher's coat unto him, (for he was naked,) and did cast himself into the sea.

8 And the other disciples came in a little ship; (for they were not far from land, but as it were two hundred cubits,) dragging the net with fishes.

9 As soon then as they were come to land, they saw a fire of coals there, and fish laid thereon, and bread.

10 Jesus saith unto them, Bring of the fish which ye have now caught.

11 Simon Peter went up, and drew the net to land full of great fishes, an hundred and fifty and three: and for all there were so many, yet was not the net broken.

12 Jesus saith unto them, Come and dine. And none of the disciples durst ask him, Who art thou? knowing that it was the Lord.

13 Jesus then cometh, and taketh bread, and giveth them, and fish likewise.

14 This is now the third time that Jesus

(John xxi. 6,) argued the same Divine nature, still united to the same body. So that, though there were many proofs, yet none of them was superfluous. Every one hath something new, and peculiarly its own; and altogether are a demonstration so full and satisfactory of the same Christ, the same God and man in one person, returned from the dead, that we have great reason to praise God for suffering the disciples to doubt so much and so long; since by their not believing "because they had seen," there is the greater assurance afforded to us, "who have not seen, and yet have believed." Dean Stanhope.

The resurrection of our Lord was the accomplishment both of the ancient prophecies and of His own prediction; a declaration on the part of God, that the great atonement was accepted; an attestation to the truth of His doctrines, and of His high pretensions; a confirmation of the hopes of His followers, which renders it no less unreasonable to doubt of the ultimate completion of His largest promises, than it would have been to entertain any hopes, if His promises had actually been found to fail in so important an instance. We have reason therefore to be thankful, that, in the first preaching of the Gospel, Providence ordained that a fact of such importance should be accompanied with irresistible evidence. Bp. Horsley.

Chap. XXI. ver. 1. —at the sea of Tiberias;] In Galilee, where He had promised, Matt. xxviii. 10, that they should see Him.

2. —and two other of his disciples.] Perhaps two of the inferiour disciples, among the number of the seventy. Grotius. Or they may have been St. Philip and St. Andrew. Dr. Lightfoot.

3. —I go a fishing.] Want of occupation was disreputable among the Jews; and probably the Apostles were obliged, now that their Master was departed, to have recourse to their trades, as a means of livelihood. Grotius.

5. Then Jesus saith unto them, Children, &c.] Our Lord addresses them as His children, and speaks to them with affection and authority, as a Father and a Master, giving them cause to suspect that He was no ordinary person, though unknown, and to make them the more ready to obey His orders. Dr. Jortin.

7. —saith unto Peter, It is the Lord.] He had good reason so to think, both on account of the miraculous draught, and because Christ had wrought the very same miracle once before in behalf of him and of some of the disciples now present. See Luke v. 4—9. Dr. Jortin.

—— (for he was naked,) and did cast &c.] The expression "naked" was applied to the Jews when they had on them only their inner garment. See the note on Job xxii. 6. St. Peter cast himself into the sea, from impatience and eagerness to go to Christ as soon as possible. Bp. Mann. It is probable that, on account of the shallowness of the water, the vessel could not be drawn close to the shore.

11. —full of great fishes,] Modern travellers have found that the sea of Tiberias abounds in fish, some of them very large. Harmer.

12. —and dine.] The word here used applies to the morning meal: the Apostles had been fishing during the night, and it was now morning, ver. 3, 4. Grotius.

—— And none of the disciples durst ask him,] None of them dared to ask Him, well knowing, both by the miracle and by His whole behaviour, that it could be no other than Jesus. Dr. S. Clarke.

14. —the third time that Jesus shewed himself] The third time that He shewed Himself to the disciples collectively; the two former instances being related by St. John at chap. xx. 19, 26. These are all the appearances after His resurrection which St. John has recorded. Dr. Lightfoot, Bp. Pearce.

Anno DOMINI 33.

shewed himself to his disciples, after that he was risen from the dead.

15 ¶ So when they had dined, Jesus saith to Simon Peter, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me more than these? He saith unto him, Yea, Lord; thou knowest that I love thee. He saith unto him, Feed my lambs.

16 He saith to him again the second time, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me? He saith unto him, Yea, Lord; thou knowest that I love thee. He saith unto him, Feed my sheep.

17 He saith unto him the third time, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me? Peter was grieved because he said unto him the third time, Lovest thou me? And he said unto him, Lord, thou knowest all things; thou knowest that I love thee. Jesus saith unto him, Feed my sheep.

18 Verily, verily, I say unto thee, When thou wast young, thou girdedst thyself, and walkedst whither thou wouldest: but when thou shalt be old, thou shalt stretch forth thy hands, and another shall gird thee, and carry thee whither thou wouldest not.

Anno DOMINI 33.

19 This spake he, signifying by what death he should glorify God. And when he had spoken this, he saith unto him, Follow me.

20 Then Peter, turning about, seeth the disciple [a] whom Jesus loved following; which also leaned on his breast at supper, and said, Lord, which is he that betrayeth thee?

[a] Chap. 13. 23. & 20. 2.

21 Peter seeing him saith to Jesus, Lord, and what shall this man do?

22 Jesus saith unto him, If I will that he tarry till I come, what is that to thee? follow thou me.

23 Then went this saying abroad among the brethren, that that disciple should not die: yet Jesus said not unto him, He shall

---

15. —lovest thou me more than these?] More than these My disciples do, who are here present. Christ's words may thus be interpreted—Thou didst say to Me, on the night when I was betrayed, Although all Thy disciples should forsake Thee, yet will not I; I will live and die with Thee: which was in effect to pretend that thou didst love Me more than they; and now thou hast hastened before them all to come to Me through the sea; I ask thee therefore, Dost thou indeed love Me more than these My disciples love Me? Dr. Jortin.

—— thou knowest that I love thee.] He would not presume to say, I love Thee more than these, for he remembered his own former weakness; but he affirmed that he did indeed sincerely love Christ. Dr. Jortin.

16. —Feed my sheep.] Express thy love to Me by thy care of the flock committed to thy charge. Dr. S. Clarke.

Some persons have argued from these words of our Saviour, in favour of the supremacy of St. Peter above the rest of the Apostles. But such an opinion is altogether groundless. For, if our Lord used these words with a view of commanding St. Peter to feed all His sheep and lambs without any exception, it is certain that he was wanting in his duty, for he never exercised any acts of supremacy over the rest of the Apostles; on the contrary, when sent by them, he obeyed, Acts viii. 14; and, when reproved by St. Paul, he held his peace; and was so far from feeding all the sheep of Christ, that he never fed any of the province of St. Paul. Dr. Whitby.

17. —Peter was grieved because he said unto him the third time, &c.] He was grieved at this threefold repetition, which looked as if Christ distrusted his sincerity, or foresaw his falling once more from his duty; and therefore he now answered with greater fervency. Our Lord here conveyed a rebuke for his threefold denial of his Master, and St. Peter could not fail so to understand it; but, though he was disquieted and afflicted at it, yet he saw plainly that it was not the angry upbraiding of an offended Master, who intended to take a final leave of an old servant, and to employ him no more; but that it was a most gentle, indirect reprimand, mixed with much tenderness and kindness, and a sure indication that his fall was forgiven him, and that he was reinstated in full favour and trust, since Christ not only thus inquired into the sincerity of his love, but laid upon him a threefold command to feed His flock. Dr. Jortin.

18. —When thou wast young,] Now when thou art young; that is, active, and comparatively not old. There is an allusion to what had just happened in St. Peter's eagerness to come to our Saviour, and girding himself to walk through the sea. Grotius.

—— thou shalt stretch forth thy hands, &c.] Thou shalt be girt and bound against thy will, and with thy hands stretched out shalt be fastened to the cross. This, accordingly, happened to St. Peter a short time before the destruction of Jerusalem, and above thirty years after the time when this was spoken, in the reign of Nero. Bp. Mann.

19. —by what death he should glorify God.] Should finally suffer martyrdom for the glory of God, and for a testimony of the truth of the religion of Christ. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— Follow me.] That is, thou shalt follow Me in sufferings, as before thou didst in discipleship. Dr. Hammond.

20. —seeth the disciple whom &c.] Meaning St. John himself.

22. —If I will that he tarry &c.] Jesus did not think fit to satisfy St. Peter's curiosity by a direct answer, but returned an answer which restrained it by commanding him to look well to the discharge of his own duty, without troubling himself respecting the fate of others, which was no part of his concern. Dean Stanhope.

—— till I come,] Meaning, till I come to destroy the city and nation of the Jews. Dr. Lightfoot.

—— what is that to thee? follow thou me.] As if He had said, Instead of busying thyself in those inquiries which are beyond thy sphere, and do not belong to thee, obey My precepts and imitate My example, and then thou wilt be sure of doing right, for thy whole duty consists in this, and in nothing else. Dean Tucker.

The inquiry of St. Peter was innocent, and there is no reason to suppose that our Lord was angry with him for making it, but He was willing to take this opportunity, according to His custom on other occasions, of inculcating on St. Peter his own duty, and of discouraging needless curiosity about the affairs of other men. What was innocent in St. Peter in the present case, and may in numberless instances be innocent in any man, is yet a matter which may grow into a vice, and, by becoming a habit, may lead to things very detrimental to a right temper and disposition of mind. Dr. S. Clarke.

23. Then went this saying &c.] From this ambiguous manner of our Lord's expressing Himself, some of the disciples imagined that St. John would never die, but be found among those that would be alive at Christ's second coming. See 1 Cor. xv. 51, 52; 1 Thess. iv. 17. Whereas the real meaning of His words is, that this disciple would survive the destruction of Jerusalem, which in various passages of Scripture is called the coming of our Lord, being a most eminent judgment and evidence of His truth and power. See Matt. xxiv. 27, 37. Dean Stanhope.

St. John, living till the reign of Trajan, survived "the coming of Christ" at the destruction of Jerusalem thirty years. Dr. Hammond.

Anno DOMINI 33. not die; but, If I will that he tarry till I come, what is that to thee?

24 This is the disciple which testifieth of these things, and wrote these things: and we know that his testimony is true.

25 [b] And there are also many other things which Jesus did, the which, if they should be written every one, I suppose that even the world itself could not contain the books that should be written. Amen.

Anno DOMINI 33.

[b] Chap. 20. 30.

24. This is the disciple &c.] The disciple, respecting whom this was spoken, is the writer of this present history, and his testimony is certainly and infallibly true, so that whatever is herein related is undoubtedly to be believed. Dr. S. Clarke.

This (meaning himself) is the disciple who testifies of these things, and wrote them. And we all know that such testimony obtains in all judgments whatever, for he was an eyewitness, and saw what he testifies. Dr. Lightfoot.

25. — there are also many other things] It would be impossible to record every particular incident of our Saviour's life, nor is it necessary; the matters which are here recorded being sufficient for our instruction, and being certainly and undoubtedly true, are most worthy of our entire belief. Bp. Mann. That is truly perfect which is sufficiently fitted for its end. All our Saviour's miracles and discourses are not recorded in the Gospels, but so much is delivered down to us, as is amply sufficient for our faith and practice. Dean Stanhope.

—— even the world itself could not contain] This is a strong figurative expression, agreeable to Eastern modes of speech, signifying the great number of miracles which Jesus wrought. Bp. Pearce.

—— Amen.] This is a reverential attestation of the truth and importance of the contents of this book. Bp. Mann.

The accounts of our Lord's resurrection given by the different Evangelists are substantially the same, though differing in a few minute occurrences of no moment, which have been ably reconciled by learned men. His several appearances after His resurrection to different persons and at different times, which we find recorded, are the following. The first to Mary Magdalene alone, Mark xvi. 9. The second to her in company with several other women, Matt. xxviii. 9. The third to St. Peter, 1 Cor. xv. 5. The fourth to the two disciples going to Emmaus, Luke xxiv. 13. The fifth to the Apostles at Jerusalem, when they were assembled with the doors shut on the first day of the week; at which time He shewed them His hands and His feet, pierced with the nails, and did eat before them, John xx. 19; Luke xxiv. 37—43. The sixth to the Apostles a second time as they sat at meat, when He satisfied the doubts of the incredulous St. Thomas, by making him thrust his hand into His side, John xx. 26. The seventh to St. Peter and several of His disciples at the lake of Tiberias, when He also ate with them, John xxi. 1. The eighth and last was to above five hundred brethren at once, 1 Cor. xv. 6.

There are then no less than eight distinct appearances of our Lord to His disciples after His resurrection, recorded by the sacred historians. In regard to these, it is quite impossible that there should have been any delusion or imposition, and that all those different persons could be deceived in these appearances of One, with whose countenance, figure, voice, and manner, they had for so long a time been perfectly well acquainted, and who now, not merely presented Himself to their view transiently and silently, but ate and drank and conversed with them, and suffered them to touch Him and examine Him thoroughly, that they might be convinced by all their senses, that it was truly their beloved Master, and not a spirit, that conversed with them. It is quite impossible that the disciples should have invented a tale to impose upon others, because it would have been an imposition, not only on others, but on themselves. It would have been an attempt to persuade themselves that their Master was risen when He really was not, from whence no possible benefit could arise to them, but, on the contrary, grief, disappointment, and mortification in the extreme. But besides this, the narratives themselves of this great event bear upon the very face of them the strongest marks of reality and truth. They describe, in so natural a manner, the various emotions of the disciples on their first hearing of our Lord's resurrection, that no one, who is acquainted with the genuine workings of the human mind, can possibly suspect any thing like fraud in the case. When the women were first told by the angels that Christ was risen, and were ordered to tell the disciples, they departed quickly from the sepulchre, "with fear and great joy," Matt. xxviii. 8; with joy at the unexpected good news they had just heard; and with reverential fear at the presence of the angel. They therefore "trembled and were amazed:" and ran to bring the disciples word; "neither said they any thing to any man; for they were afraid," Mark xvi. 8. And when they had told these things to the Apostles, "their words seemed to them as idle tales, and they believed them not," Luke xxiv. 11. When Jesus Himself appeared to the Apostles at Jerusalem, "they were terrified and affrighted, and supposed that they had seen a spirit; and they believed not for joy, and wondered," Luke xxiv. 37, 41. When He appeared again unto the eleven as they sat at meat, they were so incredulous that He upbraided them with their unbelief, Mark xvi. 14. And St. Thomas would not be convinced without thrusting his hand into His side, John xx. 27. This certainly was not the behaviour of men who were fabricating an artful story to impose upon the world, but of men who were themselves astonished, and overpowered with an event which they did not in the least expect, and which it was with the utmost difficulty they could be brought to believe. Bp. Porteus.

General Reflections on the Gospel, the Character of our Lord, &c.

In the history of our Lord, given by the Evangelists, such a scene has been presented to our observation, as cannot but have excited sensations of a very serious and very awful nature in our minds. We cannot but have seen that the Divine Author of our religion is, beyond comparison, the most extraordinary, and most important Personage, that ever appeared on this habitable globe. His birth, His life, His doctrines, His precepts, His miracles, His sufferings, His death, His resurrection, His ascension, are all without a parallel in the history of mankind. He called Himself the Son of God, the Messiah predicted in the Prophets, the great Redeemer and Deliverer of mankind, promised in the sacred writings, through successive ages, almost from the foundation of the world. He supported these great characters with uniformity, with consistence, and with dignity, throughout the whole course of His ministry. The work He undertook was the greatest and most astonishing that can be conceived, and such as never before entered into the imagination of man. It was nothing less than the conversion of a whole world from the grossest ignorance, the most abandoned wickedness, and the most sottish idolatry, to the knowledge of the true God, to a pure and holy religion, and to faith in Him, who was the way, the truth, and the life. He proved Himself to have a commission from heaven, for those great purposes, by such demonstrations of Divine wisdom, power, and goodness, as it is impossible for any fair, and ingenuous, and unprejudiced mind, to resist. When all these circumstances are collected into one point of view, they present such a body of evidence, as must overpower by its weight all the trivial difficulties and objections that the wit of man can devise against the Divine authority of the Gospel. Let us consider, in the first place, the transcendent excellence of our Lord's character, so infinitely beyond that of every other moral teacher; the gentleness, the calmness, the composure, the dignity, the integrity, the spotless sanctity of His manners, so utterly inconsistent with every idea of enthusiasm or imposture; the compassion, the kindness, the tenderness He expressed for the whole human race, even for the worst of sinners, and the bitterest of His enemies; the perfect command He had over His own passions; the temper He preserved under the severest provocations; the patience, the meekness, with which He endured the most cruel insults, and the grossest indignities; the fortitude He displayed under the most excruciating torments; the sublimity and importance of His doctrines; the consummate wisdom and purity of His moral precepts, far exceeding the natural powers of a man born in the humblest situation, and in a remote and obscure corner of the world, without learning, education, languages, or books. Let us consider, further, the minute description of all the most material circumstances of His birth, life, sufferings, death, and resurrection, given by the ancient Prophets many hundred years before He was born, and exactly fulfilled in Him, and Him only; the many astonishing miracles wrought by Him in the open face of day, before thousands of spectators, the reality of which is proved by multitudes of the most unexceptionable witnesses, who sealed their testimony with their blood, and was even acknowledged by the earliest and most inveterate enemies of the Gospel. Above all, let us consider those two most remarkable occurrences in the history of our Lord, which are alone sufficient to establish the divinity of His person, and of His religion; I mean His wonderful prediction of the destruction of Jerusalem by the Romans, with every minute circumstance attending it; and that astonishing and well authenticated miracle of His resurrection. When we lay all these things together, and weigh them deliberately and impartially, our minds must be formed in a very peculiar manner indeed, if they are not most thoroughly impressed with faith in the Son of God, and the Gospel which He taught. Bp. Porteus.

We cannot but observe in our Saviour's general demeanour a surprising mixture of humility and greatness, dignity and self-abasement, both of which were equally instructive in their turns. Sometimes we find Him solemnly asserting His divinity, at others the meekest and the lowest of the sons of men: sometimes reminding His followers that He could command legions of angels, were it necessary; at other times apprizing them that He should be more destitute of common conveniences, than even the beasts of the field, or birds of the air; now telling them, that a greater than Solomon is amongst them, now washing His disciples' feet: conscious of His own power and just prerogative, yet all submission to the powers in being; complying with their laws and institutions, however hazardous or inconvenient to Him; and paying their demands to the uttermost, though at the expense of a miracle: on some occasions publishing the character and office which He bore; on others, carefully concealing them, in order to prevent the hasty misconstruction of His friends, to guard against the inveterate malice of His foes, and gain sufficient time to fix a good foundation for the faith of all. None was more industrious and zealous in the cause of God; none more indifferent and resigned in His own; He patiently endures the affronts and outrage to His person, and the frequent insults on His reputation, and intercedes for the forgiveness of His murderers; yet when His Father's honour is concerned, He vindicates it instantly, and with uncommon warmth; He publickly chastises the profaners of His temple, and threatens the severest punishment to such as should continue to blaspheme the power and Spirit by which He was acting. He is ready to receive publicans and harlots; disdains not to converse with hereticks and schismaticks; persons most odious and of worst repute, but whom He sees to be truly penitent, and really desirous of instruction; while He rejects the formal sanctimonious hypocrite, and reprimands the self-sufficient Pharisee. He detects, and with authority rebukes, the flattery of the proud, designing querist; but satisfies each scruple, and resolves each doubt of the sincere and humble searcher after truth, even before they can be intimated to Him. He cherishes the broken-hearted, comforts the desponding, strengthens and supports the weak and wavering; condescends to the infirmities of the meanest and most despicable, that has the least spark of goodness in him; but never gratifies the vanity, or gives way to the petulancy, of the greatest. Vice from Him meets with due discouragement and just reproof in all men of the highest station; virtue, with kind compassion, and a generous aid, in any of the lowest.

Neither in the perusal of the Gospels should we omit to consider the ordinary course and common tenour of our Saviour's life, which we find chiefly conversant in social duties, as these come into use most frequently, and are of the greatest and most general benefit to mankind; and setting us a pattern of performing these, which was the most inviting to us, and most imitable by us, and the least capable of ever being mistaken or perverted: a pattern, not only of perfect innocence, but usefulness in every circumstance and situation; of joining sometimes in such relaxations both of mind and body, as would tend to the support of each; in such prudent moderate enjoyment of the good things of this world, as might convert them to the present and future benefit of all who partook of them: of undergoing all the toils, difficulties, labours, and distresses, to which we are subject; of bearing all the evils and afflictions, the crosses and calamities of life, with so much patience, constancy, and perseverance, as would prevent our sinking under them; and at length make us "more than conquerors" over them. A pattern of particular affection and esteem for friends; of general kindness and good will towards enemies; of gratitude and love for all good offices; of meekness and a most forgiving temper under any ill usage; of strict obedience to superiours, either in church or state, so far as is consistent with our duty to the Supreme Being; mildness and condescension to inferiours, in whatsoever respect, or whatsoever degree; of justice, fidelity, benevolence, and charity to all. In short, His whole life was a lecture of true practical philosophy, and each part of it pointed out some virtue proper for our imitation. Bp. Law.

Whoever considers with attention the character of our blessed Lord, as it may be collected from the various incidents and actions of His life, (for there are no laboured descriptions of it, no encomiums upon it, by His own disciples,) will soon discover that it was in every respect the most perfect that ever was made known to mankind. If we only say of Him, what even Pilate said of Him, and what His bitterest enemies cannot and do not deny, "that we find no fault in Him," and that the whole tenour of His life was entirely blameless throughout; this is more than can be said of any other person that ever came into the world.

But this is going a very little way indeed in the excellence of His character. He was not only free from every failing, but possessed and practised every imaginable virtue. Towards His heavenly Father He expressed the most ardent love, the most fervent yet rational devotion, and displayed in His whole conduct the most absolute resignation to His will and obedience to His commands. His manners were gentle, mild, condescending, and gracious: His heart overflowed with kindness, compassion, and tenderness to the whole human race. The great employment of His life was to do good to the bodies and souls of men. In this, all His thoughts and all His time were constantly and almost incessantly occupied. He went about dispersing His blessings to all around Him, in a thousand different ways; healing diseases, relieving infirmities, correcting errours, removing prejudices, promoting piety, justice, charity, peace, harmony among men, and crowding into the narrow compass of His ministry more acts of mercy and compassion, than the longest life of the most benevolent man upon earth ever yet produced. Over His own passions He had obtained the most complete command; and though His patience was continually put to the severest trials, yet He was never once overcome, never once betrayed into any intemperance or excess in word or deed, never once "spake unadvisedly with His lips." He endured the most cruel insults from His enemies with the utmost composure, meekness, patience, and resignation; displayed the most astonishing fortitude under a most painful and ignominious death; and, to crown all, in the very midst of His torments on the cross, implored forgiveness for His murderers in that divinely charitable prayer, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do."

Nor was His wisdom inferiour to His virtues. The doctrines He taught were the most sublime and the most important that were ever before delivered to mankind, and every way worthy of that God from whom He professed to derive them, and whose Son He declared Himself to be. His precepts inculcated the purest and most perfect morality; His discourses were full of dignity and wisdom, yet intelligible and clear; His parables conveyed instruction in the most pleasing, familiar, and impressive manner; and His answers to the many insidious questions that were put to Him, shewed uncommon quickness of conception, soundness of judgment, and presence of mind, completely baffled all the artifices and malice of His enemies, and enabled Him to elude all the snares that were laid for Him. It appears then, even from this short and imperfect sketch of our Saviour's character, that He was beyond comparison the wisest and most virtuous person that ever appeared; and even His bitterest enemies allow that He was so. If, then, He was confessedly so great and so good a man, it unavoidably follows that He must be, what He pretended to be, a Divine person, and of course His religion also must be Divine: for He certainly laid claim to a Divine original.

He asserted, that He was the Son of God; that He and His religion came from heaven; and that He had the power of working miracles. If this was not the case, He must, in a matter of infinite importance, have asserted what had no foundation in truth. But is such a supposition as this in the smallest degree credible? Is it probable, is it conceivable, is it consistent with the general conduct of man, is it reconcileable with the acknowledged character of our Lord, to suppose that any thing but truth could proceed from Him, whom His very enemies allow to have been in every respect (and of course, in point of veracity) the best and most virtuous of men? Was it ever known, is there a single instance to be produced in the history of mankind, of any one so unblemished in morals as Christ confessedly was; persisting, for so great a length of time as He did, in assertions, which, if untrue, would be repugnant to the clearest principles of morality, and most fatal in their consequences to those He loved best, His followers and His friends? Is it possible, that the pure, the upright, the pious, the devout, the meek, the gentle, the humane, the merciful Jesus could engage multitudes of innocent and virtuous people in the belief and support of a religion which He knew must draw on them persecution, misery, and death, unless He had been authorized by God Himself to establish that religion; and unless He was conscious that He possessed the power of amply recompensing those who preferred His religion to every other consideration? The common sense and common feelings of mankind must revolt at such a preposterous idea. It follows, then, that Christ was, in truth, a Divine teacher, and His religion the gift of God. Bp. Porteus.

The perfection of Christ's example it is easier to understand than to imitate; and yet it is not to be understood without serious and deep meditation on the particulars of His history. Pure and disinterested in its motives, His love to mankind had solely for its end the happiness of those who were the objects of it. An equal sharer with the Almighty Father in the happiness and glory of the Godhead, the Redeemer had no proper interest in the fate of fallen man. Infinite in its comprehension, His love embraced His enemies; intense in its energy, it incited him to assume a frail and mortal nature, to undergo contempt and death; constant in its operations, in the paroxysm of an agony, the sharpest the human mind was ever known to sustain, it maintained its vigour unimpaired. In the whole business of man's redemption, wonderful in all its parts, in its beginning, its progress, and completion, the most wonderful part is the character of Christ; a character not exempt from those feelings of the soul and infirmities of the body which render man obnoxious to temptation, but in which the two principles of piety to God, and good will to man, maintained such an ascendency over all the rest, that they might seem by themselves to make the whole. This character, in which piety and benevolence, upon all occasions, and in all circumstances, overpowered all the inferiour passions, is more incomprehensible to the natural reason of the carnal man than the deepest mysteries, more improbable than the greatest miracles; of all the particulars of the Gospel history, the most trying to the evil heart of unbelief; the very last thing, I am persuaded, that a ripened faith receives; but of all things the most important and the most necessary to be well understood and firmly believed, the most efficacious for the softening of the sinner's heart, for quelling the pride of human wisdom, and for bringing every thought and imagination of the soul into subjection to the righteousness of God. "Let this mind," says the Apostle, "be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus;" that mind which incited Him, when He considered the holiness of God, and the guilt and corruption of fallen man, to say, "I come to do Thy will, O God!" that is, according to the same Apostle's interpretation, to do that will by which we are sanctified; to make the satisfaction for the sinful race which Divine justice demanded. Being in the form of God, He made Himself of no reputation; He divested Himself of that external form of glory in which He had been accustomed to appear to the Patriarchs in the first ages, in which He appeared to Moses in the bush, and to His chosen servants in later periods of the Jewish history; that form of glory in which His presence was manifested between the cherubim in the Jewish sanctuary. He made Himself of no reputation, and, uniting Himself to the holy fruit of Mary's womb, He took upon Him the form of a slave, of that fallen creature who had sold himself into the bondage of Satan, sin, and death; and being found in fashion as a man, He humbled Himself, He submitted to the condition of a man in its most humiliating circumstances, and carried His obedience unto death, the death even of the cross, the painful ignominious death of a malefactor, by a publick execution. He who shall one day judge the world, suffered Himself to be produced as a criminal at Pilate's tribunal; He submitted to the sentence which the dastardly judge, who pronounced it, confessed to be unjust: the Lord of glory suffered Himself to be made the jest of Herod and his captains: He who could have summoned twelve legions of angels to form a flaming guard around His person, or have called down fire from heaven on the guilty city of Jerusalem, on His false accusers, His unrighteous judge, the executioners, and the insulting rabble, made no resistance when His body was fastened to the cross by the Roman soldiers; endured the reproaches of the chief priests and rulers; the taunts and revilings of the Jewish populace; and this, not from any consternation arising from His bodily sufferings, which might be supposed for the moment to deprive Him of the knowledge of Himself. He possessed Himself to the last. In the height of His agonies, with a magnanimity not less extraordinary than His patient endurance of pain and contumely, He accepted the homage which, in that situation, was offered to Him as the King of Israel; and, in the highest tone of confident authority, promised to conduct the penitent companion of His sufferings that very day to paradise. What then was the motive which restrained the Lord of might and glory, that He put not forth His power for the deliverance of Himself and the destruction of His enemies? Evidently that which He avows upon His coming first into the world: "I come to do Thy will, O God!" and by doing of that will, to rescue man from wrath and punishment. Such is the example of resignation to God's will, of indifference to things temporal, of humility, and of love, which we are called upon to imitate. Bp. Horsley.

The imitation of the life of Jesus is a duty of that excellency and perfection, that we are all helped in it, not only by the assistance of a good and great example, which possibly might be too great, and scare our endeavours and attempts, but also by its easiness, compliance, and proportion to us. For Jesus, in His whole life, conversed with men with a modest virtue, much like a well-kindled fire, fitted with just materials, which casts a constant heat, not like an inflamed heap of stubble, glaring with great emissions, and suddenly stooping into the thickness of smoke. His piety was even, constant, unblamable, complying with civil society without affrightment of precedent, or prodigious instances of actions greater than the imitation of men. For, if we observe our blessed Saviour in the whole history of His life, although He was without sin, yet the instances of His piety were the actions of a very holy, but of an ordinary life: and we may observe this difference in the history of Jesus from ecclesiastical writings of certain beatified persons, whose life is told rather to amaze us, and to create scruples, than to lead us in the evenness and serenity of an holy conscience. But Jesus intended Himself the example of piety, and in manners as in the rule of faith, which, because it was propounded to all men, was fitted to every understanding; it was true, necessary, short, easy, and intelligible. So was His rule and His copy: fitted not only with excellencies worthy, but compliance possible, to be imitated: of glories so great, that the most early and constant industry must confess its own imperfections; and yet so sweet and humane, that the greatest infirmity, if pious, shall find comfort and encouragement. Bp. Taylor.

Let us consider our blessed Saviour according to the appearance He made in the world, and this was such as shewed Him to be void of all ambitious and aspiring thoughts, and to be meek and humble, and perfectly virtuous and holy. His miracles were wrought without vanity or ostentation, and never out of revenge, or to shew His power over His enemies, but always with a gracious and merciful design. He avoided all opportunities of popularity. He would not intermeddle in private affairs, when He was appealed to; and He made His escape, when the people would have taken Him by force to make Him a King. He suffered the acclamations, and accepted of the hosannas of the people, to fulfil a prophecy concerning Himself; but took so little delight in these applauses, that He wept over Jerusalem, when the whole city was moved at His entrance, and nothing but joy or wonder had a place in any others' thoughts. He dealt freely and generously with His disciples, not deluding them with vain hopes, nor promising them great matters, but checking their aspiring thoughts, and telling them, truly and plainly, that they were to expect nothing but miseries in this world from the profession of His doctrine. He put it to their choice, whether they would take up their cross and follow Him; and, when He was betrayed by one of these very disciples, He uses no upbraiding or reproachful language, but addresses him with a Divine patience and meekness. No man ever suffered with so much injustice and cruelty, nor ever any with so great compassion and charity towards all His enemies.

He lived a mean and despised life; and was never in such a condition as could tempt any man to flatter Him, or to conceal His faults, if He had been guilty of any: and He had always many enemies, who endeavoured to fasten the worst calumnies upon Him, but their malice tended only to render His innocence the more manifest and illustrious.

The person who betrayed Him, and delivered Him into the hand of His enemies, was one of the twelve; one of His own disciples and Apostles, whom He had sent out to gain proselytes, and to whom He had committed a power of working miracles, and of doing whatsoever was requisite to gain reception for His religion in the world. Judas was one of the twelve, who were nearest to Him, and were admitted to all the secrets of His kingdom, and were entrusted with the more hidden mysteries and obscure doctrines of His religion: whatsoever was spoken to others in parables, was explained afterwards to them in private; nothing was withheld from them with which it was convenient for them to be acquainted, or which they were capable of knowing. Nay, Judas seems to have had a particular mark of favour placed upon him, in that he was the keeper of the bag, for this was an office of some trust and confidence; however, it gave him an opportunity of knowing whether his Master had any such ambitious designs as He was accused of; for, if He had perverted the nation, and forbidden to give tribute to Cesar, and had endeavoured to set Himself up as King of the Jews, which was the charge laid against Him before Pilate, such a project could not have been carried on without amassing a great treasure; of which, therefore, if any such thing had been in hand, Judas had been best able to give an account. But when one who had constantly attended upon Him, and was so intimately acquainted with all the secrets of His life and doctrine, had nothing to allege against Him after he had betrayed Him; what could make more for His justification, or be a clearer demonstration of His innocence?

When He was condemned and crucified, one of the thieves who were crucified with Him made an open profession of Him; when there could be no temptation of flattery, nor leisure or patience for a man in that condition so to speak, but by the special providence and grace of God: and, to give an early instance of the great efficacy of His cross, and of the mercy which it reaches forth to all repentant sinners, our Saviour assures him, that, on that very day, he should be with Him in paradise. A strange discourse upon the cross! to speak of kingdoms, and promise paradise, under so much infamy and torment. That one should have the faith to ask, and the other the power to promise, so great things in that condition! Who could have had the courage to promise so much upon the cross, but He who was able to perform it? Dr. Jenkin.

The manner of our Saviour's teaching was the most easy and natural that can be imagined. He generally draws His doctrine from the present occasion and the objects that surround Him; from the most common occurrences and occupations; from the seasons of the year; the service of the Jewish synagogue, or their solemnities; from some extraordinary accidents, remarkable places, or transactions, and the like. Thus, upon curing a blind man, He styles Himself "the Light of the World," and admonishes the Pharisees of their spiritual blindness and inexcusable obstinacy, in refusing to be cured and enlightened by Him, John ix. 5, 39, 41. On little children being brought to Him, He recommends the innocence and humility of that state, as very proper qualities for all those who would be true members of His church, and, under the same figure, intimates the privileges that belong to all such, Mark x. 14, 15; Matt. xviii. 4, 5, 6, 10. Beholding the flowers of the field and fowls of the air, He teaches His disciples to frame right and worthy notions of that Providence which supports them, and therefore will support beings of a rank so much superiour to them, Matt. vi. 26, 28; Luke xii. 24, &c. Observing the fruits of the earth, He instructs them to judge of men by their fruits, and not to be themselves unfruitful under all the means of grace, Matt. vii. 16; Luke vi. 43, &c. Taking notice of their behaviour at a feast, He first gives general advice therein to both the master and his guests; and from thence brings them to the consideration of a better entertainment, to which they were all invited; but of which few among them would be persuaded to render themselves worthy, Luke xiv. 7, 16, &c. From meat and drink, He leads them to the eating of His body and drinking His blood in a spiritual sense; the being nourished with His doctrine and partaking of His kingdom, John vi. 31, 53, &c. From outward washing, to the purifying of the heart, and cleansing the affections, John xiii. 8. From tasting of the fruit of the vine after the paschal supper, to the celebration of an eternal festival of freedom, rest, and happiness, in another world, Matt. xxvi. 29; Luke xxii. 17, 18. From the salt, He takes occasion to acquaint them with the nature of their office, which was to season the minds of men, and keep them from the contagion of this world, as well as to give them a true taste and relish for the enjoyments of that kingdom; and at the same time reminds them of the absolute necessity for their duly executing this their office; otherwise, instead of being the best, the purest, and most useful, they would become the most worthless, and incurable, and contemptible among mankind, Mark ix. 50; Luke xiv. 34. Those that were fishers, He teaches how to catch men, Luke v. 10; Mark i. 17; and shews them how far this would resemble their former employment, in taking of all kinds, both bad and good; which were at first inseparable, but would at length be carefully distinguished from each other, Matt. xiii. 47. Seeing the moneychangers, He exhorts His disciples to lay out their several talents to the best advantage, Matt. xxv. 27; Luke xix. 23, 45. Being among the sheepfolds, He proves Himself to be the true Shepherd of souls, describing the particulars in which His character exactly answered that of a good shepherd, John x. 1—16. Among vines, He discourses on the spiritual husbandman and vine dresser, and draws a parallel between His vineyard and the natural one, Matt. xv. 13; John xv. 1. Upon the appearance of summer in the trees before Him, He points out as evident signs of His approaching kingdom, Luke xxi. 29; Matt. 24. 32. At the season of fruits, He puts the Jews in mind that the time was come when some fruit would be expected from them, in return for all the labour that had been bestowed upon them; and intimates the judgment that would shortly overtake all such among them as were found unprofitable, Matt. xxi. 33; Luke xiii. 6. When the harvest comes on, He reminds them of the spiritual harvest, or the gathering of His church among men; admonishes them to labour diligently in that work, and add their prayers to heaven for success, Matt. ix. 38; Luke x. 2; John iv. 35. From servants being made free on the sabbatical year, He takes occasion to proclaim a greater and more noble freedom from the slavery of sin, and bondage of corruption, John viii. 32. And from the Jewish ceremony of fetching water on the last day of the feast of tabernacles, in commemoration of the miracle wrought for their fathers in the thirsty wilderness, He introduces an offer of that true living water which should be unto them a well springing up unto everlasting life; the Gospel of immortal happiness and salvation, and the plentiful effusion of the Holy Spirit, which they that believed on Him were to receive, John vii. 37, &c. compare John iv. 10. Upon hearing of some that were killed by the fall of a tower, and others put to death by the Roman governour in the midst of their sacrifices, He guards them against all misconstruction and rash censure in such cases; exhorts them all to take due warning by these punishments, and fortells the general destruction of such as would not be persuaded to it; and which should be the more distinguishable, as coming attended with the very same circumstances, Luke xiii. 1. From the conspicuous eminence of a city standing on a mountain, He turns His discourse to the no less remarkable situation of His own disciples, Matt. v. 14. From the temple before Him, He points to that of His body, which was most properly so called from the Divinity residing in Him, John ii. 19. From Herod's unadvisedly leading his army out to meet the king of Arabia, who came against him with superiour forces and defeated him; a lesson is laid down to all who entered on the Christian warfare, that they should first well weigh and carefully compute the difficulties that attended it, before they were engaged in a matter of such consequence, Luke xiv. 31. From the robberies which were more particularly frequent in that age, He forms a beautiful story of a certain traveller, who fell among thieves, was stripped, and wounded, and could find no relief from any of his own country or persuasion; but met with it in one of those from whom he had the least reason to expect it, as being so much used to despise and hate that people, and their way of worship: from whence He forces His opponent to approve this amiable instance of humanity, even in the odious character of a Samaritan; and thereby shews him, incontestably, that the like good office would no less become a Jew in the like circumstances, Luke x. 30. And from what often happened about that time, namely, that those who obtained the kingdom of Judea went to Rome to be confirmed in it; and, on their return, called such to account as had been wanting in their duty, and took ample vengeance on those who rebelled against them, (which was the case particularly under Archelaus;) He gives His followers to understand, that after He had ascended into heaven, and taken full possession of His spiritual kingdom, He would come again in power and great glory, and not only punish that rebellious nation of the Jews with exemplary judgments, but at length condemn all those who wilfully opposed His Gospel, as well as those who continued to neglect and disregard it, Luke xix. 12. Many more instances might be given, where Christ has formed His arguments and exhortations on such things as offered themselves to Him, applying each most aptly to His present purpose: and, where this does not so immediately appear, we have reason to believe it is chiefly owing to the omission of some circumstances in the history. By these means, He improved every thing into an useful moral, made every object and event serve for a constant monitor and remembrancer of His instructions, which must thus be more easily retained, than they could be by a long train of abstract reasoning, or under any artificial arrangement of a number of particulars laid down together. Bp. Law.

To the preceding reflections on the character of our blessed Lord and the excellency of His religion, which have been selected from the writings of distinguished Christians, it may be useful to add the following passages from writers of a very different description, for the purpose of shewing what strong testimony to the Divine character of the Founder of Christianity has been borne, even by persons who were greatly prejudiced against the truths of His religion.

Of the two extracts which are here subjoined, the former occurs in the works of a well known sceptical English writer, Mr. Chubb; the latter, in those of the celebrated French author, Rousseau.

'In Christ we have an example of a quiet and peaceable spirit, of a becoming modesty and sobriety; just and honest; upright and sincere; and, above all, of a most gracious and benevolent temper and behaviour. One who did no wrong, no injury to any man, in whose mouth was no guile; who went about doing good, not only by His preaching and ministry, but also in curing all manner of diseases among the people. His life was a beautiful picture of human nature, when in its native purity and simplicity; and shewed at once what excellent creatures men would be, when under the influence and power of that Gospel which He preached to them.'

'I confess that the majesty of the Scriptures, and the holiness of the Gospel, greatly affects me. View the books of the philosophers with all their pomp; how little do they appear placed beside this! Is it possible that a book, at once so sublime and simple, can be the work of men? Is it possible that He, whose history it records, can be but a mere man? Does He speak in the tone of an enthusiast or of an ambitious sectary? what mildness, what purity in His manners! what persuasive grace in His instructions! what elevation in His maxims! what profound wisdom in His discourses! what presence of mind, what ingenuity, and what justness in His answers! what empire over His passions! Where is the man, where is the sage, who knows how to act, to suffer, and to die, without weakness and without ostentation?'

The following Chapters from St. John are appointed as Proper Lessons, or as Gospels, on Sundays and Holydays:

Chap. I.	ver. 1—14,	Christmas Day,	Gospel.
—— I.	— 19—28,	4th Sunday in Advent,	ditto.
—— I.	— 43—51,	St. Philip and St. James,	Morning.
—— II.	— 1—11,	2d Sunday after Epiphany,	Gospel.
—— II.	— 1—11,	Epiphany,	Evening.
—— III.	— 1—15,	Trinity Sunday,	Gospel.
—— III.	— 16—21,	Monday in Whitsun-week,	ditto.
—— IV.	— 46—54,	21st Sunday after Trinity,	ditto.
—— VI.	— 1—14,	4th Sunday in Lent,	ditto.
—— VI.	— 5—14,	25th Sunday after Trinity,	ditto.
—— VIII.	— 46—59,	5th Sunday in Lent,	ditto.
—— X.	— 1—10,	Tuesday in Whitsun-week,	ditto.
—— X.	— 11—16,	2d Sunday after Easter,	ditto.
—— XI.	— 45—57,	Wednesday before Easter,	Morning.
—— XIII.		Thursday before Easter,	ditto.
Chap. XIV.	ver. 1—14,	St. Philip and St. James,	Gospel.
—— XIV.	— 15—31,	Whit-Sunday,	ditto.
—— XV.	— 1—11,	St. Mark,	ditto.
—— XV.	— 12—16,	St. Barnabas,	ditto.
—— XV.	— 17—27,	St. Simon and St. Jude,	ditto.
—— XV. 26 to XVI. 4,		Sunday after Ascen. Day,	ditto.
—— XVI.	ver. 5—15,	4th Sunday after Easter,	ditto.
—— XVI.	— 16—22,	3d Sunday after Easter,	ditto.
—— XVI.	— 23—33,	5th Sunday after Easter,	ditto.
—— XVIII.		Good Friday,	Morning.
—— XIX.	— 1—37,	Good Friday,	Gospel.
—— XX.	— 1—10,	Easter Day,	ditto.
—— XX.	— 19—23,	1st Sunday after Easter,	ditto.
—— XX.	— 24—31,	St. Thomas,	ditto.
—— XXI.	— 19—25,	St. John the Evangelist,	ditto.

THE ACTS OF THE APOSTLES.

INTRODUCTION.

THIS Book, in the very beginning, professes itself to be a continuation of St. Luke's Gospel; and its style bespeaks it to be written by the same person. The external evidence also is very satisfactory; for, besides allusions in earlier authors, and particularly in Clement of Rome, Polycarp, and Justin Martyr, the Acts of the Apostles are not only quoted by Irenæus, as written by St. Luke the Evangelist, but there are few things recorded in this book that are not mentioned by that ancient Father. This strong testimony in favour of the genuineness of the Acts of the Apostles is supported by Clement of Alexandria, Tertullian, St. Jerome, Eusebius, Theodoret, and most of the later Fathers. It may be added, that the name of St. Luke is prefixed to the book in several ancient Greek manuscripts of the New Testament, and also in the old Syriack version.

This is the only inspired work which gives us any historical account of the progress of Christianity after our Saviour's ascension. It comprehends a period of about thirty years, but it by no means contains a general history of the church during that time. The principal facts recorded in it are, the choice of Matthias to be an Apostle in the room of the traitor Judas; the descent of the Holy Ghost on the day of Pentecost; the preaching, miracles, and sufferings of the Apostles at Jerusalem; the death of St. Stephen the first martyr; the persecution and dispersion of the Christians; the preaching of the Gospel in different parts of Palestine, especially in Samaria; the conversion of St. Paul; the call of Cornelius, the first Gentile convert; the persecution of the Christians by Herod Agrippa; the preaching of St. Paul and St. Barnabas to the Gentiles by the express command of the Holy Ghost; the decree made at Jerusalem, declaring that circumcision and a conformity with other Jewish rites and ceremonies were not necessary in Gentile converts; and the latter part of the book is confined to the history of St. Paul, of whom St. Luke was the constant companion for several years.

As this account of St. Paul is not continued beyond his two years' imprisonment at Rome, it is probable that this book was written soon after his release, which happened in the year 63 of the Christian era. We may therefore consider the Acts of the Apostles as written about the year 64.

The place of its first publication is more doubtful. The probability is, that it was first published in Greece, although some contend for Alexandria in Egypt. This latter opinion rests on what is found written at the end of some Greek manuscripts, and of the copies of the Syriack version; but the best criticks think that these subscriptions, which are also affixed to other books of the New Testament, deserve but little weight; and, in this instance of the Acts, it is not supported by any ancient authority.

It must have been of the utmost importance in the early times of the Gospel, and certainly not of less importance to every subsequent age, to have an authentick account of the promised descent of the Holy Ghost, and of the success which attended the first preachers of the Gospel, both among the Jews and Gentiles. These great events completed the evidence of the Divine mission of Christ, established the truth and universality of the religion which He taught, and pointed out, in the clearest manner, the comprehensive nature of the redemption which He purchased by His death. Bp. Tomline.

It appears that St. Luke's object in writing the book called the Acts of the Apostles, was not, either to deliver a general history of the propagation of Christianity, or a complete history of St. Paul in particular. He seems to have had a twofold object in view; namely, 1st, To relate in what manner the gifts of the Holy Spirit were communicated on the day of Pentecost, and the subsequent miracles performed by the Apostles, by which the truth of Christianity was confirmed. An authentick account of this matter was absolutely necessary, because Christ had so often assured His disciples, that they should receive the Holy Spirit. Unbelievers therefore, whether Jews or heathens, might have made objections to our religion, if it had not been shewn that Christ's declaration was really fulfilled. 2d, To deliver such accounts, as proved the claim of the Gentiles to admission into the Church of Christ, a claim disputed by the Jews, especially at the time when St. Luke wrote the Acts of the Apostles. And it was this very circumstance which excited the hatred of the Jews against St. Paul, and occasioned his imprisonment in Rome, with which St. Luke closes his history. Hence we see the reason why he relates (chap. viii.) the conversion of the Samaritans, and (chap. x, xi.) the story of Cornelius, whom St. Peter baptized, though he was not of the circumcision. Hence also St. Luke relates the determination of the first council in Jerusalem, relative to the Levitical law; and, for the same reason, he is more diffuse in his account of St. Paul's conversion, and preaching the Gospel to the Gentiles, than on any other subject. It is true that the whole relation which St. Luke has given at chap. xii. has no connexion with the conversion of the Gentiles; but, during the period to which that chapter relates, St. Paul himself was present at Jerusalem, (see chap. xi. 30; xii. 25;) and it is probably for that reason that St. Luke has introduced it.

Although the author of this book has omitted many material parts of ecclesiastical history, in the first thirty years after the ascension, yet he is very circumstantial and perspicuous in those parts which he has related. In general, the style of the Acts of the Apostles is much purer than that of the other books of the New Testament, especially in the speeches delivered by St. Paul at Athens, and before the Roman governours. Still, this book is by no means free from Hebraisms; and even in the purest parts, which are the speeches of St. Paul, we still find the language of a native Jew. Michaelis.

Setting aside the inspiration of the Acts of the Apostles, it is a valuable work as a history of the first planting of the Christian religion in the world, both on account of the variety and importance of the transactions recorded in it, and of the manner in which they are related. For the circumstances of each transaction are selected with judgment, and told in a simplicity and elegance of language truly admirable. And the whole is comprised in a short but perspicuous narration, which cannot fail to give pleasure to every reader who is a judge of elegant writing. Further, the Acts being a history of persons who travelled through the most civilized and best known provinces of the Roman empire for the purpose of preaching the Gospel, the historian was naturally led to mention a variety of particulars, relating to the geography of these countries, their political state, the persons who governed them, and the manners of their inhabitants. The learned, therefore, have, from the time of the publication of this history, had an opportunity of examining all these particulars; and, on the most accurate investigation, they have found them confirmed by the contemporary heathen writers of the best credit, whose writings still remain. Nor is this all: in the Acts, there are speeches recorded, said to have been pronounced by persons of the highest rank and character, which are not like the speeches in most other histories, the production of the historian's own imagination, but the real speeches of the persons to whom they are attributed. In all these, the characters, and sentiments, and style of the different speakers are so distinctly marked, that no one who reads them, and is able to judge of such matters, can doubt their being genuine. These circumstances united form a convincing proof that the history of the Acts was written, as it professes to be, by a person who was present at most of the transactions which he has recorded. On the whole, St. Luke's history of the Acts of the Apostles contains more internal marks of authenticity, than any ancient heathen history extant. So that, considering it merely as a human composition, it is by far the most valuable ancient monument of the kind, which the world possesses. Dr. Macknight.

Anno DOMINI 33.

CHAP. I.

1 Christ, preparing his apostles to the beholding of his ascension, gathereth them together into the mount Olivet, commandeth them to expect in Jerusalem the sending down of the Holy Ghost, promiseth after few days to send it: by virtue whereof they should be witnesses unto him, even to the utmost parts of the earth. 9 After his ascension they are warned by two angels to depart, and to set their minds upon his second coming. 12 They accordingly return, and, giving themselves to prayer, choose Matthias apostle in the place of Judas.

THE former treatise have I made, O Theophilus, of all that Jesus began both to do and teach,

2 Until the day in which he was taken up, after that he through the Holy Ghost had given commandments unto the apostles whom he had chosen:

3 To whom also he shewed himself alive after his passion by many infallible proofs, being seen of them forty days, and speaking of the things pertaining to the kingdom of God:

Anno DOMINI 33.

4 And, ‖ being assembled together with them, commanded them that they should not depart from Jerusalem, but wait for the promise of the Father, [a] which, saith he, ye have heard of me.

‖ Or, eating together with them.

[a] Luke 24. 49.

5 [b] For John truly baptized with water; but ye shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost not many days hence.

[b] Matt. 3. 11.

6 When they therefore were come together, they asked of him, saying, Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?

7 And he said unto them, It is not for you to know the times or the seasons, which the Father hath put in his own power.

Chap. I. ver. 1. The former treatise] Meaning the Gospel of St. Luke, who was also the author of the Acts.

—— of all that Jesus &c.] Of many, or the chief things, "that Jesus began both to do and to teach;" that Jesus did and taught. This is a Hebrew mode of speaking, frequent in the sacred writings, and particularly in those of St. Luke. See Luke iii. 8; v. 21; xii. 45; xiii. 25. Bp. Pearce, Beausobre.

3. — by many infallible proofs,] Respecting our Lord's several appearances after His resurrection, see Bp. Porteus's note at the end of St. John's Gospel.

—— and speaking of the things pertaining to the kingdom of God:] Instructing them in things relating to His spiritual kingdom. Bp. Pearce. He spake of the teaching the doctrine of His kingdom to all nations, and receiving men into it by baptism, Matt. xxviii. 19; of the benefits to those who should believe, and the condemnation of those who should not believe, Mark xvi. 15, 16; of the encouragements and assistances to be afforded in the propagation of it, by His continual presence with them, Matt. xxviii. 20; and by the miracles, by which His doctrine should be confirmed, Mark xvi. 17, 18. Dr. Whitby.

4. — that they should not depart from Jerusalem,] That is, after their return from Galilee, Matt. xxviii. 7, 16; Mark xvi. 7. Abp. Newcome.

They were not at Jerusalem at the time when they received this command; but the command means, that they were now to go to Jerusalem, and there continue. Till they were come into Galilee, they had no warrant to stay at Jerusalem at all, but rather the contrary, Matt. xxviii. 7, 16. The reasons, on account of which Christ sends them to Jerusalem, for the purpose of receiving the Holy Ghost, appear to have been, 1st, Because of the prophecy, Isai. ii. 3. 2d, Because there would be the greatest assemblage of persons to witness this great miracle, and to be worked upon by it, as is proved by the sequel. 3d, Because it was most fit that this great work of Christ's power should be there displayed where had been His greatest humiliation; that those, who were not convinced by the resurrection, might be convinced by this miraculous gift of the Holy Ghost. Dr. Lightfoot.

—— wait for the promise] Wait there till He should send down upon them those gifts of the Spirit which God had long before promised to His church, (Joel ii. 28,) and which, He said, you have often heard Me engage to fulfil on you My Apostles. Pyle.

5. — ye shall be baptized &c.] Ye shall be consecrated to My service by the plentiful shedding of the Holy Ghost upon you. Pyle. "Not many days hence:" there was an interval of ten days between our Lord's ascension and the day of Pentecost. Beausobre.

6. When they therefore were come together,] At Bethany. See Luke xxiv. 50.

—— Lord, wilt thou at this time &c.] As Jesus had proved Himself to be the Messiah by His resurrection, they expected that His kingdom (which they considered as a temporal one) would immediately appear in all its grandeur; the consequence of which they thought must be the restoring the Jews to their former prosperous and independent state. Bp. Mann. This notion of a temporal kingdom of the Messiah was, and is to this day, the great delusion of the Jewish nation. Dr. Lightfoot.

7, 8. — It is not for you to know &c.] There are indeed, He tells them, great things spoken by the Prophets concerning the restoration and flourishing state of the Jewish church, under the Messiah, (Dan. vii. 13, 14,) but the particular time and manner in which God will please to accomplish these things, is one of those secrets which He has reserved to Himself, Deut. xxix. 29. In the mean time, the Holy Ghost, which I have so often promised, shall endow you with such power that you shall give miraculous evidences of the truth of My religion, not only to this city and the Jewish land, but even to very far and distant parts of the Gentile world. Pyle.

Anno DOMINI 33.

8 [c] But ye shall receive ‖ power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth.

[c] Chap. 2. 1.
‖ Or, the power of the Holy Ghost coming upon you.

9 [d] And when he had spoken these things, while they beheld, he was taken up; and a cloud received him out of their sight.

[d] Luke 24. 51.

10 And while they looked stedfastly toward heaven as he went up, behold, two men stood by them in white apparel;

11 Which also said, Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? this same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven.

12 Then returned they unto Jerusalem from the mount called Olivet, which is from Jerusalem a sabbath day's journey.

13 And when they were come in, they went up into an upper room, where abode both Peter, and James, and John, and Andrew, Philip, and Thomas, Bartholomew, and Matthew, James the son of Alpheus, and Simon Zelotes, and Judas the brother of James.

Anno DOMINI 33.

14 These all continued with one accord in prayer and supplication, with the women, and Mary the mother of Jesus, and with his brethren.

15 ¶ And in those days Peter stood up in the midst of the disciples, and said, (the number of the names together were about an hundred and twenty,)

16 Men and brethren, this scripture must needs have been fulfilled, [e] which the Holy Ghost by the mouth of David spake before concerning Judas, which was guide to them that took Jesus.

[e] Ps. 41. 9.

17 For he was numbered with us, and had obtained part of this ministry.

18 [f] Now this man purchased a field with the reward of iniquity; and falling headlong, he burst asunder in the midst, and all his bowels gushed out.

[f] Matt. 27. 7.

19 And it was known unto all the dwellers at Jerusalem; insomuch as that field is called in their proper tongue, Aceldama, that is to say, The field of blood.

---

8. — in Jerusalem, and in all &c.] The order in which the Apostles preached the Gospel is here marked out: 1st, in Jerusalem; 2d, in Judea; 3d, in Samaria; 4th, to the Gentiles.

10. — two men] Two angels in the form of men. Dean Stanhope.

11. — why stand ye gazing up into heaven?] The Apostles, we may suppose, were only occupied with the splendour of this event. From such a state of mind the angels direct them, and call off their attention to a point which deserved it better, and concerned them more nearly. It is as if they had said, Suspend your admiration of this glorious spectacle, suppress all fond and useless speculations about the causes of this event, and learn from us the proper uses of it. Ye have seen your Master thus visibly carried up to heaven, by what means ye need not know, and may well forbear to inquire; but this intelligence receive from us, (and it much imports you to be made acquainted with it,) this same Jesus, who is thus gone up from you for a time into heaven, will come again with the same, or even additional glory, to judge the world in righteousness, to see what improvements ye have made of all that He hath done and suffered for you, and to fix your final doom according to your respective deserts or miscarriages. Think well on this instruction, which so naturally results from all He said while He was with you on earth, and from what has now passed before your eyes: drop all your other inquiries, and resolve them into this, which above all deserves your best attention, how ye may prepare yourselves for that day, when He shall so come in like manner as ye have seen Him go into Heaven. The disciples were looking up into heaven, when they ought to have been considering how to follow their Redeemer thither. Is not our folly the same, or rather is it not more inexcusable, when, gazing with our weak reason on celestial objects, we neglect the ends for which a glimpse of them is afforded us? For there is not an article of our Creed which may not make us better, if not wiser; and obedience, that is, faith working by love, whatever some may think of it, is of another value in the sight of God, and of higher concern, than all knowledge. Bp. Hurd.

—— shall so come in like manner &c.] Shall one day come to judge the world in the same glorious manner in which He has now ascended into heaven. Dr. Hammond.

12. — a sabbath day's journey.] About 2000 cubits, or half a mile. Beausobre.

13. — Zelotes,] See note at Matt. x. 4.

14. — Mary the Mother of Jesus,] This is the last mention of her in Scripture. It is probable that she continued under the care of St. John the Evangelist, to whom our Lord had commended her, John xix. 26. Dr. Lightfoot.

—— his brethren.] Or kinsmen. See the note at Matt. xiii. 55.

15. — about an hundred and twenty,)] These were probably a small association of believers, met together, not merely as believers in Christ, but as personally connected with the Apostles, and with one another. Archdeacon Paley.

This is not to be accounted the whole number of believers at Jerusalem at this time, who, no doubt, consisted of many hundreds or thousands. Dr. Lightfoot.

16. — this scripture must needs have been fulfilled,] See the marginal reference. As this prophecy came from the Spirit of God, it was of necessity to have a completion, and accordingly was now punctually fulfilled in Judas, of whom the Holy Ghost foretold it. Dr. Hammond.

18. Now this man purchased a field] St. Matthew tells us, (chap. xxvii. 7,) that the chief priests bought the field with the money which Judas threw down in the midst of them. It is common in Scripture to consider a person as himself doing that of which he has been the occasion. Beausobre. St. Peter here shews the fruit and effect of his wretched covetousness; and how he that thought to enlarge his possessions by such horrid means, fell into the exact contrary, his revenues purchasing land for others, his habitation being desolate, and himself coming to so sad an end. Dr. Lightfoot.

—— and falling headlong, he burst asunder &c.] St. Matthew (chap. xxvii. 5.) relates that Judas "hanged himself." It seems from the account here given, that he fell from the place on which he had hanged himself, so that his body burst and his bowels came out. Abp. Newcome, Bp. Pearce.

19. — Aceldama, that is to say, The field of blood.] This interpretation of the word Aceldama seems to be an addition made by the historian to the words of St. Peter, as being necessary to explain them to a Greek reader. Biscoe.

The field was so called because it was purchased by the price of blood. Dr. Lightfoot.

Anno DOMINI 33.

20 For it is written in the book of Psalms, [g] Let his habitation be desolate, and let no man dwell therein: and [h] his || bishoprick let another take.

21 Wherefore of these men which have companied with us all the time that the Lord Jesus went in and out among us,

22 Beginning from the baptism of John, unto that same day that he was taken up from us, must one be ordained to be a witness with us of his resurrection.

23 And they appointed two, Joseph called Barsabas, who was surnamed Justus, and Matthias.

24 And they prayed, and said, Thou, Lord, which knowest the hearts of all men, shew whether of these two thou hast chosen,

25 That he may take part of this ministry and apostleship, from which Judas by transgression fell, that he might go to his own place.

Anno DOMINI 33.

26 And they gave forth their lots; and the lot fell upon Matthias; and he was numbered with the eleven apostles.

[g] Ps. 69. 25.
[h] Ps. 109. 8.
|| Or, office, or, charge.

CHAP. II.

1 The apostles, filled with the Holy Ghost, and speaking divers languages, are admired by some, and derided by others. 14 Whom Peter disproving, and shewing that the apostles spake by the power of the Holy Ghost, that Jesus was risen from the dead, ascended into heaven, had poured down the same Holy Ghost, and was the Messias, a man known to them to be approved of God by his miracles, wonders, and signs, and not crucified without his determinate counsel and foreknowledge: 37 he baptizeth a great number that were converted. 41 Who afterwards devoutly and charitably converse together: the apostles working many miracles, and God daily increasing his church.

---

20. —his bishoprick] That is, his office, called his ministry and apostleship in ver. 17, 25.

21. Wherefore of these men which have companied with us] Let us consider how completely different the conduct of the Apostles on this occasion was from that which deceivers would have adopted. If a monopoly of power or influence was designed, would the men who possessed this monopoly propose or consent, without any apparent necessity, to admit an obscure individual to the same rank amongst the new converts which they themselves enjoyed? Certainly not. Again, let us consider the qualifications required in the person to be elected, and judge whether they are such as enthusiasts would naturally have selected. Did they look for an individual among the converts, who was most distinguished for warm zeal, spiritual ecstacies, or extravagant austerity? Far otherwise; no such ideas seem to have once entered into the imagination of the proposer. He looked for those qualities which would give to the new Apostle's testimony the greatest weight in the judgment of sober reason, but which enthusiasm would have neglected or despised: he sought for a person who must have had full opportunity of examining all the facts which it was necessary he should attest. Dr. Graves.

23. —Joseph called Barsabas,] Probably he who is called Joses, (Mark vi. 3; xv. 40,) the brother of St. James the Less; the rather to be so supposed because he is surnamed Justus, as St. James was. Dr. Lightfoot.

24. And they prayed, and said, &c.] The manner of the election, while it displays a deep and heartfelt piety, with a firm confidence that the religion they taught was under the immediate protection of that Divine power which had already borne witness of it by the most stupendous miracles, yet was sober and regular as it was pious and sincere. The calm and decorous manner too in which the apostate Judas is mentioned in this prayer, seems as inconsistent with the violence of enthusiasm, as the qualification sought for in the new Apostle and the mode of his selection: all these circumstances bespeak truth and piety; all are inconsistent with deception or fanaticism. Dr. Graves.

From this example of the congregation of Christians making a solemn address to God that He would condescend to direct their choice, and that He who knew the hearts of all men would be pleased to shew which of the two selected He saw best qualified for so sacred a function; we are instructed that those, who are candidates for holy orders, should seriously examine themselves whether they are moved by the Holy Ghost to take upon them that office and ministration; for, though they may impose upon man, yet God seeth their hearts, and all those various motives by which they are influenced in so great a concern. This precedent is also serviceable to the governours of the church, who, after all their care to admit persons duly qualified, must beg the guidance and direction of God, that they may wisely make choice of fit labourers to work in His vineyard; and all Christians ought to offer up the same prayers, since the welfare of the Church depends so much on the piety and capacity of those that are ordained. Nelson.

——Lord, which knowest the hearts &c.] That the prayer is addressed on this occasion to the Lord Jesus, we may humbly conclude for the following reasons: 1st, Because He was "the Lord" specified immediately before this invocation, in St. Peter's discourse, ver. 21. 2d, In the election of presbyters afterwards in the several churches, "after prayer and fasting," the Apostles commended them to "the Lord on whom they believed," chap. xiv. 23: but that Lord was unquestionably Christ. 3d, Our Lord Himself expressly and formally assumed the title here given Him, "And all the churches shall know that I am He which searcheth the reins and hearts," Rev. ii. 23. From this instance then we are fully warranted in addressing prayer and supplication to Christ, jointly with the Father. Dr. Hales.

25. —that he might go to his own place.] The meaning is, that the consequence of his conduct was, that he went to the place of destruction fit for him. "To his own place," a place more fit for him than the Apostleship. Pyle, Abp. Newcome.

26. And they gave forth their lots;] The deciding of contingent things by lots was a practice instituted by God's own command. See Numbers xxvi. 55; Josh. xiii. 2, 6; Judges xx. 9; 1 Chron. xxiv. 5; Luke i. 9. Hence, as a matter universally acknowledged among persons conversant in the religion and customs of the Jews, it appears that the putting the choice of an Apostle on this issue was a very solemn way of referring the decision to God Himself; which is yet further proved by their solemn invocation of Him on this important occasion. Dean Stanhope.

——and the lot fell upon Matthias;] Matthias had been a continual attendant on our Saviour all the time of His ministry, from His being baptized by St. John till His assumption into heaven, which is intimated by St. Peter, ver. 21. He was probably one of the seventy disciples, and had been a witness of our Saviour's resurrection, and of the most considerable passages of His life; so that he was fit to proclaim abroad those matters of fact concerning his Master, of which he had been a witness equally with the rest of the Apostles. St. Matthias continued at Jerusalem till the powers of the Holy Ghost were conferred on the Apostles to enable them to discharge their difficult employment; and then he is thought to have made the firstfruits of his ministry in Judea with great success. It is supposed that he afterwards travelled into parts of the East, where he was treated with great inhumanity by the barbarous people; and, after many labours and sufferings in converting great numbers to Christianity, he at last obtained the crown of martyrdom. Nelson.

Anno DOMINI 33.

AND when the day of Pentecost was fully come, they were all with one accord in one place.

2 And suddenly there came a sound from heaven as of a rushing mighty wind, and it filled all the house where they were sitting.

3 And there appeared unto them cloven tongues like as of fire, and it sat upon each of them.

4 And they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and began to speak with other tongues, as the Spirit gave them utterance.

5 And there were dwelling at Jerusalem Jews, devout men, out of every nation under heaven.

Anno DOMINI 33.

6 Now † when this was noised abroad, the multitude came together, and were ‖ confounded, because that every man heard them speak in his own language.

† Gr. when this voice was made.

‖ Or, troubled in mind.

7 And they were all amazed and marvelled, saying one to another, Behold, are not all these which speak Galileans?

8 And how hear we every man in our own tongue, wherein we were born?

9 Parthians, and Medes, and Elamites, and the dwellers in Mesopotamia, and in Judea, and Cappadocia, in Pontus, and Asia,

---

Chap. II. ver. 1. —when the day of Pentecost] Respecting the day of Pentecost see note at Levit. xxiii. 15. We should observe that this was the first day of the week, on which the Apostles were thus assembled, since it was on the first day of the week that our Lord rose from the dead, and the fiftieth day inclusive from that was also of necessity the first day. Hence we learn, what reason (independently of the direction of the Holy Spirit) the Apostles then and the Church ever since had, to make this the day of solemn worship, or rather to conclude that God had made it so to Christians; when His wise providence so ordered matters that the old Jewish sabbath, the seventh day, should be passed over, and this first made choice of, to be honoured with two such glorious miracles, as the resurrection of our blessed Lord from the dead, and the coming of the Holy Ghost from heaven; the one to justify, the other to enlighten and sanctify; the former to finish and prove, the latter to proclaim and qualify us for salvation. Dean Stanhope. See further note at chap. xx. 7.

—— they were all] That is, all the twelve Apostles. Abp. Tillotson. Or rather, perhaps, many, if not all, of the 120, chap. i. 15; for divers of them were appointed by Christ to be ministers of the Gospel, Luke x.; and had been favoured with the power of miracles, ver. 17; had received the Holy Ghost on the day of the resurrection, John xx. 22, compared with Luke xxiv. 33, 36; had conversed with Christ before and after His resurrection, and had received the promise of the Father, as well as the Apostles. Dr. Lightfoot.

—— in one place.] There is no certainty as to the place; but it is probable they were assembled in the temple, because it was then the third hour of the day, ver. 15, which was the Jewish hour of morning prayer in the temple, as the ninth hour was that of evening prayer there, chap. iii. 1; and because it is said that the Apostles were daily in the temple, ver. 46, and that St. Peter and St. John went up to the temple, chap. iii. 1. On these accounts, it seems probable that they were at this time in the temple, especially on such a solemn festival as that of Pentecost. Bp. Pearce.

3. —there appeared unto them cloven tongues like as of fire,] By these was represented the power given to the Apostles to speak so many languages as to make themselves understood by persons of all nations. The diversity of the languages was intimated by the tongues being cloven, as the readiness and aptness of their arguments was by the tongues themselves. These tongues had the resemblance of fire—a fit representation of the light these disciples received by the accession of the Holy Spirit; the clear unerring knowledge they obtained of all things which it concerned persons in that high character and weighty trust perfectly to understand. Dean Stanhope.

—— and it sat upon each] And a tongue sat upon each. Abp. Newcome.

4. And they were all filled with the Holy Ghost,] Thus did our Lord fulfil His promise to His disciples of sending to them another Comforter, "even the Spirit of truth," John xiv. 16. The extraordinary gifts of the Spirit now conferred upon the Apostles were that of inspiration, whereby they were clearly and fully instructed in all manner of heavenly truth, and infallibly assisted in delivering the said truth entire to others; also that of miracles, which enabled them to prove to others, with the most convincing evidence, those things which God had revealed to them. Nelson.

—— to speak with other tongues,] That is, in different languages, which they had never learnt. Pyle.

The Apostles were thus endowed with different languages, to enable them to spread and diffuse the knowledge of Christianity over the world; the Gospel thereby making a greater progress in a few years, than it could have done, in human probability, without it, in many ages. Nelson. This miracle was of such a nature, that the like was never known in the world, either before or since the first ages of Christianity, upon any occasion whatsoever: nor can we well imagine any other sort of miracle that could probably affect men more, and strike them with greater wonder and admiration, or which could demonstrate more sensibly a Divine power and presence accompanying the Apostles, than to see and hear them, all on a sudden, perfectly to speak so many languages, which they had never before learnt. Abp. Tillotson.

5. —there were dwelling at Jerusalem] Some perhaps were constantly dwelling there, but the greater part probably were drawn thither by the feast of Pentecost, and that of the passover which preceded it. Bp. Pearce.

—— Jews, —out of every nation] Jews by nation and by proselytism, ver. 10; out of every nation where the Jews dwelt. Dr. Whitby.

—— devout men,] Worshippers of the true God. Abp. Newcome.

7. —are not all these which speak Galileans?] The persons who thus spake were all Galileans; natives of a country held in great contempt among the Jews, and considered as ignorant and unpolished. These individuals in particular were known to be such, bred up to mean trades, and destitute both of capacity and opportunity to acquire any degree of those abilities which they now exerted in the utmost perfection. And what could be a greater proof of God speaking in them and by them, than their being able to do that in an instant, which the study of a whole life could hardly, if at all, qualify any man to do? Here was no room for delusion where every hearer was a judge for himself, and where those that heard were so numerous, of regions so distant, and of languages so very different from each other. Dean Stanhope.

9. —and Elamites,] Meaning, the Persians. Elymais was a province of Persia, not far from the gulph of Persia. Beausobre.

—— and in Judea,] A different dialect was spoken in Judea from that spoken in Galilee. Beausobre.

—— Cappadocia, —Pontus, &c.] These are provinces of Asia Minor. See the map for their respective situations.

—— Asia,] Asia in its largest acceptation denotes the whole Asiatick continent. In this sense it is distinguished from Asia

Anno DOMINI 33.

10 Phrygia, and Pamphylia, in Egypt, and in the parts of Libya about Cyrene, and strangers of Rome, Jews and proselytes, 11 Cretes and Arabians, we do hear them speak in our tongues the wonderful works of God.

12 And they were all amazed, and were in doubt, saying one to another, What meaneth this?

13 Others mocking said, These men are full of new wine.

14 ¶ But Peter, standing up with the eleven, lifted up his voice, and said unto them, Ye men of Judea, and all ye that dwell at Jerusalem, be this known unto you, and hearken to my words:

15 For these are not drunken, as ye suppose, seeing it is but the third hour of the day.

16 But this is that which was spoken by the prophet Joel;

Anno DOMINI 33.

17 [a] And it shall come to pass in the last days, saith God, I will pour out of my Spirit upon all flesh: and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, and your young men shall see visions, and your old men shall dream dreams:

[a] Joel 2. 28. Isai. 44. 3.

18 And on my servants and on my handmaidens I will pour out in those days of my Spirit; and they shall prophesy:

19 And I will shew wonders in heaven above, and signs in the earth beneath; blood, and fire, and vapour of smoke:

20 [b] The sun shall be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood, before that great and notable day of the Lord come:

[b] Joel 2. 31.

Minor, or the Lesser, denoting so much of it as lies between the Euxine or Black sea northward, and the Mediterranean sea southward; and Asia the Greater, denoting all the rest of the Asiatick continent. As Asia Minor contains many of the provinces here mentioned, it cannot be denoted by the word "Asia" in this passage. It is commonly supposed by the most judicious writers, that by Asia in the New Testament is to be understood Lydia in its largest acceptation, or taken so as to include Ionia and Æolis, within which compass lay the seven cities, the churches of which are called the churches of Asia by the sacred writers. Dr. Wells.

10. — Libya about Cyrene,] We learn from Josephus, that Ptolemy Lagus planted a number of captive Jews in Cyrene and other parts of Libya. Bp. Pearce.

—— strangers of Rome, Jews and proselytes,] That is, Jews and proselytes, who were by birth or habitation Romans, but now sojourned at Jerusalem. It is evident from various Roman authors, that there were great multitudes of Jews who dwelt at Rome; and also that there were not a few in that great city, proselyted to the Jewish religion. Biscoe.

11. — do hear them speak — the wonderful works of God.] Probably the Apostles had discoursed to them respecting Jesus's resurrection and ascension into heaven. Bp. Pearce.

13. Others mocking said,] These must have been natives of Judea, who, hearing the Apostles speak in foreign tongues, thought it a mere unmeaning noise. Dr. Lightfoot.

Of all the miracles recorded in Scripture, none are more clear from any possible imputation of being the effect of an enthusiastick imagination, than this of the disciples' speaking in languages they had never learnt; for how could any man think he possessed this faculty when he possessed it not; or, if he did think so, how could he fail to be undeceived when he came to put his gift to the proof? Lord Lyttleton.

The gift of tongues was a miracle in which there could be no deceit or illusion. The Apostles were well known; they had always dwelt in Judea; their manner of life, the circumstances of their education, the meanness of their condition, were notorious. Several things concurred to shew that they could not have acquired this knowledge in an ordinary way. If they had learned the languages by the help of men, that would surely have been discovered; if we should say they learned them by their own sagacity and industry, that is too improbable to be supposed; and, whether with or without the assistance of others, the labour of some years would scarcely have been sufficient. This was also a miracle new and singular in its kind, and therefore adapted to affect the Jews in a particular manner. The miracle consisted, moreover, not only in speaking new languages, but in teaching sacred truths in a new and effectual manner. We hear them speak, the multitude say, the wonderful works of God. This doubled the miracle, and was all that a reasonable person could desire for his satisfaction and conviction. The gift of tongues was of particular service to Christianity. It increased the number of believers at Jerusalem, and engaged the admiration and favour of the people so much, that the enemies of Christ could not accomplish their designs against the disciples, and it served to convey the Gospel to distant regions. Dr. Jortin.

This distinguished event of the descent of the Holy Ghost on the Apostles has ever been celebrated by a festival in the Christian church. By this festival we are reminded to thank God for those miraculous gifts which He bestowed on the Apostles, to fit them to convert the world; and for inspiring the sacred penmen, whereby He has given such abundant testimony of the truth of our religion, and such firm grounds for our faith; also earnestly to pray for those gifts of the Holy Spirit, which are so necessary to enable us to run the ways of the Divine commandments; and to attribute all the good that is in us, as well as the perfections and abilities we enjoy, to that Holy Spirit whose free gift they are, and to employ them to the benefit and advantage of our fellow creatures. Nelson.

14. — lifted up his voice, and said] The Apostles had given no proofs of courage in the first part of their history. They all deserted our Saviour as soon as He was apprehended; one of them was terrified into a direct denial of Him; and after His resurrection they kept their assemblies very private, "for fear of the Jews," John xx. 19. What then was it which changed them into such different persons, within the space of a few days? What could it be else than the completion, here recorded, of our Saviour's promise, that they should "receive power, after that the Holy Ghost was come" upon them, chap. i. 8. With what surprising boldness, in particular, does St. Peter, so lately an apostate, lift up his voice immediately after the effusion of the Holy Ghost, and testify that Jesus is "Lord and Christ," ver. 36. Abp. Secker.

15. — but the third hour] Only nine o'clock in the morning; being the hour of temple service, which the pious and devout attended fasting. Dr. Hales. In these solemn festival days some of the people used not to eat or drink any thing till high noon. Dr. Lightfoot.

17. — it shall come to pass &c.] See notes on Joel ii. 28, &c.

—— in the last days,] Meaning, the times of the Messiah. Pyle.

—— upon all flesh:] On the heathens as well as the Jews, chap. x. 45; contrary to the expectation of the Jews. Dr. Lightfoot.

20. — before that great and notable day] Before the terrible destruction that is coming on Jerusalem. Bp. Mann.

Anno DOMINI 33.

21 And it shall come to pass, that [c] whosoever shall call on the name of the Lord shall be saved.

[c] Rom. 10. 13.

22 Ye men of Israel, hear these words; Jesus of Nazareth, a man approved of God among you by miracles and wonders and signs, which God did by him in the midst of you, as ye yourselves also know:

23 Him, being delivered by the determinate counsel and foreknowledge of God, ye have taken, and by wicked hands have crucified and slain:

24 Whom God hath raised up, having loosed the pains of death: because it was not possible that he should be holden of it.

25 For David speaketh concerning him, [d] I foresaw the Lord always before my face, for he is on my right hand, that I should not be moved:

[a] Ps. 16. 8. [d]

26 Therefore did my heart rejoice, and my tongue was glad; moreover also my flesh shall rest in hope:

27 Because thou wilt not leave my soul in hell, neither wilt thou suffer thine Holy One to see corruption.

28 Thou hast made known to me the ways of life; thou shalt make me full of joy with thy countenance.

29 Men and brethren, ‖ let me freely speak unto you [e] of the patriarch David, that he is both dead and buried, and his sepulchre is with us unto this day.

‖ Or, I may.

[e] 1 Kings 2. 10.

30 Therefore being a prophet, [f] and knowing that God had sworn with an oath to him, that of the fruit of his loins, according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his throne;

Anno DOMINI 33.

[f] Ps. 132. 11.

31 He seeing this before spake of the resurrection of Christ, [g] that his soul was not left in hell, neither his flesh did see corruption.

[g] Ps. 16. 10.

32 This Jesus hath God raised up, whereof we all are witnesses.

33 Therefore being by the right hand of God exalted, and having received of the Father the promise of the Holy Ghost, he hath shed forth this, which ye now see and hear.

34 For David is not ascended into the heavens: but he saith himself, [h] The LORD said unto my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand,

[h] Ps. 110. 1.

35 Until I make thy foes thy footstool.

36 Therefore let all the house of Israel know assuredly, that God hath made that same Jesus, whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ.

37 ¶ Now when they heard this, they were pricked in their heart, and said unto Peter and to the rest of the apostles, Men and brethren, what shall we do?

38 Then Peter said unto them, Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of

---

21. — whosoever shall call on the name of &c.] Implying, that they who embrace and obey the religion of Christ shall escape and be saved from the common destruction, Matt. xxiv. 13. Bp. Mann.

23. Him, being delivered by the determinate counsel &c.] We should observe, that a thing is said in Scripture to be done by the determinate counsel of God, when it is done according to what He had written and declared in His word, Matt. xxvi. 24; Luke xxii. 22: also that, in order to the completion of the particular prophecies concerning the death of Christ, it was necessary that God should suffer Him to fall into the hands of wicked men, and should not restrain them from executing their malicious designs. Dr. Whitby. It was the intention of God from the beginning that Christ should suffer; but this necessity of His suffering did not impose on the Jews the necessity of putting Him to death. God decreed that He should be delivered up; the blind passions of wicked men did the rest.

24. — having loosed the pains of death:] Having delivered Him from the power of death. Dr. Hammond.

—— it was not possible that he should be holden of it.] It was impossible in itself, and contrary to the tenour of prophecy, that the Lord of life should be holden by death. Abp. Newcome.

27. — in hell,] In the grave, the place or state of the dead, as the word Hades frequently signifies. See notes from Parkhurst on Job xxvi. 5, 6; and from Bp. Horsley on Hos. xiii. 14.

29—31. — let me freely speak unto you &c.] It is very evident, St. Peter says, that this expression of not leaving His soul in hell, &c. could never be meant of, nor is in any way fulfilled in, David's own person, who, as you all know, long since died, and lies yet in his grave, which you can shew to this day. And therefore, as David was an eminent Prophet, a type of the Messiah, and had an express promise from God that Christ should be born of his seed and family, it cannot but be concluded that he was, as a Prophet, acquainted beforehand with the resurrection of Christ, and so designed this of Christ only. Pyle.

32. — whereof we all are witnesses.] We stand here before you, and are ready to undergo any trial of our sincerity in this matter; we do not tell you of witnesses that live at a great distance, but we, whom you see and hear, testify what we have seen and heard. If you are dissatisfied, search the sepulchre, examine the soldiers, go to the council, and let them search into the bottom of it; here we stand and are ready to give our utmost testimony to the truth of it. Bp. Stillingfleet.

34. For David is not ascended &c.] His argument is this: David spake of a Lord who was to be at God's right hand; but David was not at God's right hand; therefore he must have spoken this of some other person, and that person was Jesus Christ; for of Him only it is true that "His flesh did not see corruption." Bp. Pearce.

36. — hath made that same Jesus, — both Lord and Christ.] Hath raised the same Jesus whom ye crucified to His own right hand, and, placing Him there as head of the Church, hath instated Him in the kingly office of the Messiah. Dr. Hammond.

38. — Repent, and be baptized] He exhorts them, with true contrition and acknowledgment of their sins, to quit their infidelity, and with true faith to receive that baptism from the Apostles, in which Christ enabled them to convey remission of sins to all true penitents; further promising that they should be made partakers also of the gifts of the Holy Spirit which were poured upon the Church, and some among them of those miraculous powers which they now saw with astonishment in the Apostles, chap. iv. 31; xix. 6. Dr. Hammond.

—— in the name of Jesus Christ] It sufficiently appears, from this and other passages where the expression occurs of baptizing sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost.

Anno DOMINI 33.

39 For the promise is unto you, and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call.

40 And with many other words did he testify and exhort, saying, Save yourselves from this untoward generation.

41 ¶ Then they that gladly received his word were baptized: and the same day there were added unto them about three thousand souls.

42 And they continued stedfastly in the apostles' doctrine and fellowship, and in breaking of bread, and in prayers. Anno DOMINI 33.

43 And fear came upon every soul: and many wonders and signs were done by the apostles.

44 And all that believed were together, and had all things common;

45 And sold their possessions and goods, and parted them to all men, as every man had need.

46 And they, continuing daily with one in the name of the Lord Jesus, (Acts viii. 16; x. 48; xix. 5,) that it is not meant to signify that persons were baptized merely in the name of Jesus; but undoubtedly this is an abbreviate way of speaking, putting a part for the whole. Baptizing unto Jesus Christ was well known by all Christians to signify baptizing in that form, which our Lord Jesus had appointed, that is, in the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost; and, wherever a part of this form is expressed, it is understood that the whole is implied. Dr. S. Clarke.

---

—— ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost.] It is certain that the gift of the Spirit, spoken of in this and other passages, must be common to all Christians, and cannot merely mean the extraordinary and miraculous communications, which were the portion of a few, and continued in the church only for a short time. Hence therefore we derive this comfortable and important assurance, that the Spirit of God co-operates with our sincere endeavours after righteousness, and assists us in all our virtuous exertions. Bp. Tomline.

It is the Holy Spirit of God which is the sole author and spring of all true delight, of all real content within us; of that unspeakable joy in believing, that confidence of hope, that satisfaction in well doing. And since such are the unspeakable benefits accruing to us from this most excellent gift of God, by Him graciously conferred on all good Christians, we should correspondingly endeavour to make grateful and worthy returns for this gift, by using it to those good purposes for which it is bestowed. Let us then earnestly invite this Holy guest unto us by our prayers, and willingly receive Him in our hearts. Let us not exclude Him by supine neglect and rude resistance; let us not grieve Him by our perverse and froward behaviour; let us not tempt Him by our fond presumptions or base treacheries; let us not quench His heavenly light and heat by our foul lusts and passions; but let us ever hearken gladly to His faithful suggestions, and comply with His kindly motions. Dr. I. Barrow.

39. — and to all that are afar off,] That is, the Gentiles. Dr. Whitby.

40. — from this untoward generation.] Lest ye be involved in their temporal and eternal destruction. Abp. Newcome.

41. — there were added unto them about three thousand souls.] Observe how justly the Gospel state is compared to a grain of mustard seed, Matt. xiii. 32; there having been an increase of 3000 souls, besides the 120 mentioned at chap. i. 15, and a daily addition of more, ver. 47; so that at chap. iv. 4, the number is said to be 5000. Bp. Mann.

This was a quick and plentiful harvest; the late sufferings of our Saviour, as yet fresh bleeding in their memories, the present miraculous powers of the Holy Ghost, the zeal of the Apostles' auditors, though heretofore misplaced and misguided, and, above all, the efficacy of Divine grace, contributing to this miraculous conversion. Dr. Cave.

Here was an effect proportionable to the greatness and strangeness of the cause; a mighty victory gained over the prejudices of men, and the powers of darkness, by the light and conviction of the miracle of tongues, which our Lord seems to have kept in reserve for this great occasion. Here was a large portion of first-fruits, and a great earnest of that spiritual harvest, which the Apostles had begun to reap. Abp. Tillotson.

42. — in the apostles' doctrine and fellowship, &c.] That is, in hearing the Apostles teach, and in "fellowship" with them and one another, 1 John i. 3, 7, and in eating the Lord's supper, and in praying together. Drs. Hammond and Whitby.

The "doctrine" here means, no doubt, the Gospel doctrine, the forgiveness of sins by the redemption through Christ Jesus; and the worship here mentioned is prayer, and the sacrament of the Lord's supper signified by the communion and breaking of bread. Dr. H. Stebbing.

—— and in breaking of bread,] In this, and a few other passages, (ver. 46; chap. xx. 7,) the breaking of bread is mentioned with reference to the Lord's supper, without any notice being taken of the wine. This arises from the conciseness with which the writers of the New Testament sometimes express themselves; and it by no means proves that the breaking of bread was not accompanied by the drinking of wine; it rather shews that they so constantly and necessarily accompanied each other, that, to mention one was thought sufficient; and it is impossible to contend that these passages authorize the practice of the Romish church, of denying the cup of the Lord to lay people. Bp. Tomline.

This behaviour of the Apostles and early Christians was, no doubt, left upon record by the Holy Spirit, to the end that all Christians may know what they did, and, by consequence, what we must do, that we may all live in the true faith of Christ, so as to attain the end of our faith, even the salvation of our souls. We here observe, that they did not think it sufficient to be baptized into Christ, but they still continued in Him, doing all such things as He hath appointed, whereby to receive grace and power from Him, to walk as becometh His disciples; and so must we also, if we desire to be saved by Him. It is our great happiness to have been by baptism admitted into the church and school of Christ, and so made His disciples and scholars: but, unless we continue to do what we promised at our baptism, our condemnation will be the greater, in that we do not only break the laws of God, but likewise the promise we made to Him when we were baptized. Bp. Beveridge.

43. And fear came upon every soul:] A general astonishment seized upon all when they saw these wonderful operations of the Holy Spirit. Dr. Hammond.

44. — and had all things common;] Their intercommunity of goods shewed their mutual confidence and affection; but it is no precedent for future ages in very dissimilar circumstances. Those who sold their goods and divided them were willing to be perfect in dedicating themselves to the service of the Gospel; as Christ exhorted the rich young man, Matt. xix. 21. Abp. Newcome.

The voluntary resignation of private property to the publick stock was probably necessary, at that early time, when all charity ceased towards Christians, except among themselves, and when they scrupled to partake of the temple sacrifices, which were a great relief to the poor. It certainly was not meant to be permanent, because, throughout the New Testament as well as the Old, there is always a distinction supposed to subsist between the rich and the poor; nor indeed could the affairs of the world possibly be carried on without such inequality of ranks and stations. Dr. Hales.

46. — daily with one accord in the temple,] Meaning, that they accord in the temple, and breaking bread ‖ from house to house, did eat their meat with gladness and singleness of heart,

Anno DOMINI 33.

‖ Or, at home.

47 Praising God, and having favour with all the people. And the Lord added to the church daily such as should be saved.

CHAP. III.

1 Peter preaching to the people that came to see a lame man restored to his feet, 12 professeth the cure not to have been wrought by his or John's own power, or holiness, but by God, and his Son Jesus, and through faith in his name: 13 withal reprehending them for crucifying Jesus. 17 Which because they did it through ignorance, and that thereby were fulfilled God's determinate counsel, and the scriptures: 19 he exhorteth them by repentance and faith to seek remission of their sins, and salvation in the same Jesus.

NOW Peter and John went up together into the temple at the hour of prayer, being the ninth hour.

2 And a certain man lame from his mother's womb was carried, whom they laid daily at the gate of the temple which is called Beautiful, to ask alms of them that entered into the temple;

3 Who seeing Peter and John about to go into the temple asked an alms.

Anno DOMINI 33.

4 And Peter, fastening his eyes upon him with John, said, Look on us.

5 And he gave heed unto them, expecting to receive something of them.

6 Then Peter said, Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have give I thee: In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth rise up and walk.

7 And he took him by the right hand, and lifted him up: and immediately his feet and ancle bones received strength.

8 And he leaping up stood, and walked, and entered with them into the temple, walking, and leaping, and praising God.

9 And all the people saw him walking and praising God:

10 And they knew that it was he which sat for alms at the Beautiful gate of the temple: and they were filled with wonder and amazement at that which had happened unto him.

11 And as the lame man which was healed held Peter and John, all the people resorted thither to the duties of religion, at the hours of prayer, as they had done before. Dr. Lightfoot.

---

—— and breaking bread from house to house,] It should rather be translated, "in the house." The meaning is, meeting together in their private assembly to receive the holy communion amongst themselves, after they had prayed in publick with the Jews. Dr. S. Clarke.

47. — and having favour with all the people.] That is, by their liberality, innocency, and simplicity of manners, obtaining the good opinion of all well-disposed and unprejudiced persons. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— to the church] Meaning here, the body of believers in the Gospel, in general. Bp. Tomline.

—— such as should be saved.] Or, "such as are saved," as the word may be rendered. But the sense is much the same: for our salvation plainly begins in this life, although it is perfected only in the other. They and they only, who are saved from their sins upon earth, can ever attain to the salvation of their souls in heaven. By the expression, therefore, "such as are or should be saved," we are to understand those, who, being pricked in their hearts, and convinced of their former errours in opinion and practice, do heartily repent them, and gladly receive the word, and embrace the terms propounded in the Gospel, for the pardon of their sins, and for the assistance of God's grace and Spirit, that they may so serve Him here, as to enjoy His presence for ever hereafter. Bp. Beveridge.

Or the words may signify here, "such as were saved;" for we find the converts, who upon their repentance towards God and faith in Jesus Christ were baptized, often spoken of in the New Testament as persons already saved; that is, rescued from that eternal misery, to which they stood exposed, till they were baptized. For instance, St. Paul (in Ephes. ii. 8,) says, "By grace ye are saved," or rather, "ye are those who have been saved." So in Titus, chap. iii. 5, the same Apostle says, "According to His mercy He saved us by the washing of regeneration." See also 1 Cor. i. 18; and xv. 2. But it should be here remembered, that this description of the Christian converts only considers the state into which baptism brought them; and does not here (though it does elsewhere) point out to them, that, when they were added to the church, eternal life was not to be obtained without the practice of all manner of good works. Bp. Pearce.

The lives and manners of the new converts were of a description truly according with the new profession of religion. We need not recur to any history, but that which is now before us, and where else can we expect to find a more pleasing picture of all that is amiable, of all that is instructive, in Christianity? As charity, in the true sense of the word, as the love of mankind founded on the love of God through Christ, as a perfect and more exalted holiness, animated their whole conduct, we behold nothing but that happy community of sentiments, which is the ornament and perfection of the Christian covenant. Nor shall we wonder that such a proof of their religious principles captivated even those who were unwilling to imitate their conduct. They saw them daily frequenting the temple, the appointed place of publick worship; they saw them associating together "with gladness and singleness of heart;" they saw them praise God with that devotion, which hypocrisy cannot offer; and therefore they were disposed to regard them with a favourable eye. A faith so pure, and a conduct so irreproachable, were likely to produce the most beneficial effects to the Christian Church; and such, St. Luke informs us, was immediately the case. Brewster.

Chap. III. ver. 1. — at the hour of prayer,] The Jews had three stated hours of prayer; the first at the third hour of the day, (chap. ii. 15,) answering to our nine o'clock, at which time they offered the morning sacrifices, Exod. xxix. 39; the second at the sixth hour, or noon; the third at the ninth hour, answering to our three in the afternoon, when they offered their evening sacrifices, chap. x. 3, 30. Dr. Whitby.

2. — the gate — which is called Beautiful,] This gate being the front and principal entrance of the temple, derived its name from the sumptuousness with which it was built. Josephus says, that, being made of Corinthian brass, it exceeded in glory those which were of gold and silver. Dr. Whitby.

6. — In the name of Jesus] In the name and by the power and authority of Jesus. Pyle.

9. And all the people saw him] "The wonders and signs," referred to at chap. ii. 43, were probably performed in private. Abp. Newcome.

10 — and they were filled with wonder] This stupendous miracle appears to have made a prodigious impression on the assembled multitude, for the man was well known as an object of charity.

Anno DOMINI 33.

ran together unto them in the porch that is called Solomon's, greatly wondering.

12 ¶ And when Peter saw it, he answered unto the people, Ye men of Israel, why marvel ye at this? or why look ye so earnestly on us, as though by our own power or holiness we had made this man to walk?

13 The God of Abraham, and of Isaac, and of Jacob, the God of our fathers, hath glorified his Son Jesus; whom ye delivered up, and denied him in the presence of Pilate, when he was determind to let him go.

[a] Matt. 27. 20.

14 [a] But ye denied the Holy One and the Just, and desired a murderer to be granted unto you;

‖ Or, Author.

15 And killed the ‖ Prince of life, whom God hath raised from the dead; whereof we are witnesses.

16 And his name through faith in his name hath made this man strong, whom ye see and know: yea, the faith which is by him hath given him this perfect soundness in the presence of you all.

Anno DOMINI 33.

17 And now, brethren, I wot that through ignorance ye did it, as did also your rulers.

18 But those things, which God before had shewed by the mouth of all his prophets, that Christ should suffer, he hath so fulfilled.

19 ¶ Repent ye therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out, when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord;

20 And he shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you:

21 Whom the heaven must receive until 11.—the porch that is called Solomon's,] See note at John x. 23.

12.—he answered] He spake unto them. See note at Matt. xi. 25.

—— as though by our own power or holiness] We should observe how plainly the Apostles here disclaim any excellency or piety in themselves, which might make them worthy to be God's instruments above others, in working such miracles as these. Dr. Whitby.

13. The God of Abraham, &c.] The Apostles having shewn that it was not by their own authority that this miracle was done, it became necessary to declare who was indeed the author of it. As his hearers were Jews, and as the new religion was to be perfective of the old, St. Peter's arguments might be expected to be such, as should in a national view strongly interest their attention. He commences therefore with a declaration, that "the God of their fathers," whom he mentions by a well-known and endearing appellation, "The God of Abraham, and of Isaac, and of Jacob," had glorified in an especial manner "His Son Jesus:" emphatically His Son, as He had been so declared by a voice from heaven, "This is My beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased," Matt. iii. 17. Brewster.

—— and denied him] Refused to acknowledge Him as the Christ. Abp. Newcome. Refused to have Him released to you. Dr. Hammond.

14.—the Holy One and the Just,] Him who alone was truly holy and just. Dr. Whitby.

15.—the Prince of life,] The Person sent by God to lead you to eternal life, having purchased it by His death, shewed the way to it by His doctrine, and being appointed to dispense it to His faithful servants, Heb. ii. 10; v. 9. Dr. Whitby.

16. And his name through faith in his name &c.] And we now declare unto you, that the power, through which we have so wondrously and perfectly restored this man, whom ye all knew to be a cripple, was given to us by the same Jesus, as we are His faithful disciples and commissioned to be His Apostles: by His authority and power alone it is that we act. Pyle.

Faith is twice mentioned in this verse, because of the Apostles' faith in performing the miracle, and the cripple's faith in receiving it. Dr. Lightfoot.

17.—I wot that through ignorance &c.] Let us here observe, that men may be guilty of the most heinous sins in following an erroneous conscience: that they may commit the most wicked crimes, under a persuasion that they do well. Abp. Tillotson.

Although the ignorance of the whole nation, and especially of the rulers in this case, was such as took away from them all just excuse for their infidelity, John xv. 22, 24; yet, because it was occasioned by those prejudices which they had contracted through the meanness of His character, and their notions of His temporal kingdom, our Lord bears with them till the time of the effusion of the Holy Ghost, and then calls them again by His Apostles to repentance. Dr. Whitby.

18.—those things, which God before had shewed &c.] Thus the many prophecies of Scripture, which foretold that the Messiah should be put to death, have by this means had their completion. Dr. Hammond.

There are many good arguments, different in kind, which conspire to establish the truth of our religion; such as are the intrinsick excellence, reasonableness, and perfection of its doctrine, the miraculous works performed in attestation of it, the special favour of Providence declared in the support and propagation of it: but upon no other ground do the Scriptures build its truth, and our obligation to embrace it, more, than on the exact correspondence and conformity of it to all the ancient Scriptures, which foreshewed or foretold its introduction into the world, to those especially which described the personal character, circumstances, and actions of our Lord. To this He Himself, in His reasonings with incredulous persons, frequently referred them. And this species of proof has some peculiar uses and advantages beyond others. The foreknowledge of future contingent events, as it is for the manner of attaining it most incomprehensible to us, so is it by all acknowledged to be a peculiar property of God. The foretelling therefore of such events must have proceeded immediately from Him. Besides, prophecy manifests the great worth and weight of the Christian revelation, as implying the peculiar care of God concerning it, who designed it so anciently, laid such trains of Providence for its establishment, and prepared such evidences for its confirmation. Dr. I. Barrow.

19. Repent ye therefore,—that your sins &c.] Amend therefore your lives, that this sin may be pardoned; that so the second coming of Christ, so often spoken of (Matt. xxiv.) for the delivery and rescue of the faithful, giving them rest from their troubles and a quiet profession of the Gospel, but at the same time for the destruction of the obdurate, may by your repentance become matter of advantage and comfort to you. Dr. Hammond.

—— the times of refreshing] The times of refreshing here spoken of, and the times of the restitution of all things at ver. 21. seem to mean the same thing. Bp. Pearce. The times when ye shall be cheered, revived, and abundantly satisfied with the presence and enjoyment of God, at the last day. Dr. S. Clarke. The expression refers to the time of Christ's second coming, to give unto all His servants rest with Him after their troubles and persecutions in this world, 2 Thess. i. 6—8; which He will do by raising them from the dead, and causing them to enter into everlasting rest. Dr. Whitby.

21. Whom the heaven must receive until &c.] Who is now in the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began.

Anno DOMINI 33.

22 For Moses truly said unto the fathers, [b] A prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren, like unto me; him shall ye hear in all things whatsoever he shall say unto you.

[b] Deut. 18. 15. ch. 7. 37.

23 And it shall come to pass, that every soul, which will not hear that prophet, shall be destroyed from among the people.

24 Yea, and all the prophets from Samuel and those that follow after, as many as have spoken, have likewise foretold of these days.

25 Ye are the children of the prophets, and of the covenant which God made with our fathers, saying unto Abraham, [c] And in thy seed shall all the kindreds of the earth be blessed.

[c] Gen. 12. 3.

26 Unto you first God, having raised up his Son Jesus, sent him to bless you, in turning away every one of you from his iniquities.

Anno DOMINI 33.

CHAP. IV.

1 The rulers of the Jews offended with Peter's sermon, 4 (though thousands of the people were converted that heard the word,) imprison him and John. 5 After, upon examination Peter boldly avouching the lame man to be healed by the name of Jesus, and that by the same Jesus only we must be eternally saved, 13 they command him and John to preach no more in that name, adding also threatening, 23 whereupon the church fleeth to prayer. 31 And God, by moving the place where they were assembled, testified that he heard their prayer: confirming the church with the gift of the Holy Ghost, and with mutual love and charity.

AND as they spake unto the people, the priests, and the ‖ captain of the temple, and the Sadducees, came upon them,

‖ Or, ruler.

2 Being grieved that they taught the people, and preached through Jesus the resurrection from the dead.

---

heaven, there to remain the Lord and Head of His Church upon earth, to see the whole dispensation of the Gospel age perfected in the accomplishment of all the prophecies concerning it; and then will come again for the solemn trial of all the world. Pyle.

——the times of restitution of all things,] The time when all things shall be disposed, ordered, settled, in a perfect state, from their present imperfect state. Abp. Newcome. See notes at ver. 19.

22.—A prophet shall the Lord &c.] See notes at Deut. xviii. 15, &c.

23.—shall be destroyed from among the people.] The execution of this threat was so striking and remarkable in the sad overthrow of the Jewish nation for rejecting Christ, that all former judgments were light and tolerable in comparison. Such consummation of their misery having followed their treatment of this distinguished Prophet, shews Him to be the Person designed in the words of Moses. Dr. Stack.

24.—from Samuel] He seems to be mentioned as the first famous Prophet after Moses, whose predictions are extant. Abp. Newcome.

Samuel is reckoned the first of the Prophets after Moses, because prophecy from the death of Moses to the rising of Samuel was very rare, 1 Sam. iii. 1, 2, and because he was the first Prophet after Moses who wrote his prophecies. Dr. Lightfoot.

——foretold of these days.] Of the times of the Christ, or the Messiah. Bp. Pearce.

25. Ye are the children of the prophets,] Ye are those to whom their prophecies were directed, and to whom they more immediately belong. Bp. Pearce.

26. Unto you first God, having &c.] We should observe, that it is to the Jews and concerning the Jews that St. Peter thus speaks, and sets forth the advantages and privileges bestowed on the servants of Christ. The Messiah was indeed to be an universal Saviour, and this Sun of Righteousness was to arise and shine upon the whole earth; and yet He was first promised and intended for the Jews. Among them alone He dwelt; to them alone He usually preached; on them alone (with very few exceptions) He wrought miracles. They rendered themselves guilty of a most horrible crime; they rejected the benefits, and slew the Benefactor; but still favour was offered to them, and a pardon was to be obtained. "And now brethren," says St. Peter, "I wot that through ignorance ye did it, as did also your rulers.—Repent ye therefore, and be converted." Christ was sent to save them; but the salvation could not be accomplished without something performed on their part; namely, acts of faith, repentance, and amendment. Dr. Jortin.

——his Son Jesus,] This title "His Son," intimating the divinity of Jesus's person, is a declaration that He was beyond measure superiour to the Prophets who came before Him; none of them, nor any other man, nor any angel, having been ever called the Son of God in the same manner and sense in which Christ was so called, who was the beloved and only-begotten Son of God. Dr. Jortin.

This address of St. Peter was calculated to make a strong impression on the minds of the people. The connexion of present circumstances with prophecies well known to every Jew left them without reply. How could they doubt, but that God would bestow these blessings on them through the intervention of His Son, when they saw him who had been healed "in His name" stand before them whole? How could they doubt, but that other blessings would follow them that believe, when such mighty signs and wonders were given as evidences of their truth? How could they doubt, but that He, whose word controlled the powers of nature, and restored soundness to the infirm, could with equal ease pour forth the abundance of His grace, and heal the inveterate sickness of a disordered soul? Brewster.

Chap. IV. ver. 1.—the captain of the temple,] The captain of all those priestly and Levitical guards and watches that were kept in the temple. Dr. Lightfoot. See note at Luke xxii. 4.

——and the Sadducees,] Before our Saviour's passion, the chief agents against Him were the Scribes and Pharisees: but now that the Apostles do not only assert the resurrection of our Lord, but also preach "through Jesus the resurrection from the dead," ver. 2; the Sadducees, who denied the resurrection of the body, become their fiercest adversaries. Dr. Whitby.

The chief priests, and other leading men among the Jews, were for the most part at this time Sadducees in their hearts, although they were forced to conceal it from the people, on account of the unpopularity of their opinions. Bp. Pearce.

2.—and preached through Jesus the resurrection] Or "the resurrection from the dead in Jesus;" that is, that Jesus had risen from the dead, and that an instance of such a resurrection had been exhibited in Him. Bp. Pearce.

The Sadducees were the scepticks of the age, and rejected the belief of the existence of the soul after death, and the rewards and punishments of an invisible world. They are represented as harsh and morose in their conduct, exacting severe recompense, and punishing the promoters of tumults as enemies to that worldly quiet, to which all their hopes of happiness were confined. No wonder then that they were "grieved that the Apostles taught

Anno DOMINI 33.

3 And they laid hands on them, and put them in hold unto the next day: for it was now eventide.

4 Howbeit many of them which heard the word believed; and the number of the men was about five thousand.

5 ¶ And it came to pass on the morrow, that their rulers, and elders, and scribes,

6 And Annas the high priest, and Caiaphas, and John, and Alexander, and as many as were of the kindred of the high priest, were gathered together at Jerusalem.

7 And when they had set them in the midst, they asked, By what power, or by what name, have ye done this?

8 Then Peter, filled with the Holy Ghost, said unto them, Ye rulers of the people, and elders of Israel,

9 If we this day be examined of the good deed done to the impotent man, by what means he is made whole;

Anno DOMINI 33.

10 Be it known unto you all, and to all the people of Israel, that by the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, whom ye crucified, whom God raised from the dead, even by him doth this man stand here before you whole.

11 [a] This is the stone which was set at nought of you builders, which is become the head of the corner.

[a] Ps. 118. 22. Matt. 21. 42.

12 Neither is there salvation in any other: for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved.

13 ¶ Now when they saw the boldness of Peter and John, and perceived that they were unlearned and ignorant men, they marvelled; and they took knowledge of them, that they had been with Jesus.

---

the people, and preached through Jesus the resurrection from the dead." In these principles we see a striking characteristick of that infidelity, which in every age, as well as in the present, has produced the most fatal consequences. If the language of such professors be that death is an eternal sleep, it is natural to suppose that the actions of their lives will be directed with a reference to this conclusion. If the Sadducees held the opinion that the soul perishes with the body, as we are assured they did, we can hardly be surprised to find them persecuting even unto death those holy men, who endeavoured to reclaim the world from so dangerous a delusion. Brewster.

4. — was about five thousand.] Thus there was an increase of two thousand within a very short time. See chap. ii. 41. And it is probable that there were many, both now and afterwards, who, although they believed in Christ, did not think it necessary to join themselves to this society, or who waited to see what was likely to become of it. Archdeacon Paley. We should pause to consider the wonderful rapidity with which the Gospel was propagated. The Jews still remain, but how seldom is it that we can make a single proselyte! There is reason to think that there were more converted by the Apostles in one day, than have since been won over in the last thousand years. Bryant.

5. — their rulers, and elders, and scribes,] The Sanhedrim was composed of three descriptions of persons, priests, elders, and doctors of the law; and is often expressed by the enumeration of those parts, "chief priests, scribes, and elders," Matt. xxvi. 3. In this place there is a different way of enumeration from what is usual, the rulers, elders, and scribes. The title of chief priests was applied to the heads of the twenty-four families sprung from Eleazar and Ithamar, the sons of Aaron, (between whom the priests' office was divided by David,) which should by weekly turns perform the duty of the sanctuary. Dr. Hammond.

6. — Annas the high priest,] See note at Luke iii. 2. Caiaphas, it appears, was now high priest, but his father-in-law Annas had been so before; and he is called "the high priest" to distinguish him from some other Annas. Abp. Newcome.

—— of the kindred of the high priest,] Of the race of the high priest; that is, of the family out of which the high priests were chosen. Bp. Pearce.

8. — filled with the Holy Ghost,] Being endued by the Holy Ghost with extraordinary readiness of speech, (such as was promised, Matt. x. 19, 20;) and with great confidence and boldness. Dr. Hammond.

11. This is the stone] This Jesus is the stone. See note at Matt. xxi. 42.

12. Neither is there salvation in any other:] By Him, and Him only, salvation must now be hoped for by all; for there is no other religion, by which salvation can be procured for those who do not embrace the religion of Jesus when it is preached to them. Dr. Hammond.

—— none other name under heaven] It appears from this passage that the invocation of the Virgin Mary, or any other saint, either for eternal salvation or for relief from bodily disease, is not only useless, but sinful. Bp. Mann.

When the Apostle speaks of eternal salvation as attainable by Jesus Christ only, he is not so to be understood as if Christ brought any man to heaven at once, without first leading him in the way thither. For the salvation here spoken of begins in this life. Christ first saves us from our sins, both from the guilt and the power of them. He gives us repentance and grace to love and serve and honour God truly and faithfully in our generation; He applies the merits of His death to us for the pardon of our sins, and for our reconciliation with God: He makes us pure and humble and holy, every way meet to be partakers of the inheritance of the saints in light; and then, and not till then, He brings us to it. So that the whole of our salvation, from first to last, is begun, continued, and perfected, only by Him; none of us being able to do any thing towards it to any purpose, much less to attain the end of our faith, even the eternal salvation of our souls, without Him. Bp. Beveridge.

Christ is the Redeemer of the whole race of mankind from the guilt and corruption produced by the sin of Adam, and all are cleansed by His blood and restored to a possibility of happiness; yet a federal certainty of salvation, which is a most high and valuable privilege, is secured to true believers exclusively. None but Christians can enjoy the blessed hope of everlasting life upon the sure ground of promise; they alone look forward for the prize of their high calling, an inheritance incorruptible and undefiled. Nor does it follow that the benefits, which the virtuous heathen will derive from the incarnation of Christ, will be equal to those of the sincere Christian. Christ tells us, that in His Father's house there are many mansions; and it seems contradictory neither to reason nor to Scripture to suppose that different persons will hereafter enjoy different degrees of happiness, although they may be all eternal, and all certainly purchased by the precious blood of our blessed Redeemer. Bp. Tomline.

13. — that they were unlearned and ignorant men,] This was for three centuries the great objection brought against the professors of Christianity. But the fact of the early Apostles being for the most part unlearned and ignorant men is a great confirmation of the Christian faith, proving that it was not of human but of Divine original, and that, under the assistance of its Divine Author, the ignorant and unlearned became wise. Dr. Whitby.

Anno DOMINI 33.

14 And beholding the man which was healed standing with them, they could say nothing against it.

15 But when they had commanded them to go aside out of the council, they conferred among themselves,

16 Saying, What shall we do to these men? for that indeed a notable miracle hath been done by them is manifest to all them that dwell in Jerusalem; and we cannot deny it.

17 But that it spread no further among the people, let us straitly threaten them, that they speak henceforth to no man in this name.

18 And they called them, and commanded them not to speak at all nor teach in the name of Jesus.

19 But Peter and John answered and said unto them, Whether it be right in the sight of God to hearken unto you more than unto God, judge ye.

20 For we cannot but speak the things which we have seen and heard.

21 So when they had further threatened them, they let them go, finding nothing how they might punish them, because of the people: for all men glorified God for that which was done.

22 For the man was above forty years old, on whom this miracle of healing was shewed.

23 ¶ And being let go, they went to their own company, and reported all that the chief priests and elders had said unto them.

24 And when they heard that, they lifted up their voice to God with one accord, and said, Lord, thou art God, which hast made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and all that in them is:

Anno DOMINI 33.

25 Who by the mouth of thy servant David hast said, [b] Why did the heathen rage, and the people imagine vain things? [b] Ps. 2. 1.

26 The kings of the earth stood up, and the rulers were gathered together against the Lord, and against his Christ.

27 For of a truth against thy holy child Jesus, whom thou hast anointed, both Herod, and Pontius Pilate, with the Gentiles, and the people of Israel, were gathered together,

28 For to do whatsoever thy hand and thy counsel determined before to be done.

29 And now, Lord, behold their threatenings: and grant unto thy servants, that with all boldness they may speak thy word,

30 By stretching forth thine hand to heal; and that signs and wonders may be done by the name of thy holy child Jesus.

31 ¶ And when they had prayed, the place was shaken where they were assembled together; and they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and they spake the word of God with boldness.

32 And the multitude of them that believed were of one heart and of one soul: neither said any of them that ought of the things which he possessed was his own; but they had all things common.

33 And with great power gave the apostles witness of the resurrection of the Lord Jesus: and great grace was upon them all.

21.—finding nothing how they might punish them,] Rather, "not finding how they might punish them;" that is, being at a loss to find out a manner in which they might punish them, because of the people. Bp. Pearce.

25.—Why did the heathen &c.] See notes at Ps. ii. 1, 2.

26.—and against his Christ.] "His anointed;" which is the meaning of the name Christ.

27.—against thy holy child Jesus, whom thou hast anointed,] Against Thy holy Son and Servant Jesus, whom Thou hast sent to be the Messiah of the world. Dr. Hammond.

——with the Gentiles,] With the Roman soldiers. Dr. Whitby.

28. For to do whatsoever thy hand &c.] To perpetrate the death of Christ, and thus unintentionally to become the instruments of God's gracious providence, who determined to give His only Son to die for all mankind. Dr. Hammond.

As St. Peter and St. Paul, by calling the Jews to repentance for this sin in crucifying the Lord of Life, shew that their sin was not the less, because they by it fulfilled the counsel of God's holy will and kind intentions to mankind, so do they consequently shew that God's foreknowledge of a thing future does not impair the liberty of men's wills in the accomplishment of it. Dr. Whitby.

31.—they were all filled with the Holy Ghost,] Were endowed with special and eminent gifts of God's Holy Spirit. Dr. Hammond.

The effusion of the Holy Spirit, which immediately followed the supernatural concussion of the house where the Apostles were assembled, gave full and perfect evidence of the Divine inspiration: "they were all filled with the Holy Ghost." New powers of exertion were distributed to the Apostles, adequate to the trying scenes they should be called upon to sustain: they felt an unknown energy take possession of their minds, and "they spake the word of God with boldness." From this moment the meek and humble followers of Christ assume a new character. Their humility and meekness indeed do not desert them; but to these are added other qualities, absolutely necessary for the great and important undertakings to which they are called. The influence of the Holy Spirit, as we shall find in the subsequent history, supported them in circumstances from which the mere fishermen would have shrunk. Brewster.

32.—that ought—which he possessed was his own;] That is, was his own only, or so much his own, as not to be at the service of other believers who stood in need of relief out of them. See chap. ii. 45. Bp. Pearce.

33.—with great power] Of words and of miracles. Abp. Newcome.

——and great grace was upon them all.] Meaning, that all the believers were in high esteem among the common people. See chap. ii. 47. Bp. Pearce. Or, that the grace of God was plentifully bestowed upon them, which appeared in the most perfect unity of sentiment, and unbounded affection and liberality towards each other. Bp. Mann.

Anno DOMINI 33.

34 Neither was there any among them that lacked: for as many as were possessors of lands or houses sold them, and brought the prices of the things that were sold,

35 And laid them down at the apostles' feet: and distribution was made unto every man according as he had need.

36 And Joses, who by the apostles was surnamed Barnabas, (which is, being interpreted, The son of consolation,) a Levite, and of the country of Cyprus, 37 Having land, sold it, and brought the money, and laid it at the apostles' feet.

CHAP. V.

1 After that Ananias and Sapphira his wife for their hypocrisy at Peter's rebuke had fallen down dead, 12 and that the rest of the apostles had wrought many miracles, 14 to the increase of the faith: 17 the apostles are again imprisoned, 19 but delivered by an angel bidding them to preach openly to all: 21 when, after their teaching accordingly in the temple, 29 and before the council, 33 they are in danger to be killed, through the advice of Gamaliel, a great counseller among the Jews, they be kept alive, 40 and are but beaten: for which they glorify God, and cease no day from preaching.

Anno DOMINI 33.

BUT a certain man named Ananias, with Sapphira his wife, sold a possession,

2 And kept back part of the price, his wife also being privy to it, and brought a certain part, and laid it at the apostles' feet.

3 But Peter said, Ananias, why hath Satan filled thine heart ‖ to lie to the Holy Ghost, and to keep back part of the price of the land?

‖ Or, to deceive.

4 Whiles it remained, was it not thine own? and after it was sold, was it not in thine own power? why hast thou conceived

---

35. — and distribution was made unto every man &c.] That is, to every man in the Christian society. Here, we should observe, was an occasion which interested men would have improved to their own advantage, by urging the continuance of this community of goods, as a duty, and cautiously reserving to themselves the management of the fund it supplied, as the most valuable appendage of their ministry; on the other hand, enthusiasts would have probably encouraged this neglect of temporal concerns with avidity, as suited to the fervour of religious zeal, which in their eyes would form the highest merit. Not so the Apostles: of this community of goods they took no advantage; they distributed to each as they had need; they reserved to themselves, if any thing, certainly no more than supplied the present necessaries of life, as appears from their subsequent and continued poverty; and even present necessaries they frequently procured by their own labour. Dr. Graves.

36. — Joses, — surnamed Barnabas, — The son of consolation,)] Perhaps this name, considering the occasion on which it was imposed, was an honourable acknowledgment of his charity in selling his whole estate for the relief of the poor Christians, and on account of the consolation they received thereby. Nelson.

Barnabas was afterwards associated with St. Paul in the labours of the ministry, being the first who introduced him to the Apostles; and from his zeal and good conduct well deserved the praise here bestowed upon him. Dr. Stack.

—— of the country of Cyprus,] An island in the eastern part of the Mediterranean sea, not far from the coast of Phenicia. Bp. Pearce.

We may observe, that the two Apostles of the Gentiles have Gentile countries for their native soil; St. Paul having been born in Cilicia, St. Barnabas in Cyprus. Dr. Lightfoot.

37. Having land,] According to the law mentioned at Numb. xviii. 20, &c. a Levite could have no inheritance in Israel; which only means, however, that the Levites, as a tribe, were not to have a share in the division of Canaan among the other tribes. It did not prevent a Levite from holding lands in Judea by purchase, or otherwise, or in foreign countries. Bp. Pearce.

—— and laid it at the apostles' feet.] Perhaps he was the first that did so; or his land was the most valuable; or, because he was a Levite, he is thus distinguished by name from the rest for what he did. Bp. Pearce.

Chap. V. ver. 2. — kept back part of the price, &c.] The foundation of Ananias's crime was covetousness, and the effect of that covetousness was a distrust of that maintenance which he was to enjoy in common with the whole Church; and the actual crime which this covetous disposition put him upon committing, was a fraudulent attempt to deceive the Apostles and the Church, by endeavouring to procure a maintenance for himself at the publick expense, while at the same time he privately retained to himself that which ought to have been put into the publick stock, in order to entitle him to receive from it his common proportion. Dr. S. Clarke.

3. — why hath Satan filled thine heart] It was no extenuation of his fault that he committed it by suffering Satan to fill his heart. For, where the crime is plain, and there is no room for an errour of the judgment, as in the case of deliberate fraud, there it is no more an excuse that a person is tempted by the devil, than that he is tempted by the profit or gain of the sin; and his being prevailed on by that temptation is so far from being an excuse, that it constitutes indeed the very nature and essence of the sin, his consenting to yield to that temptation, which could have had no power over him, but by his own consent. Dr. S. Clarke.

—— filled thine heart] Emboldened thee. Dr. Hammond. "Filled thy heart" is a Hebrew phrase, found in Esther vii. 5, and Eccles. viii. 11, in the original. Bp. Pearce.

—— to lie to the Holy Ghost,] To endeavour to impose on us, to whom the Holy Ghost has given the power of discerning spirits, (1 Cor. xii. 10,) and detecting the most secret evil intentions of the mind. Bp. Mann.

3, 4. — to the Holy Ghost, — unto God.] It is seen that, in this passage, lying to the Holy Ghost is stated to be the same thing as lying to God; a clear proof that the Holy Ghost is truly God, of the same substance with the Father and the Son. Bp. Burnett.

4. Whiles it remained, &c.] Whilst it remained unsold. Dr. Whitby. The obvious sense of St. Peter's words is, that Ananias might, if he had pleased, have kept to himself either his estate or his money; for none compelled him to sell it at all; and, after it was sold, if he was disposed to keep the price to himself, none compelled him to deposit it in the Apostles' hands. But, when he professed to bring the whole into the publick stock of the Church, then to keep back part by a fraudulent lie, was evidently a crying sin. Dr. S. Clarke.

The sin of Ananias was a lying to, or breaking promise with, God; for, having vowed or promised to Him in his heart the whole price of the field, he brought Him but a part of it. And, as the vow and promise which he broke was not such as men could witness or notice, but such as his own heart and conscience only was privy to; hence it is said to have been made under the privity of the Holy Ghost; and he, in the breach of it, is said to have lied unto Him; because that which none but the inward man knoweth, and is yet only in the purpose of the heart, is under His privity. Jos. Mede.

Anno DOMINI 33.

this thing in thine heart? thou hast not lied unto men, but unto God.

5 And Ananias hearing these words fell down, and gave up the ghost: and great fear came on all them that heard these things.

6 And the young men arose, wound him up, and carried him out, and buried him.

7 And it was about the space of three hours after, when his wife, not knowing what was done, came in.

8 And Peter answered unto her, Tell me whether ye sold the land for so much? And she said, Yea, for so much.

9 Then Peter said unto her, How is it that ye have agreed together to tempt the Spirit of the Lord? behold, the feet of them which have buried thy husband are at the door, and shall carry thee out.

10 Then fell she down straightway at his feet, and yielded up the ghost: and the young men came in, and found her dead, and, carrying her forth, buried her by her husband.

Anno DOMINI 33.

11 And great fear came upon all the church, and upon as many as heard these things.

12 ¶ And by the hands of the apostles were many signs and wonders wrought among the people; (and they were all with one accord in Solomon's porch.

13 And of the rest durst no man join himself to them: but the people magnified them.

14 And believers were the more added to the Lord, multitudes both of men and women.)

15 Insomuch that they brought forth the sick ‖ into the streets, and laid them on beds and couches, that at the least the shadow of Peter passing by might overshadow some of them.

‖ Or, in every street.

16 There came also a multitude out of the cities round about unto Jerusalem, —— thou hast not lied unto men, but unto God.] Thou hast lied not only unto men, but likewise and especially unto God, the Searcher of hearts, and the Avenger of all wickedness. Bp. Mann. Among the many aggravations of Ananias's crime, the most striking is the presumptuousness of attempting to deceive those persons whom he believed and knew to be inspired by the Spirit of God. By imposing upon the Apostles, he attempted, as far as in him lay, to deceive the Holy Ghost; and an attempt to deceive the Holy Ghost was an attempt to deceive God Himself. Dr. S. Clarke.

6. — wound him up,] In linen clothes for his burial. See John xi. 44; xix. 40; xx. 6, 7. Bp. Pearce.

8. — for so much?] This he said, specifying the sum which Ananias had brought. Abp. Newcome.

9. — to tempt the Spirit of the Lord?] To try whether the Spirit of the Lord in us was able to detect your fraud. Dr. Whitby.

10. Then fell she down straightway] The action committed by Ananias and Sapphira was vain-glorious, covetous, fraudulent, impious, and greatly aggravated in those who had probably shared the gifts of the Spirit, (chap. iv. 31,) and seen miracles wrought by the Apostles, chap. ii. 43; iii. 6; iv. 33. Their punishment displayed the knowledge, power, and divine mission of those who were inspired by the Holy Spirit, and deterred interested persons from joining the Christians, in order to partake of their goods and alms. Abp. Newcome.

It was in order to deter hypocrites and liars from joining the infant Church from mercenary motives, for the purpose of being maintained out of the common stock, that the Holy Spirit, as the Protector of the Church, took cognizance of their complicated crime, by means of that faculty of discerning spirits, with which He endued St. Peter, and Himself punished both the offenders, on the spot, with death. Dr. Hales.

It has sometimes been objected by unbelievers, that Ananias and Sapphira were treated with great cruelty and injustice. But such objection can only arise from a want of considering the great heinousness of their guilt, and the necessity which existed of such an example of punishment. These two persons, although they had seen the wonderful effects of the effusion of the Holy Ghost on the disciples, yet imagined that they were able to deceive the Apostles and that Holy Spirit by whom they were guided. Herein was a great complication of crimes. Though it was entirely at their own choice whether they should sell their estates, and surrender the money into the Apostles' hands, yet such was their love of money, combined with their pride or ostentation, that, while they wished to appear to the world to have brought their all, they secretly retained a part, and would have afterwards lived upon the common stock, as if they had bestowed all they had; which would have been a constant robbery both of God and man. To conceal this act, they were guilty of dissembling and lying. And to whom did they lie? not to the Apostles only, but to God. They vainly hoped that their avarice and hypocrisy were unknown to God Himself; and that they might securely make profession of offering Him their all, when, in truth, they offered but a part. It was highly fitting that, in the first rise of Christianity, such aggravated and complicated guilt as this should meet with exemplary punishment, that all might hear and fear. It was indeed necessary that the Holy Spirit of God, under whose direction the Apostles were, should, at such a time as this, discover His knowledge of the most secret crimes, in order to assert His omniscience, establish the authority of the Apostles, and give clear demonstration of the truth and certainty of the doctrines they preached. Biscoe.

12. — (and they were all &c.] This remark, that all the Christian disciples met thus in Solomon's porch, seems to be thrown in, to shew how boldly they professed belief in Jesus. Abp. Newcome.

13. And of the rest durst no man &c.] Of those who were unconverted, none durst hypocritically join himself to them for the purpose of receiving their alms; but, on the contrary, "the people magnified them;" that is, instead of attempting to deceive them by false pretences, or at all mingling with them, held them in high honour, and kept at an awful distance from them. Abp. Newcome.

15. Insomuch that &c.] This verse depends on, and is connected with, the first part of the twelfth; the intermediate words being rightly made a parenthesis in our English translation. Bp. Pearce.

—— that at the least the shadow of Peter &c.] It is left here wholly uncertain whether it was the faith of believers, or the superstition of the Jews, which had such expectation from the shadow of St. Peter, and whether any cures were really wrought in this manner, or not. Dr. Whitby.

Perhaps those who brought out their sick did not know the persons of the other Apostles, besides St. Peter. They had heard him speaking, and seen him acting, while the rest were silent and sat still. That which these believers here do, does not so much argue that he was pre-eminent above the rest of the Apostles, as that he was more known than the rest. Dr. Lightfoot.

Anno DOMINI 33.

bringing sick folks, and them which were vexed with unclean spirits: and they were healed every one.

17 ¶ Then the high priest rose up, and all they that were with him, (which is the sect of the Sadducees,) and were filled with

‖ Or, envy.

‖ indignation,

18 And laid their hands on the apostles, and put them in the common prison.

19 But the angel of the Lord by night opened the prison doors, and brought them forth, and said,

20 Go, stand and speak in the temple to the people all the words of this life.

21 And when they heard that, they entered into the temple early in the morning, and taught. But the high priest came, and they that were with him, and called the council together, and all the senate of the children of Israel, and sent to the prison to have them brought.

22 But when the officers came, and found them not in the prison, they returned, and told,

23 Saying, The prison truly found we shut with all safety, and the keepers standing without before the doors: but when we had opened, we found no man within.

24 Now when the high priest and the captain of the temple and the chief priests heard these things, they doubted of them whereunto this would grow.

25 Then came one and told them, saying, Behold, the men whom ye put in prison are standing in the temple, and teaching the people.

26 Then went the captain with the officers, and brought them without violence: for they feared the people, lest they should have been stoned.

Anno DOMINI 33.

27 And when they had brought them, they set them before the council: and the high priest asked them,

28 Saying, [a] Did not we straitly command you that ye should not teach in this name? and, behold, ye have filled Jerusalem with your doctrine, and intend to bring this man's blood upon us.

[a] Chap. 4. 18.

29 ¶ Then Peter and the other apostles answered and said, We ought to obey God rather than men.

30 The God of our fathers raised up Jesus, whom ye slew and hanged on a tree.

31 Him hath God exalted with his right hand to be a Prince and a Saviour, for to give repentance to Israel, and forgiveness of sins.

32 And we are his witnesses of these things; and so is also the Holy Ghost, whom God hath given to them that obey him.

33 ¶ When they heard that, they were cut to the heart, and took counsel to slay them.

34 Then stood there up one in the council, a Pharisee, named Gamaliel, a doctor of the law, had in reputation among all the people, and commanded to put the apostles forth a little space;

35 And said unto them, Ye men of Israel, take heed to yourselves what ye intend to do as touching these men.

---

17. —(which is the sect of the Sadducees,)] It may seem remarkable, that, as St. Luke here intimates, the high priest was a Sadducee, which is a character one would not expect to meet with in that station. The circumstance, however, remarkable as it is, is not without other examples. Josephus mentions two instances of a high priest belonging to that sect. Archdeacon Paley.

20. —all the words of this life.] Of this life, which I have commissioned you to preach, and which the Sadducees deny. Dr. Whitby. "Of this life;" that is, of this life eternal, lately revealed through Jesus Christ, whose ministers ye are. Dr. Stack.

These words are fully explained by St. Peter's expression to Christ, "Lord, to whom shall we go? Thou hast the words of eternal life," John vi. 68. Dr. Hammond.

21. —and all the senate of the children of Israel,] That is, all the elders of the city of Jerusalem, and those of other cities, who had come up to the feast. Grotius.

23. —we found no man within.] How unsuccessful are the projects of the wisest statesmen, when God frowns upon them! How little do any counsels against Heaven prosper! In vain is it to shut the doors, where God is resolved to open them; the firmest bars, the strongest chains, cannot hold, where once God has designed and decreed our liberty. Dr. Cave.

24. —they doubted of them whereunto this would grow.] They were perplexed with amazement and doubts concerning these things, and debated among themselves what would be the consequence of them. Bp. Mann.

28. —to bring this man's blood upon us.] To lay the blood of this man (of Jesus) to our charge, and thus to raise the people against us, as against murderers. Dr. Hammond.

30—32. The God of our fathers &c.] St. Peter here repeats a summary of the doctrine they preached; namely, that the God of Israel, whom they all acknowledged, has raised the very Jesus whom they had crucified, and exalted Him to the highest degree of heavenly glory, as the Messiah and Saviour of mankind; that He had now offered to them and to the whole world pardon and happiness, on the condition of repentance and a sincere profession of His religion: that they, His Apostles, were eyewitnesses, both of His resurrection and ascension, and had sufficiently confirmed them by the powers of the Holy Ghost. Pyle.

31. —to be a Prince and a Saviour, &c.] To be the Prince "of life," chap. iii. 15, and "of salvation," Heb. ii. 10. He is said to be exalted to give repentance and remission of sins, by affording the knowledge of that remission of sins which is promised to the penitent, and of those motives which should induce them to repent. Dr. Whitby.

33. —they were cut to the heart,] At this indeed we need not be surprised: for what is so cutting as a true charge of guilt; and what so bitter as to have such a charge brought, when persons cannot answer it? Dr. S. Clarke.

34. —a Pharisee, named Gamaliel,] Gamaliel was the tutor of St. Paul, chap. xxii. 3, and was called Rabban Gamaliel, a title of the highest eminency, and given, as the Jews say, only to seven persons; which sufficiently shews the reputation he had among the people. Dr. Whitby.

Anno DOMINI 33. The Third Year before the Account called Anno Domini.

36 For before these days rose up Theudas, boasting himself to be somebody; to whom a number of men, about four hundred, joined themselves: who was slain; and all, as many as ‖ obeyed him, were scattered, and brought to nought.

‖ Or, believed.

37 After this man rose up Judas of Galilee in the days of the taxing, and drew away much people after him: he also perished; and all, even as many as obeyed him, were dispersed.

38 And now I say unto you, Refrain from these men, and let them alone: for if this counsel or this work be of men, it will come to nought:

39 But if it be of God, ye cannot overthrow it; lest haply ye be found even to fight against God.

40 And to him they agreed: and when they had called the apostles, and beaten them, they commanded that they should not speak in the name of Jesus, and let them go.

Anno DOMINI 33.

41 ¶ And they departed from the presence of the council, rejoicing that they were counted worthy to suffer shame for his name.

42 And daily in the temple, and in every house, they ceased not to teach and preach Jesus Christ.

CHAP. VI.

1 The apostles, desirous to have the poor regarded for their bodily sustenance, as also careful themselves to dispense the word of God, the food of the soul, 3 appoint the office of deaconship to seven chosen men. 5 Of whom Stephen, a man full of faith, and of the Holy Ghost, is one. 12 Who is taken of those, whom he confounded in disputing, 13 and after falsely accused of blasphemy against the law and the temple.

AND in those days, when the number of the disciples was multiplied, there arose a murmuring of the Grecians against

---

36. —before these days rose up Theudas, &c.] It has sometimes been made an objection to the accuracy of St. Luke here, that an impostor of the name of Theudas is mentioned by the Jewish historian Josephus as having appeared in Judea in the fourth year of the emperour Claudius, many years after the speech here made by Gamaliel. But such an objection can be considered of no real weight. Probably, there were two impostors of this name, who appeared at these different periods; in support of which opinion it is to be observed, that the circumstances mentioned by the two authors considerably differ. It is certain also that Theudas was a name at that time common among the Jews; and Josephus himself informs us, that many insurrections took place in these times, several of which he evidently passes over. Thus there can be little doubt that different persons are intended by St. Luke and Josephus. But we should bear in mind, that, even if there was a real discrepancy between these two writers, there could not be the least doubt that we ought to prefer the authority of an inspired writer to that of Josephus, in matters to which he was not an eyewitness. Biscoe.

——boasting himself to be somebody;] Setting himself up for the king of the Jews. Bp. Pearce.

37. —Judas of Galilee in the days of the taxing,] "The taxing," during which Judas of Galilee stirred up the people to an insurrection, was ten years subsequent to that mentioned at Luke ii. 1, 2, when our Saviour was born. The pretence of this Judas of Galilee for rising in arms, and encouraging his followers to insurrection, was, as Josephus relates, that it was a mark of slavery in them to pay tribute to the Romans, and to acknowledge any mortals for their masters, when God alone was their master. Bp. Pearce.

38. —if this counsel or this work be of men, it will come to nought: &c.] The miraculous propagation and final establishment of Christianity, the triumphs it has obtained over obstacles the most formidable, and the effects it has produced by instruments in appearance the most inadequate, have been frequently urged as decisive proofs of its divinity and truth. In support of this argument, the famous maxim of Gamaliel, in his advice to the Jewish council, is sometimes adduced. But with whatever propriety the text may be applied to the particular case of Christianity, the general principle is not to be admitted without many exact and interesting distinctions. Success alone is no certain criterion of the truth and divinity of any religious system; no absolute proof of the concurrence and approbation of Heaven. It appears, as well from experience that errour often does, as from the nature and constitution of man that it sometimes must, prevail in the world; and consequently that the establishment of any religious system, when considered by itself, determines nothing with regard to the truth of its doctrines, or the superiour authority of its sanctions. What is uncommon must not be confounded with what is supernatural; what can be accounted for by human means must not be hastily and indiscriminately ascribed to Divine. Success, which is not only compatible with the existence of a revelation immediately proceeding from God, but even inseparable from it in our ideas, must not be insisted on as directly and properly demonstrative of the source, whence any religion flowed. But when the advocate for Christianity argues in its behalf, that so many thousands were on a sudden converted to the faith, that the religion of Christ so widely and so auspiciously spread its influence over a large portion of the habitable world; the force of this argument is derived, not from the mere prevalence of Christianity, but from its prevalence under those peculiar circumstances, in which the Gospel, at its first preaching, appears to have been placed. Dr. White.

40. And to him they agreed:] The decided countenance given by the respectable and dignified Gamaliel to the rising sect of Christians, partly we may suppose from conviction, since he was the son of the pious old Simeon, who took Christ in his arms, when an infant, and hailed Him by inspiration as the promised Saviour, Luke ii. 25—32, and partly from opposition to the ruling sect of the Sadducees, produced a considerable revolution in the minds of the upper ranks. And to this we may in good measure ascribe the great progress the new religion made among the priests, of whom a great crowd submitted to the faith soon after, chap. vi. 7; also among the Pharisees, whom we find among the Judaizing teachers of the church, chap. xv. 5, and who further supported St. Paul (the pupil of Gamaliel) against the Sadducees in council, and upon the very plea urged by Gamaliel on the occasion. "If a spirit or angel hath spoken to him, let us not fight against God," chap. xxii. 3; xxiii. 9. Dr. Hales.

41. —rejoicing that they were counted worthy &c.] Although scourging was a servile and ignominious punishment, they were so far from being ashamed of it, that they rejoiced and blessed God for the honour of suffering in so glorious a cause. Pyle.

Chap. VI. ver. 1. —in those days,] In the days, of which St. Luke had been speaking in the foregoing chapter. Bp. Pearce.

——of the Grecians against the Hebrews,] By "the Hebrews" are here meant, those Jews converted to Christianity, who were natives of Judea. By "the Grecians" are meant, those Jews converted to Christianity, who belonged to other countries, and for the Hebrews, because their widows were neglected in the daily ministration.

Anno DOMINI 33.

2 Then the twelve called the multitude of the disciples unto them, and said, It is not reason that we should leave the word of God, and serve tables.

3 Wherefore, brethren, look ye out among you seven men of honest report, full of the Holy Ghost and wisdom, whom we may appoint over this business.

4 But we will give ourselves continually to prayer, and to the ministry of the word.

5 ¶ And the saying pleased the whole multitude: and they chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Ghost, and Philip, and Prochorus, and Nicanor, and Timon, and Parmenas, and Nicolas a proselyte of Antioch:

Anno DOMINI 33.

6 Whom they set before the apostles: and when they had prayed, they laid their hands on them.

7 And the word of God increased; and the number of the disciples multiplied in Jerusalem greatly; and a great company of the priests were obedient to the faith.

8 And Stephen, full of faith and power, did great wonders and miracles among the people.

9 ¶ Then there arose certain of the synagogue, which is called the synagogue whose use the Scriptures were translated from the Hebrew into the Greek language, at that time the most general in the world. Bp. Mann.

---

As an intercourse was maintained between these Grecian Jews and their mother country, they were indulged with synagogues and other advantages at Jerusalem. The supposed partiality of the natives (who were much more numerous) to their own widows, gave rise to the present complaint. Dr. Stack.

—— in the daily ministration.] Of provisions made for poor widows belonging to the church, 1 Tim. v. 16. Dr. Whitby.

2. — It is not reason &c.] It is not reasonable that we should leave the preaching of the word of God, and be daily employed in making provision for the poor. Dr. Whitby.

—— serve tables.] That is, attend to the collection and distribution of alms for the poor. The "tables" here mentioned are those on which money was paid and received. Schleusner.

3. Wherefore,— look ye out among you seven men &c.] This total abdication, on the part of the Apostles, of all interference with the pecuniary concerns of the society, and even with the selection of persons appointed to conduct them, was undoubtedly the most effectual measure which prudence could suggest to honesty, for totally removing every possibility of obloquy and suspicion. But it was such a measure as interested men would not have consented to. Dr. Graves.

The appointment was prudently left to others, that no suspicion of interested views might fall on the Apostles. Abp. Newcome.

This office of deacons, to whom the charge and care of the poor was entrusted, was transferred from the Jewish to the Christian church: for there belonged to every synagogue three deacons, to whom that charge belonged. Dr. Lightfoot.

The care of the poor, although a main part of the deacons' office, was not the whole; for, if this had been all, the Apostles need not have been so exact in their choice of persons, nor have used such solemn rites of consecration, to ordain them to it. The deacons had also authority to preach and baptize, as appears from the example of St. Philip, one of the seven. Nelson.

5. — a proselyte of Antioch:] By "proselyte" seems here to be meant, not merely a "proselyte of the gate," with whom the Jews held no communication, (chap. x. 2, 28,) but one who had been circumcised, and observed the whole law of Moses. Bp. Pearce.

6. — they laid their hands on them.] We should observe, that, 1st, the Apostles desire the multitude to look out, or select the seven persons, ver. 3. 2d, They themselves specify the number and the qualifications of the persons to be chosen to the office. 3d, They reserve to themselves the appointment of them, "Look ye out men whom we may appoint." And lastly, they alone lay their hands upon them to consecrate them to the office. Thus there is nothing whatever in this account which favours the authority of the laity in choosing persons to sacred offices. Dr. Whitby. See notes at chap. xiii. 3; xiv. 23.

A very remarkable corruption of this text was introduced into many editions of the English Bibles, especially about the time of the great rebellion. Instead of "whom we may appoint," they gave the words, "whom ye may appoint;" and this was done to favour the opinions of particular sectaries. But it is sufficiently evident from this passage, what is the power of the people in appointing ecclesiastical officers. They proposed, the Apostles approved and ordained; and that, as the text plainly shews, without calling in any other authority to make their acts valid, besides their own. Dr. Wotton.

By imposition of hands, the Apostles conveyed to others the spiritual powers they had received from their Master; and this custom has been regularly observed in all the succeeding ages of the church. Nelson. Our Saviour at first ordained His twelve Apostles according to the number of the tribes of the church of Israel. Afterwards, he ordained other seventy, according to the number of the elders whom Moses appointed as his assistants. When the church in Jerusalem was multiplied, seven deacons were ordained, by the laying on of the hands of the Apostles, to preach, and baptize, and minister in distributing the alms of the church. Here then we have three orders of men, each distinct from the other; the twelve Apostles, the seventy disciples, and the seven deacons; and by these the first Christian church in Jerusalem was governed and administered. Jones of Nayland.

As there is no nation in the world, where some kind of religion has not been professed, so there is no religion professed in the world, where there have not been some persons set apart for the celebration of the several rites and ceremonies appertaining to it, without which, indeed, it is impossible that any religion should subsist. For, if no places were set apart for the worship of God, men would soon worship Him no where; if no times, they would never worship Him; and so, if no persons were set apart for it, none would ever perform it, at least as they ought. Bp. Beveridge.

7. — a great company of the priests] The number of priests was great: there were more than 4000 priests who returned from the captivity, Ezra ii. 36—39. Beausobre.

—— were obedient to the faith.] That is, received and embraced the Gospel, which taught faith in Jesus. Bp. Pearce.

8. And Stephen, full of faith and power, &c.] In times of difficulty and danger God calls forth His own ministers, and bestows upon them such talents, as are necessary to accomplish the great purposes of His will. Such was St. Stephen, one of the new order of deacons, who is represented as "full of faith and power," richly adorned with evangelical graces, and such precious gifts of the Spirit, as enabled Him to do "great wonders and miracles among the people." This holy and intrepid character was the first who was called to the high honour of martyrdom: the only one of the first converts of the church, the manner of whose death is related at large in the sacred Scriptures. Brewster.

No day is appointed by our Church for the celebration of any other than the principal saints mentioned in the New Testament, it being hard to stop, if more were added. And amongst these St. Stephen is the only one, who stands solely on the foot of being a martyr: as indeed it was fit, that the foremost, the leader, of that "noble army" should be distinguished, and chosen, as it were, to represent the rest. Abp. Secker.

Anno DOMINI 33.

of the Libertines, and Cyrenians, and Alexandrians, and of them of Cilicia and of Asia, disputing with Stephen.

10 And they were not able to resist the wisdom and the spirit by which he spake.

11 Then they suborned men, which said, We have heard him speak blasphemous words against Moses, and against God.

12 And they stirred up the people, and the elders, and the scribes, and came upon him, and caught him, and brought him to the council,

13 And set up false witnesses, which said, This man ceaseth not to speak blasphemous words against this holy place, and the law:

14 For we have heard him say, that this Jesus of Nazareth shall destroy this place, and shall change the ‖ customs which Moses delivered us.

‖ Or, rites.

15 And all that sat in the council, looking stedfastly on him, saw his face as it had been the face of an angel.

CHAP. VII.

Anno DOMINI 33.

1 Stephen, permitted to answer to the accusation of blasphemy, 2 sheweth that Abraham worshipped God rightly, and how God chose the fathers 20 before Moses was born, and before the tabernacle and temple were built: 37 that Moses himself witnessed of Christ: 44 and that all outward ceremonies were ordained according to the heavenly pattern, to last but for a time: 51 reprehending their rebellion, and murdering of Christ, the Just One, whom the prophets foretold should come into the world. 54 Whereupon they stone him to death, who commendeth his soul to Jesus, and humbly prayeth for them.

THEN said the high priest, Are these things so?

2 And he said, Men, brethren, and fathers, hearken; The God of glory appeared unto our father Abraham, when he was in Mesopotamia, before he dwelt in Charran,

3 And said unto him, [a] Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and come into the land which I shall shew thee.

[a] Gen. 12. 1.

---

9. — of the Libertines,] By these are commonly understood to be here meant, the children of Jews who, having been slaves at Rome, had obtained their freedom. Tacitus speaks of 4000 such, who were banished to Sardinia. This description of persons built a synagogue at Jerusalem, where, as the Jews say, there were 480 synagogues. Grotius. Otherwise, as some think, the Libertines were named from Libertina, a city in Africa. Bp. Pearce, Dr. Hales.

—— disputing with Stephen.] Every considerable synagogue had an academy where young persons exercised themselves under their rabbies in the study of traditions. Beausobre.

10. And they were not able to resist &c.] So exactly was the promise made by Christ, Matt. x. 20; Luke xxi. 15, fulfilled in St. Stephen. Dr. Whitby.

14. — this Jesus of Nazareth shall destroy this place, &c.] He had probably spoken of the destruction of the temple, which Jesus had foretold to His disciples; a necessary consequence of which was, that some of the customs and rites, particularly that of sacrifices, were to be changed. Bp. Pearce.

Though these persons were calumniators, and endeavoured to support a charge of disaffection at least, if not of rebellion, against St. Stephen, it is probable he might have said something which gave occasion to the accusation; as he might, consistently with Christian prophecy, have mentioned the approaching destruction of Jerusalem, and the inferiority of the ceremonial to the moral law. For this was one reason why the unbelieving Jews hated the disciples of Christ so implacably, because they did not prophesy good concerning the nation, but evil. Dr. Jortin.

15. — as it had been the face of an angel.] This is a Jewish phrase, to express something more than ordinarily sweet, graceful, and majestick. Bp. Pearce. Or perhaps it pleased God to give his eyes and countenance a supernatural brightness, which commanded extraordinary attention and respect. Bp. Mann.

Chap. VII. ver. 2. And he said, Men, brethren, &c.] St. Stephen was charged with declaring that the temple was to be destroyed, and the Jewish ceremonies and customs to be abolished, to make way for the religion of Christ. This charge he admits to be true; and for his justification appeals to several instances of the Jewish history, which prove that God did not confine His favour to any particular place, nor intend the rites and ceremonies of the law of Moses to be perpetual. Bp. Mann.

From the imputation of blasphemy St. Stephen vindicates himself, by an historical account of the most memorable actions and events from Abraham down to Solomon: the design whereof is to shew, that the law, for which the Jews at this time expressed so fierce a zeal, was not of that consequence and necessity, which they imagined. And this proof may be reduced to these three reasons. 1st, Because (as is plain from the history of Abraham and the Patriarchs) their ancestors pleased God, and continued in His favour, for more than four hundred years without it. Since therefore these were God's peculiar and elect people, before that law was given, it follows, that this law could not be the covenant and dispensation for saving men, exclusive of all others. 2d, Because the very Prophet, at whose hands they received the law, gave them warning of another eminent Prophet, whom God (in ages to come) would raise up from among them, like unto him, (that is, a lawgiver too,) and to whom every soul among them was commanded, upon pain of utter destruction, to yield attention and obedience: consequently, preaching the faith and obedience of Jesus, who was that very Prophet, could not be blasphemy against God or Moses; but had a direct tendency to magnify both, by leading men to Him, whom God had decreed, and Moses had foretold, to be the Saviour of all those who should submit to be taught by Him, and steadfastly place their hope and trust in Him. 3d, Because that law, for which they now pretended so great a reverence, was plainly insufficient to retain them in their duty: as appeared from the frequent relapses into rebellion and idolatry, with which their Prophets reproached them, and for which they threatened them with so many severe punishments. And, what rendered their offence the more aggravating, this was done, notwithstanding the presence of God perpetually among them, in the tabernacle first, and then in the temple: to which they were not to suppose He was so attached as to spare it from destruction, if the sins of the people called for vengeance. As therefore the ancient Prophets thought it no profanation of the law, or of that holy place, to denounce the abolition of the one, and the demolition of the other; neither was it any in St. Stephen to declare the extirpation of the former, and the utter ruin of the latter, to a generation of men, now ripe for destruction: such as had not only imitated, but far exceeded, the obstinacy and malice and cruelty of their forefathers. Dean Stanhope.

—— Men, brethren, and fathers,] The words should rather be rendered "Brethren and fathers," for the literal meaning of the Greek is, "Ye men who are my brethren, and fathers." He calls the scribes and elders "fathers," and the common people "brethren." Bp. Pearce.

—— in Charran,] Called Haran in Gen. xi. 31.

Anno DOMINI 33.

4 Then came he out of the land of the Chaldeans, and dwelt in Charran: and from thence, when his father was dead, he removed him into this land, wherein ye now dwell.

5 And he gave him none inheritance in it, no, not so much as to set his foot on: yet he promised that he would give it to him for a possession, and to his seed after him, when as yet he had no child.

6 And God spake on this wise, That his seed should sojourn in a strange land; and that they should bring them into bondage, and entreat them evil four hundred years.

7 And the nation to whom they shall be in bondage will I judge, said God: and after that shall they come forth, and serve me in this place.

[b] Gen. 17. 9.

8 [b] And he gave him the covenant of circumcision: [c] and so Abraham begat Isaac, and circumcised him the eighth day; [d] and Isaac begat Jacob; and [e] Jacob begat the twelve patriarchs.

[c] Gen. 21. 3.
[d] Gen. 25. 26.
[e] Gen. 29. 31.

9 [f] And the patriarchs, moved with envy, sold Joseph into Egypt: but God was with him,

[f] Gen. 37. 28.

10 And delivered him out of all his afflictions, [g] and gave him favour and wisdom in the sight of Pharaoh king of Egypt; and he made him governour over Egypt and all his house.

[g] Gen. 41. 37.

11 Now there came a dearth over all the land of Egypt and Chanaan, and great affliction: and our fathers found no sustenance.

[h] Gen. 42. 1.

12 [h] But when Jacob heard that there was corn in Egypt, he sent out our fathers first.

[i] Gen. 45. 4.

13 [i] And at the second time Joseph was made known to his brethren; and Joseph's kindred was made known unto Pharaoh.

Anno DOMINI 33.

14 Then sent Joseph, and called his father Jacob to him, and all his kindred, threescore and fifteen souls.

15 [k] So Jacob went down into Egypt, [l] and died, he, and our fathers,

[k] Gen. 46. 5.
[l] Gen. 49. 33.

16 And were carried over into Sychem, and laid in the sepulchre that Abraham bought for a sum of money of the sons of Emmor the father of Sychem.

17 But when the time of the promise drew nigh, which God had sworn to Abraham, the people grew and multiplied in Egypt,

18 Till another king arose, which knew not Joseph.

19 The same dealt subtilly with our kindred, and evil entreated our fathers, so that they cast out their young children, to the end they might not live.

20 [m] In which time Moses was born, and [n] was ‖ exceeding fair, and nourished up in his father's house three months:

[m] Exod. 2. 2.
[n] Heb. 11. 23.
‖ Or, fair to God.

21 And when he was cast out, Pharaoh's daughter took him up, and nourished him for her own son.

22 And Moses was learned in all the wisdom of the Egyptians, and was mighty in words and in deeds.

23 And when he was full forty years old, it came into his heart to visit his brethren the children of Israel.

24 [o] And seeing one of them suffer wrong, he defended him, and avenged him that was oppressed, and smote the Egyptian:

[o] Exod. 2. 11.

25 For he supposed his brethren would have understood how that God by his hand would deliver them: but they understood not.

---

5. And he gave him none inheritance] The small parcels of land which Abraham and Jacob enjoyed in Canaan, were purchased by them, and are therefore reckoned no part of God's gift. Bp. Pearce.

6. — entreat them evil four hundred years.] They were not evil entreated four hundred years, but they were for so long a time sojourners in a strange land; first in Canaan, and afterwards in Egypt. The children of Israel were in Egypt only two hundred and fifteen years; but from the time when Isaac was born, (in whom the promise began to take place which God made to Abraham, Gen. xv. 13,) to the time when the Israelites left Egypt, are computed four hundred and five years: which for the sake of a round number are called here, and in Gen. xv. 13, four hundred years. In Exod. xii. 40, and Gal. iii. 17, mention is made of four hundred and thirty years; but then the reckoning begins not at the birth of Isaac, but at the time when Abraham first went down into Egypt, namely, twenty-five years before the birth of Isaac; and this sum added to four hundred and five makes up the four hundred and thirty years. Bp. Pearce. See note at Gen. xv. 13.

14. — threescore and fifteen souls.] The Hebrew text at Gen. xlvi. 27, Deut. x. 22, mentions the number to be seventy; but the Greek translation gives the number in both these texts seventy-five; which number is made up either by including five sons of Ephraim and Manasseh born in Egypt, (from 1 Chron. vii,) or by including the wives of the Patriarchs who accompanied them. St. Stephen seems to take the number "threescore and fifteen" from the Greek copies. Dr. Whitby, Bp. Pearce.

16. — that Abraham bought] It is related at Gen. xxxiii. 19, and Josh. xxiv. 32, that Jacob bought the land, not Abraham. It appears, however, (see note at Gen. xxxiii. 20,) that Abraham had built an altar at Sychem, at the place afterwards purchased by Jacob. We may reasonably suppose therefore that the piece of ground had been formerly purchased by Abraham, while he sojourned in those parts, as a place for the burial of some of his family. Dr. Wells.

22. — in words] His words were weighty and forcible, though not eloquent or gracefully delivered. See Exod. iv. 10.

—— and in deeds.] Alluding to the miracles wrought by him. Abp. Newcome.

23. — to visit his brethren] With a view of assisting them against the Egyptians; the effect of which was, his "refusing to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter," as it is said that he did in Heb. xi. 24. Bp. Pearce.

Anno DOMINI 33.

26 [p] And the next day he shewed himself unto them as they strove, and would have set them at one again, saying, Sirs, ye are brethren; why do ye wrong one to another?

[p] Exod. 2. 13.

27 But he that did his neighbour wrong thrust him away, saying, Who made thee a ruler and a judge over us?

28 Wilt thou kill me, as thou diddest the Egyptian yesterday?

29 Then fled Moses at this saying, and was a stranger in the land of Madian, where he begat two sons.

[q] Exod. 3. 2.

30 [q] And when forty years were expired, there appeared to him in the wilderness of mount Sina an angel of the Lord in a flame of fire in a bush.

31 When Moses saw it, he wondered at the sight: and as he drew near to behold it, the voice of the Lord came unto him, 32 Saying, I am the God of thy fathers, the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. Then Moses trembled, and durst not behold.

33 Then said the Lord to him, Put off thy shoes from thy feet: for the place where thou standest is holy ground.

34 I have seen, I have seen the affliction of my people which is in Egypt, and I have heard their groaning, and am come down to deliver them. And now come, I will send thee into Egypt.

35 This Moses whom they refused, saying, Who made thee a ruler and a judge? the same did God send to be a ruler and a deliverer by the hand of the angel which appeared to him in the bush.

Anno DOMINI 33.

36 He brought them out, after that he had [r] shewed wonders and signs in the land of Egypt, and in the Red sea, [s] and in the wilderness forty years.

[r] Exod. 7. 9.

[s] Exod. 16. 1.

37 ¶ This is that Moses, which said unto the children of Israel, [t] A prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren, ‖ like unto me; him shall ye hear.

[t] Deut. 18. 15.

‖ Or, as myself.

38 [u] This is he, that was in the church in the wilderness with the angel which spake to him in the mount Sina, and with our fathers: who received the lively oracles to give unto us:

[u] Exod. 19. 3.

39 To whom our fathers would not obey, but thrust him from them, and in their hearts turned back again into Egypt,

40 [x] Saying unto Aaron, Make us gods to go before us: for as for this Moses, which brought us out of the land of Egypt, we wot not what is become of him.

[x] Exod. 32. 1.

41 And they made a calf in those days, and offered sacrifice unto the idol, and rejoiced in the works of their own hands.

42 Then God turned, and gave them up to worship the host of heaven; as it is written in the book of the prophets, [y] O ye house of Israel, have ye offered to me slain beasts and sacrifices by the space of forty years in the wilderness?

[y] Amos 5. 25.

43 Yea, ye took up the tabernacle of Moloch, and the star of your god Remphan, figures which ye made to worship them: and I will carry you away beyond Babylon.

44 Our fathers had the tabernacle of witness in the wilderness, as he had ap-

---

33. — Put off thy shoes] See note at Exod. iii. 5. It is related in the Asiatick Researches, that when a person requested to ascend into the chapel at Patna, he was told that it was open to him and to all men, as a place of worship, but it was intimated to him that he must take off his shoes on entering. Abp. Newcome.

34. I have seen, I have seen] That is, I have surely seen, as in Exod. iii. 7. Bp. Pearce.

35, 36. This Moses whom they refused, &c.] St. Stephen seems here to intimate to the Sanhedrim, before whom he was pleading, that, in the same manner as their ancestors refused Moses, their temporal deliverer appointed by God, so the Jews at present had refused or denied Jesus to be their King and Messiah, whom God had sent to be their deliverer in a spiritual sense. Dr. Wells.

37. This is that Moses, which said &c.] Being charged with speaking against the law, chap. vi. 13, St. Stephen draws his discourse chiefly from the books of Moses, and shews that they foretell the Messiah. He also reminds his hearers that their forefathers rejected a deliverer whom God had appointed, and how worthy of imitation the faith of Moses and Abraham was. Abp. Newcome. See Deut. xviii. 15, and note.

38. This is he, that was &c.] This Moses was the mediator between the angel of God and the Israelites; for he received from the former the laws which he gave to the latter. See Gal. iii. 19. Bp. Pearce.

—— in the church] In the congregation.

—— the angel] The Angel of the Covenant, the representative of Jehovah. Abp. Newcome.

—— who received the lively oracles] The law of Moses is here styled "the lively oracles," not because it was able to "give life," for that St. Paul expressly denies, Gal. iii. 21, calling this law "the ministration of death and condemnation," 2 Cor. iii. 6, 9; but because they were oracles proceeding not from dumb idols, but from the living God, and promising a prosperous and happy life in Canaan, to all that obeyed them, Lev. xviii. 5. Dr. Whitby.

41. — rejoiced in the works of their own hands.] They feasted and danced before the idol which they had made, instead of confining their religious joy to Jehovah their God. Abp. Newcome.

43. Yea, ye took up the tabernacle of Moloch, &c.] The Israelites are said, in Numb. xxv. 2, to have worshipped the gods of the Moabites, (Ps. cvi. 36—38:) and, since Moloch and Remphan were probably idols of the Canaanites, some of the Israelites are here said to have carried their idols along with them in the wilderness; and they carried them in small covers or cases, here called tabernacles. Remphan seems to have been worshipped in the shape of a star. Bps. Warburton and Pearce.

44. — the tabernacle of witness] The tabernacle of testimony, the tabernacle with the ark of the testimony in it. Dr. Hammond. See note at Numb. xvii. 7.

44—50. St. Stephen had been charged with speaking against the pointed, speaking unto Moses, [z] that he should make it according to the fashion that he had seen.

Anno DOMINI 33.

[z] Exod. 25. 40.

45 Which also our fathers that came after brought in with Jesus into the possession of the Gentiles, whom God drave out before the face of our fathers, unto the days of David;

46 Who found favour before God, and desired to find a tabernacle for the God of Jacob.

[a] 1 Chron. 17. 12.

47 [a] But Solomon built him an house.

[b] Chap. 17. 24.

48 Howbeit [b] the most High dwelleth not in temples made with hands; as saith the prophet,

49 Heaven is my throne, and earth is my footstool: what house will ye build me? saith the Lord: or what is the place of my rest?

50 Hath not my hand made all these things?

51 ¶ Ye stiffnecked and uncircumcised in heart and ears, ye do always resist the Holy Ghost: as your fathers did, so do ye.

52 Which of the prophets have not your fathers persecuted? and they have slain them which shewed before of the coming of the Just One; of whom ye have been now the betrayers and murderers:

Anno DOMINI 33.

53 Who have received the law by the disposition of angels, and have not kept it.

54 ¶ When they heard these things, they were cut to the heart, and they gnashed on him with their teeth.

55 But he, being full of the Holy Ghost, looked up stedfastly into heaven, and saw the glory of God, and Jesus standing on the right hand of God, 56 And said, Behold, I see the heavens opened, and the Son of man standing on the right hand of God.

57 Then they cried out with a loud voice, and stopped their ears, and ran upon him with one accord,

58 And cast him out of the city, and stoned him: and the witnesses laid down temple, chap. vi. 13. He therefore mentions with reverence the tabernacle and temple; but, at the same time, corrects the too high regard of his countrymen for that sacred place. Abp. Newcome.

---

He argues that the service enjoined by the law of Moses could not be essential to true religion; for the Jews had it not in their power to observe it for the space of four hundred years; and, that it was not intended to be unchangeable, appears from the circumstance of the tabernacle, though appointed with the utmost solemnity, being laid aside, and the temple built in its stead, near five hundred years after: nor was the temple, magnificent as it was, of any regard in the sight of God; for He is Lord of heaven and earth, and will accept the devotions of His faithful servants, whether offered up at Jerusalem, or in any other place, John iv. 21, 24. Bp. Mann.

45. — with Jesus] Joshua is here, and at Heb. iv. 8, called Jesus, each name signifying Saviour. Bp. Mann.

51. Ye stiffnecked and uncircumcised] Ye stubborn generation, boasting of your carnal circumcision, as Abraham's children, but "uncircumcised in heart and ears," in spirit and obedience, ye do always, from the earliest times to the present, struggle against the Holy Spirit, following the example of your fathers. Dr. Hales.

52. Which of the prophets have not &c.] He tells them, that they acted in the same spirit with their fathers. Your fathers, he says, illtreated those Prophets that foretold and described the blessed times of the Messiah: but you, by a more desperate degree of wickedness, have betrayed and murdered the very Messiah Himself. Pyle.

53. — by the disposition of angels,] It is frequently said that the Jews received their law by the ministry of angels, as in Gal. iii. 19; Heb. ii. 2. Bp. Pearce.

54. — and they gnashed on him with their teeth.] They expressed themselves against him with all the signs of rage and bitterness. Pyle.

55. — looked up stedfastly] St. Stephen, knowing what this fury of theirs would end in, lifted up his eyes and heart to heaven, where his only hope and confidence were placed; and God, for his present support, vouchsafed him a sight of the glorious appearance of the Divine Majesty, and Jesus, in the highest splendour and greatness, ready to receive him. Pyle.

Nothing but a resemblance of St. Stephen's virtues can entitle us to St. Stephen's consolations. To enjoy the reviving prospects of a glorious eternity, it is necessary we should with him "look up stedfastly to heaven," that our affections and hopes, our whole heart, our whole treasure, should be there. And to sleep as he did, when this long night shall close our eyes, we must, as he did, commit our spirits into the hands of the Lord Jesus; be perfectly content to leave the world at any time, in any manner He sees fittest for us; devote ourselves entirely to His service, and be solicitous for nothing, but that "whether we live, we may live unto the Lord, or whether we die, we may die unto the Lord," Rom. xiv. 8. Dean Stanhope.

56. — the Son of man] He alludes to Dan. vii. 13. Our Lord frequently calls Himself "the Son of man," but it is rarely that we find Him so called by others. Dr. Lightfoot. See note at Matt. viii. 20.

57. — stopped their ears,] So as not to hear a word more in his defence. Dr. Hales.

58. And cast him out of the city,] Probably, because no man was to be put to death within the city: so Jesus was taken out of the city to be crucified. See 1 Kings xxi. 13. Bp. Pearce.

—— and stoned him:] This stoning of St. Stephen was an irregular tumultuous act, not done in consequence of a sentence of the Sanhedrim; and does not prove that the Jews at that time had the power of life and death. Bp. Tomline.

St. Stephen being set in the forefront of the battle, the first of that noble army who resisted unto blood in defence of Jesus and His truth, it was of mighty consequence what issue that encounter met: of mighty consequence, not only to the champion himself, but to the cause in which he was engaged, and to many millions of souls who were to engage in it after him. The religion, which undertook so boldly to renounce the world, and "brought life and immortality to light," was then in its infancy; and an instance of those regions of immortality opening themselves to one who had so steadfastly fixed his eyes upon them, and in the strength of that vision triumphed over death and malice in their ghastliest form, proved the force, as well as certainty, of those hopes and that faith inspired by the Gospel. Dean Stanhope.

—— laid down their clothes] That they might execute their bloody purpose with the greater readiness. According to the law, (Deut. xvii. 7,) the witnesses were the persons who were to cast the first stone. Beausobre.

Anno DOMINI 33.

their clothes at a young man's feet, whose name was Saul.

59 And they stoned Stephen, calling upon God, and saying, Lord Jesus, receive my spirit.

60 And he kneeled down, and cried with a loud voice, Lord, lay not this sin to their charge. And when he had said this, he fell asleep.

CHAP. VIII.

1 By occasion of the persecution in Jerusalem, the church being planted in Samaria, 5 by Philip the deacon, who preached, did miracles, and baptized many, among the rest Simon the sorcerer, a great seducer of the people: 14 Peter and John come to confirm and enlarge the church: where, by prayer and imposition of hands giving the Holy Ghost, 18 when Simon would have bought the like power of them, 20 Peter sharply reproving his hypocrisy, and covetousness, and exhorting him to repentance, together with John preaching the word of the Lord, return to Jerusalem. 26 But the angel sendeth Philip to teach, and baptize the Ethiopian eunuch.

Anno DOMINI 34.

AND Saul was consenting unto his death. And at that time there was a great persecution against the church which was at Jerusalem; and they were all scattered abroad throughout the regions of Judea and Samaria, except the apostles. A. D. 34.

2 And devout men carried Stephen to his burial, and made great lamentation over him.

——at a young man's feet,] Compare chap. xxii. 20. Keeping the raiment seems to have been the customary office of one who had been active in convicting the person stoned. Abp. Newcome.

——whose name was Saul.] Afterwards called Paul, the great Christian Apostle.

59. —calling upon God, and saying, Lord Jesus, &c.] The word "God" is not in the original Greek. Thus, as many think, the rendering should be, "Calling upon (the Lord Jesus) and saying, Lord Jesus," &c. Pyle, Dr. Hales. This is so express an act of worship addressed to Christ by St. Stephen, that it can neither be denied nor evaded by any, but such bigots in infidelity as stopped their ears and stoned St. Stephen. Dr. Hales.

Our blessed Saviour, when expiring on the cross, cried out, "Father, into Thy hands I commend My spirit;" and He had just before prayed for His murderers in these words, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." In like manner, St. Stephen, the first martyr, at the moment of his being stoned to death, prayed to Christ, "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit;" and for his murderers he added, "Lord, lay not this sin to their charge." These prayers of Christ, addressed to His Father, and of St. Stephen, addressed to Christ, are in substance the same, and are recorded by the same Evangelist, St. Luke. It seems very evident, says Bp. Burnet, that, if Christ was not the true God, and equal to the Father, then this first martyr died in two acts which seem not only idolatrous, but also blasphemous, since he worshipped Christ in the same acts in which Christ had worshipped the Father. But, to remove all doubt concerning the lawfulness of St. Stephen's worship of Christ, and to give decisive authority to his example, St. Luke tells us that St. Stephen "was full of the Holy Ghost." Bp. Tomline.

Here we find St. Stephen, "full of the Holy Ghost," calling religiously upon Christ now in heaven, to receive his spirit, and thereby testifying not only that religious worship was due to Him, but also that He could hear his prayer, and receive his spirit at that distance, and therefore was omnipotent, and the Searcher of hearts, and He in whose hands the spirits of men were. Dr. Whitby.

60. —lay not this sin to their charge.] Thus copying the example of his Master. The miraculous conversion of St. Paul was a proof of the efficacy of St. Stephen's dying prayers, and of that gracious favour with which God was pleased to hear him. Nelson.

——he fell asleep.] So soft a pillow is death to a good man, so willingly, so quietly does he leave the world, as a weary labourer goes to bed at night. What storms or tempests soever may follow him while he lives, his sun, in spite of all the malice and cruelty of his enemies, sets serene and calm. "Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright, for the end of that man is peace," Ps. xxxvii. 37. Dr. Cave.

The example of St. Stephen instructs us, that a firm belief and persuasion of another life is the great support of every good man under the sufferings of this; that, when malice and cruelty combine to deter men from the profession of the truth, by inflicting the most barbarous torments, the good providence of God often makes them ineffectual, by assisting His faithful servants with an extraordinary communication of His grace; that we should be ever ready to forgive the injuries we receive from others; and, if we would distinguish ourselves as the disciples of Jesus, we must love our enemies, bless them that curse us, and pray for them that despitefully use and persecute us; a perfection of charity peculiar to the Gospel institution, which St. Stephen in the noblest manner displayed in his last moments. Nelson.

Chap. VIII. ver. 1. And Saul was consenting &c.] By guarding the clothes of those who stoned St. Stephen, chap. vii. 58. Bp. Pearce. Respecting Saul's conduct, see notes at chap. ix. 1.

——there was a great persecution] It seems probable that this persecution was caused by the Sanhedrim, who were indignant at St. Stephen's speech; indeed Saul confesses that he received from them his authority to treat the Christians thus, chap. xxii. 5; xxvi. 12. Dr. Whitby.

——against the church] By "the church" is meant the society of Christians. Bp. Mann.

——and they were all scattered abroad] A mysterious providence can easily confound the rage and malice of man; can bring strength out of weakness, and good out of evil. For this persecution, although it dispersed almost the whole body of the Christians, yet, contrary to the hope and design of its authors, not only spared the lives of the Apostles, but likewise became, in the hand of God, the means of propagating the Gospel, by sending forth members of the Church into different regions, who taught, preached, and worked miracles. Dr. Stack.

Out of the darkness of persecution the Lord bringeth forth the light and propagation of the Gospel; providing at once for the safety of some by their flight, and for the calling home of many others by their dispersion. Dr. Lightfoot. The rage of persecution dispersed the new believers, and rendered Jerusalem incapable of affording safety or protection to those who made publick profession of Christ. This dispersed the disciples indeed, but at the same time it dispersed the Gospel too, and opened a passage for the word of truth, wider and readier than could have been found, had its proselytes remained quietly in one place. These holy fugitives, when persecuted in one city, took refuge in another, carried their zeal for truth into every city, and so powerfully recommended the cause for which they suffered, that the force of this doctrine, wheresoever they arrived, made their own way, even through prejudice and persecution. Thus were the enemies of our religion eventually its greatest friends and promoters. And, by the same overruling Providence, which was formerly observed to disappoint the malice of the devil, and bring good out of the evil of wicked men, his instruments, the success of Christianity was such as could scarcely have taken place by any natural cause, without the assistance of that malice and cruelty which were employed to suppress it. Dean Stanhope.

Anno DOMINI 34.

3 As for Saul, he made havock of the church, entering into every house, and haling men and women committed them to prison.

4 Therefore they that were scattered abroad went every where preaching the word.

5 Then Philip went down to the city of Samaria, and preached Christ unto them.

6 And the people with one accord gave heed unto those things which Philip spake, hearing and seeing the miracles which he did.

7 For unclean spirits, crying with loud voice, came out of many that were possessed with them: and many taken with palsies, and that were lame, were healed.

8 And there was great joy in that city.

9 But there was a certain man, called Simon, which beforetime in the same city used sorcery, and bewitched the people of Samaria, giving out that himself was some great one:

10 To whom they all gave heed, from the least to the greatest, saying, This man is the great power of God.

Anno DOMINI 34.

11 And to him they had regard, because that of long time he had bewitched them with sorceries.

12 But when they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, both men and women.

13 Then Simon himself believed also: and when he was baptized, he continued with Philip, and wondered, beholding the miracles and signs which were done.

14 Now when the apostles which were at Jerusalem heard that Samaria had received the word of God, they sent unto them Peter and John:

15 Who, when they were come down, prayed for them, that they might receive the Holy Ghost:

16 (For as yet he was fallen upon none of them: only they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus.)

17 Then laid they their hands on them, and they received the Holy Ghost.

---

4. — went every where preaching] Meaning that, to whatever towns they came in this their dispersion, they preached the word, or the Gospel, to the inhabitants. Bp. Pearce.

5. — Philip] Not the Apostle of this name, but one of the seven deacons, chap. vi. 5.

The Evangelist, having finished the history of St. Stephen, who was the first named among the seven deacons, now passes on to the affairs of St. Philip, who was the second. Dr. Lightfoot.

—— the city of Samaria,] The ancient city of this name had been destroyed by Hyrcanus, but it had lately been rebuilt by Herod the Great, and in honour of Augustus called Sebaste, or Augusta. Dr. Cave. Perhaps it may mean, "a city of Samaria;" that is, a city of the region of Samaria, as Sychem. Dr. Lightfoot, Bp. Pearce.

The Apostles at their first mission were charged "not to go into the way of the Gentiles, nor to enter into any city of the Samaritans." But when Christ by His death "had broken down the middle wall of partition, and abolished in His flesh the enmity, even the law of commandments contained in ordinances," then the Gospel came and "preached peace as well to them that were afar off, as to them that were nigh," Eph. ii. 15, 17. Dr. Cave.

9. — used sorcery,] The Greek word means, used magick arts, professed to be a magician. The Magi in the best sense were Eastern philosophers; see note on Matt. ii. 1; but the term magick was used to express sorceries or unlawful arts, to which some of them pretended, applying their knowledge of nature to these impostures. Dr. Benson.

—— bewitched the people of Samaria,] So amazed them that they were in a manner beside themselves. Dr. S. Clarke.

10. — This man is the great power of God.] Meaning, some minister of God, assisted by His mighty power. Dr. Whitby.

He astonished the people by his curious arts, and by his bold professions had raised their opinions of him to the highest pitch. Bp. Mann.

12. — concerning the kingdom of God,] That is, the Gospel kingdom, the religion of Christ.

13. — Simon himself believed also:] That is, he believed that Jesus of Nazareth was the true Messiah, and so was made capable of baptism, (as was the belief of the Ethiopian nobleman at ver. 37,) and was indeed baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus, ver. 16. Dr. Lightfoot.

14. — they sent unto them Peter and John:] Here we find St. Peter sent by the other Apostles, and by the Church, which is a proof that he was not, as the Romanists pretend, their head and superiour; for he that sends is greater than he that is sent. Dr. Whitby.

